- fire-arm (fīr'ärm') n. A weapon, especially a pistol or rifle, capable of firing a projectile and using an explosive charge as a propellant.
- fire-ball (fīr'bôl') n. 1. A brilliantly burning sphere. 2. A highly luminous, intensely hot spherical cloud of dust, gas, and vapor generated by a nuclear explosion. 3. A meteor that is as bright or brighter than the brightest planets. 4. See ball of fire.
- fire-base (fīr'bās') n. A military base or site from which heavy fire is directed against the enemy.
- fire beetle (fīr bēt'l) n. Any of various tropical American click beetles of the genus Pyrophorus, especially P. noctilucus, having bright, luminous spots.
- fire-bird (fīr'bûrd') n. Any of various birds, such as the Baltimore oriole, having bright scarlet or orange plumage.
- fire blight (fīr blīt) n. A destructive disease of apple and pear trees, caused by a bacterium (Erwinia amylovora) that blackens the leaves and kills the branches.
- fire-board (fīr'bôrd', -bôrd') n. Upper Southern U.S. See mantel (n., sense 2).
- fire-boat (fīr'bôt') n. Nautical. A boat equipped to fight fires along waterfronts and on ships.
- fire-bomb (fīr'bôm') n. A bomb used to start a fire; an incendiary bomb. — v. tr. fire-bombed, fire-bomb-ing, fire-bombs. To attack (a target) with a firebomb. — v. intr. To launch an attack against a target, using a firebomb. — fire'bomb'er n.
- fire-box (fīr'böks') n. 1. A chamber, such as the furnace of a steam locomotive, in which fuel is burned. 2. A box containing a fire alarm.
- fire-brand (fīr'bränd') n. 1. A person who stirs up trouble or kindles a revolt. 2. A piece of burning wood.
- fire-brat (fīr'brät') n. A small, wingless insect (Thermobia domestica) related to the silverfish and inhabiting warm areas of buildings, as around furnaces or boilers.
- fire-break (fīr'brāk') n. A strip of cleared or plowed land used to stop the spread of a fire. Also called fireguard
- fire-brick (fīr'brīk') n. A refractory brick, usually made of fire clay, used for lining furnaces, fireboxes, chimneys, or fireplaces.
- fire brigade (fīr brī-gād') n. An organized body of firefighters.
- fire-bug (fīr'büg') n. Informal. An arsonist; a pyromaniac.

- fire clay also fire-clay (fīr'klā') n. A type of clay that is able to withstand intense heat, used to make firebricks, crucibles, and other objects that are exposed to high temperatures.
- fire control (fīr kən-trōl') n. The control of the delivery of gunfire on military targets.
- fire-crack-er (fīr'krāk'ər) n. A small explosive charge and a fuse in a heavy paper casing, exploded to make noise, as at celebrations.
- fire-damp (fīr'dämp') n. 1. A combustible gas, chiefly methane, occurring naturally in mines from the decomposition of coal. 2. The explosive mixture of firedamp and air.
- fire department (fīr dī-pärt'mənt) n. Abbr. FD A department, especially of a municipal government, whose purpose is preventing and putting out fires.
- fire-dog (fīr'dôg', -dôg') n. Chiefly South Atlantic U.S. See andiron.
- fire door (fīr dôr) n. A door made of fire-resistant material that can be closed to prevent the spread of fire.
- fire-drake (fīr'drāk') n. A fiery dragon of Germanic mythology. [Middle English firdrake, from Old English fȳrdraca : fȳr, fire; see FIRE + draca, dragon; see DRAKE².]
- fire drill (fīr drīl) n. An exercise in the use of firefighting equipment or the evacuation of a building in case of a fire.
- fire-eat-er (fīr'ē'tər) n. 1. A performer who pretends to swallow fire. 2. A beligerent person or a militant partisan. —fire'-eat'ing adj.
- fire engine (fīr ɛn'jīn) n. Any of various large motor vehicles that carry firefighters and equipment to a fire and support extinguishing operations, as by pumping water.
- fire escape (fīr ɪ-skāp') n. A structure or device, such as an outside stairway attached to a building, erected for emergency exit in the event of fire.
- fire extinguisher (fīr ɪk-stɪŋg'gwɪ-shər) n. A portable apparatus containing chemicals that can be discharged in a jet to extinguish a small fire.
- fire-fight (fīr'fīt') n. An exchange of gunfire, as between infantry units.
- fire-fight-er also fire fighter (fīr'fī'tər) n. A member of a fire department who fights fires. —fire'fight'ing adj. & n.
- fire-flood (fīr'flūd') or fire-flood-ing (-flūd'ɪŋ) n. A procedure for extracting additional oil from a well by injecting compressed air into the petroleum reservoir and burning some of the oil to increase the flow.
- fire-fly (fīr'fli') n. Any of various nocturnal beetles of the family Lampyridae, characteristically having luminescent chemicals in the posterior tip of the abdomen that produce a flashing light. Also called lightning bug
- fire-guard (fīr'gärd') n. 1. A metal screen placed in front of an open fireplace to catch sparks. Also called fire screen 2. See firebreak.
- fire-house (fīr'hous') n. See fire station.

fire hydrant (fīr hī'drənt) n. An upright pipe with a nozzle or spout for drawing water from a water main. Also called fireplug fire irons (fīr ī'ərnz) pl.n. Implements, such as tongs, a shovel, and a poker, used to tend a fireplace.

Fire Island (fīr ī'lənd) A narrow barrier island off the southern shore of Long Island in southeast New York. It has many resort communities, a state park, and a nationally protected seashore area that includes the Sunken Forest, with unusual plant and animal life.

fire-light (fīr'līt') n. The light from a fire, as in a fireplace.

fire-lock (fīr'lök') n. See flintlock (n., sense 2).

fire-man (fīr'mən) n. 1. A firefighter. 2. A man who tends fires; a stoker. 3. An enlisted man in the U.S. Navy engaged in the operation of engineering machinery. 4. Baseball. A relief pitcher.

fire marshal (fīr mār'shəl) n. 1. The head of a department or an office that is charged with the prevention and investigation of fires. 2. A person in charge of firefighting personnel and equipment at an industrial plant.

Fi-ren-ze (fē-rĕn'dzĕ) See Florence (sense 1).

fire opal (fīr ō'pəl) n. An opal with brilliant flamelike yellow, orange, and red colors. Also called girasol fire pink (fīr pĭngk) n. A perennial herb (Silene virginica) of eastern North America, having red flowers with narrow, deeply notched petals.

fire-place (fīr'plās') n. Abbr. fpl 1. An open recess for holding a fire at the base of a chimney; a hearth. 2. A structure, usually of stone or brick, for holding an outdoor fire.

fire-plug (fīr'plüg') n. See fire hydrant.

fire-pow-er (fīr'pou'ər) n. 1. The capacity, as of a weapon, weapons system, military unit, or position, for delivering fire. 2. The ability to deliver fire against an enemy in combat.

fire-proof (fīr'prōōf') adj. Impervious or resistant to damage by fire. — v. tr. fire-proofed, fire-proof-ing, fire-proofs. To make fireproof.

fire sale (fīr sāl) n. A sale of merchandise damaged by fire.

fire screen (fīr skrĕn) n. See fireguard (n., sense 1).

fire ship (fīr shĭp) n. A military vessel loaded with explosives and combustible material and set adrift among enemy ships or fortifications to destroy them.

fire-side (fīr'sīd') n. 1. The area immediately surrounding a fireplace or hearth. 2. A home. — adj. At or as if at a fireside: a fireside chat.

fire station (fīr stā'shən) n. A building for fire equipment and firefighters. Also called firehouse fire-stone (fīr'stōn') n. 1. A flint or pyrite used to strike a fire. 2. A fire-resistant stone, such as certain sandstones.

Fire-stone (fīr'stōn'), Harvey Samuel. 1868-1938. American industrialist who organized the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company (1900) and first manufactured the balloon tire.

fire-storm (fīr'stōrm') n. 1. A fire of great size and intensity that generates and is fed by strong intruding winds from all sides: the firestorm that leveled Hiroshima after the atomic blast. 2. An intense, violent outburst from many sources: a firestorm of criticism.

fire thorn (fīr thōrn) n. Any of various thorny shrubs of the genus Pyracantha, native to Asia and often cultivated for their evergreen foliage and showy reddish or orange berries.

fire tower (fīr tou'ər) n. A tower in which a lookout for fires is posted.

fire-trap (fīr'trăp') n. A building that can catch fire easily or is difficult to escape from in the event of fire.

fire-wall (fīr'wōl) n. A fireproof wall used as a barrier to prevent the spread of fire. — v. intr. fire-walled, fire-wall-ing, fire-walls. Slang. To apply maximum acceleration or thrust. Used of motor vehicles or aircraft.

fire-wa-ter (fīr'wō'tər, -wōt'ər) n. Slang. Strong liquor, especially whiskey. [Translation of Ojibwa ishkodewaaboo, whiskey.]

fire-weed (fīr'wēd') n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Epilobium, especially E. angustifolium, having long, terminal, spikelike clusters of pinkish-purple flowers. Also called willow herb 2. Any of several weedy North American plants of the genus Erechtites, having small white or greenish flowers grouped in discoid heads.

fire-wood (fīr'wōd') n. Wood used as fuel.

fire-work (fīr'wûrk') n. 1. a. A device consisting of a combination of explosives and combustibles, set off to generate colored lights, smoke, and noise for amusement. b. fireworks. A display of such devices. 2. fireworks. a. An exciting or spectacular display, as of musical virtuosity. b. A display of rage or fierce contention.

fir-ing (fīr'ŭng) n. 1. The process of applying fire or heat, as in the hardening or glazing of ceramics. 2. Fuel for fires.

firing line (fīr'ŭng līn) n. 1. The line of positions from which fire is directed at a target. 2. The forefront of an activity or pursuit; the vanguard.

firing pin (fīr'ŭng pīn) n. The part of the bolt or breech of a firearm that strikes the primer and detonates the charge of a projectile.

firing squad (fīr'ŭng skwōd) n. 1. A detachment assigned to shoot persons condemned to death. 2. A detachment of soldiers chosen to fire a salute at a military funeral.

fir-kin (fûr'kīn) n. 1. A small wooden barrel or covered vessel. 2. Any of several British units of capacity, usually equal to about 4 of a barrel or 9 gallons (34 liters). [Middle English ferken, ferdekin, probably from Middle Dutch verdel-* kijn, diminutive of veerd, one-fourth : veerde, fourth; see k^wetwer- in Appendix + deel, part; see dail- in Appendix.]

firm¹ (fûrm) adj. firm·er, firm·est. 1. Resistant to externally applied pressure. 2. Marked by or indicating the tone and resiliency of healthy tissue: firm muscles. 3. Securely fixed in place: Despite being hit by the car, the post was still firm. 4. Indicating or possessed of determination or resolution: a firm voice. 5. Constant; steadfast: a firm ally. 6. a. Not subject to change; fixed and definite: a firm bargain; a firm offer. b. Unfluctuating; steady: Stock prices are still firm. 7. Strong and sure: a firm grasp. — v. tr. intr. firmed, firm·ing, firms. To make or become firm. — adv. firmer, firmest. Without wavering; resolutely: stand firm. [Middle English ferm, from Old French, from Latin firmus. See dher- in Appendix.] —firm'ly adv. —firm'ness n.

SYNONYMS: firm, hard, solid. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “tending not to yield to external pressure, touch, or force”: a firm mattress; hard as granite; solid ice.

ANTONYM: soft

firm² (fûrm) n. 1. A commercial partnership of two or more persons, especially when unincorporated. 2. The name or designation under which a company transacts business. [Italian firma, from firmare, to ratify by signature, from Medieval Latin firmāre, from Latin, to confirm, from firmus, firm. See dher- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: In these days of agribusiness, a farm and a firm are probably closer than they have been since the time before the words farm and firm developed from the same Latin word, firmāre, “to strengthen, make fast, confirm, attest,” which is derived from Latin firmus, the source of firm, meaning “secure.” In Medieval Latin firmāre came to mean “to ratify by signature,” from which sense eventually came our word firm, first recorded in 1574 with the meaning “signature.” This word firm later added the senses “designation under which a firm transacts business” and “commercial house.” Latin firmāre by way of Old French also gave us Middle English ferme, the ancestor of our word farm.

fir·ma·ment (fûr'mə-mənt) n. The vault or expanse of the heavens; the sky. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin firmāmentum, from Latin, support, from firmāre, to strengthen. See FIRM².] —fir'ma·ment'al (-mĕn'tl) adj.

fir·mer chisel (fûr'mər chīz'əl) n. A chisel or gouge with a thin blade, used to shape and finish wood by hand. [French fermoir, from Old French, alteration firm-ware (fûrn'wâr') n. Computer Science. Programming instructions that are stored in a read-only memory unit rather than being implemented through software.

(influenced by fermer, to make firm, from Latin firmāre); see FIRM², of formoir, from former, to form, from Latin formāre, from forma, form.]

firn (fîrn) n. Granular, partially consolidated snow that has passed through one summer melt season but is not yet glacial ice. Also called old snow [German, from German dialectal, of last year, from Old High German firni, old.]

Fi-ro-za-bad (fî-rō'zä-bäd') A city of north-central India southeast of Delhi. It is a manufacturing center in a cotton and grain area. Population, 202,338.

first (fûrst) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number one in a series.

2. The one coming, occurring, or ranking before or above all others. 3. The beginning; the outset: from the first; at first. 4. Music. The voice or instrument highest in pitch or carrying the principal part. 5. The transmission gear or corresponding gear ratio used to produce the range of lowest drive speeds in a motor vehicle. 6. The winning position in a contest: finished the season in first.

7. Baseball. a. First base. b. A first baseman. — adj. 1. Corresponding in order to the number one. 2. Coming before all others in order or location: the first house on your left. 3. Occurring or acting before all others in time; earliest: the first day of spring. 4. Ranking above all others, as in importance or quality; foremost: was first in the class. 5. Music. Being highest in pitch or carrying the principal part: first trumpet. 6. Of, relating to, or being the transmission gear or corresponding gear ratio used to produce the range of lowest drive speeds in a motor vehicle. — adv. 1. Before or above all others in time, order, rank, or importance: arrived first; forgot to light the oven first. 2. For the first time.

3. Rather; preferably: would die first. 4. In the first place; to begin with. See Usage Note at firstly. [Middle English, from Old English fyrst. See per¹ in Appendix.]

first aid (fûrst ād) n. Emergency treatment administered to an injured or sick person before professional medical care is available. — first'-aid' (fûrst'ād') adj.

first base (fûrst bās) n. 1. Baseball. a. The first of the bases in the infield, counterclockwise from home plate. b. The fielding position occupied by the first baseman. 2. Slang. The first stage or step toward completion or success: “He never got to first base with any of his big wheels and deals” (Ross Macdonald).

first baseman (fûrst bās'mən) n. Baseball. The infielder stationed near first base.

first-born (fûrst'bôrn') adj. First in order of birth; born first. — n. The child in a family who is born first.

first class (fûrst klās) n. 1. The first, highest, or best group in a system of classification: a restaurant of the first class. 2. The most luxurious and most expensive class of accommodations on a train, passenger ship, airplane, or other conveyance. 3. A class of mail including letters, post cards, and packages sealed against inspection.

first-class (fûrst'kläs') adj. 1. Constituting or belonging to the first, highest, or best group in a system of classification: a first-class hotel; first-class mail. 2. Of the foremost excellence or highest quality; first-rate: a first-class mind. —first' class' adv.

first cousin (fûrst kûz'in) n. See cousin (n., sense 1).

first-de-gree burn (fûrst'dî-grē' bûrn) n. A mild burn that produces redness of the skin but no blistering.

first down (fûrst doun) n. Football. 1. The first in the series of four downs in which an offensive team must advance ten yards to retain possession of the ball. 2. A gain of ten or more yards entitling the offensive team to a new series of downs.

first edition (fûrst ĭ-dîsh'ən) n. 1. a. The first published copies of a literary work printed from the same type and distributed at the same time. b. A single copy from a group published first. 2. The day's first press run of a newspaper.

first family also First Family (fûrst fām'ə-lē) n. 1. A family having high social status, often because of descent from the first settlers of a place. 2. The family of the chief executive of a city, state, or country.

first finger (fûrst fîng'gər) n. See index finger.

first floor (fûrst flôr) n. 1. The ground floor of a building. 2. Chiefly British. The floor immediately above the ground floor.

first fruits also first-fruits (fûrst'frōōts') pl.n. 1. The first gathered fruits of a harvest, offered to God in gratitude. 2. The first results of an undertaking.

first generation (fûrst jĕn'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. Persons who have left one country and settled in another. 2. Persons whose parents are immigrants. 3. Computer Science. The period of computer technology during the late 1940's and early 1950's, when computers were built with vacuum tubes.

first-gen-er-a-tion (fûrst'jĕn'ə-rā'shən) adj. 1. Of or relating to a person who has left one country and settled in another. 2. Of or relating to a person or persons whose parents are immigrants. 3. Computer Science. Of, relating to, or being the period of computer technology distinguished by the use of vacuum tubes.

first-hand (fûrst'händ') adj. Received from the original source: firsthand information. —first'hand' adv.

first-in, first-out (fûrst'in' fûrst'out') n. Accounting. A method of inventory accounting in which the oldest remaining items are assumed to have been the first sold. In a period of rising prices, this method yields a higher ending inventory, a lower cost of goods sold, a higher gross profit (assuming constant price), and a higher taxable income. Also called FIFO first lady (fûrst lâ'dē) n. 1. Often First Lady. The wife or hostess of the chief executive of a country, state, or city. 2. The foremost woman of a specified profession or art: the first lady of the American theater.

first lieutenant (fûrst loō-tě'n'ənt) n. 1. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, and Marines that is above second lieutenant and below captain. 2. One who holds this rank.

first-ling (fûrst'liŋ) n. 1. The first of a kind or category. 2. A first-born offspring.

first-ly (fûrst'lē) adv. In the first place; to begin with.

USAGE NOTE: There is ample reputable precedent for using both first and first-ly to begin an enumeration: Our objectives are, first (or firstly), to recover from last year's slump. Whichever is chosen, however, consistency is best served if any succeeding items are introduced by a parallel form, as in first... second... third or first-ly... secondly... thirdly.

first mate (fûrst māt) n. An officer on a merchant ship ranking immediately below the captain.

first name (fûrst nām) n. The name that occurs first in a person's full name.

first night (fûrst nīt) n. 1. The opening performance of a theatrical production. 2. The performance presented on such a night.

first night-er (fûrst nī'tər) n. A member of the audience at a first night.

first offender (fûrst ə-fě'n'dər) n. One convicted of a legal offense for the first time.

first papers (fûrst pā'pərz) pl.n. The documents first filed by one applying for U.S. citizenship.

first person (fûrst pûr'sən) n. 1. a. A category of linguistic forms, such as verbs and pronouns, designating the speaker or writer of the sentence in which they appear. b. One of the forms of this category. 2. A style of writing in which forms in the first person are used: a novel written in the first person.

first-rate (fûrst'rāt') adj. Foremost in quality, rank, or importance. — adv. Informal. Very well; excellently.

first sergeant (fûrst sār'jənt) n. The senior noncommissioned officer of a U.S. Army or Marine Corps unit, who is equivalent in rank to a master sergeant and performs administrative duties.

first strike (fûrst strīk) n. The initial use of strategic nuclear weapons against a nuclear-armed adversary, theorized as feasible only if the attacker can destroy the adversary's retaliatory capacity. — first/-strike' (fûrst'strīk') adj.

first-string (fûrst'strīŋ') adj. 1. Sports. Of, relating to, or being a regular member, as of a football team, rather than a substitute. 2. First-rate. — first/-string'er n.

first water (fûrst wô'tər) n. 1. The highest degree of quality or purity in diamonds or pearls. 2. The foremost rank or quality: a pianist of the first water. [Probably translation of Arabic mā', water, water luster.]

First World also first world (fûrst wûrld) n. The industrialized non-Communist countries of the world. —first'-world' (fûrst'wûrld') adj.

First World War (fûrst wûrld wôr) n. World War I.

firth (fûrth) n. Scots. A long, narrow inlet of the sea. [Middle English furth, from Old Norse fjörðhr. See per-² in Appendix.]

fisc (fîsk) n. The treasury of a kingdom or state. [French, from Latin fiscus, money basket, treasury.]

fis-cal (fis'kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to government expenditures, revenues, and debt: a fiscal policy of incurring budget deficits to stimulate a weak economy. 2. Of or relating to finance or finances. See Synonyms at financial. [French, from Latin fiscālis, from fiscus, money basket, treasury.] —fis'/cal-ly adv.

fiscal year (fis'kəl yîr) n. Abbr. FY A 12-month period for which an organization plans the use of its funds.

Fi-scher (fish'ər), Emil Hermann. 1852-1919. German chemist. He won a 1902 Nobel Prize for his work on the structure and synthesis of sugars and purines.

Fi-scher (fish'ər), Ernst Otto. Born 1918. German chemist. He shared a 1973 Nobel Prize for research on pollutants in automobile exhaust.

Fi-scher (fish'ər), Hans. 1881-1945. German chemist. He won a 1930 Nobel Prize for his work on the synthesis of hemin.

Fi-scher (fish'ər), Robert James. Known as “Bobby.” Born 1943. American chess player who was world champion from 1972 to 1974.

fish (fîsh) n. pl. fish or fish-es. 1. Any of numerous cold-blooded aquatic vertebrates of the superclass Pisces, characteristically having fins, gills, and a streamlined body and including specifically: a. Any of the class Osteichthyes, having a bony skeleton. b. Any of the class Chondrichthyes, having a cartilaginous skeleton and including the sharks, rays, and skates. 2. The flesh of such animals used as food. 3. Any of various primitive aquatic vertebrates of the class Cyclostomata, lacking jaws and including the lampreys and hagfishes. 4. Any of various unrelated aquatic animals, such as a jellyfish, cuttlefish, or crayfish. 5. Informal. A person who is deficient in something: a cold fish; a poor fish. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: fish parts; fish gaffs. — v. fished, fish-ing, fish-es. — v. intr. 1. To catch or try to catch fish. 2. To look for something by feeling one's way; grope: fished in both pockets for a coin. 3. To seek something in a sly or indirect way: fish for compliments. — v. tr. 1. a. To catch or try to catch (fish). b. To catch or try to catch fish in: fish mountain streams. 2. To catch or pull as if fishing: defly fished the corn out of the boiling water. —phrasal verb. fish out. To deplete (a lake, for example) of fish by fishing.

—idioms. fish in troubled waters. To try to take advantage of a confused situation. fish or cut bait. Informal. To proceed with an activity or abandon it altogether. like a fish out of water. Completely unfamiliar with one's surroundings or activity. neither fish nor fowl. Having no specific characteristics; indefinite. other fish to fry. Informal. Other matters to attend to: He declined to come along to the movie, saying he had other fish to fry. [Middle English, from Old English fisc.]

Fish (fish), Hamilton. 1808-1893. American politician who served as U.S. secretary of state (1869-1877) and negotiated the settlement of the Civil War Alabama Claims with Great Britain (1871).

fish and chips (fish ənd chips) pl.n. Fried fillets of fish and French-fried potatoes.

fish-bowl also fish bowl (fish' bōl') n. 1. A transparent bowl in which live fish are kept. 2. Informal. A place that is lacking in privacy.

fish cake (fish kāk) n. A fried cake or patty of chopped fish, often mixed with potato, bread crumbs, or rice.

fish crow (fish krō) n. A crow (Corvus ossifragus) native to the coastal regions and rivers of the eastern United States.

fish-er (fish'ər) n. 1. One that fishes, as a person or ship engaged in fishing. 2. a. A carnivorous mammal (Martes pennanti) of northern North America, having thick, dark-brown fur. Also called pekan, wejack. b. The fur of this animal.

Fish-er (fish'ər), Andrew. 1862-1928. Australian politician who served three terms as prime minister between 1908 and 1915 and was Australian high commissioner in London (1916-1921).

Fish-er (fish'ər), Dorothy Canfield. 1879-1958. American writer whose novels include Gunchild (1907) and The Bent Twig (1915).

Fish-er (fish'ər), Irving. 1867-1947. American economist who devised the price index for the study of economic trends.

Fish-er (fish'ər), John Arbuthnot First Baron Fisher of Kilverstone. 1841-1920. British admiral who revamped and revitalized the British navy in preparation for World War I.

fish-er-man (fish'ər-mən) n. 1. One who fishes as an occupation or for sport. 2. A commercial fishing vessel.

fish-er-man's bend (fish'ər-mənz bēnd) n. A knot used to secure the end of a line to a ring or spar, made by two turns with the end passed back under both.

fisherman's knot (fish'ər-mənz nōt) n. A knot used to join two lines, made by securing either end to the opposite standing part by an overhand knot.

Fish-ers Island (fish'ərz ī'lənd) A small island off the northeast tip of Long Island in southeast New York. It was developed as a resort in 1925.

fish-er-y (fish'ə-rē) n. pl. fish-er-ies. 1. The industry or occupation devoted to the catching, processing, or selling of fish, shellfish, or other aquatic animals.

2. A place where fish or other aquatic animals are caught. 3. A fishing business.

4. A hatchery for fish. 5. The legal right to fish in specified waters or areas.

Fish-es (fish'iz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). See Pisces.

fish-eye (fish'ī') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being a wide-angle photographic lens that covers an angle of about 180°, producing a circular image with exaggerated foreshortening in the center and increasing distortion toward the periphery.

2. Slang. A suspicious, unfriendly glance or look.

fish farm (fish färm) n. A commercial facility consisting of tanks or ponds in which fish are raised for food.

fish flour (fish flour) n. A flour made of dried and powdered fish.

fish fry (fish frī) n. 1. A cookout or other meal at which fried fish is the main course. 2. A piece of fried fish.

fish-gig (fish'gīg') n. A pronged instrument for spearing fish. [Alteration (influenced by FISH), of obsolete fisgig, from Spanish fisga, ultimately from Latin fīxus, fixed. See FIX.]

fish hawk (fish hôk) n. See osprey (n., sense 1).

fish-hook (fish'hōök') n. A barbed metal hook used for catching fish.

fish-ing (fish'ing) n. 1. The act, occupation, or sport of catching fish. 2. A place for catching fish.

fishing rod (fish'ing rōd) n. A rod of wood, steel, or fiberglass used with a line for catching fish.

fish joint (fish joint) n. A joint formed by bolting a fishplate to each side of two abutting rails, timbers, or beams. [From FISH(PLATE).]

fish ladder (fish lăd'ər) n. A series of pools arranged like ascending steps at the side of a stream, enabling migrating fish to swim upstream around a dam or other obstruction.

fish-meal (fish'mēl') n. A nutritive mealy substance produced from fish or fish parts and used as animal feed and fertilizer.

fish-mon-ger (fish'mŭng'gər, -mōng'-) n. Chiefly British. One that sells fish.

fish-net (fish'nĕt') n. 1. Netting used to catch fish. 2. A mesh fabric resembling such netting.

fish-plate (fish'plāt') n. A metal or wooden plate bolted to the sides of two abutting rails or beams, used especially in the laying of railroad track. [Probably from French fiche, peg (from Old French); see MICROFICHE + PLATE.]

fish-pond (fish'pōnd') n. A pond containing or stocked with edible fish.

fish protein concentrate (fish prō'tĕn' kŏn'sən-trāt') n. Abbr. FPC A flour or paste rich in protein that is prepared from ground fish and used as a nutritional additive to foods.

fish-skin disease (fish'skīn' dī-zēz') n. See ichthyosis.

fish stick (fish stīk) n. An oblong piece of breaded fish fillet.

fish story (fish stôr'ē) n. Informal. An implausible, boastful story. [From the fact that fishermen traditionally exaggerate the size of their catch.]

fish-tail (fish'tāl') adj. Resembling or suggestive of the tail of a fish in shape or movement. — v. intr. fish-tailed, fish-tail-ing, fish-tails. 1. To have the rear end of a forward-moving vehicle swerve from side to side out of control: I stepped hard on the gas, and the truck fishtailed on the icy road. 2. To swing the tail of an airplane from side to side in order to reduce speed.

fishtail palm (fish'tāl' päm) n. Any of several tropical Asiatic palms of the genus Caryota, particularly C. mitis, having bipinnate leaves with toothed, oblique leaflet apices.

fish-wife (fish'wīf') n. 1. A woman who sells fish. 2. A woman regarded as coarse and shrewishly abusive.

fish-y (fish'ē) adj. fish-i-er, fish-i-est. 1. Resembling or suggestive of fish, as in taste or odor. 2. Cold or expressionless: a fishy stare. 3. Informal. Inspiring doubt or suspicion: Something is fishy about the accident. —fish'i-ly adv. —fish'i-ness n.

Fisk (fisk), James. 1834-1872. American railroad financier and speculator who attempted in 1869 to corner the gold market with Jay Gould, leading to Black Friday, a day of nationwide financial panic.

Fiske (fisk), John. 1842-1901. American historian and philosopher known for his writings on religion and science, especially Excursions of an Evolutionist (1884).

Fiske (fisk), Minnie Maddern. 1865-1932. American actress noted for her interpretations of Ibsen and Shakespeare.

fissi- pref. 1. Fission: fissiparous. 2. Split; cleft: fissipalmate. [From Latin fissus, past participle of findere, to split. See bheid- in Appendix.]

fis-sile (fis'al, -il') adj. 1. Possible to split. 2. Physics. Fissionable, especially by neutrons of all energies. 3. Geology. Easily split along close parallel planes. [Latin fissilis, from fissus, split. See FISSI-.] —fis-sil'i-ty (fī-sil'ī-tē) n.

fis-sion (fish'an) n. 1. The act or process of splitting into parts. 2. A nuclear reaction in which an atomic nucleus, especially a heavy nucleus such as an isotope of uranium, splits into fragments, usually two fragments of comparable mass, with the evolution of from 100 million to several hundred million electron volts of energy. 3. Biology. An asexual reproductive process in which a unicellular organism divides into two or more independently maturing daughter cells. [Latin fissiō, fissiōn-, a cleaving, from fissus, split. See FISSI-.]

fis-sion-a-ble (fish'ə-nə-bəl) adj. Capable of undergoing fission: fissionable nuclear material. —fis'sion-a-bil'i-ty n.

fission bomb (fish'an bōm) n. See atom bomb (n., sense 1).

fis-si-pal-mate (fis'ə-pāl'māt') adj. Having lobed or partially webbed separated toes, as in the feet of certain birds.

fis-sip·a·rous (fī-sīp'ər-əs) adj. 1. Reproducing by biological fission.

2. Tending to break up into parts or break away from a main body; factious.

—fis-sip'a-rous-ly adv. —fis-sip'a-rous-ness n.

fis-si-ped (fīs'ə-pĕd') adj. Having the toes separated from one another, as in the feet of certain carnivorous mammals. — n. A carnivorous mammal, such as a bear, dog, or cat, that has such toes.

fis-sure (fīsh'ər) n. 1. A long, narrow opening; a crack or cleft. 2. The process of splitting or separating; division. 3. A separation into subgroups or factions; a schism. 4. Anatomy. A normal groove or furrow, as in the liver or brain, that divides an organ into lobes or separates it into parts. 5. Medicine. A break in the skin, usually where it joins a mucous membrane, producing a cracklike sore or ulcer. — v. intr. tr. fis-sured, fis-sur-ing, fis-sures. To form a crack or cleft or cause a crack or cleft in. [Middle English, cut, from Old French, from Latin fissūra, from fissus, split. See FISSI-.]

fist (fīst) n. 1. The hand closed tightly with the fingers bent against the palm.

2. Informal. A grasp; a clutch: had a fortune in their fists and let it go. 3. Printing. See index (n., sense 3). — v. tr. fist-ed, fist-ing, fists. 1. To clench into a fist.

2. To grasp with the fist. [Middle English, from Old English fȳst. See penk^we in Appendix.]

fist-fight (fīst'fīt') n. A fight with the bare fists.

fist-ful (fīst'fōōl') n. pl. fist-fuls. The amount that a fist can hold.

fist-ic (fīs'tik) adj. Sports. Of or relating to boxing; pugilistic.

fist-i-cuffs (fīs'tī-kūfs') pl.n. 1. A fistfight. 2. Sports. Boxing. [From fisty cuffs: fisty, with the fists (from FIST) + CUFF².] —fist'i-cuff'er n.

fis-tu-la (fīs'chə-lə) n. pl. fis-tu-las or fis-tu-lae (-lē'). An abnormal duct or passage resulting from injury, disease, or a congenital disorder that connects an abscess, a cavity, or a hollow organ to the body surface or to another hollow organ. [Middle English, from Latin.]

fis-tu-lous (fīs'chə-ləs) or fis-tu-lar (-lər) adj. 1. Of or resembling a fistula.

2. Tubular and hollow, as the leaves of a scallion. 3. Made of or containing tubular parts.

fit¹ (fīt) v. fit-ted or fit, fit-ted, fit-ting, fits. — v. tr. 1. a. To be the proper size and shape for: These shoes fit me. b. To cause to be the proper size and shape: The tailor fitted the trousers by shortening them. c. To measure for proper size: She fitted me for a new jacket. 2. To be appropriate to; suit: music that fits your mood. 3. To be in conformity or agreement with: observations that fit the theory nicely. 4. To make suitable; adapt: fitted the shelves for large books. 5. To make ready; prepare: Specialized training fitted her for the job. 6. To equip; outfit: fit out a ship. 7. To provide a place or time for: You can't fit any more toys in the box. The doctor can fit you in today. 8. To insert or adjust so as to be properly in place: fit a handle on a door. — v. intr. 1. To be the proper size and shape.

2. To be suited; belong: doesn't fit in with these people. 3. To be in harmony; agree: His good mood fit in with the joyful occasion. — adj. fit·ter, fit·test.

1. Suited, adapted, or acceptable for a given circumstance or purpose: not a fit time for flippancy. 2. Appropriate; proper: Do as you see fit. 3. Physically sound; healthy: keeps fit with diet and exercise. — n. 1. The state, quality, or way of being fitted: the proper fit of means to ends. 2. The manner in which clothing fits: a jacket with a tight fit. 3. The degree of precision with which surfaces are adjusted or adapted to each other in a machine or collection of parts. — idioms. fit to be tied. Roused to great anger or indignation; outraged. fit to kill. Slang. To an extreme or elaborate degree: dressed up fit to kill. [Middle English fitten, to be suitable, marshal troops.] — fit'ly adv. — fit'ter n.

SYNONYMS: fit, suitable, meet, proper, appropriate, apt, fitting, happy, felicitous. These adjectives mean right or correct in view of existing circumstances. They are often interchangeable. Fit refers to what is adapted for or suited to a purpose, occasion, or use: a meal fit for a gourmet; a tractor fit for heavy duty; not a fit time or place for an argument. Suitable implies ability to meet a requirement, fill a need, or answer a purpose: an overcoat suitable for everyday wear; a book not suitable for children. Meet applies to what is precisely suitable and often suggests the sense of being right or just: a meet reward. Proper describes what is harmonious, either by nature or because it accords with reason, custom, or propriety: the proper time to plant a crop; the proper form of address for a cleric. What is appropriate to a thing or for an occasion especially befits it: a funeral conducted with appropriate solemnity. What is apt is notably to the point: an apt reply. Fitting suggests close agreement, as with a prevailing mood or spirit: “We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives... It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this” (Abraham Lincoln). Happy and felicitous are applicable to what seems especially suitable, as by its nature: a happy turn of phrase; a felicitous comment. See also Synonyms at adapt fit² (fit) n. 1. Medicine. a. A seizure or a convulsion, especially one caused by epilepsy. b. The sudden appearance of a symptom such as coughing or sneezing. 2. A sudden outburst of emotion: a fit of jealousy. 3. A sudden period of vigorous activity. — idiom. by fits and starts (or in fits and starts). With irregular intervals of action and inaction; intermittently. [Middle English, hardship, probably from Old English fitt, struggle.]

fit³ (fit) n. Archaic. A section of a poem or ballad. [Middle English, from Old English.]

fitch (fitch) n. 1. See polecat (n., sense 1a). 2. The fur of this animal. [Middle English fiche, from Middle Dutch vitsche, visse.]

- Fitch (fĭch), John. 1743-1798. American steamboat pioneer whose early designs (1787-1790) were successful but received insufficient financial backing for large-scale production.
- Fitch (fĭch), Val L. Born 1923. American physicist. He shared a 1980 Nobel Prize for work concerning the asymmetry of subatomic particles.
- Fitch (fĭch), (William) Clyde. 1865-1909. American playwright whose works include Beau Brummel (1890) and The Climbers (1901).
- Fitch-burg (fĭch' bŭrg') A city of north-central Massachusetts north of Worcester. It was settled in 1740. Population, 41,194.
- fitch·ew (fĭch' ō) also fitch-et (-ĭt) n. Archaic. The Old World polecat or its fur. [Middle English ficheux, possibly from Walloon ficheau, diminutive of Middle Dutch vitsche, visse.]
- fit·ful (fĭt' fəl) adj. Occurring in or characterized by intermittent bursts, as of activity; irregular. See Synonyms at periodic. —fit'ful·ly adv. —fit'ful·ness n.
- fit·ness (fĭt' nĭs) n. The state or condition of being physically fit, especially as the result of exercise and proper nutrition. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: fitness equipment; fitness centers.
- fitness walking (fĭt' nĭs wŏ' kĭng) n. Sports. The aerobic sport of brisk, rhythmic, vigorous walking, intended to improve cardiovascular efficiency, strengthen the heart, control weight gain, and reduce stress.
- fit·ting (fĭt' ĭng) adj. Being in keeping with a situation; appropriate. See Synonyms at fit¹. — n. 1. The act of trying on clothes whose fit is being adjusted. 2. A small detachable part for a machine or an apparatus. 3. fittings. Chiefly British. Furnishings or fixtures. —fit'ting·ly adv. —fit'ting·ness n.
- Fitz (fĭts), Reginald Heber. 1843-1913. American pioneer in pathology who identified appendicitis and proposed surgery for its cure.
- Fitz-ger-ald (fĭts-jĕr' əld), Ella. 1918-1996. American jazz singer known for her scat singing and her interpretation of ballads.
- Fitz-ger-ald (fĭts-jĕr' əld), F(rancis) Scott (Key). 1896-1940. American writer who epitomized the Jazz Age. His best-known novels are The Great Gatsby (1925) and Tender Is the Night (1934).
- Fitz-Ger-ald (fĭts-jĕr' əld), Edward. 1809-1883. British poet and noted translator of The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám (1859).
- Fitz-Ger-ald (fĭts-jĕr' əld), George Francis. 1851-1901. Irish physicist who made significant discoveries in the field of electromagnetic radiation.
- Fitz-sim-mons (fĭt-sĭm' ənz), Robert Prometheus. 1862-1917. British-born American prizefighter who won middleweight (1891), heavyweight (1897), and light-heavyweight (1903) titles.
- Fiu-me (fyōō' mā, -mě) See Rijeka.

five (fiv) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 4 + 1. 2. The fifth in a set or sequence. 3. Something, such as a quintet or a basketball team, that has five parts, units, or members. 4. A five-dollar bill. 5. fives. (used with a sing. verb). Sports. One of several forms of handball originating in England and played mainly at British schools and universities, in which only the receiving side can score points. [Middle English, from Old English fif. See penk^we in Appendix.] —five adj. & pron.

five-and-dime (fiv'ən-dīm') n. See five-and-ten.

five-and-ten (fiv'ən-tĕn') n. A retail store selling a wide variety of inexpensive articles. Also called dime store, five-and-dime, ten-cent store. [Short for five-and-ten-cent store.]

Five Civilized Nations (fiv siv'ə-līzd' nā'shənz) pl.n. The Cherokee, Chickasaw, Choctaw, Creek, and Seminole peoples. Also called Five Civilized Tribes five-fin-ger (fiv'fing'gər) n. Any of several plants having palmately compound leaves with five leaflets, such as the cinquefoil.

Five Forks (fiv fôrks) A crossroads in southeast Virginia southwest of Petersburg where the last important Civil War battle was fought on April 1, 1865. The Union victory led to the fall of Petersburg, the capture of Richmond, and the surrender of Robert E. Lee to Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox Courthouse on April 9.

Five Nations (fiv nā'shənz) pl.n. The Iroquois confederacy as originally formed by the Mohawk, Oneida, Onondaga, Cayuga, and Seneca peoples.

fiv-er (fiv'vər) n. 1. Informal. A five-dollar bill. 2. Chiefly British. A five-pound note.

five-way chili (fiv'wā' chīl'ē) n. Cincinnati. A main dish consisting of layers of noodles, chili con carne, kidney beans, chopped onions, and grated cheese.

fix (fiks) v. fixed, fix-ing, fix-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To place securely; make stable or firm: fixed the tent poles in the ground. See Synonyms at fasten. b. To secure to another; attach: fixing the notice to the board with tacks. 2. a. To put into a stable or unalterable form: tried to fix the conversation in her memory. b. To make (a chemical substance) nonvolatile or solid. c. Biology. To convert (nitrogen) into stable, biologically assimilable compounds. d. To kill and preserve (a specimen) intact for microscopic study. e. To prevent discoloration of (a photographic image) by washing or coating with a chemical preservative. 3. To direct steadily: fixed her eyes on the road ahead. 4. To capture or hold: The man with the long beard fixed our attention. 5. a. To set or place definitely; establish: fixed her residence in a coastal village. b. To determine with accuracy; ascertain: fixed the date of the ancient artifacts. c. To agree on; arrange: fix a time to meet. 6. To assign; attribute: fixing the blame. 7. a. To correct or set right; adjust: fix a misspelling; fix the out-of-date accounts. b. To restore to proper condition or working order; repair: fix a broken machine. c. Computer Science. To convert (data) from floating-point notation to fixed-point notation. 8. To make ready; prepare: fixed the room for the guests; fix lunch for the kids; fixed himself a milkshake. 9. To spay or castrate (an animal). 10. Informal. To take revenge upon; get even with. 11. To influence the outcome or actions of by improper or unlawful means: fix a prizefight; fix a jury. — v. intr. 1. To direct one's efforts or attention; concentrate: We fixed on the immediate goal. 2. To become stable or firm; harden: Fresh plaster will fix in a few hours. 3. Chiefly Southern U.S. To be on the verge of; to be making preparations for. Used in progressive tenses with the infinitive: We were fixing to leave without you. — n. 1. a. The act of adjusting, correcting, or repairing. b. Informal. Something that repairs or restores; a solution: no easy fix for an intractable problem. 2. The position, as of a ship or aircraft, determined by visual observations with the aid of equipment. 3. A clear determination or understanding: a briefing that gave us a fix on the current situation. 4. An instance of arranging a special consideration, such as an exemption from a requirement, or an improper or illegal outcome, especially by means of bribery. 5. A difficult or embarrassing situation; a predicament. See Synonyms at predicament. 6. Slang. An intravenous injection of a narcotic. — phrasal verb. fix up. 1. To improve the appearance or condition of; refurbish. 2. To provide; equip. 3. Informal. To provide a companion on a date for: fixed me up with an escort at the last minute. [Middle English fixen, from fix, fixed in position, from Latin fixus, past participle of figere, to fasten. See dhīg^w- in Appendix.] — fix'a·ble adj. — fix'er n.

REGIONAL NOTE: Fixing to ranks with y'all as one of the best known markers of Southern dialects, although it seems to be making its way into the informal speech and writing of non-Southerners. Fixing to means “to be on the verge of or in preparation for (doing a given thing),” but like the modal auxiliaries, it has only a single invariant form and is not fully inflected like other verbs. Its form is always the present participle followed by the infinitive marker to: They were fixing to leave without me. Semantically, fixing to can refer only to events that immediately follow the speaker's point of reference. One cannot say, “We're fixing to have a baby in a couple of years.”

fix·ate (fɪk'sāt') v. fix·at·ed, fix·at·ing, fix·ates. — v. tr. 1. To make fixed, stable, or stationary. 2. To focus one's eyes or attention on: fixate a faint object. 3. To command the attention of exclusively or repeatedly; preoccupy obsessively: “Movies and television seem especially fixated on the troubled Vietnam veteran” (James Hall-Sheehy). 4. Psychology. a. To attach (oneself) to a person or thing in an immature or neurotic fashion. b. To cause (the libido) to be arrested at an early stage of psychosexual development. — v. intr. 1. To focus the eyes or attention. 2. Psychology. a. To form a fixation; become attached to in an immature or neurotic way. b. To be arrested at an early stage of psychosexual development.

fix·a·tion (fĭk-sā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of fixing or fixating. 2. An obsessive preoccupation. 3. Psychology. A strong attachment to a person or thing, especially such an attachment formed in childhood or infancy and manifested in immature or neurotic behavior that persists throughout life.

fix·a·tive (fĭk'sə-tĭv) n. Something that fixes, protects, or preserves, especially: a. A liquid preservative applied to artwork, such as watercolor paintings or charcoal drawings. b. A solution used to preserve and harden fresh tissue for microscopic examination. c. A liquid mixed with perfume to prevent rapid evaporation. —fix'a·tive adj.

fixed (fĭkst) adj. 1. Firmly in position; stationary. 2. Determined; established; set: at a fixed time; a fixed price. 3. Not subject to change or variation; constant: pensioners on a fixed income. 4. Chemistry. a. Not readily evaporating; nonvolatile. b. Being in a stable, combined form: fixed nitrogen. 5. Firmly, often dogmatically held: fixed notions. 6. Supplied, especially with funds or needs. Often used in combination: a well-fixed bachelor. 7. Illegally prearranged as to outcome: a fixed election. —fix'ed·ly (fĭk'sĭd-lē) adv. —fix'ed·ness n.

fixed head (fĭkst hĕd) n. A stationary device, such as a tape-recording head, that reads and imprints information on a single track of magnetic tape.

fixed macrophage (fĭkst māk'rə-fāj') n. See histiocyte.

fixed oil (fĭkst oil) n. A nonvolatile oil, especially a fatty oil of vegetable origin.

fixed-point (fĭkst'point') adj. Of, relating to, or being a method of writing numerical quantities with a predetermined number of digits and with the decimal located at a single, unchanging position.

fixed star (fĭkst stār) n. A star so distant from Earth that its position in relation to other stars appears not to change. Its movements can be measured only by precise observations over long periods of time.

fix·ings (fĭk'sĭngz) pl.n. Informal. Accessories; trimmings: a Mexican dinner with all the fixings.

fix·i·ty (fĭk'sĭ-tē) n. pl. fix·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being fixed. 2. Something fixed or immovable.

fix·ture (fĭks'chər) n. 1. Something securely fixed in place. 2. Something attached as a permanent appendage, apparatus, or appliance: plumbing fixtures. 3. Law. A chattel bound to realty. 4. One that is invariably present in and long associated with a place: a journalist who became a Washington fixture. 5. a. The act or process of fixing. b. The condition of being fixed. [Variant of obsolete fixure, from Late Latin fixūra, from Latin fixus, fixed. See FIX.]

fizz (fĭz) v. intr. fizzed, fizz-ing, fizz-es. To make a hissing or bubbling sound. — n. 1. A hissing or bubbling sound. 2. Effervescence. 3. An effervescent beverage. [Imitative.] —fizz'y adj.

fiz-zle (fiz'əl) v. intr. fiz-zled, fiz-zling, fiz-zles. 1. To make a hissing or sputtering sound. 2. Informal. To fail or end weakly, especially after a hopeful beginning. — n. Informal. A failure; a fiasco. [Probably from obsolete fist, to break wind, from Middle English fisten. See pezd- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: In Philemon Holland's 1601 translation of Pliny's Natural History, we are surprised by the use of the word fizzle in the statement that if asses eat a certain plant, "they will fall a fizling and farting." Fizzle was first used in English to mean, in the decorous parlance of the Oxford English Dictionary, "to break wind without noise." During the 19th century fizzle took on a related but more respectable sense, "to hiss, as does a piece of fireworks," illustrated by a quotation from the November 7, 1881, issue of the London Daily News: "unambitious rockets which fizzle doggedly downwards." In the same century fizzle also took on figurative senses, one of which seems to have been popular at Yale. The Yale Literary Magazine for 1849 helpfully defines the word as follows: "Fizzle, to rise with modest reluctance, to hesitate often, to decline finally; generally, to misunderstand the question." The figurative sense of fizzle that has caught on is the one with which we are most familiar today, "to fail or die out."

fjeld (fyæld) n. A high, barren plateau in the Scandinavian countries. [Danish, from Old Norse fjall.]

fjord or fjord (fyörd, fyörd) n. A long, narrow, deep inlet of the sea between steep slopes. [Norwegian, from Old Norse fjördhr. See per-² in Appendix.]

fl or fl. abbr. Fluid.

fL abbr. Foot-lambert.

FL abbr. 1. Florida. 2. Focal length. 3. Foreign languages.

fl. abbr. 1. Football. Flankerback. 2. Floor. 3. Florin. 4. Floruit. 5. Flute.

Fla. abbr. Florida.

flab (fläb) n. Soft, fatty body tissue. [Back-formation from FLABBY.]

flab-ber-gast (fläb'ər-gäst') v. tr. flab-ber-gast-ed, flab-ber-gast-ing, flab-ber-gasts. To cause to be overcome with astonishment; astound. See Synonyms at surprise. [Origin unknown.]

flab-by (fläb'ē) adj. flab-bi-er, flab-bi-est. 1. Lacking firmness; flaccid: getting flabby around the waist. See Synonyms at limp. 2. Lacking force or vitality; ineffectual: flabby self-pity. [Alteration of flappy, tending to flap, from FLAP.] — flab'bi-ly adv. — flab'bi-ness n.

fla-bel-la (flä-běl'ə) n. Plural of flabellum.

fla-bel-late (flä-běl'it, fläb'ə-lät') also fla-bel-li-form (flä-běl'ə-fôrm') adj. Fan-shaped. [Latin flābellum, fan; see FLABELLUM + -ATE¹.]

fla·bel·lum (flə-bĕl'əm) n. pl. fla·bel·la (-bĕl'ə). A fan-shaped anatomical structure. [Latin flābellum, fan, diminutive of flābra, breeze, from flāre, to blow. See bhlē- in Appendix.]

flac·cid (flăk'sĭd, flăs'ĭd) adj. 1. Lacking firmness, resilience, or muscle tone. See Synonyms at limp. 2. Lacking vigor or energy: flaccid management. [Latin flaccidus, from flaccus, flabby.] —flac·cid'i·ty (-sĭd'ĭ-tē), flac'cid·ness n. —flac'cid·ly adv.

flack¹ (flăk) Informal. n. A press agent; a publicist. — v. flacked, flack·ing, flacks. — v. intr. To act as a press agent: flacking for a movie studio. — v. tr. To act as a press agent for; promote: authors who tour the country flacking their books. [Origin unknown.] —flack'er·y n.

flack² (flăk) n. Variant of flak.

flac·on (flăk'ən, -ön') n. A small, often decorative bottle with a tight-fitting stopper or cap. [French, from Old French. See FLAGON.]

flag¹ (flăg) n. 1. A piece of cloth, usually rectangular, of distinctive color and design, used as a symbol, a standard, a signal, or an emblem. 2. National or other allegiance, as symbolized by a flag: ships of the same flag. 3. A ship carrying the flag of an admiral; a flagship. 4. A marking device, such as a gummed strip of paper, attached to an object to attract attention or ease identification; a tab. 5. The masthead of a newspaper. 6. Music. A cross stroke added to a note that is less than a quarter note in value. 7. A distinctively shaped or marked tail, as of a dog or deer. 8. Computer Science. A bit or series of bits with two stable states, used in software to indicate a single piece of information. — v. tr. flagged, flag·ging, flags. 1. To mark with a flag or flags for identification or ornamentation: flag a parade route; flagging parts of a manuscript for later review. 2. a. To signal with or as if with a flag. b. To signal to stop: flag down a passing car. [Origin unknown.] —flag'ger n.

flag² (flăg) n. A plant, such as an iris or a cattail, that has long, sword-shaped leaves. [Middle English flagge, reed, of Scandinavian origin.]

flag³ (flăg) v. intr. flagged, flag·ging, flags. 1. To hang limply; droop. 2. To decline in vigor or strength: My appetite flags in the hot weather. 3. To decline in interest: The conversation flagged. [Possibly of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse flögra, to flap about.]

flag⁴ (flăg) n. A flagstone. — v. tr. flagged, flag·ging, flags. To pave with slabs of flagstone. [Middle English flagge, piece of turf, from Old Norse flaga, slab of stone. See plāk⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Flag Day (flăg dā) n. June 14, observed in the United States in commemoration of the adoption in 1777 of the official U.S. flag.

fla·gel·la (flə-jĕl'ə) n. Plural of flagellum.

flag·el·lant (flăj'ə-lənt, flə-jĕl'ənt) n. 1. One who whips, especially one who scourges oneself for religious discipline or public penance. 2. One who seeks sexual gratification in beating or being beaten by another person. [Latin flagellāns, flagellant- from present participle of flagellāre, to whip. See FLAGELLATE.]

—flag/el-lant adj. —flag/el-lant-ism n.

flag-gel-lar (flə-jěl'ər) adj. Of or relating to a flagellum.

flag-el-late (fläj'ə-lāt') v. tr. flag-el-lat-ed, flag-el-lat-ing, flag-el-lates.

1. To whip or flog; scourge. 2. To punish or impel as if by whipping. — adj. (-līt, -lāt', flə-jěl'it) 1. Biology. Flagellated. 2. Resembling or having the form of a flagellum; whiplike. 3. Relating to or caused by a flagellate organism. — n. (-līt, -lāt', flə-jěl'it) An organism, such as a euglena, that is equipped with a flagellum. [Latin flagellāre, flagellāt-, to whip, from flagellum, diminutive of flagrum, whip.]

flag-el-lat-ed (fläj'ə-lā'tid) adj. Biology. Having a flagellum or flagella.

flag-el-la-tion (fläj'ə-lā'shən) n. 1. The act or practice of flagellating.

2. Biology. The flagellar arrangement on an organism.

flag-gel-li-form (flə-jěl'ə-fōrm') adj. Long, thin, and tapering; whip-shaped: flagelliform appendages. [Latin flagellum, little whip; see FLAGELLUM + -FORM.]

flag-gel-lin (flə-jěl'in) n. The chief protein component of bacterial flagella.

flag-gel-lum (flə-jěl'əm) n. pl. flag-gel-la (-jěl'ə). 1. Biology. A long, threadlike appendage, especially a whiplike extension of certain cells or unicellular organisms that functions as an organ of locomotion. 2. A whip. [Latin, diminutive of flagrum, whip.]

flag-eo-let (fläj'ə-lēt', -lā') n. Music. A small flutelike instrument with a cylindrical mouthpiece, four finger holes, and two thumbholes. [French, diminutive of Old French flajol, flute, from Vulgar Latin flābeolum*, possibly alteration of Latin flābellum, diminutive of flābrum, gust of wind, from flāre, to blow. See INFLATE.]

Flagg (fläg), James Montgomery. 1877-1960. American artist and writer best known for his World War I recruiting poster of Uncle Sam saying "I Want You."

flag-ging¹ (fläg'ing) adj. 1. Declining; weakening: flagging strength.

2. Languid; drooping. —flag'ging-ly adv.

flag-ging² (fläg'ing) n. A pavement laid with flagstones.

flag-gi-tious (flə-jışh'əs) adj. 1. Characterized by extremely brutal or cruel crimes; vicious. 2. Infamous; scandalous: "That remorseless government persisted in its flagitious project" (Robert Southey). [Middle English flagitious, wicked, from Latin flāgitiōsus, from flāgitium, shameful act, protest, from flāgitāre, to importune, to demand vehemently.] —flag-gi'tious-ly adv. —flag-gi'tious-ness n.

Flag-ler (fläg'lər), Henry Morrison. 1830-1913. American capitalist who built resorts and railroad lines in Florida to promote it as a recreational area.

flag-man (fläg'mən) n. One who signals with or carries a flag.

flag of convenience (fläg ũv kən-vĕn'yəns) n. pl. flags of convenience.

A foreign flag under which a merchant vessel is registered for purposes of reducing operating costs or avoiding government regulations.

flag officer (fläg ô'fĭ-sər) n. An officer in the navy or coast guard holding a rank higher than captain, such as rear admiral, vice admiral, or admiral.

flag of truce (fläg ũv trōos) n. pl. flags of truce. A white flag brought or displayed to an enemy as a request for a conference or as a signal of surrender.

flag-on (fläg'ən) n. 1. A large vessel, usually of metal or pottery, with a handle and spout and often a lid, used for holding wine or other liquors. 2. The quantity of liquid that such a vessel can hold. [Middle English, from Old French flacon, from Late Latin flascō, flascōn-, bottle. See FLASK.]

flag-pole (fläg'pōl') n. A pole on which a flag is raised. Also called flagstaff —idiom. run (something) up the flagpole. Slang. To test (a plan, a suggestion, a draft, or an idea) and then measure the response to it.

flagrant (flā'grənt) adj. 1. Conspicuously bad, offensive, or reprehensible: a flagrant miscarriage of justice; flagrant cases of wrongdoing at the highest levels of government. See Usage Note at blatant. 2. Obsolete. Flaming; blazing. [Latin flagrāns, flagrant- present participle of flagrāre, to burn. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] —fla'gran-cy, fla'grance n. —fla'grant-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: flagrant, glaring, gross, egregious, rank. These adjectives refer to what is conspicuously bad or offensive. Flagrant applies to what is so offensive that it cannot escape notice: in flagrant disregard of the law. What is glaring is blatantly and painfully manifest: a glaring error; glaring contradictions. Gross suggests a magnitude of offense or failing that cannot be condoned or forgiven: gross ineptitude; gross injustice. What is egregious is outrageously bad: an egregious lie. Rank implies that the term it qualifies is as indicated to an extreme, violent, or gross degree: rank stupidity; rank treachery. See also Synonyms at outrageous fla-gran-te de-lic-to (flə-grän'tē dĭ-lik'tō) adv. In the very act; red-handed. [Medieval Latin flagrante dēlictō, while the crime is blazing : flagrante, ablative of flagrāns, blazing + dēlictō, ablative of dēlictum, offense.]

flag-ship (fläg'shĭp') n. 1. A ship that carries a fleet or squadron commander and bears the commander's flag. 2. The chief one of a related group: the flagship of a newspaper chain; the flagship of a line of reference books.

Flag-stad (fläg'städ', fläg'stä'), Kirsten Marie. 1895-1962. Norwegian operatic soprano known for her performances as Wagnerian heroines.

flag-staff (fläg'stäf') n. See flagpole.

Flag-staff (fläg'stäf') A city of north-central Arizona northeast of Prescott. It is a health resort in a lumbering and ranching area and the site of Lowell Observatory (founded 1894). Population, 45,857.

flag-stick (fläg'stīk') n. Sports. A removable pole with a numbered flag marking the placement of each hole on the putting greens of a golf course.

flag-stone (fläg'stōn') n. 1. A flat slab of stone used as a paving material.

2. An evenly layered sedimentary rock that can be split into paving stones.

flag-wav-ing (fläg'wā'vīng) n. Excessive or fanatical patriotism; chauvinism. — flag'-wav'er n.

Fla-her-ty (flă'ər-tē, flă'-), Robert Joseph. 1884-1951. American explorer and filmmaker whose works, including Nanook of the North (1922) and Moana (1926), were the first major documentaries.

flail (flāl) n. A manual threshing device consisting of a long wooden handle or staff and a shorter, free-swinging stick attached to its end. — v. flailed, flail-ing, flails. — v. tr. 1. To beat or strike with or as if with a flail: flailed our horses with the reins. 2. To wave or swing vigorously; thrash: flailed my arms to get their attention. 3. To thresh using a flail. — v. intr. 1. To move vigorously or erratically; thrash about: arms flailing helplessly in the water. 2. To strike or lash out violently: boxers flailing at each other in the ring. 3. To thresh grain. [Middle English, from Old English flegil, and from Old French flaiel both from Late Latin flagellum, threshing tool, from Latin flagrum, whip.]

flair (flâr) n. 1. A natural talent or aptitude; a knack: a flair for interior decorating. 2. Instinctive discernment; keenness: a flair for the exotica. 3. Distinctive elegance or style: served us with flair. [Middle English, fragrance, from Old French, from flairer, to scent, from Late Latin flāgrāre, alteration of Latin frāgrāre, to emit an odor.]

flak also flack (flāk) n. 1. a. Antiaircraft artillery. b. The bursting shells fired from such artillery. 2. Informal. a. Excessive or abusive criticism. b. Dissension; opposition. [German, from Fl(ieger)a(bwehr)k(anone), aircraft-defense gun.]

flake¹ (flāk) n. 1. A flat, thin piece or layer; a chip. 2. A small piece; a bit. 3. A small crystalline bit of snow. 4. Slang. A somewhat eccentric person; an oddball. 5. Slang. Cocaine. — v. flaked, flak-ing, flakes. — v. tr. 1. To break flat, thin pieces or layers from; chip. 2. To cover, mark, or overlay with or as if with flakes. — v. intr. To come off in flat, thin pieces or layers; chip off. — phrasal verb. flake out. Slang. 1. To fall asleep or collapse from fatigue or exhaustion. 2. To act in an odd or eccentric manner. [Middle English. See plāk⁻¹ in Appendix.] — flak'er n.

flake² (flāk) n. 1. A frame or platform for drying fish or produce. 2. A scaffold lowered over the side of a ship to support workers or caulkers. [Middle English fleke, from Old Norse fleki, hurdle, shield used for defense in battle. See plāk⁻¹ in Appendix.]

flake white (flāk hwīt) n. A pigment made of flakes of white lead.

flak-ey (flāk'kē) adj. Variant of flaky.

flak jacket (flāk jāk'īt) n. A bulletproof jacket or vest.

flak·y also flak·ey (flā'kē) adj. flak·i·er, flak·i·est. 1. Made of or resembling flakes. 2. Forming or tending to form flakes or thin, crisp fragments: flaky pastry. 3. Slang. Somewhat eccentric; odd: “that slightly flakey quality, in joy as well as in grief, that prepares us subtly for the mad scenes to come” (Village Voice). —flak'i·ly adv. —flak'i·ness n.

flam¹ (flām) n. Informal. 1. A lie or hoax; a deception. 2. Nonsense; drivel. [Short for FLIMFLAM.]

flam² (flām) n. Music. A drumbeat consisting of two almost simultaneous strokes of which the first is a very rapid grace note. [Probably of imitative origin.]

flam·bé (flām-bā', flān-) v. tr. flam·béed, flam·bé·ing, flam·bés. To drench with a liquor, such as brandy, and ignite: flambéed the steak at the table. — adj. Served flaming in ignited liquor: steak flambé. [From French, past participle of flamber, to flame, from Old French, from flambe, flame. See FLAME.]

flam·beau (flām'bō') n. pl. flam·beaux (-bōz') or flam·beaus. 1. A lighted torch. 2. A large ornamental candlestick. [French, from Old French, from flambe, flame. See FLAME.]

flam·boy·ant (flām-boi'ənt) adj. 1. Highly elaborate; ornate. See Synonyms at ornate. 2. Richly colored; resplendent. 3. Architecture. Of, relating to, or having wavy lines and flamelike forms characteristic of 15th- and 16th-century French Gothic architecture. 4. Marked by striking audacity or verve. 5. Given to ostentatious display; showy. See Synonyms at showy. — n. See royal poinciana. [French, from Old French, present participle of flamboyer, to blaze, from flambe, flame. See FLAME.] —flam·boy'ance, flam·boy'an·cy n. —flam·boy'ant·ly adv.

flame (flām) n. 1. The zone of burning gases and fine suspended matter associated with rapid combustion; a hot, glowing mass of burning gas or vapor. 2. The condition of active, blazing combustion: burst into flame. See Synonyms at blaze¹. 3. Something resembling a flame in motion, brilliance, intensity, or shape. 4. A violent or intense passion. 5. Informal. A sweetheart. — v.

flamed, flam·ing, flames. — v. intr. 1. To burn brightly; blaze. 2. To color or flash suddenly: cheeks that flamed with embarrassment. — v. tr. 1. To burn, ignite, or scorch (something) with a flame. 2. Obsolete. To foment; incite. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman flaumbe, variant of Old French flambe, from flamble, from Latin flammula, diminutive of flamma. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] —flam'er n.

flame cell (flām sēl) n. A hollow cell in the excretory system of certain invertebrates, including flatworms and rotifers, containing a tuft of rapidly beating cilia that serve to propel waste products into excretory tubules.

fla·men (flā'mən) n. pl. fla·mens or flam·i·nes (flām'ə-nēz'). A priest, especially of an ancient Roman deity. [Middle English flamin, from Latin flāmen.]

fla·men·co (flə-měng'kō) n. pl. fla·men·cos. 1. a. A dance style of the Andalusian Gypsies characterized by forceful, often improvised rhythms. b. A dance in this style. 2. The guitar music that usually accompanies a dance in this style. [Spanish, Flemish, from Middle Dutch Vlāming, Fleming.]

WORD HISTORY: The origin of the word flamenco is to be sought variously in the realms of ornithology and northern Europe. Spanish contains two homographs spelled flamenco, one of which means “Flemish, Andalusian Gypsy,” and the other, “flamingo.” Flamenco in the former sense comes from the Middle Dutch word Vlāming, meaning “Fleming.” Flamenco, “flamingo,” comes ultimately from Latin flamma, “flame,” referring to the fiery red plumage of the bird. Is the dance named for its flamingolike fieriness or its Flemishness? It would seem that some kind of association between Gypsies and people of Flemish extraction explains the use of flamenco, “Fleming, Andalusian Gypsy,” as the name of a dance originally associated with the Andalusian Gypsies. The English word flamenco, borrowed from Spanish, is first recorded in 1896.

flame nettle (flām nět'l) n. See coleus.

flame·out (flām'out') n. Failure of a jet aircraft engine, especially in flight, caused by the extinction of the flame in the combustion chamber.

flame·proof (flām'prōof') adj. Resistant to catching fire; flame-retardant.

— v. tr. flame-proofed, flame-proof-ing, flame-proofs. To make resistant to catching fire. —flame'proof'er n.

flame-re·tard·ant (flām'rī-tār'dnt) adj. Resistant to catching fire.

—flame'-re-tard'ant n.

flame·throw·er (flām'thrō'ər) n. A weapon that projects ignited incendiary fuel, such as napalm, in a steady stream.

flam·i·nes (flām'ə-nēz') n. A plural of flamen.

flam·ing (flā'mīng) adj. 1. On fire; ablaze. 2. Resembling a flame in brilliance, color, or form: flaming autumn leaves. 3. Intense; ardent: flaming passions.

4. Informal. Used as an intensive: a flaming liberal. —flam'ing-ly adv.

fla·min·go (flə-mīng'gō) n. pl. fla·min·gos or fla·min·goes. 1. Any of several large, gregarious wading birds of the family Phoenicopteridae of tropical regions, having reddish or pinkish plumage, long legs, a long flexible neck, and a bill turned downward at the tip. 2. Color. A moderate reddish orange. [Portuguese flamengo, or Spanish flamenco both probably from Old Provençal flamenc, from flama, flame, from Latin flamma. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.]

flamingo flower (flə-mīng'gō flou'ər) n. A short-stemmed perennial (Anthurium scherzeranum) native to Costa Rica and Guatemala, having a reflex, shiny, scarlet spathe and a spirally contorted, vermilion spadix. Also called pigtail flaming sword (flā'mɪŋ sôrd) n. A widely cultivated bromeliad (Vriesea splendens) native to French Guiana, having long, unbranched inflorescences with red imbricated bracts and yellow flowers.

Fla·min·i·an Way (flā-mɪn'ē-ən wā) An ancient Roman road that was the principal artery between Rome and Cisalpine Gaul. It was begun in 220 B.C. by the Roman general Gaius Flaminius (died 217).

Fla·min·i·us (flā-mɪn'ē-əs), Titus Quintius. 227?-174 B.C. Roman politician and general who defeated the Macedonian forces at Cynoscephalae (197).

flam·ma·ble (flām'ə-bəl) adj. Easily ignited and capable of burning rapidly; inflammable. [From Latin flammāre, to set fire to, from flamma, flame. See bhel¹ in Appendix.] —flam'ma·bil'i·ty n. —flam'ma·ble n.

USAGE NOTE: Historically, flammable and inflammable mean the same thing. However, the presence of the prefix in- has misled many people into assuming that inflammable means “not flammable” or “noncombustible.” In the circumstances, it is therefore advisable to use only flammable in contexts imparting warnings or on product labels, where a misinterpretation might have more serious consequences for the reader than an etymological mistake would deserve.

Flam·ma·rion (flā-mâr'ē-ōn'), Camille. 1842-1925. French astronomer who founded the French Astronomical Society (1887).

flam·y (flā'mē) adj. flam·i·er, flam·i·est. Resembling a flame; flaming.

flan (flän, flän, flän) n. 1. A tart with a filling of custard, fruit, or cheese. 2. A dessert of firm, smooth custard with a topping of caramel syrup. 3. A metal disk to be stamped as a coin; a blank. [French, from Old French flaon, from Late Latin fladō, fladōn-, flat cake, of Germanic origin. See plat- in Appendix.]

Flan·a·gan (flän'ə-gən), Edward Joseph. 1886-1948. American priest who founded Boys Town (1917), a community for underprivileged boys.

Flan·ders (flän'dərz) A historical region of northwest Europe including parts of northern France, western Belgium, and southwest Netherlands along the North Sea. For many centuries it enjoyed virtual independence and great prosperity as a center of the cloth industry. The Hapsburg wars in the Low Countries caused the eventual division of the region, which suffered heavy damage during both World Wars.

flâ·ne·rie (flän-rē', flä'nə-rē') n. Aimless idling; dawdling. [French, from flâner, to idle about, stroll. See FLÂNEUR.]

flâ·neur (flä-nûr') n. An aimless idler; a loafer. [French, from flâner, to idle about, stroll, of Germanic origin. See pelə² in Appendix.]

flange (flänj) n. A protruding rim, edge, rib, or collar, as on a wheel or a pipe shaft, used to strengthen an object, hold it in place, or attach it to another object.

[Possibly variant of flanch, device at the side of an escutcheon, perhaps from French flanched, feminine of flanc, side. See FLANK.] — flange v.

flank (flängk) n. 1. The section of flesh on the body of a person or an animal between the last rib and the hip; the side. 2. A cut of meat from the flank of an animal. 3. A lateral part or side: the flank of a mountain. 4. a. The right or left side of a military formation: an attack on both flanks. b. The right or left side of a bastion. — v. tr. flanked, flank-ing, flanks. 1. To protect or guard the flank of. 2. To menace or attack the flank of. 3. To be placed or situated at the flank or side of: Two stone lions flanked the entrance. 4. To put (something) on each side of: flanked the driveway with tall shrubs. [Middle English, from Old English flanc, from Old French flanc, of Germanic origin.]

flank-ken (fläng'kən) n. 1. A cut of meat taken from the short ribs of beef. 2. A dish prepared from this cut of beef by boiling or stewing, often served with horseradish. [Yiddish, from German, pl. of Flanke, flank, side, from French flanc. See FLANK.]

flank-er (fläng'kər) n. 1. One that flanks, especially a soldier so positioned as to protect the flank of a column of troops on the march. 2. Business. An extension product, such as a diet version of a soft drink or a liquid version of a detergent, added to a line to support the sales of the main product. 3. Football. A flanker-back.

flank-er-back (fläng'kər-bāk') n. Abbr. fl. Football. An offensive halfback stationed just behind the line of scrimmage and slightly wide of the formation, used chiefly as a pass receiver.

flannel (flän'əl) n. 1. A soft woven cloth of wool or a blend of wool and cotton or synthetics. 2. flannels. a. Outer clothing, especially trousers, made of this cloth. b. Underclothing made of this cloth. [Middle English, a kind of woollen cloth or garment, perhaps variant of flanyn, sackcloth, probably from Old French flaine, a kind of coarse wool.]

flannel bush (flän'əl böōsh) n. Any of various shrubs or small trees of the genus Fremontodendron of California and northern Mexico, having downy, lobed leaves and showy yellow flowers.

flannel cake (flän'əl kāk) n. See pancake.

flannel-ette (flän'ə-lēt') n. A soft cotton cloth with a nap, used chiefly for baby clothes and underclothing.

flannel leaf (flän'əl lēf) n. See mullein.

Flan-ner (flän'ər), Janet. Pen name Genêt. 1892-1978. American journalist who was the Paris correspondent for the New Yorker (1925-1975) and published several volumes of her collected essays.

flap (fläp) n. 1. A flat, usually thin piece attached at only one side. 2. A projecting or hanging piece usually intended to double over and protect or cover: the flap of an envelope. 3. a. The act of waving or fluttering: the flap of the flag in the wind. b. The sound produced by this motion. 4. A blow given with something flat; a slap. 5. A variable control surface on the trailing edge of an aircraft wing, used primarily to increase lift or drag. 6. Either of the folded ends of a book jacket that fit inside the front and back covers. 7. Medicine. Tissue that has been partially detached and used in surgical grafting to fill an adjacent defect or cover the cut end of a bone after amputation. 8. Informal. A commotion or disturbance: a flap in Congress over the defense budget. — v. flapped, flap-ping, flaps. — v. tr. 1. To wave (the arms, for example) up and down. 2. To cause to move or sway with a fluttering or waving motion. 3. To hit with something broad and flat; slap. 4. Informal. To fling down; toss. — v. intr. 1. To move or sway while fixed at one edge or corner; flutter: banners flapping in the breeze. 2. To wave arms or wings up and down. 3. To fly by beating the air with the wings. 4. Informal. To become upset or flustered. [Middle English flappe, slap.]

flap-doo-dle also flap-doo-dle (flăp'dōōd'l) n. Slang. Foolish talk; nonsense: "Behind the tourist flap-doodle, authentic [Key West] cooking is produced by the descendants of Bahamian English and Cubans, who migrated to this coral reef over a century ago" (Betty Fussell). [Origin unknown.]

flap-jack (flăp'jăk') n. See pancake.

flap-pa-ble (flăp'ə-bəl) adj. Informal. Easily excited or upset.

flap-per (flăp'ər) n. 1. A broad, flexible part, such as a flipper. 2. A young woman, especially one in the 1920's who showed disdain for conventional dress and behavior. [Sense 2 British Slang, very young female prostitute, flapper, possibly from flapper, fledgling partridge or duck (from FLAP), or from dialectal flap, loose or flighty girl.]

flare (flâr) v. flared, flar-ing, flares. — v. intr. 1. To flame up with a bright, wavering light. 2. To burst into intense, sudden flame. 3. a. To erupt or intensify suddenly: Tempers flared at the meeting. b. To become suddenly angry: The candidate flared at the reporter's question. 4. To expand or open outward in shape: a skirt that flares from the waist; nostrils that flared with anger. — v. tr. 1. To cause to flame up. 2. To signal with a blaze of light. — n. 1. A brief, wavering blaze of light. See Synonyms at blaze¹. 2. A device that produces a bright light for signaling, illumination, or identification. 3. An outbreak, as of emotion or activity. 4. An expanding or opening outward. 5. An unwanted reflection within an optical system or the resultant fogging of the image. 6. A solar flare. 7. Football. A quick pass to a back running toward the sideline. 8. Medicine. An area of redness on the skin surrounding the primary site of infection or irritation. [Origin unknown.]

flare-back (flâr'băk') n. 1. A flame produced in the breech of a gun by ignition of residual gases. 2. A burst of something aimed back at its origin; a back-fire: a flareback of bad publicity.

flare-up (flâr'üp') n. 1. A sudden outbreak of flame or light: a flare-up of the embers. 2. An outburst or eruption: a flare-up of anger. 3. A recurrence or an intensification: a flare-up of rheumatism.

flash (flăsh) v. flashed, flash-ing, flash-es. — v. intr. 1. To burst forth into or as if into flame. 2. To give off light or be lighted in sudden or intermittent bursts. 3. To appear or occur suddenly: The image flashed onto the screen. 4. To move or proceed rapidly: The cars flashed by. 5. Slang. To think of or remember something suddenly: flashed on that time we got caught in the storm. 6. Slang. To expose oneself in an indecent manner. — v. tr. 1. a. To cause (light) to appear suddenly or in intermittent bursts. b. To cause to burst into flame. c. To reflect (light). d. To cause to reflect light from (a surface). 2. To make known or signal by flashing lights. 3. To communicate or display at great speed: flashed the news to the world capitals. 4. To exhibit briefly. 5. To display ostentatiously; flaunt. 6. To fill suddenly with water. 7. To cover with a thin protective layer. — n. 1. A sudden, brief, intense display of light. 2. A sudden perception: a flash of insight. 3. A split second; an instant: I'll be on my way in a flash. 4. A brief news dispatch or transmission. 5. Slang. Gaudy or ostentatious display: "The antique flash and trash of an older southern California have given way to a sleeker age of cultural hip" (Newsweek). 6. A flashlight. 7. a. Instantaneous illumination for photography: photograph by flash. b. A device, such as a flashbulb, flashgun, or flash lamp, used to produce such illumination. 8. Slang. The pleasurable sensation that accompanies the use of a drug; a rush. 9. Obsolete. The language or cant of thieves, tramps, or underworld figures. — adj. 1. Happening suddenly or very quickly: flash freezing. 2. Slang. Ostentatious; showy: a flash car. 3. Of or relating to figures of quarterly economic growth released by the government and subject to later revision. 4. Of or relating to photography using instantaneous illumination. 5. Of or relating to thieves, swindlers, and underworld figures. — idiom. flash in the pan. One that promises great success but fails. [Middle English flashen, to splash, variant of flasken, of imitative origin.]

SYNONYMS: flash, gleam, glance, glint, sparkle, glitter, glisten, shimmer, glimmer, twinkle, scintillate. These verbs mean to send forth light. Flash refers to a sudden and brilliant but short-lived outburst of light: A bolt of lightning flashed across the horizon. Gleam implies transient or constant light that often appears against a dark background: "The light gleams an instant, then it's night once more" (Samuel Beckett). Glance refers most often to light reflected obliquely: Moonlight glanced off the windows of the darkened building. Glint applies to briefly gleaming or flashing light: Rays of sun glinted among the autumn leaves. Sparkle suggests a rapid succession of little flashes of high brilliance (crystal that sparkled in the candlelight; frost sparkling on the pavement), and glitter, a similar succession of even greater intensity (glittering mirrors). To glisten is to shine with a sparkling luster:

The snow glistened in the dawn light. Shimmer means to shine with a soft, tremulous light: “Everything about her shimmered and glistened softly, as if her dress had been woven out of candle-beams” (Edith Wharton). Glimmer refers to faint, fleeting light: “On the French coast, the light/Gleams, and is gone; the cliffs of England stand,/ Glimmering and vast, out in the tranquil bay” (Matthew Arnold). To twinkle is to shine with quick, intermittent flashes or gleams: “a few stars, twinkling faintly in the deep blue of the night sky” (Hugh Walpole). Scintillate is applied to what flashes as if emitting sparks in a continuous stream: “ammonium chloride... depositing minute scintillating crystals on the windowpanes” (Primo Levi). See also Synonyms at blaze¹ moment flash-back (flăsh'băk') n. 1. a. A literary or cinematic device in which an earlier event is inserted into the normal chronological order of a narrative. b. The episode or scene depicted by means of this device. 2. An unexpected recurrence of the effects of a hallucinogenic drug long after its original use. 3. Psychology. A recurring, intensely vivid mental image of a past traumatic experience: “Another study shows that women who served in Vietnam still struggle with depression, anxiety, and painful flashbacks from the war” (New York Times).

flash-board (flăsh'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A board or structure of boards extending above a dam to increase its capacity.

flash-bulb or flash bulb (flăsh'bûlb') n. A glass bulb filled with finely shredded aluminum or magnesium foil that is ignited by electricity to produce a short-duration high-intensity light flash for taking photographs. Also called photoflash flash burn (flăsh bûrn) n. A burn resulting from brief exposure to intense radiation.

flash butt welding (flăsh bût wêl'dîng) n. A technique for joining segments of metal rail or pipe in which segments aligned end to end are electronically charged, producing an electric arc that melts and welds the ends of the segments, yielding an exceptionally strong and smooth joint. Also called flash welding flash card also flash-card (flăsh'kârd') n. A card printed with words or numbers and briefly displayed as part of a learning drill.

flash-cube (flăsh'kyôob') n. A small cube that contains four flashbulbs and that rotates automatically to the next unused bulb when a picture is taken with the camera to which it is attached.

flash-er (flăsh'ər) n. 1. A device that automatically switches an electric lamp off and on, as in a commercial display sign. 2. Slang. One who engages in indecent exposure; an exhibitionist.

flash flood also flash-flood (flăsh'flûd') n. A sudden flood of great volume, usually caused by a heavy rain.

- flash-for-ward (flăsh/'fôr/'wərd) n. 1. A literary or cinematic device in which the chronological sequence of events is interrupted by the interjection of a future event. 2. The episode or scene depicted by means of this device.
- flash-gun (flăsh/'gŭn') n. A dry-cell powered photographic apparatus that holds and electrically triggers a flashbulb. Also called flash unit
- flash-ing (flăsh/'ing) n. Sheet metal used to reinforce and weatherproof the joints and angles of a roof.
- flash lamp (flăsh lămp) n. An electric lamp for producing a high-intensity light of very short duration for use in photography.
- flash-light (flăsh/'lit') n. 1. A small, portable lamp usually powered by batteries. 2. A brief, brilliant flood of light from a photographic lamp. 3. A bright light, as of a beacon or signal lamp, that flashes at regular intervals.
- flash-o-ver (flăsh/'ō'vər) n. 1. An unintended electric arc, as between two pieces of apparatus. 2. The temperature point at which the heat in an area or a region is high enough to ignite all flammable material simultaneously.
- flash photolysis (flăsh fō-'tōl'i-'sīs) n. A method of investigating fast photochemical reactions in gases in which a gas is exposed to very brief, intense flashes of light and the resulting products are analyzed spectroscopically.
- flash point also flash-point (flăsh/'point') n. 1. The lowest temperature at which the vapor of a combustible liquid can be made to ignite momentarily in air. 2. The point at which eruption into significant action, creation, or violence occurs: "The shutdown did not increase international tensions to the flash point" (Seymour M. Hersh).
- flash-tube also flash tube (flăsh/'tōōb') n. A gas discharge tube used in an electronic flash to produce a brief, intense flash of light.
- flash unit (flăsh yōō/'nīt) n. 1. An electronic flash system containing both a power supply and a flashtube in a single compact unit. 2. a. See flashgun. b. A flashgun and reflector.
- flash weld-ing (flăsh wĕl/'dīng) n. See flash butt welding.
- flash-y (flăsh/'ē) adj. flash-i-er, flash-i-est. 1. Cheap and showy; gaudy. See Synonyms at gaudy¹. 2. Giving a momentary or superficial impression of brilliance. —flash/i-ly adv. —flash/i-ness n.
- flask (flăsk) n. 1. A small container, such as a bottle, having a narrow neck and usually a cap, especially: a. A flat, relatively thin container for liquor. b. A container or case for carrying gunpowder or shot. c. A vial or round long-necked vessel for laboratory use. 2. A frame for holding a sand mold in a foundry. [Middle English, cask, keg, from Old French flasque, from Late Latin flascō, of Germanic origin.]
- flat¹ (flăt) adj. flat-ter, flat-test. 1. Having a horizontal surface without a slope, tilt, or curvature. 2. Having a smooth, even, level surface: a skirt sewed with fine flat seams. 3. Having a relatively broad surface in relation to thickness or depth: a flat board. See Synonyms at level. 4. Stretched out or lying at full length along the ground; prone. 5. Free of qualification; absolute: a flat refusal. 6. Fixed; unvarying: a flat rate. 7. Lacking interest or excitement; dull: a flat scenario. 8. a. Lacking in flavor: a flat stew that needs salt. b. Having lost effervescence or sparkle: flat beer. 9. a. Deflated. Used of a tire. b. Electrically discharged. Used of a storage battery. 10. Of or relating to a horizontal line that displays no ups or downs and signifies the absence of physiological activity: A flat electroencephalogram indicates a loss of brain function. 11. Commercially inactive; sluggish: flat sales for the month. 12. Unmodulated; monotonous: a flat voice. 13. Lacking variety in tint or shading; uniform: "The sky was bright but flat, the color of oyster shells" (Anne Tyler). 14. Not glossy; mat: flat paint. 15. Music. a. Being below the correct pitch. b. Being one half step lower than the corresponding natural key: the key of B flat. 16. Designating the vowel a as pronounced in bad or cat. 17. Nautical. Taut. Used of a sail. — adv. 1. a. Level with the ground; horizontally. b. On or up against a flat surface; at full length. 2. So as to be flat. 3. a. Directly; completely: went flat against the rules; flat broke. b. Exactly; precisely: arrived in six minutes flat. 4. Music. Below the intended pitch. 5. Business. Without interest charge. — n. 1. A flat surface or part. 2. Often flats. A stretch of level ground: salt flats. 3. A shallow frame or box for seeds or seedlings. 4. Stage scenery on a movable wooden frame. 5. A flatcar. 6. A deflated tire. 7. A shoe with a flat heel. 8. A large flat piece of mail. 9. A horse that competes in a flat race. Also called runner 10. Music. a. A sign (b) affixed to a note to indicate that it is to be lowered by a half step. b. A note that is lowered a half step. 11. Football. The area of the field to either side of an offensive formation. — v. flat-ted, flat-ting, flats. — v. tr. 1. To make flat; flatten. 2. Music. To lower (a note) a semitone. — v. intr. Music. To sing or play below the proper pitch. [Middle English, from Old Norse flatr. See plat- in Appendix.] — flat/ly adv. — flat/ness n.

flat² (flăt) n. 1. An apartment on one floor of a building. 2. Archaic. A story in a house. [Alteration of Scots flet, inner part of a house, from Middle English, from Old English, floor, dwelling. See plat- in Appendix.]

flat-bed (flăt'běd') n. 1. An open truck bed or trailer with no sides, used to carry large objects such as heavy machinery, cars, or houses. 2. A railroad flatcar.

flat-bed press (flăt'běd' prēs) n. Printing. A press in which the type, locked into a chase, is supported by a flat surface or bed and the paper is applied to the type either by a flat platen or by a cylinder against which the bed moves.

flat-boat (flăt'böt') n. Nautical. A boat with a flat bottom and square ends used for transporting freight on inland waterways.

flat-bot-tom (flăt'böt'əm) or flat-bot-tomed (-böt'əmd) adj. Having a flat bottom: a flatbottom boat; a flatbottomed skillet.

flat-bread (flăt'brəd') n. Any of various breads made from usually unleavened dough and baked in flat, often round loaves.

flat-car (flăt'kär') n. A railroad freight car without sides or a roof.

flat-coat-ed retriever (flăt'kō'tid rī-trē'vər) n. A medium-sized sporting dog of a breed originally developed in England, having a thick, smooth coat that is black or deep reddish brown.

flat-fish (flăt'fīsh') n. pl. flatfish or flat-fish-es. Any of numerous chiefly marine fishes of the order Pleuronectiformes, including the flounders, soles, and halibuts, having a laterally compressed body with both eyes on the upper side.

flat-foot (flăt'fōot') n. 1. pl. flat-feet (-fēt'). A condition in which the arch of the foot is abnormally flattened down so that the entire sole makes contact with the ground. 2. pl. flat-foots. a. Informal. A person with flat feet. b. Slang. A police officer. — v. intr. flat-foot-ed, flat-foot-ing, flat-foots. To walk in a flat-footed manner: "He flatfooted along, twirling his club" (James T. Farrell).

flat-foot-ed (flăt'fōot'id) adj. 1. Of or afflicted with flatfoot. 2. a. Steady on the feet. b. Informal. Without reservation; forthright: a flat-footed refusal. 3. Unable to react quickly; unprepared: The new product caught their competitors flat-footed. — flat'-foot'ed-ly adv. — flat'-foot'ed-ness n.

Flat-head (flăt'hēd') n. pl. Flathead or Flat-heads. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting western Montana and northern Idaho, now located principally on Flathead Lake. b. A member of this people. c. The Salishan language of the Flathead. 2. See Interior Salish.

flat-head catfish (flăt'hēd' kăt'fīsh') n. A large American catfish (Pyloodictis olivaris) having a yellowish body with brown markings and common in streams of the Mississippi Valley and southeast United States.

Flathead River (flăt'hēd' rīv'ər) A river rising in southeast British Columbia, Canada, and flowing about 386 km (240 mi) generally southward across the Montana border to Flathead Lake then south and west to the Clark Fork River. The lake is surrounded by mountains and is a popular recreation region.

flat-i-ron (flăt'ī'ərn) n. An iron for pressing clothes, especially one that is heated externally, as on a hearth or stove.

flat-land (flăt'länd', -lənd) n. 1. Land that varies little in elevation.

2. flatlands. A geographic area composed chiefly of land that varies little in elevation. — flat'land'er n.

flat-let (flăt'līt) n. Chiefly British. An efficiency apartment.

flat-ling (flăt'līng) also flat-lings (-līngs) adv. Chiefly British. With the flat side or edge of a sword.

flat out (flăt out) adv. Informal. 1. In a direct manner; bluntly: told me the truth flat out. 2. At top speed: running flat out.

flat-out (flăt'out') adj. Informal. Thoroughgoing; out-and-out: a flat-out promotional campaign; a flat-out deception.

flat pick (flăt pĭk) n. Music. A flat, often triangular plectrum held between the finger and thumb, used in picking and strumming a guitar or similar stringed instrument. —flat'-pick' (flăt'pĭk') v. —flat'-pick'er n. —flat'-pick'ing n.

flat race (flăt rās) n. A horserace run over level ground with no obstacles such as fences or hazards.

flat silver (flăt sĭl'vər) n. Utensils, such as knives, forks, or spoons, made of silver or silver plate.

flat·ten (flăt'n) v. flat·tened, flat·ten·ing, flat·tens. — v. tr. 1. To make flat or flatter. 2. To knock down; lay low: The boxer was flattened with one punch. — v. intr. To become flat or flatter. —flat'ten·er n.

flat·ter¹ (flăt'ər) v. flat·tered, flat·ter·ing, flat·ters. — v. tr. 1. To compliment excessively and often insincerely, especially in order to win favor. 2. To please or gratify the vanity of: "What really flatters a man is that you think him worth flattering" (George Bernard Shaw). 3. a. To portray favorably: a photograph that flatters its subject. b. To show off becomingly or advantageously. — v. intr. To practice flattery. [Middle English flateren, from Old French flater, of Germanic origin. See plat- in Appendix.] —flat'ter·er n. —flat'ter·ing·ly adv.

flat·ter² (flăt'ər) n. 1. A flat-faced swage or hammer used by blacksmiths. 2. A die plate for flattening metal into strips, as in the manufacture of watch springs.

flat·ter·y (flăt'ə-rē) n. pl. flat·ter·ies. 1. The act or practice of flattering. 2. Excessive or insincere praise.

Flat·ter·y (flăt'ə-rē), Cape. A headland of northwest Washington at the entrance to the Strait of Juan de Fuca. It was discovered by Capt. James Cook in 1778.

flat·tish (flăt'ĭsh) adj. Somewhat flat.

flat·top (flăt'tɒp') n. Informal. 1. An aircraft carrier. 2. A short haircut in which the hair is brushed straight up and cropped flat across the top.

flat·u·lence (fläch'ə-ləns) n. 1. The presence of excessive gas in the digestive tract. 2. Self-importance; pomposity.

flat·u·len·cy (fläch'ə-lən-sē) n. Flatulence.

flat·u·lent (fläch'ə-lənt) adj. 1. Of, afflicted with, or caused by flatulence.

2. Inducing or generating flatulence. 3. Pompous; bloated. [French, from Latin flātus, fart. See FLATUS.] —flat'u·lent·ly adv.

fla·tus (flā'təs) n. Gas generated in or expelled from the digestive tract, especially the stomach or intestines. [Latin flātus, wind, fart, from flāre, to blow. See bhlē- in Appendix.]

flat·ware (flăt'wār') n. 1. Tableware that is fairly flat and fashioned usually of a single piece, as plates. 2. Table utensils such as knives, forks, and spoons.

flat-wa-ter (flăt'wô'tər, -wöt'ər) adj. Of or on a level or slow-moving water-course: flat-water canoeing; a flat-water race.

flat-wise (flăt'wīz') also flat-ways (-wāz') adv. With the flat side down or in contact with a surface.

flat-work (flăt'wûrk') n. Laundry, such as sheets and linens, that can be ironed by a mangle rather than by hand.

flat-worm (flăt'wûrm') n. Any of various parasitic and nonparasitic worms of the phylum Platyhelminthes, such as a tapeworm or a planarian, characteristically having a soft, flat, bilaterally symmetrical body and no body cavity. Also called platyhelminth Flau-ber't (flō-bâr'), Gustave. 1821-1880. French writer considered a forerunner of naturalism and known for his precise literary style. His works include the novel Madame Bovary (1857) and the short story "A Simple Heart" (1877).

—Flau-ber'tian (-shən, -tē-ən) adj.

flaunt (flônt) v. flaunt-ed, flaunt-ing, flaunts. — v. tr. 1. To exhibit ostentatiously or shamelessly: flaunts his knowledge. See Synonyms at show. 2. Usage Problem. To show contempt for; scorn. — v. intr. 1. To parade oneself ostentatiously; show oneself off. 2. To wave grandly: pennants flaunting in the wind.

[Origin unknown.] —flaunt'er n. —flaunt'ing-ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Flaunt as a transitive verb means "to exhibit ostentatiously": She flaunted her diamonds. To flout is "to show contempt for": She flouted the proprieties. For some time now flaunt has been used in the sense "to show contempt for," even by educated users of English. This usage is still widely seen as erroneous and is best avoided.

flaunt-y (flôn'tē) adj. flaunt-i-er, flaunt-i-est. Inclined to flaunt; ostentatious. —flaunt'i-ly adv. —flaunt'i-ness n.

flau-ta (flou'tä) n. A tortilla rolled around a filling such as beef, chicken, or cheese into a flutelike shape and sometimes deep-fried. [Spanish, flute, probably from Old Provençal flaüt. See FLUTE.]

flau-tist (flô'tīst, flou't-) n. Music. A flutist. [Italian flautista, from flauto, flute, from Old Provençal flaüt.]

flav- pref. Variant of flavo-.

fla-va-none (flā'və-nōn') n. A colorless crystalline compound, C₁₅H₁₂O₂, derived from flavone. [FLAV(O)- + -AN(E) + -ONE.]

fla-ves-cent (flə-vēs'ənt) adj. Turning yellow; yellowish. [Latin flāvēscēns, flāvēscēt- present participle of flāvēscere, to turn yellow inchoative of flāvēre, to be yellow, from flāvus, yellow. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.]

fla-vin (flā'vīn) also fla-vine (-vēn') n. 1. Any of various water-soluble yellow pigments, including riboflavin, found in plant and animal tissue as coenzymes of flavoprotein. 2. A ketone, $C_{10}H_6N_4O_2$, that gives color to various natural yellow pigments.

flavin adenine dinucleotide (flā'vīn ād'n-ēn' dī-nōō'klē-ə-tīd') n. Abbr.

FAD A coenzyme, $C_{27}H_{33}N_9O_{15}P_2$, that is a derivative of riboflavin and functions in certain oxidation-reduction reactions in the body.

fla·vine (flā'vēn') n. 1. A brownish-red crystalline powder, $C_{14}H_{15}N_3Cl_2$, used as an antiseptic. 2. Variant of flavin.

flavin mononucleotide (flā'vīn mōn'ō-nōō'klē-ə-tīd') n. Abbr. FMN A derivative of riboflavin, $C_{17}H_{21}N_4O_9P$, that functions as a coenzyme of various flavoproteins in certain oxidation-reduction reactions in the body.

flavo- or flav- pref. 1. Yellow: flavin. 2. Flavin: flavoprotein. [Latin flāvus, yellow. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.]

fla·vone (flā'vōn') n. A crystalline compound, $C_{15}H_{10}O_2$, the parent substance of a number of important yellow pigments, occurring on the leaves or in the stems and seed capsules of many primroses.

fla·vo·noid (flā'və-noid') n. Any of a large group of plant substances that includes the anthocyanins.

fla·vo·pro·tein (flā'vō-prō'tēn', -tē-īn) n. Any of a group of enzymes containing flavin bound to protein and acting as dehydrogenation catalysts in biological reactions.

fla·vor (flā'vər) n. 1. Distinctive taste; savor: a flavor of smoke in bacon. See Synonyms at taste. 2. A distinctive yet intangible quality felt to be characteristic of a given thing: "What matters in literature... is surely the idiosyncratic, the individual, the flavor or color of a particular human suffering" (Harold Bloom). 3. A flavoring: contains no artificial flavors. 4. Archaic. Aroma; fragrance. — v. tr.

fla·vored, fla·vor·ing, fla·vors. To give flavor to. [Middle English flavour, aroma, from Old French flaor, from Vulgar Latin flātor*, from Latin flāre, to blow. See bhlē- in Appendix.] — fla'vor·er n. — fla'vor·less adj.

— fla'vor·ous (-əs), fla'vor·some (-səm) adj. — fla'vor·y adj.

fla·vor·ful (flā'vər-fəl) adj. Full of flavor; savory. — fla'vor·ful·ly adv.

fla·vor·ing (flā'vər-īng) n. A substance, such as an extract or a spice, that imparts flavor.

fla·vor·ist (flā'vər-īst) n. One whose profession is blending artificially isolated chemicals to create the taste and smell of a particular food.

fla·vour (flā'vər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of flavor.

flaw¹ (flô) n. 1. An imperfection, often concealed, that impairs soundness: a flaw in the crystal that caused it to shatter. See Synonyms at blemish. 2. A defect or shortcoming in something intangible: They share the character flaw of arrogance. 3. A defect in a legal document that can render it invalid. — v. tr. intr.

flawed, flaw·ing, flaws. To make or become defective. [Middle English flaue, splinter, perhaps from Old Norse flaga, slab of stone. See plāk-¹ in Appendix.]

flaw² (flô) n. 1. a. A brief gust or blast of wind. b. A passing storm; a squall. 2. Obsolete. A burst of passion. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish flaga, gust of wind.] —flaw'y adj.

flaw·less (flô'lis) adj. Being entirely without flaw or imperfection; perfect. See Synonyms at perfect. —flaw'less-ly adv. —flaw'less-ness n.

flax (fläks) n. 1. a. Any of several plants of the genus Linum, especially the widely cultivated L. usitatissimum, having blue flowers, seeds that yield linseed oil, and slender stems from which a textile fiber is obtained. b. The fine, light-colored textile fiber obtained from this plant. c. Any of several similar plants. 2. Color. A pale grayish yellow. [Middle English, from Old English fleax. See plek- in Appendix.]

flax·en (fläks'sən) adj. 1. Made of or resembling flax. 2. Having the pale grayish-yellow color of flax fiber: flaxen braids.

Flax·man (fläks'mən), John. 1755-1826. British sculptor and illustrator who designed friezes and portrait medallions for Wedgwood pottery and illustrated editions of the Iliad and the Odyssey (published 1793).

flax·seed (fläks'sēd') n. The seed of flax, the source of linseed oil and emollient medicinal preparations.

flax·y (fläks'sē) adj. flax·i·er, flax·i·est. Resembling flax, as in texture.

flay (flā) v. tr. flayed, flay·ing, flays. 1. To strip off the skin or outer covering of. 2. To strip of money or goods; fleece. 3. To whip or lash. 4. To assail with stinging criticism; excoriate. [Middle English flen, from Old English flēan.] —flay'er n.

F layer (ěf' lā'ər) n. 1. The highest zone of the ionosphere, extending at night from about 190 to 400 kilometers (120 to 250 miles) and during the day from about 145 to 400 kilometers (90 to 250 miles) above the earth's surface. Also called F region. 2. Either of two layers, designated F₁ and F₂, into which the F layer is divided during the day, extending respectively from about 145 to 240 kilometers (90 to 150 miles) and from about 190 to 400 kilometers (120 to 250 miles) above the earth's surface.

fld. abbr. Field.

fl dr abbr. Fluid dram.

flea (flē) n. 1. Any of various small, wingless, bloodsucking insects of the order Siphonaptera that have legs adapted for jumping and are parasitic on warm-blooded animals. 2. Any of various small crustaceans that resemble or move like fleas, such as the water flea. —idiom. a flea in (one's) ear. An annoying hint or a stinging rebuke. [Middle English fle, from Old English flēah.]

flea·bag (flē'băg') n. Informal. A seedy, run-down hotel or other lodging place.

flea·bane (flē'bān') n. Any of various plants of the genus Erigeron, having variously colored, many-rayed, daisylike flower heads.

flea beetle (flē bēt'1) n. Any of various small beetles of the subfamily Alticinae that have hind legs adapted for jumping and feed on the foliage of certain plants.

flea-bite (flē'bīt') n. 1. a. The bite of a flea. b. The small red mark caused by a flea's bite. 2. A trifling loss, inconvenience, or annoyance.

flea-bit-ten (flē'bīt'n) adj. 1. Covered with fleas or fleabites. 2. Informal. Seedy; delapidated: A flea-bitten couch. 3. Having a pale coat with reddish-brown flecks. Used of horses.

flea collar (flē kōl'ər) n. A collar, as for a cat or dog, containing a substance that repels or kills fleas.

flea market (flē mār'kīt) n. A market, usually held outdoors, where antiques, used household goods, and curios are sold. [Translation of French marché aux puces.] flea-pit (flē'pīt') n. Chiefly British. A cheap or squalid theater.

flèche (flësh, flāsh) n. A slender spire, especially one on a church above the intersection of the nave and transepts. [French, arrow, flèche, from Old French, arrow, of Germanic origin. See pleu- in Appendix.]

fléchette (flā-shět', flě-) n. A steel missile or dart dropped from an aircraft. [French, diminutive of flèche, arrow. See FLÈCHE.]

fleck (flěk) n. 1. A tiny mark or spot: flecks of mica in the rock. 2. A small bit or flake: flecks of foam; a fleck of dandruff. — v. tr. flecked, fleck-ing, flecks. To spot or streak: the path was flecked with sunlight. [Probably from Middle English flekked, spotted; akin to Old Norse flekkr, spot.]

flec-tion (flěk'shən) n. Anatomy. Variant of flexion (n., sense 1). — flec-tion-al adj.

fled (flěd) v. Past tense and past participle of flee.

fledge (flěj) v. fledged, fledg-ing, fledg-es. — v. tr. 1. To take care of (a young bird) until it is ready to fly. 2. To cover with or as if with feathers. 3. To provide (an arrow) with feathers. — v. intr. To grow the plumage necessary for flight. [Probably from obsolete fledge, feathered, from Middle English flegge, from Old English flycge*. See pleu- in Appendix.]

fledg-ling also fledge-ling (flěj'līng) n. 1. A young bird that has recently acquired its flight feathers. 2. A young or inexperienced person. — adj. New and untried or inexperienced: a fledgling enterprise; a fledgling skier.

flee (flē) v. fled (flěd), flee-ing, flees. — v. intr. 1. To run away, as from trouble or danger: fled from the house into the night. 2. To pass swiftly away; vanish: “of time fleeing beneath him” (William Faulkner). — v. tr. To run away from: flee the scene of an accident. [Middle English flen, from Old English flēon. See pleu- in Appendix.] — flee'er n.

fleece (flēs) n. 1. a. The coat of wool of a sheep or similar animal. b. The yield of wool shorn from a sheep at one time. 2. A soft, woolly covering or mass.

3. Fabric with a soft, deep pile. — v. tr. fleeced, fleec-ing, fleec-es. 1. To defraud of money or property; swindle. 2. To shear the fleece from. 3. To cover with or as if with fleece. [Middle English fles, from Old English flēos.]

—fleec'er n.

fleec-y (flē'sē) adj. fleec-i-er, fleec-i-est. Of, resembling, or covered with fleece: fleecy clouds. —fleec'i-ly adv. —fleec'i-ness n.

fleer (flîr) v. intr. fleered, fleer-ing, fleers. To smirk or laugh in contempt or derision. — n. A taunting, scoffing, or derisive look or gibe. [Middle English flerien, of Scandinavian origin.] —fleer'ing-ly adv.

fleet¹ (flēt) n. 1. A number of warships operating together under one command. 2. A group of vessels or vehicles, such as taxicabs or fishing boats, owned or operated as a unit. [Middle English flete, from Old English flēot, from flēotan, to float. See pleu- in Appendix.]

fleet² (flēt) adj. fleet-er, fleet-est. 1. Moving swiftly; rapid or nimble. See Synonyms at fast¹. 2. Fleeting; evanescent. — v. fleet-ed, fleet-ing, fleets. — v. intr. 1. To move or pass swiftly. 2. To fade out; vanish. 3. Archaic. To flow. 4. Obsolete. To drift. — v. tr. 1. To cause (time) to pass quickly. 2. Nautical. To alter the position of (tackle or rope, for example). [Probably from Old Norse fljōtr. V., from Middle English fleten, to drift, float from Old English flēotan. See pleu- in Appendix.] —fleet'ly adv. —fleet'ness n.

Fleet Admiral (flēt äd'mär-əl) n. See Admiral of the Fleet.

fleet-ing (flē'tīng) adj. Passing quickly; ephemeral: "fleeting passions of fantasy" (Gloria Vanderbilt). See Synonyms at transient. —fleet'ing-ly adv. —fleet'ing-ness n.

Fleet Street (flēt strēt) n. British journalism. [After Fleet Street in central London, long the headquarters for many British newspaper publishers.]

flei-shig (flā'shik) adj. Consisting of, prepared with, or relating to meat or meat products. [Yiddish fleyshik, from fleysh, meat, from Middle High German vleisch, meat, from Old High German fleisk, flesh.]

Flem. abbr. Flemish.

Flem-ing (flēm'īng) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Flanders. 2. A Belgian who speaks Flemish. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch Vlāming.]

Flem-ing (flēm'īng), Sir Alexander. 1881-1955. British bacteriologist who discovered penicillin in 1928. He shared a 1945 Nobel Prize for this achievement.

Flem-ing (flēm'īng), Ian Lancaster. 1908-1964. British writer noted for his spy novels featuring the fictional secret agent James Bond.

Flem-ing (flēm'īng), Sir John Ambrose. 1849-1945. British electrical engineer and inventor known for his work on electric lighting, wireless telegraphy, and the telephone.

Flem-ing (flēm'īng), Peggy Gale. Born 1948. American figure skater who won the women's title at the U.S. championship (1964-1968), the world championship (1966-1968), and the 1968 Olympics.

Flem-ish (flēm'ish) adj. Abbr. Flem. Of or relating to Flanders, the Flemings, or their language or culture. — n. Abbr. Flem. 1. The West Germanic language of the Flemings. 2. The Flemings.

Flens-burg (flēnz'bûrg, flēns'bōork') A city of northern Germany on Flens-burg Fjord, an arm of the Baltic Sea at the Danish border. Founded c. 1200, the city is a port and shipbuilding center. Population, 86,873.

flense (flēns) v. tr. flensed, flens-ing, flens-es. To strip the blubber or skin from (a whale, for example). [Danish.] —flens'er n.

flesh (flēsh) n. 1. a. The soft tissue of the body of a vertebrate, covering the bones and consisting mainly of skeletal muscle and fat. b. The surface or skin of the human body. 2. The meat of animals as distinguished from the edible tissue of fish or fowl. 3. Botany. The pulpy, usually edible part of a fruit or vegetable. 4. Excess fatty tissue; plumpness. 5. a. The body as opposed to the mind or soul. b. The physical or carnal nature of humankind. c. Sensual appetites. 6. Humankind in general; humanity. 7. One's family; kin. 8. Substance; reality: "The maritime strategy has an all but unstoppable institutional momentum behind it... that has given force and flesh to the theory" (Jack Beatty). — v. fleshed, flesh-ing, flesh-es. — v. tr. 1. To give substance or detail to; fill out: fleshed out the novel with a subplot. 2. To clean (a hide) of adhering flesh. 3. To encourage (a falcon, for example) to participate in the chase by feeding it flesh from a kill. 4. To inure to battle or bloodshed. 5. To plunge or thrust (a weapon) into flesh. — v. intr. To become plump or fleshy; gain weight. —idiom. in the flesh. 1. Alive. 2. In person; present. [Middle English, from Old English flæsc.] —flesh/less adj.

flesh and blood (flēsh ənd blūd) n. 1. Human nature or physical existence, together with its weaknesses. 2. A person's blood relatives; kin. 3. Substance and depth in artistic portrayal; lifelikeness: characters lacking in flesh and blood.

flesh fly (flēsh flī) n. Any of various flies of the family Sarcophagidae whose larvae are parasitic in animal tissue or feed on carrion.

flesh-ly (flēsh'lē) adj. flesh-li-er, flesh-li-est. 1. Of or relating to the body; corporeal. See Synonyms at bodily. 2. Of, relating to, or inclined to carnality; sensual. 3. Not spiritual; worldly: fleshly pleasures. 4. Tending to plumpness; fleshy. —flesh/li-ness n.

flesh-pot (flēsh'pōt') n. 1. Often fleshpots. A district or an establishment offering sensual pleasures or entertainment. 2. Physical or sensual gratification.

flesh wound (flēsh wōond) n. A wound that penetrates the flesh but does not damage underlying bones or vital organs.

flesh-y (flēsh'ē) adj. flesh-i-er, flesh-i-est. 1. a. Relating to, consisting of, or resembling flesh. b. Having abundant flesh; plump. See Synonyms at fat. 2. Having a juicy or pulpy texture: ripe, fleshy peaches. 3. Fleshly; carnal: "the fleshy fringes of show business" (Newsweek). —flesh/i-ness n.

fleshy fruit (flĕsh'ē frōōt) n. A fruit, such as the grape, cucumber, or cherry, that has a soft and pulpy wall.

fletch (flĕch) v. tr. fletched, fletch-ing, fletch-es. To feather (an arrow).

[Probably back-formation from FLETCHER.]

fletch·er (flĕch'ər) n. One who makes arrows. [Middle English fleccher, from Old French flechie, from fleche, arrow, of Germanic origin. See pleu- in Appendix.]

Fletch·er (flĕch'ər), Alice Cunningham. 1838-1923. Cuban-born American ethnologist noted for her studies of Native American culture.

Fletch·er (flĕch'ər), John. 1579-1625. English playwright who collaborated with Francis Beaumont on romantic tragicomedies, including Philaster (1610) and The Maid's Tragedy (1611).

Fletsch-horn (flĕch'hōrn') A peak, about 3,999 m (13,110 ft) high, in the Pennine Alps of southern Switzerland near the Italian border.

fleur-de-lis or fleur-de-lys (flûr'də-lĕ', flōōr'-) n. pl. fleurs-de-lis or fleurs-de-lys (flûr'də-lĕz, flōōr'-). 1. An iris, especially a white-flowered form of Iris germanica. 2. Heraldry. A device consisting of a stylized three-petaled iris flower, used as the armorial emblem of the kings of France. [Middle English flour de lice, from Old French flor de lis: flor, flower + de, of + lis, lily.]

Fleu-ry (flœ-rĕ'), André Hercule de. 1653-1743. French prelate and politician who became a cardinal in 1726 and served as prime minister (1726-1743) under Louis XV.

flew (flōō) v. Past tense of fly¹.

flews (flōōz) pl.n. The pendulous corners of the upper lip of certain dogs, such as the bloodhound. [Origin unknown.]

flex (flĕks) v. flexed, flex-ing, flex-es. — v. tr. 1. To bend (something pliant or elastic). 2. a. To bend (a joint). b. To bend (a joint) repeatedly. 3. a. To contract (a muscle, for example). b. To move by muscular control: “Sandy flexes his brow characteristically, one of those Latin gestures reflecting something too delicate or imprecise to say” (Scott Turow). 4. To exhibit or show off the strength of: “They had spent six years since the lightning Six Day War flexing their invincibility” (Howard Kaplan). — v. intr. To bend: “His hands flexed nervously as he spoke” (Mary McCarthy). — n. 1. Chiefly British. Flexible insulated electric cord. 2. The act or an instance of flexing; a bending. 3. Pliancy; flexibility: “Resolution' has none of that modern flex we favor, with generous, built-in amounts of 'maybe'” (Melvin Maddocks). — idiom. flex (one's) muscles. Informal. To exhibit or show off one's strength. [Latin flectere, flex-, to bend.]

flex- pref. Variant of flexi-.

flex·a-gon (flĕk'sə-gōn') n. A folded paper construction that can be flexed along its folds to reveal and conceal its faces alternately.

flexi- or flex- pref. Flexible: flexitime. [From FLEXIBLE.]

flex·i·ble (flĕk'sə-bəl) adj. 1. a. Capable of being bent or flexed; pliable.

b. Capable of being bent repeatedly without injury or damage. 2. Susceptible to influence or persuasion; tractable. 3. Responsive to change; adaptable: a flexible schedule. [From Latin flexibilis, from flexus, past participle of flectere, to bend.]

—flex'i·bil'i·ty, flex'i·ble·ness n. —flex'i·bly adv.

SYNONYMS: flexible, elastic, resilient, springy, supple. These adjectives refer literally to what is capable of withstanding stress without injury and figuratively to what can undergo change or modification. Something that is flexible can be bent, twisted, or turned (flexible wire); the word can also refer to adaptability to change or the need for change (a flexible administrator; flexible plans). What is elastic returns to an original shape, form, or position, as after being stretched (an elastic band), can adapt or be adapted to differing circumstances (an elastic clause in a contract), is quick to recover, as from illness or misfortune (an elastic spirit), or is stretched beyond strict or proper bounds (an elastic interpretation of a law). Resilient, like elastic, implies a springing back to an original shape, especially after compression (thin, resilient copper); it also suggests a buoyant capacity to revive, as from depression (a resilient temperament). Springy describes what is marked by resilience and elasticity: springy curls; a springy stride. Supple applies to what is easily bent or twisted (a supple birch rod; supple suede), bends or twists with agility (a supple body; supple limbs), or is marked by easy adaptability (a supple mind).

flexible time (flĕk'sə-bəl tīm) n. See flexitime.

flex·ile (flĕk'səl, -sīl') adj. Flexible.

flex·ion (flĕk'shən) n. 1. Also flec·tion. Anatomy. a. The act of bending a joint or limb in the body by the action of flexors. b. The resulting condition of being bent. 2. A part that is bent. [Latin flexiō, flexiōn-, a bending, from flexus, past participle of flectere, to bend.]

flex·i·time (flĕk'sī-tīm') n. See flexitime.

flex·og·ra·phy (flĕk-sög'rə-fē) n. A system of printing on a rotary press employing water-based ink, used especially for printing on plastic, paper, or cardboard. —flex·og'ra·pher n. —flex'o·graph'ic (-sə-grăf'ik) adj.
—flex'o·graph'i·cal·ly adv.

flex·or (flĕk'sər) n. A muscle that when contracted acts to bend a joint or limb in the body. [New Latin, from Latin flexus, past participle of flectere, to bend.]

flex·time (flĕks'tīm') n. An arrangement by which employees may set their own work schedules, especially their starting and finishing hours. Also called flexible time, flexitime.

flex·u·ous (flĕk'shōō-əs) adj. Bending or winding alternately from side to side; sinuous. [From Latin flexuōsus, from flexus, a bending, a turning, from flectere, to bend.] —flex'u·os'i·ty (-ōs'ī-tē) n. —flex'u·ous·ly adv.

flex-ure (flĕk'shər) n. 1. A curve, turn, or fold, such as a bend in a tubular organ: a flexure of the colon. 2. The act or an instance of bending or flexing; flexion. —flex'ur-al adj.

fley (flā) v. tr. fleyed, fley-ing, fleys. Scots. To frighten. [Middle English fleien, from Old English flýgan, flēgan. See pleu- in Appendix.]

flib-ber-ti-gib-bet (flīb'ər-tē-jīb'it) n. A silly, scatterbrained, or garrulous person. [Middle English flipergebet.]

flic (flĭk) n. Slang. A police officer, especially in France. [French.]

flick¹ (flĭk) n. 1. a. A light, quick blow, jerk, or touch: a flick of the wrist; gave my horse a flick with the reins. b. The sound accompanying this motion. 2. A light splash, dash, or daub. — v. flicked, flick-ing, flicks. — v. tr. 1. To touch or hit with a light, quick blow: flicked him with his hand. See Synonyms at brush¹. 2. To cause to move with a light blow; snap: flicked the light switch on. 3. To remove with a light, quick blow: flicked the lint off the coat. — v. intr. To twitch or flutter. [Imitative.] —flick'a-ble adj.

flick² (flĭk) n. Slang. A movie. [Short for FLICKER¹.]

flick-er¹ (flĭk'ər) v. flick-ered, flick-er-ing, flick-ers. — v. intr. 1. To move waveringly; flutter: shadows flickering on the wall. See Synonyms at flutter. 2. To burn unsteadily or fitfully. — v. tr. To cause to move waveringly. — n. 1. A brief movement; a tremor. 2. An inconstant or wavering light. 3. A brief or slight sensation: a flicker of doubt. 4. Slang. A movie. [Middle English flickeren, to flutter, from Old English flicerian.]

flick-er² (flĭk'ər) n. Any of various large North American woodpeckers of the genus Colaptes, especially C. auratus, the common flicker, having a brown back, spotted breast, and white rump. [Perhaps from FLICK¹.]

flick-er-tail (flĭk'ər-tāl') n. See Richardson's ground squirrel.

flied (flīd) v. intr. Past tense and past participle of fly¹ (v. intr., sense 7).

fli-er also fly-er (flī'ər) n. 1. One, such as an insect or a bird, that flies with wings. 2. The pilot of an aircraft. 3. A passenger in an aircraft: business fliers who travel 100,000 miles or more per year. 4. A pamphlet or circular for mass distribution. 5. A step in a straight stairway. 6. Informal. A daring venture. 7. Often flyer. Australian. An exceptionally swift kangaroo.

flies (flīz) v. Third person singular present tense of fly¹.

flight¹ (flīt) n. 1. a. The motion of an object in or through a medium, especially through the earth's atmosphere or through space. b. An instance of such motion. c. The distance covered in such motion. 2. a. The act or process of flying through the air by means of wings. b. The ability to fly. 3. A swift passage or movement. 4. A scheduled airline run or trip. 5. A group, especially of birds or aircraft, flying together. See Synonyms at flock¹. 6. A number of aircraft in the U.S. Air Force forming a subdivision of a squadron. 7. An exuberant or transcendent effort or display: a flight of the imagination; flights of oratory. 8. A series of stairs rising from one landing to another. — v. intr. flight-ed, flight-ing, flights. To migrate or fly in flocks. [Middle English, from Old English flyht. See pleu- in Appendix.]

flight² (flīt) n. The act or an instance of running away; an escape. [Middle English, from Old English flyht*. See pleu- in Appendix.]

flight attendant (flīt ə-tĕn'dənt) n. A person who assists passengers in an aircraft.

flight bag (flīt bāg) n. A lightweight, flexible piece of luggage with zippered outside pockets.

flight deck (flīt dĕk) n. 1. The upper deck of an aircraft carrier, used as a runway. 2. An elevated compartment in certain aircraft, used by the pilot, copilot, and flight engineer.

flight engineer (flīt ĕn'jə-nîr') n. The crew member responsible for the mechanical performance of an aircraft in flight.

flight feather (flīt fĕth'ər) n. Any of the comparatively large, stiff feathers of a bird's wing or tail that are necessary for flight.

flight-less (flīt'lis) adj. Incapable of flying. Used of certain birds, such as the penguin.

flight line (flīt lîn) n. The area of an airfield, specifically the parking area and the maintenance hangars, where aircraft are unloaded, offloaded, and serviced.

flight surgeon (flīt sūr'jən) n. An air force physician who specializes in aeromedicine.

flight-test (flīt'tĕst') v. tr. flight--test-ed, flight--test-ing, flight--tests. To test (an aircraft, for example) during flight.

flight-wor-thy (flīt'wûr'thĕ) adj. Denoting an aircraft that is mechanically or structurally fit to fly. — flight'wor'thi-ness n.

flight-y (flī'tĕ) adj. flight-i-er, flight-i-est. 1. a. Given to capricious or unstable behavior. b. Characterized by irresponsible or silly behavior. 2. Easily excited; skittish. — flight'i-ly adv. — flight'i-ness n.

flim-flam (flīm'flăm') Informal. n. 1. Nonsense; humbug. 2. A deception; a swindle. — v. tr. flim-flammed, flim-flam-ming, flim-flams. To swindle; cheat. [Probably of Scandinavian origin.] — flim'/flam'mer n. — flim'/flam'mer-y n.

flim-sy (flīm'zĕ) adj. flim-si-er, flim-si-est. 1. Light, thin, and insubstantial: a flimsy fabric. 2. Lacking solidity or strength: a flimsy table. 3. Lacking plausibility; unconvincing: a flimsy excuse. — n. pl. flim-sies. 1. Thin paper usually used to make multiple copies. 2. Something written on this thin paper. [Origin unknown.] — flim'si-ly adv. — flim'si-ness n.

WORD HISTORY: The origin of flimsy, although uncertain, is not completely obscure. The word is first recorded in English in the 17th century in a dictionary of cant, the jargon of people such as thieves and beggars. Its early senses “frail” and “trivial” as well as its form may link it with flim-flam, recorded first around 1538. The noun flim-flam could mean “a piece of nonsense or idle talk,” and the adjective could mean “frivolous.” Flim-flam itself is a reduplication in which the pattern fl—m occurs twice, the first time with the sound (i); the second, with the sound (ä). Flim may be related to the Old Norse word flim, meaning “a lampoon, libel.”

flinch (flɪnʃ) v. intr. flinched, flinch-ing, flinch-es. 1. To start or wince involuntarily, as from surprise or pain. 2. To recoil, as from something unpleasant or difficult; shrink. See Synonyms at recoil. — n. An act or instance of starting, wincing, or recoiling. [Obsolete French flenchir, of Germanic origin.] — flinch'er n. — flinch'ing-ly adv.

flin-ders (flɪn'dɜrz) pl.n. Bits, fragments, or splinters. [Middle English flendris, possibly of Scandinavian origin; akin to Norwegian flindra, splinter.]

Flin-ders (flɪn'dɜrz), Sir Matthew. 1774-1814. British explorer who sailed to New South Wales (1795) and subsequently made a thorough study of the Australian coast.

Flinders Range (flɪn'dɜrz rānj) A mountain range of south-central Australia east of Lake Torrens. The highest peak is 1,189.5 m (3,900 ft).

Flinders River (flɪn'dɜrz rɪv'ɜr) An intermittent river of northeast Australia flowing about 837 km (520 mi) northwest to the Gulf of Carpentaria.

fling (flɪŋ) v. flung (flʌŋg), fling-ing, flings. — v. tr. 1. To throw with violence: flung the dish against the wall. See Synonyms at throw. 2. To put or send suddenly or unexpectedly: troops that were flung into battle. 3. To throw (oneself) into an activity with abandon and energy. 4. To cast aside; discard: fling propriety away. — v. intr. To move quickly, violently, or impulsively. — n.

1. The act of flinging. 2. A brief period of indulging one's impulses. See Synonyms at binge. 3. Informal. A usually brief attempt or effort: You take a fling at it. [Middle English flingen, of Scandinavian origin. See plāk-2 in Appendix.]

flint (flɪnt) n. 1. A very hard, fine-grained quartz that sparks when struck with steel. 2. a. A piece of flint used to produce a spark. b. A small solid cylinder of a spark-producing alloy, used in lighters to ignite the fuel. 3. A piece of flint used as a tool by primitive human beings. 4. Something resembling flint in hardness: a jaw of flint. [Middle English, from Old English.]

Flint (flɪnt) A city of southeast-central Michigan north-northwest of Detroit. Founded on the site of a fur-trading post established in 1819, it became an automobile-manufacturing center in the early 1900's. Population, 140,761.

Flint (flɪnt), Austin. 1812-1886. American physician who discovered the irregular heart sound that came to be called the Austin Flint murmur.

flint corn (flɪnt kôrn) n. A variety of corn (Zea mays var. indurata) having small, hard grains. See Regional note at johnnycake.

flint glass (flɪnt gläs) n. A soft, fusible, lustrous, brilliant lead-oxide optical glass with high refraction and low dispersion. Also called lead glass flint-head (flɪnt'hěd') n. See wood ibis.

flint-lock (flɪnt'lök') n. 1. An obsolete gunlock in which a flint embedded in the hammer produces a spark that ignites the charge. 2. A firearm having this type of gunlock. In this sense, also called firelock flint-y (flɪn'tē) adj. flint-i-er, flint-i-est. 1. Containing or composed of flint. 2. Unyielding; stern: a flinty manner. —flint'i-ly adv. —flint'i-ness n.

Flint River (flɪnt rɪv'ər) A river of western Georgia flowing about 531 km (330 mi) generally southward to join the Chattahoochee River and form the Apalachicola River at the Florida border.

flip (flɪp) v. flipped, flip-ping, flips. — v. tr. 1. To throw or toss with a light, brisk motion: flipped me the ball; flipped his hair out of his eyes. 2. To toss in the air, imparting a spin: flip a coin. 3. a. To turn over or around, especially with a light, quick motion: flip over a card; flipped the record to play the other side. b. To turn through; leaf: flipped the pages of the report. 4. To strike quickly or lightly; flick. 5. To move or act on with a quick motion: flip a switch; flipped open her briefcase. — v. intr. 1. To turn over: The canoe flipped over in the rapids. 2. To turn a somersault in the air. 3. To move in twists and turns: fish flipping about in the net. 4. To move quickly and lightly; snap: The lid flipped open. 5. To leaf; browse: flipped through the catalogue. 6. Slang. a. To go crazy. Often used with out. b. To react strongly and especially enthusiastically: She flipped over the new car. — n. 1. The act of flipping, especially: a. A flick or tap. b. A short, quick movement: a flip of the wrist. c. A somersault. 2. Informal. A reversal; a flip-flop. 3. A mixed drink made with any of various alcoholic beverages and often including beaten eggs. — adj. flip-per, flip-pest. Informal. Marked by casual disrespect; impertinent: a flip answer to a serious question. —idiom. flip (one's) lid. Slang. 1. To react strongly, as with anger or enthusiasm. 2. To go crazy. [Perhaps imitative.]

flip-book (flɪp'böök') n. A small book consisting of a series of images that give the illusion of continuous movement when the edges of the pages are flipped quickly.

flip chart (flɪp chärt) n. A chart consisting of sheets hinged at the top that can be flipped over to present information sequentially.

flip-flop (flɪp'flöp') n. 1. The movement or sound of repeated flapping. 2. A backward somersault or handspring. 3. Informal. A reversal, as of a stand or position: a foreign policy flip-flop. 4. A backless, often foam rubber sandal held to the foot at the big toe by means of a thong. 5. Electronics. An electronic circuit or mechanical device capable of assuming either of two stable states, especially a computer circuit used to store a single bit of information. —flip'-flop' v.

flip-pant (flɪp'ənt) adj. 1. Marked by disrespectful levity or casualness; pert.

2. Archaic. Talkative; voluble. [Probably from FLIP.] —flip'/pan-cy n. —flip'-pant-ly adv.

flip-per (flɪp'ər) n. 1. A wide, flat limb, as of a seal, whale, or other aquatic mammal, adapted for swimming. 2. A rubber covering for the foot having a flat, flexible portion that widens as it extends forward from the toes, used in swimming and diving. In this sense, also called *fin*¹ flip side (flɪp saɪd) n. Informal. 1. The reverse side, as of a phonograph record.

2. The opposite side: “The flip side of retrospectively savaging the loser is beatifying... the winner” (Charles Krauthammer).

flirt (flɪrt) v. flirt-ed, flirt-ing, flirts. — v. intr. 1. To make playfully romantic or sexual overtures. 2. To deal playfully, triflingly, or superficially with: flirt with danger. 3. To move abruptly or jerkily. — v. tr. 1. To toss or flip suddenly.

2. To move quickly. — n. 1. One given to flirting. 2. An abrupt, jerking movement. [Origin unknown.]

SYNONYMS: flirt, dally, play, toy, trifle. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to deal lightly, casually, or flippantly with someone or something”: flirted with the idea of getting a job; dallying with music; can't play with life; toyed with the problem; a person not to be trifled with.

flir-ta-tion (flɪr-tā'shən) n. 1. The practice of flirting. 2. A superficial and usually temporary romance. 3. A brief involvement.

flir-ta-tious (flɪr-tā'shəs) adj. 1. Given to flirting. 2. Full of playful allure: a flirtatious glance. —flir-ta'tious-ly adv. —flir-ta'tious-ness n.

flit (flɪt) v. intr. flit-ted, flit-ting, flits. 1. To move about rapidly and nimbly. 2. To move quickly from one condition or location to another. See Synonyms at flutter. — n. 1. A fluttering or darting movement. 2. Informal. An empty-headed, silly, often erratic person. [Middle English flitten, from Old Norse flytja, to carry about, convey. See pleu- in Appendix.] —flit'ter n.

flich (flɪch) n. 1. A salted and cured side of bacon. 2. A longitudinal cut from the trunk of a tree. 3. One of several planks secured together to form a single beam. [Middle English flicche, from Old English flicce.]

flit-ter (flɪt'ər) v. intr. flit-tered, flit-ter-ing, flit-ters. To flutter. See Synonyms at flutter. [Frequentative of FLIT.]

float (flōt) v. float-ed, float-ing, floats. — v. intr. 1. a. To remain suspended within or on the surface of a fluid without sinking. b. To be suspended in or move through space as if supported by a liquid. 2. To move from place to place, especially at random. 3. To move easily or lightly: “Miss Golightly... floated round in their arms light as a scarf" (Truman Capote). 4. Economics. To find a level in relationship to other currencies solely in response to the law of supply and demand: allowed the dollar to float. — v. tr. 1. To cause to remain suspended without sinking or falling. 2. a. To put into the water; launch: float a ship; float a navy. b. To start or establish (a business enterprise, for example). 3. To flood (land), as for irrigation. 4. Economics. To allow (the exchange value of a currency) to find freely its real level in relationship to other currencies. 5. To release (a security) for sale. 6. To arrange for (a loan). 7. To make the surface of (plaster, for example) level or smooth. 8. Computer Science. To convert (data) from fixed-point notation to floating-point notation. — n. 1. Something that floats, as: a. A raft. b. A buoy. c. A life preserver. d. A buoyant object, such as a cork, used to hold a net or fishing line afloat. e. A landing platform attached to a wharf and floating on the water. f. A floating ball attached to a lever to regulate the water level in a tank. 2. Biology. An air-filled sac or structure that aids in the flotation of an aquatic organism. Also called air bladder, air vesicle. 3. A decorated exhibit or scene mounted on a mobile platform and pulled or driven in a parade. 4. A sum of money representing checks that are outstanding. 5. A tool for smoothing the surface of plaster or cement. 6. A soft drink with ice cream floating in it. See Regional note at milk shake. [Middle English floten, from Old English flotian. See pleu- in Appendix.] — float/a·ble adj.

float·age (flō'tij) n. Variant of flotage.

float·a·tion (flō-tā'shən) n. Variant of flotation.

float·er (flō'tər) n. 1. One, such as a person or an object, that floats or is capable of floating. 2. One who wanders; a drifter. 3. An employee who is reassigned from job to job or shift to shift within an operation. 4. One who votes illegally in different polling places. 5. An insurance policy that protects movable property in transit or regularly subject to use in varying places. 6. Slang. A corpse that is recovered from a body of water, especially when it has been there for some time. 7. floaters. Specks or small threads in the visual field, usually perceived to be moving, that are caused by minute aggregations of cells or proteins in the vitreous humor of the eye.

float·ing (flō'ting) adj. 1. Buoyed on or suspended in or as if in a fluid. 2. Not secured in place; unattached. 3. Inclined to move or be moved about: a floating meeting; floating crap games. 4. Economics. a. Available for use; in circulation. Used of capital. b. Short-term and usually unfunded. Used of a debt. 5. Designed or constructed to operate smoothly and without vibration. 6. Of or relating to an organ of the body that is movable or out of normal position: a floating kidney.

floating dock (flō'ting dōk) n. 1. A structure that can be submerged to permit the entry and docking of a ship and then raised to lift the ship from the water for repairs. Also called floating drydock 2. A dock that is supported by metal pipes on which it can move up and down with the rise and fall of the water level.

floating island (flō'tīng ī'lənd) n. A dessert of soft custard with mounds of beaten egg whites or whipped cream floating on its surface.

float-ing-point (flō'tīng-point') adj. Of, relating to, or being a method of writing numeric quantities with a mantissa representing the value of the digits and a characteristic indicating the power of the number base, such as 3×10^{-5} .

floating rib (flō'tīng rīb) n. A false rib whose anterior end is unattached. The lowest two pairs of human ribs are floating ribs.

float-plane (flōt'plān') n. An aircraft equipped with one or more floats for landing on or taking off from a body of water.

floc (flök) n. A flocculent mass formed in a fluid through precipitation or aggregation of suspended particles. [Short for FLOCCULUS.]

floc-cose (flök'ōs) adj. Botany. Covered with tufts of soft hair, as the fruits of quince. [Late Latin floccōsus, from Latin floccus, tuft of wool.]

floc-cu-late (flök'yə-lāt') v. floc-cu-lat-ed, floc-cu-lat-ing, floc-cu-lates.

— v. tr. 1. To cause (soil) to form lumps or masses. 2. To cause (clouds) to form fluffy masses. — v. intr. To form lumpy or fluffy masses. — n. Something that has formed lumpy or fluffy masses. — floc'cu-la'tion n.

floc-cule (flök'yōl) n. A small, loosely held mass or aggregate of fine particles, resembling a tuft of wool and suspended in or precipitated from a solution. Also called *flock*² [New Latin flocculus, flocculus. See FLOCCULUS.]

floc-cu-lent (flök'yə-lənt) adj. 1. Having a fluffy or woolly appearance.

2. Chemistry. Made up of or containing woolly masses. 3. Zoology. Having a soft, waxy, and woollike covering, as certain insects. — floc'cu-lence n.

— floc'cu-lent-ly adv.

floc-cu-lus (flök'yə-ləs) n. pl. floc-cu-li (-lī'). 1. A small fluffy mass or tuft.

2. Anatomy. Either of two small lobes on the lower posterior border of the cerebellum. 3. Astronomy. Any of various cloudlike masses of gases appearing as bright or dark patches on the surface of the sun. [New Latin, diminutive of Latin floccus, tuft of wool.]

flock¹ (flök) n. 1. A group of animals that live, travel, or feed together. 2. A group of people under the leadership of one person, especially the members of a church. 3. A large crowd or number: had a flock of questions. See Usage Note at collective noun. — v. intr. flocked, flock-ing, flocks. To congregate or travel in a flock or crowd. [Middle English flok, from Old English floc.]

SYNONYMS: flock, flight, herd, drove, pack, gang, gaggle, bevy, brood. These nouns denote a number of animals, birds, or fish considered collectively, and some have human connotations. Flock is applied to a congregation of animals of one kind, especially sheep or goats herded by human beings, and to any congregation of wild or domesticated birds, especially when on the ground. It is also applicable to people who form the membership of a church or to people under someone's care or supervision. Flight refers to a flock of birds in flight. Herd is used of a number of animals, especially cattle, herded by human beings; or of wild animals such as antelope, elephants, and zebras; or of whales and seals. Applied to people, it is used disparagingly of a crowd or of the masses and suggests the gregarious aspect of crowd psychology. Drove is used of a herd or flock of cattle, sheep, geese, or the like, that are being moved or driven from one place to another; less often it refers to a crowd of people in movement. Pack is applicable to any body of animals, especially wolves, or of birds, especially grouse, and to a body of hounds trained to hunt as a unit. It also refers disparagingly to a band or group of persons. Gang refers to a herd, especially of buffalo or elk; to a pack of wolves or wild dogs; or to various associations of persons, especially when engaged in violent or criminal pursuits. Gaggle denotes a flock of geese. Bevy is used of a company of roe deer, larks, or quail. Brood is applicable to offspring that are still under the care of a mother, especially the offspring of domestic and game birds or, less formally, of human beings. • The following related terms are used as indicated: cast, the number of hawks or falcons cast off at one time, usually a pair; cete, a company of badgers; covert, a flock of coots; covey, a family of grouse, partridges, or other game birds; drift, a drove or herd, especially of hogs; exaltation, a flight of larks; fall, a family of woodcock in flight; gam, a school of whales, or a social congregation of whalers, especially at sea; kennel, a number of hounds or dogs housed in one place or under the same ownership; kindle, a brood or litter, especially of kittens; litter, the total number of offspring produced at a single birth by a multiparous mammal; muster, a flock of peacocks; nide, a brood of pheasants; pod, a small herd of seals or whales; pride, a company of lions; rout, a company of people or animals in movement, especially knights or wolves; school, a congregation of fish, or aquatic mammals such as dolphins or porpoises; shrewdness, a company of apes; skein, a flight of wildfowl, especially geese; skulk, a congregation of vermin, especially foxes, or of thieves; sloth, a company of bears; sord, a flight of mallards; sunder, a herd of wild boar; stable, a number of horses housed in one place or under the same ownership; swarm, a colony of insects, such as ants, bees, or wasps, especially when migrating to a new nest or hive; troop, a number of animals, birds, or people, especially when on the move; warren, the inhabitants, such as rabbits, of a warren; watch, a flock of nightingales; and wisp, a flock of birds, especially of snipe. See also Synonyms at crowd flock² (flök) n. 1. A tuft, as of fiber or hair. 2. Waste wool or cotton used for stuffing furniture and mattresses. 3. An inferior grade of wool added to cloth for extra weight. 4. Pulverized wool or felt that is applied to paper, cloth, or metal to produce a texture or pattern. 5. See floccule. — v. tr. flocked, flock·ing, flocks. 1. To stuff with waste wool or cotton. 2. To texture or pattern with pulverized wool or felt. [Middle English flok, from Old French floc, from Latin floc- cus, tuft of wool.]

Flod-den (flōd'n) A hill of northern England near the Scottish border. It was the site of the Battle of Flodden Field (September 9, 1513) in which the English defeated the Scots under James IV, who was killed in the massive slaughter.

floe (flō) n. 1. An ice floe. 2. A segment that has separated from such an ice mass. [Probably from Norwegian flo, layer, from Old Norse flō. See plāk-¹ in Appendix.]

flog (flŏg, flôg) v. tr. flogged, flog-ging, flogs. 1. To beat severely with a whip or rod. 2. Informal. To publicize aggressively: flogging a new book. [Perhaps from alteration of Latin flagellāre. See FLAGELLATE.] — flog'ger n.

flood (flūd) n. 1. An overflowing of water onto land that is normally dry. 2. A flood tide. 3. An abundant flow or outpouring: received a flood of applications.
See Synonyms at flow. 4. A floodlight, specifically a unit that produces a beam of intense light. 5. Flood. The universal deluge recorded in the Old Testament as having occurred during the life of Noah. Often used with the. — v. flood-ed, flood-ing, floods. — v. tr. 1. To cover or submerge with or as if with a flood; inundate: My desk is flooded with paper. 2. To fill with an abundance or an excess: flood the market with cheap foreign goods. — v. intr. 1. To become inundated or submerged. 2. To pour forth; overflow. [Middle English flod, from Old English flōd. See pleu- in Appendix.]

flood-gate (flūd'gāt') n. 1. A gate used to control the flow of a body of water.
Also called water gate 2. Something that restrains a flood or an outpouring: a ruling that opened the floodgates to refugees seeking asylum.

flood-light (flūd'lit') n. 1. Artificial light in an intensely bright and broad beam. 2. A unit that produces a beam of intense light; a flood. — v. tr.

flood-light-ed or flood-lit (-līt'), flood-light-ing, flood-lights. To illuminate with a floodlight.

flood-plain also flood plain (flūd'plān') n. A plain bordering a river and subject to flooding.

flood tide also flood-tide (flūd'tīd') n. 1. The incoming or rising tide; the period between low water and the succeeding high water. 2. A climax or high point: a flood tide of fears.

flood-wall (flūd'wōl') n. A wall built along a shore or bank to protect an area from floods.

flood-wat-er (flūd'wō'tər, -wōt'ər) n. The water of a flood. Often used in the plural.

floor (flôr, flōr) n. Abbr. fl. 1. a. The surface of a room on which one stands.
b. The lower or supporting surface of a structure. 2. a. A story or level of a building. b. The occupants of such a story: The entire floor complained about the noise. 3. A level surface or area used for a specified purpose: a dance floor; a threshing floor. 4. The surface of a structure on which vehicles travel. 5. a. The part of a legislative chamber or meeting hall where members are seated and from which they speak. b. The right to address an assembly, as granted under parliamentary procedure. c. The body of assembly members: a motion from the floor. 6. The part of a room or building where the principal business or work takes place, especially: a. The area of an exchange where securities are traded. b. The part of a retail store in which merchandise is displayed and sales are made. c. The area of a factory where the product is manufactured or assembled. 7. The ground or lowermost surface, as of a forest or an ocean. 8. A lower limit or base: a pricing floor; a bidding floor. — v. tr. floored, floor-ing, floors. 1. To provide with a floor. 2. Informal. To press (the accelerator of a motor vehicle) to the floor. 3. a. To knock down. b. To stun; overwhelm: The very idea floored me. [Middle English flor, from Old English flōr. See pelə-² in Appendix.] — floor'er n.

floor-age (flôr'ij, flôr'-) n. Floor space.

floor-board (flôr'bôrd', flôr'bôrd') n. 1. A board in a floor. 2. The floor of a motor vehicle.

floor exercise (flôr'ĕk'sər-sīz') n. Sports. An event in competitive gymnastics that consists of various tumbling maneuvers performed on a mat.

floor-ing (flôr'ing, flôr'-) n. 1. A floor. 2. Material, such as lumber or tile, used in making floors.

floor lamp (flôr lămp) n. A tall lamp with a base that stands on the floor.

floor leader (flôr lē'dər) n. The member of a legislature chosen by fellow party members to be in charge of the party's activities on the floor.

floor manager (flôr măn'j-ĵər) n. 1. See floorwalker. 2. A person who is in charge of directing something, such as activities at a political convention, from the floor.

floor plan (flôr plăn) n. A scale diagram of a room or building drawn as if seen from above.

floor sample (flôr sām'pəl) n. Merchandise sold at a reduced price because it has been a display or demonstration model.

floor-show (flôr'shō', flôr'-) n. A series of entertainments presented in a nightclub.

floor-walk-er (flôr'wô'kər, flôr'-) n. An employee of a department store who supervises sales personnel and assists customers. Also called floor manager floo-zy also floo-zie (flōō'zē) n. pl. floo-zies. Slang. A woman regarded as gaudy or tawdry. [Origin unknown.]

flop (flöp) v. flopped, flop-ping, flops. — v. intr. 1. To fall or lie down heavily and noisily. 2. To move about loosely or limply: The dog's ears flopped when it ran. 3. Informal. To fail utterly: The play flopped. 4. Slang. a. To rest idly; lounge. b. To go to bed. — v. tr. To drop or lay (something) down heavily and noisily: flopped the steak onto a platter. — n. 1. The act of flopping.

2. The sound made when flopping. 3. Informal. An utter failure. [Alteration of FLAP.] —flop'per n.

flop-house (flöp'hous') n. A cheap, run-down hotel or boarding house.

flop-py (flöp'pē) adj. flop-pi-er, flop-pi-est. Tending to flop; loose and flexible. See Synonyms at limp. — n. pl. flop-pies. Computer Science. A floppy disk. —flop/pi-ly adv. —flop/pi-ness n.

floppy disk (flöp'pē dīsk) n. Computer Science. A flexible plastic disk coated with magnetic material and covered by a protective jacket, used primarily in microcomputers and minicomputers to store data magnetically. Also called diskette flo-ra (flôr'ə, flôr'ə) n. pl. flo-ras or flo-rae (flôr'ē', flôr'ē'). 1. Plants considered as a group, especially the plants of a particular country, region, or time. 2. A treatise describing the plants of a region or time. 3. The bacteria and other microorganisms that normally inhabit a bodily organ or part: intestinal flora.

[From FLORA.]

Flo-ra (flôr'ə, flôr'ə) n. Roman Mythology. The goddess of flowers. [Latin Flōra, from flōs, flōr-, flower. See bhel⁻³ in Appendix.]

flo-rae (flôr'ē', flôr'ē') n. A plural of flora.

flo-ral (flôr'al, flôr'-) adj. Of, relating to, or suggestive of a flower: a fabric with a floral pattern. —flo/ral-ly adv.

floral cup (flôr'al kŭp) n. A tubular or cup-shaped structure of a flower, bearing on its rim the sepals, petals, and stamens.

floral envelope (flôr'al ěn'və-lōp') n. The perianth of a flower.

Flo-ral Park (flôr'al pārk, flôr'-) A village of southeast New York on western Long Island, a residential suburb of New York City. Population, 15,947.

floral tube (flôr'al tōōb) n. A tube usually formed by the basal fusion of the perianth and stamens, as in the flowers of the daffodil.

flo-re-at-ed (flôr'ē-ā'tīd, flôr'-) adj. Variant of floriated.

Flor-ence (flôr'əns, flôr'-) 1. or Also Fi-ren-ze (fē-rĕn'dzĕ) A city of central Italy on the Arno River east of Pisa. Originally an Etruscan settlement, then a Roman town, Florence was a powerful city-state under the Medici family during the Italian Renaissance, with a brilliant artistic flowering led by Giotto, Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Dante, and Raphael. Population, 453,293. 2. A city of northwest Alabama on the Tennessee River west-northwest of Decatur. Founded in 1818, it is highly industrialized. Population, 36,426. 3. An unincorporated community of southern California, a residential and manufacturing suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 38,000. 4. A city of north-central Kentucky southwest of Cincinnati, Ohio, in a farming region. Population, 18,624. 5. A city of northeast South Carolina east-northeast of Columbia. It has been a transportation center since the Civil War. Population, 29,813.

Florence fennel (flôr'əns fĕn'əl) n. See finocchio.

Flo-ren-ci-o Va-re-la (flə-rĕn'sĕ-ō və-rĕl'ə, flô-rĕn'syô vā-rĕ'lă) A city of eastern Argentina, an industrial suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 165,842.

Flo-ren-tine (flôr'an-tĕn', -tĭn', flŏr'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to Florence, Italy. 2. Of or relating to the style of art and architecture that flourished in Florence, Italy, during the Renaissance. 3. Often florentine. Having or characterizing a dull chased or rubbed finish. Used of gold. 4. Prepared, cooked, or served with spinach. — n. A native or inhabitant of Florence, Italy. [Latin Flōrentīnus, from Flōrentia, Florence, Italy.]

Flo-res (flôr'ĭs, -ĕz, flŏr'-) An island of eastern Indonesia in the Lesser Sundas on the Flores Sea, between the eastern end of the Java Sea and the western end of the Banda Sea south of Sulawesi. The island came under Dutch influence in the 17th century, although the Portuguese held the eastern end until 1851.

Flo-res (flôr'rĕs), Juan José. 1800-1864. Ecuadorian general and politician who was active in his country's struggle for independence. He was appointed Ecuador's first president in 1830 and served two terms (1830-1835 and 1839-1845).

flo-res-cence (flô-rĕs'əns, flə-) n. A condition, time, or period of flowering. See Synonyms at bloom¹. [New Latin flōrĕscentia, from Latin flōrĕscĕns, flōrĕs-cent- present participle of flōrĕscere inchoative of flōrĕre, to flower, bloom. See FLOURISH.] — flo-res'cent adj.

flo-ret (flôr'ĭt, flŏr'-) n. A small or reduced flower, especially one of the grasses and composite plants, such as a daisy. [Middle English flouret, from Old French florete, diminutive of flor, flower. See FLOWER.]

Flo-rey (flôr'ĕ, flŏr'ĕ), Sir Howard Walter Baron Florey of Adelaide. 1898-1968. Australian-born British pathologist. He shared a 1945 Nobel Prize for isolating and purifying penicillin, discovered in 1928 by Sir Alexander Fleming.

Flo-ri-a-nô-po-lis (flôr'ĕ-ə-nŏp'ə-lĭs, flŏr-, flô'ryə-nô'pŏ-lĕs') A city of southeast Brazil on an island just off the coast. It is a port linked to the mainland by a suspension bridge. Population, 153,652.

flo-ri-at-ed also flo-re-at-ed (flôr'ĕ-ā'tĭd, flŏr'-) adj. Decorated with floral designs. [From Latin flōs, flŏr-, flower. See bhel⁻³ in Appendix.]

flo-ri-bun-da (flôr'ə-bŭn'də, flŏr'-) n. Any of several hybrid roses bearing numerous single or double flowers. [New Latin, feminine of floribundus, blossoming freely, from Latin flōs, flŏr-, flower. See FLOWER.]

flo-ri-cane (flôr'ĭ-kān', flŏr'-) n. The flowering and fruiting stem of a biennial plant, especially of a bramble. [Latin flōs, flŏr-, flower; see FLOWER + CANE.]

flo-ri-cul-ture (flôr'ĭ-kŭl'chər, flŏr'-) n. The cultivation of flowering and ornamental plants. [Latin flōs, flŏr-, flower; see FLOWER + CULTURE.]

— flo'ri-cul'tur-al adj. — flo'ri-cul'tur-al-ly adv. — flo'ri-cul'tur-ist n.

flor-id (flôr'îd, flôr'-) adj. 1. Flushed with rosy color; ruddy. 2. Very ornate; flowery: a florid prose style. See Synonyms at ornate. 3. Archaic. Healthy.

4. Obsolete. Abounding in or covered with flowers. [French floride, from Latin flōridus, from flōs, flōr-, flower. See bhel-³ in Appendix.] —flo-rid'i-ty (flə-rîd'î-tē, flô-), flor'id-ness n. —flor'id-ly adv.

Flor-i-da (flôr'î-də, flôr'-) Abbr. FL, Fla. A state of the southeast United States bordering on the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. It was admitted as the 27th state in 1845. The peninsula was first discovered by Juan Ponce de León in 1513 and became the center of a Spanish settlement that included the southeast part of the present-day United States. Spain finally ceded the area in 1819. Tallahassee is the capital and Jacksonville the largest city. Population, 13,003,362.

—Flo-rid'i-an (flə-rîd'î-ən), Flor'i-dan (-îd-n) adj. & n.

Florida, Straits of. Also Florida Strait. A sea passage between Cuba and the Florida Keys, linking the Gulf of Mexico with the Atlantic Ocean.

Florida arrowroot (flôr'î-də ăr'ō-rōōt') n. Coontie.

Florida Keys (flôr'î-də kēz) A chain of small coral and limestone islands and reefs extending about 241 km (150 mi) in a southwestward arc from south of Miami to Key West. The Keys are popular tourist resorts noted for their fishing and tropical vegetation.

Florida Strait (flôr'î-də strāt) See Straits of Florida.

flo-rid-e-an starch (flə-rîd'î-ən stārch) n. Botany. The storage carbohydrate of the red algae. [From New Latin Florideae, subclass of red algae, from Latin flōridus, flowery. See FLORID.]

flo-rif-er-ous (flô-rîf'ər-əs) adj. Bearing flowers. [From Latin flōrifer, bearing flowers : flōs, flōr-, flower; see FLOWER + -fer, -fer.] —flo-rif'er-ous-ly adv. —flo-rif'er-ous-ness n.

flor-i-gen (flôr'ə-jən, flôr'-) n. A plant hormone that promotes flowering. [Latin flōs, flōr-, flower; see bhel-³ in Appendix + -GEN.] —flor'i-gen'ic (-jĕn'îk) adj.

flor-in (flôr'în, flôr'-) n. Abbr. fl. 1. A guilder. 2. A British coin worth two shillings. 3. a. A gold coin first issued at Florence, Italy, in 1252. b. Any of several gold coins similar to the Florentine florin, formerly used in Europe. [Middle English, from Old French, from Old Italian fiorino, from fiore, flower (from the lily on the coins), from Latin flōs, flōr-, flower. See bhel-³ in Appendix.]

Flor-in (flôr'în, flôr'-) A community of central California, a suburb of Sacramento. Population, 24,330.

Flo-ri-o (flôr'î-ō', flôr'-), John. 1553?-1625. English lexicographer noted for his Italian-English dictionary (1598) and his translations of Montaigne's essays (1603).

Flor-is-sant (flôr'ī-sənt, flôr'-) A city of eastern Missouri, a residential suburb of St. Louis. It was settled by French farmers and fur trappers in the 1760's. Population, 51,206.

flo-rist (flôr'rist, flôr'-, flör'-) n. One in the business of raising or selling flowers and ornamental plants. [Latin flōs, flōr-, flower; see bhel-3 in Appendix + -IST.] —flo'rist-ry n.

flo-rist-ics (flô-ris'tiks, flô-) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the number, distribution, and relationships of plant species in one or more areas.

-florous suff. Having a specified kind or number of flowers: tubuliflorous.

[From Late Latin -flōrus, from Latin flōs, flōr-, flower. See bhel-3 in Appendix.]

flo-ru-it (flôr'yōō-īt, -ōō-, flôr'-, flör'-) n. Abbr. fl. The period during which a person, school, or movement was most active or flourishing. [Latin flōruit, third person sing. perfect tense of flōrēre, to flourish. See FLOURISH.]

Flo-ry (flôr'ē, flôr'ē), Paul John. 1910-1985. American chemist. He won a 1974 Nobel Prize for developing methods of studying long-chain molecules.

floss (flōs, flōs) n. 1. Dental floss. 2. Short or waste silk fibers, especially from the outer surface of the cocoon of a silkworm. 3. Soft, loosely twisted thread, as of silk or cotton, used in embroidery. 4. A downy or silky fibrous substance, such as corn silk or silk cotton. — v. flossed, floss-ing, floss-es. — v. tr. To clean between (teeth) with dental floss. — v. intr. To use dental floss. [Perhaps alteration of French floche, tuft of wool, from Old French floc, floche, from Latin floccus.] —floss'er n.

floss-y (flô'sē, flōs'ē) adj. floss-i-er, floss-i-est. 1. Superficially stylish; slick: wrote flossy articles about the lifestyles of the rich. 2. Of, relating to, or resembling floss. —floss'i-ly adv. —floss'i-ness n.

flo-tage also float-age (flō-tij) n. 1. See flotation (n., sense 1). 2. Floating objects or material; flotsam.

flo-ta-tion also float-a-tion (flō-tā'shən) n. 1. The act, process, or condition of floating. Also called flotage 2. The act or an instance of launching or initiating, especially the floating of stocks or bonds or the financing of a business venture by floating stocks or bonds. 3. The process of separating different materials, especially minerals, by agitating a pulverized mixture of the materials with water, oil, and chemicals. Differential wetting of the suspended particles causes unwetted particles to be carried by air bubbles to the surface for collection. 4. The capability, especially of a vehicle tread or tire, to remain on top of a soft surface, such as sand, wet ground, or snow.

flotation device (flō-tā'shən dī-vīs') n. A life preserver.

flo-til-la (flō-tīl'ə) n. 1. a. A small fleet. b. A fleet of small craft. 2. A U.S. Navy organizational unit of two or more squadrons of small warships.

3. Informal. A group of vehicles owned or operated as a unit: "Now [the limousine service] has a flotilla of about 150 cars, more than 200 uniformed chauffeurs"

(People). [Spanish, diminutive of flota, fleet, from Old French flote, from Old Norse floti. See pleu- in Appendix.]

flot·sam (flõt'səm) n. 1. a. Wreckage or cargo that remains afloat after a ship has sunk. b. Floating refuse or debris. 2. Discarded odds and ends. 3. Vagrant, usually destitute people. [Anglo-Norman floteson, from Old French floter, to float, of Germanic origin. See pleu- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Flotsam, in maritime law, applies to wreckage or cargo left floating on the sea after a shipwreck. Jetsam applies to cargo or equipment thrown overboard (jettisoned) from a ship in distress and either sunk or washed ashore. The common phrase flotsam and jetsam is now used loosely to describe any objects found floating or washed ashore.

flounce¹ (flouns) n. A strip of decorative, usually gathered or pleated material attached by one edge, as on a garment or curtain. — v. tr. flounced, flounc-ing, flounc-es. To trim with a strip or strips of gathered or pleated material. [Alteration of frounce, from Middle English, pleat, from Old French fronce, of Germanic origin. See sker-² in Appendix.]

flounce² (flouns) v. intr. flounced, flounc-ing, flounc-es. 1. a. To move in a lively or bouncy manner: The children flounced around the room in their costumes. b. To move with exaggerated or affected motions: flounced petulantly out of the house. 2. To move clumsily; flounder. — n. The act or motion of flouncing. [Possibly of Scandinavian origin.]

flounc-ing (floun'sing) n. 1. Material used to make flounces. 2. A flounce or an arrangement of flounces, as on a curtain.

floun·der¹ (floun'dər) v. intr. floun-dered, floun-der-ing, floun-ders.

1. To make clumsy attempts to move or regain one's balance. 2. To move or act clumsily and in confusion. See Synonyms at blunder. See Usage Note at founder¹.

— n. The act of floundering. [Probably alteration of FOUNDER¹.]

floun·der² (floun'dər) n. pl. flounder or floun-ders. Any of various marine flatfishes of the families Bothidae and Pleuronectidae, which include important food fishes. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman floundre, of Scandinavian origin. See plat- in Appendix.]

flour (flour) n. 1. A fine, powdery foodstuff obtained by grinding and sifting the meal of a grain, especially wheat, used chiefly in baking. 2. Any of various similar finely ground or powdered foodstuffs, as of cassava, fish, or bananas.

3. A soft, fine powder. — v. tr. floured, flour-ing, flours. 1. To cover or coat with flour. 2. To make into flour. [Middle English. See FLOWER.] — flour'y adj.

flour-ish (flûr'ish, flûr'-) v. flour-ished, flour-ish-ing, flour-ish-es. — v. intr. 1. To grow well or luxuriantly; thrive: The crops flourished in the rich bottom-land. 2. To do or fare well; prosper: “No village on the railroad failed to flourish” (John Kenneth Galbraith). 3. To be in a period of highest productivity, excellence, or influence: an anonymous poet who flourished in the tenth century; painted when Impressionism was flourishing. 4. To make bold, sweeping movements: The banner flourished in the wind. — v. tr. To wield, wave, or exhibit dramatically. — n. 1. A dramatic or stylish movement, as of waving or brandishing: “A few... musicians embellish their performance with a flourish of the fingers” (Frederick D. Bennett). 2. An embellishment or ornamentation: signed her name with a distinctive flourish; a long speech with many rhetorical flourishes. 3. An ostentatious act or gesture: a flourish of generosity. 4. Music. A showy or ceremonious passage, such as a fanfare. [Middle English florishen, from Old French florir, floriss-, from Vulgar Latin flōrīre*, from Latin flōrēre, from flōs, flōr-, flower. See bhel-³ in Appendix.] —flour/'ish-er n.

SYNONYMS: flourish, brandish, wave. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to swing back and forth boldly and dramatically”: flourished her newly signed contract; brandish a sword; waving a baton.

flout (flout) v. flout-ed, flout-ing, flouts. — v. tr. To show contempt for; scorn: flout a law; behavior that flouted convention. See Usage Note at flaunt. — v. intr. To be scornful. — n. A contemptuous action or remark; an insult. [Perhaps from Middle English flouten, to play the flute, from Old French flauter, from flaute, flute. See FLUTE.] —flout/'er n. —flout/'ing-ly adv.

flow (flō) v. flowed, flow-ing, flows. — v. intr. 1. a. To move or run smoothly with unbroken continuity, as in the manner characteristic of a fluid. b. To issue in a stream; pour forth: Sap flowed from the gash in the tree. 2. To circulate, as the blood in the body. 3. To move with a continual shifting of the component particles: wheat flowing into the bin; traffic flowing through the tunnel. 4. To proceed steadily and easily: The preparations flowed smoothly. 5. To exhibit a smooth or graceful continuity: The cadence of the poem flowed gracefully. 6. To hang loosely and gracefully: The cape flowed from his shoulders. 7. To rise. Used of the tide. 8. To arise; derive: Several conclusions flow from this hypothesis. 9. a. To abound or teem: coffers flowing with treasure. b. To stream copiously; flood: Contributions flowed in from all parts of the country. 10. To menstruate. 11. To undergo plastic deformation without cracking or breaking. Used of rocks, metals, or minerals. — v. tr. 1. To release as a flow: trees flowing thin sap. 2. To cause to flow: “One of the real keys to success is developing a system where you can flow traffic to yourselves” (Marc Klee). — n. 1. a. The act of flowing. b. The smooth motion characteristic of fluids. 2. a. A stream or current. b. A flood or an overflow. c. A residual mass that has stopped flowing: a hardened lava flow. 3. a. A continuous output or outpouring: a flow of ideas; produced a steady flow of articles and stories. b. A continuous movement or circulation: the flow of traffic; a flow of paperwork across his desk. 4. The amount that flows in a given period of time. 5. The rising of the tide. 6. Continuity and smoothness of appearance. 7. A general movement or tendency: As the lone dissenter in the group, she was going against the flow of opinion. 8. The sequence in which operations are performed. 9. An apparent ease or effortlessness of performance: “An athlete must learn to forget the details of his or her training to achieve the instinctive sense of flow that characterizes a champion” (Frederick Turner). 10. Menstrual discharge. [Middle English flouen, from Old English flōwan. See pleu- in Appendix.] —flow'ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: flow, current, flood, flux, rush, stream, tide. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something suggestive of running water”: a flow of thought; the current of history; a flood of ideas; a flux of words; a rush of sympathy; a stream of complaints; a tide of immigration. See also Synonyms at stem¹ flow-age (flō'āj) n. 1. The act of flowing or overflowing. 2. a. The state of being flooded. b. A body of water, such as a lake or reservoir, formed by usually deliberate flooding. 3. An outflow or overflow. 4. The gradual plastic deformation of a solid body, as by heat.

flow chart also flow-chart (flō'chärt') n. A schematic representation of a sequence of operations, as in a manufacturing process or computer program. Also called flow diagram, flow sheet.

flow-chart (flō'chärt') v. tr. flow--chart-ed, flow--chart-ing, flow--charts. To design a flow chart for: “Carson put away the papers on which he had been flow-charting a system... for a prospering little manufacturer of electric reducing aids” (John Updike). —flow'-chart'ing n.

flow diagram (flō dī'ə-grām') n. See flow chart.

flow-er (flou'ər) n. 1. a. The reproductive structure of some seed-bearing plants, characteristically having either specialized male or female organs or both male and female organs, such as stamens and a pistil, enclosed in an outer envelope of petals and sepals. b. Such a structure having showy or colorful parts; a blossom. 2. A plant that is cultivated or appreciated for its blossoms. 3. The condition or a time of having developed flowers: The azaleas were in full flower. 4. Something, such as an ornament or a figure of speech, that resembles a flower in shape, fineness, or attractiveness. 5. The period of highest development; the peak. See Synonyms at bloom¹. 6. The highest example or best representative: the flower of our generation. 7. A natural development or outgrowth: “His attitude was simply a flower of his general good nature” (Henry James). 8. flowers. Chemistry. A fine powder produced by condensation or sublimation of a compound. — v. flow-ered, flow-er-ing, flow-ers. — v. intr. 1. To produce a flower or flowers; blossom. 2. To develop naturally or fully; mature: His artistic talents flowered early. — v. tr. To decorate with flowers or with a floral pattern. [Middle English flour, flower, best of anything, flour, from Old French flor, from Latin flōs, flōr-. See bhel³ in Appendix.] —flow'er-er n. —flow'er-less adj.

flow·er·age (flou'ər-ĭj) n. 1. Flowers considered as a group. 2. The process or state of flowering.

flower bud (flou'ər būd) n. A bud that will develop into a flower.

flower bug (flou'ər bŭg) n. Any of a group of bugs in the family Anthocoridae, which feed on insects that infest flowers.

flower child (flou'ər chĭld) n. Informal. A hippie, especially one advocating universal peace and love as antidotes to social or political ills. [From the custom of carrying or wearing flowers to symbolize peace and love.] —flow'er-child' (flou'ər-chĭld') adj.

flow·er·et (flou'ər-ĭt) n. A small flower; a floret.

flower girl (flou'ər gŭrl) n. A young girl who carries flowers in a procession, especially at a wedding.

flower head (flou'ər hĕd) n. 1. Botany. A dense, short, compact cluster of sessile flowers, as of composite plants or clover. Also called capitulum 2. A very dense grouping of flower buds, as in broccoli and cauliflower.

flow·er·ing dogwood (flou'ər-ĭng dōg'wōd') n. See dogwood.

flowering maple (flou'ər-ĭng mā'pəl) n. Any of various tropical plants of the genus Abutilon, having lobed leaves resembling those of the maple and variously colored flowers. Also called abutilon, Indian mallow.

flowering plant (flou'ər-ĭng plānt) n. A plant that produces flowers and fruit; an angiosperm.

flowering quince (flou'ər-ĭng kwĭns) n. Any of several shrubs of the genus Chaenomeles, native to Asia and having spiny branches and red or pink flowers.

flowering wintergreen (flou'ər-ĭng wĭn'tər-grĕn') n. See fringed polygala.

flower people (flou'ər pĕ'pəl) pl.n. Informal. Hippies, especially ones advocating universal peace and love.

flow·er·pot (flou'ər-pōt') n. A pot in which plants are grown.

flower power (flou'ər pou'ər) n. Informal. A movement among hippies and especially flower people in the 1960's and 1970's, expressing countercultural or antiestablishment beliefs and ideals.

flow·er·y (flou'ər-rĕ) adj. flow·er·i·er, flow·er·i·est. 1. Of, relating to, or suggestive of flowers: a flowery perfume. 2. Abounding in or covered with flowers. 3. Full of ornate or grandiloquent expressions; highly embellished: a flowery speech. —flow'er-i-ness n.

flow meter (flō mĕ'tər) n. An instrument for monitoring, measuring, or recording the rate of flow, pressure, or discharge of a fluid, as of a gaseous fuel.

flown¹ (flōn) v. Past participle of fly¹.

flown² (flōn) adj. Archaic. Filled to excess. [Obsolete, past participle of FLOW.]

flow sheet (flō shēt) n. See flow chart.

flow-stone (flō'stōn') n. A layered deposit of calcium carbonate on rock where water has flowed or dripped, as on the walls of a cave.

fl oz or fl. oz. abbr. Fluid ounce.

flu (flō) n. Informal. Influenza. [Short for INFLUENZA.]

flub (flüb) Informal. v. tr. flubbed, flub-bing, flubs. To botch; bungle. — n. The act or an instance of botching or bungling: “Their literature leans toward a comedy of small social flubs and withered chastity” (James Wolcott). [Origin unknown.] — flub'ber n.

flub-dub (flüb'düb') n. Informal. Pretentious nonsense; bunkum. [Origin unknown.]

fluc-tu-ate (flük'chō-āt') v. fluc-tu-at-ed, fluc-tu-at-ing, fluc-tu-ates.

— v. intr. 1. To vary irregularly. See Synonyms at swing. 2. To rise and fall in or as if in waves; undulate. — v. tr. To cause to rise and fall or vary irregularly. [Latin fluctuāre, fluctuāt-, from fluctus, a flowing, from past participle of fluere, fluc-, to flow. See bhleu- in Appendix.] — fluc'tu-ant (-ənt) adj.

— fluc'tu-a'tion n.

flue¹ (flō) n. 1. A pipe, tube, or channel for conveying hot air, gas, steam, or smoke, as from a furnace or fireplace to a chimney. 2. Music. a. An organ pipe sounded by means of a current of air striking a lip in the side of the pipe and causing the air within to vibrate. Also called labial. b. The lipped opening in such a pipe. [Origin unknown.]

flue² (flō) n. A fishing net. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch vlūwe. See pleu- in Appendix.]

flue-gel-horn (flō'gəl-hōrn', flü'-) n. Music. Variant of flügelhorn.

flu-ent (flō'ənt) adj. 1. a. Able to express oneself readily and effortlessly: a fluent speaker; fluent in three languages. b. Flowing effortlessly; polished: speaks fluent Russian; gave a fluent performance of the sonata. 2. Flowing or moving smoothly; graceful: a yacht with long, fluent curves. 3. Flowing or capable of flowing; fluid. [Latin fluēns, fluent- present participle of fluere, to flow. See bhleu- in Appendix.] — flu'en-cy n. — flu'ent-ly adv.

flue pipe (flō pīp) n. Music. An organ pipe with a lipped opening; a flue.

flu-er-ic (flō-ēr'ik) adj. Fluidic. [Latin fluere, to flow; see bhleu- in Appendix + -IC.]

flu-er-ics (flō-ēr'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Fluidics.

flue stop (flō stōp) n. Music. An organ stop controlling a set of flue pipes.

fluff (flūf) n. 1. Light down or fuzz, as on a young bird or on a dandelion or milkweed seed. 2. Something having a very light, soft, or frothy consistency or appearance: a fluff of meringue; a fluff of cloud. 3. Something of little substance or consequence, especially: a. Light or superficial entertainment: The movie was just another bit of fluff from Hollywood. b. Inflated or padded material: The report was mostly fluff, with little new information. 4. Informal. An error, especially in the delivery of lines, as by an actor or announcer. — v. fluffed, fluff-ing, fluffs. — v. tr. 1. To make fluffy: fluff a pillow; a squirrel fluffing out its tail. 2. Informal. a. To ruin or mar by a mistake or blunder: They fluffed their chance to participate in the playoffs by losing their last three games. b. To forget or botch (one's lines). — v. intr. 1. To become fluffy. 2. Informal. To make an error, especially to forget or botch one's lines. [Origin unknown.]

fluff-y (flŭf'ē) adj. fluff-i-er, fluff-i-est. 1. a. Of, relating to, or resembling fluff. b. Covered with fluff. 2. Light and airy; soft: fluffy curls; a fluffy soufflé. 3. a. Light or frivolous: a fluffy musical comedy. b. Lacking depth or precision; fuzzy: hazy, fluffy thinking that only confused the matter. — fluff'i-ly adv. — fluff'i-ness n.

flü-gel-horn or flue-gel-horn (flōō'gəl-hôrn', flü'-) n. Music. A bugle with valves, similar to the cornet but having a wider bore. [German : Flügel, flank (from its use to summon flanks during a battle) (from Middle High German vliigel, wing, flank); see pleu- in Appendix + Horn, horn (from Middle High German, from Old High German); see ker-¹ in Appendix.] — flü-gel-horn'ist n.

flu-id (flōō'īd) n. Abbr. fl, fl. A continuous, amorphous substance whose molecules move freely past one another and that has the tendency to assume the shape of its container; a liquid or gas. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a fluid. 2. Readily reshaped; pliable. 3. Smooth and flowing; graceful: the fluid motion of a cat. 4. a. Changing or tending to change; variable: a fluid situation fraught with uncertainty. b. Characterized by or allowing social mobility: "Everyone seems to... share in an intricate set of lore from the past and present whose deliciousness somehow would be ruined if Britain were a truly fluid society" (Nicholas Lemann). 5. Convertible into cash: fluid assets. [From Middle English, flowing, from Old French fluide, from Latin fluidus, from fluere, to flow. See bhleu- in Appendix.] — flu-id'i-ty (-īd'ī-tē), flu'id-ness n. — flu'id-ly adv.

fluid clutch (flōō'īd klŭch) n. See fluid drive.

fluid dram (flōō'īd drām) n. Abbr. fl dr A unit of volume or capacity in the apothecary system, equal to 8 of a fluid ounce (3.70 milliliters).

fluid drive (flōō'īd drīv) n. An automotive transmission coupling that provides a smooth start, consisting of two separate turbines that rotate on the same axis in a surrounding liquid, such that the turbine connected to the engine drives the turbine connected to the transmission. Also called fluid clutch fluid dynamics (flōō'īd dī-nām'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of applied science that is concerned with the movement of gases and liquids.

flu-id-ex-tract (flōō'īd-ĕk'strākt') n. A concentrated alcohol solution of a vegetable drug of such strength that each milliliter contains the equivalent of one gram of the dry form of the drug.

flu·id·ic (flōō-īd'īk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a fluid.

2. Relating to or controlled by fluidics.

flu·id·ics (flōō-īd'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The technology of using the flows and pressures of fluids in sensing, control, and information-processing systems with no moving parts.

flu·id·ize (flōō'ī-dīz') v. tr. flu·id·ized, flu·id·iz·ing, flu·id·iz·es. 1. To make fluid. 2. To pulverize (a solid) so finely that it takes on most of the properties of a fluid. —flu'īd·i·za'tion (-ī-dī-zā'shən) n.

fluid mechanics (flōō'īd mī-kān'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of mechanics that is concerned with the properties of gases and liquids.

fluid ounce (flōō'īd ouns) n. Abbr. fl oz, fl. oz. 1. A unit of volume or capacity in the U.S. Customary System, used in liquid measure, equal to 29.57 milliliters (1.804 cubic inches). 2. A unit of volume or capacity in the British Imperial System, used in liquid and dry measure, equal to 28.41 milliliters (1.734 cubic inches).

flake¹ (flōōk) n. 1. Any of various flatfishes, especially a flounder of the genus Paralichthys. 2. See trematode. [Middle English, from Old English flōc. See plāk-¹ in Appendix.]

flake² (flōōk) n. 1. Nautical. The triangular blade at the end of an arm of an anchor, designed to catch in the ground. 2. A barb or barbed head, as on an arrow or a harpoon. 3. Either of the two horizontally flattened divisions of the tail of a whale. [Possibly from FLUKE¹.]

flake³ (flōōk) n. 1. A stroke of good luck. 2. A chance occurrence; an accident. 3. Games. An accidentally good or successful stroke in billiards or pool. [Origin unknown.]

fluk·y also fluk·ey (flōō'kē) adj. fluk·i·er, fluk·i·est. 1. Resulting from or depending on mere chance. 2. Constantly shifting; uncertain: a fluky wind.

[From FLUKE³.] —fluk'i·ly adv. —fluk'i·ness n.

flume (flōōm) n. 1. A narrow gorge, usually with a stream flowing through it. 2. An open artificial channel or chute carrying a stream of water, as for furnishing power or conveying logs. [Middle English flum, river, from Old French, from Latin flūmen, from fluere, to flow. See bhleu- in Appendix.]

flum·mer·y (flŭm'ə-rē) n. pl. flum·mer·ies. 1. Meaningless or deceptive language; humbug. 2. a. Any of several soft, sweet, bland foods, such as custard. b. A sweet, gelatinous pudding made by straining boiled oatmeal or flour. [Welsh llymru, soft jelly from sour oatmeal.]

flum·mox (flŭm'əks) v. tr. flum·moxed, flum·mox·ing, flum·mox·es. Informal. To confuse; perplex. [Probably of English dialectal origin.]

flung (flŭng) v. Past tense and past participle of fling.

flunk (flŭngk) Informal. v. flunked, flunk·ing, flunks. — v. intr. To fail, especially in a course or an examination. — v. tr. 1. To fail (an examination or course). 2. To give a failing grade to. — n. 1. The act or an instance of flunking. 2. A failing grade. — phrasal verb. flunk out. To expel or be expelled from a school or course because of work that does not meet required standards. [Origin unknown.] — flunk'er n.

flun-key (flŭng'kē) n. Variant of flunky.

flunk-out (flŭng'out') n. Informal. One expelled from a school for failure to meet the required standards.

flun-ky also flun-key (flŭng'kē) n. pl. flun-kies also flun-keys. 1. A person of slavish or unquestioning obedience; a lackey. 2. One who does menial or trivial work; a drudge. 3. A liveried manservant. [Scots, perhaps from FLANKER, an attendant at one's flank.] — flun/ky-ism n.

WORD HISTORY: The word flunky has come into Standard English from Scots, in which the word meant “liveried manservant, footman,” coming at least by the 19th century to be a term of contempt. The word is first recorded and defined in a work about Scots published in 1782. The definition states that a flun-ky is “literally a sidesman or attendant at your flank,” which gives support to the suggestion that flunky is a derivative and alteration of flanker, “one who stands at a person's flank.”

flu-or (flōō'ôr', -ər) n. See fluorite. [New Latin, mineral belonging to a group used as fluxes, from Latin, a flowing, from fluere, to flow. See bhleu- in Appendix.]

fluor- pref. Variant of fluoro-.

fluo-resce (flōō-rēs', flô-, flō-) v. intr. fluo-resced, fluo-rescing, fluo-resces. To undergo, produce, or show fluorescence. [Back-formation from FLUORESCENCE.] — fluo-resc'er n.

fluo-res-ce-in (flōō-rēs'ē-ĭn, flô-, flō-) n. An orange-red compound, $C_{20}H_{12}O_5$, that exhibits intense fluorescence in alkaline solution and is used in medicine, in oceanography, and as a textile dye.

fluo-res-cence (flōō-rēs'əns, flô-, flō-) n. 1. The emission of electromagnetic radiation, especially of visible light, stimulated in a substance by the absorption of incident radiation and persisting only as long as the stimulating radiation is continued. 2. The property of emitting such radiation. 3. The radiation so emitted. [FLUOR(SPAR) + -ESCENCE.]

fluo-res-cent (flōō-rēs'ənt, flô-, flō-) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to fluorescence.

b. Exhibiting or produced by fluorescence: fluorescent plankton; fluorescent light.

2. Glowing as if with fluorescence; vivid: bright fluorescent colors. — n. A fluorescent lamp.

fluorescent lamp (flōō-rēs'ənt lămp) n. A lamp that produces visible light by fluorescence, especially a glass tube whose inner wall is coated with a material that fluoresces when an electrical current causes a vapor within the tube to discharge electrons.

fluor-i-date (flōōr'ī-dāt', flôr'-, flōr'-) v. tr. fluor-i-dat-ed, fluor-i-dat-ing, fluor-i-dates. To add a fluorine compound to (a drinking water supply, for example) for the purpose of reducing tooth decay.

fluor-i-da-tion (flōōr'ī-dā'shən, flôr'-, flōr'-) n. The addition of a fluorine compound to a drinking water supply for the purpose of reducing tooth decay.

fluor-ide (flōōr'id', flôr'-, flōr'-) n. A binary compound of fluorine with another element. [FLUOR(INE) + -IDE.]

fluor-i-na-tion (flōōr'ī-nā'shən, flôr'-, flōr'-) n. A chemical reaction that introduces fluorine into a compound.

fluor-ine (flōōr'ēn', -īn, flôr'-, flōr'-) n. Symbol F A pale-yellow, highly corrosive, poisonous, gaseous halogen element, the most electronegative and most reactive of all the elements, used in a wide variety of industrially important compounds. Atomic number 9; atomic weight 18.9984; freezing point -219.62°C ; melting point -223°C ; boiling point -188.14°C ; specific gravity of liquid 1.108 (at boiling point); valence 1.

fluor-ite (flōōr'īt', flôr'-, flōr'-) n. A mineral, essentially CaF_2 , that is often fluorescent in ultraviolet light and occurs in light green, blue, yellow, brown, and colorless forms. Also called fluor, fluorspar.

fluoro- or fluor- pref. 1. Fluorine: fluorosis. 2. Fluorescence: fluoroscope. [From FLUORINE, and from FLUOR.]

fluor-o-car-bon (flōōr'ō-kār'bən, flôr'-, flōr'-) n. An inert liquid or gaseous halocarbon compound in which fluorine replaces some or all hydrogen molecules, used as aerosol propellants, refrigerants, solvents, and lubricants and in making plastics and resins.

fluor-o-chem-i-cal (flōōr'ō-kēm'ī-kəl, flôr'-, flōr'-) n. A chemical compound containing fluorine, especially a fluorocarbon.

fluor-o-chrome (flōōr'ə-krōm', flôr'-, flōr'-) n. Any of a group of fluorescent dyes used to stain biological specimens.

fluo-rog-ra-phy (flōō-rōg'rə-fē, flō-, flō-) n. See photofluorography.

fluo-rom-e-ter (flōō-rōm'ī-tər, flō-, flō-) n. An instrument for detecting and measuring fluorescence. —fluo-rom'e-try n.

fluor-o-scope (flōōr'ə-skōp', flôr'-, flōr'-) n. A device equipped with a fluorescent screen on which the internal structures of an optically opaque object, such as the human body, may be continuously viewed as shadowy images formed by the differential transmission of x-rays through the object. Also called roentgenoscope — v. tr. fluor-o-scop-ed, fluor-o-scop-ing, fluor-o-scopes. To examine the interior of (an object) with a fluoroscope. —fluor'o-scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj. —fluor'o-scop'i-cal-ly adv.

flu·ros·co·py (flō-rōs'kə-pē, flô-, flō-) n. pl. flu·ros·co·pies. Examination by means of a fluoroscope. — flu·ros'co·pist n.

flu·ro·sis (flō-rō'sis, flô-, flō-) n. An abnormal condition caused by excessive intake of fluorine, as from fluoridated drinking water, characterized chiefly by mottling of the teeth. — flu·rot'ic (-rōt'ik) adj.

fluor·o·u·ra·cil (flōr'ō-yōor'ə-sil, flôr'-, flōr'-) n. An antineoplastic agent, $C_4H_3FN_2O_2$, used especially in the treatment of cancers of the skin, breast, and digestive system.

flu·or·spar (flō'ər-spär', flōor'spär') n. See fluorite.

flu·phen·a·zine (flō-fēn'ə-zēn') n. A tranquilizing drug, $C_{22}H_{26}F_3N_3OS$, used especially in the form of its hydrochloride in psychotherapy. [FLU(ORO)- + PHENAZINE.]

flu·raz·e·pam (flō-rāz'ə-pām') n. A mild hypnotic drug, $C_{21}H_{23}ClFN_3O$, used especially in the form of its hydrochloride in the treatment of insomnia. [FLU(O)R(O)- + (DI)AZEPAM.]

flur·ry (flûr'ē, flūr'ē) n. pl. flur·ries. 1. A brief, light snowfall. 2. a. A sudden gust of wind. b. A stirring mass, as of leaves or dust; a shower. 3. A sudden burst or commotion; a stir: a flurry of interest in the new product; a flurry of activity when the plane landed. 4. A short period of active trading, as on a stock exchange. — v. flur·ried, flur·ry·ing, flur·ries. — v. tr. To agitate, stir, or confuse. — v. intr. To move or come down in a flurry. [Perhaps from flurr, to scatter.]

flush¹ (flüş) v. flushed, flush·ing, flush·es. — v. intr. 1. To turn red, as from fever, embarrassment, or strong emotion; blush. 2. To glow, especially with a reddish color: The sky flushed pink at dawn. 3. To flow suddenly and abundantly, as from containment; flood. 4. To be emptied or cleaned by a rapid flow of water, as a toilet. — v. tr. 1. To cause to redden or glow. 2. To excite or elate: The negotiators were flushed with the success of their final meeting. 3. a. To clean, rinse, or empty with a rapid flow of a liquid, especially water: flush a toilet; flush a wound with iodine. b. To remove or eliminate by or as if by flushing: “The weakness in demand and productivity will at least... flush out some of the inflation premium that has been built into interest rates” (Fortune). — n. 1. a. A flooding flow or rush, as of water. b. The act of cleaning or rinsing by or as if by flushing. 2. A blush or glow: “here and there a flush of red on the lip of a little cloud” (Willa Cather). 3. a. A reddening of the skin, as with fever, emotion, or exertion. b. A brief sensation of heat over all or part of the body. 4. A rush of strong feeling: He felt a flush of pride as he watched his children. 5. A state of freshness or vigor. See Synonyms at bloom¹. — adj. flush·er, flush·est. 1. Having a healthy reddish color; flushed. 2. Having an abundant supply of money; affluent. See Synonyms at rich. 3. Marked by abundance; plentiful: flush times resulting from the oil boom. 4. Swelling; overflowing: rivers flush with the spring rains. 5. a. Having surfaces in the same plane; even. b. Arranged with adjacent sides, surfaces, or edges close together: a sofa flush against the wall. See Synonyms at level. c. Printing. Aligned evenly with a margin, as along the left or right edge of a typeset page; not indented. 6. Direct, straightforward, or solid: knocked out by a flush blow to the jaw. 7. Designed to be emptied or cleaned by flushing: a flush toilet. — adv. 1. So as to be even, in one plane, or aligned with a margin. 2. Squarely or solidly: The ball hit him flush on the face. [Probably from FLUSH³, to dart out.] —flush'er n. —flush/ness n.

flush² (flüş) n. Games. A hand in which all the cards are of the same suit but not in numerical sequence, ranked above a straight and below a full house in poker. [French flux, flus, from Old French flux, from Latin flūxus, flux. See FLUX.]

flush³ (flüş) v. flushed, flush-ing, flush-es. — v. tr. 1. To frighten (a game bird, for example) from cover. 2. To drive or force into the open: The police fired tear gas to flush out the terrorists. — v. intr. To dart out or fly from cover. — n. A bird or flock of birds that has been frightened from cover. [Middle English flusshen.]

Flush-ing (flüş'ing) 1. A section of New York City in northern Queens on western Long Island. Flushing Meadow was the site of two world's fairs (1939-1940 and 1964-1965) and the temporary headquarters of the United Nations (1946-1949). 2. See Vlissingen.

flush-less toilet (flüş'līs toi'līt) n. A toilet that disposes of waste without using water, especially one that utilizes bacteria to break down waste matter.

flush-om-e-ter (flüş-öm'ī-tər) n. A device for flushing toilets and urinals that utilizes pressure from the water supply system rather than the force of gravity to discharge water into the bowl, designed to use less water than conventional flush toilets.

flush-ter (flüş'tər) v. tr. intr. flush-tered, flush-ter-ing, flush-ters. To make or become nervous or upset. — n. A state of agitation, confusion, or excitement. [From Middle English flostring, agitation, probably of Scandinavian origin. See pleu- in Appendix.]

flute (flōōt) n. Abbr. fl. 1. Music. a. A high-pitched woodwind instrument consisting of a slender tube closed at one end with keys and finger holes on the side and an opening near the closed end across which the breath is blown. Also called transverse flute b. Any of various similar reedless woodwind instruments, such as the recorder. c. An organ stop whose flue pipe produces a flutelike tone.

2. a. Architecture. A long, usually rounded groove incised as a decorative motif on the shaft of a column, for example. b. A similar groove or furrow, as in a pleated ruffle of cloth or on a piece of furniture. 3. A tall, narrow wineglass, often used for champagne. — v. flut-ed, flut-ing, flutes. — v. tr. 1. Music. To play (a tune) on a flute. 2. To produce in a flutelike tone. 3. To make flutes in flut-ing (flōō'tĭng) n. 1. a. Architecture. A decorative motif consisting of a series of uniform, usually vertical flutes, as those incised in the surface of a column. b. The act of incising or making grooves. 2. The grooves formed by narrow pleats in cloth, as in a ruffle.

(a column, for example). — v. intr. 1. Music. To play a flute. 2. To sing, whistle, or speak with a flutelike tone. [Middle English floute, from Old French flaute, and from Middle Dutch flute (Middle Dutch, from Old French) from Old Provençal, perhaps a blend of flaujol, flageolet (from Vulgar Latin flābeolum*); see FLAGEOLET, and laut, lute; see LUTE¹.] — flut'er n. — flut'ey, flut'y adj.

flut-ist (flōō'tĭst) n. Music. One who plays the flute.

flut-ter (flüt'ər) v. flut-tered, flut-ter-ing, flut-ters. — v. intr. 1. To wave or flap rapidly in an irregular manner: curtains that fluttered in the breeze.

2. a. To fly by a quick, light flapping of the wings. b. To flap the wings without flying. 3. To move or fall in a manner suggestive of tremulous flight: "Her arms rose, fell, and fluttered with the rhythm of the song" (Evelyn Waugh). 4. To vibrate or beat rapidly or erratically: My heart fluttered wildly. 5. To move quickly in a nervous, restless, or excited fashion; flit. — v. tr. To cause to flutter: "fluttering her bristly black lashes as swiftly as butterflies' wings" (Margaret Mitchell). — n.

1. The act of fluttering. 2. A condition of nervous excitement or agitation: Everyone was in a flutter over the news that the director was resigning. 3. A commotion; a stir. 4. Pathology. Abnormally rapid pulsation, especially of the atria or ventricles of the heart. 5. Rapid fluctuation in the pitch of a sound reproduction resulting from variations in the speed of the recording or reproducing equipment. 6. Chiefly British. A small bet; a gamble: "If they like a flutter, Rick will get them better odds than the bookies" (John le Carré). [Middle English floteren, from Old English floterian. See pleu- in Appendix.] — flut'ter-er n. — flut'ter-y adj.

SYNONYMS: flutter, flicker, flit, flitter, hover. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to move quickly, lightly, and irregularly like a bird in flight": children fluttering around a birthday cake; flames that flickered in the night; guests flitting from table to table; sunlight flittering over the ocean; admirers hovering around a celebrity.

flutter kick (flüt'ər kĭk) n. Sports. A swimming kick in which the legs are held horizontally and alternately moved up and down in rapid strokes without bending the knees.

flu-vi-al (flōō'vē-əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or inhabiting a river or stream. 2. Produced by the action of a river or stream. [Middle English, from Latin fluviālis, from fluvius, river, from fluere, to flow. See bhleu- in Appendix.]

flu·vi·a·tile (flōō'vē-ə-tīl') adj. Fluvial. [French, from Latin fluviātilis, from fluvius, river. See FLUVIAL.] flu·vi·o·ma·rine (flōō'vē-ō-mə-rēn') adj. Relating to or being deposits, especially near the mouth of a river, formed by the combined action of river and sea. [Latin fluvius, river (from fluere, to flow); see bhleu- in Appendix + MARINE.] flux (flŭks) n. 1. a. A flow or flowing. b. A continued flow; a flood. See Synonyms at flow. 2. The flowing in of the tide. 3. Medicine. The discharge of large quantities of fluid material from the body, especially the discharge of watery feces from the intestines. 4. a. The rate of flow of fluid, particles, or energy through a given surface. b. See flux density. c. The lines of force of a magnetic field. 5. Constant or frequent change; fluctuation: "The newness and flux of the computer industry has meant many opportunities for women and minorities" (Connie Winkler). 6. Chemistry & Metallurgy. A substance that aids, induces, or otherwise actively participates in fusing or flowing, as: a. A substance applied to a surface to be joined by welding, soldering, or brazing to facilitate the flowing of solder and prevent formation of oxides. b. A mineral added to the metals in a furnace to promote fusing or to prevent the formation of oxides. c. An additive that improves the flow of plastics during fabrication. d. A readily fusible glass or enamel used as a base in ceramic work. — v. fluxed, flux-ing, flux-es. — v. tr. 1. To melt; fuse. 2. To apply a flux to. — v. intr. 1. To become fluid. 2. To flow; stream. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin flūxus, from past participle of fluere, to flow. See bhleu- in Appendix.]

flux density (flŭks dēn'sī-tē) n. Physics. The rate of flux per unit area. Also called flux flux gate (flŭks gāt) n. Physics. A detector used to indicate the direction of the earth's magnetic field.

flux-ion (flŭk'shən) n. 1. a. A flow or flowing. b. Continual change.

2. Archaic. a. See derivative (n., sense 3). b. fluxions. Differential calculus. [French, from Late Latin flūxiō, flūxiōn-, from Latin flūxus, flux. See FLUX.]

—flux'ion-al, flux'ion-ar'y (flŭk'shə-nēr'ē) adj. —flux'ion-al-ly adv.

fly¹ (flī) v. flew (flōō), flown (flōn), fly-ing, flies (flīz). — v. intr. 1. To engage in flight, especially: a. To move through the air by means of wings or winglike parts. b. To travel by air: We flew to Dallas. c. To operate an aircraft or spacecraft. 2. a. To rise in or be carried through the air by the wind: a kite flying above the playground. b. To float or flap in the air: pennants flying from the mast-head. 3. To move or be sent through the air with great speed: bullets flying in every direction; a plate that flew from my hands when I stumbled. 4. a. To move with great speed; rush or dart: The children flew down the hall. Rumors were flying during their absence. b. To flee; escape. c. To hasten; spring: flew to her students' defense. 5. To pass by swiftly: a vacation flying by; youth that is soon flown. 6. To be dissipated; vanish: Their small inheritance was quickly flown. 7. past tense and past participle. flied (flid). Baseball. To hit a fly ball. 8. To undergo an explosive reaction; burst: The dropped plate flew into pieces. The motorist flew into a rage.

9. Informal. To gain acceptance or approval; go over: “However sophisticated the reasoning, this particular notion may not fly” (New York Times). — v. tr.

1. a. To cause to fly or float in the air: fly a kite; fly a flag. b. Nautical. To operate under (a particular flag): a tanker that flies the Liberian flag. 2. a. To pilot (an aircraft or a spacecraft). b. To carry or transport in an aircraft or a spacecraft: fly emergency supplies to a stricken area. c. To pass over or through in flight: flew the coastal route in record time. d. To perform in a spacecraft or an aircraft: flew six missions into space. 3. a. To flee or run from: fly a place in panic. b. To avoid; shun: fly temptation. — n. pl. flies. 1. The act of flying; flight. 2. a. A fold of cloth that covers a fastening of a garment, especially one on the front of trousers. b. The fastening or opening covered by such a fold. 3. A flap that covers an entrance or forms a rooflike extension for a tent or the canopy of a vehicle. 4. A flyleaf. 5. Baseball. A fly ball. 6. a. The span of a flag from the staff to the outer edge. b. The outer edge of a flag. 7. A flywheel. 8. flies. The area directly over the stage of a theater, containing overhead lights, drop curtains, and equipment for raising and lowering sets. 9. Chiefly British. A one-horse carriage, especially one for hire. — phrasal verb. fly at. To attack fiercely; assault: The dogs flew at each other’s throats. — idioms. fly high. To be elated: They were flying high after their first child was born. fly off the handle. Informal. To become suddenly enraged: flew off the handle when the train was finally canceled.

let fly. 3. To shoot, hurl, or release: The troops let fly a volley of gunfire. 4. To lash out; assault: The mayor let fly with an angry attack on her critics. on the fly. 5. On the run; in a hurry: took lunch on the fly. 6. While in the air; in flight: caught the ball on the fly. [Middle English flien, from Old English flēogan. See pleu- in Appendix.] — fly/a·ble adj.

fly² (fli) n. pl. flies. 1. a. Any of numerous two-winged insects of the order Diptera, especially any of the family Muscidae, which includes the housefly. b. Any of various other flying insects, such as the caddis fly. 2. A fishing lure simulating a fly, made by attaching materials such as feathers, tinsel, and colored thread to a fishhook. — idiom. fly in the ointment. A detrimental circumstance or detail; a drawback. [Middle English flic, from Old English flēoge. See pleu- in Appendix.]

fly³ (fli) adj. Chiefly British. Mentally alert; sharp. [Probably from FLY¹.]

fly agaric (fli äg’-ər-ik) n. A poisonous mushroom (Amanita muscaria) usually having a red or orange cap with white gills and patches.

fly ash (fli äsh) n. Fine particulate ash sent up by the combustion of a solid fuel, such as coal, and discharged as an airborne emission or recovered as a byproduct for various commercial uses.

fly-a-way (flī'ə-wā') adj. 1. Made or worn loose or draped, as to allow or suggest fluttering in the wind: a flyaway coat; long, flyaway hair. 2. a. Prepared for immediate flight: a plane in flyaway condition. b. Designed for air travel: flyaway bags. 3. Given to frivolity; flighty. — n. Sports. An aerial gymnastic move performed on the parallel bars, rings, or other apparatus, especially a flying dismount with a somersault.

fly ball (flī bōl) n. Baseball. A ball that is batted in a high arc, usually to the outfield.

fly-blow (flī'blō') n. The egg or larva of a blowfly, usually deposited on meat. — v. tr. fly-blew (-blōō'), fly-blown (-blōn'), fly-blow-ing, fly-blows.

1. To deposit flyblows on. 2. To contaminate; taint.

fly-blown (flī'blōn') adj. 1. Contaminated with flyblows. 2. a. Tainted; corrupt: a flyblown reputation. b. Dirty or run-down; squalid: a flyblown bar on the edge of town.

fly-boat (flī'bōt') n. Nautical. Any of various small, swift boats. [Alteration and partial translation of Dutch vlieboot: Vlie, a channel off the island of Vlieland in the northern Netherlands + boot, boat.]

fly book (flī bōōk) n. A case, usually in the form of a book, in which artificial flies for fishing are carried.

fly-boy or fly-boy (flī'boi') n. Slang. A member of an air force, especially a pilot.

fly bridge (flī brīj) n. Nautical. See flying bridge.

fly-by also fly-by (flī'bī') n. pl. fly-bys. A flight passing close to a specified target or position, especially a maneuver in which a spacecraft or satellite passes sufficiently close to a body to make detailed observations without orbiting or landing.

fly-by-night (flī'bī-nīt') Informal. adj. 1. Unreliable or unscrupulous, especially with regard to business dealings: "fly-by-night telephone companies that open up shop, sell some systems, then disappear when service is needed" (Mary Ellen Jordan). 2. Of an impermanent or insubstantial nature: fly-by-night fashions in clothing. — n. also fly-by-night-er (-nīt'tər) 1. An unscrupulous or undependable person, especially one who leaves secretly without paying creditors. 2. Something of a shaky or impermanent nature.

fly-cast (flī'kăst') v. intr. fly--cast, fly--cast-ing, fly--casts. To cast artificial flies with a fly rod, as in fishing. — fly'-cast'er n.

fly-cast-ing (flī'kăst'ting) n. The art or sport of casting artificial flies with a fly rod.

fly-catch-er (flī'kăch'ər, -kěch'-) n. 1. Any of various Eurasian birds of the family Muscicapidae that feed on insects, usually catching the insects in flight. 2. Any of various similar American birds of the family Tyrannidae. In this sense, also called tyrant flycatcher fly·er (flī'ər) n. Variant of flier.

fly-fish (flī'fīsh') v. intr. fly--fished, fly--fish-ing, fly--fish-es. To angle using artificial flies for bait and usually a fly rod for casting. —fly'-fish'er·man, fly'-fish'er n.

fly-fish-ing (flī'fīsh'ing) n. The art or sport of angling with artificial flies for bait.

fly front (flī frünt) n. A garment front that has a fly concealing the fastenings.

fly gallery (flī gäl'ə-rē) n. A narrow elevated platform at the side of the stage in a theater, from which a stagehand works the ropes controlling equipment in the flies.

fly-ing (flī'ing) adj. 1. Of or relating to aviation: a flying time of three hours between cities. 2. Capable of or engaged in flight: The bat is a flying mammal. 3. Situated, extending, or functioning in the air: a flying deck. 4. a. Swiftly moving; fleet: played the difficult passage with flying fingers. b. Done or performed swiftly in or as if in the air: crossed the goal line with a flying leap. 5. Brief; hurried: made a flying visit to the neighbors' house; took a flying glance at the report. 6. Capable of swift deployment or response; extremely mobile. 7. Nautical. Not secured by spars or stays. Used of a sail. — n. 1. Flight in an aircraft or a spacecraft. 2. The piloting or navigation of an aircraft or a spacecraft. —idiom. with flying colors. With complete or outstanding success: passed the Latin examination with flying colors.

flying boat (flī'ing bōt) n. A large seaplane that floats on its hull rather than on pontoons.

flying bomb (flī'ing bōm) n. See robot bomb.

flying bridge (flī'ing brīj) n. Nautical. A small, usually open platform located above the main bridge, as on a powerboat, equipped with a secondary set of navigational controls. Also called fly bridge flying buttress (flī'ing büt'rīs) n. Architecture. A masonry support consisting usually of a pier or buttress standing apart from the main structure and connected to it by an arch along which the thrust, as from the vaulting, is borne. Also called arc-boutant flying dragon (flī'ing dräg'ən) n. See flying lizard.

Flying Dutchman (flī'ing düch'mən) n. 1. A spectral ship said to appear in storms near the Cape of Good Hope. 2. The captain of this ship, a legendary Dutch mariner condemned to sail the seas against the wind until Judgment Day.

flying field (flī'ing fēld) n. A graded field on which airplanes may land and take off.

flying fish (flī'ing fīsh) n. Any of various marine fishes of the family Exocoetidae, having enlarged, winglike pectoral fins capable of sustaining them in brief, gliding flight over the water.

- flying fox (flī'ing fōks) n. Any of various fruit-eating bats of the suborder Megachiroptera, chiefly inhabiting tropical Africa, Asia, and Australia and having a foxlike muzzle and small, pointed ears.
- flying frog (flī'ing frōg) n. Either of two arboreal frogs (Rhacophorus reinwardtii or R. nigropalmatus) of southeast Asia, having toes connected by broad webbing and capable of making long, gliding leaps.
- flying gecko (flī'ing gĕk'ō) n. Any of various small lizards of the genus Ptychozoon of southeast Asia, having extensions of skin along each side of the body that enable it to glide short distances.
- flying gurnard (flī'ing gŭr'nərd) n. Any of various chiefly tropical marine fishes of the family Dactylopteridae, having greatly enlarged, winglike pectoral fins that facilitate gliding through the water.
- flying head (flī'ing hĕd) n. A device that is designed to read and write information on a moving magnetic surface, as on a disk or drum, while being supported above the surface by a thin cushion of air.
- flying jib (flī'ing jĭb) n. Nautical. A light sail that extends beyond the jib and is attached to an extension of the jib boom.
- flying lemur (flī'ing lē'mər) n. Either of two arboreal mammals, Cynocephalus volans of the Philippines or C. variegatus of southeast Asia, that are sustained in gliding leaps by a wide, fur-covered membrane extending from each side of the body. Also called colugo
- flying lizard (flī'ing lĭz'ərd) n. Any of various small tropical Asian lizards of the genus Draco, having winglike membranes on each side of the body that may be spread to enable it to glide through the air. Also called flying dragon
- flying machine (flī'ing mə-shĕn') n. A machine designed for flight, especially an early experimental type of aircraft.
- flying mare (flī'ing mār) n. Sports. A wrestling throw in which one grabs one's opponent's wrist, turns one's back to the opponent, and flips the opponent over one's shoulder onto the ground.
- flying phalanger (flī'ing fə-lăn'jər) n. Any of several small marsupials of the family Petauridae, especially one of the genus Petaurus, native to Australia, New Guinea, and Tasmania and having large folds of skin between the forelegs and hind legs that enable it to glide through the air.
- flying saucer (flī'ing sô'sər) n. Any of various unidentified flying objects of presumed extraterrestrial origin, typically described as luminous moving disks.
- flying squad (flī'ing skwŏd) n. Chiefly British. A small mobile unit, especially of motorized police, capable of moving quickly into action, as during an emergency.
- flying squirrel (flī'ing skwŭr'əl) n. Any of various nocturnal squirrels of the genera Pteromys, Petaurista, Glaucomys, and related genera, having membranes along each side of the body between the forelegs and hind legs that enable it to glide between trees.

flying start (flī'īng stärt) n. 1. Sports. A racing start in which the contestants are already in full motion when they cross the starting line. 2. A quick or auspicious beginning. Also called running start flying wedge (flī'īng wěj) n. A compact, wedge-shaped formation, as of police or guards, moving as a body and used especially for penetrating crowds.

fly-leaf (flī'lēf') n. A blank or specially printed leaf at the beginning or end of a book.

fly net (flī nět) n. A net covering used for protection from flying insects.

Flynn (flīn), Elizabeth Gurley. 1890-1964. American political radical. A founder of the American Civil Liberties Union, she joined the Communist Party of the United States (1937) and served as its national chairperson (1961-1964).

Flynn (flīn), Errol. 1909-1959. Tasmanian-born American actor known for his swashbuckling roles in motion pictures such as Captain Blood (1935).

fly-o-ver (flī'ō'vər) n. 1. A flight over a specific location, usually at low altitude, as by a formation of military aircraft. 2. Chiefly British. An overpass, as on a highway.

fly-pa-per (flī'pā'pər) n. Paper coated with a sticky, sometimes poisonous substance, used to catch flies.

fly-past (flī'päst') n. Chiefly British. A fly-over, as by military aircraft.

fly-poi-son (flī'poi'zən) n. A poisonous lily (Amianthium muscitoxicum) of the eastern United States, having narrow basal leaves and a terminal raceme of small white or greenish flowers.

Fly River (flī rīv'ər) A river, about 1,046 km (650 mi) long, rising in western Papua New Guinea and flowing generally southeastward to the Gulf of Papua.

fly rod (flī rōd) n. A long, flexible fishing rod used in fly-fishing.

fly-sheet (flī'shēt') n. A printed sheet or pamphlet; a handbill.

fly-speck (flī'spěk') n. 1. A small dark speck or stain made by the excrement of a fly. 2. A minute or insignificant spot. — v. tr. fly-specked, fly-speck-ing, fly-specks. 1. To mark or foul with flyspecks. 2. Slang. To examine closely or in minute detail; scrutinize: “[The company’s] performance will be flyspecked for clues as to how well it will do over the calendar year” (Harry A. Stark).

fly swat (flī swöt) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See fly swatter.

fly swatter (flī swöt'ər) n. An implement used to kill flies or other insects, usually consisting of a piece of plastic or wire mesh attached to a long handle. Regional. Also called fly swat fly-trap (flī'trăp') n. 1. A trap for catching flies. 2. An insectivorous plant, such as the Venus’s-flytrap.

fly-ty-ing (flī'tī'īng) n. The art or hobby of making artificial fishing flies. — fly'-ti'er (-tī'ər) n.

fly-way (flī'wā') n. A seasonal route followed by birds migrating to and from their breeding areas.

fly-weight (flī'wāt') n. 1. Sports. a. A professional boxer weighing 112 pounds (approximately 51 kilograms) or less, lighter than a bantamweight. b. A contestant in various other sports in the lightest weight class. 2. Something that is particularly small, light, or inconsequential.

fly-wheel (flī'hwēl', -wēl') n. 1. A heavy-rimmed rotating wheel used to minimize variations in angular velocity and revolutions per minute, as in a machine subject to fluctuation in drive and load. 2. An analogous device, especially one used to regulate the speed of clockwork.

fly-whisk (flī'hwisk', -wisk') n. A whisk, as of hair, used for brushing away flies.

Fm The symbol for the element fermium.

FM abbr. 1. Field manual. 2. Also F.M., Field marshal. 3. Also fm, Frequency modulation.

fm. abbr. 1. Fathom. 2. From.

FMB abbr. Federal Maritime Board.

FMCS abbr. Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

FMN abbr. Flavin mononucleotide.

FN abbr. Foreign national.

fn. abbr. Footnote.

FNMA abbr. Federal National Mortgage Association.

f-number (ĕf'nūm'bər) n. The ratio of the focal length of a lens or lens system to the effective diameter of its aperture. Also called f-stop [F(OCAL LENGTH) + NUMBER.]

FO abbr. 1. Also F.O., Field-grade officer. 2. Field order. 3. Finance officer. 4. Also F/O, Flight officer. 5. Also F.O., Foreign office.

foal (fōl) n. The young offspring of a horse or other equine animal, especially one under a year old. — v. intr. foaled, foal-ing, foals. To give birth to a foal. [Middle English fole, from Old English folā. See pau- in Appendix.]

foam (fōm) n. 1. a. A mass of bubbles of air or gas in a matrix of liquid film, especially an accumulation of fine, frothy bubbles formed in or on the surface of a liquid, as from agitation or fermentation. b. A thick chemical froth, such as shaving cream or a substance used to fight fires. 2. a. Frothy saliva produced especially as a result of physical exertion or a pathological condition. b. The frothy sweat of a horse or other equine animal. 3. The sea. 4. Any of various light, porous, semirigid or spongy materials used for thermal insulation or shock absorption, as in packaging. — v. foamed, foam-ing, foams. — v. intr. 1. To produce or issue as foam; froth. 2. a. To produce foam from the mouth, as from exertion or a pathological condition. b. To be extremely angry; rage: was foaming over the disastrous budget cuts. 3. To teem; seethe: a playground foaming with third graders. — v. tr. 1. To cause to produce foam. 2. To cause to become foam. [Middle English fom, from Old English fām.]

foam-flow-er (fōm'flou'ər) n. A woodland plant (Tiarella cordifolia) of eastern North America, having a narrow cluster of small white flowers. Also called false miterwort foam rubber (fōm rüb'ər) n. A light, firm, spongy rubber made by beating air into latex and then curing it. Foam rubber has a wide range of uses including upholstery and insulation.

foam-y (fō'mē) adj. foam-i-er, foam-i-est. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling foam. 2. Consisting of or covered with foam. —foam'i-ly adv.

—foam'i-ness n.

fob¹ (fōb) n. 1. A small pocket at the front waistline of a man's trousers or in the front of a vest, used especially to hold a watch. 2. a. A short chain or ribbon attached to a pocket watch and worn hanging in front of the vest or waist. b. An ornament or seal attached to such a chain or ribbon. [Probably of Germanic origin.]

fob² (fōb) v. tr. fobbed, fob-bing, fobs. Archaic. To cheat or deceive (another). —phrasal verb. fob off. 1. To dispose of (goods) by fraud or deception; palm off: fobbed off the zircon as a diamond. 2. To put off or appease by deceitful or evasive means: needed help but was fobbed off with promises. [Middle English fobben, probably from fob, trickster.]

f.o.b. also F.O.B. abbr. Free on board.

fo-cal (fō'kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to a focus. 2. Placed at or measured from a focus. —fo'cal-ly adv.

focal distance (fō'kəl dīs'təns) n. Abbr. FD See focal length.

focal infection (fō'kəl ĩn-fĕk'shən) n. A bacterial infection localized in a specific part of the body, such as the tonsils, that may spread to another part of the body.

fo-cal-ize (fō'kə-līz') v. tr. intr. fo-cal-ized, fo-cal-iz-ing, fo-cal-iz-es. 1. To adjust or come to a focus. 2. To bring or be brought to a focus; sharpen. 3. To concentrate or be concentrated; localize. —fo'cal-i-za'tion (-kə-lī-zā'shən) n.

focal length (fō'kəl lĕngkth) n. Abbr. f, FL The distance from the surface of a lens or mirror to its focal point. Also called focal distance, focus.

focal point (fō'kəl point) n. See focus (n., sense 1a).

Foch (fōsh, fōsh), Ferdinand. 1851–1929. French marshal and commander in chief of Allied forces on the western front during World War I.

fo-ci (fō'sī', -kī') n. A plural of focus.

Foc-șa-ni (fōk-shän', -shä'nē) A town of east-central Romania northwest of Brăila. Situated at the foot of the Transylvanian Alps, it is a market and industrial center. Population, 77,391.

fo'c's'le (fōk'səl) n. Nautical. Variant of forecastle.

fo-cus (fō'kəs) n. pl. fo-cus-es or fo-ci (-sī', -kī'). 1. a. A point at which rays of light or other radiation converge or from which they appear to diverge, as after refraction or reflection in an optical system: the focus of a lens. Also called focal point. b. See focal length. 2. a. The distinctness or clarity of an image rendered by an optical system. b. The state of maximum distinctness or clarity of such an image: in focus; out of focus. c. An apparatus used to adjust the focal length of an optical system in order to make an image distinct or clear: a camera with automatic focus. 3. A center of interest or activity. See Synonyms at center. 4. Close or narrow attention; concentration: "He was forever taken aback by [New York's] pervasive atmosphere of purposefulness—the tight focus of its drivers, the brisk intensity of its pedestrians" (Anne Tyler). 5. A condition in which something can be clearly apprehended or perceived: couldn't get the problem into focus. 6. Pathology. The region of a localized bodily infection or disease. 7. Geology. The point of origin of an earthquake. 8. Mathematics. A fixed point whose relationship with a directrix determines a conic section. — v. fo-cused or fo-cussed, fo-cus-ing or fo-cus-sing, fo-cus-es or fo-cus-ses. — v. tr. 1. To cause (light rays, for example) to converge on or toward a central point; concentrate. 2. a. To render (an object or image) in clear outline or sharp detail by adjustment of one's vision or an optical device; bring into focus. b. To adjust (a lens, for example) to produce a clear image. 3. To direct toward a particular point or purpose: focused all their attention on finding a solution to the problem. — v. intr. 1. To converge on or toward a central point of focus; be focused. 2. To adjust one's vision or an optical device so as to render a clear, distinct image. 3. To concentrate attention or energy: a campaign that focused on economic issues. [Latin, hearth.] —fo'cus-er n.

focus group (fō'kəs grōōp) n. A small group selected from a wider population and sampled, as by open discussion, for its members' opinions about or emotional response to a particular subject or area, used especially in market research or political analysis.

fod-der (fōd'ər) n. 1. Feed for livestock, especially coarsely chopped hay or straw. 2. Raw material, as for artistic creation. 3. A consumable, often inferior item or resource that is in demand and usually abundant supply: romantic novels intended as fodder for the pulp fiction market. — v. tr. fod-dered, fod-der-ing, fod-ders. To feed with fodder. [Middle English, from Old English fōdor. See pā- in Appendix.]

foe (fō) n. 1. A personal enemy. 2. An enemy in war. 3. An adversary; an opponent: a foe of tax reform. See Synonyms at enemy. 4. Something that serves to oppose, injure, or impede: endemic diseases that were the foe of economic development. [Middle English fo, from Old English gefā, from fāh, hostile.]

foehn also föhn (fōen, fān) n. A warm, dry wind coming off the lee slopes of a mountain range, especially off the northern slopes of the Alps. [German Föhn, from Middle High German fænne, from Old High German phōno, from Vulgar Latin faōnius*, from Latin favōnius, the west wind, from favēre, to be favorable.]

foe-man (fō'mən) n. A foe in battle; an enemy.

foe-tal (fēt'l) adj. Variant of fetal.

foe-tid (fē'tid) adj. Variant of fetid.

foe-tor (fē'tər) n. Variant of fetor.

foe-tus (fē'təs) n. Variant of fetus.

fog¹ (fôg, fөг) n. 1. Condensed water vapor in cloudlike masses lying close to the ground and limiting visibility. 2. a. An obscuring haze, as of atmospheric dust or smoke. b. A mist or film clouding a surface, as of a window, lens, or mirror. 3. A cloud of vaporized liquid, especially a chemical spray used in fighting fires. 4. a. A state of mental vagueness or bewilderment. b. Something that obscures or conceals; a haze: shrouded their actions in a fog of disinformation.

5. A blur on a developed photographic image. — v. fogged, fog-ging, fogs.

— v. tr. 1. To cover or envelop with or as if with fog. 2. To cause to be obscured; cloud. 3. To make vague, hazy, or confused: a memory that had been fogged by time. 4. To obscure or dim (a photographic image). — v. intr. 1. To be covered with or as if with fog. 2. To be blurred, clouded, or obscured: My glasses fogged in the warm air. 3. To be dimmed or obscured. Used of a photographic image.

[Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] —fog'ger n.

fog² (fôg, fөг) n. 1. A new growth of grass appearing on a field that has been mowed or grazed. 2. Tall, decaying grass left standing after the cutting or grazing season. [Middle English fogge, tall grass. See pŭ- in Appendix.]

Fo-gar-ty (fō'gər-tē), Anne. 1919-1980. American fashion designer whose dresses, popular in the 1950's, featured narrow waists and wide, frilly skirts.

fog bank (fôg bǎngk) n. A dense mass of fog defined against clearer surrounding air, often as viewed from a distance at sea.

fog-bound (fôg'bound', fөг'-) adj. 1. Immobilized by heavy fog: a fogbound fleet. 2. Enveloped or obscured by fog: fogbound cliffs.

fog-bow (fôg'bō', fөг'-) n. A faint white or yellowish arc-shaped light, similar to a rainbow, that sometimes appears in fog opposite the sun. Also called seadog fog-dog (fôg'dôg', -dөг', fөг'-) n. A bright or clear spot that appears in breaking fog. [From the fact that it accompanies fog as a dog accompanies its owner.]

fo-gey (fō'gē) n. Variant of fogy.

Fog-gia (fô'jə) A city of southern Italy northeast of Naples. It is a transportation and industrial center and a major wheat market. Population, 157,126.

fog-gy (fô'gē, fөг'ē) adj. fog-gi-er, fog-gi-est. 1. a. Full of or surrounded by fog. b. Resembling or suggestive of fog. 2. Clouded or blurred by or as if by fog; vague: had only a foggy memory of what had taken place; hasn't the foggiest idea how to get home. —fog'gi-ly adv. —fog'gi-ness n.

Fog-gy Bottom (fög'ē bö't'əm) n. The U.S. Department of State. [From the location of the Department of State in a low-lying area of Washington, D.C., near the Potomac River.]

fog-horn (fôg'hôrn', fög'-) n. 1. Nautical. A horn for sounding warning signals in fog or darkness, used especially on ships, buoys, and coastal installations. 2. A booming, insistent voice.

fo-gy also fo-gey (fō'gē) n. pl. fo-gies also fo-geys. A person of stodgy or old-fashioned habits and attitudes. [Scots fogey.] —fo'gy-ish adj. —fo'gy-ism n.

föhn (fœn, fān) n. Variant of foehn.

foi-ble (foi'bəl) n. 1. A minor weakness or failing of character. See Synonyms at fault. 2. The weaker section of a sword blade, from the middle to the tip. [Obsolete French foible, weak point of a sword, weak, from Old French feble, weak. See FEEBLE.] foil¹ (foil) v. tr. foiled, foil-ing, foils. 1. To prevent from being successful; thwart. See Synonyms at frustrate. 2. To obscure or confuse (a trail or scent) so as to evade pursuers. — n. Archaic. 1. A repulse; a setback. 2. The trail or scent of an animal. [Middle English foilen, to trample, defile, variant of filen, to defile. See FILE³.]

foil² (foil) n. 1. A thin, flexible leaf or sheet of metal: aluminum foil. 2. A thin layer of polished metal placed under a displayed gem to lend it brilliance. 3. One that by contrast underscores or enhances the distinctive characteristics of another: “I am resolved my husband shall not be a rival, but a foil to me” (Charlotte Brontë). 4. The reflective metal coating on the back of a glass mirror. 5. Architecture. A curvilinear, often lobelike figure or space formed between the cusps of intersecting arcs, found especially in Gothic tracery and Moorish ornament. 6. a. An airfoil. b. Nautical. A hydrofoil. — v. tr. foiled, foil-ing, foils. 1. To cover or back with foil. 2. To set off by contrast. [Middle English, from Old French foille, from Latin folia, pl. of folium, leaf. See bhel-³ in Appendix.]

foil³ (foil) n. 1. A fencing sword having a usually circular guard and a thin, flexible four-sided blade with a button on the tip to prevent injury. 2. Often foils. The art or sport of fencing with such a sword: a contest at foils. [Origin unknown.]

foin (foin) Archaic. v. intr. foined, foin-ing, foins. To thrust with a pointed weapon. — n. A thrust with a pointed weapon. [Middle English foinen, from foin, a thrust, from Old French foine, pitchfork, from Latin fuscina, three-pronged fish spear.]

foi-son (foi'zən) n. 1. Scots. Physical strength or power. 2. Archaic. A plentiful harvest; abundance. 3. foisons. Obsolete. Reserves of power; resources. [Middle English foisoun, from Old French foison, from Latin fūsiō, fūsiōn-, a pouring, from fūsus, past participle of fundere, to pour. See gheu- in Appendix.]

foist (foist) v. tr. foist-ed, foist-ing, foists. 1. To pass off as genuine, valuable, or worthy: “I can usually tell whether a poet... is foisting off on us what he’d like to think is pure invention” (J.D. Salinger). 2. To impose (something or someone unwanted) upon another by coercion or trickery: They had extra work foisted on them because they couldn’t say no to the boss. 3. To insert fraudulently or deceitfully: foisted unfair provisions into the contract. [Probably Dutch dialectal vuisten, to take in hand, from Middle Dutch, from vuist, fist. See penk^we in Appendix.]

Fo·kine (fô-kēn′, fō-), Michel. 1880-1942. Russian-born American choreographer often considered the founder of modern ballet. His works, such as Petrouchka (1916), emphasize drama and expression instead of the rigid and traditional elements of ballet.

Fok·ker (fŏk′ər, fô′kər), Anthony Herman Gerard. 1890-1939. Dutch-born American aircraft designer and manufacturer who revolutionized aerial warfare by synchronizing a front-mounted machine gun to fire through the propeller of a plane (1915).

fol. abbr. 1. Folio. 2. Following.

fol·a·cin (fŏl′ə-sīn) n. See folic acid. [FOL(IC) AC(ID) + -IN.] fo·late (fŏl′lāt′) n. 1. A salt or ester of folic acid. 2. See folic acid. [FOL(IC) ACID) + -ATE².]

fold¹ (fôld) v. fold-ed, fold-ing, folds. — v. tr. 1. To bend over or double up so that one part lies on another part: fold a sheet of paper. 2. To make compact by doubling or bending over parts: folded the laundry; folded the chairs for stacking. 3. To bring from an extended to a closed position: The hawk folded its wings. 4. To bring from a compact to an extended position; unfold: a suitcase that folds out to become a display table; folded the ironing board down from the wall. 5. To place together and intertwine: fold one’s arms. 6. To envelop or clasp; enfold: folded his children to his breast; folded the check into the letter. 7. To blend in (a cooking ingredient) by gently turning a mixture on top of it: folded the beaten egg whites into the batter. 8. a. Informal. To discontinue operating; close: They had to fold the company a year after they started it. b. Games. To withdraw (one’s hand) in defeat, as by laying cards face down on a table. 9. Geology. To form bends in (a stratum of rock). — v. intr. 1. a. To become folded. b. To be capable of being folded: a bed that folds for easy storage. 2. Informal. To close, especially for lack of financial success; fail. 3. Games. To withdraw from a game in defeat. 4. Informal. a. To give in; buckle: a team that never folded under pressure. b. To weaken or collapse from exertion. — n. 1. The act or an instance of folding. 2. A part that has been folded over or against another: the loose folds of the drapery; clothes stacked in neat folds. 3. A line or mark made by folding; a crease: tore the paper carefully along the fold. 4. A coil or bend, as of rope. 5. Chiefly British.

A hill or dale in undulating country. 6. Geology. A bend in a stratum of rock.

7. Anatomy. A crease or ridge apparently formed by folding, as of a membrane; a plica. [Middle English folden, from Old English fealdan, faldan. See pel⁻² in Appendix.] —fold/a·ble adj.

fold² (fōld) n. 1. A fenced enclosure for domestic animals, especially sheep.

2. A flock of sheep. 3. a. A group of people or institutions bound together by common beliefs and aims: “He is a living testament to the wisdom of admitting lay psychoanalysts into the official fold” (Jerome Bruner). b. A religious congregation: The priest welcomed new parishioners into the fold. — v. tr. fold·ed, fold·ing, folds. To place or keep (sheep, for example) in a fenced enclosure.

[Middle English, from Old English fald.]

-fold suff. 1. Divided into a specified number of parts: fivefold. 2. Multiplied by a specified number: fiftyfold. [Middle English, from Old English -feald, -fald. See pel⁻² in Appendix.]

fold·a·way (fōld'ə-wā') adj. Designed to be folded up for easy storage: a fold-away bed. —fold/a·way' n.

fold·boat (fōld'bōt') n. Nautical. A small boat resembling a kayak, consisting of rubberized canvas stretched over a collapsible frame. Also called faltboat [Translation of German Faltboot.]

fold·er (fōl'dər) n. 1. One that folds or is folded, such as a booklet or pamphlet made of one or more folded sheets of paper. 2. A flexible cover folded in the center and used as a holder for loose paper: a file folder; a hanging folder.

fol·de·rol (fōl'də-rōl') also fal·de·ral (fāl'də-rāl') n. 1. Foolishness; nonsense. 2. A trifle; a gewgaw. [From a nonsense refrain in some old songs.]

fold·ing door (fōl'dĩng dōr) n. A door with hinged or pleated sections that fold together when the door is opened.

fold·ing money (fōl'dĩng mŭn'ē) n. Paper money.

fold·out (fōld'out') n. 1. Printing. A folded insert or section, as of a cover, whose full size exceeds that of the regular page. 2. A piece or part, as of furniture, that folds out or down from a closed position. —fold/out' adj.

fold·up (fōld'ŭp') adj. Designed to fold up, as for storage or carrying; collapsible: a foldup umbrella; a foldup crib. — n. 1. An object that folds up.

2. Informal. A complete failure or breakdown; a collapse: “The Giants are hoping that [he] can avoid his foldup of last season and help them remain in the race” (Los Angeles Times).

fo·li·a (fō'lē-ə) n. Geology & Mathematics. Plural of folium.

fo·li·a·ceous (fō'lē-ā'shəs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling the leaf of a plant. 2. Having leaves or leaflike structures. 3. Geology. Consisting of thin, leaflike layers, as of minerals. [From Latin foliāceus, from folium, leaf. See FOLIUM.]

fo·li·age (fō'lē-ij, fō'līj) n. 1. a. Plant leaves, especially tree leaves, considered as a group. b. A cluster of leaves. 2. An ornamental representation of leaves, stems, and flowers, especially in architecture. [Alteration (influenced by Latin folium, leaf), of Middle English foilage, from Old French foillage, from feuille, leaf. See FOIL².] —fo'li-aged adj.

foliage plant (fō'lē-ij plānt) n. A plant cultivated chiefly for its ornamental leaves.

fo·li·ar (fō'lē-ər) adj. Of or relating to a leaf or leaves. [New Latin foliāris, from Latin folium, leaf. See FOLIUM.]

fo·li·ate (fō'lē-īt, -āt') adj. 1. Of or relating to leaves. 2. Shaped like a leaf. 3. Geology. Foliated. — v. fo·li·at·ed, fo·li·at·ing, fo·li·ates (-āt'). — v. tr. 1. To hammer or cut (metal) into thin leaf or foil. 2. a. To coat (glass, for example) with metal foil. b. To furnish or adorn with metal foil. 3. To separate into thin layers or laminae. 4. To decorate with foliage or foils: an arch that is foliated in the Gothic style. 5. To number the leaves of (a manuscript, for example). — v. intr. 1. To produce foliage. 2. To split into thin leaflike layers or folia. [Latin foliātus, bearing foliage, from folium, leaf. See FOLIUM.]

-foliate suff. Having a specified kind or number of leaves: trifoliate. [From FOLIATE.]

fo·li·at·ed (fō'lē-ā'tīd) adj. Geology. Of or relating to rock that exhibits a layered structure.

fo·li·a·tion (fō'lē-ā'shən) n. 1. The state of being in leaf. 2. Decoration with sculpted or painted foliage. 3. Architecture. Decoration of an opening with cusps and foils, as in Gothic tracery. 4. a. The act, process, or product of forming metal into thin leaf or foil. b. The act or process of coating glass with metal foil. 5. a. The process of numbering consecutively the leaves of a book or manuscript. b. The leaves so numbered. 6. Geology. The layered structure common to metamorphic rocks.

fo·lic acid (fō'lik əs'īd, fōl'ik) n. A yellowish-orange compound, C₁₉H₁₉N₇O₆, of the vitamin B complex group, occurring in green plants, fresh fruit, liver, and yeast. Also called folacin, folate, vitamin B_c. [Latin folium, leaf; see FOLIUM + -IC.]

fo·lie à deux (fô-lē' ä döəf, fōl'ē) n. A condition in which symptoms of a mental disorder, such as delusive beliefs or ideas, occur simultaneously in two individuals who share a close relationship or association. [French : folie, madness + à, between + deux, two.]

fo·li·ic·o·lous (fō'lē-īk'ə-ləs) adj. Thriving on or parasitic to leaves. [Latin folium, leaf; see bhel-³ in Appendix + -COLOUS.]

fo·li·o (fō'lē-ō') n. pl. fo·li·os. Abbr. f., F., fol. 1. a. A large sheet of paper folded once in the middle, making two leaves or four pages of a book or manuscript. b. A book or manuscript of the largest common size, usually about 38 centimeters (15 inches) in height, consisting of such folded sheets. 2. a. A leaf of a book numbered only on the front side. b. A number on such a leaf. c. A page number. 3. Accounting. A page in a ledger or two facing pages that are assigned a single number. 4. Law. A specific number of words used as a unit for measuring the length of the text of a document. — v. tr. fo-li-oed, fo-li-o-ing, fo-li-os. To number consecutively the pages or leaves of (a book, for example). [Middle English, from Late Latin foliō, ablative of folium, leaf of paper, from Latin, leaf. See bhel-³ in Appendix.]

-foliolate suff. Having a specified kind or number of leaflets: bifoliolate. [New Latin foliolātus, from French foliole, leaflet, from Late Latin foliolum, diminutive of Latin folium, leaf. See FOLIUM.]

fo-li-ose (fō'lē-ōs') adj. 1. Bearing numerous leaves; leafy. 2. Of, relating to, or resembling a leaf. 3. Of or relating to a lichen whose thallus is flat and leafy. [Latin foliōsus, from folium, leaf. See FOLIUM.]

fo-li-um (fō'lē-əm) n. pl. fo-li-a (-lē-ə). 1. Geology. A thin, leaflike layer or stratum occurring especially in metamorphic rock. 2. Mathematics. A plane cubic curve having a single loop, a node, and two ends asymptotic to the same line. [Latin, leaf. See bhel-³ in Appendix.]

folk (fōk) n. pl. folk or folks. 1. a. The common people of a society or region considered as the representatives of a traditional way of life and especially as the originators or carriers of the customs, beliefs, and arts that make up a distinctive culture: a leader who came from the folk. b. Archaic. A nation; a people.

2. folks. Informal. People in general: Folks around here will always lend a hand if you need it. 3. Often folks. People of a specified group or kind: city folks; rich folk. 4. folks. Informal. a. The members of one's family or childhood household; one's relatives. b. One's parents: My folks are always forgetting my allowance. — adj. Of, occurring in, or originating among the common people: folk culture; a folk hero. — idiom. just folks. Informal. Down-to-earth, open-hearted. [Middle English, from Old English folc. See pelə-¹ in Appendix.]

folk art also folk-art (fōk'ärt') n. Art originating among the common people of a nation or region and usually reflecting their traditional culture, especially everyday or festive items produced or decorated by unschooled artists. — folk'-art' adj. — folk artist n.

folk dance or folk-dance also folk-dance (fōk dāns) n. 1. a. A traditional dance originating among the common people of a nation or region. b. The music accompanying such a dance. 2. A social gathering at which folk dances are performed. — folk'-dance' adj. — folk dancer n. — folk danc'ing (dān'sīng) n.

folk etymology also folk-et-y-mol-o-gy (fōk'ēt-ə-mōl'ə-jē) n. A change in the form of a word or phrase resulting from a mistaken assumption about its composition or meaning, as in shamefaced for earlier shamfast, “bound by shame,” or cutlet from French côtelette, “little rib.”

folk-ie also folk-y (fō'kē) Music. n. pl. folk-ies. A folk singer or musician. — adj. folk-i-er, folk-i-est. Of, relating to, or in the style of folk music.

folk-ish (fō'kīsh) adj. 1. Of or characteristic of folk music, art, or literature.

2. Simple or natural; folksy: charmed us with his folkish wit and humor.

—folk'ish-ly adv. —folk'ish-ness n.

folk linguistics (fōk līng-gwīs'tīks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Popular belief or speculation about how language is used, especially by a group or an element of a population.

folk-lore (fōk'lôr', -lôr') n. 1. The traditional beliefs, myths, tales, and practices of a people, transmitted orally. 2. The comparative study of folk knowledge and culture. Also called folkloristics 3. a. A body of widely accepted but usually specious notions about a place, a group, or an institution: Rumors of their antics became part of the folklore of Hollywood. b. A popular but unfounded belief.

—folk'lor'ic adj. —folk'lor'ish adj. —folk'lor'ist n. —folk'lor-is'tic adj.

folk-lor-is-tics (fōk'lô-rīs'tīks, -lô-) n. (used with a sing. verb). See folklore (n., sense 2).

folk Mass also folk mass (fōk mäs) n. A Mass in which folk music is used as part of the service instead of liturgical music.

folk medicine (fōk mēd'ī-sīn) n. Traditional medicine as practiced by non-professional healers or embodied in local custom or lore, generally involving the use of natural and especially herbal remedies.

folk-moot (fōk'mōt') or folk-mote (-mōt') n. A general assembly of the people of a town, district, or shire in medieval England. [Middle English, from Old English folcmōt: folc, folk; see FOLK + mōt, meeting.]

folk music (fōk myōō'zīk) n. Music. 1. Music originating among the common people of a nation or region and spread about or passed down orally, often with considerable variation. 2. Contemporary music in the style of traditional folk music. —folk'-mu'sic (fōk'myōō'zīk) adj.

folk-rock or folk rock (fōk'rök') n. Music. A variety of popular music combining elements of rock 'n' roll and folk music. —folk'-rock' adj.

folk-sing-er or folk-sing-er also folk sing-er (fōk'sīng'ər) n. Music. A singer of folksongs. —folk sing'ing (sīng'īng) n.

folk-song or folk-song also folk song (fōk'sōng', -sōng') n. Music. 1. A song belonging to the folk music of a people or area, often existing in several versions or with regional variations. 2. A song composed in the style of traditional folk music.

folk-sy (fōk'sē) adj. folk-si-er, folk-si-est. Informal. 1. Simple and unpretentious in behavior. 2. Characterized by informality and affability: a friendly, folksy town. 3. Modest; low-key: folksy humor; a folksy style that masked a keen business mind. —folk'si-ly adv. —folk'si-ness n.

folk-tale or folk-tale also folk tale (fōk'tāl') n. A story or legend forming part of an oral tradition.

folk-way (fōk'wā') n. A practice, custom, or belief shared by the members of a group as part of their common culture. Often used in the plural.

folk-y (fō'kē) n. & adj. Music. Variant of folkie.

fol·li·cle (fōl'ī-kəl) n. 1. Anatomy. a. A small bodily cavity or sac: a hair follicle. b. A cavity in the ovary containing a maturing ovum surrounded by its encasing cells. 2. Botany. A dry, single-chambered fruit that splits along only one seam to release its seeds, as in larkspur and milkweed. [Latin folliculus, little bag, diminutive of follis, bellows. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

follicle mite (fōl'ī-kəl mīt) n. Any of various tiny mites of the genus Demodex that infest the hair follicles of mammals.

fol·li·cle·stim·u·lat·ing hormone (fōl'ī-kəl-stīm'yə-lā'ting hōr'mōn') n. Abbr. FSH A gonadotropic hormone of the anterior pituitary gland that stimulates the growth of follicles in the ovary and induces the formation of sperm in the testis.

fol·lic·u·lar (fə-līk'yə-lər) adj. 1. Relating to, having, or resembling a follicle or follicles. 2. Affecting or growing out of a follicle or follicles.

fol·lic·u·late (fə-līk'yə-līt) also fol·lic·u·lat·ed (-lā'tīd) adj. Having or consisting of a follicle or follicles.

fol·lic·u·li·tis (fə-līk'yə-lī'tīs) n. Inflammation of a follicle, especially of a hair follicle. [Latin folliculus, follicle; see FOLLICLE + -ITIS.]

fol·low (fōl'ō) v. fol·lowed, fol·low·ing, fol·lows. — v. tr. 1. To come or go after; proceed behind: Follow the usher to your seat. 2. a. To go after in or as if in pursuit: "The wrong she had done followed her and haunted her dream" (Katherine Anne Porter). b. To keep under surveillance: followed the suspect for a week before making the arrest. 3. a. To move along the course of; take: We followed a path to the shore. b. To go in the direction of; be guided by: followed the sun westward across the plains; followed the signs to the monkey house. 4. To accept the guidance, command, or leadership of: follow a spiritual master; rebels who refused to follow their commander. 5. To adhere to; practice: followed the ancient customs of their people. 6. To take as a model or precedent; imitate: followed her new friends in everything they did; followed my example and resigned. 7. a. To act in agreement or compliance with; obey: follow the rules; follow one's instincts. b. To keep to or stick to: followed the recipe; follow a diet. 8. To engage in (a trade or occupation); work at. 9. To come after in order, time, or position: Night follows day. 10. To bring something about at a later time than or as a consequence of: She followed her lecture with a question-and-answer period. The band followed its hit record with a national tour. 11. To occur or be evident as a consequence of: Your conclusion does not follow your premise. 12. a. To watch or observe closely: followed the bird through binoculars. b. To be attentive to; pay close heed to: too sleepy to follow the sermon. c. To keep oneself informed of the course, progress, or fortunes of: follow the stock market; followed the local teams.

13. To grasp the meaning or logic of; understand: Do you follow my argument?
— v. intr. 1. To come, move, or take place after another person or thing in order or time. 2. To occur or be evident as a consequence; result: If you ignore your diet, trouble will follow. 3. To grasp the meaning or reasoning of something; understand. — n. 1. The act or an instance of following. 2. Games. A billiards shot in which the cue ball is struck above center so that it follows the path of the object ball after impact. — phrasal verbs. follow along. To move or proceed in unison or in accord with an example: followed along with the song. follow through. 2. Sports. To carry a stroke to natural completion after hitting or releasing a ball or other object. 3. To carry an act, a project, or an intention to completion; pursue fully: followed through on her promise to reorganize the department. follow up. 4. To carry to completion; follow through on: followed up their recommendations with concrete proposals. 5. To increase the effectiveness or enhance the success of by further action: followed up her interview with a telephone call. — idioms. as follows. As will be stated next. Used to introduce a specified enumeration, explanation, or command. follow (one's) nose. 2. To move straight ahead or in a direct path. 3. Informal. To be guided by instinct: had no formal training but became a success by following his nose. follow suit. 4. Games. To play a card of the same suit as the one led. 5. To do as another has done; follow an example. [Middle English folowen, from Old English folgian.]

SYNONYMS: follow, succeed, ensue, result, supervene. These verbs mean to come after something or someone. Follow, which has the widest application, can refer to coming after in time or order, as a consequence or result, or by the operation of logic: Night follows day. If you disregard the doctor's orders, a relapse will follow. Though he disapproves of violence, it doesn't follow that he won't defend himself. Succeed is to come next after another in time or order, especially in planned order determined by considerations such as rank, inheritance, or election: "The son of a mandarin has no prescriptive right to succeed his father" (H.G. Wells). The heir apparent succeeded to the throne. Ensue applies to what follows something, usually as a consequence or by way of logical development: If a forest fire cannot be extinguished, devastation is sure to ensue. Result implies that what follows is caused by what has preceded: Failure to file an income tax return can result in a fine. Supervene, in contrast, refers to the coming after of a thing that has little relation to what has preceded and that is often unexpected: "A bad harvest supervened. Distress reached its climax" (Charlotte Brontë).

USAGE NOTE: As follows (not as follow) is the established form of the idiom, no matter whether the noun that precedes it is singular or plural: The regulations are as follows.

fol·low·er (fŏl'ō-ər) n. 1. One who subscribes to the teachings or methods of another; an adherent: a follower of Gandhi. 2. A servant; a subordinate. 3. A fan; an enthusiast. 4. One that imitates or copies another: A successful marketing campaign will have many followers. 5. A machine element moved by another machine element.

fol·low·er·ship (fŏl'ō-ər-shĭp') n. 1. The act or condition of following a leader; adherence: "It was not a crisis of leadership. It was a crisis of followership" (Christian Science Monitor). 2. A group of followers; a following: "It is hard to have leadership when you have a divided followership" (Joseph Badaracco).

fol·low·ing (fŏl'ō-ĭng) adj. Abbr. fol., ff., f. 1. Coming next in time or order: in the following chapter. 2. Now to be enumerated: The following people will report for duty. 3. Blowing in the same direction as the course of a ship or an aircraft. Used of wind. — n. A group or gathering of admirers, adherents, or disciples: a lecturer with a large following. — prep. Subsequent to; after: Following dinner, brandy was served in the study.

fol·low·on (fŏl'ō-ŏn', -ŏn') adj. Following as a related or consequent aspect or development: "Such contracts involve follow-on sales of maintenance services" (Christian Science Monitor). — fol'low-on' n.

follow shot (fŏl'ō shŏt) n. 1. A shot in a movie in which the camera follows behind or along with a moving subject. 2. Games. A follow in billiards.

fol·low·through or fol·low·through (fŏl'ō-thrŏŏ') n. 1. The act or an instance of following through: a book promotion campaign with no follow-through. 2. Sports. The concluding part of a stroke, after a ball or other object has been hit or released.

fol·low·up or fol·low·up (fŏl'ō-ŭp') n. 1. The act or an instance of following up, as to further an end or review new developments: The follow-up is often as important as the initial contact in gaining new clients. The social worker's emphasis on followup reassured her clients. 2. One that follows so as to further an end or increase effectiveness: The software was a successful follow-up to the original product. 3. An article or a report giving further information on a previously reported item of news. — adj. Intended to follow up, as to reinforce or evaluate previous action: follow-up services that are provided by the sales department; a followup examination after the surgery.

fol·ly (fŏl'ē) n. pl. fol·lies. 1. A lack of good sense, understanding, or foresight. 2. a. An act or instance of foolishness: regretted the follies of his youth. b. A costly undertaking having an absurd or ruinous outcome. 3. follies. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.) An elaborate theatrical revue consisting of music, dance, and skits. 4. Obsolete. a. Perilously or criminally foolish action. b. Evil; wickedness. c. Lewdness; lasciviousness. [Middle English folie, from Old French, from fol, foolish, from Late Latin follis, windbag, fool. See FOOL.]

Fol-som (fōl'səm) adj. Of or relating to a culture that flourished in western North America east of the Rocky Mountains during the late Pleistocene period, notable chiefly for the use of grooved, leaf-shaped flint projectile points. [After Folsom, a town of northeast New Mexico.]

Fo-mal-haut (fō'məl-hôt') n. The brightest star in the constellation Piscis Austrinus, 24 light-years from Earth. [Arabic fum al-hūt, mouth of the fish, Fomalhaut.]

fo-ment (fō-měnt') v. tr. fo-ment-ed, fo-ment-ing, fo-ments. 1. To promote the growth of; incite. See Synonyms at incite. 2. To treat (the skin, for example) by fomentation. [Middle English fomenten, to apply warm liquids to the skin, from Old French fomenter, from Late Latin fōmentāre, from Latin fōmentum, from fovementum*, from fovēre, to warm.] —fo-ment'er n.

fo-men-ta-tion (fō'mən-tā'shən, -mĕn-) n. 1. The act of fomenting; incitement. 2. a. A substance or material used as a warm, moist medicinal compress; a poultice. b. The therapeutic application of warmth and moisture, as to relieve pain.

fo-mite (fō'mīt') n. An inanimate object or substance that is capable of transmitting infectious organisms from one individual to another. [Back-formation from New Latin fōmitēs, pl. of Latin fōmes, tinder, from fovemēs*, from fovēre, to warm.]

Fon (fōn) n. pl. Fon or Fons. 1. A people of Benin and neighboring parts of Nigeria. 2. The Gbe language of the Fon.

fond¹ (fōnd) adj. fond-er, fond-est. 1. Having a strong liking, inclination, or affection: *fond of ballet; fond of my nieces and nephews. 2. Affectionate; tender: *a fond embrace. 3. Immoderately affectionate or indulgent; doting: fond grandparents who tended to spoil the child. 4. Cherished; dear: *my fondest hopes.

5. Archaic. Naively credulous or foolish. [Middle English fonnaed, foolish, probably from past participle of fonnaen, to be foolish, probably from fonna, fool.] —fond'ly adv.

fond² (fōnd) n. The background of a design in lace. [French, from Old French fonds, fond, from Latin fundus, bottom.]

Fon-da (fōn'də), Henry. 1905-1982. American actor noted for his portrayal of decent, down-to-earth individuals in films such as The Grapes of Wrath (1940) and On Golden Pond (1981), for which he won an Academy Award. His daughter Jane (born 1937) won an Academy Award for Klute (1971) and Coming Home (1978).

fon-dant (fōn'dənt) n. 1. A sweet, creamy sugar paste used in candies and icings. 2. A candy containing this paste. [French, from present participle of fondre, to melt, from Latin fundere. See gheu- in Appendix.]

Fond du Lac (fɒn' də lāk', dyə) A city of eastern Wisconsin at the southern end of Lake Winnebago south-southeast of Oshkosh. It is an industrial center in a resort region. Population, 37,757.

fon·dle (fɒn'dl) v. fon·dled, fon·dling, fon·dles. — v. tr. 1. To handle, stroke, or caress lovingly. See Synonyms at caress. 2. Obsolete. To treat with indulgence and solicitude; pamper. — v. intr. To show fondness or affection by caressing. [Frequentative of FOND¹, to show fondness for (obsolete).] —fon'dler n.

fond·ness (fɒnd'nɪs) n. 1. Warm affection or liking. See Synonyms at love. 2. A strong inclination or preference; a taste: a fondness for sweets; a fondness for travel. 3. Archaic. Naive trustfulness; credulity.

fon·due also fon·du (fɒn-dōō', -dyōō') n. 1. a. A hot dish made of melted cheese and wine and eaten with bread. b. A similar dish, especially one consisting of a melted sauce in which pieces of food, such as bread, meat, or fruit, are dipped or cooked: chocolate fondue. 2. A soufflé usually made with cheese and bread crumbs. [French, from feminine past participle of fondre, to melt. See FONDANT.] —fon·due' v.

Fon·ga·fa·le (fɒn'gə-fälē) The capital of Tuvalu, on Funafuti Island in the southern Pacific Ocean. Population, 2,191.

Fon·se·ca (fɒn-sā'kə, -sē'kə), Gulf of. An inlet of the Pacific Ocean in western Central America bordered by El Salvador, Honduras, and Nicaragua.

font¹ (fɒnt) n. 1. A basin for holding baptismal water in a church. 2. A receptacle for holy water; a stoup. 3. The oil reservoir in an oil-burning lamp. 4. An abundant source; a fount: She was a font of wisdom and good sense. [Middle English, from Old English, from Late Latin fōns, font-, from Latin, fountain.] —font'al (fɒn'tl) adj.

font² (fɒnt) n. Printing. A complete set of type of one size and face. [French fonte, casting, from Old French (from Vulgar Latin fundita*, from Late Latin, feminine of funditus, past participle of Latin fundere, to pour forth); see FONDANT, or from Old French fondre, to melt (from Latin fundere, to pour forth).]

Fon·taine·bleau (fɒn'tɪn-blō', fɒn-tɛn-blō') A town of northern France southeast of Paris. Its chateau (built by Francis I) was long a royal palace and is now the summer residence of the president of France. The revocation of the Edict of Nantes was signed here in 1685. Population, 15,679.

Fon·tan·a (fɒn-tǎn'ə) A city of southern California west of San Bernardino. It is an industrial center in a citrus-growing area. Population, 87,535.

fon·ta·nel also fon·ta·nelle (fɒn'tə-něl') n. Any of the soft membranous gaps between the incompletely formed cranial bones of a fetus or an infant. Also called soft spot [Middle English fontinel, from Old French fontanele, diminutive of fontaine, fountain. See FOUNTAIN.]

Fon·tanne (fōn-tăn'), Lynn. 1887?-1983. British-born American actress who in 1922 married Alfred Lunt, with whom she performed in many stage productions, including Pygmalion (1926).

Fonte·nay·sous·Bois (fōnt-nā'sōo-bwä') A city of north-central France, a manufacturing suburb of Paris. Population, 52,627.

Fon·teyn (fōn-tān'), Dame Margot. 1919-1991. British ballerina who joined the Royal Ballet in 1934 and began her acclaimed partnership with Rudolf Nureyev in 1962.

fon·ti·na (fōn-tē'nə) n. A ripened cheese of variable texture and flavor, originally produced in Italy. [Italian.]

Foo·chow (fōo'jō', -chou') See Fuzhou.

food (fōod) n. 1. Material, usually of plant or animal origin, that contains or consists of essential body nutrients, such as carbohydrates, fats, proteins, vitamins, or minerals, and is ingested and assimilated by an organism to produce energy, stimulate growth, and maintain life. 2. A specified kind of nourishment: breakfast food; plant food. 3. Nourishment eaten in solid form: food and drink. 4. Something that nourishes or sustains in a way suggestive of physical nourishment: food for thought; food for the soul. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: food allergies; food additives. [Middle English fode, from Old English fōda. See pā- in Appendix.]

food chain (fōod chān) n. A succession of organisms in an ecological community that constitutes a continuation of food energy from one organism to another as each consumes a lower member and in turn is preyed upon by a higher member.

food cycle (fōod sī'kəl) n. See food web.

food fish (fōod fīsh) n. A fish that may be used as food for human beings.

food·ie (fōo'dē) n. Slang. A person who has an ardent or refined interest in food; a gourmet: "in the culinary fast lane, where surprises are expected and foodies beg to be thrilled" (Boston Globe).

food poi·son·ing (fōod poi'zə-nīng) n. 1. An acute, often severe gastrointestinal disorder characterized by vomiting and diarrhea and caused by eating food contaminated with bacteria, especially bacteria of the genus Salmonella, or the toxins they produce. 2. Poisoning caused by ingesting substances, such as certain mushrooms, that contain natural toxins.

food processor (fōod prōs'ēs'ər) n. An appliance consisting of a container housing interchangeable rotating blades and used for preparing foods, as by shredding, slicing, chopping, or blending.

food pyramid (fōod pīr'ə-mīd) n. Ecology. A graphic representation of the structure of a food chain, depicted as a pyramid having a broad base formed by producers and tapering to a point formed by end consumers. Between successive levels, total biomass decreases as energy is lost from the system.

food service or food·serv·ice (fōod'sûr'vis) n. The practice or business of making, transporting, and serving or dispensing prepared foods, as in a restaurant or commissary. —food'serv'ice adj.

food stamp (fōod stămp) n. A stamp or coupon, issued by the government to persons with low incomes, that can be redeemed for food at stores.

food·stuff (fōod'stûf') n. A substance that can be used or prepared for use as food.

food vacuole (fōod vāk'yōō-ōl') n. Biology. A vacuole in which phagocytized food is digested.

food web (fōod wěb) n. A complex of interrelated food chains in an ecological community. Also called food cycle foo·fa·raw (fōō'fə-rô') n. 1. Excessive or flashy ornamentation. 2. A fuss over a trifling matter. [Probably from Spanish fanfarrón, boaster, and from French frou-frou, rustling both of imitative origin.]

fool (fōol) n. 1. One who is regarded as deficient in judgment, sense, or understanding. 2. One who acts unwisely on a given occasion: I was a fool to have refused the job. 3. One who has been tricked or made to appear ridiculous; a dupe: They made a fool of me by pretending I won the award. 4. Informal. A person with a talent or an enthusiasm for a certain activity: a dancing fool; a fool for skiing. 5. A member of a royal or noble household who provided entertainment, as with jokes or antics; a jester. 6. A dessert made of stewed or puréed fruit mixed with cream or custard and served cold. 7. Archaic. A mentally deficient person; an idiot. — v. fooled, fool·ing, fools. — v. tr. 1. To deceive or trick; dupe: “trying to learn how to fool a trout with a little bit of floating fur and feather” (Charles Kuralt). 2. To confound or prove wrong; surprise, especially pleasantly: We were sure they would fail, but they fooled us. — v. intr. 1. Informal. a. To speak or act facetiously or in jest; joke: I was just fooling when I said you couldn't have any of my candy. b. To behave comically; clown. c. To feign; pretend: He said he had a toothache but it turned out he was only fooling. 2. To engage in idle or frivolous activity. 3. To toy, tinker, or mess: shouldn't fool with matches. — adj. Informal. Foolish; stupid: off on some fool errand or other. —phrasal verbs. fool around. Informal. 1. To engage in idle or casual activity; putter: was fooling around with some figures in hopes of balancing the budget. 2. To engage in frivolous activity; make fun. 3. To engage in casual, often promiscuous sexual acts. fool away. To waste (time or money) foolishly; squander: fooled away the week's pay on Friday night. —idiom. play the fool (or act the fool). 1. To act in an irresponsible or foolish manner. 2. To behave in a playful or comical manner. [Middle English fol, from Old French, from Late Latin follis, wind-bag, fool, from Latin follis, bellows. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The pejorative nature of the term fool is only strengthened by a knowledge of its etymology. Its source, the Latin word follis, meant “a bag or sack, a large inflated ball, a pair of bellows.” Users of the word in Late Latin, however, saw a resemblance between the bellows or the inflated ball and a person who was what we would call “a windbag” or “an airhead.” The word, which passed into English by way of French, is first recorded in English in a work written around the beginning of the 13th century with the sense “a foolish, stupid, or ignorant person.”

fool·er·y (fōō'lə-rē) n. pl. fool·er·ies. 1. Foolish behavior or speech. 2. An instance of foolish behavior or speech; a jest.

fool·har·dy (fōōl'här'dē) adj. fool·har·di·er, fool·har·di·est. Unwisely bold or venturesome; rash. See Synonyms at reckless. [Middle English folhardi, from Old French fol hardi : fol, fool; see FOOL + hardi, bold; see HARDY¹.]

—fool'har'di·ly adv. —fool'har'di·ness n.

fool·ish (fōō'lish) adj. 1. Lacking or exhibiting a lack of good sense or judgment; silly: foolish remarks. 2. Resulting from stupidity or misinformation; unwise: a foolish decision. 3. Arousing laughter; absurd or ridiculous: a foolish grin. 4. Immoderate or stubborn; unreasonable: foolish pride; foolish love.

5. Embarrassed; abashed: I feel foolish telling you this. 6. Insignificant; trivial: spent all their money on foolish little knickknacks. —fool'ish·ly adv.

—fool'ish·ness n.

SYNONYMS: foolish, silly, fatuous, absurd, preposterous, ridiculous, ludicrous. These adjectives are applied to what is so devoid of wisdom or good sense as to be laughable. Foolish, the least emphatic and derogatory, usually implies poor judgment or lack of wisdom or soundness: a foolish young fellow; a foolish expenditure of time and energy. Silly suggests lack of point or purpose: a silly argument; silly mistakes; suggestions that aren't brilliant but aren't silly either. Fatuous applies especially to what is foolish in a vacuous, smug, and unconscious way: seems to take pride in making fatuous remarks. Absurd, preposterous, ridiculous, and ludicrous apply to what is risible because of a departure from reason, logic, or common sense: It would be absurd for us both to drive, since we're headed for the same destination. Preposterous describes what is contrary to reason or sense: “It would be preposterous to take so grave a step on the advice of an enemy” (J.A. Froude). Ridiculous refers to what inspires ridicule: “Clara's conceited assumption of a universal interest in her dull children was ridiculous” (Arnold Bennett). Ludicrous applies to what causes scornful laughter: It is ludicrous to call a simple split-level house a mansion.

fool-proof (fōol'prōof') adj. 1. Designed so as to be impervious to human incompetence, error, or misuse: a foolproof detonator; a foolproof safety lock.

2. Effective; infallible: a foolproof scheme.

fools-cap (fōolz'kăp') n. 1. Abbr. fcp., fcap., fp. Chiefly British. A sheet of writing or printing paper measuring approximately 13 by 16 inches. 2. A fool's cap. [From the watermark of a fool's cap with bells originally used for this paper.]

fool's cap (fōolz kăp) n. 1. A gaily decorated cap, usually with a number of loose peaks tipped with bells, formerly worn by court jesters and clowns. 2. See dunce cap.

fool's errand (fōolz ər'ænd) n. pl. fools' errands. A fruitless mission or undertaking.

fool's gold (fōolz gōld) n. See pyrite.

fool's paradise (fōolz păr'ə-dīs') n. A state of delusive contentment or false hope.

fool's-pars-ley (fōolz'păr'slē) n. A poisonous European weed (Aethusa cynapium) having finely divided leaves, umbels of small white flowers, and an unpleasant odor.

foon (fōon) n. A spoon with broad tines at the end of its bowl, adapted for spearing and scooping food. [Blend of FORK, and SPOON.]

foot (fōot) n. pl. feet (fēt). 1. The lower extremity of the vertebrate leg that is in direct contact with the ground in standing or walking. 2. A structure used for locomotion or attachment in an invertebrate animal, such as the muscular organ extending from the ventral side of a mollusk. 3. Something suggestive of a foot in position or function, especially: a. The lowest part; the bottom: the foot of a mountain; the foot of a page. b. The end opposite the head, top, or front: the foot of a bed; the foot of a parade. c. The termination of the leg of a piece of furniture, especially when shaped or modeled. d. The part of a sewing machine that holds down and guides the cloth. e. Nautical. The lower edge of a sail. f. Botany. The base of the sporophyte in mosses and liverworts. 4. The inferior part or rank: at the foot of the class. 5. The part of a stocking or high-topped boot that encloses the foot. 6. a. A manner of moving; a step: walks with a light foot. b. Speed or momentum, as in a race: "the only other Democrats who've demonstrated any foot till now" (Michael Kramer). 7. (used with a pl. verb). Foot soldiers; infantry: A regiment of foot are descending the hill. 8. A unit of poetic meter consisting of stressed and unstressed syllables in any of various set combinations. For example, an iambic foot has an unstressed followed by a stressed syllable. 9. Abbr. ft., ft A unit of length in the U.S. Customary and British Imperial systems equal to 12 inches (0.3048 meter). See Table at measurement. 10. foots. Sediment that forms during the refining of oil and other liquids; dregs. — v. foot-ed, foot-ing, foots. — v. intr. 1. To go on foot; walk. Often used with it: When their car broke down, they had to foot it the rest of the way. 2. To dance. Often used with it: “We foot it all the night/weaving olden dances” (William Butler Yeats).

3. Nautical. To make headway; sail. — v. tr. 1. To go by foot over, on, or through; tread. 2. To execute the steps of (a dance). 3. To add up (a column of numbers) and write the sum at the bottom; total: footed up the bill. 4. To pay; defray: footed the expense of their children’s education. 5. To provide (a stocking, for example) with a foot. — idioms. at (someone’s) feet. Enchanted or fascinated by. best foot forward. A favorable initial impression: He always has his best foot forward when speaking to his constituents. Put your best foot forward during an employment interview. feet of clay. An underlying weakness or fault: “They discovered to their vast discomfiture that their idol had feet of clay, after placing him upon a pedestal” (James Joyce). foot in the door. Slang. 4. An initial point of or opportunity for entry. 5. A first step in working toward a goal. have one foot in the grave. Informal. To be on the verge of death, as from illness or severe trauma. on (one’s) feet. 7. Standing up: The crowd was on its feet for the last ten seconds. 8. Fully recovered, as after an illness or convalescence: The patient is on her feet again. 9. In a sound or stable operating condition: put the business back on its feet after years of mismanagement. 10. In an impromptu situation; extemporaneously: “Politicians provide easy targets for grammatical nitpickers because they have to think on their feet” (Springfield MA Morning Union). on the right foot. In an auspicious manner: The project started off on the right foot but soon ran into difficulties. on the wrong foot. In an inauspicious manner: The project started off on the wrong foot. [Middle English fōt, from Old English fōt. See ped- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Used in combination with numbers to form expressions denoting units of measure, foot and feet are used typically in the following: a four-foot plank; a plank four feet (less frequently, four foot) long; a plank four feet six inches long (or four foot six inches long). When foot is combined with greater numbers than one to refer to simple distance, however, only the plural feet is used: a ledge 20 feet (not foot) away. At that speed, a car moves 88 feet (not foot) in a second.

foot-age (fōōt’ij) n. 1. Length, extent, or amount based on measurement in feet: estimated the square footage of new office space. 2. a. An amount or length of film or videotape. b. A shot or series of shots of a specified nature or subject: news footage; some good footage of the royal wedding.

foot-and-mouth disease (fōōt’n-mouth’ dī-zēz’) n. An acute, highly contagious degenerative viral disease of cattle and other cloven-hoofed animals, characterized by fever and the eruption of vesicles around the mouth and hoofs. It is usually not fatal. Also called hoof-and-mouth disease foot·ball (fōot'ból') n. 1. Sports. a. A game played by two teams of 11 players each on a rectangular, 100-yard-long field with goal lines and goal posts at either end, the object being to gain possession of the ball and advance it in running or passing plays across the opponent's goal line or kick it through the air between the opponent's goal posts. b. The inflated oval ball used in this game. 2. Chiefly British. a. Rugby. b. Soccer. c. The ball used in Rugby or soccer. 3. Informal. A problem or issue that is discussed among groups or persons without being settled: The issue of tax reform became a political football. —foot'ball'er n.

foot·bath (fōot'băth', -băth') n. A small bath, such as a basin or shallow pool, for washing or disinfecting the feet.

foot·board (fōot'bōrd', -bōrd') n. 1. An upright board across the foot of a bedstead. 2. A board or small raised platform on which to support or rest the feet, as in a carriage.

foot·boy (fōot'boi') n. A youth employed as a servant or page.

foot brake (fōot brāk) n. A brake operated by pressure of the foot on a pedal, as in an automobile.

foot·bridge (fōot'brij') n. A bridge designed for pedestrians.

foot·can·dle (fōot'kăndl) n. Abbr. fc, ft-c A unit of measure of the intensity of light falling on a surface, equal to one lumen per square foot and originally defined with reference to a standardized candle burning at one foot from a given surface.

foot·cloth (fōot'klôth', -klôth') n. Archaic. A richly ornamented cloth draped over the back of a horse and touching the ground on both sides.

foot·drag·ging (fōot'drăg'ĭng) n. Failure to take prompt or required action: "The inquiry should be thorough and objective, while working fast enough to avoid any suspicion of foot-dragging" (Economist). —foot'·drag'ger n.

Footie (fōot), Andrew Hull. 1806-1863. American naval officer who abolished (1862) liquor rations in the navy and commanded Union vessels on the upper Mississippi River during the Civil War.

foot·ed (fōot'id) adj. Having feet or a foot: a footed sofa. Often used in combination: web-footed; four-footed.

foot·er (fōot'ər) n. 1. One that is an indicated number of feet in height or length. Often used in combination: a six-footer. 2. Printed matter positioned in the bottom margin of a page, especially a title, page number, or date that is repeated throughout a document created on a word-processing system. 3. See footing (n., sense 4).

foot·fall (fōot'fôl') n. See footstep (n., sense 1).

foot fault (fōot fôlt) n. Sports. A fault against the server, as in tennis, called for failure to keep both feet behind the base line.

foot·gear (fōot'gâr') n. Sturdy footwear, such as shoes or boots.

foot·hill (fōot'hîl') n. A hill near the base of a mountain or mountain range.

foot·hold (fōōt'hōld') n. 1. A place providing support for the foot in climbing or standing. 2. A firm or secure position that provides a base for further advancement.

foot·ing (fōōt'ing) n. 1. Secure placement of the feet in standing or moving. 2. a. A surface or its condition with respect to its suitability for walking or running, especially the condition of a racetrack. b. A secure place for the feet; a foothold. 3. The act of moving on foot. 4. Architecture. The supporting base or groundwork of a structure, as for a monument or wall. Also called footer. 5. A basis or foundation: a business begun on a good footing. 6. a. Position or rank in relation to others; standing: Everyone began on an equal footing. b. Terms of social interaction: neighbors on a friendly footing. 7. The act of making a foot for something, such as a stocking. 8. The sum of a column of figures.

foot·lam·bert (fōōt'lām'bært) n. Abbr. fl A unit of luminance equal to $1/\pi$ candela per square foot.

foo·tle (fōōt'l) Informal. v. intr. foo·tled, foo·tling, foo·tles. 1. To waste time; trifle. 2. To talk nonsense. — n. Nonsense; foolishness. [Probably variant of footer, to screw around, from obsolete fouter, a fuck, from French foutre, to fuck, from Latin futuere. See bhau- in Appendix.] —foo'tler n.

foot·less (fōōt'lis) adj. 1. Having no feet. 2. Lacking a firm support or basis; unsubstantial. 3. Informal. Not competent or skillful; inept. —foot/less·ly adv. —foot/less·ness n.

foot·lights (fōōt'līts') pl.n. 1. Lights placed in a row along the front of a stage floor. 2. The theater as a profession.

foo·tling (fōōt'ling) adj. Informal. 1. Lacking importance or significance; trifling: a footling gesture. 2. Stupid; inept. [Present participle of FOOTLE.]

foot·lock·er (fōōt'lök'ər) n. A trunk for storing personal belongings, especially one kept at the foot of a bed, as in a barracks.

foot·long (fōōt'lông', -lông') adj. Being about one foot in length: a footlong hot dog.

foot·loose (fōōt'lōōs') adj. Having no attachments or ties; free to do as one pleases.

foot·man (fōōt'mən) n. 1. A man employed as a servant to wait at table, attend the door, and run various errands, as in a palace. 2. Archaic. a. A foot soldier; an infantryman. b. One who travels on foot; a pedestrian.

foot·mark (fōōt'märk') n. See footprint (n., sense 1).

foot·note (fōōt'nōt') n. 1. Abbr. fn. A note placed at the bottom of a page of a book or manuscript that comments on or cites a reference for a designated part of the text. 2. Something related to but of lesser importance than a larger work or occurrence: a political scandal that was but a footnote to modern history. — v. tr. foot·not·ed, foot·not·ing, foot·notes. To furnish with or comment on in footnotes.

foot·pace (fōōt'pās') n. 1. A walking pace. 2. A raised platform in a room, as for a lecturer; a dais.

foot·pad¹ (fōōt'pād') n. A thief who preys on pedestrians. [FOOT + obsolete pad, highwayman (probably from Middle Dutch pad, path); see pent- in Appendix.]

foot·pad² (fōōt'pād') n. A plate or similar structure on the leg of a spacecraft that distributes weight and helps prevent sinking after landing.

foot·path (fōōt'pāth', -pāth') n. A narrow path for persons on foot.

foot·pound (fōōt'pound') n. Abbr. ft-lb A unit of work equal to the work done by a force of one pound acting through a distance of one foot in the direction of the force.

foot·pound·al (fōōt'poun'dl) n. A unit of work equal to the work done by a force of one poundal acting through a distance of one foot in the direction of the force.

foot·pound·second (fōōt'pound'sēk'ənd) adj. Abbr. fps, f.p.s. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the British, Canadian, or U.S. system of units based on the foot, the pound, and the second as the fundamental units of length, mass, and time.

foot·print (fōōt'prīnt') n. 1. An outline or indentation left by a foot on a surface. Also called footmark, footstep. 2. An area within which a spacecraft is supposed to land. 3. A designated area affected or covered by a device or phenomenon: the footprint of a microcomputer; the footprint of a communications satellite.

foot·race or foot race (fōōt'rās') n. Sports. A race run by contestants on foot. —foot'rac'ing n.

foot·rest (fōōt'rēst') n. A support on which to rest the feet.

foot·rope (fōōt'rōp') n. Nautical. 1. A rope attached to the lower border of a sail. 2. A rope, rigged beneath a yard, for sailors to stand on during the reefing or furling of sail.

foot rot (fōōt rōt) n. 1. A degenerative bacterial infection of the feet in certain hoofed animals, especially cattle or sheep, often resulting in loss of the hoof. 2. A disease of plants in which the stem or trunk rots at its base.

foot·sie also foot·sy (fōōt'sē) n. Informal. The act of flirting in which one secretly touches the feet or legs of another with one's own, as under a table. —idiom. play footsie with. 1. To flirt with, especially in secret. 2. To cooperate or curry favor with in a sly or devious way. [From diminutive of FOOT.]

foot·slog (fōōt'slōg') v. intr. foot·slogged, foot·slog·ging, foot·slogs. To march or trudge through or as if through mud. —foot'slog'ger n.

foot soldier (fōōt sōl'jər) n. A soldier who fights on foot; an infantry trooper.

foot·sore (fōōt'sōr', -sōr') adj. Having sore or tired feet, as from too much walking. —foot'sore'ness n.

foot-stalk (fōōt/'stôk') n. A supporting stalk, such as a peduncle or pedicel.

foot-stall (fōōt/'stôl') n. The pedestal, plinth, or base of a pillar, column, or statue.

foot-step (fōōt/'stĕp') n. 1. a. A step with the foot. b. The sound of a foot stepping. Also called footfall 2. The distance covered by a step: a footstep away.

3. See footprint (n., sense 1). 4. A step on which to go up or down. —idiom.

follow in (someone's) footsteps. To carry on the behavior, work, or tradition of.

foot-stone (fōōt/'stôn') n. A marking stone placed at the foot of a grave.

foot-stool (fōōt/'stool') n. A low stool for supporting the feet.

foot-sy (fōōt/'sē) n. Informal. Variant of footsie.

foot-wall (fōōt/'wôl') n. The mass of rock underlying a mineral deposit in a mine.

foot-way (fōōt/'wā') n. A walk or path for pedestrians.

foot-wear (fōōt/'wâr') n. Attire, such as shoes or slippers, for the feet.

foot-work (fōōt/'wûrk') n. 1. Sports. The manner in which the feet are used or maneuvered, as in boxing or in figure skating. 2. Work that involves moving around on foot; legwork. 3. Informal. Skillful dealing or maneuvering; tactics: "They've built a corporate empire on dazzling financial footwork" (Christopher Farrell).

foo-zle (fōō/'zəl) v. tr. foo-zled, foo-zling, foo-zles. To manage clumsily; bungle. — n. The act of bungling, especially a poor stroke in golf. [Perhaps from German dialectal fuseln, to work poorly or slowly.] —foo'zler n.

fop (föp) n. A man who is preoccupied with and often vain about his clothes and manners; a dandy. [Middle English, fool probably akin to Middle English job, trickster, cheat. See FOB².]

fop-per-y (föp/'ə-rē) n. pl. fop-per-ies. 1. Foolish quality or action. 2. The dress or manner of a fop.

fop-pish (föp/'ish) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a fop; dandified.

—fop/pish-ly adv. —fop/pish-ness n.

for (fôr; fər when unstressed) prep. 1. a. Used to indicate the object, aim, or purpose of an action or activity: trained for the ministry; put the house up for sale; plans to run for senator. b. Used to indicate a destination: headed off for town.

2. Used to indicate the object of a desire, an intention, or a perception: had a nose for news; eager for fame and fortune. 3. a. Used to indicate the recipient or beneficiary of an action: prepared lunch for us. b. On behalf of: spoke for all the members. c. In favor of: Were they for or against the proposal? d. In place of: a substitute for eggs.

4. a. Used to indicate equivalence or equality: paid ten dollars for a ticket; repeated the conversation word for word. b. Used to indicate correlation or correspondence: took two steps back for every step forward. 5. a. Used to indicate amount, extent, or duration: a bill for five dollars; walked for miles; stood in line for several minutes. b. Used to indicate a specific time: had an appointment for two o'clock. 6. a. As being: take for granted; mistook me for the librarian. b. Used to indicate an actual or implied listing or choosing: For one thing, we can't afford it. 7. As a result of; because of: jumped for joy. 8. Used to indicate appropriateness or suitability: It will be for the judge to decide.

9. Notwithstanding; despite: For all the problems, it was a valuable experience.

10. a. As regards; concerning: a stickler for neatness. b. Considering the nature or usual character of: was spry for his advanced age. c. In honor of: named for her grandmother. — conj. Because; since. [Middle English, from Old English. See per¹ in Appendix.]

FOR abbr. Free on rail.

for. abbr. 1. Foreign. 2. Forest; forestry.

for- pref. Completely; excessively, especially with destructive or detrimental effect: forworn. [Middle English, from Old English. See per¹ in Appendix.]

fo-ra (fôr'ə, fôr'ə) n. A plural of forum.

for-age (fôr'ij, fôr'-) n. 1. Food for domestic animals; fodder. 2. The act of looking or searching for food or provisions. — v. for-aged, for-ag-ing, for-ag-es. — v. intr. 1. To wander in search of food or provisions. 2. To make a raid, as for food: soldiers foraging near an abandoned farm. 3. To conduct a search; rummage. — v. tr. 1. To collect forage from; strip of food or supplies: troops who were foraging the countryside. 2. Informal. To obtain by foraging: foraged a snack from the refrigerator. [Middle English, from Old French fouirage, from forrer, to forage, from feurre, fodder, of Germanic origin. See pā- in Appendix.] — for'ag-er n.

For-a-ker (fôr'ə-kər, fôr'-), Mount. A peak, 5,307 m (17,400 ft) high, in the Alaska Range of south-central Alaska.

for-am (fôr'əm, fôr'-) n. A foraminifer. [Short for FORAMINIFER.]

fo-ra-men (fə-rā'mən) n. pl. fo-ram-i-na (-rām'ə-nə) or fo-ra-mens. An opening or orifice, as in a bone or in the covering of the ovule of a plant. [Latin forāmen, an opening, from forāre, to bore.] — fo-ram'i-nal (-rām'ə-nəl), fo-ram'i-nous (-nəs) adj.

foramen magnum (fə-rā'mən mäg'nəm) n. The large orifice in the base of the skull through which the spinal cord passes to the cranial cavity and becomes continuous with the medulla oblongata. [New Latin forāmen magnum : Latin forāmen, opening + Latin magnus, large.]

foramen o-val-e (fə-rā'mən ō-vāl'ē, -vāl'ē, -vāl'-) n. An opening in the septum between the right and left atria of the heart, present in the fetus but usually closed soon after birth. [New Latin forāmen ōvāle : Latin forāmen, opening + Medieval Latin ōvālis, oval.]

fo-ram-i-na (fə-rām'ə-nə) n. A plural of foramen.

for·a·min·i·fer (fôr'ə-mĭn'ə-fər, fôr'-) also for·a·min·i·fer·an (-mĭn'ə-fər-ən) n. pl. fo·ram·i·nif·er·a (fə-rām'ə-nĭf'ər-ə) or for·a·min·i·fers. Any of the chiefly marine protozoans of the order Foraminifera, characteristically having a calcareous shell with perforations through which numerous pseudopods protrude. [From New Latin Forāminifera, order name : Latin forāmen, forāmin-, an opening + Latin -fer, -fer.] — fo·ram'·i·nif'er·ous (fə-rām'ə-nĭf'ər-əs), fo·ram'·i·nif'er·al adj.

for·as·much as (fôr'əz-mŭch' əz) conj. Inasmuch as; since.

for·ay (fôr'ā', fôr'ā', fôr'ā') n. 1. A sudden raid or military advance. 2. A venture or an initial attempt, especially outside one's usual area: an actor's foray into politics. — v. for·ayed, for·ay·ing, for·ays. — v. intr. 1. To make a raid. 2. To make inroads, as for profit or adventure. — v. tr. Archaic. To pillage in search of spoils. [Middle English forrai, from forraien, to plunder, probably back-formation from forreour, raider, plunderer, from Old French forrier, from forrer, to forage. See FORAGE.]

forb (fôr) n. A broad-leaved herb other than a grass, especially one growing in a field, prairie, or meadow. [From Greek phorbē, fodder, from pherbein, to graze.]

for·bad (fər-bād', fôr-) v. A past tense of forbid.

for·bade (fər-bād', -bād', fôr-) v. A past tense of forbid.

for·bear¹ (fôr-bâr') v. for·bore (-bôr', -bōr'), for·borne (-bōrn', -bōrn'), for·bear·ing, for·bears. — v. tr. 1. To refrain from; resist: forbear replying. See Synonyms at refrain¹. 2. To desist from; cease. 3. Obsolete. To avoid or shun. — v. intr. 1. To hold back; refrain. 2. To be tolerant or patient in the face of provocation. [Middle English forberen, from Old English forberan, to endure. See bher-¹ in Appendix.] — for·bear'er n.

for·bear² (fôr'bâr', fôr'-) n. Variant of forebear.

for·bear·ance (fôr-bâr'əns) n. 1. The act of forbearing. 2. Tolerance and restraint in the face of provocation; patience. See Synonyms at patience. 3. The quality of being forbearing. 4. Law. The act of a creditor who refrains from enforcing a debt when it falls due.

Forbes (fôrbz), B(ertie) C(harles). 1880-1954. American publisher and businessman who founded and edited (1916-1954) Forbes magazine. His son Malcolm Stevenson Forbes (1919-1990), who assumed the editorship in 1957, was an avid collector and set six world records in hot-air ballooning in 1973.

Forbes·Rob·ert·son (fôrbz-rōb'ərt-sən), Sir Johnston. 1853-1937. British actor known particularly for his portrayal of Hamlet.

for·bid (fər-bĭd', fôr-) v. tr. for·bade (-bād', -bād') or for·bad (-bād'), for·bid·den (-bĭd'n) or for·bid, for·bid·ding, for·bids. 1. To command (someone) not to do something: I forbid you to go. 2. To command against the doing or use of (something); prohibit: forbid smoking on trains. 3. To have the effect of preventing; preclude: Discretion forbids a reply. [Middle English forbid-den, forbeden, from Old English forbēodan. See bheudh- in Appendix.]

—for-bid'dance n. —for-bid'der n.

SYNONYMS: forbid, ban, enjoin, interdict, prohibit, proscribe. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to refuse to allow”: laws that forbid speeding; banned smoking; was enjoined from broadcasting the news item; interdict trafficking in drugs; rules that prohibit swimming in the reservoir; proscribed the importation of raw fruits and vegetables.

ANTONYM: permit

for·bid·den (fər-bīd'n, fôr-) v. A past participle of forbid. — adj. Physics. Having a low probability of occurrence. Used of quantum phenomena: a forbidden transition.

For-bid-den City (fər-bīd'n sīt'ē, fôr-) A walled enclosure of central Beijing, China, containing the palaces of former Chinese rulers. Formerly closed to the public (hence its name), it was opened as a vast museum area but reclosed after student demonstrations in Tiananmen Square in 1989.

forbidden fruit (fər-bīd'n frōt) n. An indulgence or a pleasure that is illegal or is believed to be immoral. [From the story of the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, forbidden to Adam and Eve in Genesis 2:16-3:19.]

for-bid·ding (fər-bīd'ing, fôr-) adj. 1. Tending or threatening to impede progress: forbidding rapids. 2. Unpleasant; disagreeable: a forbidding scowl. 3. Having a menacing aspect: forbidding thunderclouds. —for-bid'ding-ly adv.

for-bore (fôr-bōr', -bōr') v. Past tense of forbear¹.

for-borne (fôr-bōrn', -bōrn') v. Past participle of forbear¹.

force (fōrs, fōrs) n. 1. The capacity to do work or cause physical change; energy, strength, or active power: the force of an explosion. 2. a. Power made operative against resistance; exertion: use force in driving a nail. b. The use of physical power or violence to compel or restrain: a confession obtained by force.

3. a. Intellectual power or vigor, especially as conveyed in writing or speech. b. Moral strength. c. A capacity for affecting the mind or behavior; efficacy: the force of logical argumentation. d. One that possesses such capacity: the forces of evil. 4. a. A body of persons or other resources organized or available for a certain purpose: a large labor force. b. A person or group capable of influential action: a retired senator who is still a force in national politics. 5. a. Military strength. b. The entire military strength, as of a nation. c. Units of a nation's military personnel, especially those deployed into combat: Our forces have at last engaged the enemy. 6. Law. Legal validity. 7. Physics. A vector quantity that tends to produce an acceleration of a body in the direction of its application. — v. tr.

forced, forc-ing, forc-es. 1. To compel through pressure or necessity: I forced myself to practice daily. He was forced to take a second job. 2. a. To gain by the use of force or coercion: force a confession. b. To move or effect against resistance or inertia: forced my foot into the shoe. c. To inflict or impose relentlessly: He forced his ideas upon the group. 3. a. To put undue strain on: She forced her voice despite being hoarse. b. To increase or accelerate (a pace, for example) to the maximum. c. To produce with effort and against one's will: force a laugh in spite of pain. d. To use (language) with obvious lack of ease and naturalness. 4. a. To move, open, or clear by force: forced our way through the crowd. b. To break down or open by force: force a lock. 5. To rape. 6. Botany. To cause to grow or mature by artificially accelerating normal processes. 7. Baseball. a. To put (a runner) out on a force play. b. To allow (a run) to be scored by walking a batter when the bases are loaded. 8. Games. To cause an opponent to play (a particular card). —idioms. force (someone's) hand. To force to act or speak prematurely or unwillingly. in force. 2. In full strength; in large numbers: Demonstrators were out in force. 3. In effect; operative: a rule that is no longer in force. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin fortia, from neuter pl. of Latin fortis, strong. See bhergh-² in Appendix.] —force'a-ble adj. —forc'er n.

SYNONYMS: force, compel, coerce, constrain, oblige, obligate. These verbs mean to cause a person or thing to follow a prescribed or dictated course. Force, the most general, usually implies the exertion of strength, especially physical power, or the operation of circumstances that permit no alternative to compliance: Tear gas forced the fugitives out of their hiding place. Lack of funds will eventually force him to look for work. Compel is often interchangeable with force, but it applies especially to an act dictated by one in authority: Say nothing unless you're compelled to. His playing compels respect, if not enthusiasm. Coerce invariably implies the use of strength or harsh measures in securing compliance: "The way in which the man of genius rules is by persuading an efficient minority to coerce an indifferent and self-indulgent majority" (James Fitzjames Stephen). Constrain suggests that one is bound to a course of action by physical or moral means or by the operation of compelling circumstances: "I am your anointed Queen. I will never be by violence constrained to do anything" (Elizabeth I). Oblige is applicable when compliance is brought about by the operation of authority, necessity, or moral or ethical considerations: "Work consists of whatever a body is obliged to do" (Mark Twain). Obligate applies when force is exerted by the terms of a legal contract or promise or by the dictates of one's conscience or sense of propriety: I am obligated to repay the loan. See also Synonyms at strength forced (fôrst, fôrst) adj. 1. Imposed by force; involuntary: was condemned to a life of forced labor; a plane that made a forced landing. 2. Produced under strain; not spontaneous: forced laughter. See Usage Note at forceful.

forced march (fôrst mäch) n. A march that is longer or faster than usual, as for a critical destination.

force-feed (fôrs'fēd', fôrs'-) v. tr. force--fed (-fēd'), force--feed-ing, force--feeds. 1. To compel to ingest food; feed forcibly, especially by mechanical means. 2. To force to assimilate: prisoners of war being force-fed the party line.

force field (fôrs fēld) n. See field of force.

force-ful (fôrs'fəl, fôrs'-) adj. Characterized by or full of force; effective.
—force/ful-ly adv. —force/ful-ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Forceful, forcible, and forced have distinct, though related meanings. Forceful is used to describe someone or something that possesses or is filled with strength or force: a forceful speaker; a forceful personality. Forceful measures may or may not involve the use of actual physical force. Forcible, by contrast, is most often used of actions accomplished by the application of physical force: There had been a forcible entry. The police had to use forcible restraint in order to arrest the suspect. Forced is used to describe an act or a condition brought about by control or an outside influence: a forced smile; a forced landing; forced labor.

force majeure (fôrs' mä-zhûr', fôrs') n. 1. Superior or overpowering force. 2. An unexpected or uncontrollable event. [French : force, force + majeure, greater.] force-march (fôrs'mäch', fôrs'-) v. intr. tr. force--marched, force--march-ing, force--march-es. To undertake or subject to a forced march. [Back-formation from forced march.]

force-meat (fôrs'mēt', fôrs'-) n. Finely ground and highly spiced meat, fish, or poultry that is served alone or used in stuffing. [Force (alteration of FARCE) + MEAT.]

force of habit (fôrs ũv häb'it) n. Behavior that has become automatic through long practice or frequent repetition.

force-out (fôrs'out', fôrs'-) n. Baseball. The act or fact of putting out a base runner on a force play.

force play (fôrs plā) n. Baseball. A play in which a runner is put out when forced by the batter to move to the next base and a fielder holding the ball touches that base first.

for-cepts (fôr'səps, -səps) n. pl. forceps. 1. An instrument resembling a pair of pincers or tongs, used for grasping, manipulating, or extracting, especially such an instrument used by a surgeon. 2. A pincerlike pair of movable appendages at the posterior end of the abdomen in certain insects, such as earwigs. [Latin, fire tongs, pincers. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

force pump (fôrs pŭmp) n. A pump with a solid piston and valves used to raise a liquid or expel it under pressure.

forc·i·ble (fôr'sə-bəl, fôr'-) adj. 1. Effected against resistance through the use of force: a forcible entry. 2. Characterized by force; powerful. See Usage Note at forceful. —forc'i·ble·ness n. —forc'i·bly adv.

for·ci·pate (fôr'sə-pāt') adj. Shaped like or resembling forceps. [Latin forceps, forcip-, pincers; see g^wher- in Appendix + -ATE¹.]

ford (fôrd, fôrd) n. A shallow place in a body of water, such as a river, where one can cross by walking or riding on an animal or in a vehicle. — v. tr. ford·ed, ford·ing, fords. To cross (a body of water) at a ford. [Middle English, from Old English. See per-² in Appendix.] —ford'a·ble adj.

Ford (fôrd, fôrd), Edward. Known as “Whitey.” Born 1928. American baseball player who won a record ten World Series games as a pitcher for the New York Yankees (1950-1967).

Ford (fôrd, fôrd), Elizabeth Bloomer. Known as “Betty.” Born 1918. First Lady of the United States (1974-1977) as the wife of President Gerald R. Ford. She supported the Equal Rights Amendment, the arts, and programs for disabled children.

Ford (fôrd, fôrd), Ford Madox. Originally Ford Hermann Hueffer. 1873-1939. British writer and editor whose most important novels, The Good Soldier (1915) and the tetralogy Parade's End (1924-1928), examine the bonds of conjugal and adulterous relationships.

Ford (fôrd, fôrd), Gerald Rudolph. Born 1913. The 38th President of the United States (1974-1977), who was appointed Vice President on the resignation of Spiro Agnew (1973) and became President after Richard Nixon's resignation over the Watergate scandal. As President, Ford granted a full pardon to Nixon (1974).

Ford (fôrd, fôrd), Henry. 1863-1947. American automobile manufacturer who developed a gasoline-powered automobile (1893), founded the Ford Motor Company (1903), and mass-produced the Model T (1908-1927), the first generally affordable and widely available automobile. His son Edsel Bryant Ford (1893-1943) ran the company from 1919 to 1943, as did his grandson Henry Ford II (1917-1987) from 1945 to 1980.

Ford¹ (fôrd, fôrd), John. 1586-1639. English playwright whose works include 'Tis Pity She's a Whore (1633) and collaborative efforts, notably with Thomas Dekker and John Webster.

Ford² (fôrd, fôrd), John. 1895-1973. American filmmaker who won an Academy Award for his direction of The Informer (1935), The Grapes of Wrath (1940), How Green Was My Valley (1941), and The Quiet Man (1952).

for·do also fore·do (fôr-dōō', fôr-) v. tr. for·did (-dīd'), for·done (-dŭn'), for·do·ing, for·does (-dŭz'). Archaic. 1. To bring to ruin; destroy. 2. To exhaust utterly. [Middle English fordon, from Old English fordōn : for-, for- + dōn, to do; see dhē- in Appendix.]

fore (fôr, fôr) adj. 1. Located at or toward the front; forward. 2. Earlier in order of occurrence; former. — n. 1. Something that is located at or toward the front. 2. The front part. — adv. 1. At, toward, or near the front; forward. 2. At an earlier time. — prep. also 'fore Before. — interj. Sports. Used by a golfer to warn those ahead that a ball is headed in their direction. — idiom. to the fore. In, into, or toward a position of prominence: A new virtuoso has come to the fore. [Middle English, beforehand, before, in front of, from Old English. See per¹ in Appendix.]

fore- pref. 1. Before; earlier: foredoom. 2. In front of; front: foredeck. [Middle English for-, fore-, from Old English, from fore, in front. See per¹ in Appendix.]

fore and aft (fôr ænd äft) adv. 1. Nautical. a. From the bow of a ship to the stern; lengthwise. b. In, at, or toward both ends of a ship. 2. In or at the front and back.

fore-and-aft (fôr'ən-äft', fôr'-) adj. Parallel with the length of a structure, such as a ship or house; running lengthwise.

fore-and-aft-er (fôr'ən-äft'tər, fôr'-) n. Nautical. A sailing ship, such as a schooner, with a fore-and-aft rig.

fore-and-aft rig (fôr'ən-äft' rĭg) n. Nautical. A rig on a sailing ship that has quadrilateral and triangular sails set to the fore-and-aft line and that can be trimmed to leeward.

fore-and-aft sail (fôr'ən-äft' sāl) n. Nautical. A sail set parallel with the keel of a vessel, having the foremost edge or luff attached to the mast with travelers and the upper edge set on a gaff or stay.

fore-arm¹ (fôr-ärm', fôr'-) v. tr. fore-armed, fore-arm-ing, fore-arms. To arm or prepare in advance of a conflict.

fore-arm² (fôr'ärm', fôr'-) n. 1. The part of the arm between the wrist and the elbow. 2. The corresponding part of the foreleg in certain quadrupeds, such as a horse.

fore-bear also for-bear (fôr'bâr', fôr'-) n. A person from whom one is descended; an ancestor. See Synonyms at ancestor. [Middle English : fore-, fore- + beer, one who is (from been, to be); see BE.] fore-bode (fôr-bōd', fôr-) v. fore-bod-ed, fore-bod-ing, fore-bodes. — v. tr. 1. To indicate the likelihood of; portend: harsh words that foreboded estrangement. 2. To have a premonition of (a future misfortune). — v. intr. To prophesy or predict. — fore-bod'er n.

fore-bod-ing (fôr-bō'dĭng, fôr-) n. 1. A sense of impending evil. See Synonyms at apprehension. 2. An evil omen; a portent. — adj. Marked by or indicative of foreboding; ominous. — fore-bod'ing-ly adv.

— fore-bod'ing-ness n.

fore-brain (fôr'brān', fôr'-) n. 1. The most anterior of the three primary regions of the embryonic brain from which the telencephalon and diencephalon develop. 2. The segment of the adult brain that develops from the embryonic forebrain and includes the cerebrum, thalamus, and hypothalamus.

fore-cad-die (fôr'käd'ē, fôr'-) n. Sports. A golf caddie who is positioned in the fairway and points out the location of balls on the course.

fore-cast (fôr'käst', fôr'-) v. fore-cast or fore-cast-ed, fore-cast-ing, fore-casts. — v. tr. 1. To estimate or calculate in advance, especially to predict (weather conditions) by analysis of meteorological data. See Synonyms at pre-dict. 2. To serve as an advance indication of; foreshadow: price increases that forecast inflation. — v. intr. To calculate or estimate something in advance; predict the future. — n. A prediction, as of coming events or conditions. [Middle English forecasten, to plan beforehand : fore-, fore- + casten, to throw, calculate, prepare; see CAST.] —fore-cast/a-ble adj. —fore'cast'er n.

fore-cas-tle (fök'səl, fôr'käs'əl, fôr'-) also fo'c's'le (fök'səl) n. Nautical.

1. The section of the upper deck of a ship located at the bow forward of the foremast. 2. A superstructure at the bow of a merchant ship where the crew is housed. [Middle English forecastel : fore-, fore- + castel, fortification; see CASTLE.]

fore-check (fôr'chĕk', fôr'-) v. intr. fore--checked, fore--check-ing, fore-checks. Sports. To check an ice-hockey opponent in the opponent's own defensive zone. —fore'-check'er n.

fore-close (fôr-klōz', fôr-) v. fore-closed, fore-clos-ing, fore-clos-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To deprive (a mortgagor) of the right to redeem mortgaged property, as when payments have not been made. b. To bar an equity or a right to redeem (a mortgage). 2. To exclude or rule out; bar. 3. To settle or resolve beforehand. — v. intr. To bar an equity or a right to redeem a mortgage. [Middle English forclösen, to exclude from an inheritance, from Old French forclōs, shut out, past participle of forclōre, to exclude : fors-, outside (from Latin forīs); see dhwer- in Appendix + clōre, to close (from Latin claudere).] —fore-clos/a-ble adj.

fore-clo-sure (fôr-klō'zhər, fôr-) n. The act of foreclosing, especially a legal proceeding by which a mortgage is foreclosed.

fore-court (fôr'kōrt', fôr'kōrt') n. 1. A courtyard in front of a building.

2. Sports. The part of a court nearest the net or wall, as in tennis or handball.

fore-deck (fôr'dĕk', fôr'-) n. Nautical. The forward part of the deck of a ship, usually the main deck.

fore-do (fôr-dō', fôr-) v. Variant of fordo.

fore-doom (fôr-dōm', fôr-) v. tr. fore-doomed, fore-doom-ing, fore-dooms. To doom or condemn beforehand.

fore-edge painting (fôr'ēj' pān'tīng, fôr'-) n. A technique of painting a picture on the front outer edges of the leaves of a book, so that the picture is visible only when the leaves are fanned open.

fore-face (fôr'fās', fôr'-) n. The part of the head of a four-legged mammal that is in front of the eyes.

fore-fa·ther (fôr'fä'thər, fôr'-) n. 1. An ancestor. See Synonyms at ancestor.

2. A person who is from an earlier time and has originated or contributed to a common tradition shared by a particular group.

fore-feel (fôr-fēl', fôr-) v. tr. fore-felt (-fēlt'), fore-feel-ing, fore-feels. To feel beforehand; have a premonition of.

fore-fend (fôr-fënd', fôr-) v. Variant of forfend.

fore-fin·ger (fôr'fing'gər, fôr'-) n. See index finger.

fore-foot (fôr'fōōt', fôr'-) n. 1. Either of the front feet of a quadruped.

2. Nautical. The part of a ship at which the prow joins the keel.

fore-front (fôr'frünt', fôr'-) n. 1. The foremost part or area. 2. The position of most importance, prominence, or responsibility; the vanguard: in the forefront of the liberation movement. In this sense, also called foreground fore-gath·er (fôr-găth'ər, fôr-) v. Variant of forgather.

fore-go¹ (fôr-gō', fôr-) v. tr. fore-went (-wënt'), fore-gone (-gôn', -gön'), fore-go-ing, fore-goes (-gōz'). To precede, as in time or place. [Middle English foregon, from Old English foregān : fore-, fore- + gān, go; see ghē- in Appendix.] — fore-go'er n.

fore-go² (fôr-gō', fôr-) v. Variant of forgo.

fore-go-ing (fôr-gō'ing, fôr-, fôr'gō'ing, fôr'-) adj. Said, written, or encountered just before; previous: Refer to the foregoing figures.

fore-gone v. (fôr-gôn', -gön', fôr-) Past participle of forego¹. — adj. (fôr'gôn', -gön', fôr'-) Having gone before; previous. [Past participle of FOREGO¹.]

foregone conclusion (fôr-gôn' kən-klōō'zhən) n. 1. An end or a result regarded as inevitable: The victory was a foregone conclusion. 2. A conclusion formed in advance of argument or consideration.

fore-ground (fôr'ground', fôr'-) n. 1. The part of a scene or picture that is nearest to and in front of the viewer. 2. See forefront (n., sense 2).

fore-gut (fôr'güt', fôr'-) n. 1. The anterior part of the embryonic alimentary canal of a vertebrate from which the pharynx, lungs, esophagus, stomach, liver, pancreas, and duodenum develop. 2. The first part of the alimentary canal of an arthropod or annelid, which includes the buccal cavity, esophagus, crop, and gizzard.

fore-hand (fôr'händ', fôr'-) adj. 1. Made or done with the hand moving palm forward: a forehand tennis stroke. 2. Obsolete. Taking place, done, or given beforehand; prior. — n. 1. A forehand stroke, as in tennis. 2. The part of a horse in front of the rider. — adv. With a forehand stroke or motion.

fore-hand-ed (fôr'händ'dīd, fôr'-) adj. 1. Forehand, as in tennis.

2. a. Looking or planning ahead; circumspect. b. Having ample financial resources; well-off. — fore'hand/ed-ly adv. — fore'hand/ed-ness n.

fore-head (fôr'id, -hĕd', fôr'-) n. 1. The part of the face between the eyebrows, the normal hairline, and the temples. 2. The front part of something. [Middle English forhed, from Old English forhĕafod: for-, fore- + hĕafod, head; see HEAD.]

for-eign (fôr'in, fôr'-) adj. Abbr. for. 1. Located away from one's native country: on business in a foreign city. 2. Of, characteristic of, or from a place or country other than the one being considered: a foreign custom. 3. Conducted or involved with other nations or governments; not domestic: foreign trade. 4. Situated in an abnormal or improper place in the body and typically introduced from outside: a foreign object in the eye. 5. Not natural; alien: Jealousy is foreign to her nature. 6. Not germane; irrelevant. 7. Subject to the jurisdiction of another political unit. [Middle English forein, from Old French forain, from Late Latin forānus, on the outside, from Latin forās, outside. See dhwer- in Appendix.] —for'eign-ness n.

SYNONYMS: foreign, alien, exotic, strange. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “of, from, or characteristic of another place or part of the world”: a foreign accent; alien customs; exotic birds; moved to a strange city. See also Synonyms at extrinsic foreign affairs (fôr'in ə-fârz') pl.n. Affairs concerning international relations and national interests in foreign countries.

foreign aid (fôr'in ād) n. Aid, such as economic or military assistance, offered by one nation to another.

foreign bill (fôr'in bĭl) n. A draft for a sum of money to be paid in another country.

for-eign-born (fôr'in-bôrn', fôr'-) adj. Foreign by birth; not native to the country in which one resides.

foreign correspondent (fôr'in kôr'ĭ-spŏn'dənt) n. A correspondent who sends news reports or commentary from a foreign country for broadcast or publication.

for-eign-er (fôr'ə-nər, fôr'-) n. 1. One who is from a foreign country or place. 2. One who is from outside a particular group or community; an outsider.

foreign exchange (fôr'in ĭks-chānj') n. Abbr. FX 1. Transaction of international monetary business, as between governments or businesses of different countries. 2. Negotiable bills drawn in one country to be paid in another country.

for-eign-ism (fôr'ĭ-nĭz'əm, fôr'-) n. A foreign idiom or custom.

foreign minister (fôr'in mĭn'ĭ-stər) n. A cabinet minister in charge of a nation's foreign affairs.

- foreign mission (fôr'în mîsh'ən) n. 1. A permanent diplomatic legation established in a foreign country. 2. A religious group especially of Christians sent to a foreign country for missionary service.
- foreign office (fôr'în ô'fîs) n. Abbr. FO, F.O. The governmental department in charge of foreign affairs in certain countries.
- foreign policy (fôr'în pŏl'i-sē) n. The diplomatic policy of a nation in its interactions with other nations.
- For-eign Service (fôr'în sûr'vîs, fŏr'-) n. Abbr. FS 1. The diplomatic and consular staff of the United States. 2. foreign service. The diplomatic and consular personnel of a nation's foreign office.
- fore-judge also for-judge (fôr-jűj', fŏr'-) v. tr. fore-judged, fore-judg-ing, fore-judg-es. To judge beforehand without adequate examination or evidence; prejudge. —fore-judg'ment n.
- fore-know (fôr-nŏ', fŏr'-) v. tr. fore-knew (-nŏŏ', -nyŏŏ'), fore-known (-nŏn'), fore-know-ing, fore-knows. To have foreknowledge of, especially by supernatural means or through revelation.
- fore-knowl-edge (fôr-nŏl'ij, fŏr-, fôr'nŏl'-, fŏr'-) n. Knowledge or awareness of something before its existence or occurrence; prescience.
- fore-known (fôr-nŏn', fŏr'-) v. Past participle of foreknow.
- fore-la-dy (fôr'lā'dē, fŏr'-) n. See forewoman.
- fore-land (fôr'lænd, fŏr'-) n. A projecting land mass; a promontory.
- fore-leg (fôr'lĕg', fŏr'-) n. Either of the front legs of a quadruped.
- fore-limb (fôr'lîm', fŏr'-) n. An anterior appendage, such as a leg, wing, or flipper.
- fore-lock¹ (fôr'lŏk', fŏr'-) n. A lock of hair that grows from or falls on the forehead, especially the part of a horse's mane that falls forward between the ears.
- fore-lock² (fôr'lŏk', fŏr'-) n. A cotter pin; a linchpin.
- fore-man (fôr'mæn, fŏr'-) n. 1. A man who serves as the leader of a work crew, as in a factory. 2. A man who chairs and speaks for a jury. —fore'man-ship n.
- fore-mast (fôr'mæst, -mäst', fŏr'-) n. Nautical. The forward mast on a sailing vessel.
- fore-milk (fôr'mîlk', fŏr'-) n. See colostrum.
- fore-most (fôr'mŏst', fŏr'-) adj. 1. First in time or place. 2. Ahead of all others, especially in position or rank; paramount. See Synonyms at chief. — adv. 1. In the front or first position. 2. So as to be most important. [Alteration of Middle English formest, superlative of forme, first, from Old English forma. See per¹ in Appendix.]
- fore-moth-er (fôr'mŭth'ər, fŏr'-) n. A woman ancestor.
- fore-name (fôr'nām', fŏr'-) n. A name before one's surname; a first name.
- fore-named (fôr'nāmd', fŏr'-) adj. Named previously; aforementioned.

fore-noon (fôr'nōon', fôr'-, fôr-nōon', fôr-) n. The period of time between sunrise and noon; morning.

fo-ren-sic (fə-rĕn'sik, -zĭk) adj. 1. Relating to, used in, or appropriate for courts of law or for public discussion or argumentation. 2. Of, relating to, or used in debate or argument; rhetorical. [From Latin forēnsis, public, of a forum, from forum, forum. See dhwer- in Appendix.] —fo-ren'si-cal-ly adv.

forensic medicine (fə-rĕn'sik mĕd'i-sĭn) n. The branch of medicine that interprets or establishes the facts in civil or criminal law cases. Also called medical jurisprudence fo-ren-sics (fə-rĕn'siks, -zĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The art or study of formal debate; argumentation.

fore-or-dain (fôr'ôr-dān', fôr'-) v. tr. fore-or-dained, fore-or-dain-ing, fore-or-dains. To determine or appoint beforehand; predestine. —fore'or-dain'ment, fore-or'di-na'tion (-ôr'dn-ā'shən) n.

fore-part (fôr'pärt', fôr'-) n. 1. The first or early part of a period of time. 2. The anterior part, as of an object or organism.

fore-paw (fôr'pô', fôr'-) n. The paw of an animal's foreleg.

fore-peak (fôr'pĕk', fôr'-) n. Nautical. The section of the hold of a ship that is within the angle made by the bow and is used for trimming or for storage of cargo.

fore-per-son (fôr'pûr'sən, fôr'-) n. 1. The chair and spokesperson for a jury: "A jury gives no reasons for its decision; it reaches a collective result, announced by the foreperson" (Hiller B. Zobel). 2. The leader of a work crew, as in a factory.

fore-play (fôr'plā', fôr'-) n. Sexual stimulation preceding intercourse.

fore-quar-ter (fôr'kwôr'tər, fôr'-) n. 1. The front section of a side of meat. 2. The foreleg, shoulder, and adjacent lateral parts of an animal, especially a horse.

fore-ran (fôr-răn', fôr-) v. Past tense of forerun.

fore-reach (fôr-rĕch', fôr-) v. fore-reached, fore-reach-ing, fore-reach-es. Nautical. — v. tr. To gain on or get ahead of (a sailing vessel). — v. intr. 1. To gain on or go ahead of a sailing vessel. 2. To continue moving forward after taking in sail, as when coming about.

fore-run (fôr-rŭn', fôr-) v. tr. fore-ran (-răn'), fore-run, fore-run-ning, fore-runs. 1. To run before. 2. To precede as an indication of what is to follow; foreshadow. 3. To prevent from arriving or occurring; forestall.

fore-run-ner (fôr'rŭn'ər, fôr'-) n. 1. a. One that precedes, as in time; a predecessor. b. An ancestor; a forebear. 2. a. One that comes before and indicates the approach of another; a harbinger. b. A warning sign or symptom. 3. Sports. One who skis the course before the beginning of a race.

fore-said (fôr'sĕd', fôr'-) adj. Archaic. Aforesaid.

fore-sail (fôr'sæl, -sāl', fôr'-) n. Nautical. 1. The principal square sail hung to the foremast of a square-rigged vessel. 2. The principal triangular sail hung to the mast of a fore-and-aft-rigged vessel. 3. The triangular sail hung to the forestay of a cutter or sloop.

fore-see (fôr-sē', fôr-) v. tr. fore-saw (-sô'), fore-seen (-sēn'), fore-see-ing, fore-sees. To see or know beforehand: foresaw the rapid increase in unemployment. —fore-see'a-ble adj. —fore-se'er n.

fore-shad-ow (fôr-shăd'ō, fôr-) v. tr. fore-shad-owed, fore-shad-ow-ing, fore-shad-ows. To present an indication or a suggestion of beforehand; presage. —fore-shad'ow-er n.

fore-sheet (fôr'shēt', fôr'-) n. Nautical. 1. A rope used in trimming a foresail. 2. foresheets. The space near the bow of an open boat.

fore-shock (fôr'shök', fôr'-) n. A minor tremor of the earth that precedes a larger earthquake originating at approximately the same location.

fore-shore (fôr'shōr', fôr'shōr') n. 1. The part of a shore that lies between high and low watermarks. 2. The part of a shore between the water and occupied or cultivated land.

fore-short-en (fôr-shôr'tn, fôr-) v. tr. fore-short-ened, fore-short-en-ing, fore-short-ens. 1. To shorten the lines of (an object) in a drawing or other representation so as to produce an illusion of projection or extension in space. 2. To reduce the length of; curtail or abridge.

fore-show (fôr-shō', fôr-) v. tr. fore-showed, fore-shown (-shōn') or fore-showed, fore-show-ing, fore-shows. To show in advance; prefigure.

fore-side (fôr'sīd', fôr'-) n. The front or upper side or part.

fore-sight (fôr'sīt', fôr'-) n. 1. Perception of the significance and nature of events before they have occurred. 2. Care in providing for the future; prudence. See Synonyms at prudence. 3. The act of looking forward. —fore'sight'ed adj. —fore'sight'ed-ly adv. —fore'sight'ed-ness n. —fore'sight'ful adj.

fore-skin (fôr'skīn', fôr'-) n. The loose fold of skin that covers the glans of the penis. Also called prepuce fore-speak (fôr-spēk', fôr-) v. tr. fore-spoke (-spōk'), fore-spo-ken (-spō'kən), fore-speak-ing, fore-speaks. 1. To predict. 2. To arrange for in advance.

for-est (fôr'ĭst, fōr'-) n. Abbr. for. 1. A dense growth of trees, plants, and underbrush covering a large area. 2. Something that resembles a large, dense growth of trees, as in density, quantity, or profusion: a forest of skyscrapers. 3. A defined area of land formerly set aside in England as a royal hunting ground. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: forest management; forest fires. — v. tr. for-est-ed, for-est-ing, for-ests. To plant trees on. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin forestis (silva), outside (forest), from Latin foris, outside. See dhwer- in Appendix.] —for'est-al, fo-res'tial (fə-rēs'chəl) adj. —for'es-ta'tion n.

Fo-rest (fô-rĕ') See Vorst.

fore-stage (fôr'stāj', fôr'-) n. The part of a stage in front of the closed curtain.

fore-stall (fôr-stôl', fôr-) v. tr. fore-stalled, fore-stall-ing, fore-stalls.

1. To delay, hinder, or prevent by taking precautionary measures beforehand. See Synonyms at prevent. 2. To deal with or think of beforehand; anticipate. 3. To prevent or hinder normal sales in (a market) by buying up merchandise, discouraging persons from bringing their goods to market, or encouraging an increase in prices in goods already on sale. [Middle English forestallen, to waylay and rob, from forestal, highway robbery, ambush, from Old English foresteall: fore, fore- + steall, position; see stel- in Appendix.] —fore-stall'er n. —fore-stall'ment n.

fore-stay (fôr'stā', fôr'-) n. Nautical. A stay extending from the head of the foremast to the bowsprit of a ship.

fore-stay-sail (fôr'stā'səl, -sāl', fôr'-) n. Nautical. A triangular sail set on the forestay.

for-est-er (fôr'ī-stər, fôr'-) n. 1. One who is trained in forestry. 2. One that inhabits a forest. 3. Any of various chiefly black moths of the family Agaristidae.

For-est-er (fôr'ī-stər, fôr'-), C(ecil) S(cott). 1899-1966. British writer known for his adventure novels set during the Napoleonic Wars and featuring Horatio Hornblower.

For-est Hills (fôr'īst hīlz, fôr'-) A residential section of New York City in central Queens on western Long Island. Until 1978 the U.S. Open Championship matches were held at the West Side Tennis Club here.

for-est-land (fôr'īst-länd', fôr'-) n. A section of land covered with forest or set aside for the cultivation of forests.

Forest Park (fôr'īst pārk) 1. A city of northwest Georgia, an industrial suburb of Atlanta. Population, 16,925. 2. A village of northeast Illinois west of Chicago. It is mainly residential. Population, 15,177. 3. A city of southwest Ohio, a residential suburb of Cincinnati. Population, 18,609.

forest ranger (fôr'īst rān'jər) n. An officer in charge of protecting or managing a section of a public forest.

for-est-ry (fôr'ī-strē, fôr'-) n. Abbr. for. 1. a. The science and art of cultivating, maintaining, and developing forests. b. The management of a forestland. 2. A forestland.

For-est-ville (fôr'īst-vīl', fôr'-) A community of central Maryland, a suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 16,731.

fore-swear (fôr-swâr', fôr-) v. Variant of forswear.

fore-taste (fôr'tāst', fôr'-) n. 1. An advance token or warning. 2. A slight taste or sample in anticipation of something to come. — v. tr. fore-tast-ed, fore-tast-ing, fore-tastes (fôr-tāst', fôr-, fôr'tāst', fôr'-). To have an anticipatory taste of.

fore-tell (fôr-tĕl', fôr-) v. tr. fore-told (-töld'), fore-tell-ing, fore-tells. To tell of or indicate beforehand; predict. —fore-tell'er n.

SYNONYMS: foretell, augur, divine, prophesy, vaticinate. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to tell about something beforehand by or as if by supernatural means”: foretelling the future; augured scandal from a distance; divined the enemy's victory; prophesying a stock-market boom; atrocities vaticinated by the antifascists. See also Synonyms at predict fore-thought (fôr'thôt', fôr'-) n. 1. Deliberation, consideration, or planning beforehand. 2. Preparation or thought for the future. See Synonyms at prudence. —fore'thought'ful adj. —fore'thought'ful-ly adv.

—fore'thought'ful-ness n.

fore-to-ken (fôr-tō'kən, fôr-) v. tr. fore-to-kened, fore-to-ken-ing, fore-to-kens. To indicate or give warning of beforehand; presage. — n. (fôr'tō'kən, fôr'-) An advance sign; a warning.

fore-told (fôr-töld', fôr-) v. Past tense and past participle of foretell.

fore-top (fôr'töp', fôr'-) n. 1. (also -təp) Nautical. A platform at the top of a ship's foremast. 2. A forelock, especially of a horse.

fore-top-gal-lant (fôr'töp-gäl'ənt, fôr'-, fôr'təp-, fôr'-) adj. Nautical. Of, relating to, or being the mast directly above the foremast.

fore-top-mast (fôr'töp'məst, fôr'-, fôr'təp-mäst', fôr'-) n. Nautical. The mast that is above the foretop.

fore-top-sail (fôr'töp'səl, fôr'-, fôr'təp-, fôr'-) n. Nautical. The sail hung from the foretopmast.

for-ev-er (fôr-ĕv'ər, fər-) adv. 1. For everlasting time; eternally: No one can live forever. 2. At all times; incessantly: was forever complaining about the job. — n. A seemingly very long time: It has taken forever to resolve these problems.

for-ev-er-more (fôr-ĕv'ər-môr', -mōr', fər-) adv. Forever.

fore-warn (fôr-wōrn', fôr-) v. tr. fore-warned, fore-warn-ing, fore-warns. To warn in advance. See Synonyms at warn.

fore-went (fôr-wĕnt', fôr-) v. Past tense of forego¹.

fore-wing (fôr'wĭng', fôr'-) n. Either of a pair of anterior wings of a four-winged insect.

fore-wom-an (fôr'wōm'ən, fôr'-) n. 1. A woman who serves as the leader of a work crew, as in a factory. 2. A woman who chairs and speaks for a jury. Also called forelady fore-word (fôr'wərd, fôr'-) n. A preface or an introductory note, as for a book, especially by a person other than the author.

fore-worn (fôr-wôrn', fôr-wôrn') adj. Variant of forworn.

fore-yard (fôr'yârd', fôr'-) n. Nautical. The lowest yard on a foremast.

for-feit (fôr'fît) n. 1. Something surrendered or subject to surrender as punishment for a crime, an offense, an error, or a breach of contract. 2. Games.

a. Something placed in escrow and then redeemed after payment of a fine.

b. forfeits. A game in which forfeits are demanded. 3. A forfeiture. — adj.

Lost or subject to loss through forfeiture. — v. tr. for-feit-ed, for-feit-ing, for-feits. 1. To surrender, be deprived of, or give up the right to on account of a crime, an offense, an error, or a breach of contract. 2. To subject to seizure as a forfeit. [Middle English forfet, crime, penalty, from Old French forfait, past participle of forfaire, to commit a crime, act outside the law : fors, beyond (from Latin forīs, outside); see dhwer- in Appendix + faire, to do (from Latin facere); see dhē- in Appendix.] — for/feit-a-ble adj. — for/feit-er n.

for-fei-ture (fôr'fî-chōōr', -chər) n. 1. The act of surrendering something as a forfeit. 2. Something that is forfeited; a penalty.

for-fend also fore-fend (fôr-fënd', fôr-) v. tr. for-fend-ed, for-fend-ing, for-fends. 1. a. To keep or ward off; avert. b. Archaic. To forbid. 2. To defend or protect. [Middle English forfenden : for-, for- + fenden, to ward off; see FEND.]

for-fi-cate (fôr'fî-kît, -kāt') adj. Deeply forked or notched, as the tails of certain birds. [Latin forfex, forfic-, scissors + *-ATE*¹.]

for-gath-er also fore-gath-er (fôr-găth'ər, fôr-) v. intr. for-gath-ered, for-gath-er-ing, for-gath-ers. 1. To gather together; assemble. 2. To meet another usually by accident.

for-gave (fər-gāv', fôr-) v. Past tense of forgive.

forge¹ (fôrj, fōrj) n. 1. A furnace or hearth where metals are heated or wrought; a smithy. 2. A workshop where pig iron is transformed into wrought iron. — v.

forged, forg-ing, forg-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To form (metal, for example) by heating in a forge and beating or hammering into shape. b. To form (metal) by a mechanical or hydraulic press. 2. To give form or shape to, especially by means of careful effort: forge a treaty; forge a close relationship. 3. To fashion or reproduce for fraudulent purposes; counterfeit: forge a signature. — v. intr. 1. To work at a forge or smithy. 2. To make a forgery or counterfeit. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin fabrica, from faber, worker.] — forge'a-bil/i-ty n.

— forge'a-ble adj. — forg'er n.

forge² (fôrj, fōrj) v. intr. forged, forg-ing, forg-es. 1. To advance gradually but steadily: forged ahead through throngs of shoppers. 2. To advance with an abrupt increase of speed: forged into first place with seconds to go. [Probably from FORGE¹.]

for-ger-y (fôr'jə-rē, fôr'-) n. pl. for-ger-ies. 1. The act of forging, especially the illegal production of something counterfeit. 2. Something counterfeit, forged, or fraudulent.

for-get (fər-gět', fôr-) v. for-got (-göt'), for-got-ten (-göt'n) or for-got, for-get-ting, for-gets. — v. tr. 1. To be unable to remember (something). 2. To treat with thoughtless inattention; neglect: forget one's family. 3. To leave behind unintentionally. 4. To fail to mention. 5. a. To banish from one's thoughts: forget a disgrace. b. Informal. To disregard on purpose. Usually used in the imperative: Oh, forget it. I refuse to go! — v. intr. 1. To cease remembering: Let's forgive and forget. 2. To fail or neglect to become aware at the proper or specified moment: forgot about my dental appointment. — idiom. forget oneself. To lose one's reserve, temper, or self-restraint. [Middle English forgeten, from Old English forgietan. See ghend- in Appendix.] — for-get'ter n.

for-get-ful (fər-gět'fəl, fôr-) adj. 1. Tending or likely to forget. 2. Marked by neglectful or heedless failure to remember: forgetful of one's responsibilities. 3. Causing one to be unable to remember. — for-get'ful-ly adv. — for-get'-ful-ness n.

SYNONYMS: forgetful, unmindful, oblivious. These adjectives refer to inability or failure to remember. Forgetful usually implies a faulty memory or a tendency not to remember: As I grow older I become increasingly forgetful. Less often the word is used as the equivalent of unmindful, which applies principally to failure to keep in mind what should be remembered, as through deliberate oversight, heedlessness, or inattentiveness: She ought not to be forgetful of her duties. Each passenger rushed toward the exit, unmindful of the others. Oblivious refers to failure rather than inability to remember, as because one is preoccupied or because one has chosen to disregard something: Fortunately for the author, he was soon oblivious of the vitriolic criticism. Sometimes the term implies lack of awareness: For a person who has known them so long you are strangely oblivious to their faults.

for-ge-tive (fôr'jī-tīv, fôr'-) adj. Archaic. Capable of imagining or inventing. [Possibly from FORGE¹ + -tive (as in inventive, or creative).]

for-get-me-not (fər-gět'mē-nöt', fôr-) n. 1. Any of various herbaceous plants of the genus Myosotis, having clusters of small blue flowers. Also called scorpion grass. 2. Any of several similar or related plants. [Translation of Old French ne m'oubliez mie.]

for-get-ta-ble (fər-gět'ə-bəl, fôr-) adj. Fit or apt to be forgotten: a movie with very forgettable characters.

for-give (fər-gīv', fôr-) v. for-gave (-gāv'), for-giv-en (-gīv'ən), for-giv-ing, for-gives. — v. tr. 1. To excuse for a fault or an offense; pardon. 2. To renounce anger or resentment against. 3. To absolve from payment of (a debt, for example). — v. intr. To accord forgiveness. [Middle English forgiven, from Old English forgiefan. See ghabh- in Appendix.] — for-giv'a-ble adj. — for-giv'a-bly adv. — for-giv'er n.

SYNONYMS: forgive, pardon, excuse, condone. These verbs mean to refrain from imposing punishment on an offender or demanding satisfaction for an offense. The first three can be used as conventional ways of offering apology, as for minor infractions of social proprieties: Please forgive me for being late. I hope you'll pardon the length of this letter. Excuse me, but I disagree with you. More strictly, to forgive is to grant pardon without harboring resentment: "Children begin by loving their parents; as they grow older they judge them; sometimes they forgive them" (Oscar Wilde). Pardon more strongly implies release from the liability for or penalty entailed by an offense: After the revolution all political prisoners were pardoned. "God may pardon you, but I never can" (Elizabeth I). To excuse is to pass over a mistake or fault without demanding punishment or redress: "There are some acts of injustice which no national interest can excuse" (J.A. Froude). To condone is to overlook an offense, usually a serious one; the word often suggests tacit forgiveness: Failure to protest police brutality may indicate a willingness to condone it.

for-give-ness (fər-gĭv'nĭs, fôr-) n. The act of forgiving; pardon.

for-giv-ing (fər-gĭv'ĭng, fôr-) adj. 1. Inclined or able to forgive. 2. Providing a margin for error or shortcomings. —for-giv'ing-ly adv. —for-giv'ing-ness n.

for-go also fore-go (fôr-gō', fôr-) v. tr. for-went (-wĕnt'), for-gone (-gôn', -gŏn'), for-go-ing, for-goes. To abstain from; relinquish: unwilling to forgo desert. [Middle English forgon, from Old English forgān, go away, forgo : for-, for- + gān, to go; see ghē- in Appendix.] —for-go'er n.

for-got (fər-gŏt', fôr-) v. Past tense and a past participle of forget.

for-got-ten (fər-gŏt'n, fôr-) v. A past participle of forget.

forgotten man (fər-gŏt'n măn) n. A person or class of persons that is treated with undeserved neglect or disregard.

fo-rint (fôr'int') n. A basic unit of currency in Hungary. See Table at currency. [Hungarian, from Italian fiorino, florin. See FLORIN.]

for-judge (fôr-jŭj', fôr-) v. Variant of forejudge.

fork (fôrk) n. 1. A utensil with two or more prongs, used for eating or serving food. 2. An implement with two or more prongs used for raising, carrying, piercing, or digging. 3. a. A bifurcation or separation into two or more branches or parts. b. The point at which such a bifurcation or separation occurs: a fork in a road. c. One of the branches of such a bifurcation or separation: the right fork. See Synonyms at branch. 4. Games. An attack by one chess piece on two pieces at the same time. — v. forked, fork-ing, forks. — v. tr. 1. To raise, carry, pitch, or pierce with a fork. 2. To give the shape of a fork to (one's fingers, for example). 3. Games. To launch an attack on (two chess pieces). 4. Informal. To pay: forked over $50 for front-row seats; forked up the money owed. — v. intr.

1. To divide into two or more branches: The river forks here. 2. a. To use a fork, as in working. b. To turn at or travel along a fork. [Middle English forke, digging fork, from Old English forca, and from Old North French forque both from Latin furca.] —fork'er n. —fork'ful' n.

fork-ball (fôrk'bôl') n. Baseball. A pitch with the ball placed between the index and middle fingers so that the ball takes a sharp dip near home plate.

—fork'ball'er n.

forked (fôrkt, fôr'kîd) adj. 1. Containing or characterized by a fork: a forked river. 2. Shaped like or similar to a fork: forked lightning; a forked tail.

fork-lift (fôrk'lîft') n. A small industrial vehicle with a power-operated pronged platform that can be raised and lowered for insertion under a load to be lifted and moved. — v. tr. fork-lift-ed, fork-lift-ing, fork-lifts. To move or stack by use of a vehicle with a power-operated pronged platform.

fork-y (fôr'kē) adj. fork-i-er, fork-i-est. Forked.

For-lì (fôr-lē') A city of northern Italy southeast of Bologna. A Roman trade center, it became a free commune in the 11th century. Population, 91,900.

for-lorn (fər-lôrn', fôr-) adj. 1. a. Appearing sad or lonely because deserted or abandoned. b. Forsaken or deprived: forlorn of all hope. 2. Wretched or pitiful in appearance or condition: forlorn roadside shacks. 3. Nearly hopeless; desperate. See Synonyms at despondent. [Middle English forloren, past participle of forlesen, to abandon, from Old English forlēosan. See leu- in Appendix.]

—for-lorn'ly adv. —for-lorn'ness n.

forlorn hope (fər-lôrn' hōp) n. 1. An arduous or nearly hopeless undertaking. 2. An advance guard of troops sent on a hazardous mission. [By folk etymology from Dutch verloren hoop, advance guard : verloren, past participle of verliezen, to lose; see leu- in Appendix + hoop, troop.]

form (fôrm) n. 1. a. The shape and structure of an object. b. The body or outward appearance of a person or an animal considered separately from the face or head; figure. 2. a. The essence of something. b. The mode in which a thing exists, acts, or manifests itself; kind: a form of animal life; a form of blackmail.

3. a. Procedure as determined or governed by regulation or custom. b. A fixed order of words or procedures, as for use in a ceremony; a formula. 4. A document with blanks for the insertion of details or information: insurance forms.

5. a. Manners or conduct as governed by etiquette, decorum, or custom.

b. Behavior according to a fixed or accepted standard: Tardiness is considered bad form. c. Performance considered with regard to acknowledged criteria: a good jump shooter having an unusual form. 6. a. Proven ability to perform: a musician at the top of her form. b. Fitness, as of an athlete or animal, with regard to health or training. c. The past performance of a racehorse. d. A racing form.

7. a. Method of arrangement or manner of coordinating elements in literary or musical composition or in organized discourse: presented my ideas in outline form; a treatise in the form of a dialogue. b. A particular type or example of such arrangement: The essay is a literary form. c. The design, structure, or pattern of a work of art: symphonic form. 8. a. A mold for the setting of concrete. b. A model of the human figure or part of it used for displaying clothes. c. A proportioned model that may be adjusted for fitting clothes. 9. A grade in a British secondary school or in some American private schools: the sixth form. 10. a. A linguistic form. b. The external aspect of words with regard to their inflections, pronunciation, or spelling: verb forms. 11. a. Chiefly British. A long seat; a bench. b. The resting place of a hare. 12. Botany. A subdivision of a variety usually differing in one trivial characteristic, such as flower color. — v. formed, form-ing, forms. — v. tr. 1. a. To give form to; shape: form clay into figures. b. To develop in the mind; conceive: form an opinion. 2. a. To shape or mold (dough, for example) into a particular form. b. To arrange oneself in: Holding out his arms, the cheerleader formed a T. The acrobats formed a pyramid. c. To organize or arrange: The environmentalists formed their own party. d. To fashion, train, or develop by instruction or precept: form a child's mind. 3. To come to have; develop or acquire: form a habit. 4. To constitute or compose a usually basic element, part, or characteristic of. 5. a. To produce (a tense, for example) by assuming an inflection: form the pluperfect. b. To make (a word) by derivation or composition. 6. To put in order; arrange. — v. intr. 1. To become formed or shaped. 2. To come into being by taking form; arise. 3. To assume a specified form, shape, or pattern. [Middle English forme, from Latin fōrma.] — form'a-bil'i-ty n. — form'a-ble adj.

SYNONYMS: form, figure, shape, configuration, contour, profile. These nouns refer to the external outline of a thing. Form is the outline and structure of a thing as opposed to its substance: stalactites of curious forms; a garden in the form of a lovers' knot. Figure refers usually to form as established by bounding or enclosing lines: The cube is a solid geometric figure. “Europe is disclosed as a prone and emaciated figure, the Alps shaping like a backbone, and the branching mountain chains like ribs, the peninsular plateau of Spain forming a head” (Thomas Hardy). Shape implies three-dimensional definition that indicates both outline and bulk or mass: “Rowing [at night], he faced her, a hooded and cloaked shape” (Joseph Conrad). Configuration stresses the pattern formed by the arrangement of parts within an outline: The map shows the configuration of the North American continent, with its mountains, rivers, and plains. Contour refers especially to the outline of a three-dimensional figure: I ran my finger along the soft, curving contour of the child's cheek. Profile denotes the outline of something viewed against a background and especially the outline of the human face in side view: We glimpsed the profile of the church steeple against the last glow of the sunset. The profile of the old warrior was characterized by a strong jaw and an aquiline nose.

-form suff. Having the form of: plexiform. [New Latin -fōrmis, from Latin fōrma, form.]

for·mal (fôr'məl) adj. 1. a. Relating to or involving outward form or structure. b. Being or relating to essential form or constitution: a formal principle.

2. a. Following or being in accord with accepted forms, conventions, or regulations: had little formal education; went to a formal party. b. Executed, carried out, or done in proper or regular form: a formal reprimand; a formal document.

3. a. Characterized by strict or meticulous observation of forms; methodical: very formal in their business transactions. b. Stiffly ceremonious: a formal manner; a formal greeting; a formal bow to the monarch.

4. Having the outward appearance but lacking in substance: a formal requirement that is usually ignored.

— n. Something, such as a gown or social affair, that is formal in nature. [Middle English, from Latin fōrmālis, from fōrma, shape.] —for'mal·ly adv. —for'mal·ness n.

for·mal·de·hyde (fôr-mäl'də-hīd') n. A colorless, gaseous compound, HCHO, the simplest aldehyde, used for manufacturing melamine and phenolic resins, fertilizers, dyes, and embalming fluids and in aqueous solution as a preservative and disinfectant. [FORM(IC ACID) + ALDEHYDE.]

for·ma·lin (fôr'mə-līn) n. An aqueous solution of formaldehyde that is 37 percent by weight. [Originally a trademark.]

for·mal·ism (fôr'mə-līz'əm) n. 1. Rigorous or excessive adherence to recognized forms, as in religion or art. 2. An instance of rigorous or excessive adherence to recognized forms. —for'mal·ist adj., n. —for'mal·is'tic adj.

—for'mal·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

for·mal·i·ty (fôr-mäl'ī-tē) n. pl. for·mal·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being formal. 2. Rigorous or ceremonious adherence to established forms, rules, or customs. 3. An established form, rule, or custom, especially one followed merely for the sake of procedure or decorum.

for·mal·ize (fôr'mə-līz') v. tr. for·mal·ized, for·mal·iz·ing, for·mal·iz·es.

1. To give a definite form or shape to. 2. a. To make formal. b. To give formal standing or endorsement to; make official or legitimate by the observance of proper procedure. —for'mal·iz'a·ble adj. —for'mal·i·za'tion (-mə-lī-zā'shən) n. —for'mal·iz'er n.

formal logic (fôr'məl löj'ik) n. The study of the properties of propositions and deductive reasoning by abstraction and analysis of the form rather than the content of propositions under consideration.

for·mal·wear (fôr'məl-wâr') n. Attire, such as evening gowns and tuxedos, for wear on formal occasions.

for·mant (fôr'mənt) n. Any of several frequency regions of relatively great intensity in a sound spectrum, which together determine the characteristic quality of a vowel sound. [German, from Latin fōrmāns, fōrmant- present participle of fōrmāre, to form, from fōrma, form.]

for·mat (fôr'măt') n. 1. A plan for the organization and arrangement of a specified production. 2. The material form or layout of a publication.

3. Computer Science. a. The arrangement of data for storage or display. b. A method for achieving such an arrangement. — v. tr. for·mat·ted, for·mat·ting, for·mats. 1. To plan or arrange in a specified form: They formatted the conference so that each speaker had less than 15 minutes to deliver a paper.

2. Computer Science. a. To divide (a disk) into marked sectors so that it may store data. b. To determine the arrangement of (data) for storage or display.

[French, ultimately from Latin fōrmātus, past participle of fōrmāre, to form, from fōrma, form.]

for·mate (fôr'măt') n. A compound, such as a salt or an ester of formic acid, that contains the HCOO⁻ radical. [FORM(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

for·ma·tion (fôr-mā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of forming something or of taking form. 2. Something formed: beautiful cloud formations. 3. The manner or style in which something is formed; structure: the distinctive formation of the human eye. 4. A specified arrangement or deployment, as of troops.

5. Geology. The primary unit of lithostratigraphy, consisting of a succession of strata useful for mapping or description. — for·ma'tion·al adj.

form·a·tive (fôr'mə-tīv) adj. 1. Forming or capable of forming.

2. a. Susceptible to transformation by growth and development. b. Biology.

Capable of producing new cells or tissue. 3. Of or relating to formation, growth, or development: the formative stages of a plot. 4. Linguistics. Relating to the formation or inflection of words. — n. Grammar. A derivational or inflectional affix. — form'a·tive·ly adv.

form class (fôrm klās) n. Linguistics. A set of words that have one or more grammatical or syntactic characteristics in common, such as the class of transitive verbs in English.

form criticism (fôrm krīt'ī-sīz'əm) n. A method of textual criticism, applied especially to the Bible, for tracing the origin and history of certain passages through systematic study of the writings in terms of conventional literary forms, such as parables, proverbs, and love poems. — form critic n. — form critical adj.

form·er¹ (fôr'mər) n. 1. One that forms; a maker or creator: a former of ideas.

2. Chiefly British. A member of a school form: a fifth former.

for·mer² (fôr'mər) adj. 1. a. Occurring earlier in time. b. Of, relating to, or taking place in the past. 2. Coming before in place or order; foregoing. 3. Being the first of two mentioned. 4. Having been in the past: a former ambassador.

[Middle English, comparative of forme, first, from Old English forma. See per¹ in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Grammarians have often insisted that the phrases the former and the latter should be used only to refer to the first of two things and the second of two things, respectively: “But Flynn preceded Casey, as did also Jimmy Blake, and the former was a lulu and the latter was a fake.” It is not difficult to find examples of violations of this rule in the works of reputable writers. But the fact that former and latter are plainly comparatives will make many readers uneasy when the words are used in enumerations of more than two things, much as would the analogous incorrect use of a comparative in a sentence such as Her boys are 7, 9, and 13; only the younger was born in California.

for·mer·ly (fôr'mər-lē) adv. At an earlier time; once.

form·fit·ting (fôrm'fit'ing) adj. Snugly fitting the contours of the body:
formfitting jeans.

form genus (fôrm jē'nəs) n. Botany. A genus of fossil plants or imperfect fungi classified according to their asexual organs.

for·mic (fôr'mik) adj. 1. Of or relating to ants. 2. Of, derived from, or containing formic acid. [From Latin formīca, ant.]

For·mi·ca (fôr-mī'kə) A trademark used for a variety of high-pressure laminated plastic sheets of synthetic resin employed especially as a heat-resistant and chemical-resistant surface on tables and counters. This trademark sometimes occurs in print in attributive uses: “The restaurant was dimly lit, with plain Formica tables and cushioned booths” (Chicago Tribune).

formic acid (fôr'mik əs'id) n. A colorless caustic fuming liquid, HCOOH, used in dyeing and finishing textiles and paper and in the manufacture of fumigants, insecticides, and refrigerants. [From its natural occurrence in ants.]

for·mi·car·y (fôr'mī-kēr'ē) n. pl. for·mi·car·ies. A nest of ants; an anthill. [Medieval Latin formicarium, from Latin formīca, ant.]

for·mi·civ·o·rous (fôr'mī-siv'ər-əs) adj. Feeding on ants. [Latin formīca, ant + -VOROUS.]

for·mi·da·ble (fôr'mī-də-bəl) adj. 1. Arousing fear, dread, or alarm: the formidable prospect of major surgery. 2. Inspiring awe, admiration, or wonder: “Though a true hero, he was also a thoroughgoing bureaucrat and politician, a formidable combination” (Mario Puzo). 3. Difficult to undertake, surmount, or defeat: a formidable challenge; a formidable opponent. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin formidābilis, from formidāre, to fear, from formidō, fear.]

—for'mi-da-bil'i·ty, for'mi-da-ble·ness n. —for'mi-da-bly adv.

form-less (fôrm'lis) adj. 1. Having no definite form; shapeless. See Synonyms at shapeless. 2. Lacking order. 3. Having no material existence. —form'-less-ly adv. —form'less-ness n.

form letter (fôrm lêt'ər) n. A usually impersonal letter in a standardized format that may be sent to different people or to large numbers of recipients.

For-mo-sa (fôr-mō'sə) See Taiwan.

Formosa Strait (fôr-mō'sə strāt) also Tai-wan Strait (tī'wän' strāt) An arm of the Pacific Ocean between Taiwan and China. It links the East China Sea with the South China Sea.

for-mu-la (fôr'myə-lə) n. pl. for-mu-las or for-mu-lae (-lē'). 1. a. An established form of words or symbols for use in a ceremony or procedure. b. An utterance of conventional notions or beliefs; a hackneyed expression. 2. A method of doing or treating something that relies on an established, uncontroversial model or approach: a new situation comedy that simply uses an old formula.

3. Chemistry. a. A symbolic representation of the composition or of the composition and structure of a compound. b. The compound so represented. 4. a. A prescription of ingredients in fixed proportion; a recipe. b. A liquid food for infants, containing most of the nutrients in human milk. 5. Mathematics. A statement, especially an equation, of a fact, rule, principle, or other logical relation. 6. Formula. Sports. A set of specifications, including engine displacement, fuel capacity, and weight, that determine a class of racing car. [Latin fōrmula, diminutive of fōrma, form.] —for'mu-la'ic (-lā'ik) adj. —for'mu-la'i-cal-ly adv.

for-mu-la-rize (fôr'myə-lə-rīz') v. tr. for-mu-la-rized, for-mu-la-riz-ing, for-mu-la-riz-es. To express as or reduce to a formula; formulate. —for'mu-la-ri-za'tion (-lər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. —for'mu-la-riz'er n.

for-mu-lar-y (fôr'myə-lër'ē) n. pl. for-mu-lar-ies. 1. A book or other collection of stated and fixed forms, such as prayers. 2. A statement expressed in formulas. 3. A fixed form or pattern; a formula. 4. A book containing a list of pharmaceutical substances along with their formulas, uses, and methods of preparation.

for-mu-late (fôr'myə-lāt') v. tr. for-mu-lat-ed, for-mu-lat-ing, for-mu-lates. 1. a. To state as or reduce to a formula. b. To express in systematic terms or concepts. c. To devise or invent: formulate strategy. 2. To prepare according to a specified formula. —for'mu-la'tion n. —for'mu-la'tor n.

formula weight (fôr'myə-lə wāt) n. See molecular weight.

for-mu-lize (fôr'myə-līz') v. tr. for-mu-lized, for-mu-liz-ing, for-mu-liz-es. To formulate. —for'mu-li-za'tion (-lĭ-zā'shən) n. —for'mu-liz'er n.

form word (fôrm wûrd) n. Grammar. See function word.

form-work (fôrm'wûrk') n. The structure of boards that make up a form for pouring concrete in construction.

for·myl (fôr'mīl') n. The negative univalent radical HCO, characteristic of aldehydes. [FORM(IC ACID) + -YL.]

For·nax (fôr'näks') n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Sculptor and Eridanus. [Latin fornāx, furnace, oven. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

for·nent (fər-něnt') prep. Upper Southern U.S. Variant of ferninst.

for·ni·cate (fôr'nī-kāt') v. intr. for·ni·cat·ed, for·ni·cat·ing, for·ni·cates.

To commit fornication. [Late Latin fornicārī, fornicāt-, from fornix, fornic-, vault, vaulted cellar, brothel. See g^wher- in Appendix.] —for'nī-ca'tor n.

for·ni·ca·tion (fôr'nī-kā'shən) n. Sexual intercourse between partners who are not married to each other.

WORD HISTORY: The word fornication had a lowly beginning suitable to what has long been the low moral status of the word. The Latin word fornix, from which fornicātiō, the ancestor of fornication, is derived, meant “a vault, an arch.” The term also referred to a vaulted cellar or similar place where prostitutes plied their trade. This sense of fornix in Late Latin yielded the verb fornicārī, “to commit fornication,” from which is derived fornicātiō, “whoredom, fornication.” Our word is first recorded in Middle English about 1303.

for·nix (fôr'nīks) n. pl. for·ni·ces (-nī-sēz'). An archlike anatomical structure or fold, such as the arched band of white matter located beneath the corpus callosum of the brain. [Latin, arch, vault. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

for·prof·it (fər-prōf'it, fôr-) adj. Established or operated with the intention of making a profit: a for-profit organization; a for-profit hospital.

For·rest (fôr'ist, fôr'-), Edwin. 1806-1872. American actor noted for his portrayal of Othello. His rivalry with a fellow actor resulted in a riot at a theater in New York City that left 22 theatergoers dead.

For·rest (fôr'ist, fôr'-), Nathan Bedford. 1821-1877. American Confederate general who was active at the battles of Shiloh (1862) and Chickamauga (1863). He was a founder and the first leader (1866-1869) of the Ku Klux Klan.

For·res·tal (fôr'ī-stəl, -stōl', fôr'-), James Vincent. 1892-1949. American public official who served as undersecretary (1940-1944) and secretary (1944-1947) of the navy and secretary of defense (1947-1949).

for·sake (fôr-sāk', fər-) v. tr. for·sook (-sōök'), for·sak·en (-sā'kən), for·sak·ing, for·sakes. 1. To give up (something formerly held dear); renounce: forsook liquor. 2. To leave altogether; abandon: forsook Hollywood and returned to the legitimate stage. [Middle English forsaken, from Old English forsacan. See sāg- in Appendix.]

for·sooth (fôr-sōōth', fər-) adv. In truth; indeed. [Middle English forsooth, from Old English forsōth : for, for; see FOR + sōth, truth; see SOOTH.]

for-spent (fôr-spěnt', fər-) adj. Archaic. Worn out, as from exertion; exhausted.

Forss-mann (fôrs'män', -mən, fôrs'-), Werner Theodor Otto. 1904-1979. German physician. He shared a 1956 Nobel Prize for developing new techniques for treating heart disease.

For-ster (fôr'stər), E(dward) M(organa). 1879-1970. British writer whose novels, such as A Room with a View (1908) and Howards End (1910), explore the emotional and moral shortcomings of England's upper classes.

for-swear also fore-swear (fôr-swâr', fôr-) v. for-swore (fôr-swôr', fôr-swōr'), for-sworn (fôr-swôrn', fôr-swörn'), for-swearing, for-swears. — v. tr. 1. a. To renounce or repudiate under oath. b. To renounce seriously. 2. To disavow under oath; deny. 3. To make (oneself) guilty of perjury. — v. intr. To swear falsely; commit perjury. [Middle English forsweren, from Old English forswerian: for-, wrongly; see FOR- + swerian, to swear; see SWEAR.]

for-syth-i-a (fôr-sīth'ē-ə, -sī'thē-ə, fər-) n. Any of several shrubs of the genus Forsythia, native to Asia and widely cultivated for their early-blooming yellow flowers. [New Latin, genus name, after William Forsyth (1737-1804), Scottish horticulturist.]

fort (fôrt, fōrt) n. Abbr. ft., Ft. 1. A fortified place or position stationed with troops. 2. A permanent army post. [Middle English, strength, stronghold, from Old French, strong, strength, from Latin fortis. See bhergh-² in Appendix.]

fort. abbr. Fortification.

For-ta-le-za (fôr'tl-ā'zə, -tə-lě'-) A city of northeast Brazil northwest of Natal on the Atlantic Ocean. Founded in 1609, it is a thriving port and industrial center. Population, 1,307,611.

for-ta-lice (fôr'tə-līs) n. Archaic. 1. A defensive structure or position; a fortress. 2. A small fort. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin fortalitia. See FORTRESS.]

For-tas (fôr'təs), Abraham. Known as "Abe." 1910-1982. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1965-1969) but resigned over a public controversy about his private finances.

Fort Col-lins (fôrt kôl'inz, fōrt) A city of northern Colorado north-northeast of Boulder. It is a trade, shipping, and processing center. Population, 87,758.

Fort-de-France (fôr-də-frāns') The capital and largest city of Martinique, on the western coast of the island on Fort-de-France Bay, an inlet of the Caribbean Sea. Settled by the French in 1762, Fort-de-France is a popular resort. Population, 99,844.

Fort Dodge (fôrt dôj) A city of central Iowa on the Des Moines River north-northwest of Des Moines. It was settled in the 1840's. Population, 25,894.

forte¹ (fôrt, fôrt, fôr'tā') n. 1. Something in which a person excels. 2. The strong part of a sword blade, between the middle and the hilt. [French fort, from Old French, strong, from Latin fortis. See bhergh-2 in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: forte, métier, specialty, thing. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something at which a person is particularly skilled”: Writing fiction is her forte. The theater is his métier. The professor made the description of the Semitic languages her specialty. Mountain climbing is really her thing.

for-te² (fôr'tā') Music. adv. & adj. Abbr. f, F. In a loud, forceful manner. Used chiefly as a direction. — n. A note, passage, or chord played forte. [Italian, strong, forte, from Latin fortis. See bhergh-2 in Appendix.]

for-te-pi-an-o (fôr'tā-pē-ăn'ō, -ă'nō) adv. & adj. Music. In a loud, then suddenly soft, manner. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian : forte, loud; see FORTE² + piano, soft; see PIANO².]

Fort E-rie (fôrt îr'ē) A town of southern Ontario, Canada, on the Niagara River opposite Buffalo, New York. It is on the site of a fort established in 1764, captured in 1813 by the Americans in the War of 1812, and destroyed by them in 1814 after a siege by British troops. Population, 24,096.

forth (fôrth, fôrth) adv. 1. Forward in time, place, or order; onward: from this time forth. 2. Out into view: A stranger came forth from the crowd; put my ideas forth. 3. Obsolete. Away from a specified place; abroad. — prep. Archaic. Out of; forth from. [Middle English, from Old English. See per¹ in Appendix.]

Forth (fôrth, fôrth) A river of south-central Scotland flowing about 187 km (116 mi) eastward to the Firth of Forth, a wide inlet of the North Sea.

forth-com-ing (fôrth-kŭm'ing, fôrth-) adj. 1. About to appear or take place; approaching: the forthcoming elections. 2. a. Available when required or as promised: Federal funds were not forthcoming. b. Affable and outgoing: a considerate, forthcoming person. c. Candid and willing to cooperate. — n.

(fôrth'kŭm'ing, fôrth'-) The act or an instance of coming forth.

forth-right (fôrth'rīt', fôrth'-) adj. 1. Direct and without evasion; straightforward: a forthright appraisal; forthright criticism. 2. Archaic. Proceeding straight ahead. — adv. 1. a. Directly ahead. b. Directly and frankly. 2. Archaic. At once. — forth/right/ly adv. — forth/right/ness n.

forth-with (fôrth-wīth', -wīth', fôrth-) adv. At once; immediately.

for-ti-eth (fôr'tē-ĭth) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 40 in a series. 2. One of 40 equal parts. — for'ti-eth adv. & adj.

for-ti-fi-ca-tion (fôr'tə-fī-kā'shən) n. Abbr. fort., ft. 1. a. The science of fortifying. b. The act or process of fortifying. 2. Something that serves to fortify, especially military works erected to fortify a position or place.

for-ti-fied wine (fôr'tə-fīd' wīn) n. Wine, such as sherry, to which alcohol, usually in the form of grape brandy, has been added.

for-ti-fy (fôr'tə-fī') v. for-ti-fied, for-ti-fy-ing, for-ti-fies. — v. tr. To make strong, as: a. To strengthen and secure (a position) with fortifications. b. To reinforce by adding material. c. To impart physical strength or endurance to; invigorate. d. To give emotional, moral or mental strength to; encourage: Prayer fortified us during our crisis. e. To strengthen or enrich (food, for example), as by adding vitamins. — v. intr. To build fortifications. [Middle English fortifien, from Old French fortifier, from Late Latin fortificāre, from Latin fortis, strong. See bhergh-² in Appendix.] —for'ti-fi'a-ble adj. —for'ti-fi'er n. —for'ti-fy'ing-ly adv.

for-tis (fôr'tis) Linguistics. adj. Articulated with relatively strong pressure or tension of the respiratory muscles, as in English p and t compared with b and d. — n. A fortis consonant. [Latin, strong. See bhergh-² in Appendix.]

for-tis-si-mo (fôr-tis'ə-mō') Music. adv. & adj. Abbr. ff In a very loud manner. Used chiefly as a direction. — n. pl. for-tis-si-mos. A note, chord, or passage played fortissimo. [Italian, superlative of forte, strong. See FORTE².]

for-tis-sis-si-mo (fôr'tī-sīs'ə-mō) adv. & adj. Abbr. fff Music. In the loudest manner. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, superlative of fortissimo. See FORTISSIMO.]

for-ti-tude (fôr'tī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. Strength of mind that allows one to endure pain or adversity with courage. [Middle English, from Latin fortitūdō, from fortis, strong. See bhergh-² in Appendix.] —for'ti-tu'di-nous (-tōōd'n-əs, -tyōōd'-) adj.

Fort-La-my (fôr-lä-mē') See Ndjamena.

Fort Lau-der-dale (fôrt lô'där-däl') A city of southeast Florida on the Atlantic coast north of Miami Beach. It is a yachting and fishing resort and has long been a favorite vacation spot for college students during spring break. Population, 149,377.

Fort Lee (fôrt lē) A borough of northeast New Jersey on the Hudson River opposite Manhattan. Settled around 1700, it was an early center of the motion-picture industry. Population, 31,997.

Fort Mc-Mur-ray (fôrt mīk-mûr'ē, -mûr'ē) A city of northeast Alberta, Canada, at the conjunction of the Athabasca and Clearwater rivers. Population, 31,000.

Fort My-ers (fôrt mī'ərz) A city of southwest Florida on an estuary of the Caloosahatchee River north-northeast of Cape Coral. It is a shipping and tourist center. Population, 45,206.

Fort Nel-son (fôrt něl'sən) A river, about 418 km (260 mi) long, of northeast British Columbia, Canada.

fort-night (fôrt'nīt') n. A period of 14 days; two weeks. [Middle English fourtenight, alteration of fourtene night, fourteen nights : Old English fēowertēne, fourteen; see FOURTEEN + Old English nihht, night; see NIGHT.]

fort-night-ly (fôrt'nīt'lē) adj. Happening or appearing once in or every two weeks. — adv. Once in a fortnight. — n. pl. fort-night-lies. A publication issued once every two weeks.

Fort Pierce (fôrt pîrs) A city of east-central Florida on the Indian River lagoon north-northwest of Palm Beach. It is a distribution center in a cattle and farming region. Population, 36,830.

FOR·TRAN (fôr'trăn') n. Computer Science. A high-level programming language for problems that can be expressed algebraically, used mainly in mathematics, science, and engineering. [FOR(MULA) + TRAN(SLATION).]

for-tress (fôr'trîs) n. A fortified place, especially a large, permanent military stronghold that often includes a town. [Middle English forteress, from Old French, from Medieval Latin fortalitia, from Latin fortis, strong. See bhergh-² in Appendix.]

Fort Smith (fôrt smîth) 1. A region of southwest Northwest Territories, Canada, including Great Slave Lake and most of Great Bear Lake. 2. A city of western Arkansas on the Oklahoma border west-northwest of Little Rock. It was founded as a military post in 1817. Population, 72,798.

Fort Thom-as (fôrt tòm'əs) A city of northern Kentucky, a residential suburb of Covington. Population, 16,032.

for-tu-i-tous (fôr-tōō'ī-təs, -tyōō'-) adj. 1. Happening by accident or chance. See Synonyms at accidental. 2. Usage Problem. a. Happening by a fortunate accident or chance. b. Lucky or fortunate. [Latin fortuitus, from forte, by chance, ablative of fors, chance.] —for-tu'i-tous-ly adv. —for-tu'i-tous-ness n.

USAGE NOTE: In its best-established sense, fortuitous means “happening by accident or chance,” with no implication as to the desirability of the outcome: a fortuitous meeting may have either fortunate or unfortunate consequences. In this century, however, the word is often used with particular reference to happy accidents, as in The company's third-quarter profits were enhanced as the result of a fortuitous drop in the cost of RAM chips. This use may have arisen because fortuitous resembles both fortunate and felicitous; it is well established in the writing of reputable authors. More controversial is the use of fortuitous to mean simply “lucky or fortunate,” as in He came to the Giants in June as the result of a fortuitous trade that sent two minor-league players to the Reds' organization. This use dates back at least to the 1920's, when H.W. Fowler labeled it a malapropism. It is still widely regarded as incorrect, and writers who are unwilling to risk censure are advised to avoid it.

for·tu·i·ty (fôr-tōō'ī-tē, -tyōō'-) n. pl. for·tu·i·ties. 1. A chance occurrence or event. 2. The quality or condition of being fortuitous.

For·tu·na (fôr-tōō'nə, -tyōō'-) n. Roman Mythology. The goddess of fortune.

for·tu·nate (fôr'chə-nīt) adj. 1. Bringing something good and unforeseen; auspicious. 2. Having unexpected good fortune; lucky. See Synonyms at happy. — n. One who has good fortune, especially a wealthy person. [Latin fortūnātus, from fortūna, chance. See FORTUNE.] —for'tu·nate·ly adv.

—for'tu·nate·ness n.

for·tune (fôr'chən) n. 1. a. The chance happening of fortunate or adverse events; luck: He decided to go home for the holidays, and his fortune turned for the worse. b. fortunes. The turns of luck in the course of one's life. c. Success, especially when at least partially resulting from luck: No matter what they tried, it ended in fortune. 2. a. A person's condition or standing in life determined by material possessions or financial wealth: She pursued her fortune in another country. b. Extensive amounts of material possessions or money; wealth. c. A large sum of money: spent a fortune on the new car. 3. Often Fortune. A hypothetical, often personified force or power that favorably or unfavorably governs the events of one's life: We believe that Fortune is on our side. 4. a. Fate; destiny: told my fortune with tarot cards. b. A foretelling of one's destiny. — v. for·tuned, for·tun·ing, for·tunes. — v. tr. 1. Archaic. To endow with wealth.

2. Obsolete. To ascribe or give good or bad fortune to. — v. intr. Archaic. To occur by chance; happen. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin fortūna, from fors, fort-, chance.]

fortune cookie (fôr'chən kōök'ē) n. A cookie made from a thin layer of dough folded and baked around a slip of paper bearing a prediction of fortune or a maxim.

fortune hunter (fôr'chən hūn'tər) n. A person who seeks wealth, especially through marriage.

for·tune·tell·er (fôr'chən-tēl'ər) n. One who professes to predict future events. —for'tune·tell'ing adj. & n.

Fort Wal·ton Beach (fôrt wôl'tən bēch) A city of northwest Florida in the Panhandle east of Pensacola. It is a year-round resort on the Gulf of Mexico. Population, 21,471.

Fort Wayne (fôrt wān) A city of northeast Indiana northeast of Indianapolis. A French trading post and fort were built on the site in the late 17th century, and an American fort was established by Anthony Wayne in 1794. Population, 173,072.

Fort Worth (fôrt wûrth) A city of northeast Texas west of Dallas. Built on the site of a military post established in the 1840's, it is a major industrial center and distribution point. Population, 447,619.

for·ty (fôr'tē) n. pl. for·ties. 1. The cardinal number equal to 4×10 .

2. forties. a. Often Forties. The decade from 40 to 49 in a century. b. A decade or the numbers from 40 to 49: They stopped smoking in their forties. At night the temperature fell into the forties. [Middle English, from Old English fēowertig. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.] —for'ty adj. & pron.

for·ty-five (fôr'tē-fiv') n. 1. A .45-caliber pistol. 2. A phonograph record designed to be played at 45 revolutions per minute. —for'ty-five' adj.

for·ty-nin·er (fôr'tē-nī'nər) n. One who took part in the 1849 California gold rush.

forty winks (fôr'tē wīngks) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Informal. A short nap.

fo·rum (fôr'əm, fôr'-) n. pl. fo·rums also fo·ra (fôr'ə, fōr'ə). 1. a. The public square or marketplace of an ancient Roman city that was the assembly place for judicial activity and public business. b. A public meeting place for open discussion. c. A medium of open discussion or voicing of ideas, such as a newspaper or a radio or television program. 2. A public meeting or presentation involving a discussion usually among experts and often including audience participation. 3. A court of law; a tribunal. [Middle English, from Latin. See dhwer- in Appendix.]

for·ward (fôr'wərd) adj. 1. a. At, near, or belonging to the front or forepart; fore: the forward section of the aircraft. b. Located ahead or in advance: kept her eye on the forward horizon. 2. a. Going, tending, or moving toward a position in front: a forward plunge down a flight of stairs. b. Sports. Advancing toward an opponent's goal. c. Moving in a prescribed direction or order for normal use: forward rolling of the cassette tape. 3. a. Ardently inclined; eager. b. Lacking restraint or modesty; presumptuous or bold: a forward child. 4. a. Being ahead of current economic, political, or technological trends; progressive: a forward concept. b. Deviating radically from convention or tradition; extreme.

5. Exceptionally advanced; precocious. 6. Of, relating to, or done in preparation for the future: bidding on forward contracts for corn. — adv. 1. Toward or tending to the front; frontward: step forward. 2. Into consideration: put forward a new proposal. 3. In or toward the future: looking forward to seeing you. 4. a. In the prescribed direction or sequence for normal use: rolled the tape forward.

b. In an advanced position or a configuration registering a future time: set the clock forward. c. At or to a different time; earlier or later: moved the appointment forward, from Friday to Thursday. — n. Abbr. fwd Sports. 1. A player in certain games, such as basketball, soccer, or hockey, who is part of the forward line of the offense. 2. The position played by such a person. — v. tr. for·ward·ed, for·ward·ing, for·wards. 1. To send on to a subsequent destination or address. See Synonyms at send¹. 2. To help advance; promote. See Synonyms at advance. [Middle English, from Old English fōreweard: fōre-, fore- + -weard, -ward.] —for·ward·ly adv. —for·ward·ness n.

for·ward·er (fôr'wər-dər) n. One that forwards, especially an agent that facilitates and assures the passage of received goods to their destination.

for·ward·look·ing (fôr'wərd-lōōk'ing) adj. Concerned with or making provision for the future: forward-looking educators; a forward-looking corporate plan.

forward pass (fôr'wərd päs) n. Football. A pass thrown from behind the line of scrimmage to a receiver who is closer to the opponent's end line than the passer.

for·wards (fôr'wərdz, fōr'-) adv. To or tending to the front; forward.

for·went (fôr-wənt', fōr-) v. Past tense of forgo.

for·worn also fore·worn (fôr-wōrn', fōr-wōrn') adj. Archaic. Worn-out.

for·zan·do (fôrt-sän'dō) adv., adj. & n. Abbr. forz Music. Variant of sforzando.

FOS abbr. Free on steamer.

Fos·dick (föz'dik), Harry Emerson. 1878-1969. American religious leader who maintained that scientific and psychiatric advances should not be considered threatening to religion.

foss (fös) n. Variant of fosse.

fos·sa (fös'ə) n. pl. fos·sae (fös'ē'). Anatomy. A small cavity or depression, as in a bone. [Latin, ditch, from feminine past participle of fodere, to dig.] —fos·sate' (fös'āt') adj.

fosse also foss (fös) n. A ditch or moat. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin fossa. See FOSSA.]

Fos·se (fös'ē), Robert Louis. Known as "Bob." 1927-1987. American choreographer and director of Broadway and motion-picture productions, including Cabaret (1972), for which he won an Academy Award.

fos·sick (fös'ik) v. fos·sicked, fos·sick·ing, fos·sicks. Australian. — v. intr. 1. To search for gold, especially by reworking washings or waste piles. 2. To rummage or search around, especially for a possible profit. — v. tr. To search for by or as if by rummaging. [English dialectal, to find out, dig up.] —fos·sick·er n.

fos·sil (fös'əl) n. 1. A remnant or trace of an organism of a past geologic age, such as a skeleton or leaf imprint, embedded and preserved in the earth's crust. 2. One, such as a rigid theory, that is outdated or antiquated. 3. Linguistics. a. A word or morpheme that is used only in certain restricted contexts, as kempt in unkempt, but is otherwise obsolete. b. An archaic syntactic rule or pattern used only in idioms, as so be it. — adj. 1. Characteristic of or having the nature of a fossil. 2. Being or similar to a fossil. 3. Belonging to the past; antiquated. [From Latin fossilis, dug up, from fossus, past participle of fodere, to dig.]

fossil fuel (fös'əl fyōō'əl) n. A hydrocarbon deposit, such as petroleum, coal, or natural gas, derived from living matter of a previous geologic time and used for fuel.

fos-sil-if-er-ous (fös'ə-lif'ər-əs) adj. Containing fossils.

fos-sil-ize (fös'ə-līz') v. fos-sil-ized, fos-sil-iz-ing, fos-sil-iz-es. — v. tr.

1. To convert into a fossil. 2. To make outmoded or inflexible with time; antique. — v. intr. To become a fossil. — fos'sil-i-za'tion (-sə-lī-zā'shən) n.

fos-so-ri-al (fö-sôr'ē-əl, -sôr'-) adj. Zoology. Adapted for or used in burrowing or digging: the fossorial forefeet of a mole. [From Late Latin fossorius, from Latin fossus, past participle of fodere, to dig.]

fos-ter (fô'stər, fös'tər) v. tr. fos-tered, fos-ter-ing, fos-ters. 1. To bring up; nurture: bear and foster offspring. See Synonyms at nurture. 2. To promote the growth and development of; cultivate: detect and foster artistic talent. See Synonyms at advance. 3. To nurse; cherish: foster a secret hope. — adj.

1. Providing parental care and nurture to children not related through legal or blood ties: foster parents; foster grandparents; a foster home. 2. Receiving parental care and nurture from those not related to one through legal or blood ties: foster children. [Middle English fostren, from Old English fōstriān*, to nourish, from fōstor, food, nourishing. See pā- in Appendix.]

Fos-ter (fô'stər, fös'tər), Abigail Kelley. Known as “Abby.” 1810-1887. American abolitionist and suffragist who refused to pay taxes on her family’s farm because she, not having the right to vote, was not represented politically.

Fos-ter (fô'stər, fös'tər), Stephen Collins. 1826-1864. American songwriter whose popular works, such as “Oh! Susannah” (1848) and “Old Folks at Home” (1851), reflect the sentiment of pre-Civil War America.

Fos-ter (fô'stər, fös'tər), William Zebulon. 1881-1961. American labor leader and radical politician who was a presidential candidate (1924, 1928, and 1932) and national chairman (1945-1956) of the Communist Party of the United States.

Foster City (fô'stər sīt'ē) A city of western California, a suburb of San Mateo. Population, 28,176.

Fos-tor-i-a (fô-stôr'ē-ə, -stôr'-, fös-tôr'-, -tôr'-) A city of northwest Ohio south-southeast of Toledo. It is a trade and shipping center in an agricultural region. Population, 15,743.

Fou-cault (fōō-kō'), Jean Bernard Léon. 1819-1868. French physicist who estimated the speed of light and determined that it travels more slowly in water than in air (1850). He also employed a pendulum to prove the rotation of the earth (1851) and invented the gyroscope (1852).

Foucault pendulum (fōō-kō' pěn'jə-ləm) n. A simple pendulum suspended from a long wire and set into motion along a meridian. The plane of motion appears to turn clockwise in the Northern Hemisphere and counterclockwise in the Southern Hemisphere, demonstrating the axial rotation of the earth.

[After Jean Bernard L FOUCAULTÉON.]

Fouc-quet (fōō-kā') See Fouquet.

fou-droy-ant (fōō-droi'ənt, fōō'drwä-yän') adj. 1. Dazzling or stunning in effect. 2. Medicine. Occurring suddenly and severely. Used of a disease. [French, from present participle of foudroyer, to strike with lightning, from foudre, lightning, from Old French fouldre, from Latin fulgur, from fulgēre, to flash. See bhel-1 in Appendix.]

fought (fôt) v. Past tense and past participle of fight.

foul (foul) adj. foul-er, foul-est. 1. Offensive to the senses; revolting.

2. Having an offensive odor; smelly. 3. Rotten or putrid: foul meat. 4. a. Full of dirt or mud; dirty. See Synonyms at dirty. b. Full of impurities; polluted: foul air. 5. Morally detestable; wicked: foul deeds. 6. Of a vulgar or obscene nature: foul language. 7. Very disagreeable or displeasing; horrid: a foul movie. 8. Bad or unfavorable: in fair weather or foul. 9. Violating accepted standards or rules; dishonorable: used foul means to gain power. 10. a. Sports. Contrary to the rules of a game or sport: a foul boxing punch. b. Baseball. Outside the foul lines: a foul fly ball. 11. Entangled or twisted: a foul anchor. 12. Clogged or obstructed; blocked: a foul ventilator shaft. 13. Archaic. Ugly; unattractive. — n. 1. a.

Abbr. f. Sports. An infraction or a violation of the rules of play. b. Baseball. A foul ball. 2. An entanglement or a collision. 3. An instance of clogging or obstructing. — adv. In a foul manner. — v. fouled, foul-ing, fouls. — v. tr. 1. To make dirty or foul; pollute. See Synonyms at contaminate. 2. To bring into dishonor; besmirch. 3. To clog or obstruct. 4. To entangle or catch (a rope, for example). 5. Nautical. To encrust (a ship's hull) with foreign matter, such as barnacles. 6. a. Sports. To commit a foul against. b. Baseball. To hit (a ball) outside the foul lines. — v. intr. 1. To become foul. 2. a. Sports. To commit a foul. b. Baseball. To hit a ball outside the foul lines: fouled twice and then struck out; fouled out to the catcher. 3. To become entangled or twisted: The anchor line fouled on a rock. 4. To become clogged or obstructed. — phrasal verbs.

foul out. Sports. To be put out of a game for exceeding the number of permissible fouls. foul up. To blunder or cause to blunder because of mistakes or poor judgment. [Middle English, from Old English fūl. See pŭ- in Appendix.]

—foul/ly adv. —foul/ness n.

fou-lard (fōō-lärd') n. 1. A lightweight twill or plain-woven fabric of silk or silk and cotton, usually having a small printed design. 2. An article of clothing, especially a necktie or scarf, made of this fabric. [French.]

foul ball (foul bôl) n. Baseball. A batted ball that touches the ground outside of fair territory.

foul-brood (foul'brōōd') n. A fatal disease of honeybee larvae caused by one of several types of bacteria, including Bacillus alvei.

foul line (foul līn) n. 1. Baseball. Either of two straight lines extending from the rear of home plate to the outer edge of the playing field and indicating the area in which a fair ball can be hit. 2. Basketball. A line 15 feet in front of each backboard from which players shoot foul shots. Also called free-throw line. 3. Sports. A boundary limiting the permissible movements of a player, as on a bowling alley or in a field event.

foul-mouthed (foul'mouthd', -moutht') adj. Using abusive or obscene language.

foul play (foul plā) n. Unfair or treacherous action, especially when involving violence.

foul shot (foul shōt) n. Basketball. An unobstructed shot from the foul line awarded to a fouled player and scored as one point if successful. Also called free throw.

foul tip (foul tīp) n. Baseball. A pitched ball that is deflected slightly off the bat toward the catcher.

foul-up (foul'ŭp') n. 1. A condition of confusion caused by mistakes or poor judgment. 2. A mechanical failure.

found¹ (found) v. tr. found-ed, found-ing, founds. 1. To establish or set up, especially with provision for continuing existence: The college was founded in 1872. 2. To establish the foundation or basis of; base: found a theory on firm evidence. [Middle English founden, from Old French fonder, from Latin fundāre, from fundus, bottom.]

SYNONYMS: found, create, establish, institute, organize. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to bring something into existence and set it in operation”: founded a colony; created a trust fund; establishing an advertising agency; instituted an annual ball to benefit the homeless; organizing the metal-trading division of a bank.

found² (found) v. tr. found-ed, found-ing, founds. 1. To melt (metal) and pour into a mold. 2. To make (objects) by pouring molten material into a mold. [Middle English founden, from Old French fondre, from Latin fundere. See gheu- in Appendix.]

found³ (found) v. Past tense and past participle of find.

foun-da-tion (foun-dā'shən) n. 1. The act of founding, especially the establishment of an institution with provisions for future maintenance. 2. The basis on which a thing stands, is founded, or is supported. See Synonyms at base¹. 3. a. Funds for the perpetual support of an institution; an endowment. b. An institution founded and supported by an endowment. 4. A foundation garment. 5. A cosmetic used as a base for facial makeup. —foun-da'tion-al adj.

foundation garment (foun-dā'shən gār'mənt) n. A woman's supporting undergarment, such as a corset or girdle.

foun·der¹ (foun'dər) v. foun·dered, foun·der·ing, foun·ders. — v. intr.
1. To sink below the water: The ship struck a reef and foundered. 2. To cave in; sink: The platform swayed and then foundered. 3. To fail utterly; collapse: a marriage that soon foundered. 4. To stumble, especially to stumble and go lame. Used of horses. 5. To become ill from overeating. Used of livestock. 6. To be afflicted with laminitis. Used of horses. — v. tr. To cause to founder. — n. See laminitis. [Middle English foundren, to sink to the ground, from Old French fondrer, from Vulgar Latin funderāre*, from fundus*, funder-*, bottom, from Latin fundus, fund-.]

USAGE NOTE: The verbs founder and flounder are often confused. Founder comes from a Latin word meaning “bottom” (as in foundation) and originally referred to knocking enemies down; it is now used as well to mean “to fail utterly, collapse.” Flounder means “to move clumsily, thrash about,” and hence “to proceed in confusion.” If John is foundering in Chemistry 1, he had better drop the course; if he is floundering, he may yet pull through.

foun·der² (foun'dər) n. One who establishes something or formulates the basis for something: the founder of a university; the founders of a new nation.

Found·ing Father (foun'dɪŋ fä'thər) n. 1. A member of the convention that drafted the U.S. Constitution in 1787. 2. founding father. A man who founds or establishes something.

foun·ling (foun'liŋ) n. A deserted or abandoned child of unknown parentage. [Middle English, from found, past participle of finden, to find. See FIND.]

found object (foun öb'jikt) n. A natural object or an artifact not originally intended as art, found and considered to have aesthetic value. Also called objet trouvé [Translation of French objet trouvé: objet, object + trouvé, past participle of trouver, to find.]

foun·dry (foun'drē) n. pl. foun·dries. 1. An establishment in which metal is melted and poured into molds. 2. a. The skill or operation of founding. b. The castings made by founding.

fount¹ (fount) n. 1. A fountain. 2. One that initiates or dispenses; a source: Damascus—the fount of modern Arab nationalism. [Middle English, from Old English, and Old French font both from Latin fōns, font-.]

fount² (fount) n. Chiefly British. Variant of font².

foun·tain (foun'tən) n. 1. a. An artificially created jet or stream of water. b. A structure, often decorative, from which a jet or stream of water issues. 2. A spring, especially the source of a stream. 3. A reservoir or chamber containing a supply of liquid that can be siphoned off as needed. 4. A soda fountain. 5. A point of origin or dissemination; a source: the library, a fountain of information.

— v. intr. tr. foun-tained, foun-tain-ing, foun-tains. To flow or cause to flow like a fountain. [Middle English, from Old French fontaine, from Late Latin fontāna, from Latin, feminine of fontānus, of a spring, from fōns, font-, spring.]

foun-tain-head (foun'tən-hĕd') n. 1. A spring that is the source or head of a stream. 2. A chief and copious source; an originator: "the intellectual fountain-head of the black conservatives" (Jerrold K. Footlick).

fountain pen (foun'tən pĕn) n. A pen filled from an external source and containing an ink reservoir that automatically feeds the writing point.

Foun-tain Valley (foun'tən vāl'ē) A city of southern California southeast of Los Angeles. It is mainly residential. Population, 53,691.

Fou-quet also Fouc-quet (fōō-kā'), Jean. 1420?-1480?. French artist who produced religious paintings, unidealized portraits, and book illuminations.

Fou-quet also Fouc-quet (fōō-kā') also Foucquet, Nicolas. 1615-1680.

French superintendent of finance (1653-1661) who was convicted of embezzlement (1664) and imprisoned for life.

four (fôr, fōr) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 3 + 1. 2. The fourth in a set or sequence. 3. Something having four parts, units, or members, such as a musical quartet or a four-cylinder engine. —idiom. all fours. All four limbs of an animal or person: a baby crawling on all fours. [Middle English, from Old English fĕower. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.] —four adj. & pron.

four-bag-ger (fôr'băg'ər, fōr'-) n. Baseball. A home run.

four-by-four or 4 × 4 (fôr'bī-fôr', fōr'bī-fōr') n. A four-wheel drive motor vehicle.

four-chette (fōr-shĕt') n. 1. A narrow, forked strip of material joining the front and back sections of the fingers of gloves. 2. Anatomy. A small band or fold of mucous membrane forming the posterior margin of the vulva and connecting the posterior ends of the labia majora. 3. Zoology. See furcula. [French, from Old French forchete, fork, diminutive of forche, pitchfork, from Latin furca.]

four-col-or (fôr'kŭl'ər, fōr'-) adj. Of or being an overprinting or photographic process in which three primary colors and black are transferred by four different plates or filters to a surface, reproducing the colors of the subject matter.

Four Cor-ners (fôr kôr'nərz) A location in the southwest United States where the boundaries of four states—Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, and Utah—meet.

four-cy-cle (fôr'sī'kəl, fōr'-) adj. Requiring four strokes of the piston for a cycle: a four-cycle internal-combustion engine.

four-di-men-sion-al (fôr'dī-mĕn'shə-nəl, fōr'-) adj. Specified by or exhibiting four dimensions, especially the three spatial dimensions and single temporal dimension of the relativity theory.

four-eyed fish (fôr'īd' fish, fôr'-) n. Either of two freshwater fishes (Anableps anableps or A. microlepis) of tropical America, having bulging eyes divided horizontally, with the upper part adapted for vision above the water and the lower part for vision below the water.

four flush (fôr flŭsh) n. Games. A five-card poker hand containing four cards in the same suit.

four-flush (fôr'flŭsh', fôr'-) v. intr. four-flushed, four-flush-ing, four-flush-es. 1. Games. To bluff in poker with a four flush. 2. Slang. To make empty claims; bluff. —four-flush'er n.

four-foot-ed (fôr'fōot'īd, fôr'-) adj. Having four feet.

four-gon (fōor'gōN', fōor'-) n. pl. four-gons (-gōN', -gōNZ'). A wagon for carrying baggage. [French.]

four-hand-ed (fôr'hăh'dīd, fôr'-) adj. 1. Games. Involving or requiring four players: fourhanded bridge. 2. Designed for four hands, as a piano duet.

Four-H Club (fôr'ăch' klŭb, fôr'-) n. A youth organization sponsored by the Department of Agriculture and offering instruction in agriculture and home economics. [From its four goals: to improve head, heart, hands, and health.]

Four Hundred also four hundred (fôr hŭn'drīd) n. The wealthiest and most exclusive social set of a community.

Fou-rier (fōor'ē-ā', fōo-ryā'), (François Marie) Charles. 1772-1837. French social theorist who believed that universal harmony could be achieved by reorganizing society into self-sustaining units called "phalanxes," groups of 1,500 people who would share labor, wealth, and housing.

Fou-rier (fōor'ē-ā', fōo-ryā'), Baron Jean Baptiste Joseph. 1768-1830. French mathematician and physicist who formulated a method for analyzing periodic functions and studied the conduction of heat.

Fourier analysis (fōor'ē-ā' ə-năl'i-sīs) n. Mathematics. The approximation of a function through the application of a Fourier series to periodic data.

Fou-ri-er-ism (fōor'ē-ə-rīz'əm) n. A system for social reform advocated by Charles Fourier in the early 19th century, proposing that society be organized into small self-sustaining communal groups. —Fou'ri-er-ist, Fou'ri-er-ite' (-ə-rīt') n.

Fourier series (fōor'ē-ā' sīr'ēz) n. Mathematics. An infinite series whose terms are constants multiplied by sine and cosine functions and that can, if uniformly convergent, approximate a wide variety of functions. [After Baron Jean Baptiste Joseph FOURIER.]

four-in-hand (fôr'in-hăhnd', fôr'-) n. 1. A team of four horses controlled by one driver. 2. A vehicle drawn by four horses. 3. A necktie tied in a slipknot with long ends left hanging one in front of the other.

four-leaf clover (fôr'lēf' klō'vər, fôr'-) n. A clover leaf having four leaflets instead of the normal three, considered to be an omen of good luck.

four-let-ter word (fôr'lêt'ər wûrd, fôr'-) n. Any of several short English words generally regarded as vulgar or obscene.

four-o'clock (fôr'ə-klök', fôr'-) n. Any of several plants of the genus Mirabilis, especially M. jalapa, native to tropical America and widely cultivated for its funnel-shaped or tubular, variously colored flowers that open late in the afternoon.

401(k) (fôr'ō-wən-kā', fôr'-) n. A retirement plan authorized in section 401(k) of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code that permits an employee to have part of his or her income regularly withheld and invested with taxes deferred until the money is withdrawn.

four-pen-ny nail (fôr'pĕn'ē nāl, -pə-nē, fôr'-) n. A nail 12 inches (3.8 centimeters) long.

four-post-er (fôr'pō'stər, fôr'-) n. A bed having tall corner posts originally intended to support curtains or a canopy.

four-ra-gère (fōr'ə-zhâr') n. An ornamental braided cord usually looped around the left shoulder of a uniform, sometimes awarded to an entire military unit. [French, from fouirage, forage, from Old French fORAGE. See FORAGE.]

four-score (fôr'skôr', fôr'skôr') adj. Four times twenty; eighty.

four-some (fôr'səm, fôr'-) n. 1. A group of four persons or things, especially two couples. 2. Sports & Games. a. A game, especially a golf match, played by four persons, two on each side. b. The players in such a game. [Middle English four-som, from Old English fēowra sum, one of four : fēowra, genitive pl. of fēower, four; see FOUR + sum, one; see -SOME².]

four-square (fôr'skwâr', fôr'-) adj. 1. Having four equal sides and four right angles; square. 2. Marked by firm, unwavering conviction or expression; forthright: a foursquare refusal to yield. — adv. In a forthright manner; squarely. — four'square'ly adv.

four-star (fôr'stär', fôr'-) adj. Of superlative quality: a four-star restaurant.

four-teen (fôr-tĕn', fôr-) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 13 + 1. 2. The 14th in a set or sequence. 3. Something having 14 parts, units, or members. [Middle English fourtene, from Old English fēowertēne. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.] — four-teen' adj. & pron.

four-teenth (fôr-tĕnth', fôr-) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 14 in a series. 2. One of 14 equal parts. — four-teenth' adv. & adj.

fourth (fôrth, fôrth) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number four in a series. 2. One of four equal parts. 3. Music. a. A tone four degrees above or below a given tone in a diatonic scale. b. The interval between two such tones. c. The harmonic combination of these tones. d. The subdominant in a scale. 4. The transmission gear or gear ratio used to produce forward speeds next higher to those of third in a motor vehicle. 5. Fourth. The Fourth of July; Independence Day. [Middle English fourthe, from Old English fēorþa. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.] —fourth adv. & adj.

fourth-class (fôrth'klās', fôrth'-) adj. Of or being a class of mail consisting of merchandise and some printed matter weighing over eight ounces and not sealed against inspection. — adv. As or by fourth-class mail.

fourth dimension (fôrth dī-měn'shən) n. Time regarded as a coordinate dimension and required by relativity theory, along with three spatial dimensions, to specify completely the location of any event.

fourth estate (fôrth ĭ-stāt') n. Journalists considered as a group; the public press.

Fourth of July (fôrth ïv jōō-lī') n. See Independence Day.

Fourth World also fourth world (fôrth wûrld) n. The least-developed countries of the Third World.

4WD abbr. Four-wheel drive.

four-wheel (fôr'hwēl', -wēl', fôr'-) adj. 1. Having or running on four wheels. 2. Of or relating to four-wheel drive.

four-wheel drive (fôr'hwēl' drīv) n. Abbr. FWD, 4WD An automotive drive system in which mechanical power is transmitted from the drive shaft to all four wheels.

four-wheel·er (fôr'hwē'lər, -wē'-, fôr'-) n. A small, all-terrain motor vehicle seating one person and having four wheels with large tires.

Fou·ta Djal·lon also Fu·ta Jal·lon (fōō'tə jə-lōn', fōō'tä jä-lōn') A mountainous region of northwest Guinea. It is the source of the headwaters of the Gambia, Niger, and Senegal rivers.

fo·ve·a (fō'vē-ə) n. pl. fo·ve·ae (-vē-ē'). 1. A small cuplike depression or pit in a bone or an organ. 2. The fovea centralis. [Latin, small pit.] —fo've·al (-əl), fo've·ate' (-āt') adj. —fo've·i·form' (-ə-fôrm') adj.

fovea cen·tra·lis (fō'vē-ə sən-trā'lis) n. A small depression near the center of the retina, constituting the area of most acute vision. [New Latin : Latin fovea, small pit + Latin centrālis, central.]

fo·ve·ae (fō'vē-ē') n. Plural of fovea.

fo·ve·o·la (fō-vē'ə-lə) n. pl. fo·ve·o·lae (-lē') or fo·ve·o·las. A small fovea. [New Latin, diminutive of Latin fovea, small pit.]

fowl (foul) n. pl. fowl or fowls. 1. Any of various birds of the order Galliformes, especially the common, widely domesticated chicken (Gallus gallus).

2. a. A bird, such as the duck, goose, turkey, or pheasant, that is used as food or hunted as game. b. The flesh of such birds used as food. 3. A bird of any kind. — v. intr. fowled, fowl·ing, fowls. To hunt, trap, or shoot wildfowl. [Middle English fowl, from Old English fugol. See pleu- in Appendix.] —fowl'er n.

Fow·ler (fou'lər), Henry Watson. 1858-1933. British lexicographer who collaborated with his brother Francis (1870-1918) on The King's English (1906) and the Concise Oxford Dictionary (1911). He also wrote A Dictionary of Modern English Usage (1926).

Fowler (fou'lər), William Alfred. Born 1911. American nuclear physicist. He shared a 1983 Nobel Prize for research on the evolution of stars.

fowl-ing piece (fou'ling pēs) n. A light shotgun for shooting birds and small animals.

fox (föks) n. pl. fox-es also fox. 1. a. Any of various carnivorous mammals of the genus Vulpes and related genera, related to the dogs and wolves and characteristically having upright ears, a pointed snout, and a long, bushy tail. b. The fur of one of these mammals. 2. A crafty, sly, or clever person. 3. Slang. An attractive young person. 4. Nautical. Small cordage made by twisting together two or more strands of tarred yarn. 5. Archaic. A sword. — v. foxed, fox-ing, fox-es. — v. tr. 1. To trick or fool by ingenuity or cunning; outwit. 2. To baffle or confuse. 3. To make (beer) sour by fermenting. 4. To repair (a shoe) by attaching a new upper. 5. Obsolete. To intoxicate. — v. intr. 1. To act slyly or craftily. 2. To turn sour in fermenting. Used of beer. [Middle English, from Old English.]

FOX (föks) n. pl. Fox or Fox-es. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting various parts of southern Michigan, southern Wisconsin, northern Illinois, and eastern Iowa, with present-day populations in central Iowa and with the Sauk in Oklahoma. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Fox.

FOX (föks), Charles James. 1749-1806. British politician who supported American independence and the French Revolution.

FOX (föks), George. 1624-1691. English religious leader who founded the Society of Friends, or Quakers (1647-1648).

FOX (föks), John William, Jr. 1863-1919. American writer of sentimental novels about Southern life, including Crittenden (1900).

FOX (föks), Margaret. 1833-1893. American spiritualist who with her sister Katherine (1839?-1892), known as "Kate," purported to communicate with spirits through mysterious rappings and seances. Their activities were largely responsible for the widespread American fascination with spiritualism.

FOX (föks), Richard. See Richard Foxe.

Foxe (föks), John. 1516-1587. English martyrologist who wrote The Book of Martyrs (1563), an account of Protestant martyrs during the reign of Mary I.

Foxe or Fox (föks), Richard. 1448?-1528. English prelate and exponent of Renaissance learning in England. He founded Corpus Christi College at Oxford University (1515-1516).

Foxe Basin (föks bā'sin) An arm of the Atlantic Ocean between the Melville Peninsula and Baffin Island in Northwest Territories, Canada.

- foxed (fɒkst) adj. Discolored with yellowish-brown stains: “Their set of George Eliot was foxed and buckled by the rain” (John Cheever). [Perhaps from the color of foxes.]
- fox-fire (fɒks'fɪr') n. A phosphorescent glow, especially that produced by certain fungi found on rotting wood.
- fox-glove (fɒks'glʊv') n. 1. Any of several herbs of the genus Digitalis, especially D. purpurea of Europe, having a long cluster of large, tubular, pinkish-purple flowers and leaves that are the source of the drug digitalis. 2. Any of several related plants.
- fox grape (fɒks grāp) n. A wild grape (Vitis labrusca) of the eastern United States that bears purplish-black berries and is the source of many cultivated grape varieties. Also called skunk grape
- fox-hole (fɒks'hɒl') n. A shallow pit dug by a soldier in combat for immediate refuge against enemy fire.
- fox-hound (fɒks'hound') n. Any of various medium-sized short-haired hounds developed for fox hunting, especially either of two breeds, the English foxhound and the American foxhound.
- Fox Islands (fɒks ɪ'lændz) A group of islands of southwest Alaska in the eastern Aleutian Islands off the southwest tip of the Alaska Peninsula.
- Fox River (fɒks rɪv'ər) 1. A river rising in southeast Wisconsin and flowing about 354 km (220 mi) south-southwest to the Illinois River in northeast Illinois. 2. A river of central and eastern Wisconsin flowing about 282 km (175 mi) generally northeastward through Lake Winnebago and into Green Bay.
- fox snake (fɒks snāk) n. A rat snake (Elaphe vulpina) common to the north-central United States, having dark brown or black blotches on the back and a reddish head.
- fox sparrow (fɒks spār'ō) n. A large sparrow (Passerella iliaca) of the western United States, Canada, and Alaska, having a rufous tail and streaked underparts.
- fox squirrel (fɒks skwɪr'əl) n. A large North American squirrel (Sciurus niger) having rusty or grayish fur.
- fox-tail (fɒks'tāl') n. Any of several grasses of the genus Alopecurus, having dense, silky or bristly flowering spikes.
- foxtail lily (fɒks'tāl' lɪl'ē) n. Eremurus.
- fox terrier (fɒks tɛr'ē-ər) n. Any of various small terriers of a breed originating in England, having a white coat with dark markings and developed in both wire-haired and smooth-coated varieties. They were formerly used to drive foxes out of hiding.
- fox-trot (fɒks'trɒt') v. intr. fox-trot-ted, fox-trot-ting, fox-trots. To dance the fox trot.

fox trot (föks tröt) n. 1. a. A ballroom dance in 2/4 or 4/4 time, encompassing a variety of slow and fast steps. b. The music for this dance. 2. A slow broken gait of a horse, between a trot and a walk.

fox-y (fök'sē) adj. fox-i-er, fox-i-est. 1. a. Of or resembling a fox. b. Slyly clever; crafty: a foxy scheme. See Synonyms at sly. 2. Having a reddish-brown color. 3. Discolored, as by age or decay; foxed. 4. Slang. Sensually attractive; sexy. 5. Having a distinctive sharp flavor or aroma: foxy American grapes.
—fox'i-ly adv. —fox'i-ness n.

foy (foi) n. Scots. A farewell feast, drink, or gift, as at a wedding. [Dutch dialectal fooi, from Middle Dutch foye, journey, from Old French voie, from Latin via, road. See wegh- in Appendix.]

foyer (foi'ər, foi'ā', fwä'yā') n. 1. A lobby or an anteroom, as of a theater or hotel. 2. An entrance hall; a vestibule. [French, social center, from Old French foier, fireplace, from Vulgar Latin focārium*, from Late Latin, neuter of focārius, of the hearth (unattested sense), from Latin focus, fire.]

fp or f.p. abbr. Freezing point.

fp. abbr. Foolscap.

FPC abbr. 1. Federal Power Commission. 2. Fish protein concentrate. 3. Friends Peace Committee.

fpl abbr. Fireplace.

fpm or f.p.m. abbr. Feet per minute.

FPO abbr. Fleet post office.

fps or f.p.s. abbr. 1. Feet per second. 2. Foot-pound-second. 3. Frames per second.

Fr The symbol for the element francium.

fr. abbr. 1. Frame. 2. Franc. 3. From.

Fr. abbr. 1. Father (cleric). 2. France; French. 3. Frau. 4. Friar. 5. Friday.

f.r. abbr. Latin. Folio recto (right-hand page).

Fra (frä) n. Roman Catholic Church. Used as a title for an Italian monk or friar; brother. [Italian, short for frate, brother, from Latin frāter. See bhrāter- in Appendix.]

fra-cas (frā'kəs, fräk'əs) n. Informal. A noisy, disorderly fight or quarrel; a brawl. See Synonyms at brawl. [French, from Italian fracasso, from fracassare, to make an uproar.]

frac-tal (fräk'təl) n. A geometric pattern that is repeated at ever smaller scales to produce irregular shapes and surfaces that cannot be represented by classical geometry. Fractals are used especially in computer modeling of irregular patterns and structures in nature. [French, from Latin frāctus, past participle of frangere, to break. See FRACTION.]

fract-ed (fräk'tid) adj. Obsolete. Broken. [From Latin frāctus, past participle of frangere, to break. See FRACTION.]

frac-tion (frāk'shən) n. 1. Mathematics. An expression that indicates the quotient of two quantities. 2. A disconnected piece; a fragment. 3. A small part; a bit: moved a fraction of a step. 4. A chemical component separated by fractionation. [Middle English fraccioun, a breaking, from Anglo-Norman, from Late Latin frāctiō, frāctiōn-, from Latin fractus, past participle of frangere, to break. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: One might think that a word like fraction as well as its ancestors might have always referred to the mathematical fraction. Certainly the mathematical notion of a fraction was known to the Babylonians, perhaps as early as 2000 B.C. But our word fraction goes back only to the Latin word frangere, “to break.” From the stem of the past participle fractus is derived Late Latin frāctiō, “a breaking” or “a breaking in pieces,” as in the breaking of the Eucharistic Host. In Medieval Latin the word frāctiō developed its mathematical sense, which was taken into Middle English along with the word. The earliest recorded sense of our word is “an aliquot part of a unit, a fraction or subdivision,” found in a work by Chaucer written about 1400. One of the next recorded instances of the word recalls its origins, referring to the “brekyng or fraccioun” of a bone.

frac-tion-al (frāk'shə-nəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or constituting a fraction.

2. Very small; insignificant: a minor candidate's fractional share of the vote.

3. Being in fractions or pieces. —frac-tion-al-ly adv.

fractional currency (frāk'shə-nəl kûr'ən-sē) n. Coin or paper currency in a denomination less than a standard monetary unit.

fractional distillation (frāk'shə-nəl dîs'tə-lā'shən) n. Distillation to separate volatile chemical substances in which the products are collected in a series of separate fractions, each with a higher boiling point than the previous fraction.

frac-tion-al-ize (frāk'shə-nə-lîz') v. tr. frac-tion-al-ized, frac-tion-al-iz-ing, frac-tion-al-iz-es. To divide into separate parts or sections: conflicting interests that tend to fractionalize a society. —frac'tion-al-i-za'tion (-shə-nə-lî-zā'shən) n.

frac-tion-ate (frāk'shə-nāt') v. tr. frac-tion-at-ed, frac-tion-at-ing, frac-tion-ates. 1. To divide or separate into parts; break up: “In the post-Watergate era, power has been fractionated on Capitol Hill” (Evan Thomas). 2. To separate (a chemical compound) into components, as by distillation or crystallization.

—frac'tion-a'tion n. —frac'tion-a'tor n.

frac-tion-ize (frāk'shə-nîz') v. tr. intr. frac-tion-ized, frac-tion-iz-ing, frac-tion-iz-es. To divide into parts or fractions; fractionalize. —frac'tion-i-za'tion (-shə-nî-zā'shən) n.

frac-tious (frāk/'shəs) adj. 1. Inclined to make trouble; unruly. 2. Having a peevish nature; cranky. [From FRACTION, discord (obsolete).] —frac'tiously-ly adv. —frac'tious-ness n.

frac-ture (frāk/'chər) n. 1. a. The act or process of breaking. b. The condition of having been broken or ruptured: “a sudden and irreparable fracture of the established order” (W. Bruce Lincoln). 2. A break, rupture, or crack, especially in bone or cartilage. 3. Mineralogy. a. The characteristic manner in which a mineral breaks. b. The characteristic appearance of the surface of a broken mineral. 4. Geology. A crack or fault in a rock. — v. frac-tured, frac-turing, frac-tures. — v. tr. 1. To cause to break: fracture a bone. 2. To disrupt or destroy as if by breaking: fractured the delicate balance of power. 3. To abuse or misuse flagrantly, as by violating rules: ignorant writers who fracture the language. 4. Slang. To cause to laugh heartily: “Jack Benny fractured audiences... for more than 50 years” (Newsweek). — v. intr. To undergo a fracture. See Synonyms at break. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin frāctūra, from frāctus, past participle of frangere, to break. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

frae (frā) prep. Scots. From. [Middle English fra, from Old Norse frā. See FRO.]

frag (fräg) Slang. n. A fragmentation grenade. — v. tr. fragged, frag-ging, frags. To wound or kill (a fellow soldier) by throwing a grenade or similar explosive at the victim: “He got fragged. Blown away” (Bobbie Ann Mason).

—frag'ger n.

frag-ile (fräj/'əl, -īl') adj. 1. Easily broken, damaged, or destroyed; frail. 2. Lacking physical or emotional strength; delicate. 3. Lacking substance; tenuous or flimsy: a fragile claim to fame. [French, from Old French, from Latin fragilis, from frangere, frag-, to break. See bhreg- in Appendix.] —frag'ile-ly adv. —fra-gil'i-ty (frə-jīl/'i-tē), frag'ile-ness n.

SYNONYMS: fragile, breakable, frangible, delicate, brittle. These adjectives mean easily broken or damaged. Fragile applies to objects whose lightness or delicacy of material requires that they be handled with great care: a collection of fragile porcelain plates. Breakable and frangible, which are identical in meaning, mean capable of being broken but do not necessarily imply inherent weakness: Even earthenware pottery is breakable. The museum stored all frangible articles in a locked showcase. Delicate refers to what is so soft, tender, or fine as to be susceptible to injury: The peach is a delicate fruit. Brittle refers to hardness and inelasticity of material that makes something especially likely to fracture or snap when it is subjected to pressure: brittle bones. See also Synonyms at weak frag-ment (fräg/'mənt) n. 1. A small part broken off or detached. 2. An incomplete or isolated portion; a bit: overheard fragments of their conversation; extant fragments of an old manuscript. — v. frag-ment-ed, frag-ment-ing, frag-ments (-mənt'). — v. tr. To break or separate (something) into fragments. — v. intr. To become broken into fragments: After the election, the coalition fragmented. [Middle English, from Latin fragmentum, from frangere, frag-, to break. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

frag-men-tal (fräg-měnl'tl) adj. 1. Fragmentary. 2. Geology. Consisting of broken rock, coal, or ore moved from its place of origin. —frag-men'tal-ly adv.

frag-men-tar-y (fräg'mən-těr'ē) adj. Consisting of small, disconnected parts: a picture that emerges from fragmentary information. —frag'men-tar'i-ly (-tār'ə-lē) adv. —frag'men-tar'i-ness n.

frag-men-ta-tion (fräg'mən-tā'shən, -měn-) n. 1. The act or process of breaking into fragments. 2. The scattering of the fragments of an exploding bomb or other projectile.

fragmentation bomb (fräg'mən-tā'shən bۆm) n. An aerial antipersonnel bomb that scatters shrapnel over a wide area upon explosion.

fragmentation grenade (fräg'mən-tā'shən grə-nād') n. A grenade that scatters shrapnel over a wide area upon explosion.

frag-men-tize (fräg'mən-tīz') v. tr. intr. frag-men-tized, frag-men-tiz-ing, frag-men-tiz-es. To break or become broken into fragments. —frag'men-tiz'er n.

Fra-go-nard (fräg'ə-nār', frä-gō-), Jean Honoré. 1732-1806. French artist best known for his rococo paintings of exotic landscapes and love scenes.

fra-grance (frā'grəns) n. 1. The state or quality of having a pleasant odor. 2. A sweet or pleasant odor; a scent.

SYNONYMS: fragrance, aroma, bouquet, perfume, redolence, scent. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a pleasant or sweet odor”: the fragrance of lilacs; the aroma of sizzling bacon; the bouquet of a fine Burgundy wine; the perfume of roses; the redolence of freshly brewed coffee; the scent of newly mown hay.

fragrance strip (frā'grəns strīp) n. A sealed or folded strip, as on an envelope or a magazine page, designed to release an aroma when broken or torn open.

fra-grant (frā'grənt) adj. Having a pleasant odor. [Middle English, from Latin frāgrāns, frāgrant- past participle of frāgrāre, to emit an odor.] —fra'grant-ly adv.

fraid-y cat (frā'dē kăt) n. Slang. A timid or fearful person.

frail¹ (frāl) adj. frail-er, frail-est. 1. Physically weak; delicate: an invalid's frail body. 2. Not strong or substantial; slight: evidence too frail to stand up in court.

3. Easily broken or destroyed; fragile. 4. Easily led astray; morally weak. See Synonyms at weak. [Middle English frele, from Old French, from Latin fragilis, from frangere, frag-, to break. See bhreg- in Appendix.] —frail/ly adv.

—frail/ness n.

frail² (frāl) n. 1. A rush basket for holding fruit, especially dried fruit. 2. The quantity of fruit, such as raisins or figs, that such a basket can hold. [Middle English fraiel, from Old French.]

frail·ty (frāl'tē) n. pl. frail·ties. 1. The condition or quality of being frail. 2. A fault, especially weakness of resolution, arising from the imperfections of human nature. See Synonyms at fault.

fraise (frāz) n. 1. A defensive barrier of pointed, inclined stakes or barbed wire. 2. A ruff for the neck worn in the 16th century. [French, from Old French, mesentery (from its pleated shape), from (feves) frasees, shelled (beans), from the resemblance between the mesentery and the peel surrounding individual broad beans, from Latin (faba) frēsa, ground (bean), feminine past participle of frendere, to crush. See FRENUM.]

frak·tur (frāk-tōor') n. A style of black letter formerly used in German manuscripts and printing. [German, from Latin fractūra, a breaking (from the curls that appear to break up the word). See FRACTURE.]

fram·be·sia (frām-bē'zhə, -zhē-ə) n. See yaws. [New Latin, from French framboise, raspberry (from the appearance of the excrescence), from Old French, of Germanic origin. See bhā⁻¹ in Appendix.]

frame (frām) v. framed, fram·ing, frames. — v. tr. 1. To build by putting together the structural parts of; construct: frame a house. 2. To conceive or design: framed an alternate proposal. 3. To arrange or adjust for a purpose: The question was framed to draw only one answer. 4. a. To put into words; formulate: frame a reply. b. To form (words) silently with the lips. 5. To enclose in or as if in a frame: frame a painting. 6. Informal. a. To make up evidence or contrive events so as to incriminate (a person) falsely. b. To prearrange (a contest) so as to ensure a desired fraudulent outcome; fix: frame a prizefight. — v. intr.

1. Archaic. To go; proceed. 2. Obsolete. To manage; contrive. — n. Abbr. fr.

1. Something composed of parts fitted and joined together. 2. A structure that gives shape or support: the frame of a house. 3. a. An open structure or rim for encasing, holding, or bordering: a window frame; the frame of a mirror. b. A closed, often rectangular border of drawn or printed lines. 4. Often frames. A pair of eyeglasses, excluding the lenses. 5. The structure of a human or animal body; physique: a worker's sturdy frame. 6. A cold frame. 7. A general structure or system: the frame of government. 8. A general state or condition: The news put me into a better frame of mind. 9. Sports & Games. a. A round or period of play in some games, such as bowling and billiards. b. Baseball. An inning. 10. A single picture on a roll of movie film. 11. The total area of a complete picture in television broadcasting. 12. Informal. A frame-up. 13. A single step in a sequence of programmed instruction. 14. Obsolete. Shape; form. [Middle English framen, from Old English framian, to further, from fram, forward. See FROM.]

frame of reference (frām üv rĕf'ər-əns) n. pl. frames of reference. 1. A set of coordinate axes in terms of which position or movement may be specified or with reference to which physical laws may be mathematically stated. 2. A set of ideas, as of philosophical or religious doctrine, in terms of which other ideas are interpreted or assigned meaning.

fram·er (frā'mər) n. 1. One that frames: a picture framer; a framer of new laws. 2. Often Framer. One of the people who wrote the U.S. Constitution.

frame-shift mutation (frām'shif't myōō-tā'shən) n. Genetics. A mutation in a DNA chain caused by the insertion or deletion of one or more nucleotides, except in a number that is a multiple of three, which alters every codon beyond the point of insertion or deletion.

frame story (frām stōr'ē) n. A narrative structure containing or connecting a series of otherwise unrelated tales.

frame-up (frām'üp') n. Informal. 1. A scheme to incriminate an innocent person. 2. A contest or deliberation the outcome of which is fraudulently prearranged.

frame-work (frām'wûrk') n. 1. A structure for supporting or enclosing something else, especially a skeletal support used as the basis for something being constructed. 2. An external work platform; a scaffold. 3. A fundamental structure, as for a written work or a system of ideas.

fram·ing (frā'mĭng) n. A frame, framework, or system of frames.

Framing·ham (frā'mĭng-hăġm') A town of east-central Massachusetts west-southwest of Boston. Settled in 1650, it is a commercial and industrial center. Population, 64,994.

franc (frăngk) n. Abbr. f., fr. A basic unit of currency in Belgium, Benin, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Comoros, Congo, Djibouti, France, Gabon, Ivory Coast, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Mali, Monaco, Niger, Rwanda, Senegal, Switzerland, and Togo. See Table at currency. [French, from Old French, from Medieval Latin Francōrum rĕx, king of the Franks (from the legend on the first of these coins). See FRANK.]

Fran·ca (frăn'kā) A city of southeast Brazil north of São Paulo. It is a shipping and manufacturing center in a farming region. Population, 144,117.

France (frăns) Abbr. Fr. A country of western Europe on the Atlantic Ocean and the English Channel. It was settled by the Franks after the retreat of the Romans, who had conquered Celtic Gaul in 58-51 B.C. Charlemagne made it the center of his Empire of the West after A.D. 800. In the Middle Ages France was split into numerous fiefdoms and kingdoms, most of which were incorporated into the royal domain by the time of Louis XI (reigned 1461-1483). Widespread poverty and discontent led to the French Revolution (1789), the excesses of which contributed to the rise of Napoleon Bonaparte (1799). Much of France was occupied by the Germans in World War II. Paris is the capital and the largest city. Population, 54,334,871.

France (frāns, frāns), Anatole. Pen name of Jacques Anatole François Thibault. 1844-1924. French critic and writer of sophisticated, often satirical short stories and novels, including Penguin Island (1908). He won the 1921 Nobel Prize for literature.

Fran-ce-sca (frän-chēs'kə, frän-), Piero della. See Piero della Francesca.

Fran-ce-sca da Ri-mi-ni (frän-chēs'kə də rīm'ī-nē, də rē'mē-nē, frän-), Died c. 1285. Italian noblewoman. Unhappily married, she fell in love with her brother-in-law. When her husband learned of the affair, he murdered his wife and brother, a tragedy recounted in Dante's Inferno.

Franche-Com-té (fränsh-kōn-tā') A historical region and former province of eastern France. The region was first occupied by a Celtic tribe in the fourth century B.C. and became part of France after 1676. Until that time its control was continually disputed by France, Germany, Burgundy, Switzerland, and Spain.

fran-chise (frän'chīz') n. 1. A privilege or right officially granted a person or a group by a government, especially: a. The constitutional or statutory right to vote. b. The establishment of a corporation's existence. c. The granting of certain rights and powers to a corporation. d. Legal immunity from servitude, certain burdens, or other restrictions. 2. a. Authorization granted to someone to sell or distribute a company's goods or services in a certain area. b. A business or group of businesses established or operated under such authorization. 3. The territory or limits within which immunity, a privilege, or a right may be exercised. 4. Informal. A professional sports team. — v. tr. fran-chised, fran-chis-ing, fran-chis-es. To grant a franchise to. [Middle English fraunchise, from Old French franchise, from franche, feminine of franc, free, exempt. See FRANK¹.]

fran-chis-ee (frän'chī-zē') n. One that is granted a franchise, as to market a company's goods or services in a certain local area.

fran-chis-er or fran-chi-sor (frän'chī-zər) n. One that grants a franchise.

Fran-cis I (frän'sis), 1494-1547. King of France (1515-1547) who waged four wars against Holy Roman Emperor Charles V from 1521 to 1544. A patron of the arts, he reigned during the Renaissance in France.

Fran-cis II (frän'sis), 1768-1835. Last Holy Roman emperor (1792-1806) and emperor of Austria (1804-1835) as Francis I. When Napoleon forced the dissolution of the Holy Roman Empire (1806), Francis renounced his title, ruled over the Austrian Empire, and helped defeat Napoleon (1813-1815).

Fran-cis-can (frän-sīs'kən) n. Roman Catholic Church. A member of a religious mendicant order founded by Saint Francis of Assisi in 1209 and now divided into three independent branches. — adj. Of or relating to Saint Francis of Assisi or to the order founded by him. [New Latin Franciscānus, from Medieval Latin Franciscus, from Saint. FRANCIS OF ASSISI.]

Fran-cis Fer-di-nand (frän'sis fûr'dn-änd'), 1863-1914. Austrian archduke whose assassination by a Serbian nationalist precipitated World War I.

Fran-cis Jo-seph I (frän'sis jō'zəf, -səf, yō'zěf) also Franz Jo-sef I (fränz jō'zəf, -səf, fränts, fränts yō'zěf), 1830-1916. Emperor of Austria (1848-1916) and king of Hungary (1867-1916) who divided (1867) his empire into a dual monarchy, Austria-Hungary. His ultimatum to Serbia after the 1914 assassination of his nephew Francis Ferdinand led to World War I.

Fran-cis of As-si-si (frän'sis ūf ə-sē'zē, -sē, ə-sis'ē), Saint. 1182?-1226. Italian Roman Catholic monk who founded the Franciscan order (1209) and inspired followers with his devotion, simple living, and love of nature. He was canonized in 1228.

Fran-cis of Sales (frän'sis ūf sālz, sāl), Saint. 1567-1622. French ecclesiastic who maintained in his many writings, such as Introduction to a Devout Life (1609), that spiritual perfection is possible not just for religious contemplatives but also for people involved in secular pursuits.

Fran-cis-town (frän'sis-toun') A city of eastern Botswana near the Zimbabwe border. A commercial and administrative center, it is the largest city in the country. Population, 32,000.

Fran-cis Xa-vi-er (frän'sis zā'vē-ər, zäv'ē-), Saint. See Saint Francis Xavier.

fran-ci-um (frän'sē-əm) n. Symbol Fr An extremely unstable radioactive element of the alkali metals, produced artificially from actinium or thorium, having approximately 19 isotopes, the most stable of which is Fr 223 with a half-life of 21 minutes. Atomic number 87; valence 1. [After France.]

Franck (frängk, fränk), César Auguste. 1822-1890. French organist and composer who exerted great influence as a teacher. His most acclaimed work is his Symphony in D minor (1889).

Franck (frängk), James. 1882-1964. German-born American physicist. He shared a 1925 Nobel Prize for discovering the laws that describe the impact of electrons upon atoms.

Fran-co (fräng'kō, fräng'-), Francisco. Known as "El Caudillo." 1892-1975. Spanish soldier and political leader who directed the Nationalist government and rebel armed forces that defeated the Republicans in the Spanish Civil War (1936-1939). He ruled as dictator (1939-1975) until his death, upon which the Bourbon monarchy was restored.

Franco- pref. French: Francophone. [From Late Latin Francus, a Frank. See FRANK.]

Fran-co-A-mer-i-can (fräng'kō-ə-mēr'i-kən) n. An American of French or French-Canadian descent. — adj. 1. Of or relating to the Franco-Americans.

2. Of or relating to France and America: Franco-American relations.

fran-co-lin (fräng'kə-līn) n. Any of various Eurasian or African birds of the genus Francolinus, related to and resembling the quails and partridges. [French, from Italian francolino.]

Fran-co-ni-a (fräng-kō'nē-ə, -kōn'yə, frän-) A region and former duchy of southern Germany. It was one of the five primary duchies of medieval Germany. —Fran-co'ni-an adj. & n.

Fran-co-phile (fräng'kə-fīl') also Fran-co-phil (-fīl') n. A person who admires France, its people, or its culture. —Fran'co-phile' adj.

—Fran'co-phil'i-a (-fīl'ē-ə, -fēl'yə) n.

Fran-co-phobe (fräng'kə-fōb') n. A person who dislikes or fears France, its people, or its culture. —Fran'co-phobe', Fran'co-pho'bic adj.

—Fran'co-pho'bi-a n.

Fran-co-phone or fran-co-phone (fräng'kə-fōn') n. A French-speaking person, especially in a region where two or more languages are spoken. — adj. French-speaking. —Fran'co-phon'ic (-fōn'ik) adj.

fran-gi-ble (frän'jə-bəl) adj. Capable of being broken; breakable. See Synonyms at fragile. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin frangibilis, from Latin frangere, to break. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

—fran'gi-bil'i-ty, fran'gi-ble-ness n.

fran-gi-pan-i (frän'jə-pän'ē, -pä'nē) n. pl. fran-gi-pan-is. 1. Any of various tropical American deciduous shrubs or trees of the genus Plumeria, having milky sap and showy, fragrant, funnel-shaped, variously colored flowers. Also called temple tree 2. A perfume derived from or similar in scent to the flowers of one of these shrubs or trees. 3. Also fran-gi-pane (frän'jə-pān'). A creamy pastry filling flavored with almonds. [French frangipane, after Muzio Frangipani, 16th-century Italian marquis.]

Fran-glais (frän-glā') n. French characterized by numerous borrowings from English. [Blend of French français, French (from Old French franceis, from France, France), and anglais, English (from Old French englois, from Old English Angel, from Latin Anglī, the Angles); see ANGLE.]

frank¹ (frängk) adj. frank-er, frank-est. 1. Open and sincere in expression; straightforward. 2. Clearly manifest; evident: frank enjoyment. — v. tr.

franked, frank-ing, franks. 1. a. To put an official mark on (a piece of mail) so that it can be sent free of charge. b. To send (mail) free of charge. 2. To place a stamp or mark on (a piece of mail) to show the payment of postage. 3. To enable (a person) to come and go freely. — n. 1. a. A mark or signature placed on a piece of mail to indicate the right to send it free of charge. b. The right to send mail free. 2. A franked piece of mail. [Middle English, free, from Old French franc, from Late Latin Francus, Frank. See FRANK.] —frank'ness n.

SYNONYMS: frank, candid, outspoken, straightforward, open. These adjectives mean revealing or disposed to reveal one's thoughts freely and honestly. Frank implies forthrightness of expression, sometimes to the point of bluntness: You can tell me what you think, and you may just as well be frank. Candid stresses openness and sincerity and often suggests refusal to evade difficult or unpleasant issues: "Save, save, oh save me from the candid friend!" (George Canning). Outspoken usually implies bold lack of reserve: It is possible to be outspoken without being rude. Straightforward denotes directness of manner and expression: "George was a straightforward soul... 'See here!' he said. 'Are you engaged to anybody?'" (Booth Tarkington). Open suggests freedom from all trace of reserve or secretiveness: "I will be open and sincere with you" (Joseph Addison).

frank² (frängk) n. Informal. A frankfurter.

Frank (frängk) n. A member of one of the Germanic tribes of the Rhine region in the early Christian era, especially one of the Salian Franks who conquered Gaul about A.D. 500 and established an extensive empire that reached its greatest power in the ninth century. [Middle English, from Old English Franca, and Old French Franc both from Late Latin Francus, of Germanic origin.]

Frank (frängk, frängk), Anne. 1929-1945. German Jewish diarist who fled from Nazi Germany to Amsterdam with her family (1933) and kept a diary during her years in hiding (1942-1944). She and her family were captured (August 1944) and sent to concentration camps. Anne died of typhus in the camp at Belsen. Her diary was published in 1947.

Frank (frängk, frängk), Ilya Mikhailovich. Born 1908. Russian physicist. He shared a 1958 Nobel Prize for work leading to the development of a cosmic-ray counter.

Frank-en-stein (fräng'kən-stīn') n. 1. An agency or a creation that slips from the control of and ultimately destroys its creator. 2. A monster having the appearance of a man. [From Frankenstein, the creator of the artificial monster in Frankenstein by Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley.]

WORD HISTORY: The word Frankenstein has taken on a life of its own, somewhat like the monster created from parts of corpses by the Swiss student Frankenstein, whose name serves as the title of Mary Shelley's novel, published in 1818. People have persisted in calling the monster Frankenstein; in fact, the first recorded use of the name as a common noun in 1838 refers to mules as "Frankensteins." The word has gone on to refer to "a monster having the appearance of a man" and "an agency that slips from the control of and ultimately destroys its creator." Since most people have given the name of the novel's protagonist to his creation, Frankenstein's monster has, in a sense, destroyed its creator.

Frank-en-thal-er (fräng'kən-thô'lər, -thöl'ər), Helen. Born 1928. American abstract expressionist painter noted for her innovative techniques and brilliant use of color. Her works include The Human Edge (1967).

Frank·fort (frängk'fərt) 1. A city of central Indiana north-northwest of Indianapolis. It is a trade and processing center. Population, 15,168. 2. The capital of Kentucky, in the north-central part of the state northwest of Lexington. First visited by Daniel Boone in 1770, it was chosen as capital in 1792. Population, 25,968.

frank·for·ter (frängk'fər-tər) n. Variant of frankfurter.

Frank·furt (fränk'fərt, frängk'föört') 1. Also Frankfurt an der O·der (än dər ô'dər). A city of eastern Germany on the Oder River and the Polish border. It was chartered in 1253 and became a prosperous member of the Hanseatic League in the 14th century. Population, 84,072. 2. Also Frankfurt am Main (äm mīn'). A city of west-central Germany on the Main River. Founded in the first century B.C. by the Romans, it was the virtual capital of Germany from 1816 to 1866. It is now an industrial, commercial, and financial center. Population, 599,634.

frank·furt·er also frank·fort·er (frängk'fər-tər) n. A smoked sausage of beef or beef and pork made in long, reddish links. [After Frankfurt, West Germany.]

Frank·furt·er (frängk'fər-tər), Felix. 1882-1965. Austrian-born American jurist. A founder of the American Civil Liberties Union, he served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1939-1962).

frank·in·cense (fräng'kīn-səns') n. An aromatic gum resin obtained from African and Asian trees of the genus Boswellia and used chiefly as incense and in perfumes. [Middle English frank encens, from Old French franc encens : franc, free, pure; see FRANK¹ + encens, incense; see INCENSE².]

Frank·ish (fräng'kīsh) adj. Of or relating to the Franks or their language. — n. The West Germanic language of the Franks.

frank·lin (fräng'klīn) n. A medieval English freeholder of nonnoble birth holding extensive property. [Middle English frankelein, from Anglo-Norman fraunclein, from Anglo-Norman franc. See FRANK¹.]

Frank·lin (frängk'līn) 1. A former district of northeast Northwest Territories, Canada. Created in 1895, it is now in the Baffin Region. 2. A town of southeast Massachusetts near the Rhode Island border southwest of Boston. It was settled in 1660. Population, 22,095. 3. A city of southeast Wisconsin, a residential suburb of Milwaukee. Population, 21,855.

Frank·lin (frängk'līn), Aretha. Born 1942. American singer whose popular songs of the mid-1960's include "Respect."

Frank·lin (frängk'līn), Benjamin. 1706-1790. American public official, writer, scientist, and printer. After the success of his Poor Richard's Almanac (1732-1757), he entered politics and played a major part in the American Revolution. Franklin negotiated French support for the colonists, signed the Treaty of Paris (1783), and helped draft the Constitution (1787-1789). His numerous scientific and practical innovations include the lightning rod, bifocal spectacles, and a stove.

Frank·lin (frängk'lin), Sir John. 1786-1847. British explorer who led a search for the Northwest Passage (1845-1847) on which he and his 129-man crew perished. A record of the expedition's discovery of the passage was found in 1857.

Frank·lin (frängk'lin), John Hope. Born 1915. American historian noted for his studies of Black American history, such as From Slavery to Freedom (1947).

Franklin D. Roo-se-velt Lake (fräng'klīn dē rō'zə-vēlt' lāk, rōō'-) A reservoir of northeast Washington formed in the Columbia River by Grand Coulee Dam.

frank·lin·ite (fräng'klī-nīt') n. A black, slightly magnetic mineral of zinc, iron, and manganese, $ZnFe_2O_4$, that is a valuable source of zinc. [After Franklin, a borough of northern New Jersey.]

Franklin Park (fräng'klīn pārk) A village of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 18,485.

Franklin Square (fräng'klīn skwār) A community of southeast New York on southeast Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 28,205.

Franklin stove (fräng'klīn stōv) n. A cast-iron heating stove shaped like a fireplace but employing metal baffles to increase its heating efficiency. [After Benjamin FRANKLIN.]

Franklin tree (fräng'klīn trē) n. A deciduous tree or shrub (Franklinia alata-maha) originally native to Georgia but now known only in cultivation, having large, white, fragrant flowers and woody capsules. [After Benjamin FRANKLIN.]

frank·ly (frängk'lē) adv. 1. In a frank manner; candidly. 2. In truth; honestly: Frankly, I don't care.

frank·pledge (frängk'plēj') n. 1. An Anglo-Saxon legal system in which units or tithings composed of ten households were formed, in each of which members were held responsible for one another's conduct. 2. A member of a unit in frankpledge. [Middle English frankplegge, from Anglo-Norman frauncpledge: Old French franc, free, frank; see FRANK¹ + Old French plege, pledge; see PLEDGE.]

Franks Peak (frängks pēk) A mountain, 4,007.7 m (13,140 ft) high, in the Absaroka Range of the Rocky Mountains in northwest Wyoming. It is the highest elevation in the range.

fran-se-ri-a (frän-sîr'ē-ə) n. Any of various herbs or shrubs of the genus Franseria, native to western North America. [New Latin Franseria, genus name, after Antonio Franseri, 18th-century Spanish botanist.]

fran-tic (frän'tik) adj. 1. Highly excited with strong emotion or frustration; frenzied: frantic with worry. 2. Characterized by rapid and disordered or nervous activity: made a frantic last-minute search for the lost key. 3. Archaic. Mad; insane. [Middle English frantik, from Old French frenetique, from Latin phrenēticus. See FRENETIC.] —fran'ti-cal-ly, fran'tic-ly adv. —fran'tic-ness n.

Franz Jo·sef I (fränz jō'zəf, -səf, fränts, fränts yō'zēf) See Francis Joseph I.

Franz Josef Land (fränz jō'zəf länd, länt) An archipelago in the Arctic Ocean north of Novaya Zemlya. First explored by an Austrian expedition in 1873, the islands were claimed by the U.S.S.R. in 1926.

frap (fräp) v. tr. frapped, frap·ping, fraps. Nautical. 1. To make secure by lashing: frap a sail. 2. To take up the slack of; tighten. [Middle English frapen, to strike, from Old French fraper. See FRAPPÉ.]

frap·pé (frä-pā', fräp) n. 1. A frozen, fruit-flavored mixture that is similar to sherbet and served as a dessert or appetizer. 2. A beverage, usually a liqueur, poured over shaved ice. 3. Often frappe (fräp). New England. See milk shake (n., sense 1). See Regional note at milk shake. [French, from past participle of frapper, to strike, chill, from Old French fraper, to strike, probably of imitative origin.]

Fra·ser (frā'zər), James Earle. 1876-1953. American sculptor whose works include figures for the U.S. Supreme Court Building and the design for the buffalo nickel (1913).

Fra·ser (frā'zər), (John) Malcolm. Born 1930. Australian politician who was appointed prime minister during the constitutional crisis of 1975 and served until 1983.

Fra·ser (frā'zər), Peter. 1884-1950. Scottish-born New Zealand politician who helped found New Zealand's Labor Party (1916), served as prime minister (1940-1949), and was a planner of the United Nations (1945).

Fra·ser (frā'zər), Simon. 1776?-1862. American-born Canadian fur trader and explorer who navigated the Fraser River to its mouth (1806-1808) and established trading routes west of the Canadian Rocky Mountains.

Fraser River (frā'zər rīv'ər) A river of British Columbia, Canada, flowing about 1,368 km (850 mi) from the Rocky Mountains near the Alberta boundary to the Strait of Georgia at Vancouver. It was discovered by Sir Alexander Mackenzie in 1793 and named later for the navigator Simon Fraser.

frat (frät) n. Informal. A college fraternity.

fra·ter·nal (frə-tûr'nəl) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to brothers: a close fraternal tie. b. Showing comradeship; brotherly. 2. Of or constituting a fraternity: a fraternal association. 3. Biology. Of, relating to, or being a twin developed from two separately fertilized ova; dizygotic. [Middle English, from Old French fraternel, from Medieval Latin frāternālis, from Latin frāternus, from frāter, brother. See bhrāter- in Appendix.] —fra·ter·nal·ism n. —fra·ter·nal·ly adv.

fra·ter·ni·ty (frə-tûr'nī-tē) n. pl. fra·ter·ni·ties. 1. A body of people associated for a common purpose or interest, such as a guild. 2. A group of people joined by similar backgrounds, occupations, interests, or tastes: the fraternity of bird watchers. 3. A chiefly social organization of men students at a college or university, usually designated by Greek letters. 4. The quality or condition of being brothers; brotherliness. [Middle English fraternite, from Old French fraternite, from Latin frāternitās, from frāternus, fraternal. See FRATERNAL.]

frat·er·nize (frăt'ər-nīz') v. intr. frat·er·nized, frat·er·niz·ing, frat·er·niz·es. 1. To associate with others in a brotherly or congenial way. 2. To associate on friendly terms with an enemy or opposing group, often in violation of discipline or orders. [French fraterniser, from Medieval Latin frāternizāre, from Latin frāternus, fraternal. See FRATERNAL.] —frat'er·ni·za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n. —frat'er·niz'er n.

frat·ri·cide (frăt'rī-sīd') n. 1. The killing of one's brother or sister. 2. One who has killed one's brother or sister. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin frātricīdium, and frātricīda frāter, frātr-, brother; see bhrāter- in Appendix + -cīdium and -cīda, -cide.] —frat'ri·cid'al (-sīd'l) adj.

Frau (frou) n. pl. Frau·en (frou'ən). Abbr. Fr. Used as a courtesy title in a German-speaking area before the surname or professional title of a married woman. [German, from Middle High German vrowe, from Old High German frouwa. See per¹ in Appendix.]

fraud (frōd) n. 1. A deception deliberately practiced in order to secure unfair or unlawful gain. 2. A piece of trickery; a trick. 3. a. One that defrauds; a cheat. b. One who assumes a false pose; an impostor. [Middle English fraude, from Old French, from Latin fraus, fraud-.]

fraud·u·lent (frô'jə-lənt) adj. 1. Engaging in fraud; deceitful.

2. Characterized by, constituting, or gained by fraud: fraudulent business practices. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin fraudulentus, from fraus, fraud-, deceit.] —fraud'u·lence n. —fraud'u·lent·ly adv.

fraught (frôt) adj. 1. Filled with a specified element or elements; charged: an incident fraught with danger; an evening fraught with high drama. 2. Fully provided: "a work so full with various learning fraught" (John Dryden). 3. Marked by distress; upsetting: "an account of a fraught mother-daughter relationship" (Francesca Simon). — n. Scots. Freight; cargo. [Middle English, past participle of fraughten, to load, from fraght, cargo; see FREIGHT, and from Middle Dutch vrachten, to load (from vracht, freight); see ëik- in Appendix.]

Fräu·lein (froi'līn', frou'-) n. pl. Fräulein. 1. Abbr. FrI. Used as a courtesy title in a German-speaking area before the name of an unmarried woman or girl. 2. fräulein. Used as a form of polite address for a girl or young woman in a German-speaking area. 3. Chiefly British. A German governess. [German, diminutive of Frau, wife. See FRAU.]

Fraun·ho·fer lines (froun'hō'fər līnz) pl.n. A set of several hundred dark lines appearing against the bright background of the continuous solar spectrum and produced by absorption of light by the cooler gases in the sun's outer atmosphere at frequencies corresponding to the atomic transition frequencies of these gases. [After Joseph von Fraunhofer (1787-1826), German physicist.]

frax-i-nel-la (frāk'sə-nĕl'ə) n. See gas plant. [New Latin, diminutive of Latin fraxinus, ash tree. See bheræg- in Appendix.]

fray¹ (frā) n. 1. A scuffle; a brawl. See Synonyms at brawl. 2. A heated dispute or contest. — v. tr. frayed, fray-ing, frays. Archaic. 1. To alarm; frighten. 2. To drive away. [Middle English frai, alteration of affrai. See AFFRAY.]

fray² (frā) v. frayed, fray-ing, frays. — v. tr. 1. To strain; chafe: repeated noises that fray the nerves. 2. To wear away (the edges of fabric, for example) by rubbing. — v. intr. To become worn away or tattered along the edges. — n. A frayed or threadbare spot, as on fabric. [Middle English fraien, to wear, bruise, from Old French fraier, to rub, from Latin fricāre.]

Fra-zer (frā'zər), Sir James George. 1854-1941. British anthropologist who examined the importance of magic, religion, and science to the development of human thought in his most famous work, The Golden Bough (1890).

Fra-zier (frā'zhər), Edward Franklin. 1894-1962. American sociologist noted for his studies of racial issues.

Fra-zier (frā'zhər), Joe. Born 1944. American prizefighter who won the Olympic heavyweight title (1964) and held the world professional heavyweight title from 1970 to 1973.

fraz-zle (frāz'əl) Informal. v. fraz-zled, fraz-zling, fraz-zles. — v. tr. 1. To wear away along the edges; fray. 2. To exhaust physically or emotionally. — v. intr. 1. To become worn away along the edges. 2. To become exhausted physically or emotionally. — n. 1. A frayed or tattered condition. 2. A condition of exhaustion: worked themselves to a frazzle. [Perhaps a blend of FRAY², and dialectal fazzle, to unravel (from Middle English facelyn, to fray, from fasel, frayed edge, probably diminutive of fas, rootlets, from Old English fæs).]

FRB abbr. Federal Reserve Board.

FRCP or F.R.C.P. abbr. Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians.

FRCS or F.R.C.S. abbr. Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons.

freak¹ (frĕk) n. 1. A thing or an occurrence that is markedly unusual or irregular: A freak of nature produced the midsummer snow. 2. An abnormally formed organism, especially a person or animal regarded as a curiosity or monstrosity. 3. A sudden capricious turn of mind; a whim: "The freaks of the psyche can no more be explained than the Devil" (Maurice Collis). See Synonyms at caprice. 4. Slang. a. A drug user or addict: a speed freak. b. An eccentric or nonconformist person, especially a member of a counterculture. c. An enthusiast: rock music freaks. — v. intr. tr. freaked, freak-ing, freaks. Slang. 1. To experience or cause to experience frightening hallucinations or feelings of paranoia, especially as a result of taking a drug. Often used with out. 2. To behave or cause to behave irrationally and uncontrollably. Often used with out. 3. To become or cause to become greatly excited or upset. Often used with out. [Origin unknown.]

freak² (frēk) n. A fleck or streak of color. — v. tr. freaked, freak-ing, freaks. To speckle or streak with color: “the white Pink, and the Pansy freaked with jet” (John Milton). [From FREAK¹.]

freak-ing (frē'kɪŋ) adj. Slang. Used as an intensive: “It brought back the whole freaking Nam to me” (Jimmy Breslin). [Alteration of frigging, present participle of FRIG.]

freak-ish (frē'kɪʃ) adj. 1. Markedly unusual or abnormal; strange: freakish weather; a freakish combination of styles. 2. Relating to or being a freak: a freakish extra toe. 3. Capricious or whimsical. —freak'ish-ly adv.
—freak'ish-ness n.

freak-out or freak-out (frēk'out') n. Slang. 1. An experience of frightening feelings or hallucinations, especially as a result of taking a drug. 2. An experience or scene of unrestrained excitement or irrational behavior. 3. One having such an experience or participating in such a scene.

freak-y (frē'kē) adj. freak-i-er, freak-i-est. 1. Strange or unusual; freakish. 2. Slang. Frightening. —freak'i-ly adv.

freck-le (frēk'əl) n. A small brownish spot on the skin, often turning darker or increasing in number upon exposure to the sun. — v. tr. intr. freck-led, freck-ling, freck-les. To dot or become dotted with freckles or spots of color. [From Middle English frakles, freckles, alteration of fraknes, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Icelandic freknōttr, freckly.] —freck'ly adj.

Fred-er-ick (frəd'ɪk, -ər-ɪk) A city of northern Maryland west of Baltimore. It is a processing center in a farming region. Population, 40,148.

Fred-er-ick I (frəd'ɪk, -ər-ɪk), Known as “Frederick Barbarossa.” 1123?-1190. Holy Roman emperor (1152-1190) and king of Germany and Italy. After quelling the rebellious German nobility, he failed to subdue papal authority in Italy and conceded supremacy to Pope Alexander III (1177). He drowned while leading the Third Crusade.

Fred-er-ick II¹ (frəd'ɪk, -ər-ɪk), 1194-1250. Holy Roman emperor (1212-1250) and king of Sicily (1198-1250) as Frederick I. He led the Sixth Crusade (1228-1229), capturing Jerusalem, and was in continual conflict with the papacy.

Fred-er-ick II² (frəd'ɪk, -ər-ɪk), Known as “Frederick the Great.” 1712-1786. King of Prussia (1740-1786). Successful in the War of the Austrian Succession (1740-1748) and the Seven Years' War (1756-1763), he brought Prussia great military prestige in Europe.

Fred-er-ick III¹ (frəd'ɪk, -ər-ɪk), 1415-1493. Holy Roman emperor (1440-1493) and king of Germany as Frederick IV. His efforts to expand the empire were generally unsuccessful.

Fred-er-ick III² (frəd'ɪk, -ər-ɪk), 1609-1670. King of Denmark and Norway (1648-1670) whose reign was marked by war with Sweden and an increase in imperial power.

Fred·er·ick VI (frəd'rik, -ər-ik), 1768-1839. King of Denmark (1808-1839) and Norway (1808-1814) who allied himself with Napoleon I, upon whose defeat Norway was awarded to Sweden (1814).

Fred·er·ick IX (frəd'rik, -ər-ik), 1899-1972. King of Denmark (1947-1972) who signed a constitutional amendment allowing the succession of a woman to the throne.

Fred·er·icks·burg (frəd'riks-bûrg', -ər-iks-) An independent city of north-east Virginia north of Richmond. In the Battle of Fredericksburg (December 1862) Ambrose Burnside's Union forces were defeated by Robert E. Lee's smaller Confederate army in one of the bloodiest battles of the Civil War. Population, 19,027.

Fred·er·ick the Great (frəd'rik thē grāt, -ər-ik) See Frederick II².

Fred·er·ick Wil·liam (frəd'rik wîl'yəm, -ər-ik), Known as "the Great Elector." 1620-1688. Elector of Brandenburg (1640-1688) who reorganized and rebuilt his domain after its devastation in the Thirty Years' War.

Fred·er·ick Wil·liam I (frəd'rik wîl'yəm, -ər-ik), 1688-1740. King of Prussia (1713-1740) who strengthened the army and diversified the economy of his dominion.

Fred·er·ick Wil·liam II (frəd'rik wîl'yəm, -ər-ik), 1744-1797. King of Prussia (1786-1797) whose mismanaged reign was marked by a costly war with Revolutionary France (1792-1795).

Fred·er·ick Wil·liam III (frəd'rik wîl'yəm, -ər-ik), 1770-1840. King of Prussia (1797-1840) whose long, turbulent reign included participation in the Napoleonic Wars and the suppression of democratic movements.

Fred·er·ick Wil·liam IV (frəd'rik wîl'yəm, -ər-ik), 1795-1861. King of Prussia (1840-1861) who crushed the Revolution of 1848 and refused the crown of a united Germany offered to him by the Frankfurt Parliament (1849).

Fred·er·ic·ton (frəd'rik-tən, -ər-ik-) The capital of New Brunswick, Canada, in the south-central part of the province northwest of St. John. It was founded by United Empire Loyalists in 1783 and became provincial capital in 1785. Population, 43,723.

Fred·er·iks·berg (frəd'riks-bûrg', -ər-iks-, frə'thə-rēks-bărkH') A city of eastern Denmark, a suburb of Copenhagen on Sjaelland Island. Population, 88,114.

free (frē) adj. fre·er, fre·est. 1. Not imprisoned or enslaved; being at liberty. 2. Not controlled by obligation or the will of another: felt free to go. 3. a. Having political independence: "America... is the freest and wealthiest nation in the world" (Rudolph W. Giuliani). b. Governed by consent and possessing or granting civil liberties: a free citizenry. c. Not subject to arbitrary interference by a government: a free press. 4. a. Not affected or restricted by a given condition or circumstance: a healthy animal, free of disease; free from need. b. Not subject to a given condition; exempt: income that is free of all taxes. 5. Not subject to external restraint: “Comment is free but facts are sacred” (Charles Prestwich Scott).

6. Not literal or exact: a free translation. 7. a. Costing nothing; gratuitous: a free meal. b. Publicly supported: free education. 8. a. Not occupied or used: a free locker. b. Not taken up by scheduled activities: free time between classes.

9. Unobstructed; clear: a free lane. 10. Unguarded in expression or manner; open; frank. 11. Taking undue liberties; forward or overfamiliar. 12. Liberal or lavish: tourists who are free with their money. 13. Given, made, or done of one’s own accord; voluntary or spontaneous: a free act of the will; free choices.

14. Chemistry & Physics. a. Unconstrained; unconfined: free expansion. b. Not fixed in position; capable of relatively unrestricted motion: a free electron. c. Not chemically bound in a molecule: free oxygen. d. Involving no collisions or interactions: a free path. e. Empty: a free space. f. Unoccupied: a free energy level.

15. Nautical. Favorable: a free wind. 16. Not bound, fastened, or attached: the free end of a chain. 17. Linguistics. Being a vowel in an open syllable unchecked by a consonant, as the o in go. — adv. 1. In a free manner; without restraint.

2. Without charge. — v. tr. freed, free-ing, frees. 1. To set at liberty; make free: freed the slaves; free the imagination. 2. To relieve of a burden, an obligation, or a restraint: a people who were at last freed from fear. 3. To remove obstructions or entanglements from; clean: free a path through the jungle.

—idiom. for free. Informal. Without charge. [Middle English fre, from Old English frēo. V., from Middle English freen from Old English frēon, to love, set free. See pri- in Appendix.] —free/ly adv. —free/ness n.

free agent (frē ā’jənt) n. Sports. A professional player who is free to sign a contract with any team. —free agency n.

free alongside ship (frē ə-lông’sīd’ shĭp) adv. & adj. Abbr. f.a.s., F.A.S.

Without charge to the purchaser for delivery to the point of loading aboard ship.

free-as-so-ci-ate (frē’ə-sō’shē-āt’, -sē-) v. intr. free-as-so-ci-at-ed, free-as-so-ci-at-ing, free-as-so-ci-ates. To engage in free association.

free association (frē ə-sō’sē-ā’shən) n. 1. A spontaneous, logically unconstrained and undirected association of ideas, emotions, and feelings. 2. A psychoanalytic technique in which a patient’s articulation of free associations is encouraged in order to reveal unconscious thoughts and emotions, such as traumatic experiences that have been repressed.

free-base or free-base (frē’bās’) v. free-based, free-bas-ing, free-bas-es. — v. tr. 1. To purify (cocaine) by dissolving it in a heated solvent and separating and drying the precipitate. 2. To use (cocaine purified in this way) by burning it and inhaling the fumes. — v. intr. To prepare or use cocaine purified in this way. — n. Cocaine purified by this method. —free/bas’er n.

free-bie also free-bee (frē’bē) n. Slang. An article or service given free: “such freebies as subway and bus maps” (New York). [From FREE.]

free-board (frē'bôrd', -bôrd') n. 1. Nautical. The distance between the water line and the uppermost full deck of a ship. 2. The distance between the ground and the undercarriage of an automobile. [Probably ultimately partial translation of Anglo-Norman franc bord, land claimed outside the fence of a park or forest : franc, free + bord, border.]

freeboard deck (frē'bôrd' dĕk) n. Nautical. The uppermost deck that is officially considered completely watertight.

free-boot (frē'bōōt') v. intr. free-boot-ed, free-boot-ing, free-boots. To act as a freebooter; plunder. [Back-formation from FREEBOOTER.]

free-boot-er (frē'bōō'tər) n. A person who pillages and plunders, especially a pirate. [Dutch vrijbuit, from vrijbuit, plunder : vrij, free; see pri- in Appendix + buit, booty (from Middle Dutch būte, of Middle Low German origin).]

free-born (frē'bôrn') adj. 1. Born as a free person, not as a slave or serf. 2. Relating to or befitting a person born free.

free central placentation (frē sĕn'trəl pläs'ən-tā'shən) n. Botany. The arrangement of ovules on a central column that is not connected to the ovary wall by partitions, as in the ovaries of the carnation and primrose.

free city (frē sīt'ē) n. A city governed as an autonomous political unit under international auspices.

freed-man (frĕd'mən) n. A man who has been freed from slavery.

free-dom (frē'dəm) n. 1. The condition of being free of restraints. 2. Liberty of the person from slavery, detention, or oppression. 3. a. Political independence. b. Possession of civil rights; immunity from the arbitrary exercise of authority. 4. Exemption from an unpleasant or onerous condition: freedom from want. 5. The capacity to exercise choice; free will: We have the freedom to do as we please all afternoon. 6. Ease or facility of movement: loose sports clothing, giving the wearer freedom. 7. Frankness or boldness; lack of modesty or reserve: the new freedom in movies and novels. 8. a. The right to unrestricted use; full access: was given the freedom of their research facilities. b. The right of enjoying all of the privileges of membership or citizenship: the freedom of the city. [Middle English freedom, from Old English frĕodōm : frĕo, free; see FREE + -dōm, -dom.]

SYNONYMS: freedom, liberty, license. These nouns refer to the power to act, speak, or think without externally imposed restraints. Freedom is the most general term: “In giving freedom to the slave, we assure freedom to the free” (Abraham Lincoln). “The freedom of the press is one of the great bulwarks of liberty” (George Mason). Liberty is often used interchangeably with freedom; often, however, it especially stresses the power of free choice: liberty of opinion; liberty of worship; at liberty to choose whatever occupation she wishes; “liberty, perfect liberty, to think, feel, do just as one pleases” (William Hazlitt). License sometimes denotes deliberate deviation from normally applicable rules or practices to achieve a desired effect, as in literature or art: poetic license. Frequently, though, it denotes undue freedom: “the intolerable license with which the newspapers break... the rules of decorum” (Edmund Burke).

freedom fighter (frē'dəm fī'tər) n. One engaged in armed rebellion or resistance against an oppressive government.

freedom march (frē'dəm mārĉ) n. An organized protest march in support of civil rights, especially one aimed at ending racial segregation. —freedom marcher n.

freedom of the seas (frē'dəm ÷v thē sēz) n. 1. The doctrine that ships of any nation may travel through international waters unhampered. 2. The right of neutral shipping in wartime to trade at will except where blockades are established.

freedom rider (frē'dəm rī'dər) n. One of an interracial group of civil rights activists in the early 1960's who rode buses through parts of the southern United States for the purpose of challenging racial segregation. —freedom ride n.

freed-wom-an (frēd'wōm'ən) n. A woman who has been freed from slavery.

free energy (frē ěn'ər-jē) n. 1. A thermodynamic quantity that is the difference between the internal energy of a system and the product of its absolute temperature and entropy. 2. A thermodynamic quantity that is the difference between the enthalpy and the product of the absolute temperature and entropy of a system. In this sense, also called Gibbs free energy free enterprise (frē ěn'tər-prīz') n. The freedom of private businesses to operate competitively for profit with minimal government regulation. —free-en'ter-prise' (frē'ěn'tər-prīz') adj.

free fall or free-fall (frē'fôl') n. 1. The fall of a body within the atmosphere without a drag-producing device such as a parachute. 2. The ideal falling motion of a body that is subject only to the earth's gravitational field. 3. Rapid, uncontrolled decline: “The markets threatened to go into free fall and we came within an eyelash of... an uncontrollable panic” (Felix Rohatyn).

free-fire zone (frē'fir' zōn) n. A battle area or combat zone in which no restrictions are placed on the use of arms or explosives.

free flight (frē flīt) n. Flight, as of an aircraft or a spacecraft, after termination of powered flight.

free-float-ing (frē'flō'tĩng) adj. 1. Not committed or decided.

2. Experienced without an obvious basis or cause: free-floating anxiety.

free-for-all (frē'fər-ôl') n. A disorderly fight, argument, or competition in which everyone present takes part. See Synonyms at brawl.

free-form (frē'fôrm') adj. 1. Having or characterized by a usually flowing asymmetrical shape or outline: freeform sculpture. 2. Characterized by an unconventional or variable form: their own freeform teaching methods. —free/-form' adv.

free form (frē fōrm) n. Linguistics. A morpheme, such as cat or write, that is capable of standing alone and retaining meaning.

free-hand (frē'hānd') adj. Drawn by hand without the aid of tracing or drafting devices: a freehand sketch. —free/hand' adv.

free hand (frē hānd) n. Freedom to do or decide as one sees fit.

free-hand-ed (frē'hān'dīd) adj. Openhanded; generous. See Synonyms at liberal. —free/hand/ed-ly adv. —free/hand/ed-ness n.

free-heart-ed (frē'hār'tīd) adj. 1. Unreserved; open. 2. Generous; liberal. —free/heart/ed-ly adv. —free/heart/ed-ness n.

free-hold (frē'hōld') n. 1. Law. a. An estate held in fee or for life. b. The tenure by which such an estate is held. 2. A tenure of an office or a dignity for life. [Middle English frehold, translation of Anglo-Norman fraunc tenement : fraunc, free + tenement, possession.] —free/hold'er n.

free-lance (frē'lāns') n. also free lance 1. A person, especially a writer or an artist, who sells his or her services to employers without a long-term commitment to any one of them. 2. An uncommitted independent, as in politics or social life. 3. A medieval mercenary. — v. free-lanced, free-lanc-ing, free-lanc-es. — v. intr. To work as a freelance: a journalist who freelances. — v. tr. To produce and sell as a freelance: freelanced the article to a magazine publisher. — adj. Of, relating to, or working as a freelance. —free/lanc'er n.

free-liv-ing (frē'līv'īng) adj. 1. Given to self-indulgence. 2. Biology. a. Living independently of another organism; not part of a parasitic or symbiotic relationship. b. Moving independently; not sessile.

free-load (frē'lōd') v. intr. free-load-ed, free-load-ing, free-loads. Slang. To take advantage of the charity, generosity, or hospitality of others. —free/-load'er n.

free love (frē lŭv) n. The belief in or practice of sexual relations without marriage and without formal obligations.

free lunch (frē lŭnč) n. Slang. Something acquired without due effort or without cost.

free-man (frē'mən) n. 1. A person not in slavery or serfdom. 2. One who possesses the rights or privileges of a citizen.

Free-man (frē'mən), Douglas Southall. 1886-1953. American historian noted for his works on the Civil War and his biography George Washington (1948-1957), which won a Pulitzer Prize.

Free-man (frē'mən), Mary Eleanor Wilkins. 1852-1930. American writer best known for her short stories about rural life in New England.

free-mar-tin (frē'mār'tn) n. A sterile or otherwise sexually imperfect female calf born as the twin of a bull calf. [Origin unknown.]

free·ma·son (frē'mā'sən) n. 1. Freemason. A member of the Free and Accepted Masons, an international fraternal and charitable organization with secret rites and signs. 2. A member of a guild of skilled itinerant masons during the Middle Ages.

free·ma·son·ry (frē'mā'sən-rē) n. 1. Freemasonry. The institutions, precepts, and rites of the Freemasons. 2. Spontaneous fellowship and sympathy among a number of people.

free on board (frē ɔn bōrd) adj. & adv. Abbr. f.o.b., F.O.B. Without charge to the purchaser for delivery on board or into a carrier at a specified point or location.

free port (frē pōrt) n. A port or an area of a port in which imported goods can be held or processed free of customs duties before reexport.

Free·port (frē'pōrt', -pōrt') 1. A city of northwest Bahamas on Grand Bahama Island. It is a tourist center. Population, 25,000. 2. A city of northwest Illinois west of Rockford. The second Lincoln-Douglas debate occurred here in 1858. Population, 25,840. 3. A village of southeast New York on the southern shore of Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 38,272.

free radical (frē rād'ī-kəl) n. 1. An atom or group of atoms having at least one unpaired electron, which makes it highly reactive. 2. An organic compound in which some of the valence electrons are unpaired, occurring as a normal byproduct of oxidation reactions in metabolism.

free rein (frē rān) n. Unlimited freedom to act or make decisions: gave me free rein to reorganize the department.

free ride (frē rīd) n. Slang. Something acquired without the ordinary effort or cost. —free rider n.

free·sia (frē'zhə, -zhē-ə, -zē-ə) n. Any of several plants of the genus Freesia, native to southern Africa, having one-sided clusters of fragrant, variously colored flowers. [New Latin, after Friedrich Heinrich Theodor Freese (1795-1876), German physician.]

free silver (frē sīl'vər) n. The free coinage of silver, especially at a fixed ratio to gold.

free skat·ing (frē skā'tīŋ) n. Sports. Freestyle ice skating. —free skater n.

free soil (frē soil) n. U.S. territory in which slavery was prohibited before the Civil War.

free-soil (frē'soil') adj. 1. Prohibiting slavery: free-soil states. 2. a. Opposing the extension of slavery before the U.S. Civil War. b. Free-Soil. Of or being a U.S. political party founded in 1848 to oppose the extension of slavery into U.S. territories and the admission of slave states into the Union.

free speech (frē spēch) n. The right to express any opinion in public without censorship or restraint by the government.

free spirit (frē spīr'it) n. One who is not restrained, as by convention or obligation.

free-spo-ken (frē'spō'kən) adj. Candid in expression; outspoken. —free'-spo/ken-ness n.

free-stand-ing (frē'stān'dīng) adj. Standing or operating independently of anything else: a freestanding bell tower; a freestanding maternity clinic.

free-stone (frē'stōn') n. 1. A stone, such as limestone, that is soft enough to be cut easily without shattering or splitting. 2. A fruit, especially a peach, that has a stone not adhering to the pulp. [Middle English freston, translation of Old French franche pere, high-grade stone : franche, high-grade, feminine of franc, noble, freeborn + pere, stone.]

free-style (frē'stīl') n. Sports. 1. a. A swimming event in which the contestants may choose any stroke. b. The crawl. 2. A competition, as in figure skating, skiing, or surfing, in which any maneuver or movement is allowed and competitors are judged on their artistic expression, acrobatic skill, and athletic expertise. 3. A style of wrestling in which all noninjurious holds or tactics are permitted.

—free'style' adv. & adj.

free-swim-ming (frē'swīm'īng) adj. Able to swim freely; not sessile or attached: the free-swimming larva of the oyster. —free'-swim'mer n.

free-swing-ing (frē'swīng'īng) adj. Bold and uninhibited: a lawyer with a free-swinging, controversial courtroom style; gave a free-swinging press conference.

free-think-er (frē'thīng'kər) n. One who has rejected authority and dogma, especially in religious thinking, in favor of rational inquiry and speculation.

—free'think'ing adj. & n.

free thought (frē thôt) n. Thought that rejects authority and dogma, especially in religion; freethinking.

free throw (frē thrō) n. Basketball. See foul shot.

free-throw line (frē'thrō' līn) n. Basketball. See foul line (n., sense 2).

Free-town (frē'toun') The capital and largest city of Sierra Leone, in the western part of the country on the Atlantic Ocean. It was settled in 1787 by freed slaves sent from England by British abolitionists. Population, 300,000.

free trade (frē trād) n. Trade between nations without protective customs tariffs. —free trader n.

free university (frē yōō'nə-vûr'sī-tē) n. An independent unaccredited organization established by students within a university for the study of nontraditional subjects.

free verse (frē vûrs) n. Verse composed of variable, usually unrhymed lines having no fixed metrical pattern. [Translation of French vers libre : vers, verse + libre, free.]

free-way (frē'wā') n. 1. See expressway. 2. A highway without tolls.

free-weight or free weight (frē'wāt') n. Sports. A weight, such as a barbell or dumbbell, that is unattached to another structural device and can be raised and lowered by use of the hands and arms.

free-wheel (frē'hwēl', -wēl') v. intr. free-wheeled, free-wheeling, free-wheels. 1. To continue turning or spinning after disengagement from the drive mechanism. 2. To live or move freely and sometimes aimlessly or irresponsibly. 3. To operate independently or free of restraints.

free wheel (frē hwēl) n. 1. A power-transmission device that allows the drive shaft of a motor vehicle to continue turning when its speed is greater than that of the engine shaft. 2. A clutch in the rear-wheel hub of a bicycle that permits the wheel to turn without pedal action, as in coasting.

free-wheeling (frē'hwē'līng, -wēl'-) adj. 1. a. Free of restraints or rules in organization, methods, or procedure. b. Heedless of consequences; carefree. 2. Relating to or equipped with a free wheel.

free-will (frē'wīl') adj. Done of one's own accord; voluntary.

free will (frē wīl) n. 1. The ability or discretion to choose; free choice: chose to remain behind of my own free will. 2. The power, attributed especially to human beings, of making free choices that are unconstrained by external circumstances or by an agency such as fate or divine will. [Middle English fre wil, translation of Late Latin liberum arbitrium : Latin liberum, free + Latin arbitrium, will.]

free world (frē wûrld) n. The countries of the world that have democratic and capitalistic or moderately socialistic systems rather than communist or totalitarian systems.

freeze (frēz) v. froze (frōz), fro-zen (frō'zən), freez-ing, freez-es. — v. intr. 1. a. To pass from the liquid to the solid state by loss of heat. b. To acquire a surface or coat of ice from cold: The lake froze over in January. Bridges freeze before the adjacent roads. 2. To become clogged or jammed because of the formation of ice: The pipes froze in the basement. 3. To be at that degree of temperature at which ice forms: It may freeze tonight. 4. To be killed or harmed by cold or frost: They almost froze to death. Mulch keeps garden plants from freezing. 5. To be or feel uncomfortably cold: Aren't you freezing without a coat? 6. To become fixed, stuck, or attached by or as if by frost: The lock froze up with rust. 7. a. To become motionless or immobile, as from surprise or attentiveness: I heard a sound and froze in my tracks. b. To become unable to act or react, as from fear: froze in front of the audience. 8. To become icily silent in manner: froze at the rebuke. 9. To become rigid and inflexible; solidify: an opinion that froze into dogma. — v. tr. 1. a. To convert into ice. b. To cause ice to form upon. c. To cause to congeal or stiffen from extreme cold: winter cold that froze the ground. 2. To preserve (foods, for example) by subjecting to freezing temperatures. 3. To damage, kill, or make inoperative by cold or by the formation of ice. 4. To make very cold; chill. 5. To immobilize, as with fear or shock. 6. To chill with an icy or formal manner: froze me with one look. 7. To stop the motion or progress of: The negotiations were frozen by the refusal of either side to compromise. 8. a. To fix (prices or wages, for example) at a given or current level. b. To prohibit further manufacture or use of. c. To prevent or restrict the exchange, withdrawal, liquidation, or granting of by governmental action: freeze investment loans during a depression; froze foreign assets held by U.S. banks. 9. To capture or preserve a likeness of, as on film. 10. a. To photograph (a subject) in mid-action so as to produce a still image. b. To stop (a moving film) at a particular image. 11. To anesthetize by chilling. 12. Sports. To keep possession of (a ball or puck) so as to deny an opponent the opportunity to score. — n. 1. a. The act of freezing. b. The state of being frozen. 2. A spell of cold weather; a frost. 3. A restriction that forbids a quantity from rising above a given or current level: a freeze on city jobs; a proposed freeze on the production of nuclear weapons. —phrasal verb. freeze out. To shut out or exclude, as by cold or unfriendly treatment: The others tried to freeze me out of the conversation. —idiom. freeze (someone's) blood. To affect with terror or dread; horrify: a scream that froze my blood. [Middle English fresen, from Old English frēosan. See preus- in Appendix.]

—freez'a-ble adj.

freeze-dry (frēz/'drī') v. tr. freeze--dried, freeze--dry-ing, freeze--dries.

To preserve (food, for example) by rapid freezing and drying in a high vacuum.

freeze-etch-ing (frēz/'ěch'ing) n. A method of specimen preparation for electron microscopy in which a replica is made from a sample that has been rapidly frozen and then fractured along natural planes of weakness to reveal its internal structure. —freeze'-etched' (-'ěcht') adj.

freeze-frame or freeze frame (frēz/'frām') n. 1. A still picture in the course of a movie or television film, made by running a series of identical frames or by stopping a reel or videotape at one desired frame. 2. A vivid, motionless scene or image. —freeze'-frame' v.

freez-er (frē/'zər) n. A thermally insulated compartment, cabinet, or room in which a subfreezing temperature is maintained for the rapid freezing and storing of perishable food.

freez-ing point (frē/'zing point) n. Abbr. fp, f.p. 1. The temperature at which a liquid of specified composition solidifies under a specified pressure. 2. The temperature at which the liquid and solid phases of a substance of specified composition are in equilibrium at atmospheric pressure.

free zone (frē zōn) n. An area at a port or city where goods may be received and held without the payment of duty.

F region (ěf' rē/'jən) n. See F layer (n., sense 1).

Frei-berg (frī/'bûrg', -bërk') A city of east-central Germany east-northeast of Karl-Marx-Stadt. It was founded in the 12th century as a silver-mining camp. Population, 51,290.

Frei·burg (frī'bürg', -böörk') Also Freiburg im Breis·gau (īm brīs'gou'). A city of southwest Germany near the Rhine River at the edge of the Black Forest. Founded in 1120, it is a manufacturing, cultural, and tourist center. Population, 181,304.

freight (frāt) n. Abbr. frt. 1. Goods carried by a vessel or vehicle, especially by a commercial carrier; cargo. 2. A burden; a load. 3. a. Commercial transportation of goods. b. The charge for transporting goods. Also called freightage 4. A railway train carrying goods only. — v. tr. freight·ed, freight·ing, freights.

1. To convey commercially as cargo. 2. To load with goods to be transported. 3. To load; charge. See Synonyms at charge. [Middle English fraught, freight, from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German vracht, vrecht; see ēik- in Appendix.]

freight·age (frā'tij) n. 1. See freight (n., sense 3). 2. Cargo.

freight car (frāt kär) n. A railroad car designed for carrying freight.

freight·er (frā'tər) n. 1. A vehicle, especially a ship, used for carrying freight. 2. A shipper of cargo.

freight train (frāt trān) n. A railroad train made up of freight cars.

Fre·ling·huy·sen (frē'līng-hī'zən), Frederick Theodore. 1817-1885. American politician who served as U.S. senator from New Jersey (1866-1869 and 1871-1877) and negotiated for a naval base at Pearl Harbor as secretary of state (1881-1885).

frem·i·tus (frēm'i-təs) n. pl. fremitus. A palpable vibration, as felt by the hand placed on the chest during coughing or speaking. [Latin, a murmuring, from past participle of fremere, to murmur.]

Fre·mont (frē'mönt') 1. A city of western California on San Francisco Bay southeast of Oakland. It is a manufacturing and shipping center. Population, 173,339. 2. A city of east-central Nebraska on the Platte River west-northwest of Omaha. It is a processing center in an agricultural region. Population, 23,680. 3. A city of northern Ohio southeast of Toledo. A government trading post was established on the site in 1795. Population, 17,648.

Fré·mont (frē'mönt'), John Charles. 1813-1890. American explorer, soldier, and politician who explored and mapped much of the American West and Northwest, served as U.S. senator from California (1850-1851), and ran for President (1856).

fre·mont·i·a (frē-mön'tē-ə, -cheə, frī-) n. The flannel bush. [New Latin, after John Charles FRÉMONT.] fre·na (frē'nə) n. Anatomy. A plural of frenum.

french (frēnch) v. tr. frenched, french·ing, french·es. 1. To cut (green beans, for example) into thin strips before cooking. 2. To trim fat or bone from (a chop, for example). [From FRENCH.]

French (frēnch) adj. Abbr. Fr., F. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of France or its people or culture. 2. Of or relating to the French language. — n. 1. Abbr.

Fr., F. The Romance language of France, parts of Switzerland and Belgium, and other countries formerly under French influence or control. 2. The people of France. [Middle English, from Old English frencisc, Frankish, from Franca, Frank. See FRANK.]

French (frĕnch), Daniel Chester. 1850-1931. American sculptor whose many public statues include the seated marble figure of Abraham Lincoln at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C.

French Broad (frĕnch brôd) A river rising in the Blue Ridge of western North Carolina and flowing about 338 km (210 mi) north and northwest to eastern Tennessee, where it joins the Holston River to form the Tennessee River.

French bulldog (frĕnch bööl'dôg') n. Any of a breed of small, muscular dogs developed in France from toy English bulldogs and native breeds.

French Cam-e-roons (frĕnch kăm'ə-rōonz') A region and former French protectorate of west-central Africa. It was ceded to France by Germany in 1919 and joined with the southern portion of British Cameroons to form the independent country of Cameroon in 1960.

French-Ca-na-di-an also French Ca-na-di-an (frĕnch'kə-nā'dē-ən) n. A Canadian of French descent. —French'-Ca-na'di-an adj.

French chalk (frĕnch chôk) n. Chalk made of a soft, white variety of talc, used by tailors for marking fabrics and by dry cleaners for removing grease spots.

French chop (frĕnch chöp) n. A rib chop with the meat and fat trimmed from the end of the rib.

French Con-go (frĕnch kŏng'gō) See French Equatorial Africa.

French cuff (frĕnch kŭf) n. A wide cuff for a shirt sleeve that is folded back and fastened with a cuff link.

French curve (frĕnch kŭrv) n. A flat drafting instrument with curved edges and several scroll-shaped cutouts, used as a guide in drawing curves when constructing graphs or making engineering drawings.

French door (frĕnch dôr) n. A door, usually one of a pair, of light construction with glass panes extending for most of its length.

French dressing (frĕnch drĕs'ing) n. 1. A salad dressing of oil, vinegar, and seasonings. 2. A commercially prepared creamy salad dressing that is usually pinkish in color and often sweet.

French E-qua-to-ri-al Af-ri-ca (frĕnch ē'kwə-tôr'ē-əl äf'rĭ-kə, -tôr'-, ěk'wə-) Formerly French Con-go (kŏng'gō). A former federation of west-central Africa (1910-1958) comprising the present-day countries of Chad, Gabon, Congo, and Central African Republic.

French fry (frĕnch frĭ) n. A thin strip of potato fried in deep fat. Often used in the plural.

French-fry (frĕnch'frĭ') v. tr. French--fried, French--fry-ing, French-fries. To fry (potato strips, for example) in deep fat.

French Gui·a·na (frĕnch gē-än'ə, -ä'nə, gī-) A French overseas department of northeast South America on the Atlantic Ocean. Settlement by the French began in 1604, but the area was largely ignored until penal colonies (now closed) were established in the 19th century. Cayenne is the capital and the largest city. Population, 72,012.

French heel (frĕnch hĕl) n. A curved, moderately high heel used on women's shoes.

French horn (frĕnch hōrn) n. Music. A valved brass wind instrument that produces a mellow tone from a long, narrow tube that is coiled in a circle before ending in a flaring bell.

French·i·fy (frĕn'chə-fī') v. tr. French·i·fied, French·i·fy·ing, French·i·fies.

To make French in character or quality. —French'·i·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

French kiss (frĕnch kĭs) n. Slang. A kiss in which the tongue enters the partner's mouth.

French knot (frĕnch nŏt) n. A decorative embroidery stitch made by looping the thread two or more times around the needle, which is then inserted into the fabric.

French leave (frĕnch lĕv) n. An informal, unannounced, or abrupt departure. [From the 18th-century French custom of leaving without saying good-bye to the host or hostess.]

French·man (frĕnch'mən) n. A man who is a native or inhabitant of France.

French marigold (frĕnch măr'ĭ-göld') n. A widely cultivated plant (Tagetes patula) native to Mexico and Guatemala, having divided leaves, yellow rays usually with reddish markings, and large solitary flower heads.

French pastry (frĕnch pā'strĕ) n. Any of a wide variety of rich and elaborate pastries prepared in individual portions.

French Pol·y·ne·sia (frĕnch pŏl'ə-nĕ'zhə, -shə) A French overseas territory in the south-central Pacific Ocean comprising some 120 islands, including the Society and Marquesas islands and the Tuamotu archipelago. It was organized as a territory in 1903. Papeete, on the island of Tahiti, is the capital. Population, 166,753.

French provincial (frĕnch prə-vĭn'shəl) n. A style of architecture or furniture characteristic of the provinces in 17th- and 18th-century France.

French seam (frĕnch sĕm) n. A seam stitched first on the right side and then turned in and stitched on the wrong side so that the raw edges are enclosed in the seam.

French telephone (frĕnch tĕl'ə-fŏn') n. A telephone with the receiver and transmitter contained in a single unit.

French toast (frĕnch tŏst) n. Sliced bread soaked in a batter of milk and egg and lightly fried.

French West Af-ri-ca (frĕnch wĕst äf'ri-kə) A former federation of western Africa (1895-1959) comprising the present-day countries of Benin, Guinea, Ivory Coast, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Senegal, and Burkina Faso.

French West In-dies (frĕnch wĕst ĭn'dēz) The French overseas departments of Guadeloupe and Martinique in the Lesser Antilles.

French window (frĕnch wĭn'dō) n. 1. A pair or one of a pair of windows extending to the floor and opening in the middle. 2. A casement window.

French-wom-an (frĕnch'wōm'ən) n. A woman who is a native or inhabitant of France.

Fre-neau (frĭ-nō'), Philip Morin. Known as “the poet of the American Revolution.” 1752-1832. American poet noted for his satirical attacks on the British and for The British Prison-Ship (1781), an account of his wartime capture and imprisonment.

fre-net-ic or phre-net-ic (frə-nĕt'ik) also fre-net-i-cal or phre-net-i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. Wildly excited or active; frantic; frenzied. [Middle English frenetik, from Old French frenetique, from Latin phrenēticus, from Greek phrenitikos, from phrenitis, brain disease, from phrĕn, mind. See g^whren- in Appendix.] —fre-net'i-cal-ly adv. —fre-net'i-cism (-ĭ-sĭz'əm) n.

fren-u-lum (frĕn'yə-ləm) n. pl. fren-u-la (-lə). 1. Anatomy. A small frenum. 2. Entomology. A bristly structure on the hind wings of certain moths and butterflies that holds the forewings and hind wings together during flight. [New Latin, diminutive of Latin frĕnum, bridle, from frendere, to grind. See ghrendh- in Appendix.]

fre-num (frĕ'nəm) n. pl. fre-nums or fre-na (-nə). Anatomy. A membranous fold of skin or mucous membrane that supports or restricts the movement of a part or organ, such as the small band of tissue that connects the underside of the tongue to the floor of the mouth. [Latin frĕnum, bridle, from frendere, to grind. See ghrendh- in Appendix.]

fren-zied (frĕn'zĕd) adj. Affected with or marked by frenzy; frantic: a frenzied rush for the exits. —fren'zied-ly adv.

fren-zy (frĕn'zĕ) n. pl. fren-zies. 1. A state of violent mental agitation or wild excitement. 2. Temporary madness or delirium. 3. A mania; a craze. — v. tr. fren-zied, fren-zy-ing, fren-zies. To drive into a frenzy. [Middle English frenesie, from Old French, from Medieval Latin phrenēsia, from Latin phrenēsis, back-formation from phrenēticus, delirious. See FRENETIC.]

Fre-on (frĕ'ōn') A trademark used for a variety of nonflammable gaseous or liquid fluorinated hydrocarbons employed primarily as working fluids in refrigeration and air conditioning and as aerosol propellants.

freq. abbr. 1. Frequency. 2. Grammar. Frequentative. 3. Frequently.

fre-quence (frĕ'kwəns) n. Frequency. [Middle English, multitude, from Old French, from Latin frequentia. See FREQUENCY.]

fre·quen·cy (frē'kwən-sē) n. pl. fre·quen·cies. Abbr. freq. 1. The property or condition of occurring at frequent intervals. 2. Mathematics & Physics. The number of times a specified phenomenon occurs within a specified interval, as: a. The number of repetitions of a complete sequence of values of a periodic function per unit variation of an independent variable. b. The number of complete cycles of a periodic process occurring per unit time. c. The number of repetitions per unit time of a complete waveform, as of an electric current. 3. Statistics. a. The number of measurements in an interval of a frequency distribution. b. The ratio of the number of times an event occurs in a series of trials of a chance experiment to the number of trials of the experiment performed. [Latin frequentia, multitude, from frequēns, frequent-, crowded, numerous, frequent.] frequency distribution (frē'kwən-sē dīs'trə-byōō'shən) n. Statistics. A set of intervals, usually adjacent and of equal width, into which the range of a statistical distribution is divided, each associated with a frequency indicating the number of measurements in that interval.

frequency modulation (frē'kwən-sē möj'ə-lā'shən) n. Abbr. FM, fm The encoding of a carrier wave by variation of its frequency in accordance with an input signal.

fre·quent (frē'kwənt) adj. Occurring or appearing quite often or at close intervals: frequent errors of judgment. — v. tr. fre·quent·ed, fre·quent·ing, fre·quents (also frē-kwənt'). To pay frequent visits to; be in or at often: frequent a restaurant. [Middle English, ample, profuse, from Old French, from Latin frequēns, frequent-, crowded, numerous, frequent.] — fre'quen·ta'tion n. — fre·quent'er (-kwənt'ər) n. — fre'quent·ness n.

fre·quen·ta·tive (frē-kwənt'ət-iv) Grammar. adj. Abbr. freq. Expressing or designating repeated action. — n. Abbr. freq. A frequentative verb or verb form.

frequent flier (frē'kwənt flī'ər) n. One who travels often by air, especially on one airline.

fre·quent·ly (frē'kwənt-lē) adv. Abbr. freq. At frequent intervals; often.

fres·co (frēs'kō) n. pl. fres·coes or fres·cos. 1. The art of painting on fresh, moist plaster with pigments dissolved in water. 2. A painting executed in this way. — v. tr. fres·coed, fres·co·ing, fres·coes. To paint in fresco. [Italian, fresh (plaster), of Germanic origin.] — fres'co·er, fres'co·ist n.

Fres·co·bal·di (frēs'kō-bäl'dē), Girolamo. 1583-1643. Italian composer whose innovative organ works influenced the German baroque composers.

fresh (frēsh) adj. fresh·er, fresh·est. 1. New to one's experience; not encountered before. 2. Novel; different: a fresh slant on the problem. See Synonyms at new. 3. Recently made, produced, or harvested; not stale or spoiled: fresh bread. 4. Not preserved, as by canning, smoking, or freezing: fresh vegetables. 5. Not saline or salty: fresh water. 6. Not yet used or soiled; clean: a fresh sheet of paper. 7. Free from impurity or pollution; pure: fresh air. 8. Additional; new: fresh evidence. 9. Bright and clear; not dull or faded: a fresh memory. 10. Having the glowing, unspoiled appearance of youth: a fresh complexion. 11. Untried; inexperienced: fresh recruits. 12. Having just arrived; straight: fashions fresh from Paris. 13. Revived or reinvigorated; refreshed: I was fresh as a daisy after the nap. 14. Fairly strong; brisk: a fresh wind. 15. Informal. Bold and saucy; impudent. 16. Having recently calved and therefore with milk. Used of a cow. — adv. Recently; newly: fresh out of milk; muffins baked fresh daily. — n. 1. The early part: the fresh of the day. 2. A freshet. [Middle English, from Old English fersc, pure, not salty, and from Old French freis (feminine fresche) new, recent, of Germanic origin.] — fresh/ly adv. — fresh/ness n.

fresh breeze (frĕsh brĕz) n. Meteorology. A wind with a speed of from 19 to 24 miles (30 to 38 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale.

fresh-en (frĕsh'ĕn) v. fresh-ened, fresh-en-ing, fresh-ens. — v. intr.

1. To become fresh, as in vigor or appearance: freshened up after the day's work.
2. To become brisk; increase in strength. Used of the wind.
3. To lose saltiness.
4. To calve and therefore begin to produce milk. Used of a cow. — v. tr. 1. To make fresh. 2. To add to or strengthen (a drink). — fresh/en-er n.

fresh-et (frĕsh'ĭt) n. 1. A sudden overflow of a stream resulting from a heavy rain or a thaw. 2. A stream of fresh water that empties into a body of salt water.

fresh gale (frĕsh gāl) n. Meteorology. A wind with a speed of from 39 to 46 miles (62 to 74 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale.

fresh-man (frĕsh'mæn) n. 1. A student in the first-year class of a high school, college, or university. 2. A beginner; a novice. See Usage Note at man. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: in my freshman year; a freshman senator.

fresh-wa-ter (frĕsh'wŏt'tər, -wŏt'ər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, living in, or consisting of water that is not salty: freshwater fish; freshwater lakes. 2. Situated away from the sea; inland. 3. Nautical. Accustomed to sailing on inland waters only: a freshwater sailor.

Fres-nel (frā-nĕl'), Augustin Jean. 1788-1827. French physicist who supported the wave theory of light, investigated polarized light, and developed a compound lens for use in lighthouses.

Fres-nel lens (frā-nĕl' lĕnz) n. A thin optical lens consisting of concentric rings of segmental lenses and having a short focal length, used primarily in spotlights, beacons, and the headlights of motor vehicles. [After Augustin Jean FRESNEL.]

Fres-no (frĕz'nō) A city of central California south-southeast of Sacramento. It is a major processing and distribution center in the fertile San Joaquin Valley. Population, 354,202.

fret¹ (frĕt) v. fret-ted, fret-ting, frets. — v. tr. 1. To cause to be uneasy; vex: “fret thy soul with crosses and with cares” (Edmund Spenser). 2. a. To gnaw or wear away; erode. b. To produce a hole or worn spot in; corrode. See Synonyms at chafe. 3. To form (a passage or channel) by erosion. 4. To disturb the surface of (water or a stream); agitate. — v. intr. 1. To be vexed or troubled; worry. See Synonyms at brood. 2. To be worn or eaten away; become corroded. 3. To move agitatedly. 4. To gnaw with the teeth in the manner of a rodent. — n. 1. The act or an instance of fretting. 2. A hole or worn spot made by abrasion or erosion. 3. Irritation of mind; agitation. [Middle English freten, from Old English fretan, to devour. See ed- in Appendix.]

fret² (frĕt) Music. n. One of several ridges set across the fingerboard of a stringed instrument, such as a guitar. — v. tr. fret-ted, fret-ting, frets. 1. To provide with frets. 2. To press (the strings of an instrument) against the frets. [Origin unknown.]

fret³ (frĕt) n. 1. An ornamental design consisting of repeated and symmetrical figures, often in relief, contained within a band or border. 2. A headdress, worn by women of the Middle Ages, consisting of interlaced wire. — v. tr. fret-ted, fret-ting, frets. To provide with such a design or headdress. [Middle English, interlaced work, from Old French frete.]

fret-ful (frĕt'fəl) adj. 1. Inclined to be vexed or troubled; peevish. 2. Marked by worry and distress; troublesome: “Of all the fretful stages of human development, adolescence is the most infamous” (David Gelman). — fret'ful-ly adv. — fret'ful-ness n.

fret saw (frĕt sô) n. A long, narrow-bladed saw with fine teeth, used in making curved cuts in thin wood or metal.

fret-work (frĕt'wûrk') n. 1. Ornamental work consisting of three-dimensional frets; geometric openwork. 2. Such ornamental work represented two dimensionally by chiaroscuro.

Freud (froid), Anna. 1895-1982. Austrian-born British psychoanalyst noted for her application of psychoanalysis to child therapy.

Freud (froid), Sigmund. 1856-1939. Austrian physician and founder of psychoanalysis who theorized that the symptoms of hysterical patients represent forgotten and unresolved infantile psychosexual conflicts. His psychoanalytic theories, which initially met with hostility, profoundly influenced 20th-century thought.

Freu-di-an (froi'dĕ-ən) adj. Relating to or being in accordance with the psychoanalytic theories of Sigmund Freud. — n. A person who accepts the basic tenets of the psychoanalytic theories of Sigmund Freud, especially a psychiatrist who applies Freudian theory and method in conducting psychotherapy. — Freu'di-an-ism n.

Freudian slip (froi'dē-ən slīp) n. A verbal mistake that is thought to reveal an unconscious belief, thought, or emotion.

Freund's adjuvant (froindz äj'ə-vənt) n. A substance consisting of killed microorganisms, such as mycobacteria, in an oil and water emulsion that is administered to induce and enhance the formation of antibodies. [After Jules T. Freund (1890-1960), Hungarian-born American immunologist.]

Frey (frā) also Freyr (frâr) n. Mythology. The Norse god who dispenses peace, good weather, prosperity, and bountiful crops; the brother of Freya.

Frey-a also Frey-ja (frā'ə) n. Mythology. The Norse goddess of love and beauty; the sister of Frey.

Frey-berg (frī'bûrg'), Bernard Cyril First Baron Freyberg. 1889-1963. British-born general and politician who led New Zealand forces in World War II and was governor-general of New Zealand (1946-1952).

Frey-ja (frā'ə) n. Mythology. Variant of Freya.

Freyr (frâr) n. Mythology. Variant of Frey.

Frey-tag (frī'täk', -täg'), Gustav. 1816-1895. German writer noted for his realistic plays, such as The Journalists (1853), and novels, including Should and Have (1855).

F.R.G. or FRG abbr. Federal Republic of Germany.

FRGS or F.R.G.S. abbr. Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

Fri. abbr. Friday.

fri-a-ble (frī'ə-bəl) adj. Readily crumbled; brittle. [Latin friābilis, from friāre, to crumble.] —fri'a-bil'i-ty, fri'a-ble-ness n.

fri-ar (frī'ər) n. Abbr. Fr. A member of a usually mendicant Roman Catholic order. [Middle English frere, from Old French, from Latin frāter, brother. See bhrāter- in Appendix.] —fri-ar-ly adj.

fri-ar-bird (frī'ər-bûrd') n. Any of various honeyeaters of the genus Philemon of Australia and adjacent regions, having a partly naked, featherless head. Also called leatherhead fri-ar's lantern (frī'ərz län'tərn) n. See ignis fatuus (n., sense 1).

fri-ar-y (frī'ə-rē) n. pl. fri-ar-ies. A monastery of friars.

frib-ble (frīb'əl) v. frib-bled, frib-bling, frib-bles. — v. tr. To waste (time, for example); fritter (something) away. — v. intr. To waste time; trifle. — n. 1. A frivolity; a trifle. 2. A frivolous person. [Origin unknown.] —frib'bler n.

fric-an-deau (frīk'ən-dō') n. A cut of veal that has been larded and braised. [French, from fricasser, to fricassee. See FRICASSEE.]

fric-as-see (frīk'ə-sē', frīk'ə-sē') n. Poultry or meat cut into pieces and stewed in gravy. — v. tr. fric-as-seed, fric-as-see-ing, fric-as-sees. To prepare (poultry or meat) by cutting into pieces and stewing in gravy. [French fricassée, from Old French, from feminine past participle of fricasser, to fricassee : probably frire, to fry (from Latin frīgere, to roast, fry) + casser, to break, crack (from Latin quassāre, to shake, shatter); see SQUASH² or Vulgar Latin coāctiāre*, to press together (from Latin coāctus, past participle of cōgere, to drive or bring together); see COGENT.]

fric·a·tive (frĭk'ə-tĭv) Linguistics. n. A consonant, such as f or s in English, produced by the forcing of breath through a constricted passage. Also called spirant — adj. Of, relating to, or being a fricative consonant. [New Latin fricātīvus, from Latin fricātus, past participle of fricāre, to rub.]

Frick (frĭk), Henry Clay. 1849-1919. American industrialist who amassed a fortune in the steel industry and bequeathed to the public a New York City mansion housing his art collection.

fric·tion (frĭk'shən) n. 1. The rubbing of one object or surface against another. 2. Conflict, as between persons having dissimilar ideas or interests; clash. 3. Physics. A force that resists the relative motion or tendency to such motion of two bodies in contact. [Latin frictiō, frictiōn-, from frictus, past participle of fricāre, to rub.] — fric·tion·al adj. — fric·tion·al·ly adv.

friction clutch (frĭk'shən klŭch) n. A mechanical clutch that transmits torque through surface friction between the faces of the clutch.

friction drive (frĭk'shən drĭv) n. An automotive transmission system in which motion is transmitted from one part to another by the surface friction of rolling contact.

friction match (frĭk'shən mäch) n. A match that ignites when struck on an abrasive surface.

friction tape (frĭk'shən tāp) n. A sturdy, moisture-resistant adhesive tape, usually made of cloth, used chiefly to insulate electrical conductors.

Fri·day (frī'dē, -dā') n. Abbr. Fri., Fr., F. The sixth day of the week. [Middle English Fridai, from Old English Frīgedæg. See prī- in Appendix.]

fridge (frĭj) n. Informal. A refrigerator.

Frid·ley (frĭd'lē) A city of eastern Minnesota, a suburb of Minneapolis on the Mississippi River. Population, 28,335.

fried (frīd) v. Past tense and past participle of fry¹.

Fried (frēd, frēt), Alfred Hermann. 1864-1921. Austrian pacifist. He shared the 1911 Nobel Peace Prize for his work toward world peace.

Frie·dan (frī-dän'), Betty Naomi. Born 1921. American feminist who wrote The Feminine Mystique (1963) and founded the National Organization for Women (1966).

Fried·land·er's bacillus (frēd'lən'dərz bə-sĭl'əs) n. A pathogenic bacterium (Klebsiella pneumoniae) that often causes pneumonia. [After Karl Friedländer (1847-1887), German pathologist.]

Fried·man (frēd'mən), Jerome Isaac. Born 1930. American physicist. He shared a 1990 Nobel Prize for research that confirmed the existence of quarks.

Fried·man (frēd'mən), Milton. Born 1912. American economist. He won a 1976 Nobel Prize for his theories of monetary control and governmental nonintervention in the economy.

Frie·drichs·ha·fen (frē'drīks-hä'fən, -drīKHS-) A city of southern Germany on the Lake of Constance. The Zeppelin aircraft works were located here during World War I. Population, 51,094.

friend (frënd) n. 1. A person whom one knows, likes, and trusts. 2. A person whom one knows; an acquaintance. 3. A person with whom one is allied in a struggle or cause; a comrade. 4. One who supports, sympathizes with, or patronizes a group, cause, or movement: friends of the clean air movement. 5. Friend. A member of the Society of Friends; a Quaker. — v. tr. friend·ed, friend·ing, friends. Archaic. To befriend. [Middle English, from Old English frēond. See prī- in Appendix.] —friend'less adj. —friend'less·ness n. —friend'ship' n.

friend·ly (frënd'lē) adj. friend·li·er, friend·li·est. 1. Of, relating to, or befitting a friend: friendly advice. 2. Favorably disposed; not antagonistic: a government friendly to our interests. 3. Warm; comforting. 4. a. Computer Science. User-friendly. b. Informal. Easy to understand or use for a specified agent. Often used in combination: a reader-friendly novel; a consumer-friendly policy. — adv. In the manner of a friend; amicably. — n. pl. friend·lies. Informal. One fighting on or favorable to one's own side: "If I read this right, you're the only friendly we have there right now" (Tom Clancy). —friend/li·ly adv. —friend/li·ness n.

Friend·ly Islands (frënd'lē ī'ləndz) See Tonga.

fri·er (frī'ər) n. Variant of fryer.

fries (frīz) v. Third person singular present tense of fry¹. — n. Plural of fry¹.

Frie·sian (frē'zhən) n. Variant of Frisian.

Fries·land (frēz'lənd, -lənd', frēs'-) A region of northern Europe on the North Sea between the Scheldt and Weser rivers. The Frisians, a Germanic people, were conquered by the Franks in the eighth century. A portion of the area is now a province of the northern Netherlands.

frieze¹ (frēz) n. Architecture. 1. A plain or decorated horizontal part of an entablature between the architrave and cornice. 2. A decorative horizontal band, as along the upper part of a wall in a room. [French frise, from Medieval Latin fri-sium, frigium, embroidery, from Latin Phrygium (opus), Phrygian (work), from Phrygia.]

frieze² (frēz) n. 1. A coarse, shaggy woolen cloth with an uncut nap. 2. A dense, low-pile surface, as in carpeting, resembling such cloth. Also called frisé [Middle English frise, from Old French, from Medieval Latin (pannī) frīsī, woolen garments. See FRISIAN.]

frig (frĭg) v. frigged, frig-ging, frigs. Vulgar Slang. — v. tr. To have sexual intercourse with. — v. intr. To have sexual intercourse. [Middle English, to quiver, possibly from Old French friquer, to rub, from Latin fricāre.]

frig-ate (frĭg'ĭt) n. 1. A U.S. warship of 4,000 to 9,000 displacement tons, larger than a destroyer and smaller than a cruiser, used primarily for escort duty. 2. A high-speed, medium-sized sailing war vessel of the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries. 3. Archaic. A fast, light vessel, such as a sailboat. [French frégate, from Italian fre-gata.]

frigate bird (frĭg'ĭt bŭrd) n. Any of various tropical sea birds of the family Fregatidae that have long, powerful wings, dark plumage, and a hooked beak and characteristically snatch food from other birds in flight. Also called man-o'-war bird fright (frĭt) n. 1. Sudden, intense fear, as of something immediately threatening; alarm. See Synonyms at fear. 2. Informal. Something extremely unsightly, alarming, or strange: Brush your hair; you look a fright. — v. tr. fright-ed, fright-ing, frights. Archaic. To frighten. [Middle English, from Old English fyrhto, fryhto. V., from Middle English frighten, to frighten, be afraid from Old English fyrhtan.]

Frigg (frĭg) also Frig-ga (frĭg'ə) n. Mythology. The Norse goddess of the heavens and wife of Odin. [Old Norse. See pri- in Appendix.]

fright-en (frĭt'n) v. fright-ened, fright-en-ing, fright-ens. — v. tr. 1. To fill with fear; alarm. 2. To drive or force by arousing fear: The suspect was frightened into confessing. — v. intr. To become afraid. — fright'en-er n.
— fright'en-ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: frighten, scare, alarm, terrify, terrorize, startle, panic. These verbs mean to cause a person to experience fear. Frighten and the less formal scare are the most widely applicable terms: “Better be killed than frightened to death” (Robert Smith Surtees). Don't let the size of the task scare you. Alarm implies the often sudden onset of fear or apprehension: Her sudden and inexplicable loss of weight alarmed her doctor. Terrify implies overwhelming, often paralyzing fear: “The regulars, terrified by the yells of the Indians... gathered themselves into a body” (George Bancroft). Terrorize implies fear that intimidates; the word sometimes suggests deliberate coercion: “premeditated and systematized terrorizing of the civil populations” (Edith Wharton). Startle suggests fear that shocks momentarily and may cause a sudden, involuntary movement of the body: The clap of thunder startled us. Panic implies sudden frantic fear that often impairs self-control and rationality: The radio drama was so realistic that it panicked listeners who tuned in after it had begun.

fright·ful (frīt'fəl) adj. 1. Causing disgust or shock; horrifying. 2. Causing fright; terrifying. 3. Informal. a. Excessive; extreme: a frightful liar. b. Disagreeable; distressing: frightful weather. —fright'ful·ly adv. —fright'ful·ness n.

fright wig (frīt wīg) n. A wig with hair, especially long or frizzy hair, standing up from the surface.

frig·id (frīj'īd) adj. 1. Extremely cold. See Synonyms at cold. 2. Lacking warmth of feeling. 3. Stiff and formal in manner: a frigid refusal to a request. 4. Persistently averse to sexual intercourse. [Latin frigidus, cold, from frigus, the cold.] —fri·gid'·i·ty (frī-ĵīd'ī-tē), frig'id·ness n. —frig'id·ly adv.

Frig·i·daire (frīj'ī-dâr') A trademark used for electric refrigerators and other household appliances.

Frig·id Zone (frīj'īd zōn) Either of two extreme latitude zones of the earth, the North Frigid Zone, between the North Pole and the Arctic Circle, or the South Frigid Zone, between the South Pole and the Antarctic Circle.

frig·o·rif·ic (frīg'ə-rīf'īk) also frig·o·rif·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. Causing coldness; chilling. [Latin frigorificus: frīgus, frīgōr-, the cold + -ficus, -fic.]

fri·jol (frē-hōl', frē'hōl') also fri·jo·le (frē-hō'lē) n. pl. fri·jo·les (frē-hō'lēz, frē'hō'-). Southwestern U.S. A bean cultivated and used for food. [Spanish, variant of fréjol, from Old Spanish frisol, from Catalan fesol, from Latin phaseolus, diminutive of phasēlus, a type of legume, from Greek phasēlos.]

frill (frīl) n. 1. A ruffled, gathered, or pleated border or projection, such as a fabric edge used to trim clothing or a curled paper strip for decorating the end of the bone of a piece of meat. 2. A ruff of hair or feathers about the neck of an animal or a bird. 3. A wrinkling of the edge of a photographic film. 4. Informal. Something that is desirable but not a necessity; a luxury. See Synonyms at luxury. — v. frilled, frill·ing, frills. — v. tr. 1. To make into a ruffle or frill. 2. To add a ruffle or frill to. — v. intr. To become wrinkled along the edge. [Origin unknown.] —fril'li·ness n. —frill'y adj.

frilled lizard (frīld līz'ərd) n. An Australian lizard (Chlamydosaurus kingi) having a broad, contractile membrane extending from the neck and throat that can be extended like a ruff when the mouth is opened.

Friml (frīm'əl), (Charles) Rudolf. 1879-1972. Czechoslovakian-born American pianist and composer of 33 light operas, including The Firefly (1912) and The Vagabond King (1925).

Frim·ley and Cam·ber·ley (frīm'lē ənd kəm'bər-lē) An urban district of southern England southwest of London. The village of Sandhurst, site of the Royal Military College, is in the district. Population, 52,600.

fringe (frīnj) n. 1. A decorative border or edging of hanging threads, cords, or strips, often attached to a separate band. 2. Something that resembles such a border or edging. 3. A marginal, peripheral, or secondary part: "They like to hang out on the geographical fringes, the seedy outposts” (James Atlas). 4. Those members of a group or political party holding extreme views: the lunatic fringe.

5. Any of the light or dark bands produced by the diffraction or interference of light. 6. A fringe benefit. — v. tr. fringed, fring·ing, fring·es. 1. To decorate with or as if with a fringe: The weaver fringed the edge of the scarf. 2. To serve as a fringe to: Ferns fringed the pool. [Middle English frenge, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin frimbia*, alteration of Late Latin fimbria. See FIMBRIA.]

—fring·y adj.

fringe area (frɪnj âr'ē-ə) n. A zone just outside of the range of a broadcasting station in which signals are weakened and distorted.

fringe benefit (frɪnj bĕn'ə-fit) n. An employment benefit given in addition to one's wages or salary.

fringed gentian (frɪnjd jĕn'shən) n. A biennial or annual plant (Gentianopsis crinita) of eastern North America, having blue, bell-shaped flowers with fringed petals.

fringed orchid (frɪnjd ôr'kɪs) n. Any of various orchids of the genus Habenaria, having variously colored flowers with a fringed lip and a spurred base.

fringed polygala (frɪnjd pə-līg'ə-lə) n. A perennial plant (Polygala paucifolia) of eastern North America, having fringed, reddish-purple flowers. Also called flowering wintergreen fringe tree (frɪnj trē) n. A shrub or small tree (Chionanthus virginicus) of the southeast United States, having drooping clusters of white flowers and dark blue fruit. Also called old-man's-beard fring·ing reef (frɪnj'jɪŋ rēf) n. A coral reef formed close to a shoreline.

Fri·o (frē'ō) A river of southern Texas flowing about 354 km (220 mi) south and southeast to the Nueces River.

frip·per·y (frɪp'ə-rē) n. pl. frip·per·ies. 1. Pretentious, showy finery.

2. Pretentious elegance; ostentation. 3. Something trivial or nonessential.

[French friperie, from Old French freperie, old clothes, from felpe, frepe, from Medieval Latin faluppa, worthless material.]

Fris. abbr. Frisian.

Fris·bee (frɪz'bē) A trademark used for a plastic disk-shaped toy that players throw and catch. This trademark sometimes occurs in print meaning “a throw-and-catch game played with this toy”: “The Mall is a better place to play Frisbee with a dog” (Los Angeles Times).

Frisch (frɪʃ), Karl von. 1886-1982. Austrian-born German zoologist. He shared a 1973 Nobel Prize for his study of the social behavior patterns of bees.

Frisch (frɪʃ), Ragnar. 1895-1973. Norwegian economist. He shared a 1969 Nobel Prize for the application of mathematics and statistical methods to economics.

fri-sé (frē-zāʹ) n. See frieze². [French, from past participle of friser, to curl. See FRIZZ¹.]

fri-sée (frī-zāʹ) n. See endive (n., sense 1). [French, from feminine past participle of friser, to curl. See FRIZZ¹.]

fri-sette also fri-zette (frī-zētʹ) n. A fringe of curled, often artificial hair, usually worn on the forehead by a woman. [French frisette, from friser, to curl. See FRIZZ¹.]

fri-seur (frē-zûrʹ, -zœrʹ) n. A hairdresser; a coiffeur. [French, from friser, to curl. See FRIZZ¹.]

Fri-sian (frīzhʹən, frēʹzhən) also Frie-sian (frēʹzhən) n. Abbr. Fris., Frs. 1. A native or inhabitant of the Frisian Islands or Friesland. 2. The West Germanic language of the Frisians. It is the language most closely related to English. [From Latin Frīsī, the Frisians, of Germanic origin.] — Fri'sian adj.

Frisian Islands (frīzhʹən īʹləndz) A chain of islands in the North Sea off the coast of the Netherlands, Germany, and Denmark. The West Frisian Islands belong to the Netherlands. The East Frisian Islands and most of the North Frisian Islands are part of Germany; the other North Frisians are Danish.

frisk (frīsk) v. frisked, frisk-ing, frisks. — v. intr. To move about briskly and playfully; frolic. — v. tr. To search (a person) for something concealed, especially a weapon, by passing the hands quickly over clothes or through pockets. — n. 1. An energetic, playful movement; a gambol. 2. The act of frisking. [From Middle English frisk, lively, from Old French frisque, of Germanic origin.] — frisk'er n.

frisk-y (frīsʹkē) adj. frisk-i-er, frisk-i-est. Energetic, lively, and playful: a frisky kitten. — frisk'i-ly adv. — frisk'i-ness n.

fris-son (frē-sōnʹ) n. pl. fris-sons (-sōnzʹ, -sōnʹ). A moment of intense excitement; a shudder: The story's ending arouses a frisson of terror. [French, from Old French frisons, pl. of frison, a trembling, from Vulgar Latin frīctiō*, frīctiōn-*, from Latin frīgēre, to be cold.]

frit (frīt) n. 1. The fused or partially fused materials used in making glass. 2. A vitreous substance used in making porcelain, glazes, or enamels. — v. tr.

frit-ted, frit-ting, frits. To make into frit. [Italian fritta, from feminine past participle of friggere, to fry, from Latin frīgere, to roast, fry.]

frit fly (frīt flī) n. Any of several small flies of the family Chloropidae, especially Oscinella frit, having larvae that are destructive to cereal plants such as oats and wheat. [Origin unknown.]

frith (frīth) n. Scots. A firth. [Alteration of FIRTH.]

frit-il-lar-y (frītʹl-ērʹē) n. pl. frit-il-lar-ies. 1. Any of various bulbous plants of the genus Fritillaria, having nodding, variously colored, often spotted or checkered flowers. 2. Any of various butterflies of the family Nymphalidae, especially of the genera Speyeria and Boloria, having brownish wings marked with black or silvery spots on the underside. [New Latin Fritillaria, genus name, from Latin fritillus, dice-box.]

frit·ta·ta (frī-tä'tə, frēt-tä'tə) n. An open-faced omelet, often cooked with meat, cheese, or vegetables. [Italian, from fritto, past participle of friggere, to fry. See FRIT.]

frit·ter¹ (frīt'ər) v. tr. frit-tered, frit-ter-ing, frit-ters. 1. To reduce or squander little by little: frittered his inheritance away. See Synonyms at waste. 2. To break, tear, or cut into bits; shred. [Probably from fritter, fragment, probably alteration of fitters, from fitter, to break into small pieces.]

frit·ter² (frīt'ər) n. A small cake made of batter, often containing fruit, vegetables, or fish, sautéed or deep-fried. [Middle English friture, from Old French, from Late Latin frīctūra, from Latin frīctus, past participle of frīgere, to roast, fry.]

fritz (frīts) n. Informal. A condition in which something does not work properly: Our television is on the fritz. [Origin unknown.]

Fri·u·li (frē'ə-lē', frē-ōō'lē) A historical region and former duchy of Italy in present-day northeast Italy and western Slovenia. Occupied by the Romans in the second century B.C., it became a Lombard duchy in the sixth century A.D. and was conquered by various peoples and states before being ceded to Italy in 1866 (the western part) and 1919 (the eastern part). Eastern Friuli was awarded to Yugoslavia by treaty in 1947.

Fri·u·li·Ve·ne·zia Giu·lia (frē'ə-lē'və-nēt'sē-ə jōōl'yə, frē-ōō'lē-vě-nēt'syā) A region of northeast Italy bounded by Austria in the north and Slovenia in the east. It was formed in 1947.

friv·ol (frīv'əl) v. intr. friv-oled or friv-olled, friv-ol-ing or friv-ol-ling, friv-ols or friv-ols. To behave frivolously. [Back-formation from FRIVOLOUS.] —friv'ol-er n.

fri·vol·i·ty (frī-vōl'i-tē) n. pl. fri-vol-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being frivolous. 2. A frivolous act or thing.

friv·o·lous (frīv'ə-ləs) adj. 1. Unworthy of serious attention; trivial: a frivolous novel. 2. Inappropriately silly: a frivolous purchase. [Middle English, probably from Latin frivulus, of little value, probably from friāre, to crumble.] —friv'o-lous-ly adv. —friv'o-lous-ness n.

fri·zette (frī-zēt') n. Variant of frisette.

frizz¹ (frīz) v. tr. intr. frizzed, frizz-ing, frizz-es. To form or be formed into small, tight curls or tufts. — n. 1. The condition of being frizzed. 2. A small, tight curl or tuft. [Alteration (influenced by FRIZZLE²), of French friser, from Old French, possibly from frire, fris-, to fry, from Latin frīgere, to roast, fry.] —frizz'er n.

frizz² (frīz) v. frizzed, frizz-ing, frizz-es. — v. tr. To fry or burn with a sizzling noise. — v. intr. To make a sizzling noise while frying or searing. [Possibly back-formation from FRIZZLE¹.]

friz-zle¹ (frīz'əl) v. friz-zled, friz-zling, friz-zles. — v. tr. 1. To fry (something) until crisp and curled: frizzled the bacon. 2. To scorch or sear with heat. — v. intr. To fry or sear with a sizzling noise. [Possibly blend of FRY¹, and SIZ-ZLE.]

friz-zle² (frīz'əl) v. tr. intr. friz-zled, friz-zling, friz-zles. To form or cause to be formed into small, tight curls; frizz. — n. A small, tight curl. [Origin unknown.]

friz-zly (frīz'lē) adj. friz-zli-er, friz-zli-est. Tightly curled.

friz-zy (frīz'ē) adj. friz-zi-er, friz-zi-est. Tightly curled; frizzily. — friz'zi-ly adv. — friz'zi-ness n.

Frl. abbr. Fräulein.

fro (frō) adv. Away; back: moving to and fro. — prep. Scots. From. [Middle English, probably from Old Norse frā. See per¹ in Appendix.]

Frō-bel (frō'bel), Friedrich Wilhelm August. See Friedrich Wilhelm August Froebel.

Fro-bish-er (frō'bī-shər, frōb'ī-), Sir Martin. 1535?-1594. English explorer who made three voyages to the Canadian Arctic (1576, 1577, and 1578) in search of the Northwest Passage.

Frobisher Bay (frō'bī-shər bā) An arm of the Atlantic Ocean extending into southeast Baffin Island in Northwest Territories, Canada. It was discovered by Martin Frobisher in 1576 and until 1860 was thought to be a strait separating Baffin Island from another island.

frock (frōk) n. 1. A woman's dress. 2. A long, loose outer garment, as that worn by artists and craftspeople; a smock. 3. A woolen garment formerly worn by sailors; a jersey. 4. A robe worn by monks, friars, and other clerics; a habit. — v. tr.

frocked, frock-ing, frocks. 1. To clothe in a frock. 2. To invest with clerical office. [Middle English frok, a monk's habit, from Old French froc, from Medieval Latin froccus, of Germanic origin.]

frock coat (frōk kōt) n. A man's dress coat or suit coat with knee-length skirts.

froe also frow (frō) n. A cleaving tool having a heavy blade set at right angles to the handle. [From frower, possibly from FROWARD.]

Froe-bel also Frō-bel (frō'bel), Friedrich Wilhelm August. 1782-1852.

German educator who established the first kindergarten (1837), where he hoped to make learning a spontaneous, enjoyable experience for children.

frog (frōg, frōg) n. 1. Any of numerous tailless, aquatic, semiaquatic, or terrestrial amphibians of the order Anura and especially of the family Ranidae, characteristically having a smooth, moist skin, webbed feet, and long hind legs adapted for leaping. 2. A wedge-shaped, horny prominence in the sole of a horse's hoof. 3. A loop fastened to a belt to hold a tool or weapon. 4. An ornamental looped braid or cord with a button or knot for fastening the front of a garment. 5. A device on intersecting railroad tracks that permits wheels to cross the junction.

6. A spiked or perforated device used to support stems in a flower arrangement.

7. Informal. Hoarseness or phlegm in the throat. 8. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a French person. [Middle English frogge, from Old English frogga.]

frog-eye (frôg'ī', frög'ī') n. A plant disease caused by fungi and characterized by rounded spots on the leaves.

frog-fish (frôg'fish', frög'-) n. pl. frogfish or frog-fish-es. Any of various bottom-dwelling fishes of the family Antennariidae of tropical and temperate seas, characteristically having a prickly or warty globose body and pectoral fins adapted for grasping.

frog-hop-per (frôg'höp'ər, frög'-) n. See spittlebug.

frog kick (frôg kīk) n. Sports. A swimming kick used in the breaststroke in which the knees are drawn up close to the hips and the feet are thrust outward and backward so that the legs come together when fully extended.

frog-man (frôg'män', -mən, frög'-) n. A swimmer provided with breathing apparatus and other equipment to execute underwater maneuvers, especially military maneuvers.

frog-mouth (frôg'mouth', frög'-) n. Any of various brown or gray nocturnal birds of the family Podargidae of southeast Asia and Australia, having a wide mouth and a hooked bill.

frog spit (frôg spīt) n. 1. A foamlike aggregation of small aquatic plants, such as green algae, on the surface of a pond. Also called frog spittle 2. See cuckoo spit.

Froh-man (frō'mən), Charles. 1860-1915. American theatrical manager who influenced the American theater with his successful booking agency, theaters, and promotion of actors such as John Drew and Maude Adams.

Frois-sart (froi'särt', frwä-sär'), Jean. 1333?-1405?. French historian noted for his vivid accounts of Europe during the Hundred Years' War.

frol-ic (fröl'īk) n. 1. Gaiety; merriment: fun and frolic. 2. A gay, carefree time. 3. A playful antic. — v. intr. frol-icked, frolic-ing, frolics. 1. To behave playfully and uninhibitedly; romp. 2. To engage in merrymaking, joking, or teasing. — adj. Archaic. Merry. [From Dutch vrolijk, merry, from Middle Dutch vrolijc: vro, happy + -lijc, -like; see lik- in Appendix.] — frol'ick-er n.

frol-ic-some (fröl'īk-səm) adj. Full of high-spirited fun; frisky and playful. See Synonyms at playful.

from (frūm, fröm; frəm when unstressed) prep. Abbr. fm., fr. 1. a. Used to indicate a specified place or time as a starting point: walked home from the station; from six o'clock on. See Usage Note at escape. See Usage Note at whence.

b. Used to indicate a specified point as the first of two limits: from grades four to six. 2. Used to indicate a source, a cause, an agent, or an instrument: a note from the teacher; taking a book from the shelf. 3. Used to indicate separation, removal, or exclusion: keep someone from making a mistake; liberation from bondage.

4. Used to indicate differentiation: know right from wrong. 5. Because of: faint from hunger. —idiom. from away. Maine. Not native to Maine. [Middle English, from Old English. See per¹ in Appendix.]

Fromm (frōm, frōm), Erich. 1900-1980. German-born American psychoanalyst who emphasized the role of social conditioning in human behavior. His books include Escape from Freedom (1941) and The Art of Loving (1956).

frond (frōnd) n. 1. The leaf of a fern. 2. A large compound leaf of a palm. 3. A leaflike thallus, as of a seaweed or lichen. [Latin frōns, frond-, foliage.] —frond'ed adj.

fron-des-cent (frōn-dēs'ənt) adj. Bearing, resembling, or having a profusion of leaves or fronds; leafy. [Latin frondēscēns, frondēscēt- present participle of frondēscere, to become leafy inchoative of frondēre, to put forth leaves, from frōns, frond-, foliage.] —fron-des'cence n.

fron-dose (frōn'dōs') adj. 1. Bearing fronds. 2. Resembling a frond. [Latin frondōsus, abounding in foliage, from frōns, frond-, foliage.] —fron'dose'ly adv.

frons (frōnz) n. pl. fron-tes (frōn'tēz). The anterior, uppermost part of the head of an insect. [Latin frōns, front-, forehead, front.]

front (frūnt) n. 1. The forward part or surface, as of a building. 2. The area, location, or position directly before or ahead. 3. A position of leadership or superiority. 4. The forehead or face, especially of a bird or other animal. 5. a. Demeanor or bearing, especially in the presence of danger or difficulty. b. An outward, often feigned, appearance or manner: They put up a good front. 6. a. Land bordering a lake, river, or street. b. A promenade along the water at a resort. 7. A detachable part of a man's dress shirt covering the chest; a dickey. 8. a. The most forward line of a combat force. b. The area of contact between opposing combat forces; a battlefield. 9. Meteorology. The interface between air masses of different temperatures or densities. 10. A field of activity: the economic front. 11. a. A group or movement uniting various individuals or organizations for the achievement of a common purpose; a coalition. b. A nominal leader lacking in real authority; a figurehead. c. An apparently respectable person, group, or business used as a cover for secret or illegal activities. 12. Archaic. a. The first part; the beginning. b. The face; the countenance. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, aimed at, or located in the front: the front lines; the front row; front property on Lake Tahoe. 2. Linguistics. Designating vowels produced at or toward the front of the oral cavity, such as the vowels of green and get. — v. front-ed, front-ing, fronts. — v. tr. 1. To look out on; face: a house that fronts the ocean. 2. To meet in opposition; confront. See Synonyms at defy. 3. To provide a front for. 4. To serve as a front for. 5. Music. To lead (a group of musicians): "Goodman... became the first major white bandleader to front an integrated group"

(Bill Barol). 6. Informal. To provide before payment: “In... personal liability suits, a lawyer is fronting both time and money” (Richard Faille). — v. intr. 1. To have a front; face onto something else: Her property fronts on the highway. 2. To provide an apparently respectable cover for secret or illegal activities: fronting for organized crime. — interj. Used by a desk clerk in a hotel to summon a bellhop. — idiom. front and center. In the most prominent position. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin frōns, front-.]

front. abbr. Frontispiece.

front-age (frŭn'tij) n. 1. a. The front part of a piece of property. b. The land between a building and the street. c. Land adjacent to something, such as a building, street, or body of water. 2. The direction in which something faces.

frontage road (frŭn'tij rōd) n. See service road.

fron-tal¹ (frŭn'tl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, directed toward, or situated at the front: a frontal attack. 2. Anatomy. a. Of or relating to the forehead or frontal bone. b. Of or relating to the frontal plane. 3. Of or relating to a meteorological front. — fron'tal-ly adv.

fron-tal² (frŭn'tl) n. 1. A drapery covering the front of an altar. 2. The façade of a building. [Middle English frontel, from Old French, from Medieval Latin frontāle, from Latin frōns, front-, forehead, front.]

frontal bone (frŭn'tl bōn) n. Anatomy. A cranial bone consisting of a vertical portion corresponding to the forehead and a horizontal portion that forms the roofs of the orbital and nasal cavities.

frontal lobe (frŭn'tl lōb) n. Anatomy. The largest and most anterior part of each cerebral hemisphere.

frontal lobotomy (frŭn'tl lə-bōt'ə-mē) n. A prefrontal lobotomy.

frontal plane (frŭn'tl plān) n. Anatomy. A plane parallel to the long axis of the body and perpendicular to the sagittal plane that separates the body into front and back portions.

front bench (frŭnt bēnch) n. The first bench on either side of the aisle in a parliament, reserved for ministers and leaders of the principal political parties.

front burner (frŭnt bū'r'nər) n. Informal. A position of relatively great importance: The committee has put consideration of that question on the front burner.

front-court (frŭnt'kōrt', -kōrt') n. Basketball. 1. The half of the court having the basket at which the offensive team shoots. 2. The forwards and center on a team. In this sense, also called frontline front-end (frünt'ënd') adj. 1. Of or relating to the initial phase of a project: a front-end investment. 2. Of or relating to the forward parts of a vehicle: a front-end alignment.

Fron-te-nac (frŏn'tə-nāk', frŏnt-nāk'), Comte de Title of Louis de Buade. 1620?-1698. French colonial administrator who governed New France (1672-1682 and 1689-1698) and held Quebec against the British in the King William's War (1690).

front-end load (frünt'ënd' lōd) n. The amount deducted from early payments made to a mutual fund purchase plan that covers expenses such as sales commissions.

front-end loader (frünt'ënd' lō'dər) n. An earthmoving machine with a hydraulic scoop in front for lifting and loading earth or rubble.

front-end processor (frünt'ënd' prös'ēs'ər) n. Abbr. FEP Computer Science. A computer used to process data before it is sent to a mainframe computer for analysis or further processing.

fron·ten·is (frün-tën'is, frön'tën'is) n. Sports. A Latin-American tennis game played on a three-walled court. [American Spanish, blend of Spanish frontón, jai alai court; see FRONTON, Spanish tenis, tennis (from English TENNIS).]

fron·tes (frön'tēz) n. Plural of frons.

fron·tier (frün-tîr', frön-, frün'tîr', frön'-) n. 1. a. An international border. b. The area along an international border. See Synonyms at boundary. 2. A region just beyond or at the edge of a settled area. 3. An undeveloped area or field for discovery or research: theories on the frontier of astrophysics. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: frontier towns; frontier law. [Middle English frountier, from Old French frontier, from front, forehead, front. See FRONT.]

fron·tiers·man (frün-tîrz'mən, frön-) n. A man who lives on the frontier.

fron·tiers·wom·an (frün-tîrz'wōmən, frön-) n. A woman who lives on the frontier.

fron·tis·piece (frün'ti-spēs') n. Abbr. front. 1. An illustration that faces or immediately precedes the title page of a book, book section, or magazine. 2. Architecture. a. A façade, especially an ornamental façade. b. A small ornamental pediment, as on top of a door or window. 3. Archaic. A title page. [Alteration (influenced by PIECE), of French frontispice, from Late Latin frontispicium, façade of a building : Latin frontis, genitive of frōns, forehead, front + Latin specere, to look at; see spek- in Appendix.]

front·let (frünt'līt) n. 1. An ornament or a band worn on the forehead as a phylactery. 2. The forehead of an animal. 3. The forehead of a bird when of a different color or texture of plumage. 4. An ornamental border for a frontal. [Middle English, from Old French frontelet, diminutive of frontel, ornament worn on the forehead. See FRONTAL².]

front·line also front line (frünt'līn') n. 1. A front or boundary, especially one between military, political, or ideological positions. 2. Basketball. See front-court (n., sense 2). 3. Football. The linemen of a team. — adj. or front-line 1. Located or used at a military front. 2. Of or relating to the most advanced or important position or activity in a field or undertaking: “leaders of the six black ‘front-line states’ bordering South Africa” (Boston Globe). 3. Sports. a. Of or relating to the frontline. b. Being a member of the regular team; first-string: a team in need of a frontline catcher.

front-load (frünt’-lōd’) v. front--load-ed, front--load-ing, front--loads. — v. tr. To concentrate costs or benefits of (a financial obligation or deal) in an early period: They front-loaded their tax deductions. — v. intr. To concentrate costs or benefits in an early period.

front man (frünt măn) n. 1. A man who serves as a nominal leader but who lacks real authority. 2. Music. A leading singer with a group.

front matter (frünt măt’ər) n. The material, such as the preface, frontispiece, and title page, preceding the text in a book.

front money (frünt mŭn’ē) n. Money paid in advance, as for contracted goods or services.

front office (frünt ô’fīs) n. The executive or policymaking officers of an organization.

fron-to-gen-e-sis (frŭn’tō-jĕn’ī-sīs) n. pl. fron-to-gen-e-ses (-sēz’). Formation or intensification of a meteorological front.

fron-tol-y-sis (frŭn-tōl’ī-sīs) n. pl. fron-tol-y-ses (-sēz’). Dissipation of a meteorological front.

fron-ton (frŏn’tŏn’, frôn-tôn’) n. Sports. An arena for jai alai. [Spanish frontón, wall, fronton, augmentative of frente, forehead, face, from Old Spanish fuente, from Latin frŏns, front-.]

front-page (frünt’pāj’) adj. Worthy of coverage on the front page of a newspaper: front-page news. — v. tr. front--paged, front--pag-ing, front--pag-es. To place or report on the front page of a newspaper.

Front Range (frünt rānj) A range of the Rocky Mountains in north-central Colorado. It rises to 4,352.4 m (14,270 ft) at Grays Peak.

front room (frünt rŏom) n. See living room.

front-run-ner also front-run-ner (frünt’rŭn’ər) n. 1. One that is in a leading position in a race or other competition: the front-runner for the presidential nomination. 2. A competitor who performs best when in the lead. —front’-run’n-ing adj.

front-ward (frünt’wərd) adv. & adj. Toward, to, or at the front. —front’wards adv.

front-wheel drive (frünt’hwĕl’ drīv, -wĕl’) n. Abbr. FWD An automotive drive system in which only the front pair of wheels receives power from the engine.

frore (frŏr, frŏr) adj. Archaic. Extremely cold; frosty. [Middle English, past participle of fresen, to freeze, from Old English frēosan. See FREEZE.]

frosh (frōsh) n. pl. frosh. Informal. A freshman, as in college. [Shortening and alteration of FRESHMAN.]

frost (frōst, frōst) n. 1. A deposit of minute ice crystals formed when water vapor condenses at a temperature below freezing. 2. A temperature low enough to cause freezing. 3. The process of freezing. 4. A cold or icy manner. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: the frost season; frost damage to crops. — v. frost-ed, frost-ing, frosts. — v. tr. 1. To cover with frost. 2. To damage or kill by frost. 3. To cover (glass, for example) with a roughened or speckled decorative surface. 4. To cover or decorate with icing: frost a cake. 5. Slang. To anger or upset: What really frosted me about the incident was the fact that you lied. — v. intr. To become covered with or as if with frost. [Middle English, from Old English. See preus- in Appendix.]

Frost (frōst, frōst), Robert Lee. 1874-1963. American poet whose deceptively simple works, often set in rural New England, explore the relationships between individuals and between people and nature. His collections include A Boy's Will (1913) and In the Clearing (1962).

Frost-belt also Frost Belt (frōst'bělt', frōst'-) The north-central and north-east United States.

frost-bite (frōst'bīt', frōst'-) n. Injury or destruction of skin and underlying tissue, most often that of the nose, ears, fingers, or toes, resulting from prolonged exposure to freezing or subfreezing temperatures. — v. tr. frost-bit (-bīt'), frost-bit-ten (-bīt'n), frost-bit-ing, frost-bites. To injure or damage by freezing.

frost-fish (frōst'fīsh', frōst'-) n. pl. frostfish or frost-fish-es. Any of several North American fishes, especially the tuncod, that appear during the fall frost season.

frost-free (frōst'frē', frōst'-) adj. Requiring little or no defrosting: a frost-free refrigerator.

frost heave (frōst hēv) n. New England. Ruptured pavement caused by the expansion of freezing water immediately under the road: "We've got the worst frost heaves in 20 years" (Wallace E. Stickney).

frost-ing (frō'stīng, frōs'tīng) n. 1. Icing, as on a cake. 2. A roughened or speckled surface imparted to glass or metal.

frost line (frōst līn) n. The depth to which frost penetrates the earth.

frost-work (frōst'wûrk', frōst'-) n. 1. The intricate patterns produced by frost, as on a windowpane. 2. Artificially made ornamental patterns similar to those produced by frost, applied to the surface of metal or glass.

frost-y (frō'stē, frōs'tē) adj. frost-i-er, frost-i-est. 1. Producing or characterized by frost; freezing. See Synonyms at cold. 2. Covered with or as if with frost. 3. Silvery white; hoary. 4. Cold in manner: a frosty look; a frosty farewell. —frost'i-ly adv. —frost'i-ness n.

froth (frôth, fröth) n. 1. A mass of bubbles in or on a liquid; foam. 2. Salivary foam released as a result of disease or exhaustion. 3. Something unsubstantial or trivial. 4. A fit of resentment or vexation: was in a froth over the long delay. — v. frothed, froth-ing, froths (also frôth, fröth). — v. tr. 1. To cover with foam. 2. To cause to foam. — v. intr. To exude or expel foam. [Middle English, from Old Norse frodha.]

froth-y (frô'thē, fröth'ē) adj. froth-i-er, froth-i-est. 1. Made of, covered with, or resembling froth; foamy. 2. Playfully frivolous in character or content: a frothy French farce. — froth'i-ly adv. — froth'i-ness n.

frot-tage (frô'tăzh') n. 1. The act of rubbing against the body of another person, as in a crowd, to attain sexual gratification. 2. a. A method of making a design by placing a piece of paper on top of an object and then rubbing over it, as with a pencil or charcoal. b. A design so made. [French, from frotter, to rub, from Old French froter.]

Froude (frôod), James Anthony. 1818-1894. British historian and biographer noted for his study of 16th-century England and his works on Thomas Carlyle.

frou-frou also frou-frou (frôo'frôo) n. 1. Fussy or showy dress or ornamentation. 2. A rustling sound, as of silk. [French, of imitative origin.]

frow (frô) n. Variant of froe.

fro-ward (frô'wərd, -ərd) adj. Stubbornly contrary and disobedient; obstinate. — fro'ward-ly adv. — fro'ward-ness n.

Fro-ward (frô'wərd, -ərd), Cape. The southernmost point of mainland South America, in southern Chile on the Strait of Magellan.

frown (froun) v. frowned, frown-ing, frowns. — v. intr. 1. To wrinkle the brow, as in thought or displeasure. 2. To regard something with disapproval or distaste: frowned on the use of so much salt in the food. — v. tr. To express (disapproval, for example) by wrinkling the brow. — n. A wrinkling of the brow in thought or displeasure; a scowl. [Middle English frounen, from Old French froigner, to turn up one's nose, from frogne, grimace, of Celtic origin.] — frown'er n. — frown'ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: frown, glower, lower, scowl. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to contract the brows in displeasure”: frowns when he is annoyed; glowered sullenly at being interrupted; lowering at the rambunctious child; scowled at me when I came home late.

WORD HISTORY: Caesar's division of Gaul into three parts used to be known by every child who learned Latin, but perhaps even classically trained schoolchildren did not always realize that in spite of the conquest of Gaul by the Romans, some Gaulish elements lived on, such as our word frown. This word is descended from Gaulish, a Celtic language that is related to Welsh and Irish. Frown, first recorded in Middle English in a work composed around 1395, came from Old French froigner, which meant “to turn up one’s nose.” The Old French word was derived from frogne, “grimace,” which in turn came from the hypothetical Gaulish word frogna*, “nose,” which is related to Welsh ffroen, “nose,” and Old Irish srōn, “nose.”

frows·ty (frou/'stē) adj. frows·ti·er, frows·ti·est. Chiefly British. Having a stale smell; musty. [Origin unknown.]

frow·zy also frow·sy (frou/'zē) adj. frow·zi·er also frow·si·er, frow·zi·est also frow·si·est. 1. Unkempt; slovenly: frowzy clothes; a frowzy professor.

2. Having an unpleasant smell; musty: a frowzy pantry. [Origin unknown.]

—frow·zi·ness n.

froze (frōz) v. Past tense of freeze.

fro·zen (frō/'zən) v. Past participle of freeze. — adj. 1. Made into, covered with, or surrounded by ice. 2. Very cold: the frozen North. 3. Preserved by freezing: frozen meat. 4. Rendered immobile: frozen in their tracks with fear.

5. Expressive of cold unfriendliness or disdain: a frozen look on their faces.

6. a. Kept at a fixed level: frozen rents. b. Impossible to withdraw, sell, or liquidate: frozen assets.

frozen food (frō/'zən fōōd) n. Food that has undergone freezing and is intended to remain frozen until used.

FRS abbr. 1. Federal Reserve System. 2. Fellow of the Royal Society.

Frs. abbr. Frisian.

frt. abbr. Freight.

fruc·tif·er·ous (frūk·tĭf'ər·əs, frōōk-) adj. Bearing fruit. [Latin frūctifer (frūctus, fruit; see fruit + -fer, -fer) + -OUS.]

fruc·ti·fi·ca·tion (frūk'tə·fĭ·kā'shən, frōōk'-) n. 1. The producing of fruit.

2. A seed-bearing or spore-bearing structure.

fruc·ti·fy (frūk'tə·fĭ', frōōk'-) v. fruc·ti·fied, fruc·ti·fy·ing, fruc·ti·fies. — v. tr. To make fruitful or productive. — v. intr. To bear fruit. [Middle English fructifien, to bear fruit, from Old French fructifier, from Latin frūctificāre: frūctus, fruit; see FRUIT + -ficāre, -fy.]

fruc·tose (frūk'tōs', frōōk'-) n. A very sweet sugar, C₆H₁₂O₆, occurring in many fruits and honey and used as a preservative for foodstuffs and as an intravenous nutrient. Also called fruit sugar, levulose. [Latin frūctus, fruit; see FRUIT + *-OSE*².]

fruc·tu·ous (frūk'chōō·əs, frōōk'-) adj. Fruitful; productive. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin frūctuōsus, from frūctus, fruit. See FRUIT.]

fru·gal (frōō'gəl) adj. 1. Practicing or marked by economy, as in the expenditure of money or the use of material resources. See Synonyms at sparing.

2. Costing little; inexpensive: a frugal lunch. [Latin frūgālis, virtuous, thrifty, from frūx, frūg-, fruit, virtue.] —fru-gal/i-ty (frōō-gāl'ī-tē), fru'gal-ness n.

—fru'gal-ly adv.

fru-gi-vore (frōō'jə-vôr', -vôr') n. An animal, such as a chimpanzee or fruit bat, that feeds primarily on fruit. [From FRUGIVOROUS.]

fru-giv-o-rous (frōō-jiv'ər-əs) adj. Feeding on fruit; fruit-eating. [Latin frūx, frūg-, fruit + -VOROUS.]

fruit (frōōt) n. pl. fruit or fruits. 1. a. The ripened ovary or ovaries of a seed-bearing plant, together with accessory parts, containing the seeds and occurring in a wide variety of forms. b. An edible, usually sweet and fleshy form of such a structure. c. A part or an amount of such a plant product, served as food: fruit for dessert. 2. The fertile, often spore-bearing structure of a plant that does not bear seeds. 3. A plant crop or product: the fruits of the earth. 4. Result; outcome: the fruit of their labor. 5. Offspring; progeny. 6. A fruity aroma or flavor in a wine. 7. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a gay or homosexual man. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: fruit trees; fruit growers. — v. intr. tr. fruit-ed, fruit-ing, fruits. To produce or cause to produce fruit. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin fructus, enjoyment, fruit, from past participle of fruī, to enjoy.]

fruit-age (frōō'tij) n. 1. a. The process, time, or condition of bearing fruit. b. A yield of fruit. 2. A result or an effect.

fruit-ar-i-an (frōō-târ'ē-ən) n. One whose diet includes fruits, seeds, and nuts but no vegetables, grains, or animal products. [Blend of FRUIT, and (VEGET)ARIAN.]

fruit bat (frōōt băt) n. Any of various fruit-eating bats of the suborder Megachiroptera, inhabiting chiefly tropical and subtropical regions of Africa, Asia, and Australia.

fruit-cake (frōōt'kāk') n. 1. A heavy, spiced cake containing nuts and candied or dried fruits. 2. Slang. A crazy or an eccentric person: "a fruitcake under the delusion that he was Saint Nicholas" (John Strahinich).

fruit cocktail (frōōt kők'täl') n. A mixture of fresh or preserved fruits cut into pieces and served as an appetizer or dessert. Also called fruit cup fruit fly (frōōt flī) n. 1. Any of various small flies of the family Drosophilidae, having larvae that feed on ripening or fermenting fruits and vegetables, especially the common species Drosophila melanogaster, often used in genetic research. Also called pomace fly, vinegar fly. 2. Any of various flies of the family Tephritidae, having larvae that hatch in and damage plant tissue.

fruit-ful (frōōt'fəl) adj. 1. a. Producing fruit. b. Conducive to productivity; causing to bear in abundance: fruitful soil. 2. Producing something in abundance; prolific: a fruitful author of fiction. 3. Producing results; profitable. See Synonyms at fertile. —fruit'ful-ly adv. —fruit'ful-ness n.

fruit-ing body (frōō'tīng böd'ē) n. A specialized spore-producing structure, especially of a fungus.

fru-i-tion (frōō-īsh'ən) n. 1. Realization of something desired or worked for; accomplishment: labor finally coming to fruition. 2. Enjoyment derived from use or possession. 3. The condition of bearing fruit. [Middle English frucioun, from Old French frucion, from Late Latin fruitiō, fruitiōn-, enjoyment, from Latin fruitus, past participle of frui, to enjoy.]

fruit-less (frōōt'līs) adj. 1. Producing no fruit. 2. Unproductive of success: a fruitless search. See Synonyms at futile. —fruit/less-ly adv. —fruit/less-ness n.

fruit-let (frōōt'līt) n. 1. A small fruit. 2. Botany. A single member of a multiple fruit.

fruit sugar (frōōt shōōg'ər) n. See fructose.

fruit-wood (frōōt'woōd') n. The wood of any of several fruit-bearing trees, such as the apple, cherry, or pear, used especially in cabinetmaking.

fruit-y (frōō'tē) adj. fruit-i-er, fruit-i-est. 1. Of, containing, or relating to fruit. 2. Tasting or smelling richly of or as if of fruit: "My nose filled with the smells of leather, polish, wax—the fat, fruity smell of rich car" (Anthony Hyde). 3. Excessively sentimental or sweet. 4. Slang. Crazy; eccentric. 5. Offensive Slang. Gay or homosexual. —fruit/i-ness n.

fru-men-ta-ceous (frōō'mən-tā'shəs, -mĕn-) adj. Resembling or consisting of grain, especially wheat. [From Late Latin frūmentāceus, from Latin frūmentum, grain.]

fru-men-ty (frōō'mən-tē) also fur-mi-ty (fûr'mī-tē) n. pl. fru-men-ties. Hulled wheat boiled in milk and flavored with sugar and spices. [Middle English frumente, from Old French froumentee, from froument, grain, from Latin frūmentum.]

frump (frŭmp) n. 1. A girl or woman regarded as dull, plain, or unfashionable. 2. A person regarded as colorless and primly sedate. [Possibly short for Middle English frumple, wrinkle, from Middle Dutch verrompelen, to wrinkle : ver-, completely; see per¹ in Appendix + rompelen, to wrinkle.] —frump/i-ly adv. —frump/i-ness n. —frump/y adj.

frump-ish (frŭm'pīsh) adj. 1. Dull or plain. 2. Prim and sedate. —frump/ish-ly adv. —frump/ish-ness n.

Frun-ze (frōōn'zə) See Bishkek.

frus-ta (frŭs'tə) n. Mathematics. A plural of frustum.

frus-trate (frŭs'trāt') v. tr. frus-trat-ed, frus-trat-ing, frus-trates. 1. a. To prevent from accomplishing a purpose or fulfilling a desire; thwart: A persistent wind frustrated my attempt to rake the lawn. b. To cause feelings of discouragement or bafflement in. 2. To make ineffectual or invalid; nullify. [Middle English frustraten, from Latin frūstrārī, frūstrāt-, from frūstrā, in vain.]

—frus'trat'er n. —frus'trat'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: frustrate, thwart, foil, balk. These verbs mean to prevent the attainment or fulfillment of a goal or purpose. To frustrate is to cause to be completely unavailing: A poor memory frustrated her efforts to become an actress. Thwart suggests defeat by direct opposition: “He was thwarted at every step by political obstacles” (William E.H. Lecky). To foil is to defeat by or as if by outwitting, confounding, or disconcerting: The conspirators will be foiled in their intrigue. Balk implies the placing of barriers or hindrances in another’s way: “Time after time our hopes are balked” (Herbert Spencer).

frus·tra·tion (frū-strā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of frustrating or an instance of being frustrated. b. The state of being frustrated. 2. Something that serves to frustrate.

frus·tule (frūs'chōol, -tyōol) n. The hard, siliceous bivalve shell of a diatom. [French, from Latin frustulum, diminutive of frustum, piece broken off.]

frus·tum (frūs'təm) n. pl. frus·tums or frus·ta (-tə). Mathematics. The part of a solid, such as a cone or pyramid, between two parallel planes cutting the solid, especially the section between the base and a plane parallel to the base. [Latin, piece broken off.]

fru·tes·cent (frōō-tēs'ənt) adj. Relating to, resembling, or assuming the form of a shrub; shrubby. [Latin frutex, shrub, bush + -ESCENT.] —fru·tes'cence n.

fru·ti·cose (frōō'tī-kōs') adj. Resembling a shrub, especially in having woody stems and branches. [Latin fruticōsus, from frutex, frutic-, shrub, bush.]

fry¹ (frī) v. fried, fry·ing, fries (frīz). — v. tr. 1. To cook over direct heat in hot oil or fat. 2. Slang. To destroy (electronic circuitry) with excessive heat or current: “a power surge to the computer that fried a number of sensitive electronic components” (Erik Sandberg-Diment). — v. intr. 1. To be cooked in a pan over direct heat in hot oil or fat. 2. Slang. To undergo execution in an electric chair. — n. pl. fries (frīz). 1. A French fry. Often used in the plural. 2. A dish of a fried food. 3. A social gathering at which food is fried and eaten: a fish fry. [Middle English frien, from Old French frire, from Latin frīgere.]

fry² (frī) pl.n. 1. a. Small fish, especially young, recently hatched fish. b. The young of certain other animals. 2. Individuals, especially young or insignificant persons: “These pampered public school boys... had managed to evade the long prison sentences that lesser fry were serving” (Noel Annan). [Middle English fri, probably from Anglo-Norman frie, from frier, to rub, from Latin fricāre.]

Fry (frī), Christopher. Born 1907. British playwright who revitalized modern verse drama with his comic and religious works, such as A Phoenix Too Frequent (1946) and Curtmantle (1962).

Fry (frī), Elizabeth Gurney. 1780-1845. British philanthropist who promoted prison reforms, particularly for women inmates.

Fry (frī), Roger Eliot. 1866-1934. British art critic and painter who advocated the artistic principles of the postimpressionists.

fry-er also fri-er (frī'ər) n. 1. One that fries, as a deep utensil usually equipped with a basket and used for frying foods. 2. A small young chicken suitable for frying.

frying pan (frī'ɪŋ păn) n. A shallow, long-handled pan used for frying food. Regional. Also called fry pan, skillet Regional., spider.

REGIONAL NOTE: The terms frying pan and skillet are now virtually interchangeable, but there was a time when they were so regional as to be distinct dialect markers. Frying pan and the shortened version fry pan were once New England terms; frying pan is now in general use. Skillet seems to have been confined to the Midland section of the country, including the Upper South. Its use is still concentrated there, but it is no longer used in that area alone, probably because of the national marketing of skillet dinner mixes. The term spider, originally denoting a type of frying pan that had long legs to hold it up over the coals, spread from New England westward to the Upper Northern states and down the coast to the South Atlantic states. It is still well known in both these regions, although it is now considered old-fashioned.

fry pan (frī păn) n. Chiefly New England. See frying pan. See Regional note at frying pan.

FS abbr. 1. Foreign Service. 2. Forest Service.

FSH abbr. Follicle-stimulating hormone.

FSLIC abbr. Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

f-stop (ĕf'stöp') n. 1. A camera lens aperture setting that corresponds to an f-number. 2. See f-number. [F(OCAL LENGTH) + STOP.]

f-sys-tem (ĕf'sis'təm) n. A method of indicating the relative aperture of a camera lens based on the f-number.

ft. abbr. 1. Or ft. Foot. 2. Also Ft. Fort. 3. Fortification.

FTA abbr. Future Teachers of America.

FTC abbr. Federal Trade Commission.

ft-c abbr. Foot-candle.

fth. abbr. Fathom.

ft-lb abbr. Foot-pound.

Fu-ad I (fō-äd'), 1868-1936. King of Egypt (1922-1936) who ruled during the political turmoil following the termination of the British protectorate over Egypt (1922).

fub-sy (füb'zē) adj. fub-si-er, fub-si-est. Chiefly British. Somewhat fat and squat. [From obsolete fubs, chubby person.]

Fu-chou (fōō'jō', -chou') See Fuzhou.

Fuchs (fyōōks), Klaus Emil Julius. 1911-1988. German-born physicist who worked on the development of the atomic bomb in Britain and the United States and was imprisoned (1950-1959) for passing scientific secrets to the Soviet Union.

fuch-sia (fyōō'shə) n. 1. Any of various tropical shrubs or trees of the genus Fuchsia, widely cultivated for their showy, drooping purplish, reddish, or white flowers. 2. Color. A strong, vivid purplish red. [New Latin Fuchsia, genus name, after Leonhard Fuchs (1501-1566), German botanist.] —fuch'sia adj.

fuch-sin (fyōōk'sīn) also fuch-sine (-sīn, -sēn') n. A dark green synthetic dye-stuff, C₂₀H₁₉N₃HCl, used to make a purple-red dye employed in coloring textiles and leather and as a bacterial stain. Also called magenta [FUCHS(IA) + -IN.]

Fu-chu (fōō'chōō') A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, a mainly residential suburb of Tokyo. Population, 201,972.

fuck (fük) Obscene. v. fucked, fuck-ing, fucks. — v. tr. 1. To have sexual intercourse with. 2. To victimize. 3. Used in the imperative as a signal of angry dismissal. — v. intr. 1. To engage in sexual intercourse. 2. To act wastefully or foolishly. — n. 1. An act of sexual intercourse. 2. A partner in sexual intercourse. 3. A despised person. — interj. Used to express extreme displeasure. —phrasal verbs. fuck off. 1. Used in the imperative as a signal of angry dismissal. 2. To spend time idly. 3. To masturbate. fuck over. To treat unfairly; take advantage of. fuck up. 5. To bungle. 6. To act carelessly, foolishly, or incorrectly. [Middle English, attested in pseudo-Latin fuccant, (they) fuck, deciphered from gxddbov.]

WORD HISTORY: The obscenity fuck is a very old word, first recorded in English in the 15th century. Age has not dimmed its shock value, even though it is seen in print much more often now than in the past. Its first known occurrence, in a poem entitled “Flen flyys” written sometime before 1500, is in code, illustrating the unacceptability of the word even then. The poem, composed in a mixture of Latin and English, satirizes the Carmelite friars of Cambridge, England, with the title taken from the first words of the poem, “Flen, flyys, and freris,” that is, “fleas, flies, and friars.” The line that contains fuck reads “Non sunt in coeli, quia gxddbov xxkxzt pg ifmk.” The Latin words “Non sunt in coeli, quia” mean “they [the friars] are not in heaven, since.” The code “gxddbov xxkxzt pg ifmk” is easily broken by simply writing the preceding letter in the alphabet. As we decode, we must watch for differences in the alphabet and in spelling between then and now. For g write f; for x, v (used for u and v); d, c; b, a; o, n; v, t; xx, vv (which equals w); k, i; x, v; z, y; t, s; p, o; g, f; i, h; f, e; m, l; and for k, i. This yields “fvccant [a fake Latin form] vvivys of heli.” The whole thus reads in translation: “They are not in heaven because they fuck wives of Ely [a town near Cambridge].”

fuck-er (fŭk'ər) n. Obscene. 1. A despised person. 2. One that engages in sexual intercourse.

fuck-ing (fŭk'ɪŋ) Obscene. adv. & adj. Used as an intensive.

fuck-up (fŭk'ʌp') n. Obscene. 1. One who acts carelessly or foolishly; a bungler. 2. A blunder; a bungle.

fu-coid (fyōō'koid') adj. Of or belonging to the order Fucales, which includes brown algae such as gulfweed and rockweed. — n. 1. A member of the order Fucales. 2. A fossilized cast or impression of such an organism. [FUC(US) + -OID.]

fu-cose (fyōō'kōs') n. An aldose, C₆H₁₂O₅, present in certain brown algae and in the polysaccharides associated with some blood groups. [FUC(US) + -OSE².]

fu-co-xan-thin (fyōō'kō-zăn'thɪn) n. A brown carotenoid pigment, C₄₀H₆₀O₆, found in brown algae. [FUC(US) + XANTH(O)- + -IN.]

fu-cus (fyōō'kəs) n. Any of various brown algae of the genus Fucus, which includes many of the rockweeds. [Latin fūcus, seaweed, orchil, from Greek phukos.]

fud-dle (fŭd'l) v. fud-dled, fud-dling, fud-dles. — v. tr. 1. To put into a state of confusion; befuddle. See Synonyms at confuse. 2. To make drunk; intoxicate. — v. intr. To drink; tipple. — n. A state of confusion or intoxication. [Origin unknown.]

fud-dy-dud-dy (fŭd'ē-dŭd'ē) n. pl. fud-dy-dud-dies. An old-fashioned, fussy person. [Origin unknown.]

fudge (fŭj) n. 1. A soft, rich candy made of sugar, milk, butter, and flavoring. 2. Nonsense; humbug. — v. fudged, fudg-ing, fudg-es. — v. tr. 1. To fake or falsify: fudge casualty figures. 2. To evade (an issue, for example); dodge. — v. intr. 1. To act in an indecisive manner: always fudged on the important questions. 2. a. To go beyond the proper limits of something: fudged on the building code requirements. b. To act dishonestly; cheat. [Possibly alteration of fadge, to fit.]

fueh-rer (fyōōr'ər) n. Variant of führer.

fu-el (fyōō'əl) n. 1. Something consumed to produce energy, especially: a. A material such as wood, coal, gas, or oil burned to produce heat or power. b. Fissionable material used in a nuclear reactor. c. Nutritive material metabolized by a living organism; food. 2. Something that maintains or stimulates an activity or emotion: “Money is the fuel of a volunteer organization” (Natalie de Combray). — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a fuel pump; fuel tanks. — v. fu-eled also fu-elled, fu-el-ing also fu-el-ling, fu-els also fu-els. — v. tr. 1. To provide with fuel. 2. To support or stimulate the activity or existence of: rhetoric that fueled the dissenters. — v. intr. To take in fuel.

[Middle English feuel, from Old French fouaille, feuaile, from Vulgar Latin focālia*, neuter pl. of ·focālis, of the hearth or fireplace, from Latin focus, hearth, fireplace.] —fu'el·er n.

fuel cell (fyōō'əl səl) n. An electrochemical cell in which the energy of a reaction between a fuel, such as liquid hydrogen, and an oxidant, such as liquid oxygen, is converted directly and continuously into electrical energy.

fu·el·ef·fi·cient (fyōō'əl-ī-fish'ənt) adj. Operable using comparatively little fuel: fuel-efficient cars. —fu'el·ef·fi'cien·cy n.

fuel injection (fyōō'əl ĩn-jĕk'shən) n. Any of several methods or mechanical systems by which a fuel is reduced to a fine spray and injected directly into the cylinders of an internal-combustion engine.

fuel oil (fyōō'əl oil) n. A liquid or liquefiable petroleum product that is used to generate heat or power.

fuel rod (fyōō'əl rōd) n. A protective metal tube containing pellets of fuel for a nuclear reactor.

Fu·en·tes (fōō-ĕn'tās', fwĕn'tĕs), Carlos. Born 1928. Mexican writer known for his metaphysical short stories and novels about his homeland, notably The Death of Artemio Cruz (1962).

Fuer·tes (fyōōr'tĕz, fyōō'ər-), Louis Agassiz. 1874-1927. American naturalist noted for his illustrations of American avifauna, published in Song Birds and Water Fowl (1897) and other books.

Fuer·te·ven·tu·ra (fōō-ĕr'tĕ-vĕn-tōōr'ə, fwĕr'tĕ-vĕn-tōō'rä) An island in the Canary Islands off the northwest coast of Africa. It has many extinct volcanoes.

fug (fŭg) n. A heavy, stale atmosphere, especially the musty air of an overcrowded or poorly ventilated room: "In spite of the open windows the stench had become a reeking fug" (Colleen McCullough). [Perhaps alteration of fogo, stench.]

fu·ga·cious (fyōō-gā'shəs) adj. 1. Passing away quickly; evanescent. 2. Botany. Withering or dropping off early. [From Latin fugāx, fugāc-, from fugere, to flee.] —fu·ga'cious·ly adv. —fu·ga'cious·ness, fu·gac'i·ty (-gās'ī-tĕ) n.

-fuge suff. One that expels or drives away: vermifuge. [French, from New Latin -fugus, driving away, fleeing, from Latin, fleeing (from fugere, to flee), and from Latin fugāre, to drive away (from fuga, flight).]

Fug·ger (fōōg'ər) Family of German financiers who exerted great economic and political influence in the 15th and 16th centuries. Founded by Johannes (1348-1409), the family business was greatly expanded by his son Jakob (died 1469).

fu·gi·tive (fyōō'jī-tĭv) adj. 1. Running away or fleeing, as from the law.

2. a. Lasting only a short time; fleeting: fugitive hours. See Synonyms at transient. b. Difficult to comprehend or retain; elusive: fugitive solutions to the problem. c. Given to change or disappearance; perishable: fugitive beauty.

3. Tending to wander; vagabond. 4. Having to do with topics of temporary interest; ephemeral. — n. 1. One who flees; a refugee. 2. Something fleeting or ephemeral. [Middle English fugitif, from Old French, from Latin fugitivus, from fugitus, past participle of fugere, to flee.] —fu'gi-tive-ly adv. —fu'gi-tive-ness n.

fu-gle (fyōō'gəl) v. intr. fu-gled, fu-gling, fu-gles. Archaic. 1. To act as a fogleman. 2. To make signals. [Back-formation from FUGLEMAN.]

fu-gle-man (fyōō'gəl-mən) n. 1. A leader, especially a political leader.

2. Archaic. A soldier who once served as a guide and model for his company. [Alteration of German Flügelmann, file leader : Flügel, wing (from Middle High German vlügel); see pleu- in Appendix + Mann, man (from Middle High German man, from Old High German); see man-¹ in Appendix.]

fu-gu (fōō'gōō) n. Any of various poisonous fish related to the puffers that are used as food, especially in Japan, after the poisonous skin and organs have been removed. [Japanese.]

fugue (fyōōg) n. 1. Music. A polyphonic composition in which themes or a theme stated successively by a number of voices in imitation are developed contrapuntally. 2. Psychiatry. A pathological amnesiac condition during which one is apparently conscious of one's actions but has no recollection of them after returning to a normal state. This condition, usually resulting from severe mental stress, may persist for as long as several months. [Italian fuga (influenced by French fugue, from Italian fuga), from Latin, flight.] —fu'gal (fyōō'gəl) adj. —fu'gal-ly adv.

füh-rer also fueh-rer (fyōōr'ər) n. A leader, especially one exercising the powers of a tyrant. [German, from Middle High German vüerer, from vüeren, to lead, from Old High German fuoren. See per-² in Appendix.]

Fu-jai-rah (fə-jī'rə, fōō-jī'rä) A sheikdom of the United Arab Emirates on the Gulf of Oman. It joined the federation in 1971. Population, 32,191.

Fu-ji (fōō'jē) A city of central Honshu, Japan, at the foot of Mount Fuji. It is an important communications and industrial center. Population, 214,451.

Fuji, Mount. Also Fu-ji-ya-ma (fōō'jē-yä'mə, -mä) or Fu-ji-no-ya-ma (-nō-) or Fu-ji-san (-sän'). The highest peak, 3,778.6 m (12,389 ft), in Japan, in central Honshu west-southwest of Tokyo. An almost perfectly symmetrical snow-capped cone, it is a sacred mountain and dormant volcano. Its last major eruption was in 1707.

Fu-jian¹ (fōō'jyän', fū'-) also Fu-kien (kyän') A province of southeast China on the East China Sea and the Formosa Strait. Agriculture and fishing are important to its economy. Fuzhou is the capital. Population, 27,130,000.

Fu-jian² (fōō'jyän', fū'-) also Fu-kien (-kyän') n. A dialect of Chinese spoken in Fujian province, eastern Guangdong province, and Taiwan.

Fu-ji-no-ya-ma (fōō'jē-nō-yä'mə, -mä) See Mount Fuji.

Fu-ji-san (fōō'jē-sän') See Mount Fuji.

Fu·ji·sa·wa (fōō'jē-sä'wə, -wä) A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, an industrial and residential suburb of Tokyo. Population, 328,387.

Fu·ji·ya·ma (fōō'jē-yä'mə, -mä) See Mount Fuji.

Fu·kien (fōō'kyën') See Fujian¹.

Fu·ku·i (fōō-kōō'ē) A city of central Honshu, Japan, north-northwest of Nagoyo. A major textile center since the tenth century, it was rebuilt after a disastrous earthquake in June 1948. Population, 250,261.

Fu·ku·i (fōō-kōō'ē), Kenichi. Born 1918. Japanese chemist. He shared a 1981 Nobel Prize for applying quantum-mechanics theories to the analysis of chemical reactions.

Fu·ku·o·ka (fōō'kōō-ō'kə, -kä) A city of northwest Kyushu, Japan, on an inlet of the Sea of Japan. It is an industrial and educational center. Population, 1,160,402.

Fu·ku·shi·ma (fōō'kə-shē'mə, -kōō-shē'mä) A city of north-central Honshu, Japan, north-northeast of Tokyo. It is a trade and transportation center. Population, 270,752.

Fu·ku·ya·ma (fōō'kə-yä'mə, -kōō-yä'mä) A city of southwest Honshu, Japan, on the Inland Sea east of Kure. It is a commercial, industrial, and communications center. Population, 360,264.

-ful suffix. 1. Full of: playful. a. Characterized by; resembling: masterful.

b. Tending, given, or able to: useful. 2. A quantity that fills: armful. [Middle English, from Old English, from full, full. See FULL¹.]

USAGE NOTE: The plurals of nouns ending in -ful are usually formed by adding the letter s to the end of the suffix: cupfuls; glassfuls; spoonfuls.

Fu·la·ni (fōō'lä'nē, fōō-lä'-) also Fu·la (fōō'lə) n. pl. Fulani or Fu·la·nis also Fula or Fu·las. 1. A member of a pastoral, largely Muslim people inhabiting parts of West Africa from northern Nigeria to Mali and the Atlantic coast. 2. The West Atlantic language of this people.

Ful·bright (fōōl'brīt'), J(ames) William. 1905-1995. American politician who as U.S. senator from Arkansas (1945-1975) proposed the Fulbright Act (1946), which established an exchange program for American and foreign educators and students.

ful·crum (fōōl'krəm, fül'-) n. pl. ful·crums or ful·cra (-krə). 1. The point or support on which a lever pivots. 2. Zoology. An anatomical structure that acts as a hinge or a point of support. 3. An agent through which vital powers are exercised. [Latin, bedpost, from fulcīre, to support.]

Ful·da (fōōl'də) A city of central Germany south-southeast of Kassel on the Fulda River, about 217 km (135 mi) long. The city grew around a Benedictine abbey founded in 744. Population, 55,441.

ful·fill also ful·fil (fōōl-fīl') v. tr. ful-filled, ful-fill-ing, ful-fills also ful-fils.

1. To bring into actuality; effect: fulfilled their promises. 2. To carry out (an order, for example). 3. To measure up to; satisfy. See Synonyms at perform. See Synonyms at satisfy. 4. To bring to an end; complete. [Middle English fulfillen, from Old English fullfyllan : full, full; see FULL¹ + fyllan, to fill; see FILL.]

—ful-fill'er n. —ful-fill'ment, ful-fil'ment n.

ful·gent (fōōl'jənt, fül'-) adj. Shining brilliantly; radiant: “tower searchlights... as fulgent as half a billion candles” (Nicholas Proffitt). [Middle English, from Latin fulgēns, fulgent- present participle of fulgēre, to flash, shine. See bhel⁻¹ in Appendix.] —ful'gent·ly adv.

ful·gu·rant (fōōl'gyər-ənt, -gər-, fül'-) adj. Flashing like lightning; dazzlingly bright. [Latin fulgurāns, fulgurant- present participle of fulgurāre, to lighten. See FULGURATE.]

ful·gu·rate (fōōl'gyə-rāt', -gə-, fül'-) v. ful·gu·rat·ed, ful·gu·rat·ing, ful·gu·rates. — v. intr. To emit flashes of lightning. — v. tr. 1. To emit (light) in flashes. 2. Medicine. To destroy (abnormal tissue, for example) by electric current. [Latin fulgurāre, fulgurāt-, from fulgur, lightning. See bhel⁻¹ in Appendix.] —ful'gu·ra'tion n.

ful·gu·rite (fōōl'gyə-rīt', -gə-, fül'-) n. A slender, usually tubular body of glassy rock produced by lightning striking and then fusing dry sandy soil. [Latin fulgur, lightning; see FULGURATE + -ITE¹.]

ful·gu·rous (fōōl'gyər-əs, -gər-, fül'-) adj. 1. Emitting flashes of lightning. 2. Emitting in flashes similar to lightning. [Latin fulgur, lightning; see FULGURATE + -OUS.]

fu·lig·i·nous (fyōō-līj'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Sooty. 2. Colored by or as if by soot. [Late Latin fūliginōsus, from Latin fūlīgō, fūlīgin-, soot.] —fu·lig'i·nous·ly adv.

full¹ (fōōl) adj. full·er, full·est. 1. Containing all that is normal or possible: a full pail. 2. Complete in every particular: a full account. 3. Baseball. a. Amounting to three balls and two strikes. Used of a count. b. Having a base runner at first, second, and third base: The bases were full when the slugger stepped up to bat. 4. a. Of maximum or highest degree: at full speed. b. Being at the peak of development or maturity: in full bloom. 5. Having a great deal or many: a book full of errors. 6. Totally qualified, accepted, or empowered: a full member of the club. 7. a. Rounded in shape; plump: a full figure. b. Having or made with a generous amount of fabric: full draperies. 8. a. Having an appetite completely satisfied, especially for food or drink: was full after the Thanksgiving dinner. b. Providing an abundance, especially of food. 9. Having depth and body; rich: a full aroma; full tones. 10. Completely absorbed or preoccupied: “He was already pretty full of himself” (Ron Rosenbaum). 11. Possessing both parents in common: full brothers; full sisters. — adv. 1. To a complete extent; entirely: knowing full well. 2. Exactly; directly: full in the path of the moon. —

v. fulled, full-ing, fulls. — v. tr. To make (a garment) full, as by pleating or gathering. — v. intr. To become full. Used of the moon. — n. 1. The maximum or complete size or amount: repaid in full. 2. The highest degree or state: living life to the full. [Middle English ful, from Old English full. See pelə-¹ in Appendix.] — full/ness, ful/ness n.

full² (fōol) v. tr. fulled, full-ing, fulls. To increase the weight and bulk of (cloth) by shrinking and beating or pressing. [Middle English fullen, from Old French fouler, from Vulgar Latin fullāre*, from Latin fullō, fuller. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

full-back (fōol'bak') n. Abbr. fb, f.b. 1. Football. a. An offensive backfield player whose position is behind the quarterback and halfbacks and who primarily performs offensive blocking and line plunges. b. The position of this player. 2. Sports. a. A primarily defensive backfield player in field hockey, soccer, or rugby whose position is near the defensive goal or goal line. b. The position of this player.

full blood (fōol blūd) n. 1. Relationship established through having the same set of parents. 2. A person or an animal of unmixed race or breed.

full-blood-ed (fōol'blūd'ɪd) adj. 1. a. Of unmixed ancestry; purebred. b. Related by way of having the same parents. 2. a. Not pale or anemic; florid or ruddy. b. Vigorous and vital. 3. Complete in all respects. — full/-blood-'ed-ness n.

full-blown (fōol'blōn') adj. 1. Having blossomed or opened completely: full-blown roses. 2. Fully developed or matured. 3. Having or displaying all the characteristics necessary for completeness: a full-blown financial crisis.

full-bodied (fōol'bōd'ēd) adj. 1. Having richness and intensity of flavor or aroma: a full-bodied wine. 2. Rich and intense: a full-bodied performance of the aria.

full-bore (fūl'bōr', -bōr') adj. Complete; thoroughgoing: "a full-bore investigation into the damaging leak" (Tom Morganthau).

full circle (fōol sūr'kəl) adv. Back to one's starting point: We've come full circle from wealth to poverty to wealth again.

full-court press (fōol'kōrt' prēs, -kōrt') n. 1. Basketball. An aggressive defensive strategy in which one or two players harass the ball handler in the backcourt while the rest of the team maintains a close man-to-man or zone defense. 2. A strong, diversified effort: "The Administration undertook a full-court press to secure congressional approval" (Abraham F. Lowenthal).

full dress (fōol drēs) n. Attire appropriate for formal or ceremonial events.

full-dress (fōol'drēs') adj. 1. Of, appropriate for, or requiring full dress; formal: a full-dress uniform; a full-dress ceremony. 2. Complete in every respect: a full-dress debate. 3. Characterized by exhaustive thoroughness: a full-dress investigation of the scandal.

full-er¹ (fōōl'ər) n. One that fulls cloth.

full-er² (fōōl'ər) n. 1. A hammer used by a blacksmith for grooving or spreading iron. 2. A groove made by such a hammer. [Possibly from FULL¹, to pleat.]

Ful-ler (fōōl'ər), George. 1822-1884. American painter whose dreamlike works include The Romany Girl (1879).

Ful-ler (fōōl'ər), Melville Weston. 1833-1910. American jurist who served as the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1888-1910) and maintained that governmental powers must derive from a strict interpretation of the Constitution.

Ful-ler (fōōl'ər), R(ichard) Buckminster. 1895-1983. American architect and inventor who sought to solve practical problems with simple designs that require a minimum of materials and energy. The geodesic dome is his best-known invention.

Ful-ler (fōōl'ər), (Sarah) Margaret. 1810-1850. American writer and critic who edited the transcendentalist periodical Dial (1840-1842), was a pioneering literary critic for the New York Tribune (1844-1846), and wrote Woman in the Nineteenth Century (1845), a major feminist tract.

Ful-ler (fōōl'ər), Thomas. 1608-1661. English clergyman and writer of several important historical works, including The Church History of Britain (1655).

full-er-ene (fōōl'ə-rēn') n. Any of various ball-shaped molecules configured like geodesic domes that constitute the third form of carbon after graphite and diamond, including the extraordinarily stable fullerene C₆₀, the roundest molecule known. [After Richard Buckminster FULLER (from their resemblance to his geodesic domes) + -ENE.]

full-er's earth (fōōl'ərz ūrth) n. A highly adsorbent claylike substance consisting of hydrated aluminum silicates, used predominantly in fulling woolen cloth, in talcum powders, as a filter, and as a catalyst.

fuller's teasel (fōōl'ərz tē'zəl) n. A prickly Eurasian plant (Dipsacus fullonum) having bristly flower heads used by fullers to raise the nap on cloth.

Ful-ler-ton (fōōl'ər-tən) A city of southern California southeast of Los Angeles. Founded in 1887, it has varied industries. Population, 114,144.

full-fash-ioned (fōōl'fāsh'ənd) adj. Knitted in a shape that conforms closely to body lines.

full-fledged (fōōl'flēj'd') adj. 1. Having reached full development; mature. 2. Having full status or rank: a full-fledged lawyer. 3. Having fully developed adult plumage.

full gainer (fōōl gā'nər) n. Sports. A forward dive in which the diver executes a full back somersault before entering the water.

full house (fōōl hous) n. Games. A poker hand containing three of a kind and a pair, ranked above a flush and below four of a kind.

full-length (fōol'lēngkth', -lēngth') adj. 1. Showing or fitted to the entire length, especially of the human body: a full-length mirror; a full-length robe.

2. Of a normal or standard length: a full-length novel.

full moon (fōol mōon) n. 1. The moon when it is visible as a fully illuminated disk. 2. The period of the month when such a moon occurs.

full-mouthed (fōol'mouthd', -moutht') adj. 1. Having a complete set of teeth. Used of cattle and other livestock. 2. Uttered loudly or noisily.

full nelson (fōol nēl'sən) n. Sports. A wrestling hold in which both hands are thrust under the opponent's arms from behind and then pressed against the back of the opponent's neck.

full rhyme (fōol rīm) n. See perfect rhyme (n., sense 1).

full-scale (fōol'skāl') adj. 1. Of actual or full size; not reduced: a full-scale model. 2. Employing all resources; not limited or partial: a full-scale campaign against the use of nuclear power plants.

full-service (fōol'sûr'vīs) adj. Associated with or offering complete service: full-service gasoline pumps; full-service banks.

full-size (fōol'sīz') adj. 1. Of the standard or normal size: a full-size car.

2. a. Measuring 54 by 75 inches. Used of a bed: a full-size bed. b. Being of a size that will fit such a bed: full-size fitted sheets.

full stop (fōol stōp) n. 1. A period indicating the end of a sentence. 2. A complete halt, as one made by a motor vehicle.

full-time (fōol'tīm') adj. Employed for or involving a standard number of hours of working time: a full-time administrative assistant. —full-time' adv.

ful-ly (fōol'ē) adv. 1. Totally or completely: fully grown. 2. At least: Fully half of the volunteers did not appear.

ful-mar (fōol'mær, -mār') n. 1. A gull-like bird (Fulmarus glacialis) of Arctic regions, having smoky gray plumage. 2. Any of several similar or related birds. [Dialectal : probably from Old Norse fūll, foul; see pū- in Appendix + mār, mew; akin to Old English mæw.]

ful-mi-nant (fōol'mə-nənt, fül'-) adj. 1. Exploding or detonating.

2. Pathology. Occurring suddenly, rapidly, and with great severity or intensity.

[Latin fulmināns, fulminant- present participle of fulmināre, to strike with lightning. See FULMINATE.]

ful-mi-nate (fōol'mə-nāt', fül'-) v. ful-mi-nat-ed, ful-mi-nat-ing, ful-mi-nates. — v. intr. 1. To issue a thunderous verbal attack or denunciation: fulminated against political chicanery. 2. To explode or detonate. — v. tr.

1. To issue (a denunciation, for example) thunderously. 2. To cause to explode.

— n. An explosive salt of fulminic acid, especially fulminate of mercury. [Middle English fulminaten, from Latin fulmināre, fulmināt-, to strike with lightning, from fulmen, fulmin-, lightning that strikes. See bhel⁻¹ in Appendix.]

—ful'mi-na'tion n. —ful'mi-na'tor n. —ful'mi-na-to'ry (-nə-tôr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

fulminate of mercury (fōōl'mə-nāt' ūv mûr'kyə-rē) n. A gray crystalline powder, HgC₂N₂O₂, that when dry explodes under percussion or heat and is used in detonators and as a high explosive.

ful·mine (fōōl'mīn, fül'-) v. tr. intr. ful·mined, ful·min·ing, ful·mines.

Archaic. To fulminate. [From Latin fulmināre, to strike with lightning. See FULMINATE.]

ful·min·ic acid (fōōl-mīn'ik əs'īd, fül-) n. An unstable acid, HONC, that forms highly explosive salts. [Latin fulmen, fulmin-, lightning that strikes; see FULMINATE + -IC.]

ful·some (fōōl'səm) adj. 1. Offensively flattering or insincere. See Synonyms at unctuous. 2. Offensive to the taste or sensibilities. 3. Usage Problem. Copious or abundant. [Middle English fulsom, abundant, well-fed, arousing disgust : ful, full; see FULL¹ + -som, adj. suff.; see -SOME¹.] —ful'some·ly adv. —ful'some·ness n.

USAGE NOTE: The word fulsome is often used, particularly in the expression fulsome praise, to mean simply “abundant,” without any implication of excess or insincerity. This usage is etymologically justified but may invite misunderstandings in contexts in which a deprecatory interpretation might also be available. The sentence I offer you my most fulsome apologies may unintentionally raise an eyebrow, where the use of an adjective like full or abundant would leave no room for doubt as to the sincerity of the speaker's intentions.

Ful·ton (fōōl'tən) A city of central Missouri east-southeast of Columbia. On March 5, 1946, Winston Churchill delivered his Iron Curtain speech here at Westminster College (established 1851). Population, 11,046.

Ful·ton (fōōl'tən), Robert. 1765-1815. American engineer and inventor who developed the first useful submarine and torpedo (1800) and produced the first practical steamboat, the Clermont (1807).

Fu Man·chu mustache (fōō' mǎn'chōō mǎn-chōō') n. A mustache with ends that hang downward toward or below the chin. [After Fu Manchu, character in novels by Sax Rohmer, pen name of Arthur Sarsfield Ward (1886-1959), British mystery writer.]

fu·ma·rate (fyōō'mə-rāt') n. A salt or ester of fumaric acid. [FUMAR(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

fu·mar·ic acid (fyōō-mǎr'ik əs'īd) n. An organic acid, C₄H₄O₄, found in various plants and produced synthetically and used mainly in resins, paints, varnishes, and inks. [From New Latin Fūmāria, genus of herbaceous plants (from Late Latin fūmāria, fumitory, from Latin fūmus, smoke) + -IC.]

fu·ma·role (fyōō'mə-rōl') n. A hole in a volcanic area from which hot smoke and gases escape. [Italian fumarola, from Late Latin fūmāriolum, smoke hole, diminutive of Latin fūmārium, smoke chamber, from fūmus, smoke.]

—fu'ma·rol'ic (-rōl'ik) adj.

fu·ma·to·ri·um (fyōō'mə-tōr'ē-əm, -tōr'-) n. pl. fu·ma·to·ri·ums or fu·ma·to·ri·a (-tōr'ē-ə, -tōr'-). An airtight fumigation chamber in which chemical vapors are used to destroy insects and fungi on plants. Also called fumatory [New Latin, from Latin fūmāre, to smoke, from fūmus, smoke.]

fu·ma·to·ry (fyōō'mə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. Of or relating to smoke or fumigation. — n. pl. fu·ma·to·ries. See fumatorium. [From Latin fūmāre, to smoke, from fūmus, smoke.]

fum·ble (fūm'bəl) v. fum·bled, fum·bling, fum·bles. — v. intr. 1. To touch or handle nervously or idly: fumble with a necktie. 2. To grope awkwardly to find or to accomplish something: fumble for a key. 3. To proceed awkwardly and uncertainly; blunder: fumble through a speech. 4. a. Football. To drop a ball that is in play. b. Baseball. To mishandle a ground ball. — v. tr. 1. To touch or handle clumsily or idly: “fumbled the receiver into its cradle” (Howard Kaplan). 2. To make a mess of; bungle. See Synonyms at botch. 3. To feel or make (one's way) awkwardly. 4. a. Football. To drop (a ball) while in play. b. Baseball. To mishandle (a ground ball). — n. 1. The act or an instance of fumbling. 2. Sports. A ball that has been fumbled. [Middle English fomelen, to grope.] —fum'bler n.

fume (fyōōm) n. 1. Vapor, gas, or smoke, especially if irritating, harmful, or strong. 2. A strong or acrid odor. 3. A state of resentment or vexation. — v. fumed, fum·ing, fumes. — v. tr. 1. To subject to or treat with fumes. 2. To give off in or as if in fumes. — v. intr. 1. To emit fumes. 2. To rise in fumes. 3. To feel or show resentment or vexation. [Middle English, from Old French fum, from Latin fūmus.]

fu·mi·gant (fyōō'mī-gənt) n. A chemical compound used in its gaseous state as a pesticide or disinfectant. [Latin fūmigāns, fūmigant- present participle of fūmigāre, to smoke. See FUMIGATE.]

fu·mi·gate (fyōō'mī-gāt') v. fu·mi·gat·ed, fu·mi·gat·ing, fu·mi·gates. — v. tr. To subject to smoke or fumes, usually in order to exterminate pests or disinfect. — v. intr. To employ smoke or fumes in order to exterminate or disinfect. [Latin fūmigāre, fūmigāt-, to smoke : fūmus, smoke + agere, to drive, make; see ag- in Appendix.] —fu'mi·ga'tion n. —fu'mi·ga'tor n.

fu·mi·to·ry (fyōō'mī-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) n. pl. fu·mi·to·ries. An herb (Fumaria officinalis) native to Eurasia, having finely divided leaves and small, spurred, purplish flowers. Also called earth smoke [Middle English fumeterre, from Old French fumeterre, from Medieval Latin fūmus terrae : Latin fūmus, smoke + Latin terrae, genitive of terra, dry land, earth; see ters- in Appendix.]

fun (fün) n. 1. A source of enjoyment, amusement, or pleasure. 2. Enjoyment; amusement: have fun at the beach. 3. Playful, often noisy, activity. — v. intr. funned, fun-ning, funs. Informal. To behave playfully; joke. — adj. Informal. Enjoyable; amusing: “You’re a real fun guy” (Margaret Truman). — idiom. for fun (or in fun). As a joke; playfully. [Possibly from fon, to make a fool of, from Middle English fonnen, to fool, possibly from fonne, fool.]

USAGE NOTE: The use of fun as an attributive adjective, as in a fun time, a fun place, most likely originated in a playful reanalysis of the use of the word in sentences such as It is fun to ski, where fun behaves syntactically like an adjective such as amusing or swell. The usage became popular in the 1950’s and 1960’s, though there is some evidence to suggest that it has 19th-century antecedents. Certainly the sense of this word makes it particularly susceptible to jocular treatment. But as with other such reanalyses (for example, in the expression a whole ’nother), the usage appears to have persisted after the original flavor had been lost. Thus there is no intimation of humorous intent in a press release that announces: The corporation believes that a spelling bee is a fun way to emphasize the critical importance of good basic communication skills in America’s workplace. The day may come when this usage is entirely unremarkable, just as the word talkative has lost all taint of its originally jocular formation from the attachment of a Latinate suffix to a native Anglo-Saxon root. At present, however, the attributive use of fun may still raise eyebrows, and writers who want to stay on the safe side are advised to avoid it in contexts in which a light tone would not be appropriate.

Fu-na-ba-shi (fōō’nä-bä’shē, -nä-) A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, a suburb of Tokyo on Tokyo Bay. Population, 506,967.

Fu-na-fu-ti (fōō’nä-fōō’tē) An atoll of Tuvalu in the southern Pacific Ocean. Discovered in 1819, it is the site of Fongafale, the capital of the island state.

fu-nam-bu-list (fyōō-nām’byə-līst) n. One who performs on a tightrope or a slack rope. [From Latin fūnambulū: fūnis, rope + ambulāre, to walk; see ambhi in Appendix.] — fu-nam’bu-lism n.

func-tion (fūngk’shən) n. 1. The action for which one is particularly fitted or employed. 2. a. Assigned duty or activity. b. A specific occupation or role: in my function as chief editor. 3. An official ceremony or a formal social occasion. 4. Something closely related to another thing and dependent on it for its existence, value, or significance: Growth is a function of nutrition. 5. Abbr. f Mathematics. a. A variable so related to another that for each value assumed by one there is a value determined for the other. b. A rule of correspondence between two sets such that there is a unique element in the second set assigned to each element in the first set. — v. intr. func-tioned, func-tion-ing, func-tions. To have or perform a function; serve: functioned as ambassador. [Latin fūnc-tiō, fūnctiōn-, performance, execution, from fūnctus, past participle of fungī, to perform, execute.] —func'tion-less adj.

SYNONYMS: function, duty, office, role. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “the actions and activities assigned to, required of, or expected of a person”: the function of a teacher; a bank clerk's duty; assumed the office of financial adviser; the role of a parent.

func-tion-al (fŭngk'shə-nəl) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to a function. b. Of, relating to, or indicating a mathematical function or functions. 2. Designed for or adapted to a particular function or use: functional architecture. 3. Capable of performing; operative: a functional set of brakes. 4. Pathology. Involving functions rather than a physiological or structural cause. —func'tion-al/i-ty (-shə-nəl'ī-tē) n. —func'tion-al-ly adv.

functional group (fŭngk'shə-nəl grōōp) n. An atom or group of atoms, such as a carboxyl group, that replaces hydrogen in an organic compound and that defines the structure of a family of compounds and determines the properties of the family.

functional illiterate (fŭngk'shə-nəl ǐ-lit'ər-īt) n. A person whose skills in reading and writing are insufficient for ordinary practical needs.

func-tion-al-ism (fŭngk'shə-nə-liz'əm) n. 1. The doctrine that the function of an object should determine its design and materials. 2. A doctrine stressing purpose, practicality, and utility. —func'tion-al-ist' adj. & n.

functional shift (fŭngk'shə-nəl shift) n. Linguistics. A shift in the syntactic function of a word, as when a noun serves as a verb.

func-tion-ar-y (fŭngk'shə-nēr'ē) n. pl. func-tion-ar-ies. One who holds an office or a trust or performs a particular function; an official.

function word (fŭngk'shən wŭrd) n. Grammar. A word, such as a preposition, a conjunction, or an article, that has little semantic content of its own and chiefly indicates a grammatical relationship. Also called form word, functor.

func-tor (fŭngk'tər) n. 1. One that performs an operation or a function. 2. Grammar. See function word. [New Latin, from Latin fūnctiō, performance, function. See FUNCTION.] fund (fŭnd) n. 1. A source of supply; a stock: a fund of goodwill. 2. a. A sum of money or other resources set aside for a specific purpose: a pension fund.

b. funds. Available money; ready cash: short on funds. 3. funds. The stock of the British permanent national debt, considered as public securities. Used with the. 4. An organization established to administer and manage a sum of money.

— v. tr. fund-ed, fund-ing, funds. 1. To provide money for paying off the interest or principal of (a debt). 2. To convert into a long-term or floating debt with fixed interest payments. 3. To place in a fund for accumulation. 4. To furnish a fund for: funded the space program. [Latin fundus, bottom, piece of land.]

fun·da·ment (fŭn'də-mənt) n. 1. a. The buttocks. b. The anus. 2. The natural features of a land surface unaltered by human beings. 3. A foundation, as of a building. 4. An underlying theoretical basis or principle: "All neighbor states... must revise... their policy fundamentals" (C.L. Sulzberger). [Middle English foundement, from Old French fondement, from Latin fundāmentum, from fundāre, to lay the foundation, from fundus, bottom.]

fun·da·men·tal (fŭn'də-měn'tl) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to the foundation or base; elementary: the fundamental laws of the universe. b. Forming or serving as an essential component of a system or structure; central: an example that was fundamental to the argument. c. Of great significance or entailing major change: a book that underwent fundamental revision. 2. Physics. a. Of or relating to the component of lowest frequency of a periodic wave or quantity. b. Of or relating to the lowest possible frequency of a vibrating element or system. 3. Music. Having the root in the bass: a fundamental chord. — n. 1. Something that is an essential or necessary part of a system or object. 2. Physics. The lowest frequency of a periodically varying quantity or of a vibrating system.

—fun'da·men'tal·ly adv.

fun·da·men·tal·ism (fŭn'də-měn'tl-iz'əm) n. 1. a. Often Fundamentalism. An organized, militant Evangelical movement originating in the United States in 1920 in opposition to Liberalism and secularism. b. Adherence to the theology of this movement. 2. A movement or point of view characterized by rigid adherence to fundamental or basic principles. —fun'da·men'tal·ist adj.

, n. —fun'da·men'tal·ist'ic adj.

fundamental particle (fŭn'də-měn'tl pər'tī-kəl) n. Physics. See elementary particle.

fun·di (fŭn'dī') n. Anatomy. Plural of fundus.

fund·raise or fund-raise also fund raise (fŭnd'rāz') v. intr. fund-raised, fund-rais·ing, fund-rais·es. To engage in fundraising.

fund·rais·er also fund-rais·er (fŭnd'rā'zər) n. 1. One, such as a person or an organization, that raises funds. 2. A social function, such as a dinner, held for raising funds.

fund·rais·ing or fund-rais·ing (fŭnd'rā'zɪŋ) n. The organized activity or an instance of soliciting money or pledges, as for charitable organizations or political campaigns. —fund'rais'ing adj.

fun·dus (fŭn'dəs) n. pl. fun·di (-dī'). Anatomy. The portion of a hollow organ opposite or farthest from its opening. [Latin, bottom.] —fun'dic adj.

Fun·dy (fŭn'dē), Bay of. An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean in southeast Canada between New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

fu-ner-al (fyōō'nər-əl) n. 1. a. The ceremonies held in connection with the burial or cremation of a dead person. b. Archaic. The eulogy delivered or the sermon preached at such a ceremony. 2. The burial procession accompanying a body to the grave. 3. An end or a cessation of existence. 4. Slang. A source of concern or care: If he doesn't meet the deadline, it's his funeral. — adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a funeral. [Middle English funerelles, funeral rites, from Old French funerailles, from Medieval Latin fūnerālia, neuter pl. of fūnerālis, funereal, from Late Latin, from Latin fūnus, fūner-, death rites.]

funeral director (fyōō'nər-əl dī-rĕk'tər) n. One whose business is to arrange for the burial or cremation of the dead and assist at the funeral rites and who is usually an embalmer. Also called mortician, undertaker.

funeral home (fyōō'nər-əl hōm) n. An establishment in which the dead are prepared for burial or cremation and in which wakes and funerals may be held.

fu-ner-ar-y (fyōō'nə-rĕr'ĕ) adj. Of or suitable for a funeral or burial. [Latin fūnerārius, from fūnus, fūner-, funeral.]

fu-ne-re-al (fyōō-nîr'ĕ-əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to a funeral. 2. Appropriate for or suggestive of a funeral; mournful: funereal gloom. [From Latin fūnerēus, from fūnus, fūner-, funeral.] — fu-ne're-al-ly adv.

fun fair (fŭn fâr) n. Chiefly British. An amusement park.

fun-fest (fŭn'fĕst') n. Slang. A party or gathering for amusement.

fun-gal (fŭng'gəl) also fun-gous (-gəs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, resembling, or characteristic of a fungus. 2. Caused by a fungus.

fun-gi (fŭn'jī, fŭng'gī) n. A plural of fungus.

fun-gi-ble (fŭn'jə-bəl) adj. 1. Law. Returnable or negotiable in kind or by substitution, as a quantity of grain for an equal amount of the same kind of grain. 2. Interchangeable. — n. Something that is exchangeable or substitutable. Often used in the plural. [Medieval Latin fungibilis, from Latin fungī (vice), to perform (in place of).] — fun'gi-bil'i-ty n.

fun-gi-cide (fŭn'jī-sīd', fŭng'gī-) n. A chemical substance that destroys or inhibits the growth of fungi. — fun'gi-cid'al (-sīd'l) adj. — fun'gi-cid'al-ly adv.

fun-gi-form (fŭn'jə-fôrm', fŭng'gə-) adj. Shaped like a mushroom. [FUNG(US) + -FORM.]

fun-gi-stat (fŭn'jī-stăt', fŭng'gī-) n. A substance that inhibits the growth of fungi.

fun-giv-or-ous (fŭn-jĭv'ər-əs, fŭng-gĭv'-) adj. Feeding on fungi.

fun-go (fŭng'gō) n. pl. fun-goes. Baseball. A fly ball hit for fielding practice by a player who tosses the ball up and hits it on its way down with a long, thin, light bat. [Origin unknown.]

fun-goid (fŭng'goid') adj. Of, relating to, resembling, or being a fungus. — n. A fungus.

fun·gous (fŭng'gəs) adj. Variant of fungal. [Middle English, tender (as mushrooms), from Latin fungōsus, spongy, from fungus, fungus. See FUNGUS.]

fun·gus (fŭng'gəs) n. pl. fun·gi (fŭn'jī, fŭng'gī) or fun·gus·es. Any of numerous eukaryotic organisms of the kingdom Fungi, which lack chlorophyll and vascular tissue and range in form from a single cell to a body mass of branched filamentous hyphae that often produce specialized fruiting bodies. The kingdom includes the yeasts, molds, smuts, and mushrooms. [Latin perhaps akin to Greek spongos, sphongos, sponge.]

fun house also fun·house (fŭn'hous') n. A building or an attraction in an amusement park or a carnival that features various devices intended to surprise, frighten, bewilder, or amuse.

fu·ni·cle (fyōō'nī-kəl) n. Variant of funiculus.

fu·nic·u·lar (fyōō-nīk'yə-lər, fə-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a rope or cord. 2. Operated or moved by a cable. 3. Of, relating to, or constituting a funiculus. — n. A cable railway on a steep incline, especially such a railway with simultaneously ascending and descending cars counterbalancing one another.

fu·nic·u·lus (fyōō-nīk'yə-ləs, fə-) also fu·ni·cle (fyōō'nī-kəl) n. pl. fu·nic·u·li (-lī') also fu·ni·cles. 1. Anatomy. A slender cordlike strand or band, especially: a. A bundle of nerve fibers in a nerve trunk. b. One of three major divisions of white matter in the spinal cord, consisting of fasciculi. c. The umbilical cord. 2. Botany. A stalk connecting an ovule or a seed with the placenta. [Latin funiculus, slender rope, diminutive of fūnis, rope.]

funk¹ (fŭngk) n. 1. a. A state of cowardly fright; a panic. b. A state of severe depression. 2. A cowardly, fearful person. — v. funked, funk·ing, funks. — v. tr. 1. To shrink from in fright or dread. 2. To be afraid of. — v. intr. To shrink in fright. [Probably from obsolete Flemish fonck, disturbance, agitation.]

funk² (fŭngk) n. 1. Music. a. An earthy quality appreciated in music such as jazz or soul. b. A type of popular music combining elements of jazz, blues, and soul and characterized by syncopated rhythm and a heavy, repetitive bass line. 2. Slang. An unsophisticated quality or atmosphere of a region or locality: “The setting is country funk” (Nina Martin). [Back-formation from FUNKY².]

Funk (fŭngk, fōōngk), Casimir. 1884-1967. Polish-born American biochemist whose research of deficiency diseases led to his discovery of vitamins, which he named in 1912.

Funk (fŭngk), Isaac Kauffman. 1839-1912. American publisher and editor who cofounded Funk & Wagnalls Company (1877) and edited A Standard Dictionary of the English Language (1890-1893).

funk hole (fŭngk hōl) n. A dugout or similar place of shelter or refuge. [From FUNK¹.]

funk·y¹ (fŭng'kē) adj. funk·i·er, funk·i·est. Frightened; panicky.

funk·y² (fŭng/'kē) adj. funk·i·er, funk·i·est. 1. a. Having a moldy or musty smell: funky cheese; funky cellars. b. Having a strong, offensive, unwashed odor. 2. Slang. a. Of or relating to music that has an earthy quality reminiscent of the blues: funky jazz. b. Earthy and uncomplicated; natural: “At the opposite end of Dallas’s culinary spectrum is funky regional fare” (Jacqueline Friedrich). 3. Slang. a. Characterized by self-expression, originality, and modishness; unconventional: funky clothes. b. Outlandishly vulgar or eccentric in a humorous or tongue-in-cheek manner; campy: “funky caricatures of sexpot glamour” (Pauline Kael). [From funk, strong smell, tobacco smoke, perhaps from French dialectal funquer, to give off smoke, from Old French fungier, from Latin fūmigāre. See FUMIGATE.]
—funk'i-ness n.

WORD HISTORY: When asked which words in the English language are the most difficult to define precisely, a lexicographer would surely mention funky. The meaning of funky seems well captured by Geneva Smitherman in Talkin and Testifyin: The Language of Black America, where she states that funky means “[related to] the blue notes or blue mood created in jazz, blues, and soul music generally, down-to-earth soulfully expressed sounds; by extension [related to] the real nitty-gritty or fundamental essence of life, soul to the max.” Be that as it may, funky is first recorded in 1784 in a reference to musty, old, moldy cheese. Funky then developed the sense “smelling strong or bad,” which could be used to describe body odor. But funky was applied to jazz, too—a usage explained in 1959 by one F. Newton in Jazz Scene: “Critics are on the search for something a little more like the old, original, passion-laden blues: the trade-name which has been suggested for it is ‘funky’ (literally: ‘smelly,’ i.e. symbolizing the return from the upper atmosphere to the physical, down-to-earth reality).” Funky comes from the earlier noun funk, which meant “a strong smell or stink.” This noun can probably be traced back to the Latin word fūmus, “smoke.”

fun·nel (fŭn/'əl) n. 1. a. A conical utensil having a small hole or narrow tube at the apex and used to channel the flow of a substance, as into a small-mouthed container. b. Something resembling this utensil in shape. 2. A shaft, flue, or stack for ventilation or the passage of smoke, especially the smokestack of a ship or locomotive. — v. fun·neled or fun·nelled, fun·nel·ing or fun·nel·ing, fun·nels or fun·nels. — v. intr. 1. To take the shape of a funnel. 2. To move through or as if through a funnel: tourists funneling slowly through customs. — v. tr. 1. To cause to take the shape of a funnel. 2. To cause to move through or as if through a funnel. [Middle English fonel, from Provençal fonilh, from Late Latin fundibulum, from Latin īfundibulum, from īfundere, to pour in. See INFUSE.]

fun-nel-form (fün'əl-fôrm') adj. Botany. Shaped like a funnel, as the corolla of a petunia or a morning glory.

fun-ny (fün'ē) adj. fun-ni-er, fun-ni-est. 1. a. Causing laughter or amusement. b. Intended or designed to amuse. 2. Strangely or suspiciously odd; curious. 3. Tricky or deceitful. — n. pl. fun-nies. Informal. 1. A joke; a witticism. 2. funnies. a. Comic strips. b. The section of a newspaper containing comic strips. [From FUN.] —fun'ni-ly adv. —fun'ni-ness n.

funny bone (fün'ē bōn) n. Informal. 1. A point on the elbow where the ulnar nerve runs close to the surface and produces a sharp tingling sensation if knocked against the bone. 2. A sense of humor.

funny book (fün'ē böök) n. See comic book.

funny farm (fün'ē färm) n. Slang. A mental health facility or hospital.

fun-ny-man (fün'ē-măn') n. A humorous person, especially a professional comedian.

funny money (fün'ē mŭn'ē) n. Informal. 1. Counterfeit currency. 2. Money from an obscure or questionable source.

funny paper (fün'ē pā'pər) n. A section or supplement of a newspaper containing comic strips.

Fun-ston (fün'stən), Frederick. 1865-1917. American soldier who volunteered to serve in Cuba's insurrection against Spain (1896-1898) and commanded in the Philippines (1898-1901), where he captured the rebel leader Emilio Aguinaldo.

fur (fŭr) n. 1. The thick coat of soft hair covering the skin of a mammal, such as a fox or beaver. 2. The hair-covered, dressed pelt of such a mammal, used in the making of garments and as trimming or decoration. 3. A garment made of or lined with the dressed pelt of a mammal. 4. A coating similar to the pelt of a mammal. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a fur coat; fur hats. — v. tr. furred, fur-ring, furs. 1. To cover, line, or trim with fur. 2. To provide fur garments for. 3. To cover or coat as if with fur. 4. To line (a wall or floor) with furring. [Middle English furre, probably from furren, to line with fur, from Old French forrer, from forre, fuerre, sheath, lining, of Germanic origin. See pā- in Appendix.]

fur. abbr. Furlong.

fu-ran (fyöör'ăn', fyöö-răn') n. 1. One of a group of colorless, volatile, heterocyclic organic compounds containing a ring of four carbon atoms and one oxygen atom, obtained from wood oils and used in the synthesis of furfural and other organic compounds. 2. The simplest such compound, C₄H₄O. In this sense, also called furfuran [FUR(FURAL) + -AN².]

fu-ra-nose (fyöör'ə-nōs') n. A sugar having a cyclic structure resembling that of furan.

fur·bear·er also fur·bear·er (fûr'bâr'ər) n. An animal whose skin is covered with fur, especially fur that is commercially valuable. —fur'bear'ing adj.

fur·be·low (fûr'bə-lō') n. 1. A ruffle or flounce on a garment. 2. A piece of showy ornamentation. — v. tr. fur·be·lowed, fur·be·low·ing, fur·be·lows. To decorate with a ruffle or flounce. [Probably alteration of Provençal farbello, farbella, fringe, perhaps alteration of Italian faldella, pleat, diminutive of falda, flap, loose end, of Germanic origin. See pel² in Appendix.]

fur·bish (fûr'bîsh) v. tr. fur·bished, fur·bish·ing, fur·bish·es. 1. To brighten by cleaning or rubbing; polish. 2. To restore to attractive or serviceable condition; renovate. [Middle English furbishen, from Old French fourbir, fourbiss-, from Frankish furbjan*.] —fur'bish·er n.

fur·cate (fûr'kāt') v. intr. fur·cat·ed, fur·cat·ing, fur·cates. To divide into branches; fork. — adj. Divided into branches; forked. [Late Latin furcātus, forked, from Latin furca, fork.] —fur'cate'ly adv. —fur·ca'tion n.

fur·cu·la (fûr'kyə-lə) n. pl. fur·cu·lae (-lē'). Zoology. A forked part or bone, such as the wishbone of a bird. Also called fourchette [Latin, diminutive of furca, fork.] —fur'cu·lar adv.

fur·fur (fûr'fər) n. pl. fur·fu·res (-fyə-rēz'). An epidermal scale, as that associated with dandruff. [Latin, bran, scales.]

fur·fu·ra·ceous (fûr'fə-rā'shəs, -fyə-) adj. 1. Made of or covered with scaly particles, such as dandruff. 2. Relating to or resembling bran. [Late Latin furfurāceus, branlike, scaly : Latin furfur, bran + Latin -āceus, -aceous.]

fur·fu·ral (fûr'fə-rāl', -fyə-) n. A colorless, sweet-smelling, mobile liquid, C₄H₃OCHO, made from corncobs and used in the synthesis of furan, as a solvent for nitrocellulose, and as a fungicide and weed killer. [FURFUR + -AL³.]

fur·fu·ran (fûr'fə-răn', -fyə-) n. See furan (n., sense 2). [FURFUR(AL) + -AN².]

fur·fu·res (fûr'fyə-rēz') n. Plural of furfur.

fu·ri·o·so (fyōōr'ē-ō'sō, -zō) adv. & adj. Music. In a tempestuous and vigorous manner. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from Latin furiōsus, furious. See FURIOUS.]

fu·ri·ous (fyōōr'ē-əs) adj. 1. Full of or characterized by extreme anger; raging. 2. Suggestive of extreme anger in action or appearance; fierce. See Synonyms at angry. [Middle English, from Old French furieus, from Latin furiōsus, from furia, fury. See FURY.] —fu'ri·ous·ly adv.

furl (fûrl) v. furled, furl·ing, furls. — v. tr. To roll up and secure (a flag or sail, for example) to something else. — v. intr. To be or become rolled up. — n. 1. The act or an instance of rolling up. 2. A single roll or a rolled section. [Perhaps from French ferler, from Old French ferlier, to fasten : ferm, firm; see FIRM¹ + lier, to bind (from Latin ligāre); see leig- in Appendix.]

fur·long (fûr'lông', -lông') n. Abbr. fur. A unit for measuring distance, equal to 8 mile (201 meters). See Table at measurement. [Middle English, from Old English furlang: furh, furrow + lang, long; see LONG¹.]

fur·lough (fûr'lô) n. 1. a. A leave of absence or vacation, especially one granted to a member of the armed forces. b. A usually temporary layoff from work. c. A leave of absence from prison granted to a prisoner. 2. The papers or documents authorizing a leave: The soldiers had their furloughs in their breast pockets. — v. tr. fur·loughed, fur·lough·ing, fur·loughs. 1. To grant a leave to. 2. To lay off (workers). [Alteration of vorloff, furlogh, from Dutch verlof, from Middle Dutch. See leubh- in Appendix.]

fur·mi·ty (fûr'mi-tē) n. Variant of frumenty.

furn. abbr. Furnished.

fur·nace (fûr'nis) n. 1. An enclosure in which energy in a nonthermal form is converted to heat, especially such an enclosure in which heat is generated by the combustion of a suitable fuel. 2. An intensely hot place: the furnace of the sun; an attic room that is a furnace in the summer. 3. A severe test or trial: endured the furnace of his friends' blame after the accident. [Middle English, from Old French fornais, from Latin fornāx, fornāc-, oven. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

Fur·ness (fûr'nis), Horace Howard. 1833-1912. American Shakespearean scholar who with his son Horace Howard, Jr. (1865-1930), edited acclaimed variorum editions of Shakespeare's plays.

fur·nish (fûr'nish) v. tr. fur·nished, fur·nish·ing, fur·nish·es. 1. To equip with what is needed, especially to provide furniture for. 2. To supply; give: "The story of Orpheus has furnished Pope with an illustration" (Thomas Bulfinch). [Middle English furnisshen, from Old French fournir, fourniss-, of Germanic origin. See per¹ in Appendix.] —fur'nish·er n.

SYNONYMS: furnish, equip, outfit, appoint, accouter. These verbs mean to provide with what is necessary for an activity or a purpose. Furnish refers primarily to the provision of basic necessities: furnished the new apartment; furnish a boat with care. Equip usually implies the provision of more specialized items for a particular need or a particular service: equip a car with snow tires. Outfit suggests comprehensive provision of necessary items for a larger purpose, as for an expedition: outfitting the children for summer camp. To appoint is to provide with furnishings and often accessories, usually of a tasteful kind: a library that was appointed in leather. Accouter refers most often to providing with articles of equipment, especially for military service: knights who were accoutered for battle.

fur·nish·ing (fûr'nī-shing) n. 1. A piece of equipment necessary or useful for comfort or convenience. 2. furnishings. The furniture, appliances, and other movable articles in a home or other building. 3. furnishings. Wearing apparel and accessories.

fur-ni-ture (fûr'nî-chər) n. 1. The movable articles in a room or an establishment that make it fit for living or working. 2. Archaic. The necessary equipment for a saddle horse. [Old French fourniture, from fournir, to furnish. See FURNISH.]

Fur-ni-vall (fûr'nə-vəl), Frederick James. 1825-1910. British philologist who founded numerous literary societies and as a member of the Philological Society proposed the Oxford English Dictionary in 1857.

fu-ror (fyōōr'ôr', -ər) n. 1. A general commotion; public disorder or uproar. 2. Violent anger; frenzy. 3. A fashion adopted enthusiastically by the public; a fad. 4. A state of intense excitement or ecstasy. [Middle English furour, wrath, fury, from Old French foreur, from Latin furor, from furere, to rage.]

fu-rore (fyōōr'ôr', -ōr') n. Chiefly British. Variant of furor. [Italian, from Latin furor, frenzy. See FUROR.]

fu-ro-se-mide (fyōō-rō'sə-mīd') n. A white to yellow crystalline powder, $C_{12}H_{11}ClN_2O_5S$, used as a diuretic. [FUR(FURAL) + S(ULF)- + -emide (alteration of AMIDE).]

furred (fûrd) adj. 1. Bearing fur. 2. Made, covered, or trimmed with fur. 3. Wearing fur garments. 4. Covered or coated as if with fur. 5. Provided with furring, as a wall, ceiling, or floor.

fur-ri-er (fûr'ē-ər) n. 1. One that deals in furs. 2. One whose occupation is the dressing, designing, cleaning, or repairing of furs. [Alteration (influenced by CLOTHIER), of Middle English furrer, from Anglo-Norman furrere, from Old French forrer, to line with fur. See FUR.]

fur-ri-er-y (fûr'ē-ə-rē) n. pl. fur-ri-er-ies. 1. Fur garments and trimmings considered as a group. 2. The business of a furrier.

fur-ring (fûr'ing) n. 1. Trimming or lining made of fur. 2. A furlike coating, as on the tongue. 3. a. The preparation of a wall, ceiling, or floor with strips of wood or metal to provide a level substratum for plaster, flooring, or another surface or to create an air space. b. Strips of material used in this process.

fur-row (fûr'ō, fûr'ō) n. 1. A long, narrow, shallow trench made in the ground by a plow. 2. A rut, groove, or narrow depression: snow drifting in furrows. 3. A deep wrinkle in the skin, as on the forehead. — v. fur-rowed, fur-row-ing, fur-rows. — v. tr. 1. To make long, narrow, shallow trenches in; plow. 2. To form grooves or deep wrinkles in. — v. intr. To become furrowed or wrinkled. [Middle English forwe, from Old English furh.]

fur-ry (fûr'ē, fûr'ē) adj. fur-ri-er, fur-ri-est. 1. Consisting of or similar to fur. 2. a. Covered with, wearing, or trimmed with fur. b. Covered with a furlike substance. 3. Having a furlike quality, as in tone; fuzzy: a furry voice.

—fur'ri-ness n.

fur seal (fûr sêl) n. Any of several eared seals of the genera Callorhinus or Arctocephalus, having thick, soft underfur that is valued commercially for use in making garments.

Fürth (föört, fürt) A city of south-central Germany, an industrial suburb of Nuremberg. It was supposedly founded by Charlemagne in the late eighth century. Population, 97,623.

fur·ther (fûr'thər) adj. A comparative of far. 1. More distant in degree, time, or space: a result that was further from our expectations than last time; the further lamppost. 2. Additional: a further example; a further delay. — adv. A comparative of far. 1. To a greater extent; more: considered further the consequences of her actions. 2. In addition; furthermore: He stated further that he would not cooperate with the committee. 3. At or to a more distant or advanced point: went only three miles further; reading five pages further tonight. See Usage Note at farther. — v. tr. fur·thered, fur·ther·ing, fur·thers. To help the progress of; advance. See Synonyms at advance. [Middle English, from Old English furthra, from furthor, farther. Adv., from Middle English from Old English furthor. See per¹ in Appendix.] — fur'ther·er n.

fur·ther·ance (fûr'thər-əns) n. The act of furthering, advancing, or helping forward: "Pakistan does not aspire to any... role in furtherance of the strategies of other powers" (Ismail Patel).

fur·ther·more (fûr'thər-môr', -mōr') adv. In addition; moreover. See Synonyms at also.

fur·ther·most (fûr'thər-mōst') adj. Most distant or remote.

fur·thest (fûr'thɪst) adj. A superlative of far. Most distant in degree, time, or space: That's the furthest thing from my mind. They explored the furthest reaches of space. — adv. A superlative of far. 1. To the greatest extent or degree: went the furthest of all the children in her education. 2. At or to the most distant point in space or time: He swam the furthest. [Middle English, from further, more distant. See FURTHER.]

fur·tive (fûr'tiv) adj. 1. Characterized by stealth; surreptitious. 2. Expressive of hidden motives or purposes; shiftily. See Synonyms at secret. [French furtif, from Old French, from Latin furtivus, from furtum, theft, from fūr, thief. See bher¹ in Appendix.] — fur'tive·ly adv. — fur'tive·ness n.

Furt·wäng·ler (föört'vəng'lər), Wilhelm. 1886-1954. German composer and conductor known for his passionate interpretation of romantic music, notably that of Wagner.

fu·run·cle (fyöör'üŋg'kəl) n. See boil². [Latin fūrunculus, knob on a vine that "steals" the sap, diminutive of fūr, thief. See bher¹ in Appendix.] — fu·run'cu·lar (fyöö-rüŋg'kyə-lər), fu·run'cu·lous (-ləs) adj.

fu-run-cu-lo-sis (fyōō-rūng'kyə-lō'sis) n. A skin condition characterized by the development of recurring boils. [Latin fūrunculus, furuncle; see FURUNCLE + OSIS.]

fu-ry (fyōōr'ē) n. pl. fu-ries. 1. Violent anger; rage. See Synonyms at anger. 2. Violent, uncontrolled action; turbulence. 3. Furies. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. The three terrible, winged goddesses with serpentine hair, Alecto, Megaera, and Tisiphone, who pursue and punish doers of unavenged crimes. 4. A woman regarded as angry or spiteful. [Middle English furie, from Old French, from Latin furia, from furere, to rage.]

furze (fûrz) n. See gorse. [Middle English furse, from Old English fyrz.]

fu-sain (fyōō-zān', fyōō'zān) n. 1. a. Fine charcoal in stick form, made from the wood of the spindle tree. b. A sketch or drawing made with this charcoal. 2. A dull dark-gray, brittle, porous type of bituminous coal resembling charcoal. [French, spindle tree, charcoal made from its wood, from Vulgar Latin fūsāgō*, ·fūsāgin-, spindle (formerly made from the wood of a spindle tree), from Latin fūsus.]

Fu-san (fōō'sān') See Pusan.

fu-sar-i-um (fyōō-zâr'ē-əm) n. pl. fu-sar-i-a (-ē-ə). Any of various pathogenic fungi of the genus Fusarium, chiefly inhabiting temperate climates and infecting both plants and animals. In human beings, infection may cause inflammation of the cornea and external ear. [New Latin, genus name, possibly from Latin fūsus, spindle (from its shape).]

fus-cous (fūs'kəs) adj. Dark brownish-gray in color. [From Latin fuscus.]

fuse¹ also fuze (fyōōz) n. 1. A cord of readily combustible material that is lighted at one end to carry a flame along its length to detonate an explosive at the other end. 2. Often fuze. A mechanical or electrical mechanism used to detonate an explosive charge or device such as a bomb or grenade: "A mechanical... switch is used to initiate the fuzes" (International Defense Review). — v. tr.

fused also fuzed, fus-ing also fuz-ing, fus-es also fuz-es. To equip with a mechanical or electrical fuse: "The bomb... was fuzed and timed to explode after the aircraft had taken off" (Aviation Week & Space Technology). [From Italian fuso, spindle (originally from its shape), from Latin fūsus.]

fuse² (fyōōz) v. fused, fus-ing, fus-es. — v. tr. 1. To liquefy or reduce to a plastic state by heating; melt. 2. To mix (constituent elements) together by or as if by melting; blend. — v. intr. 1. To become liquefied from heat. 2. To become mixed or united by or as if by melting together: "There was no separation between joy and sorrow: they fused into one" (Henry Miller). See Synonyms at melt. See Synonyms at mix. — n. A safety device that protects an electric circuit from excessive current, consisting of or containing a metal element that melts when current exceeds a specific amperage, thereby opening the circuit. [Latin fundere, fūs-, to melt. See gheu- in Appendix.]

fused quartz (fyōōzd kwôrts) n. See quartz glass.

fused silica (fyōōzd sīl'ī-kə) n. See quartz glass.

fu-see also fu-zee (fyōō-zē') n. 1. A friction match with a large head capable of burning in a wind. 2. A colored flare used as a warning signal for trucks and railroad trains. 3. A cone-shaped pulley with a spiral groove, used in a cord- or chain-winding clock to maintain even travel in the timekeeping mechanism as the force of the mainspring lessens in unwinding. 4. A combustible fuse for detonating explosives. [From French fusée, spindle, rocket, flare, fuse, from Old French, spindleful of thread, from fus, spindle, from Latin fūsus.]

fu-se-lage (fyōō'sə-lāzh', -zə-) n. The central body of an aircraft, to which the wings and tail assembly are attached and which accommodates the crew, passengers, and cargo. [French, from fuselé, spindle-shaped, from Old French fusel, spindle, from Vulgar Latin fūsellus*, diminutive of Latin fūsus.]

Fu-sel-i (fyōō'zə-lē'), Henry. 1741-1825. Swiss-born British painter whose works, including The Nightmare (1781), display a fantastic, macabre quality that influenced the surrealists of the 1920's and 1930's.

fu-sel oil (fyōō'zəl oil) n. An acrid, oily, poisonous liquid mixture of amyl alcohols, occurring in incompletely distilled alcoholic liquids and used as a solvent and in the manufacture of explosives and pure amyl alcohols. [German Fusel, bad liquor, from Low German.]

Fu-shun (fōō'shōōn', fū'shūn') A city of northeast China east of Shenyang. It was formerly controlled by Russia and Japan. Population, 1,240,000.

fu-si-ble (fyōō'zə-bəl) adj. Capable of being fused or melted by heating.

—fu'si-bil'i-ty n. —fu'si-ble-ness n.

fusible metal (fyōō'zə-bəl mēt'l) n. A metal alloy having a low melting point, used as solder and for safety plugs and fuses.

fu-si-form (fyōō'zə-fōrm') adj. Tapering at each end; spindle-shaped. [Latin fūsus, spindle + -FORM.]

fu-sil (fyōō'zəl) n. A light flintlock musket. [French, steel in a flintlock, firearm, from Old French fuisil, steel for a tinderbox, from Vulgar Latin focīlis* (petra), fire-(stone), from Late Latin focus, fire, from Latin, hearth.]

fu-sile (fyōō'zəl, -zīl') adj. Archaic. 1. Formed by melting or casting. 2. Capable of being fused; fusible. [Middle English, from Latin fūsilis, from fūsus, past participle of fundere, to melt. See gheu- in Appendix.]

fu-sil-ier also fu-sil-eer (fyōō'zə-līr') n. 1. A soldier in any of certain British army regiments formerly armed with fusils. 2. A soldier armed with a fusil. [French, musketeer, from fusil, musket. See FUSIL.]

fu-sil-lade (fyōō'sə-lād', -lād', -zə-, fyōō'sə-lād', -lād', -zə-) n. 1. A discharge from a number of firearms, fired simultaneously or in rapid succession. 2. A rapid outburst or barrage: a fusillade of insults. — v. tr. fu-sil-lad-ed, fu-sil-lad-ing, fu-sil-lades. To attack with a fusillade. [French, from fusiller, to shoot, from fusil, firearm. See FUSIL.]

Fu-sin (fōō'shīn', fū'-) See Fuxin.

fu-sion (fyōō'zhən) n. 1. The act or procedure of liquefying or melting by the application of heat. 2. The liquid or melted state induced by heat. 3. a. The merging of different elements into a union: fusion of metals in an alloy; the difficult fusion of conflicting factions. b. A union resulting from fusing: A fusion of religion and politics emerged. 4. Physics. A nuclear reaction in which nuclei combine to form more massive nuclei with the simultaneous release of energy. 5. Music. Jazz-rock. [Latin fūsio, fūsion-, from fūsus, past participle of fundere, to melt. See gheu- in Appendix.]

fusion bomb (fyōō'zhən bōm) n. A nuclear bomb, especially a hydrogen bomb, that derives its released energy principally from fusion reactions among light nuclei.

fu-sion-ism (fyōō'zhə-nīz'əm) n. The theory or practice of forming coalitions, especially of political groups or factions. —fu'sion-ist n.

fuss (fūs) n. 1. Needless nervous or useless activity; commotion: There was a lot of fuss on moving day. 2. a. A state of excessive and unwarranted concern over an unimportant matter: made a big fuss over one low test grade. b. An objection; a protest: The longer working hours caused a big fuss. 3. A quarrel. 4. A display of affectionate excitement and attention: Everyone made a fuss over the new baby. — v. fussed, fuss-ing, fuss-es. — v. intr. 1. To trouble or worry over trifles. 2. To be excessively careful or solicitous: fussed over their children. 3. To get into or be in a state of nervous or useless activity: fussed with the collar of his coat. 4. To object; complain. — v. tr. To disturb or vex with unimportant matters. [Origin unknown.] —fuss'er n.

fuss-budg-et also fuss-bud-get (fūs'būj'īt) n. A person who fusses over trifles. Also called fusspot fuss-pot (fūs'pōt') n. See fussbudget.

fuss-y (fūs'ē) adj. fuss-i-er, fuss-i-est. 1. Easily upset; given to bouts of ill temper: a fussy baby. 2. Paying great or excessive attention to personal tastes and appearance; fastidious: He was always fussy about clothes. 3. Calling for or requiring great attention to sometimes trivial details: a fussy actuarial problem. 4. Full of superfluous details: "It can indeed be fussy, filling with ornament what should be empty space" (H.D.F. Kitto). —fuss/i-ly adv. —fuss/i-ness n.

Fust (fōōst), Johann. 1400?-1466. German printer who was the financial partner (1450?-1455) and successor (1455) of Gutenberg. He printed Gutenberg's Psalter (1457) and was the first to print in color.

fus-tian (fūs'chən) n. 1. a. A coarse, sturdy cloth made of cotton and flax. b. Any of several thick, twilled cotton fabrics, such as corduroy, having a short nap. 2. Pretentious speech or writing; pompous language. See Synonyms at bombast. — adj. 1. Made of or as if of fustian: “[He] disliked the heavy, fustian... and brocaded decor of Soviet officialdom” (Frederick Forsyth). 2. Pompous, bombastic, and ranting: “Yossarian was unmoved by the fustian charade of the burial ceremony” (Joseph Heller). [Middle English, from Old French fustaigne, from Medieval Latin fustāneum, possibly from Latin fūstis, wooden stick, club (loan translation of Greek xulina (lina), wood-linen, cotton), and or from El Fostat (El Fustat), a section of Cairo, Egypt.]

fus·tic (fūs'tik) n. 1. A small dioecious tropical American tree (Chlorophora tinctoria) having wood that yields a yellow dyestuff. 2. The wood of this plant. 3. A dyestuff obtained from the wood of this plant. [Middle English fustik, from Old French fustoc, from Arabic fustuq, from Greek pistakē, pistachio. See PISTACHIO.]

fus·ti·gate (fūs'tī-gāt') v. tr. fus·ti·gat·ed, fus·ti·gat·ing, fus·ti·gates.

1. To beat with a club; cudgel. 2. To criticize harshly: “We followed [Ibsen] as he fustigates himself and us” (Patrice Chereau). [Late Latin fūstigāre, fūstigāt-: from Latin fūstis, club + agere, to do; see ag- in Appendix.] —fus'ti-ga'tion n.

fus·ty (fūs'tē) adj. fus·ti·er, fus·ti·est. 1. Smelling of mildew or decay; musty. 2. Old-fashioned; antique. [Middle English, from Old French fust, piece of wood, wine cask, from Latin fūstis, stick, club.] —fus'ti·ly adv. —fus'ti·ness n.

fu·su·ma (fōō-sōō'mä) n. pl. fusuma. Light, sliding partitions of thick paper mounted in grooves on the floor and the ceiling of a Japanese house and moved into various positions to form rooms. [Japanese.]

fut. abbr. 1. Grammar. Future. 2. Business. Futures.

Fu·ta Jal·lon (fōō'tə jə-lōn', fōō'tä jä-lōn') See Fouta Djallon.

fu·thark (fōō'thärk') n. 1. The common Germanic runic alphabet. 2. Also fu·thorc or fu·thork (-thôrk'). The Old English runic alphabet. [From the first six letters of the alphabet: f, u, th, a, r, k (or c).]

fu·tile (fyōō'tl, fyōō'til') adj. 1. Having no useful result. 2. Trifling and frivolous; idle: the futile years after her artistic peak. [Latin fūtilis. See gheu- in Appendix.] —fu'tile·ly adv. —fu'tile·ness n.

SYNONYMS: futile, barren, bootless, fruitless, unavailing, useless, vain. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “producing no result or effect”: a futile effort; a barren search; bootless entreaties; fruitless labors; an unavailing attempt; a useless discussion; vain regrets.

ANTONYM: useful

fu·til·i·tar·i·an (fyōō-tīl'ī-târ'ē-ən) adj. Holding or based on the view that human endeavor is futile. — n. One who holds the view that human endeavor is futile. [FUTILIT(Y) + -ARIAN.] —fu·til'i·tar'i·an·ism n.

fu·til·i·ty (fyōō-tīl'ī-tē) n. pl. fu·til·i·ties. 1. The quality of having no useful result; uselessness. 2. Lack of importance or purpose; frivolousness. 3. A futile act.

fu·ton (fōō'tōn) n. pl. futon or fu·tons. An article of bedding consisting of a pad of tufted cotton batting or similar material, used on a floor or on a raised frame as a mattress or comforter. [Japanese, bedclothes, bedding.]

fut·tock (füt'ək) n. Nautical. One of the curved timbers that forms a rib in the frame of a ship. [Middle English fottek, perhaps alteration of fothok : fot, foot; see FOOT + hok, hook; see HOOK.]

futtock plate (füt'ək plāt) n. Nautical. An iron plate attached horizontally to the top of the lower mast to secure the topmast rigging and the upper ends of the futtock shrouds.

futtock shroud (füt'ək shroud) n. Nautical. One of the iron rods extending from a band on the lower mast to the futtock plate, used to brace the base of the topmast.

Fu·tu·na Islands (fə-tōō'nə ī'ləndz, fōō-) also Hoorn Islands (hōrn, hōrn) An island group of the southwest Pacific Ocean northeast of Fiji. Part of the French overseas territory of Wallis and Futuna, the islands were annexed by France in 1887.

fu·ture (fyōō'chər) n. 1. The indefinite time yet to come: will try to do better in the future. 2. Something that will happen in time to come: "The future comes apace" (Shakespeare). 3. A prospective or expected condition, especially one considered with regard to growth, advancement, or development: a business with no future. 4. futures. Abbr. fut. Business. Commodities or stocks bought or sold upon agreement of delivery in time to come. 5. Abbr. fut. Grammar. a. The form of a verb used in speaking of action that has not yet occurred or of states not yet in existence. b. A verb form in the future tense. — adj. That is to be or to come; of or existing in later time. [Middle English, from Old French futur, from Latin futūrus, about to be. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

fu·ture·less (fyōō'chər-līs) adj. Having no prospect or hope of success in one's future. — fu'ture·less·ness n.

future perfect (fyōō'chər pūr'fikt) n. Grammar. A verb tense that expresses action completed by a specified time in the future and that is formed in English by combining will have or shall have with a past participle.

future shock (fyōō'chər shök) n. A condition of distress and disorientation brought on by the inability to cope with rapid societal and technological change. [After the book Future Shock by Alvin Toffler (born 1928).]

future tense (fyōō'chər tēns) n. Grammar. A verb tense expressing future time.

fu·tur·ism (fyōō'chə-rīz'əm) n. 1. A belief that the meaning of life and one's personal fulfillment lie in the future and not in the present or past. 2. An artistic movement originating in Italy around 1910 whose aim was to express the energetic, dynamic, and violent quality of contemporary life, especially as embodied in the motion and force of modern machinery. —fu'tur-ist n.

fu-tur-is-tic (fyōō'chə-rīs'tik) adj. 1. Of or relating to the future. 2. a. Of, characterized by, or expressing a vision of the future: futuristic decor. b. Being ahead of the times; innovative or revolutionary: futuristic computer software.

3. Of or relating to futurism. —fu'tur-is'ti-cal-ly adj.

fu-tur-ist-ics (fyōō'chə-rīs'tiks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Futurology.

fu-tu-ri-ty (fyōō-tōōr'ī-tē, -tyōōr'-, -chōōr'-) n. pl. fu-tu-ri-ties. 1. The future. 2. The quality or condition of being in or of the future. 3. A future event or possibility. 4. Sports. A futurity race.

futurity race (fyōō-tōōr'ī-tē rās) n. Sports. 1. A race that competitors enter well in advance. 2. A race for horses in which the competitors are entered at or before their birth.

futurity stakes (fyōō-tōōr'ī-tē stāks's) pl.n. Sports. 1. The stakes awarded to the winner or winners in a futurity race. 2. A futurity race.

fu-tur-ol-o-gy (fyōō'chə-rōl'ə-jē) n. The study or forecasting of potential developments, as in science, technology, and society, using current conditions and trends as a point of departure. —fu'tur-o-log'i-cal (fyōō'chər-ə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —fu'tu-rol'o-gist n.

futz (fŭts) v. intr. futzed, futz-ing, futz-es. Slang. To waste time or effort on frivolities; fool. Often used with around: “would like to return to the days when Americans believed: ‘By golly, you don’t futz around with Uncle Sam’” (Wall Street Journal). [Possibly blend of FUCK, and PUTZ.]

Fu-xin also Fu-sin (fōō'shīn', fŭ'-) A city of northeast China west-northwest of Shenyang. It is a mining center in an agricultural region. Population, 551,300.

fuze (fyōōz) n. & v. Variant of fuse¹.

fu-zee (fyōō-zē') n. Variant of fusee.

Fu-zhou (fōō'jō') also Foo-chow or Fu-chou (fōō'jō', -chou') A city of southeast China on the Min River delta. An ancient walled city, it was a treaty port following the Opium War (1839-1842). Fuzhou has been the capital of Fujian province since the tenth century. Population, 754,500.

fuzz¹ (fŭz) n. A mass or coating of fine, light fibers, hairs, or particles; down: the fuzz on a peach. — v. fuzzed, fuzz-ing, fuzz-es. — v. tr. 1. To cover with fine light fibers, hairs, or particles. 2. To make blurred or indistinct: fuzzing the difference between the two candidates; worked quickly to fuzz up the details of the scandal. — v. intr. To become blurred or obscure. [Perhaps back-formation from FUZZY.]

fuzz² (fŭz) n. Slang. The police. [Origin unknown.]

fuzz-y (fŭz'ē) adj. fuzz-i-er, fuzz-i-est. 1. Covered with fuzz. 2. Of or resembling fuzz. 3. Not clear; indistinct: a fuzzy recollection of past events. 4. Not coherent; confused: a fuzzy plan of action. [Perhaps from Low German fussig, spongy. See pŭ- in Appendix.] —fuzz'i·ly adv. —fuzz'i·ness n.

fuzz·y·head·ed (fŭz'ē-hĕd'ĭd) adj. 1. a. Marked by unclear, confused thinking. b. Giddy; silly. 2. Having a head covered with fuzz. —fuzz'y·head·'ed·ness n.

f.v. abbr. Latin. Folio verso (on the back of the page).

FWB abbr. Four-wheel brake.

fwd abbr. Sports. Forward.

FWD abbr. 1. Four-wheel drive. 2. Front-wheel drive.

FX abbr. Foreign exchange.

FY abbr. Fiscal year.

-fy or -ify suff. Cause to become; make: basify. [Middle English -fien, from Old French -fier, from Latin -ficāre, -ficārī, from -ficus, -fic.]

FYI abbr. For your information.

fyke (fĭk) n. A long, bag-shaped fishing net held open by hoops. [Dutch fuik, from Middle Dutch fūke.]

fyl·fot (fĭl'föt') n. A swastika. [Originally perhaps a device for the foot of a painted window : FILL + FOOT.]

Fyn (fĭn, fŭn) An island of south-central Denmark west of Sjaelland. Its chief products are dairy goods and cereals.

FZS or F.Z.S. abbr. Fellow of the Zoological Society.

g¹ or G (jē) n. pl. g's or G's. 1. The seventh letter of the modern English alphabet. 2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter g. 3. Music. a. The fifth tone in the scale of C major or the seventh tone in the relative minor scale. b. A key or scale in which G is the tonic. c. A written or printed note representing this tone. d. A string, key, or pipe tuned to the pitch of this tone. 4. A unit of acceleration equal to the acceleration caused by gravity at the earth's surface, about 9.8 meters (32 feet) per second per second.

g² abbr. 1. Acceleration of gravity. 2. Gram.

G¹ (jē) n. A movie rating that allows admission to persons of all ages. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a G movie. [Short for GENERAL.]

G² (jē) n. pl. G's. Slang. One thousand dollars. [G(RAND), one thousand dollars.]

G³ The symbol for conductance.

G⁴ abbr. 1. Physics. Gauss. 2. Also G.. Good. 3. Gravitational constant. 4. Guanine.

g. abbr. 1. Grammar. Gender. 2. Grammar. Genitive. 3. Also G.. Gourde. 4. Also G.. Guilder. 5. Also G.. Guinea. 6. Also G.. Gulf.

Ga¹ The symbol for the element gallium.

Ga² abbr. Bible. Galatians.

GA abbr. 1. General agent. 2. Also G.A.. General Assembly. 3. Also Ga.. Georgia.

ga. abbr. Gauge.

G.A. abbr. General average.

gab (gāb) Slang. v. intr. gabbled, gab-bing, gabs. To talk idly or incessantly, as about trivial matters. — n. Idle talk; chatter. [Middle English gabben, to scoff, speak foolishly, from Old Norse gabba, to scoff.] —gab'ber n.

GABA abbr. Gamma-aminobutyric acid.

gab-ar-dine (gāb'ər-dēn', gāb'ər-dēn') n. 1. A sturdy, tightly woven fabric of cotton, wool, or rayon twill. Also called gaberdine 2. See gaberdine (n., sense 1). 3. Chiefly British. A laborer's long, loose smock; a gaberdine. [Alteration of GABERDINE.]

gab-ble (gāb'əl) v. gab-bled, gab-bling, gab-bles. — v. intr. 1. To speak rapidly or incoherently; jabber. 2. To make rapid, low muttering or quacking sounds, as a goose or duck. — v. tr. To utter rapidly or incoherently. — n. 1. Rapid, incoherent, or meaningless speech. 2. The low muttering sound of a goose or duck. [Probably frequentative of GAB.] —gab'bler n.

gab-bro (gāb'rō) n. pl. gab-bros. A usually coarse-grained igneous rock composed chiefly of calcic plagioclase and pyroxene. Also called norite [Italian, perhaps from Latin glaber, bald, beardless.] —gab-bro'ic (gā-brō'ik) adj.

gab-broid (gāb'roid') adj. Resembling gabbro.

gab-by (gāb'ē) adj. gab-bi-er, gab-bi-est. Slang. Tending to talk excessively; garrulous. —gab'bi-ness n.

ga·belle (gə-bĕl') n. A tax, especially the salt tax imposed in France before 1790. [Middle English gabel, from Old French, from Old Italian gabella, from Arabic qabāla, tribute, from qabila, to receive.]

gab·er·dine (găb'ər-dĕn', găb'ər-dĕn') n. 1. A long, coarse cloak or frock worn especially by Jews during the Middle Ages. Also called gabardine 2. Chiefly British. A loose smock worn by laborers. 3. See gabardine (n., sense 1). [Obsolete French gauvardine, from Old French galvardine, perhaps from Middle High German wallevert, pilgrimage : wallen, to roam + vart, journey (from Middle High German, from Old High German, from faran, to go); see per-² in Appendix.]

gab·fest (găb'fĕst') n. Slang. 1. An informal gathering or session for the exchange of news, opinions, and gossip. 2. A long, animated conversation or discussion.

ga·bi·on (gā'bĕ-ən) n. 1. A cylindrical wicker basket filled with earth and stones, formerly used in building fortifications. 2. A hollow metal cylinder used especially in constructing dams and foundations. [French, from Italian gabbione, augmentative of gabbia, cage, from Latin cavea.]

ga·ble (gā'bəl) n. 1. a. The generally triangular section of wall at the end of a pitched roof, occupying the space between the two slopes of the roof. b. The whole end wall of a building or wing having a gable roof. 2. A triangular, usually ornamental architectural section, as one above an arched door or window. [Middle English gable, gavel, from Norman French gable (perhaps of Celtic origin), and from Old Norse gafl; see ghebh-el- in Appendix.] —ga'bled adj.

Ga·ble (gā'bəl), (William) Clark. 1901-1960. American actor who received an Academy Award for his performance in It Happened One Night (1934).

gable roof (gā'bəl rōof) n. A pitched roof having a gable at each end.

Ga·bo (gā'bō, -bə), Naum. 1890-1977. Russian-born American sculptor and designer known for his sculptural experiments with constructivism.

Ga·bon (gă-bōn') A country of west-central Africa on the Atlantic Ocean. Settled by the French in 1841, it became part of French Equatorial Africa in 1910 and achieved independence in 1960. Libreville is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,312,000.

Ga·bor (gă'bôr, gə-bôr'), Dennis. 1900-1979. Hungarian-born British physicist. He won a 1971 Nobel Prize for his work on holography.

Ga·bo·riau (gă-bô-ryō'), Émile. 1832?-1873. French writer who is considered a founder of the detective novel. His works include Monsieur Lecoq (1868) and L'Argent des Autres (1874).

Ga·bo·rone (gă'bə-rōn', -rō'nē) The capital of Botswana, in the southeast part of the country near the South African border. It was founded c. 1890. Population, 72,000.

Ga·bri·el (gă'brĕ-əl) n. Bible. An archangel acting as the messenger of God.

ga-by (gā'bē) n. pl. ga-bies. Chiefly British. A person of deficient intelligence. [Origin unknown.]

gad¹ (găd) v. intr. gad-ded, gad-ding, gads. To move about restlessly and with little purpose. See Synonyms at wander. [Middle English gadden, to hurry.] —gad'der n.

gad² (găd) n. 1. A pointed tool, such as a spike or chisel, used for breaking rock or ore. 2. A goad, as for prodding cattle. — v. tr. gad-ded, gad-ding, gads. To break up (ore, for example) with a gad. [Middle English, from Old Norse gaddr.]

Gad¹ (găd) In the Old Testament, a son of Jacob and the forebear of one of the tribes of Israel.

Gad² (găd) interj. Used to express surprise or dismay. [Alteration of GOD.]

gad-a-bout (găd'ə-bout') n. One who roams or roves about, as in search of amusement or social activity.

Gad-a-ra (găd'ər-ə) An ancient city of Palestine southeast of the Sea of Galilee. It was one of the Greek cities of the Decapolis. —Gad'a-rene' (găd'ə-rēn', găd'ə-rēn') adj. & n.

Gad-da-fi (gə-dă'fē), Muammar al-. See Muammar al-Qaddafi.

gad-fly (găd'flī) n. pl. gad-flies. 1. A persistent, irritating critic; a nuisance. 2. One that acts as a provocative stimulus; a goad. 3. Any of various flies, especially of the family Tabanidae, that bite or annoy livestock and other animals.

gadg-et (găj'it) n. A small specialized mechanical or electronic device; a contrivance. [Origin unknown.] —gadg-et-y adv.

gadg-e-teer (găj'ī-tēr) n. A person who designs, builds, or delights in the use of gadgets.

gadg-et-ry (găj'ī-trē) n. 1. Gadgets considered as a group. 2. The design or construction of gadgets.

ga-doid (gā'doid', găd'oid') also ga-did (gā'did) adj. Of or belonging to the fish family Gadidae, which includes the cods and the hakes. — n. A fish of the family Gadidae. [New Latin Gadus, fish genus (from Greek gados, a kind of fish) + -OID.]

gad-o-lin-ite (găd'l-ə-nīt') n. A dark green or greenish-black silicate mineral, $\text{Be}_2\text{FeY}_2\text{Si}_2\text{O}_{10}$, containing several of the rare earths in combination with iron. [After Johan Gadolin (1760-1852), Finnish chemist.]

gad-o-lin-i-um (găd'l-īn'ē-əm) n. Symbol Gd A silvery-white, malleable, ductile, metallic rare-earth element obtained from monazite and bastnaesite and used in improving high-temperature characteristics of iron, chromium, and related alloys. Atomic number 64; atomic weight 157.25; melting point 1,312°C; boiling point approximately 3,000°C; specific gravity from 7.8 to 7.896; valence 3. [After Johan Gadolin (1760-1852), Finnish chemist.]

ga-droon (gə-drōn') n. 1. Architecture. A band of convex molding carved with ornamental beading or reeding. 2. An ornamental band, used especially in silverwork, embellished with fluting, reeding, or another continuous pattern. [French godron, from Old French goderon, perhaps from godet, cup without base or handle, from Middle Dutch kodde, log, from Old Provençal got, cup, from Latin guttus, flask, from gutta, drop.] —ga-drooned' adj. —ga-droon'ing n.

Gads-den (gădz'dən) A city of northeast Alabama northeast of Birmingham. It is an industrial center. Population, 42,523.

Gads-den (gădz'dən), James. 1788-1858. American diplomat, politician, and railroad promoter who negotiated the Gadsden Purchase.

Gadsden Purchase (gădz'dən pûr'chîs) An area in extreme southern New Mexico and Arizona south of the Gila River. It was purchased by the United States from Mexico in 1853 to ensure territorial rights for a practicable southern railroad route to the Pacific Coast.

gad-wall (găd'wôl') n. A widely distributed North American duck (Anas strepera) having gray or brown plumage. [Origin unknown.]

gad-zooks (găd'zōoks') interj. Used as a mild or ironic oath: "Gadzooks! Is there a panic detector, akin to a smoke detector, that sniffs anxiety in the air?" (George F. Will). [Perhaps alteration for God's hooks, the nails of the crucifixion of Christ.]

Gae·a (jē'ə) also Gai·a (gā'ə) n. Greek Mythology. The goddess of the earth, who bore and married Uranus and became the mother of the Titans and the Cyclopes.

Gael (gāl) n. 1. A Gaelic-speaking Celt of Scotland, Ireland, or the Isle of Man.

2. A Scottish Highlander. [Scottish Gaelic Gaidheal, and Irish Gaelic Gaedheal both from Old Irish Goídil. See GOIDELIC.]

Gael·ic (gā'lik) adj. Of or relating to the Gaels or their culture or languages. — n. 1. Goidelic. 2. Any of the Goidelic languages.

Ga·e·ta (gä-ā'tə, -ě'tä) A city of west-central Italy northwest of Naples on the Gulf of Gaeta, an inlet of the Tyrrhenian Sea. Gaeta was a favorite resort of the ancient Romans and a prosperous duchy from the 9th to the 12th century, when it was conquered by the Normans. Population, 22,605.

gaff¹ (găf) n. 1. A large iron hook attached to a pole or handle and used to land large fish. 2. Nautical. A spar attached to the mast and used to extend the upper edge of a fore-and-aft sail. 3. a. A sharp metal spur fastened to the leg of a gamecock. b. A climbing hook used by telephone and electric line workers.

4. Slang. A trick or gimmick, especially one used in a swindle or to rig a game.

5. Slang. Harshness of treatment; abuse. — v. tr. gaffed, gaf·fing, gaffs.

1. To hook or land (a fish) using a gaff. 2. To equip (a gamecock) with a gaff.

3. Slang. a. To take in or defraud; swindle. b. To rig or fix in order to cheat:

knew that the carnival games had been gaffed. [Middle English gaffe, from Old French, from Old Provençal gaf, from gafar, to seize, of Germanic origin. See kap- in Appendix.]

gaff² (găf) n. Chiefly British. A public place of entertainment, especially a cheap or disreputable music hall or theater. [Origin unknown.]

gaff³ (găf) n. Variant of gaffe.

gaffe also gaff (găf) n. 1. A clumsy social error; a faux pas: “The excursion had in his eyes been a monstrous gaffe, a breach of sensibility and good taste” (Mary McCarthy). 2. A blatant mistake or misjudgment. [French, from Old French, hook. See GAFF¹.]

gaf·fer (găf'ər) n. 1. An electrician in charge of lighting on a movie or television set. 2. Chiefly British. An old man or a rustic. 3. Chiefly British. A boss or foreman. [Probably alteration (influenced by GRANDFATHER), of GODFATHER.]

gaff rig (găf rĭg) n. Nautical. A rig with a fore-and-aft sail that has its upper edge supported by a gaff.

gaff-top-sail (găf'töp'səl, -sāl') n. Nautical. A light triangular or quadrilateral sail set over a gaff.

gag (găg) n. 1. Something forced into or put over the mouth to prevent speaking or crying out. 2. An obstacle to or a censoring of free speech. 3. A device placed in the mouth to keep it open, as in dentistry. 4. a. A practical joke. b. A comic effect or remark. See Synonyms at joke. 5. The act or an instance of gagging or choking. — v. gagged, gag-ging, gags. — v. tr. 1. To prevent from speaking or crying out by using a gag. 2. To stop or restrain from exercising free speech: editorial laws aimed at gagging the press. 3. To cause to choke, retch, or undergo a regurgitative spasm. 4. To keep (the mouth) open by using a gag. 5. To block off or obstruct (a pipe or valve, for example). — v. intr. 1. a. To experience a regurgitative spasm in the throat, as from revulsion to a food or smell or in reflexive response to an introduced object. b. To retch or choke. 2. To make jokes or quips. [From Middle English gaggen, to suffocate, perhaps of imitative origin.]

ga·ga (gä'gä') adj. Informal. 1. Silly; crazy. 2. Completely absorbed, infatuated, or excited: They were gaga over the rock group's new album. 3. Senile; doddering. [French, old fool, gaga, of imitative origin.]

Ga·ga·rin (gə-gär'in), Yuri Alekseyevich. 1934-1968. Soviet cosmonaut. In 1961 he became the first person to travel in space. He was killed while flying a routine aircraft training mission.

gage¹ (gāj) n. 1. Something deposited or given as security against an obligation; a pledge. 2. Something, such as a glove, that is offered or thrown down as a pledge or challenge to fight. 3. A challenge. — v. tr. gaged, gag-ing, gage-es. Archaic. 1. To pledge as security. 2. To offer as a stake in a bet; wager. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

gage² (gāj) n. Any of several varieties of plum, such as the greengage. [After Sir William Gage, 18th-century British botanist.]

gage³ (gāj) n. & v. Variant of gauge.

Gage (gāj), Thomas. 1721-1787. British general and colonial administrator. As governor of Massachusetts (1774-1775) his attempts to suppress colonial resistance led to the start of the American Revolution.

gag·er (gā'jər) n. Variant of gauger.

gag·ger (gāg'ər) n. One that gags, as a piece of metal used to keep the core in position in a foundry mold.

gag·gle (gāg'əl) n. 1. A flock of geese. See Synonyms at flock¹. 2. A cluster or group: "A gaggle of photographers huddled on the sidewalk beside a swelling crowd of onlookers" (Gioia Diliberto). [Middle English gagel, from gagelen, to cackle, probably of imitative origin.]

gag law (gāg lô) n. 1. Law. A law intended to limit freedom of the press, as by instituting censorship or restricting access to information. 2. See gag rule.

gag line (gāg līn) n. A line, as in a comedy routine or speech, intended to provoke laughter.

gag·man (gāg'män') n. 1. A man employed to write jokes or comedy routines, as for a professional entertainer or show. 2. A comedian who uses gags, especially a standup comedian.

gag order (gāg ôr'dər) n. Law. A court order forbidding public reporting or commentary, as by the news media, on a case currently before the court.

gag rule (gāg rōol) n. A rule, as in a legislative body, limiting discussion or debate on an issue. Also called gag law gag·ster (gāg'stər) n. 1. A gagman, especially a standup comedian. 2. One who tells or plays jokes; a joker.

Ga·han·na (gə-hän'ə) A city of central Ohio, a suburb of Columbus. Population, 27,791.

gahn·ite (gā'nīt') n. A dark green to brown or black mineral, $ZnAl_2O_4$. Also called zinc spinel [After Johan Gottlieb Gahn (1745-1818), Swedish mineralogist.]

Gai·a (gā'ə) n. Greek Mythology. Variant of Gaea.

gai·e·ty also gay·e·ty (gā'ī-tē) n. pl. gai·e·ties. 1. A state of joyful exuberance or merriment; vivacity. 2. Merry or joyful activity; festivity: making preparations for the holiday gaieties. 3. Bright color or showiness, as of dress; finery. [French gaieté, from Old French, from gai, cheerful. See GAY.]

Gail·lard (gīl-yārd'), David Du Bose. 1859-1913. American army engineer noted for his excavations in the southeast part of the Panama Canal.

Gail·lard Cut (gīl-yārd' kūt, gā'lārd') Formerly Cu·le·bra Cut (kōō-lā'brə). An excavation, about 13 km (8 mi) long and 14 m (45 ft) deep, through Culebra Mountain, a hill in the Canal Zone, Panama. The cut forms the southeast section of the Panama Canal.

gail-lar-di-a (gə-lär'dē-ə) n. Any of several New World plants of the genus Gaillardia in the composite family, having red or yellow florets grouped into large solitary flower heads. Also called blanket flower [New Latin Gaillardia, genus name, after Gaillard de Marentonneau, 18th-century French botanist.]

gai-ly also gay-ly (gā'lē) adv. 1. In a joyful, cheerful, or happy manner; merrily. 2. With bright colors or trimmings; showily: gaily dressed in ribbons and flounces.

gain¹ (gān) v. gained, gain-ing, gains. — v. tr. 1. To come into possession or use of; acquire: gained a small fortune in real estate; gained important information about the enemy's plans. 2. To attain in competition or struggle; win: gained a decisive victory; gained control of the company. 3. To obtain through effort or merit; achieve: gain recognition; gain a hearing for the proposal. 4. To secure as profit or reward; earn: gain a living; gain extra credits in school. 5. a. To manage to achieve an increase of: a movement that gained strength; gained wisdom with age. b. To increase by (a specific amount): gained 15 pounds; the market gained 30 points. 6. To come to; reach: gained the top of the mountain. See Synonyms at reach. 7. To become fast by (a specified amount of time). Used of a timepiece: My watch gains four minutes a day. — v. intr. 1. To increase; grow: gained in experience and maturity; a painting that gained in value. 2. To become better; improve: gaining in health. 3. To obtain a profit or advantage; benefit: stood to gain politically by his opponent's blunder. 4. a. To close a gap; get closer: The runners in the back were steadily gaining on the leader. b. To increase a lead. 5. To put on weight: I began to gain when I went off my diet. 6. To operate or run fast. Used of a timepiece. — n. 1. a. Something gained or acquired: territorial gains. b. Progress; advancement: The country made social and political gains under the new government. 2. The act of acquiring; attainment. 3. An increase in amount or degree: a gain in operating income. 4. Electronics. An increase in signal power, voltage, or current by an amplifier, expressed as the ratio of output to input. Also called amplification — idiom. gain time. 1. To run too fast. Used of a timepiece. 2. To delay or prolong something until a desired event occurs. [From Middle English gayne, booty (from Old French gaigne, gain, gain, from gaaignier, to gain, of Germanic origin), Middle English gein, advantage (from Old Norse gegn, ready,, and from Old French gain, gain).]

gain² (gān) n. A notch or mortise cut into a board to receive another part. — v. tr. gained, gain-ing, gains. 1. To cut out a gain in. 2. To join by or fit into a gain. [Origin unknown.]

gain-er (gā'nər) n. 1. One that gains: a gainer of weight. 2. Sports. A dive in which the diver leaves the board facing forward, does a back somersault, and enters the water feet first.

Gaines (gānz), Edmund Pendleton. 1777-1849. American general who defended Fort Erie in the War of 1812.

Gainesville (gānz'vīl', -vəl) 1. A city of north-central Florida southwest of Jacksonville. The University of Florida (founded 1853) is important to its economy. Population, 84,770. 2. A city of north-central Georgia northeast of Atlanta in the foothills of the Blue Ridge. It is a trade and industrial center. Population, 17,885.

gain·ful (gān'fəl) adj. Providing a gain; profitable: gainful employment.

—gain·ful·ly adv. —gain·ful·ness n.

gain·say (gān-sā', gān'sā') v. tr. gain·said (-sād', -səd'), gain·say·ing, gain·says (-sāz', -sēz'). 1. To declare false; deny. See Synonyms at deny. 2. To oppose, especially by contradiction. [Middle English gainsayen : gain-, against (from Old English gegn-) + sayen, to say (from Old English secgan); see SAY.]

—gain·say'er n.

Gainsborough (gānz'bûr'ō, -bər-ə), Thomas. 1727-1788. British portrait and landscape painter. His masterpieces include The Blue Boy and The Harvest Wagon (both c. 1770).

'gainst also gainst (gənst, gānst) prep. Against.

Gai·ser·ic (gī'zə-rīk') See Genseric.

gait (gāt) n. 1. A particular way or manner of moving on foot: a person who ran with a clumsy, hobbling gait. 2. Any of the ways, such as a canter, trot, or walk, by which a horse can move by lifting the feet in different order or rhythm. 3. Rate or manner of proceeding: The project went forward at a steady gait. — v. tr.

gait·ed, gait·ing, gaits. To train (a horse) in a particular gait or gaits. [Middle English gate, path, gait, from Old Norse gata, path. See ghē- in Appendix.]

gait·ed (gā'tīd) adj. Having a specified gait. Often used in combination: smooth-gaited; slow-gaited.

gai·ter (gā'tər) n. 1. a. A heavy cloth or leather covering for the legs extending from the instep to the ankle or knee. b. A similar covering of lightweight, moisture-resistant fabric, used by skiers in conditions of deep snow. 2. An ankle-high shoe with elastic sides. 3. An overshoe with a cloth top. [French guêtre, from Old French guietre, of Germanic origin. See wer-² in Appendix.]

Gai·thers·burg (gā'thərz-bûrg') A city of west-central Maryland north-northwest of Washington, D.C. It is a residential city with light industries. Population, 39,542.

Gait·skell (gāt'skəl), Hugh Todd Naylor. 1906-1963. British politician who served as Chancellor of the Exchequer (1950-1951) and leader of the Labor Party (1955-1963).

Ga·ius (gā'əs, gī'-) also Ca·ius (kā'-, kī'-), fl. A.D. 130-180. Roman jurist whose chief work, the Institutes, is a major source of information on Roman law.

Gaj·du·sek (gī'də-shĕk'), D(aniel) Carleton. Born 1923. American virologist. He shared a 1976 Nobel Prize for research on the origin and spread of infectious diseases.

gal (gāl) n. Informal. A girl. [Alteration of GIRL.]

gal. abbr. Gallon.

Gal. abbr. Bible. Galatians.

ga·la (gā'lə, gāl'ə, gäl'lə) n. 1. A festive occasion, especially a lavish social event or entertainment. 2. Chiefly British. An athletic competition, especially a swimming contest. — adj. 1. Marked by lavish or festive celebration: a gala ball after the inaugural ceremony. 2. Characterized by sumptuous social pleasure: the gala life of the very rich. [Italian, and French both ultimately from Old French gale, rejoicing, from galer, to make merry. See GALLANT.]

ga·la·bi·a (jə-lä'bē-ə) n. Variant of djellaba.

galact- pref. Variant of galacto-.

ga·lac·tic (gə-läk'tik) adj. 1. Of or relating to a galaxy, especially the Milky Way. 2. Of enormous size; immense.

galactic equator (gə-läk'tik ĭ-kwā'tər) n. The great circle of the celestial sphere that lies in the plane bisecting the band of the Milky Way, inclined at an angle of approximately 62° to the celestial equator. Also called galactic circle galactic noise (gə-läk'tik noiz) n. Radio-frequency radiation originating outside the solar system.

galacto- or galact- pref. Milk: galactose. [From Greek galakto-, from gala, galakt-, milk. See melg- in Appendix.]

ga·lac·to·poi·e·sis (gə-läk'tə-poi-ē'sis) n. Secretion and continued production of milk by the mammary glands. — ga·lac'to·poi·et'ic (-ēt'ik) adj.

ga·lac·tor·rhe·a (gə-läk'tə-rē'ə) n. 1. Excessive flow of milk from the breasts during lactation. 2. Spontaneous milk flow not associated with childbirth or the nursing of an infant.

gal·ac·tos·am·ine (gäl'ək-tō'sə-mēn', gə-läk-) n. An amino-acid derivative of galactose.

ga·lac·tose (gə-läk'tōs') n. A monosaccharide, $\text{CH}_2\text{OH}(\text{CHOH})_4\text{CHO}$, commonly occurring in lactose and in certain pectins, gums, and mucilages.

ga·lac·to·se·mi·a (gə-läk'tə-sē'mē-ə) n. An inherited metabolic disorder characterized by the deficiency of an enzyme that is necessary for the metabolism of galactose. The disorder results in elevated levels of galactose in the blood and, if untreated, can lead to mental retardation and eye and liver abnormalities.

— ga·lac'to·se'mic adj.

ga·lac·to·si·dase (gə-läk'tō-sī-dās', -dāz', -läk-tō'-) n. An enzyme that catalyzes the hydrolysis of a galactoside.

ga·lac·to·side (gə-läk'tə-sīd') n. Any of a group of glycosides that yield galactose on hydrolysis.

ga·la·go (gə-lä'gō, -lä'-) n. pl. ga·la·gos. See bush baby. [New Latin Galago, genus name, perhaps from Wolof golo, monkey.]

ga·lah (gə-lä') n. 1. An Australian cockatoo (Cacatua roseicapilla) having pale blue-gray plumage and a pink breast. 2. Australian. A fool; an idiot.

[Yuwaalaraay (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) gilaa.]

Gal·a·had (gäl'ə-häd') n. 1. In Arthurian legend, the purest of the Knights of the Round Table who alone succeeded in the quest for the Holy Grail. 2. One considered to be noble, pure, or chivalrous.

ga·lan·gal (gə-läng'gəl) n. 1. A plant (Alpinia officinarum) of eastern Asia, having pungent, aromatic roots used medicinally and as seasoning. 2. The dried roots of this plant. [Variant of GALINGALE.]

gal·an·tine (gäl'ən-tēn') n. A dish of boned, stuffed meat or fish that is poached and served cold coated with aspic. [Middle English galauntine, a kind of sauce, from Old French galatine, galentine, aspic, fish sauce, diminutive of Medieval Latin gelāta, jelly, from feminine past participle of Latin gelāre, to freeze, coagulate. See GELATIN.]

ga·lan·ty show (gə-län'tē shō) n. A shadow play performed by casting the shadows of miniature figures on a screen or wall. [Perhaps from Italian galanti, pl. of galante, a gallant, from Old French galant. See GALLANT.]

Ga·lá·pa·gos Islands (gə-lä'pə-gəs ī'ləndz, -läp'ə-) A group of volcanic islands in the Pacific Ocean west of the mainland of Ecuador. The islands are famous for their rare species of fauna, including the giant tortoises for which they are named. Charles Darwin visited the islands in 1835 and collected a wealth of scientific data that contributed to his theory of natural selection. Tourism is now strictly regulated to protect the endangered species unknown outside the archipelago.

gal·a·te·a (gäl'ə-tē'ə) n. A durable, often striped cotton fabric used in making clothing. [After the Galatea, a 19th-century English warship (from the fabric's use for children's sailor suits).]

Gal·a·te·a (gäl'ə-tē'ə) n. Greek Mythology. A maiden who was originally a statue carved by Pygmalion and who was brought to life by Aphrodite in answer to the sculptor's pleas.

Ga·la·ți (gä-läts', -lätsē) or Ga·latz (gä'läts') A city of eastern Romania on the lower Danube River northeast of Bucharest. Founded in the Middle Ages, it is a major inland port. Population, 285,077.

Ga·la·tia (gə-lä'shə, -shē-ə) An ancient country of central Asia Minor in the region surrounding modern Ankara, Turkey. Settled by Gauls in the third century B.C., it became a Roman province in 25 B.C. —Ga·la'tian adj. & n.

Ga·la·tians (gə-lä'shənz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Abbr. Gal., Ga Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Ga·latz (gä'läts') See Galați.

gal·a·vant (gäl'ə-vänt') v. Variant of gallivant.

ga·lax (gā'lāks') n. A stemless, evergreen, perennial plant (Galax urceolata) of the eastern United States, having a rosette of glossy, heart-shaped leaves and small, white flowers in spikelike clusters. Also called beetleweed, coltsfoot, wand-flower. [New Latin Galax, genus name, from Greek gala, milk. See GALAXY.]

gal·ax·y (gāl'ək-sē) n. pl. gal·ax·ies. 1. a. Any of numerous large-scale aggregates of stars, gas, and dust that constitute the universe, containing an average of 100 billion (10^{11}) solar masses and ranging in diameter from 1,500 to 300,000 light-years. Also called nebula. b. Often Galaxy. The Milky Way. 2. An assembly of brilliant, glamorous, or distinguished persons or things: a galaxy of theatrical performers. [Middle English galaxie, the Milky Way, from Late Latin galaxias, from Greek, milky, from gala, galakt-, milk. See melg- in Appendix.]

Gal·ba (gāl'bə, gōl'-) Servius Sulpicius. 3 B.C.-A.D. 69. Emperor of Rome (68-69) who was assassinated after naming an unpopular successor.

gal·ba·num (gāl'bə-nəm, gōl'-) n. A bitter, aromatic gum resin extracted from an Asiatic plant (Ferula galbaniflua) or any of several related plants and used in incense and medicinally as a counterirritant. [Middle English, from Latin, from Greek khalbanē, from Hebrew ḥelbēnâ.]

Gal·braith (gāl'brāth'), John Kenneth. Born 1908. Canadian-born American economist, writer, and diplomat who served as U.S. ambassador to India (1961-1963). His works include The Great Crash (1955) and The Affluent Society (1958).

gale¹ (gāl) n. 1. A very strong wind. 2. Meteorology. a. Any of four winds with speeds of from 32 to 63 miles (51 to 102 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale. b. A fresh gale. 3. A forceful outburst: gales of laughter.

4. Archaic. A breeze. [Origin unknown.]

gale² (gāl) n. The sweet gale. [Middle English gail, from Old English gagel.]

Gale (gāl), Zona. 1874-1938. American writer known for her novels dealing with life in the rural Midwest, such as Birth (1918) and Miss Lulu Bett (1920).

ga·le·a (gā'lē-ə) n. pl. ga·le·ae (-lē-ē'). A helmet-shaped part, such as the upper petal of certain plants or part of the maxilla of an insect. [Latin, helmet.]

ga·le·ate (gā'lē-āt') also ga·le·at·ed (-ā'tīd) adj. 1. Biology. Having a galea.

2. Helmet-shaped. [Latin galeātus, past participle of galeāre, to cover with a helmet, from galea, helmet.]

Ga·len (gā'lən), A.D. 130?-200?. Greek anatomist, physician, and writer. His theories formed the basis of European medicine until the Renaissance.

ga·le·na (gə-lē'nə) n. A gray mineral, essentially PbS, the principal ore of lead. [Latin galēna, lead ore.]

Ga·le·na (gə-lē'nə) A city of extreme northwest Illinois west-northwest of Rockford. A prosperous river port until the 1860's, it was the home of Ulysses S. Grant, whose residence is now a museum. Population, 3,876.

ga-len-i-cal (gā-lĕn'ī-kəl, gə-) n. A medicinal preparation composed mainly of herbal or vegetable matter. — adj. Of, relating to, or being a drug or agent made up chiefly of herbal or vegetable matter. [After GALEN.]

Ga-len-ism (gā'lə-nĭz'əm) n. The medical system based on the theories or practices of Galen. — Ga'len-ist adj. & n.

Ga-le-ri-us (gə-lĭr'ē-əs), Died A.D. 311. Emperor of Rome (305-311). Despite a ruthless reign characterized by the persecution of Christians, he issued an edict of religious toleration shortly before his death.

Gales-burg (gālz'bûrg') A city of northwest-central Illinois west-northwest of Peoria. The poet Carl Sandburg was born here in 1878. Population, 33,530.

gal Friday (gāl frī'dē) n. Informal. A girl Friday.

Ga-li-bi (gə-lĕ'bē) n. pl. Galibi or Ga-li-bis. 1. A member of the Carib people of French Guiana. 2. The language of the Galibi. [Carib, strong man, Galibi. See CANNIBAL.]

Ga-li-cia (gə-lĭsh'ə, -ē-ə) 1. A historical region of central Europe in southeast Poland and western Ukraine. An independent principality after 1087, it was conquered by the Russians in the 12th century and later passed to Poland and Austria. The territory was returned to Poland after World War I, and the eastern portion was ceded to the U.S.S.R. after World War II. 2. A region and ancient kingdom of northwest Spain on the Atlantic Ocean south of the Bay of Biscay. Exploited by the Romans for its mineral resources, it later became a Goth kingdom and a stronghold of the Moors.

Ga-li-cian¹ (gə-lĭsh'ən) adj. Of or relating to Polish Galicia or its people, language, or culture. — n. A native or inhabitant of Polish Galicia.

Ga-li-cian² (gə-lĭsh'ən) adj. Of or relating to Spanish Galicia or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Spanish Galicia. 2. The Portuguese dialect spoken in Spanish Galicia.

Gal-i-le-an also Gal-i-lae-an (gāl'ə-lĕ'ən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Galilee. 2. A Christian. 3. Jesus. — adj. Of or relating to Galilee or its people.

gal-i-lee (gāl'ə-lĕ') n. A small chapel or porch at the western end of a medieval English church. [Middle English galile, from Old North French galilee, from Medieval Latin galilaea, from Latin Galilea, Galilee.]

Gal-i-lee (gāl'ə-lĕ') A region of northern Israel. The northernmost part of Palestine and the ancient kingdom of Israel, Galilee was the center of Jesus's ministry.

Galilee, Sea of. Formerly, Lake. Ti-be-ri-as (tī-bĭr'ē-əs). A freshwater lake of northeast Israel. About 214 m (700 ft) below sea level, it is fed and drained by the Jordan River.

Ga-li-le-o Ga-li-lei (gāl'ə-lĕ'ō gāl'ə-lā', -lā'ō), 1564-1642. Italian astronomer and physicist. The first to use a telescope to study the stars (1610), he was an outspoken advocate of Copernicus's theory that the sun forms the center of the universe, which led to his persecution and imprisonment by the Inquisition (1633).

—Gal'i-le'an adj.

gal-i-ma-ti-as (gäl'ə-mā'shē-əs, -mät'ē-əs) n. Nonsense; gibberish. [French.]

gal-in-gale (gäl'ın-gāl') n. Any of various sedges of the genus Cyperus, especially C. longus of Europe, having rough-edged leaves, reddish spikelets, and aromatic roots. [Middle English, a kind of root, from Old French galingal, from Arabic hulunjān, from Chinese (Mandarin) Gāo liáng jiāng, a kind of ginger : Gāo liáng, an area in Guangdong province + jiāng, ginger.]

gal-i-ot also gal-li-ot (gäl'ē-ət) n. Nautical. 1. A light, swift galley formerly used in the Mediterranean. 2. A light, single-masted, flat-bottomed Dutch merchant ship. [Middle English, from Old French, from galee, galie. See GALLEY.]

gal-i-pot (gäl'ə-pöt', -pō') n. Crude turpentine obtained from the cluster pine tree (Pinus pinaster) of southern Europe. [French.]

gall¹ (gôl) n. 1. See bile (n., sense 1). 2. a. Bitterness of feeling; rancor.

b. Something bitter to endure: the gall of defeat. 3. Outrageous insolence; effrontery. See Synonyms at temerity. [Middle English, from Old English gealla, galla. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

gall² (gôl) n. 1. A skin sore caused by friction and abrasion: a saddle gall.

2. a. Exasperation; vexation. b. The cause of such vexation. — v. galled, gall-ing, galls. — v. tr. 1. To make (the skin) sore by abrasion; chafe. 2. To damage or break the surface of by or as if by friction; abrade: the bark of saplings galled by improper staking. See Synonyms at chafe. 3. To irk or exasperate; vex: It galled me to have to wait outside. — v. intr. To become irritated, chafed, or sore. [Middle English galle, from Old English gealla, possibly from Latin galla, gallnut.]

gall³ (gôl) n. An abnormal swelling of plant tissue caused by insects, microorganisms, or external injury. [Middle English galle, from Old French, from Latin galla, gallnut.]

Gal-la (gäl'ə) n. pl. Galla or Gal-las. See Oromo. [Perhaps from Arabic galīz, rough.] —Gal'la adj.

gal-lant (gäl'ənt) adj. 1. Smartly or boldly stylish; dashing: a gallant feathered hat; cut a gallant figure at the coronation. 2. a. Unflinching in battle or action; valiant: put up a gallant resistance to the attackers. b. Nobly or selflessly resolute: made a gallant attempt to save his friend's reputation. 3. Stately; majestic. 4. (gə-länt', -länt')

a. Courteously attentive especially to women; chivalrous. b. Flirtatious; amorous. — n. (gə-länt', -länt', gäl'ənt) 1. A fashionable young man. 2. a. A man courteously attentive to women. b. A woman's lover; a paramour. — v. gal-lant-ed, gal-lant-ing, gal-lants (gə-länt', -länt'). — v. tr. To woo or pay court to (a lady). — v. intr. To play the gallant. [Middle English galaunt, from Old French galant, present participle of galer, to rejoice, of Germanic origin. See wel-¹ in Appendix.] —gal'lant-ly adv.

Gal-lant (gə-lănt'), Mavis. Born 1922. Canadian writer whose works include the short-story collection The Other Paris (1956) and the novel A Fairly Good Time (1970).

gal-lant-ry (găl'an-trē) n. pl. gal-lant-ries. 1. Nobility of spirit or action; courage. 2. Chivalrous attention toward women; courtliness: "the air of faintly mocking gallantry with which he habitually treated mother" (Louis Auchincloss). 3. The act or an instance of gallant speech or behavior. 4. Archaic. A bold or stylish appearance.

Gal-la-tin (găl'i-tn) A city of northern Tennessee northeast of Nashville. It is a trade and market center in a tobacco-growing region. Population, 18,794.

Gal-la-tin (găl'ə-tin), (Abraham Alfonse) Albert. 1761-1849. Swiss-born American financier and politician who served as U.S. representative from New York (1795-1801), secretary of the treasury (1801-1814), and minister to France (1816-1823) and Great Britain (1826-1827).

Gallatin Range (găl'i-tn rānj) A section of the Rocky Mountains in northwest Wyoming and southwest Montana rising to 3,402.3 m (11,155 ft) at Electric Peak.

Gallatin River (găl'i-tn rīv'ər) A river rising in the Gallatin Range of northwest Wyoming and flowing about 201 km (125 mi) generally northwest to join the Jefferson and Madison rivers and form the Missouri River in southwest Montana.

Gal-lau-det (găl'ə-dēt'), Thomas Hopkins. 1787-1851. American educator who established the first free American school for the hearing-impaired (1817).

gall-blad-der also gall bladder (gôl'blăd'ər) n. A small, pear-shaped muscular sac, located under the right lobe of the liver, in which bile secreted by the liver is stored until needed by the body for digestion.

Galle (gäl, gäl) A city of southern Sri Lanka on the Indian Ocean. It was a trade center for the Chinese and Arabs by 100 B.C. and later flourished as a Portuguese and Dutch port. Population, 77,183.

gal-le-ass (găl'ē-ăs', -əs) n. Nautical. A large, fast, heavily armed three-masted Mediterranean galley of the 16th and 17th centuries. [French galeasse, from Old French, from Old Italian galeaza, augmentative of galea, galley, from Old Provençal, or Catalan; see GALLEY.]

Gal-le-gos Fre-ire (gä-yā'gōs frā'rā, gä-yě'gōs frě'rě), Rómulo. 1884-1969. Venezuelan writer and politician who became president of Venezuela in 1948 but was overthrown by a military junta in the same year.

gal-lein (găl'ē-in, gäl'ēn') n. A brown or metallic green dye, C₂₀H₁₂O₇, used as a pH indicator and in dyeing textiles. [GALL(IC ACID) + (PHTHAL)EIN.] gal-le-on (găl'ē-ən, gäl'yən) n. Nautical. A large three-masted sailing ship with a square rig and usually two or more decks, used from the 15th to 17th century especially by Spain as a merchant ship or warship. [Spanish galeon, from Old Spanish, augmentative of galea, galley, from Old French galie. See GALLEY.]

gal·le·ri·a (găl'ə-rē'ə) n. A roofed passageway or indoor court usually containing a variety of shops or businesses. [Italian, from Old Italian. See GALLERY.]

gal·ler·y (găl'ə-rē) n. pl. gal·ler·ies. 1. A roofed promenade, especially one extending along the wall of a building and supported by arches or columns on the outer side. 2. A long enclosed passage, such as a hallway or corridor. 3. a. A narrow balcony, usually having a railing or balustrade, along the outside of a building. b. A projecting or recessed passageway along an upper story on the interior or exterior of a large building, especially a church, generally marked by a colonnade or an arcade. 4. Lower Southern U.S. See veranda. 5. a. An upper section, often with a sloping floor, projecting from the rear or side walls of a theater or an auditorium to provide additional seating. b. The seats in such a section, usually cheaper than those on the main floor. c. The cheapest seats in a theater, generally those of the uppermost gallery. d. The audience occupying a gallery or cheap section of a theater. 6. A large audience or group of spectators, as at a tennis or golf match. 7. The general public, usually considered as exemplifying a lack of discrimination or sophistication: accused the administration of playing to the gallery on the defense issue. 8. a. A building, an institution, or a room for the exhibition of artistic work. b. An establishment that displays and sells works of art. c. A photographer's studio. 9. A collection; an assortment: The trial featured a gallery of famous and flamboyant witnesses. 10. a. An underground tunnel or passageway, as in a cave or one dug for military or mining purposes. b. A passage made by a tunneling insect or animal. 11. Nautical. A platform or balcony at the stern or quarters of some early sailing ships. 12. A decorative upright trimming or molding along the edge of a table top, tray, or shelf. [Middle English galerie, from Old French, from Old North French galilee, galilee. See GALILEE.]

—gal'ler·ied adj.

REGIONAL NOTE: In Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and southern Alabama, an open roofed porch that runs along at least one side of a house is called a gallery: “Out on the small front gallery she had hung Bobinôt’s Sunday clothes to air” (Kate Chopin). Craig M. Carver, the author of American Regional Dialects, points out that the word gallery, from Old French galerie, was borrowed into British English in the 15th century and was brought over to the American colonies by English-speaking settlers. Although the word in the sense “porch” did not survive in the American English of the East Coast, it was borrowed separately, probably from Acadian French, into the English of 18th-century Louisiana and there survived as part of the Gulf Southern dialect.

gal·ley (găl'ē) n. pl. gal·leys. 1. Nautical. a. A large, usually single-decked medieval ship of shallow draft, propelled by sails and oars and used as a merchant ship or warship in the Mediterranean. b. An ancient Mediterranean seagoing vessel propelled by oars. c. A large rowboat formerly used by British customs officers. 2. The kitchen of an airliner or a ship. 3. Printing. a. A long tray, usually of metal, used for holding composed type. b. Galley proof. [Middle English galei, from Old French galie, from Old Provençal, or Catalan galea from Medieval Greek, probably variant of Greek galeos, shark, perhaps from galeē, weasel.]

galley proof (găl'ē prōof) n. Printing. A proof taken from composed type before page composition to allow for the detection and correction of errors.

galley slave (găl'ē slāv) n. 1. A slave or convict forced to ply an oar of a galley. 2. A person assigned to perform tedious or menial tasks; a drudge.

gall·fly (gôl'flī') n. Any of various small insects, such as the gall midge or gall wasp, that deposit their eggs on plant stems or in the bark of trees, causing the formation of galls in which their larvae grow.

Gal·li·a (găl'ē-ä) See Gaul².

gal·liard (găl'yərd) n. 1. A spirited dance popular in France in the 16th and 17th centuries. 2. The triple-time music for this dance. — adj. Archaic. Spirited; lively; gay. [Middle English gaillard, from Old French gaillart, probably of Celtic origin.]

Gal·lic (găl'ik) adj. Of or relating to Gaul or France; French. [Latin Gallicus, from Gallus, a Gaul.]

gal·lic acid (găl'ik äs'id, gô'lik) n. A colorless crystalline compound, C₇H₆O₅, derived from tannin and used as a tanning agent, as an ink dye, and in photography and the manufacture of paper. [French acide gallique, from galle, plant gall. See GALL³.]

Gal·li·can (găl'i-kən) adj. 1. Relating to or characteristic of Gallicanism.

2. Gallic. — n. A supporter of Gallicanism.

Gal·li·can·ism (găl'i-kə-nīz'əm) n. A movement originating among the French Roman Catholic clergy that favored the restriction of papal control and the achievement by each nation of individual administrative autonomy.

Gal·li·cism (găl'i-sīz'əm) n. 1. A French phrase or idiom appearing in another language. 2. A characteristic French trait.

Gal·li·cize (găl'i-sīz') v. tr. intr. Gal·li·cized, Gal·li·ciz·ing, Gal·li·ciz·es. To make or become French, as in form, character, or custom. — Gal'li·ci·za'tion (-sī-zā'shən) n.

Gal·li·Cur·ci (găl'i-kōor'chē, gäl'lē-), Amelita. 1899-1963. Italian operatic soprano known as the greatest coloratura of her time.

gal·li·gas·kins (gäl'i-gäs'kīnz) pl.n. 1. Loosely fitting hose or breeches worn in the 16th and 17th centuries. 2. Loose trousers. 3. Chiefly British. Leggings. [Perhaps alteration (influenced by GALLEY, and GASCON), of French garguesques, variant of greguesques, from Spanish gregüescos, from griego, Greek, from Latin Graecus. See GREEK.]

gal·li·mau·fry (gäl'ə-mô'frē) n. pl. gal·li·mau·fries. A jumble; a hodge-podge. [French galimafrée, from Old French galimafree, sauce, ragout : probably galer, to make merry; see GALLANT + mafrer, to gorge oneself (from Middle Dutch moffelen, to open one's mouth wide, of imitative origin).]

gal·li·na·ceous (gäl'ə-nā'shəs) adj. 1. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the order Galliformes, which includes the common domestic fowl as well as the pheasants, turkeys, and grouse. 2. Relating to or resembling the domestic fowl. [From Latin gallināceus, of poultry, from gallīna, hen, feminine of gallus, cock. See gal- in Appendix.] —gal'li·na'cean n.

Gal·li·nas (gä-yē'näs), Point. A cape of northern Colombia, the northernmost point of South America.

gall·ing (gô'lĭng) adj. Causing extreme irritation or chagrin; vexing: a galling delay; a galling setback to their plans. —gall'ing·ly adv.

gal·li·nip·per (gäl'ə-nĭp'ər) n. A large mosquito or other insect capable of inflicting a painful bite. [Origin unknown.]

gal·li·nule (gäl'ə-nōōl', -nyōōl') n. Any of various wading and swimming birds of the family Rallidae, frequenting swampy regions and characteristically having dark, iridescent plumage and a red bill tipped with yellow. [Latin gallīnula, pullet, diminutive of gallīna, hen. See GALLINACEOUS.]

gal·li·ot (gäl'ē-ət) n. Nautical. Variant of galiot.

gal·li·pot (gäl'ə-pöt') n. A small glazed earthenware jar formerly used by druggists for medicaments. [Middle English galy pott : probably galei, galley; see GALLEY + pott, pot; see POT¹.]

gal·li·um (gäl'ē-əm) n. Symbol Ga A rare metallic element that is liquid near room temperature, expands on solidifying, and is found as a trace element in coal, bauxite, and other minerals. It is used in semiconductor technology and as a component of various low-melting alloys. Atomic number 31; atomic weight 69.72; melting point 29.78°C; boiling point 2,403°C; specific gravity 5.907; valence 2, 3. [From Latin gallus, cock, translation of surname of Paul Émile Lecoq de Boisbaudran (1838-1912), French chemist : le, the + coq, rooster.]

gallium arsenide (gäl'ē-əm är'sə-nĭd') n. A dark-gray crystalline compound, GaAs, used in transistors, solar cells, and semiconducting lasers.

gal·li·vant also gal·a·vant (gäl'ə-vănt') v. intr. gal·li·vant·ed, gal·li·vant·ing, gal·li·vants. 1. To roam about in search of pleasure or amusement. See Synonyms at wander. 2. To play around amorously; flirt. [Perhaps alteration of GALLANT.]

WORD HISTORY: Ladies' men and gambling are no strangers, as the history of the word gallivant may attest. Gallivant, which is first recorded in English in 1819, is thought possibly to be an alteration of the word gallant, “to play the gallant or dandy, flirt,” under the influence of the word levant, “to leave quickly and secretly, especially as a gambler might do to avoid payment of debts.” The word levant may hark back to the notion of the Levant, the countries of the Near East, as a far-off place where someone might go to hide. In French the phrase faire voile en Levant, which means literally “to sail into the Levant,” actually means “to be stolen.” When a person gallivanted, the person was at one time playing the gallant, perhaps with the intention of stealing away with a heart or two. One can still gallivant with others or simply gallivant on one’s own.

gal·li·wasp (gäl’ə-wösp’, -wôsp’) n. Any of several long-bodied lizards of the genus Diploglossus, native to marshy regions of Central America and the West Indies. [Origin unknown.]

gall midge (gôl mīj) n. Any of various small, mosquitolike flies of the family Cecidomyiidae, having larvae that cause the formation of galls in plants.

gall mite (gôl mīt) n. Any of various mites of the family Eriophyidae that produce galls on plants.

gall·nut (gôl’nüt’) n. See nutgall.

gal·lo·glass or gal·low·glass (gäl’ô-gläs’) n. An armed retainer or mercenary in the service of an Irish chieftain. [Irish Gaelic galloglach : gall, foreigner + oglach, soldier (from og, from Old Irish ōac); see yeu- in Appendix.]

Gal·lo·ma·ni·a (gäl’ô-mā’nē-ə, -mān’yə) n. A strong predilection for anything French. [French gallomanie : gallo-, France (from Latin Gallus, a Gaul) + manie, mania (from Late Latin mania); see MANIA.]

gal·lon (gäl’ən) n. Abbr. gal. 1. a. A unit of volume in the U.S. Customary System, used in liquid measure, equal to 4 quarts (3.785 liters). b. A unit of volume in the British Imperial System, used in liquid and dry measure, equal to 4 quarts (4.546 liters). See Table at measurement. 2. A container with a capacity of one gallon. [Middle English, a liquid measure, from Old North French galon.]

gal·lon·age (gäl’ə-nīj) n. An amount measured in gallons.

gal·loon (gə-lōon’) n. A narrow band or braid used as trimming and commonly made of lace, metallic thread, or embroidery. [French galon, from Old French galonner, to decorate the hair with ribbons.] — gal·looned’ adj.

gal·loot (gə-lōot’) n. Slang. Variant of galoot.

gal·lop (gäl’əp) n. 1. a. A natural three-beat gait of a horse, faster than a canter, in which all four feet are off the ground at the same time during each stride. b. A fast running motion of other quadrupeds. 2. A ride taken at a gallop. 3. A rapid pace: Events were proceeding at a gallop. — v. gal·loped, gal·lop·ing, gal·lops. — v. tr. 1. To cause to gallop. 2. To transport at or as if at a gallop: gallop the mail to the next station. — v. intr. 1. To ride a horse at a gallop. 2. To move or progress swiftly: Summer was galloping by. [From Middle English galopen, to go at a gallop, from Old French galoper, of Germanic origin. See wel-¹ in Appendix.] —gal'lop-er n.

gal·lo·pade (gǎl'ə-pād', -pād') n. Variant of galop.

gal·lop·ing (gǎl'ə-pĩng) adj. 1. Of or resembling a gallop, especially in rhythm or rapidity. 2. Developing at an accelerated rate and leading to death. Used of certain diseases.

Gal·lo·way (gǎl'ə-wā') A region of southwest Scotland. The Mull of Galloway, a promontory on a peninsula on its southwest coast, is the southernmost point in Scotland.

Gal·lo·way (gǎl'ə-wā'), Joseph. 1731?-1803. British Loyalist in America. His "Plan of a Proposed Union between Great Britain and the Colonies" was defeated in the First Continental Congress by one vote. Galloway fled to England in 1778.

gal·low·glass (gǎl'ō-glās') n. Variant of galloglass.

gal·lows (gǎl'ōz) n. pl. gallows or gal·lows·es. 1. a. A device usually consisting of two upright posts supporting a crossbeam from which a noose is suspended and used for execution by hanging; a gallows tree. b. A similar structure used for supporting or suspending. 2. Execution by hanging: a crime punishable by the gallows. [Middle English galwes, pl. of galwe, gallows, from Old English gealga, galga.]

gallows bird (gǎl'ōz bûrd) n. Informal. One who is destined or deserves to be hanged.

gallows humor (gǎl'ōz hyōō'mər) n. Humorous treatment of a grave or dire situation: "conveying with gallows humor the utter insanity of the nuclear-arms race" (New York).

gallows tree (gǎl'ōz trē) n. A device used for hanging a person until dead; a gallows.

gal·stone (gôl'stōn') n. A small, hard, pathological concretion, composed chiefly of cholesterol, calcium salts, and bile pigments, formed in the gallbladder or in a bile duct.

Gal·lup (gǎl'əp) A city of northwest New Mexico near the Arizona border west-northwest of Albuquerque. It is a trade center in a ranching and mining area. Population, 19,154.

Gal·lup (gǎl'əp), George Horace. 1901-1984. American public-opinion analyst. Through his techniques of polling the public, he accurately predicted the outcome of the 1936 presidential election. Gallup polls have been used regularly ever since.

gal·lus·es (gǎl'ə-siz) pl.n. Suspenders for trousers. [Variant of gallowses, pl. of GALLOWES.]

gall wasp (gôl wōsp) n. Any of various wasps of the family Cynipidae whose larvae produce distinctively shaped galls on oaks and other plants.

Ga·lois (gäl-wä'), Évariste. 1811-1832. French mathematician who made valuable contributions to number theory algebra before being killed in a duel at the age of 21.

Ga·lois theory (gäl-wä' thē'ə-rē) n. The part of mathematical group theory concerned with the conditions under which a polynomial equation of power n with coefficients in a given mathematical field can be solved by repeating given operations and extracting the *n*th roots. [After Évariste GALOIS.]

ga·loot also gal·loot (gə-lōōt') n. Slang. A person, especially a clumsy or uncouth one. [Origin unknown.]

gal·op (gäl'əp) also gal·o·pade or gal·lo·pade (gäl'ə-pād', -pād') n. 1. A lively round dance in duple time, popular in the 19th century. 2. The music for this dance. [French, from Old French, gallop, from galoper, to gallop. See GAL-LOP.]

ga·lore (gə-lōr', -lōr') adj. In great numbers; in abundance: “with balloons and hot dogs... and fireworks galore” (Anne Armstrong). [Irish Gaelic go leór, enough : go, adv. particle + leór, enough (from Old Irish lour, alteration of roar); see wēro- in Appendix.]

ga·losh (gə-lōsh') n. 1. A waterproof overshoe. 2. Obsolete. A sturdy heavy-soled boot or shoe. [Middle English galoche, wooden soled shoe, from Old French.]

Gals·wor·thy (gälz'wūr'thē), John. 1867-1933. British writer. Author of The Forsyte Saga (1906-1921) and many other Forsyte stories, he won the 1932 Nobel Prize for literature.

Gal·ton (gôl'tən), Sir Francis. 1822-1911. British scientist whose book Hereditary Genius (1869) laid the foundations for the science of eugenics.

ga·lumph (gə-lūmf') v. intr. ga·lumphed, ga·lumph·ing, ga·lumphs. To move or run clumsily or heavily. [Perhaps blend of GALLOP, and TRIUMPH.]

galv. abbr. Galvanized.

Gal·va·ni (gäl-vä'nē, gäl-), Luigi. 1737-1798. Italian physiologist and physician who asserted that animal tissues generate electricity. Although he was proved wrong, his experiments stimulated research on electricity.

gal·van·ic (gäl-vän'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to direct-current electricity, especially when produced chemically. 2. a. Having the effect of an electric shock: a galvanic revelation. b. Produced as if by an electric shock: The new leader had a galvanic effect on our morale. [GALVAN(ISM) + -IC.] —gal·van'i·cal·ly adv.

galvanic cell (gäl-vän'ik sěl) n. See primary cell.

galvanic couple (gäl-vän'ik kŭp'əl) n. See voltaic couple.

galvanic skin response (gäl-vän'ik skīn rī-spōns') n. Abbr. GSR A change in the ability of the skin to conduct electricity, caused by an emotional stimulus, such as fright.

gal·va·nism (gäl'və-nīz'əm) n. 1. Direct-current electricity, especially when produced chemically. Also called voltaism 2. Therapeutic application of direct-current electricity, especially the electric stimulation of nerves and muscle.

[After Luigi GALVANI.]

gal·va·nize (gäl'və-nīz') v. tr. gal·va·nized, gal·va·niz·ing, gal·va·niz·es.

1. To stimulate or shock with an electric current. 2. To arouse to awareness or action; spur: "Issues that once galvanized the electorate fade into irrelevance"

(Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). 3. To coat (iron or steel) with rust-resistant zinc.

—gal'va·ni·za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n. —gal'va·niz'er n.

galvano- pref. Galvanism; galvanic: galvanometer. [From GALVANIC, or GALVANISM.]

gal·va·no·mag·net·ic (gäl'və-nō-mäg-nēt'ik, gäl-vän'ō-) adj. Of or relating to the generation of an electric field by a magnetic field in semiconductors and metals.

gal·va·nom·e·ter (gäl'və-nōm'ī-tər) n. An instrument used to detect, measure, and determine the direction of small electric currents by means of mechanical effects produced by a coil in a magnetic field. —gal'va·no·met'ric (-nō-mēt'rik), gal'va·no·met'ri·cal adj. —gal'va·nom'e·try n.

gal·va·no·scope (gäl'və-nə-skōp', gäl-vän'ə-) n. An instrument used to detect the presence and determine the direction of electric currents by the deflection of a magnetic needle. —gal'va·no·scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj.

—gal'va·nos'co·py (gäl'və-nōs'kə-pē) n.

Gal·ves·ton (gäl'vī-stən) A city of southeast Texas south-southeast of Houston on Galveston Island at the entrance to Galveston Bay, an arm of the Gulf of Mexico. The Spanish explorer Cabeza de Vaca may have been shipwrecked on the island in 1528. Population, 59,070.

Gál·vez (gäl'vēs'), José de. 1729-1787. Spanish jurist and colonial administrator who was responsible for the expedition (1769) that led to the first Spanish settlements in California.

Gal·way (gôl'wā') A region of west-central Ireland bordering on Galway Bay, an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. The city of Galway (population, 37,835) was incorporated in the late 14th century and is today an important industrial and tourist center.

gal·yak (gäl'yäk') n. A flat, glossy fur made from the pelt of a stillborn lamb or kid. [Russian dialectal golyak, sheepskin coat of smooth fur, from Russian golyĭ, smooth, bald, naked.]

gam¹ (gām) n. 1. A social visit or friendly interchange, especially between whalers or seafarers. 2. A herd of whales or a social congregation of whalers, especially at sea. See Synonyms at flock¹. — v. gammed, gam·ming, gams.

— v. intr. To hold a visit, especially while at sea. — v. tr. 1. To visit with. 2. To spend (time) talking or visiting. [Perhaps short for GAMMON², or variant of GAME¹.]

gam² (gām) n. Slang. A person's leg. [Probably from Polari (theatrical argot), from Italian gamba, from Late Latin gamba, hoof. See GAMBOL.]

gam- pref. Variant of gamo-.

Ga·ma (gām'ə, gā'mə), Vasco da. 1460?-1524. Portuguese explorer and colonial administrator. The first European to sail to India (1497-1498), he opened the rich lands of the East to Portuguese trade and colonization.

ga·may (gā-mā', gām'ā) n. A variety of red grape used for making red wines, especially Beaujolais. [French, after Gamay, a village of east-central France.]

gam·ba (gām'bə, gām'-) n. Music. See viola da gamba (n., sense 1).

gam·ba·do¹ (gām-bā'dō) n. pl. gam·ba·does or gam·ba·dos. 1. A low leap of a horse in which all four feet are off the ground. 2. A leaping or gamboling movement. [Alteration (influenced by GAMBADO²), of French gambade, from Italian gambata, from Old Italian gambata. See GAMBOL.]

gam·ba·do² (gām-bā'dō) n. pl. gam·ba·does or gam·ba·dos. 1. Either of a pair of protective leather gaiters attached to a saddle. 2. A rider's legging. [From Italian gamba, leg, from Old Italian. See GAMBOL.]

Gam·bet·ta (gām-bēt'ə, gān-bě-tā'), Léon Michel. 1838-1882. French political leader. After the defeat of Napoleon III (1870), Gambetta helped create the Third Republic.

Gam·bi·a (gām'bē-ə) A country of western Africa on the Atlantic Ocean. It was a British protectorate after 1894 and became independent in 1965. Banjul is the capital and the largest city. Population, 696,000. —Gam'bi·an adj. & n.

Gambia River (gām'bē-ə rīv'ər) A river of western Africa flowing about 1,126 km (700 mi) from northern Guinea through southeast Senegal and Gambia to the Atlantic Ocean at Banjul.

gam·bier also gam·bir (gām'bîr) n. A resinous, astringent extract obtained from the leaves of a woody vine (Uncaria gambir) of Malaysia and Indonesia, used medicinally and in tanning and dyeing. [Malay gambir.]

Gam·bier Islands (gām'bîr' î'ləndz) An island group of the south-central Pacific Ocean, part of French Polynesia.

gam·bit (gām'bīt) n. 1. Games. An opening in chess in which a minor piece, or pieces, usually a pawn, is offered in exchange for a favorable position. 2. A maneuver, stratagem, or ploy, especially one used at an initial stage. 3. A remark intended to open a conversation. [Ultimately from Spanish gambito, from Italian gambetto, act of tripping someone up in wrestling, from gamba, leg, from Old Italian. See GAMBOL.]

USAGE NOTE: Critics familiar with the nature of chess gambits have sometimes maintained that the word should not be used in an extended sense except to refer to maneuvers that involve the tactical sacrifice of some advantage. But gambit is well established in the general sense of “maneuver” and in the related sense of “a remark intended to open a conversation,” which usually carries no implication of sacrifice.

gam·ble (găm'bal) v. gam·bled, gam·bling, gam·bles. — v. intr. 1. a. To bet on an uncertain outcome, as of a contest. b. Games. To play a game of chance for stakes. 2. To take a risk in the hope of gaining an advantage or a benefit. 3. To engage in reckless or hazardous behavior: You are gambling with your health by continuing to smoke. — v. tr. 1. Games. To put up as a stake in gambling; wager. 2. To expose to hazard; risk: gambed their lives in a dangerous rescue mission. — n. 1. Games. A bet, wager, or other gambling venture. 2. An act or undertaking of uncertain outcome; a risk: I took a gamble that stock prices would rise. [Perhaps from obsolete gamel, to play games, from Middle English gamen, gamenen, to play, from Old English gamenian, from gamen, fun.] — gam'bler n.

gam·boge (găm-bōj', -bōōzh') n. 1. A brownish or orange resin obtained from several trees of the genus Garcinia of south-central Asia and yielding a golden-yellow pigment. 2. Color. A strong yellow. [New Latin cambugium, gambogium, after Cambodia.] — gam·boge' adj.

gam·bol (găm'bal) v. intr. gam·boled or gam·bolled, gam·bol·ing or gam·bol·ling, gam·bols or gam·bols. To leap about playfully; frolic. — n. A playful skipping or frolicking about. [Alteration of French gambade, horse's jump, from Old French, perhaps from Old Italian gambata, from gamba, leg, from Late Latin, hoof, perhaps from Greek kampē, bend.]

gam·brel (găm'brəl) n. 1. The hock of a horse or other animal. 2. A frame used by butchers for hanging carcasses by the legs. [French dialectal gamberel, from Old North French, from gambe, leg, from Late Latin gamba, hoof. See GAMBOL.] gambrel roof (găm'brəl rōōf) n. A ridged roof with two slopes on each side, the lower slope having the steeper pitch.

gam·bu·sia (găm-byōō'zhə) n. Any of various small livebearers of the genus Gambusia that feed on mosquito larvae and are often used in mosquito control. [New Latin Gambusia, genus name, from American Spanish gambusino, idle fisherman.]

game¹ (gām) n. 1. An activity providing entertainment or amusement; a pastime: party games; word games. 2. a. A competitive activity or sport in which players contend with each other according to a set of rules: the game of basketball; the game of gin rummy. b. A single instance of such an activity: We lost the first game. c. games. An organized athletic program or contest: track-and-field games; took part in the winter games. d. A period of competition or challenge: It was too late in the game to change the schedule of the project. 3. a. The total number of points required to win a game: One hundred points is game in bridge.

b. The score accumulated at any given time in a game: The game is now 14 to 12.

4. The equipment needed for playing certain games: packed the children's games in the car. 5. A particular style or manner of playing a game: improved my tennis game with practice. 6. Informal. a. An active interest or pursuit, especially one involving competitive engagement or adherence to rules: "the way the system operates, the access game, the turf game, the image game" (Hedrick Smith). b. A business or occupation; a line: the insurance game. c. An illegal activity; a racket.

7. Informal. a. Evasive, trifling, or manipulative behavior: wanted a straight answer, not more of their tiresome games. b. A calculated strategy or approach; a scheme: I saw through their game from the very beginning. 8. Mathematics. A model of a competitive situation that identifies interested parties and stipulates rules governing all aspects of the competition, used in game theory to determine the optimal course of action for an interested party. 9. a. Wild animals, birds, or fish hunted for food or sport. b. The flesh of these animals, eaten as food.

10. a. An object of attack, ridicule, or pursuit: The press considered the candidate's indiscretions to be game. b. Mockery; sport: The older children teased and made game of the newcomer. — v. gamed, gam-ing, games. — v. tr. Archaic. To waste or lose by gambling. — v. intr. To play for stakes; gamble. — adj. gam-er, gam-est. 1. Plucky and unyielding in spirit; resolute: She put up a game fight against her detractors. 2. Ready and willing: Are you game for a swim?

—idiom. the only game in town. Informal. The only alternative: "The Anglo-Irish Agreement is the only game in town available to political leaders seeking a graceful way out of the Ulster morass" (Boston Globe). "He's the only game in town for the press to write about" (Leonard Garment). [Middle English, from Old English gamen.] —game/ly adv. —game/ness n.

game² (gām) adj. gam-er, gam-est. Crippled; lame: a game leg. [Origin unknown.]

game bird (gām bûrd) n. A bird, such as a pheasant or grouse, that is widely hunted for sport.

game-cock (gām'kōk') n. A rooster trained for cockfighting.

game fish (gām fīsh) n. A fish prized for the sport involved in catching it.

game fowl (gām foul) n. Any of several breeds of domestic fowl raised especially for cockfighting.

game-keep-er (gām'kē'pər) n. One who is employed to protect and maintain game birds and animals, especially on an estate or a game preserve.

gam-e-lan (gām'ə-lān') n. Music. An Indonesian orchestra composed mainly of tuned percussion instruments such as bamboo xylophones, wooden or metal chimes, and gongs. [Javanese : gamêl, to make music + -an, suff. indicating means.]

game law (gām lô) n. A regulation intended for the management or conservation of game animals, as one determining the season in which a species may be hunted or fished or one placing restrictions on the method of capture or the number of animals that may be taken.

game of chance (gām ùv chāns) n. Games. A game, usually played for money or stakes, in which the winner is determined by a chance event, as by drawing numbers or throwing dice.

game plan (gām plān) n. 1. Sports. The strategy devised before or used during an event. 2. A strategy for reaching an objective: “Harvey decided the best game plan was to stay loose” (Cyrus McFadden).

game point (gām point) n. Sports & Games. 1. A situation in a game, especially tennis, in which one side or player needs only one point to win. 2. The winning point.

game room (gām rōom) n. A recreation room, especially a room used for table games, such as pool or table tennis.

game show (gām shō) n. Games. A television show in which contestants compete for prizes by playing games of knowledge or chance.

games·man (gāmz/mən) n. Sports & Games. 1. One who plays a sport or game, especially skillfully or avidly. 2. One who practices gamesmanship.

games·man·ship (gāmz/mən-shīp′) n. 1. The art or practice of using tactical maneuvers to further one’s aims or better one’s position: “a sometimes wry, sometimes savage look at the players, political gamesmanship, turf battles and outright chaos that permeated Washington” (David M. Alpern). 2. Sports & Games. The use in a sport or game of aggressive, often dubious tactics, such as psychological intimidation or disruption of concentration, to gain an advantage over one’s opponent.

game·some (gām/səm) adj. Frolicsome; playful. —game/some·ly adv.
—game/some·ness n.

game·ster (gām/stər) n. Games. One who plays games, especially a gambler.

gamet- pref. Variant of gameto-.

gam·e·tan·gi·um (gām/ī-tān/jē-əm) n. pl. gam·e·tan·gi·a (-jē-ə). An organ or a cell in which gametes are produced. [GAMET(O)- + Greek angeion, vessel, diminutive of angos, vessel + -IUM.] —gam/e-tan/gi-al (-əl) adj.

gam·ete (gām/ēt′, gə-mēt′) n. A reproductive cell having the haploid number of chromosomes, especially a mature sperm or egg capable of fusing with a gamete of the opposite sex to produce the fertilized egg. [New Latin gameta, from Greek gametē, wife, and gametēs, husband from gamein, to marry, from gamos, marriage. See gemə- in Appendix.] —ga·met/ic (-mēt′ik) adj.

—ga·met/i·cal·ly adv.

game theory (gām thē′ə-rē) n. A mathematical method of decision-making in which a competitive situation is analyzed to determine the optimal course of action for an interested party, often used in political, economic, and military planning. Also called theory of games gameto- or gamet- pref. Gamete: gametogenesis. [From New Latin gameta, gamete. See GAMETE.]

ga·me·to·cyte (gə-mē'tə-sīt') n. A cell from which gametes develop by meiotic division, especially a spermatocyte or an oocyte.

ga·me·to·gen·e·sis (gə-mē'tə-jěn'ī-sīs) n. The formation or production of gametes. —ga·me'to·gen'ic, gam'e·tog'e·nous (gām'ī-tōj'ə-nəs) adj.

ga·me·to·phore (gə-mē'tə-fôr', -fōr') n. A structure, as in liverworts and mosses, on which gametangia are borne. —ga·me'to·phor'ic (-fôr'ik, -fōr'-) adj.

ga·me·to·phyte (gə-mē'tə-fit') n. Botany. The gamete-producing phase in a plant characterized by alternation of generations. —ga·me'to·phyt'ic (-fit'ik) adj.

game warden (gām wôrd'n) n. An official in charge of managing game animals or wildlife, especially by the enforcement of game laws.

gam·ey (gā'mē) adj. Variant of gamy.

gam·ic (gām'ik) adj. Of or requiring fertilization to reproduce; sexual.

gam·in (gām'in) n. An often homeless boy who roams about the streets; an urchin. [French.]

ga·mine (gā-mēn', gām'en) n. 1. An often homeless girl who roams about the streets; an urchin. 2. A girl or woman of impish appeal. [French, feminine of gamin, gamin.]

gam·ing (gā'ming) n. Games. The playing of games of chance; gambling.

gam·ma (gām'ə) n. 1. The third letter of the Greek alphabet. 2. The third item in a series or system of classification. 3. A unit of magnetic field strength equal to one hundred thousandth (10^{-5}) of an oersted. 4. A unit of mass equal to one millionth (10^{-6}) of a gram. 5. Chemistry. The third position from a designated carbon atom in an organic molecule at which an atom or a radical may be substituted. [Middle English, from Greek, of Phoenician origin; akin to Hebrew gîmel, gimel.]

gam·ma·a·mi·no·bu·tyr·ic acid (gām'ə-ə-mē'nō-byōō-tîr'ik əs'īd, -əm'ə-nō-) n. Abbr. GABA An amino acid, $C_4H_9NO_2$, that occurs in the central nervous system and is associated with the transmission of nerve impulses.

gamma camera (gām'ə kām'ər-ə) n. An electronic instrument used in medical diagnostics to visualize the distribution of radioactive compounds in animal tissue.

gamma decay (gām'ə dī-kā') n. 1. A radioactive process in which an atomic nucleus loses energy by emitting a gamma ray without a change in its atomic or mass numbers. 2. The decay of an unstable elementary particle by photon emission.

- gamma globulin (gām'ə glōb'yə-līn) n. A protein fraction of blood serum containing numerous antibodies, used in the prevention and treatment of certain diseases, such as measles, poliomyelitis, and hepatitis.
- gamma ray (gām'ə rā) n. Electromagnetic radiation emitted by radioactive decay and having energies in a range from ten thousand (10^4) to ten million (10^7) electron volts.
- gam·ma·ray astronomy (gām'ə-rā' ə-strōn'ə-mē) n. Astronomy that deals with the origin and nature of periodic gamma-ray emissions from extraterrestrial sources.
- gam·mer (gām'ər) n. Chiefly British. An elderly woman. [Probably alteration (influenced by GRANDMOTHER), of GODMOTHER.]
- gam·mon¹ (gām'ən) Games. n. A victory in backgammon reached before the loser has succeeded in removing a single piece. — v. tr. gam·moned, gam·mon·ing, gam·mons. To defeat in backgammon by scoring a gammon. [Probably from Middle English gamen, gammen, game, from Old English gamen.]
- gam·mon² (gām'ən) Chiefly British. n. Misleading or nonsensical talk; humbug. — v. gam·moned, gam·mon·ing, gam·mons. — v. tr. To mislead by deceptive talk. — v. intr. To talk misleadingly or deceptively. [Origin unknown.] — gam'·mon·er n.
- gam·mon³ (gām'ən) n. 1. A cured or smoked ham. 2. The lower part of a side of bacon. [Middle English gambon, from Old North French, from gambe, leg, from Late Latin gamba, hoof. See GAMBOL.]
- gam·mon⁴ (gām'ən) v. tr. gam·moned, gam·mon·ing, gam·mons. Nautical. To fasten (a bowsprit) to the stem of a ship. [Origin unknown.]
- gamo- or gam- pref. 1. United; joined: gamopetalous. 2. Sexual: gamogenesis. [Greek, marriage, from gamos. See gemə- in Appendix.]
- gam·o·gen·e·sis (gām'ə-jěn'ī-sīs) n. Sexual reproduction.
— gam'·o·ge·net'ic (-jə-nēt'ik) adj. — gam'·o·ge·net'i·cal·ly adv.
- gam·o·pet·al·ous (gām'ə-pět'l-əs) adj. Botany. Having or characterizing a corolla with partially or wholly fused petals.
- gam·o·phyl·lous (gām'ə-fīl'əs) adj. Botany. Having or designating united leaves or leaflike parts.
- gam·o·sep·al·ous (gām'ə-sěp'ə-ləs) adj. Botany. Having the sepals united or partly united.
- gamous suff. 1. a. Having a specified number of marriages: monogamous. b. Practicing a specified kind of marriage: exogamous. 2. Having a specified kind of reproduction or reproductive organs: heterogamous. [From Greek -gamos, from gamos, marriage. See gemə- in Appendix.]

Ga·mow (gā'mou, gǎm'ôf, -ôf), George. 1904-1968. Russian-born American nuclear physicist known for his work on radioactivity and genetic information as well as his books popularizing theories of physics.

gamp (gǎmp) n. Chiefly British. A large, baggy umbrella. [After the umbrella of Mrs. Sarah Gamp, a character in the novel Martin Chuzzlewit by Charles Dickens.]

gam·ut (gǎm'ət) n. 1. A complete range or extent: a face that expressed a gamut of emotions, from rage to peaceful contentment. 2. Music. The entire series of recognized notes. [Middle English, the musical scale, from Medieval Latin gamma ut, low G : gamma, lowest note of the medieval scale (from Greek gamma, gamma); see GAMMA + ut, first note of the lowest hexachord (after ut, first word in a Latin hymn to Saint John the Baptist, the initial syllables of successive lines of which were sung to the notes of an ascending scale CDEFGA: Ut queant laxis resonare fibris Mira gestorum famuli tuorum, Solve polluti labii reatum, Sancte Iohannes.)] gam·y also gam·ey (gā'mē) adj. gam·i·er, gam·i·est. 1. a. Having the flavor or odor of game, especially game that is slightly spoiled. b. Ill-smelling; rank.

2. Showing an unyielding spirit; plucky: a gamy little mare that loved to run.

3. a. Corrupt; tainted: “those considerable forces in America that appear to be tired of the old politics (particularly the gamy municipal variety)” (Tom Wicker).

b. Sordid; seamy. —gam'i·ly adv. —gam'i·ness n.

-gamy suff. 1. Marriage: exogamy. 2. Procreative or propagative union: allogamy. 3. The possession of a specified manner of fertilization or specified reproductive organs: apogamy. [Greek -gamia, from gamos, marriage. See gamə- in Appendix.]

gan·der (gǎn'dər) n. 1. A male goose. 2. Informal. A look or glance: “Everyone turns and takes a gander at the yokels” (Garrison Keillor). 3. Informal. A simpleton; a ninny. [Middle English, from Old English gandra. See ghans- in Appendix.]

Gan·der (gǎn'dər) A town of northeast Newfoundland, Canada. Its airport was strategically important during World War II and was long used as a refueling stop for transatlantic flights. Population, 10,404.

Gan·dhi (gǎn'dē, gǎn'-), Indira Nehru. 1917-1984. Indian political leader who served as prime minister (1966-1977) and (1980-1984). She was assassinated by Sikh extremists.

Gan·dhi (gǎn'dē, gǎn'-), Mohandas Karamchand. Known as “Mahatma.” 1869-1948. Indian nationalist and spiritual leader who developed the practice of nonviolent disobedience that forced Great Britain to grant independence to India (1947). He was assassinated by a Hindu fanatic.

gan·dy dancer (gǎn'dē dǎn'sər) n. Slang. 1. A railroad worker. 2. An itinerant laborer. [Origin unknown.]

ga·nef or ga·nof also gon·if (gä'nəf) n. A thief, scoundrel, or rascal. [Yiddish; akin to Hebrew gannāb.]

gang¹ (gäng) n. 1. A group of criminals or hoodlums who band together for mutual protection and profit. 2. A group of adolescents who band together, especially a group of delinquents. 3. Informal. A group of people who associate regularly on a social basis: The whole gang from the office went to a clambake. 4. A group of laborers organized together on one job or under one foreperson: a railroad gang. 5. A matched or coordinated set, as of tools: a gang of chisels. 6. a. A pack of wolves or wild dogs. b. A herd, especially of buffalo or elk. See Synonyms at flock¹. — v. ganged, gang-ing, gangs. — v. intr. To band together as a group or gang. — v. tr. 1. To arrange or assemble into a group, as for simultaneous operation or production: gang several pages onto one printing plate. 2. To attack as an organized group. — phrasal verb. gang up. 1. To join together in opposition or attack: The older children were always ganging up on the little ones. 2. To act together as a group: various agencies ganging up to combat the use of illicit drugs. [Middle English, band of men, from Old English, journey, and Old Norse gangr, journey, group as in thjofagangr, gang of thieves.]

gang² (gäng) n. Variant of ganguer.

Gan·ga (güng'gə) See Ganges.

gang·bang or gang-bang (gäng'bäng') n. Vulgar Slang. 1. Sexual intercourse, often rape, involving one person or victim and several others who have relations with that person in rapid succession. 2. Sexual intercourse involving several people who select and change partners in an indiscriminate manner. — gang'bang' v.

gang·bus·ter (gäng'büs'tər) n. Slang. A law enforcement officer who works to break up organized criminal groups. — idiom. like gangbusters. Slang. With great impact, vigor, or zeal: came on like gangbusters at the start of his campaign; a career that took off like gangbusters.

Gan·ges (gän'jēz') also Gan·ga (güng'gə) A river of northern India and Bangladesh rising in the Himalaya Mountains and flowing about 2,510 km (1,560 mi) generally eastward through a vast plain to the Bay of Bengal. The river is sacred to Hindus.

gang·land (gäng'länd', -lənd) n. The underworld of organized criminal gangs. — adj. Of, relating to, or carried out by organized criminals: gangland turf; a gangland slaying.

gan·gli·a (gäng'glē-ə) n. A plural of ganglion.

gan·gli·at·ed (gäng'glē-ā'tid) also gan·gli·ate (-īt, -āt') adj. Having ganglia.

gan·gling (gäng'glīng) adj. Awkwardly tall or long-limbed; rangy: gangling adolescents. [Perhaps from dialectal gang, to go, from Middle English gängen, from Old English gangan.]

gan·gli·on (gǎng'glē-ən) n. pl. gan·gli·a (-glē-ə) or gan·gli·ons. 1. Anatomy.

A group of nerve cells forming a nerve center, especially one located outside the brain or spinal cord. 2. A center of power, activity, or energy. 3. Pathology. A benign cystic lesion resembling a tumor, occurring in a tendon sheath or joint capsule. [From Greek, cystlike tumor, nerve bundle.] —gan'gli-on'ic (-ōn'ik) adj.

gan·gli·on·at·ed (gǎng'-glē-ə-nā'tid) adj. Gangliated.

gan·gli·o·side (gǎng'glē-ə-sīd') n. Any of a group of galactose-containing cerebrosides found in the surface membranes of nerve cells. [GANGLI(ON) + -OS(E)² + -IDE.]

gan·gly (gǎng'glē) adj. gan·gli·er, gan·gli·est. Gangling. [Alteration of GANGLING.]

gang·plank (gǎng'plāngk') n. Nautical. A board or ramp used as a removable footway between a ship and a pier. Also called gangway [From GANG¹, way (obsolete and dialectal).]

gang·plow (gǎng'plou') n. A plow equipped with several blades that make parallel furrows.

gang·punch (gǎng'pūnch') v. tr. gang·punched, gang·punch·ing, gang·punch·es. Computer Science. To duplicate (information) from a punched card onto succeeding cards.

gang rape (gǎng rāp) n. Rape of a victim by several attackers in rapid succession. —gang'-rape' (gǎng'rāp') v.

gan·grel (gǎng'rəl) n. Scots. A vagabond; a drifter. [Middle English, probably from gangen, to go. See GANGLING.]

gan·grene (gǎng'grēn', gǎng-grēn') n. Death and decay of body tissue, often occurring in a limb, caused by insufficient blood supply and usually following injury or disease. — v. tr. intr. gan·gred, gan·gren·ing, gan·grenes. To affect or become affected with gangrene. [Medieval Latin cancrēna, from Latin gangraena, gangrēna, from Greek gangraina.] —gan'gre·nous (gǎng'grə-nəs) adj.

gang saw (gǎng sô) n. A saw fitted with several blades for making simultaneous parallel cuts.

gang·ster (gǎng'stər) n. A member of an organized group of criminals; a racketeer. —gang'ster·dom n. —gang'ster·ism n.

gangue also gang (gǎng) n. Worthless rock or other material in which valuable minerals are found. [French, from German Gang, lode, from Middle High German ganc, from Old High German gang, a going.]

gang·way (gǎng'wā') n. 1. Nautical. a. A passage along either side of a ship's upper deck. b. See gangplank. c. An opening in the bulwark of a ship through which passengers may board. 2. A narrow passageway, as of boards laid on the ground. 3. The main level of a mine. 4. Chiefly British. a. The aisle that divides the front and rear seating sections of the House of Commons. b. An aisle between seating sections, as in a theater. — interj. Used to clear a passage through a crowded area. [From GANG¹, way, passage (obsolete and dialectal).]

gan-is-ter also gan-nis-ter (gǎn'ĩ-stər) n. 1. A fine-grained quartzite used to line refractory furnaces. 2. A mixture of fire clay and ground quartz, used to line metallurgical furnaces. [Origin unknown.]

gan-ja (gǎn'jə) n. Marijuana, especially a highly resinous form of marijuana prepared from the flowering tops and leaves of selected plants and usually ingested by smoking. [Hindustani gāmjhā, hemp resin, from Sanskrit gāñjyā-, of hemp, from gañjah, hemp, alteration of grñjah.]

Gan Jiang (gǎn' jyǎng') also Kan River (kǎn) A river of southeast China flowing about 885 km (550 mi) generally north into the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang) north of Nanchang.

gan-net (gǎn'it) n. Any of several large sea birds of the genus Morus, especially M. bassanus of northern Atlantic coastal regions, having white plumage with black wingtips. Also called solan [Middle English ganet, from Old English ganot. See ghans- in Appendix.]

Gan-nett (gǎn'it), Henry. 1846-1914. American cartographer who was chief geographer of the U.S. Geological Survey (from 1882) and helped found the National Geographic Society (1888).

Gannett Peak (gǎn'it pĕk) A mountain, 4,210.2 m (13,804 ft) high, in the Wind River Range of the Rocky Mountains in west-central Wyoming. It is the highest point in the state.

gan-nis-ter (gǎn'ĩ-stər) n. Variant of ganister.

ga-nof (gǎ'nəf) n. Variant of ganef.

gan-oid (gǎn'oid') adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of certain bony fishes, such as the sturgeon and the gar, that have armorlike scales consisting of bony plates covered with layers of dentine and enamel. — n. A ganoid fish. [From New Latin Ganoidei, subclass name, from Greek ganos, brightness, gladness, from ganusthai, to rejoice. See gāu- in Appendix.]

Gan-su (gǎn'sōo') also Kan-su (kǎn'sōo', gǎn'-) A province of north-central China. It was long a corridor for the Silk Road to Turkistan, India, and Persia. Lanzhou is the capital. Population, 20,410,000.

gant-let¹ (gōnt'līt, gǎnt'-) n. A section of double railroad tracks formed by the temporary convergence of two parallel tracks in such a way that each set remains independent while traversing the same ground, affording passage at a narrow place without need of switching. — v. tr. gant-let-ed, gant-let-ing, gant-lets. To converge (railroad tracks) to form a gantlet. [Variant of GAUNTLET².]

gant-let² (gōnt'līt, gǎnt'-) n. Variant of gauntlet¹.

gant-let³ (gōnt'līt, gǎnt'-) n. Variant of gauntlet².

gant-line (gǎnt'lin', -līn) n. Nautical. A rope passed through an overhead pulley, as at the top of a mast, that is used for hoisting. [Perhaps alteration of girtline, gantline : girt (variant of GIRTH) + LINE¹.]

gan-try (gǎn'trē) n. pl. gan-tries. 1. A mount for a traveling crane consisting of a large archlike or bridgelike frame designed to move along a set of tracks.

2. A similar spanning frame supporting a group of railway signals over several tracks. 3. Aerospace. A massive vertical frame structure used in assembling or servicing a rocket, especially at a launch site. 4. A support for a barrel lying on its side. [Middle English ganter, gauntre, wooden stand for barrels, from Old North French gantier, wooden frame, from Latin canthērius, from Greek kanthēlios, pack ass, from kanthēlia, panniers at the side of a pack-saddle.]

Gantt chart (gǎnt chärt) n. A chart that depicts progress in relation to time, often used in planning and tracking a project. [After Henry Laurence Gantt (1861-1919), American engineer.]

Gan-y-mede (gǎn'ə-mēd') n. 1. Greek Mythology. A Trojan boy of great beauty whom Zeus carried away to be cupbearer to the gods. 2. One of the four brightest satellites of Jupiter and the eighth in distance from the planet. Originally sighted by Galileo, it is one of the largest satellites in the solar system. [Latin Ganymēdēs, from Greek Ganumēdēs.]

GAO abbr. General Accounting Office.

gaol (jāl) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of jail.

gap (gǎp) n. 1. a. An opening in a solid structure or surface; a cleft or breach: wriggled through a gap in the fence; a large gap in the wall where the artillery shell had exploded. b. A break in a line of defense. 2. An opening through mountains; a pass. 3. A space between objects or points; an aperture: a gap between his front teeth. 4. An interruption of continuity: a nine-minute gap in the recorded conversation; needed to fill in the gaps in her knowledge. 5. a. A conspicuous difference or imbalance; a disparity: a gap between revenue and spending; the widening gap between rich and poor. b. A problematic situation resulting from such a disparity: the budget gap; the technology gap. 6. A spark gap. 7. Computer Science. An absence of information on a recording medium, often used to signal the end of a segment of information. 8. Electronics. The distance between the head of a recording device and the surface of the recording medium. — v. gapped, gap-ping, gaps. — v. tr. To make an opening in. — v. intr. To be or become open. [Middle English, from Old Norse, chasm.]

GAPA abbr. Ground-to-air pilotless aircraft.

gape (gāp, gǎp) v. intr. gaped, gap-ing, gapes. 1. To open the mouth wide; yawn. 2. To stare wonderingly or stupidly, often with the mouth open. See Synonyms at gaze. 3. To open wide: The curtains gaped when the wind blew. — n. 1. The act or an instance of gaping. 2. A large opening. 3. Zoology. The width of the space between the open jaws or mandibles of a vertebrate. 4. gapes. (used with a sing. verb). Veterinary Medicine. A disease of birds, especially young domesticated chickens and turkeys, caused by gapeworms and resulting in obstructed breathing. 5. gapes. A fit of yawning. [Middle English gapen, from Old Norse gapa.]

gape-worm (gāp'wûrm', gāp'-) n. A nematode worm (Syngamus trachea) that infects the tracheas of certain birds and causes gapes.

gap-ing (gā'pīng) adj. Deep and wide open: a gaping wound; a gaping hole.

—gap-ing-ly adv.

gar¹ (gär) n. 1. Any of several ganoid fishes of the family Lepisosteidae of fresh and brackish waters of North and Central America, having long narrow jaws, an elongated body, and a long snout. 2. A similar or related fish, such as the needlefish. In this sense, also called garfish, garpike. [Short for GARFISH.]

gar² (gär) v. tr. garred, gar-ring, gars. Scots. To cause or compel. [Middle English geren, from Old Norse gera, to make.]

GAR or G.A.R. abbr. Grand Army of the Republic.

ga-rage (gə-rāzh', -rāj') n. 1. A building or indoor space in which to park or keep a motor vehicle. 2. A commercial establishment where cars are repaired, serviced, or parked. — v. tr. ga-raged, ga-rag-ing, ga-rag-es. To put or store in a garage. [French, from garer, to shelter, from Old French garer, guerrer, of Germanic origin. See wer⁻⁴ in Appendix.] —ga-rage/a-ble adj.

WORD HISTORY: It is difficult for a 20th-century imagination to envision a world without garages or a language without the word garage. However, probably before the 19th and certainly before the 18th century the word did not exist, and possibly before the end of the 19th century the thing itself did not exist. Our word is a direct borrowing of French garage, which is first recorded in 1802 in the sense “place where one docks.” The verb garer, from which garage was derived, originally meant “to put merchandise under shelter,” then “to moor a boat,” and then “to put a vehicle into a place for safekeeping,” that is, a garage, a sense first recorded in French in 1901. English almost immediately borrowed this French word, the first instance being found in 1902.

garage sale (gə-rāzh' sāl) n. A sale of used household items or clothing held at the home of the seller. Also called tag sale

Gar-a-mond (gär'ə-mōnd', gä-rä-mōn'), Claude. 1480?-1561. French type designer known for establishing the roman-style letter as the standard in printing.

Ga-rand (gə-rānd', gār'ænd), John Cantius. 1888-1974. Canadian-born American firearms designer who invented the rifle designated M-1 by the U.S. Army (adopted 1936).

garb (gärb) n. 1. A distinctive style or form of clothing; dress: clerical garb.

2. An outward appearance; a guise: presented their radical ideas in the garb of moderation. — v. tr. garbed, garb-ing, garbs. To cover with or as if with clothing; dress. [Obsolete French garbe, grace, from Italian garbo, from garbare, to please, of Germanic origin.]

gar-bage (gär'bāj) n. 1. a. Food wastes, as from a kitchen. b. Refuse; trash.

2. a. Worthless or nonsensical matter; rubbish: Their advice turned out to be nothing but garbage. b. Inferior or offensive literary or artistic material.

3. Computer Science. Incorrect, meaningless, or unwanted information in input, output, or memory. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: garbage collection; a garbage disposal. [Middle English, offal from fowls.]

gar-ban-zo (gär-bän'zō) n. pl. gar-ban-zos. See chickpea. [Spanish, alteration of Old Spanish arvanço, perhaps from Greek erebinthos.]

gar-ble (gär'bəl) v. tr. gar-bled, gar-bling, gar-bles. 1. To mix up or distort to such an extent as to make misleading or incomprehensible: She garbled all the historical facts. 2. To scramble (a signal or message), as by erroneous encoding or faulty transmission. 3. Archaic. To sort out; cull. — n. The act or an instance of garbling. [Middle English garbelen, to inspect and remove refuse from spices, from Anglo-Norman garbeler, to sift, and from Medieval Latin garbellāre both from Arabic ġarbala, to select, from ġirbāl, sieve, from Late Latin cribellum, diminutive of Latin cribrum. See krei- in Appendix.] — gar'bler (-blər) n.

Gar-bo (gär'bō), Greta. 1905-1990. Swedish-born American actress known for her reclusiveness and her performances in such films as Queen Christina (1933) and Camille (1937).

gar-board (gär'bōrd', -bōrd') n. Nautical. The first range or strake of planks laid next to a ship's keel. [Obsolete Dutch gaarboord: possibly Dutch gaar, cooked, done (from Middle Dutch gaer) + boord, board (from Middle Dutch boort).]

gar-boil (gär'boil') n. Archaic. Confusion; uproar. [Obsolete French garbouil, from Old French, from Old Italian garbuglio, perhaps from Latin bullire, to boil.]

gar-bol-o-gy (gär-bōl'ə-jē) n. The study of a society or culture by examining or analyzing its refuse. [GARB(AGE) + -LOGY.] — gar-bol'o-gist n.

Garb-sen (gärb'sən) A city of north-central Germany, a suburb of Hanover. Population, 57,292.

Gar-cí-a Lor-ca (gär-sē'ə lôr'kä, gär-thē'ä), Federico. 1898-1936. Spanish writer considered Spain's leading modern poet for works such as Lament for the Death of a Bullfighter (1935). He was shot by Fascist soldiers at the start of the Spanish Civil War.

Gar-cí-a Már-quez (gär-sē'ə mär'kəs, -kës), Gabriel. Born 1928. Colombian-born writer known especially for his novel One Hundred Years of Solitude (1967). He won the 1982 Nobel Prize for literature.

Gar-cí-a Mo-re-no (gär-sē'ə mə-rā'nō, gär-sē'ä mô-rě'nô), Gabriel. 1821-1875. Ecuadorian politician who as president (1861-1865 and 1869-1875) established the Catholic Church as the state church. He was assassinated shortly after his reelection in 1875.

Gar-cí-a Ro-bles (gär-sē'ə rō'bləs, -blēs), Alfonso. Born 1911. Mexican diplomat. He shared the 1982 Nobel Peace Prize for his role in United Nations nuclear disarmament negotiations.

Gar-cí-a y Íñi-guez (gär-sē'ə ē ē'nyē-gēs'), Calixto. 1836?-1898. Cuban military and political leader. A commander in the Ten Years' War (1868-1878), he was also active in the Spanish-American War (1898).

Gar-ci-la-so de la Ve-ga (gär'sə-lä'sō də lə vā'gə, gär-thē-lä'sô thē lä vē'gä), Known as "El Inca." 1539?-1616. Peruvian-born Spanish soldier, historian, and translator. The son of an Inca princess, he vividly retold Peruvian history and folklore in his Comentarios Reales (1609).

gar-çon (gär-sôn') n. pl. gar-çons (-sôn'). A waiter. [French, from Old French garçun, servant, accusative of gars, boy, soldier, probably of Germanic origin.]

Gar-da (gär'də), Lake. A lake of northern Italy east of Milan. Its shoreline is dotted with resorts and vineyards.

gar-dant (gär'dnt) adj. Heraldry. Variant of guardant.

gar-den (gär'dn) n. 1. A plot of land used for the cultivation of flowers, vegetables, herbs, or fruit. 2. Often gardens. Grounds laid out with flowers, trees, and ornamental shrubs and used for recreation or display: public gardens; a botanical garden. 3. A yard or lawn. 4. A fertile, well-cultivated region. 5. a. An open-air establishment where refreshments are served: a beer garden. b. A large public auditorium or arena. — v. gar-dened, gar-den-ing, gar-dens. — v. tr. 1. To cultivate (a plot of ground) as a garden. 2. To furnish with a garden. — v. intr. 1. To plant or tend a garden. 2. To work as a gardener. — adj.

1. Of, suitable to, or used in a garden: garden tools; garden vegetables.

2. Provided with open areas and greenery: a garden community. 3. Garden-variety. — idiom. lead down the garden path (or take down the garden path). To mislead or deceive (another). [Middle English gardin, from Old North French, from gart, of Germanic origin. See gher-¹ in Appendix.]

Gar-den (gär'dn), Alexander. 1730?-1791. Scottish-born American naturalist and physician who contributed to the classification of New World plants. The gardenia is named after him.

Gar-den (gär'dn), Mary. 1874?-1967. Scottish-born American operatic soprano. She performed with the Chicago Civic Opera from 1910 to 1931.

Gar-de-na (gär-dē'nə) A city of southern California, an industrial suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 49,847.

garden apartment (gär'dn ə-pärt'mənt) n. A unit in a low-rise apartment complex that includes a substantial amount of open, usually landscaped ground.

garden city (gär'dn sīt'ē) n. A residential suburb or community planned so as to provide a pleasant environment with low-density housing and open public land.

Garden City (gär'dn sīt'ē) 1. A city of southwest Kansas west-northwest of Dodge City. It is a trade and industrial center in an irrigated farming area. Population, 24,097. 2. A city of southeast Michigan, a chiefly residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 31,846. 3. A village of southeast New York on western Long Island. Roosevelt Field, the starting point for Charles A. Lindbergh's 1927 transatlantic flight, is in the village. Population, 21,686.

garden cress (gär'dn krēs) n. An annual herb (Lepidium sativum) of the mustard family, having pungent leaves and usually grown as a salad plant.

gar-den-er (gärd'när, gär'dn-ər) n. One who works in or tends a garden for pleasure or hire.

Gar-den-er (gär'dn-ər, gärd'när), Helen Hamilton. 1853-1925. American reformer known for her efforts to secure passage of a federal suffrage amendment.

Garden Grove (gär'dn grōv) A city of southern California, a residential suburb of Long Beach and Los Angeles. Population, 143,050.

garden heliotrope (gär'dn hēl'yə-tröp') n. A widely cultivated valerian (Valeriana officinalis) having clusters of small, fragrant, purplish, pink, or white flowers and strong-smelling rhizomes formerly used in medicine.

gar-de-nia (gär-dēn'yə) n. 1. Any of various shrubs and trees of the Old World tropics that belong to the genus Gardenia, especially G. jasminoides native to China, having glossy evergreen leaves and large, fragrant, usually white flowers.

2. The flower of this plant. Also called Cape jasmine [New Latin, genus name, after Alexander GARDEN.]

Garden of Eden (gär'dn üv ēd'n) n. See Eden¹ (n., sense 1).

gar-den-va-ri-e-ty (gär'dn-və-rī'ī-tē) adj. Common; unremarkable: situation comedies, game shows, and other garden-variety television fare.

garde-robe (gärd'rōb') n. Archaic. 1. a. A chamber for storing clothes; a wardrobe. b. The contents of a wardrobe. 2. A private chamber. [Middle English, from Old French : garder, to keep (of Germanic origin); see GUARD + robe, robe (of Germanic origin); see ROBE.]

Gar-di-ner (gärd'när, gär'dn-ər), Samuel Rawson. 1829-1902. British historian, educator, and editor known for his History of England from the Accession of James I to the Restoration (10 volumes, 1863-1882).

Gar-di-ner (gärd'när, gär'dn-ər), Stephen. 1483?-1555. English bishop who defended royal supremacy over the church during the Reformation.

Gar-di-ners Island (gärd'närz ī'lənd, gär'dn-ərz) An island of southeast New York in Gardiners Bay between two peninsulas of eastern Long Island. Settled in 1639, it is a reputed burial place of Captain Kidd's pirate treasure.

Gard·ner (gärd'nər) A city of north-central Massachusetts west of Fitchburg. Its furniture industry dates from c. 1805. Population, 20,125.

Gard·ner (gärd'nər), Erle Stanley. 1889-1970. American lawyer and detective novelist known for creating the character of Perry Mason, a clever attorney.

Gard·ner (gärd'nər), Isabella Stewart. 1840-1924. American collector and patron of the arts. She built a magnificent villa and gallery in Boston to house her exceptional collection of art objects and opened it to the public in 1903.

Gar·eth (gär'ith) n. In Arthurian legend, a nephew of King Arthur and one of the Knights of the Round Table.

Gar·field (gär'fēld') A city of northeast New Jersey on the Passaic River southeast of Paterson. It was settled by the Dutch in 1679. Population, 26,727.

Gar·field (gär'fēld'), James Abram. 1831-1881. The 20th President of the United States (1881). He was assassinated by Charles Guiteau (1841-1882), a frustrated office-seeker.

Garfield Heights (gär'fēld' hīts) A city of northeast Ohio, an industrial suburb of Cleveland. Population, 31,739.

Garfield Mountain (gär'fēld' moun'tən) A peak, 3,343.1 m (10,961 ft) high, in the Bitterroot Range of the Rocky Mountains in southwest Montana. It is the highest elevation of the range.

gar·fish (gär'fish') n. pl. garfish or gar·fish·es. See gar¹ (n., sense 2). [Middle English : gare, spear (from Old English gār) + fish, fish; see FISH.]

gar·ga·ney (gär'gə-nē) n. pl. gar·ga·neys. A small European duck (Anas querquedula) having a conspicuous white stripe over each eye and down the back of the head in the male. [Italian dialectal gargenei, variant of garganello, ultimately from Late Latin gargala, tracheal artery.]

gar·gan·tu·a (gär-gän'chō-ə) n. A person of great size or stature and of voracious physical or intellectual appetites. [After the giant hero of Gargantua and Pantagruel by François Rabelais.]

gar·gan·tu·an (gär-gän'chō-ən) adj. Of immense size, volume, or capacity; gigantic. See Synonyms at enormous.

gar·get (gär'gīt) n. Mastitis of domestic animals, especially cattle. [Perhaps from Middle English, throat, from Old French gargate.]

gar·gle (gär'gəl) v. gar·gled, gar·gling, gar·gles. — v. intr. 1. To force exhaled air through a liquid held in the back of the mouth, with the head tilted back, in order to cleanse or medicate the mouth or throat. 2. To produce the sound of gargling when speaking or singing. — v. tr. 1. To rinse or medicate (the mouth or throat) by gargling. 2. To circulate or apply (a medicine or solution) by gargling. 3. To utter with a gargling sound. — n. 1. A medicated solution for gargling. 2. A gargling sound. [French gargouiller, from Old French.]

gar·goyle (gär'goil') n. 1. A roof spout in the form of a grotesque or fantastic creature projecting from a gutter to carry rainwater clear of the wall. 2. A grotesque ornamental figure or projection. 3. A person of bizarre or grotesque appearance. [Middle English gargoile, from Old French gargole, gargouille, throat, waterspout.]

gar-i-bal-di (gär'ə-bôl'dē) n. 1. A loose, high-necked blouse styled after the red shirts worn by Garibaldi and his soldiers. 2. A bright orange or yellow-orange damselfish (Hypsypops rubicundus) native to coastal marine waters of southern California. [After Giuseppe GARIBALDI.]

Gar-i-bal-di (gär'ə-bôl'dē, gä'rē-bäl'dē), Giuseppe. 1807-1882. Italian general and nationalist who led 1,000 volunteers in the capture of Sicily and Naples (1860). His conquest led to the formation of the kingdom of Italy (1861).

gar-ish (gâr'ish, gär'-) adj. 1. a. Marred by strident color or excessive ornamentation; gaudy. b. Loud and flashy: garish makeup. See Synonyms at gaudy¹. 2. Glaring; dazzling: "Hide me from Day's garish eye" (John Milton). [Origin unknown.] — gar'ish-ly adv. — gar'ish-ness n.

gar-land (gär'lænd) n. 1. a. A wreath or festoon, especially one of plaited flowers or leaves, worn on the body or draped as a decoration. b. A representation of such a wreath or festoon, used as an architectural ornament or a heraldic device. 2. A mark of honor or tribute; an accolade: received garlands of praise from the critics. 3. Nautical. A ring or collar of rope used to hoist spars or prevent fraying. 4. An anthology, as of ballads or poems. — v. tr. gar-land-ed, gar-land-ing, gar-lands. 1. To ornament or deck with a garland. 2. To form into a garland. [Middle English, from Old French garlande, perhaps of Germanic origin. See wei- in Appendix.]

Gar-land (gär'lænd) A city of northeast Texas, an industrial suburb of Dallas. Population, 180,650.

Gar-land (gär'lænd), (Hannibal) Hamlin. 1860-1940. American writer whose stories and novels, including the autobiographical A Son of the Middle Border (1917), depict the hardships endured by Midwestern farmers.

Gar-land (gär'lænd), Judy. 1922-1969. American actress and singer best remembered for her performance as Dorothy in The Wizard of Oz (1939).

garland chrysanthemum (gär'lænd krĭ-săn'thə-məm) n. An annual Mediterranean herb (Chrysanthemum coronarium) of the composite family, having yellow florets grouped in small rayed flower heads and aromatic, bipinnately lobed leaves. Also called crown daisy garland flower (gär'lænd flou'ər) n. A European evergreen shrub (Daphne cneorum) having fragrant rose, pink, or white flowers grouped in dense terminal heads.

gar-lic (gär'lik) n. 1. An onionlike plant (Allium sativum) of southern Europe having a bulb that breaks up into separable cloves with a strong, distinctive odor and flavor. 2. The bulb of this plant. — v. tr. gar-lick-ed, gar-lick-ing, gar-licks. To season or flavor (a food) with garlic. [Middle English, from Old English gārlēac : gār, spear + lēac, leek.]

garlic chive (gär'lik chīv) n. See Chinese chive.

gar-lick·y (gär'lĭ-kē) adj. Containing, tasting of, or smelling of garlic.

garlic mustard (gär'lik müs'tərd) n. A Eurasian weed (Alliaria petiolata) having small white flowers and an odor of garlic.

gar-ment (gär'mənt) n. An article of clothing. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: garment factories; the garment district. — v. tr.

gar-ment-ed, gar-ment-ing, gar-ments. To clothe; dress. [Middle English, from Old French garnement, from garnir, to equip, of Germanic origin. See wer-⁴ in Appendix.]

garment bag (gär'mənt bäg) n. A long, zippered bag used to carry and protect suits, dresses, and coats when traveling.

Gar-misch-Par-ten-kir-chen (gär'mĭsh-pär'tn-kĭr'kən, -kHən) A city of south-central Germany in the foothills of the Bavarian Alps near Oberammergau. Noted as a resort, it was the site of the 1936 Winter Olympics. Population, 28,049.

gar-ner (gär'nər) v. tr. gar-nered, gar-ner-ing, gar-ners. 1. To gather and store in or as if in a granary. 2. To amass; acquire. See Synonyms at reap. — n. A granary. [Middle English, from garner, gerner, granary, from Old French gerner, grenier, from Latin grānārium. See GRANARY.]

Gar-ner (gär'nər), John Nance. 1868-1967. Vice President of the United States (1933-1941) during Franklin D. Roosevelt's first two terms.

gar-net¹ (gär'nĭt) n. 1. Any of several common, widespread aluminum or calcium silicate minerals occurring in two internally isomorphic series, (Mg, Mn, Fe)₃Al₂Si₃O₁₂ and Ca₃(Cr, Al, Fe)₂Si₃O₁₂, generally crystallized, often embedded in igneous and metamorphic rocks, and colored red, brown, black, green, yellow, or white and used both as gemstones and as abrasives. 2. Color. A dark to very dark red. [Middle English, from Old French grenate, from grenat, pomegranate-red, probably from Latin grānātum, pomegranate, from neuter of grānātus, seedy. See POMEGRANATE.]

gar-net² (gär'nĭt) n. Nautical. A tackle for hoisting light cargo. [Middle English garnett, probably from Middle Dutch garnaat.]

gar-net-if-er-ous (gär'nĭ-tĭf'ər-əs) adj. Containing garnets.

Gar-nett (gär'nĭt), Constance Black. 1861-1946. British translator of Russian literature who introduced the works of Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, and Chekhov to the English-speaking world.

gar-ni-er-ite (gär'nē-ə-rĭt') n. A pale green or apple-green mineral, (Ni, Mg)₃Si₂O₅(OH)₄, used as a gemstone and as an important nickel ore. [After Jules Garnier, 19th-century French geologist.]

gar-nish (gär'nĭsh) v. tr. gar-nished, gar-nish-ing, gar-nish-es. 1. a. To enhance in appearance by adding decorative touches; embellish. b. To decorate

(prepared food or drink) with small colorful or savory items, such as parsley or lemon slices. 2. Law. To garnishee. — n. 1. a. Ornamentation; embellishment. b. An embellishment added to a prepared food or drink for decoration or added flavor. 2. Slang. An unwarranted fee, such as one extorted from a new prisoner by a jailer. [Middle English garnishen, from Old French garnir, garniss-, of Germanic origin. See wer-4 in Appendix.]

gar-nish-ee (gär'nī-shē') Law. n. A third party who has been notified that money or property in his or her hands but belonging to a defendant has been attached. — v. tr. gar-nish-ee-d, gar-nish-ee-ing, gar-nish-ees. 1. To attach by garnishment: garnishee a debtor's wages. 2. To serve with a garnishment: garnishee an employer.

gar-nish-ment (gär'nīsh-mənt) n. 1. Law. a. A legal proceeding whereby money or property due a debtor but in the possession of another is applied to the payment of the debt owed to the plaintiff. b. A court order directing a third party who holds money or property belonging to a defendant to withhold it and appear in court to answer inquiries. 2. Ornamentation; embellishment.

gar-ni-ture (gär'nī-chər) n. Something that garnishes; an embellishment. [French, from Old French, from garnir, to garnish. See GARNISH.]

Ga-ronne (gä-rôn') A river of southwest France flowing about 563 km (350 mi) generally northwest from the Spanish Pyrenees to join the Dordogne River north of Bordeaux and form the Gironde estuary.

gar-pike (gär'pīk') n. See gar¹ (n., sense 2).

gar-ret (gär'īt) n. A room on the top floor of a house, typically under a pitched roof; an attic. [Middle English, from Old French garite, watchtower, from garir, to defend, of Germanic origin. See wer-4 in Appendix.]

Gar-rick (gär'īk), David. 1717-1779. British actor and theater manager who was considered the foremost Shakespearean player of his time.

gar-ri-son (gär'ī-sən) n. 1. A military post, especially one that is permanently established. 2. The troops stationed at a military post. — v. tr. gar-ri-soned, gar-ri-son-ing, gar-ri-sons. 1. To assign (troops) to a military post. 2. To supply (a post) with troops. 3. To occupy as or convert into a military post. [Middle English garison, fortified place, from Old French, from garir, to defend, of Germanic origin. See wer-4 in Appendix.]

Gar-ri-son (gär'ī-sən), William Lloyd. 1805-1879. American abolitionist leader who founded and published The Liberator (1831-1865), an antislavery journal.

garrison cap (gär'ī-sən kăp) n. A soft cloth cap without a visor, worn as part of a military uniform. Also called overseas cap

Garrison finish (gär'ī-sən fīn'īsh) n. Sports. A finish in a contest or race in which the winner comes from behind at the last moment. [After Edward ("Snap-per") Garrison, 19th-century American jockey.]

gar·rote or gar·rotte (gə-rōt', -rōt') n. 1. a. A method of execution formerly practiced in Spain, in which a tightened iron collar is used to strangle or break the neck of a condemned person. b. The iron collar used for such an execution. 2. a. Strangulation, especially in order to rob. b. A cord or wire used for strangling. — v. tr. gar·rot·ed or gar·rot·ted, gar·rot·ing or gar·rot·ting, gar·rotes or gar·rottes. 1. To execute by garrote. 2. To strangle in order to rob. [Spanish, cudgel, instrument of torture, possibly from Old French garrot, perhaps from garoquier, to struggle.] — gar·rot·er n.

gar·ru·li·ty (gə-rōō'li-tē) n. Excessive talkativeness; loquaciousness.

gar·ru·lous (gär'ə-ləs, gär'yə-) adj. 1. Given to excessive and often trivial or rambling talk; tiresomely talkative. See Synonyms at talkative. 2. Wordy and rambling: a garrulous speech. [From Latin garrulus, from garrīre, to chatter.] — gar·ru·lous·ly adv. — gar·ru·lous·ness n.

gar·ter (gär'tər) n. 1. a. An elasticized band worn around the leg to hold up a stocking or sock. b. A suspender strap with a fastener attached to a girdle or belt to hold up a woman's stocking. c. An elasticized band worn around the arm to keep the sleeve pushed up. 2. Garter. a. The badge of the Order of the Garter. b. The order itself. c. Membership in the order. — v. tr. gar·tered, gar·ter·ing, gar·ters. 1. To fasten and hold with a garter. 2. To put a garter on. [Middle English, band to support socks, from Old North French gartier, from garet, bend of the knee, probably of Celtic origin.]

garter snake (gär'tər snāk) n. Any of various nonvenomous North and Central American snakes of the genus Thamnophis, having longitudinal stripes.

garth (gärth) n. 1. A grassy quadrangle surrounded by cloisters. 2. Archaic. A yard, garden, or paddock. [Middle English, enclosed yard, from Old Norse gardhr. See gher¹ in Appendix.]

Gar·vey (gär'vē), Marcus (Moziah) Aurelius. 1887-1940. Jamaican Black nationalist active in America in the 1920's. He founded the Universal Negro Improvement Association (1914) and later urged American Black people to establish an independent country in Africa.

Gar·y (gâr'ē, gâr'ē) A city of northwest Indiana on Lake Michigan near the Illinois border. Founded on land purchased by the U.S. Steel Corporation in 1905, it is a highly industrialized port of entry. Population, 151,953.

Gar·y (gâr'ē, gâr'ē), Elbert Henry. 1846-1927. American lawyer and financier who played a leading role in the organization of the Federal Steel Company (1898) and the U.S. Steel Corporation (1901).

gas (gäs) n. pl. gas·es or gas·ses. 1. a. The state of matter distinguished from the solid and liquid states by relatively low density and viscosity, relatively great expansion and contraction with changes in pressure and temperature, the ability to diffuse readily, and the spontaneous tendency to become distributed uniformly throughout any container. b. A substance in the gaseous state. 2. A gaseous fuel, such as natural gas. 3. Gasoline. 4. The speed control of a gasoline engine: Step on the gas. 5. A gaseous asphyxiant, irritant, or poison. 6. A gaseous anesthetic, such as nitrous oxide. 7. a. Flatulence. b. Flatus. 8. Slang. Idle or boastful talk. 9. Slang. Someone or something exceptionally exciting or entertaining: The party was a gas. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: gas tanks; gas stoves. — v. gassed, gas-sing, gas-es or gas-ses. — v. tr. 1. To treat chemically with gas. 2. To overcome, disable, or kill with poisonous fumes. — v. intr. 1. To give off gas. 2. Slang. To talk excessively. — phrasal verb. gas up. To supply a vehicle with gas or gasoline: gas up a car; gassed up before the trip. [Dutch, an occult physical principle supposed to be present in all bodies, alteration of Greek khaos, chaos, empty space, coined by Jan Baptista van Helmont (1577-1644), Flemish chemist.]

gas-bag (gäs'bäg') n. 1. An expansible bag for holding gas. 2. Slang. One given to empty or boastful talk.

gas burner (gäs bür'nər) n. A nozzle or jet on a fitting through which combustible gas is released to burn. Also called gas jet gas chamber (gäs chām'bər) n. A sealed enclosure in which condemned prisoners are executed by poison gas.

gas chromatograph (gäs krō-mät'ə-gräf') n. An instrument used in gas chromatography to separate a sample of a volatile substance into its components.

gas chromatography (gäs krō'mə-tög'rə-fē) n. Chromatography in which the substance to be separated into its components is diffused along with a carrier gas through a liquid or solid adsorbent for differential adsorption. — gas'-chro-mat'o-graph'ic (gäs'krō-mät'ə-gräf'ik) adj.

Gas-coigne (gäs'koin'), George. 1525?-1577. English writer known for The Supposes (1566), the first English prose comedy.

gas-con (gäs'kən) n. A boastful person; a braggart. [From GASCON (from the traditional stereotype of Gascons as braggarts).]

Gas-con (gäs'kən) n. A native or inhabitant of Gascony. — adj. Of or relating to Gascony, the Gascons, or their language or culture.

gas-con·ade (gäs'kə-nād') n. Boastfulness; bravado. [French gasconnade, from Gascon, Gascon, from Latin Vascō, Vascon-.] — gas'con-ade' v. — gas'-con-ad'er n.

Gas-con·ade (gäs'kə-nād') A river rising in the Ozark Plateau of south-central Missouri and flowing about 426 km (265 mi) generally northeast to the Missouri River east of Jefferson City.

gas constant (gäs kōn'stənt) n. Symbol R Physics. A constant, equal to 8.314 joules per Kelvin or 1.985 calories per degree Celsius, that is the constant of proportionality (R) in the equation Pressure × Volume = (R) × Temperature, relating the pressure and volume of a quantity of gas to the absolute temperature.

Gas-co-ny (gäs'kə-nē) A historical region and former province of southwest France. Settled originally by Basque peoples, it was conquered by the Romans and later by the Visigoths and Franks. A new wave of Basque invaders from south of the Pyrenees established the duchy of Vasconia in the sixth century A.D. In 1052 Gascony passed to the duchy of Aquitaine, and after serving as a major battlefield during the Hundred Years' War, it finally became part of the French royal domain in 1607.

gas-dy·nam·ics (gäs'dī-nām'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of dynamics that deals with the motion of gases and the thermal effects of this motion. —gas'dy·nam'ic adj. —gas'dy·nam'i·cist (-ī-sīst) n.

gas·e·ous (gäs'ē-əs, gāsh'əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or existing as a gas.

2. Lacking substance or concreteness; tenuous or indefinite. 3. Full of or containing gas; gassy. —gas'e·ous·ness n.

gas fitter (gäs fit'ər) n. One who installs or repairs gas pipes, fixtures, or appliances.

gas gangrene (gäs gāng'grēn') n. Gangrene occurring in a wound infected with bacteria of the genus Clostridium, especially C. perfringens, and characterized by the presence of gas in the affected tissue.

gas-guz·zler (gäs'güz'lər) n. Informal. An automotive vehicle that gets relatively low gas mileage. —gas'·guz'zling adj.

gash (gāsh) v. tr. gashed, gash·ing, gash·es. To make a long, deep cut in; slash deeply. — n. 1. A long, deep cut. 2. A deep flesh wound. [Alteration of Middle English garsen, to scarify, from Old North French garser, from Late Latin charaxāre, to scratch, engrave, from Greek kharassein.]

Gash·er·brum (gūsh'ər-brōm', -brōm') A series of four peaks in the Karakoram Range of the Himalaya Mountains in northern Kashmir. Gasherbrum I is the highest, at 8,073.4 m (26,470 ft), although Gasherbrum IV, 7,930 m (26,000 ft), has been called more difficult than Everest for mountain climbers. The other two peaks are 8,039.8 m (26,360 ft) and 7,957.5 m (26,090 ft) high.

gas·hold·er (gäs'hōl'dər) n. A storage container for fuel gas, especially a large, telescoping, cylindrical tank. Also called gasometer gas·house (gäs'hous') n. See gasworks.

gas·i·form (gäs'ə-fōrm') adj. Having the form of gas; gaseous.

gas·i·fy (gäs'ə-fī') v. tr. intr. gas·i·fied, gas·i·fy·ing, gas·i·fies. To convert into or become gas. —gas'i·fi'a·ble adj. —gas'i·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —gas'i·fi'er n.

gas jet (gäs jět) n. 1. See gas burner. 2. The flame of burning gas from a gas burner.

Gas·kell (gäs'kəl), Elizabeth Cleghorn Stevenson. 1810-1865. British writer noted for her Life of Charlotte Brontë (1857) and her novels depicting the oppression of workers in 19th-century England.

gas·ket (gäs'kīt) n. 1. Any of a wide variety of seals or packings used between matched machine parts or around pipe joints to prevent the escape of a gas or fluid. 2. Nautical. A cord or canvas strap used to secure a furled sail to a yard boom or gaff. [Perhaps alteration of French garcette, small cord, diminutive of garce, girl, from Old French, feminine of gars, boy, soldier. See GARÇON.]

gas·kin (gäs'kīn) n. 1. The part of the hind leg of a horse or related animal between the stifle and the hock. 2. gaskins. Obsolete. Galligaskins. [Probably short for GALLIGASKINS.]

gas·light (gäs'līt') n. 1. Light produced by burning illuminating gas. 2. A gas burner or lamp.

gas log (gäs lôg) n. A gas burner designed to look like a log for use in a fireplace.

gas main (gäs mān) n. A major pipeline conveying gas to smaller pipes for distribution to consumers.

gas mask (gäs mǎsk) n. A respirator that contains a chemical air filter and is worn over the face as protection against toxic gases and aerosols.

gas·o·hol (gäs'ə-hôl') n. A fuel consisting of a blend of ethyl alcohol and unleaded gasoline, especially a blend of 10 percent ethanol and 90 percent gasoline. [GAS(OLINE) + (ALC)OHOL.]

gas·o·line (gäs'ə-lēn', gäs'ə-lēn') n. A volatile mixture of flammable liquid hydrocarbons derived chiefly from crude petroleum and used principally as a fuel for internal-combustion engines and as a solvent, an illuminant, and a thinner. [GAS + -OL(E) + -INE².]

gas·om·e·ter (gä-söm'i-tər) n. 1. An apparatus for measuring gases. 2. See gasholder. [French gazomètre: gaz, gas (from Dutch gas); see GAS + -mètre, -meter.]

gasp (gǎsp) v. gasped, gasping, gasps. — v. intr. 1. To draw in the breath sharply, as from shock. 2. To breathe convulsively or laboriously. — v. tr. To utter in a breathless manner. — n. A short convulsive intake or catching of the breath. [Middle English gaspen, gaispen, to gape, yawn, from Old Norse geispa, to yawn.]

Gas·par (gäs'pär, -pər) See Caspar.

Gas·pé (gäs-pā') A city of eastern Quebec, Canada, on Gaspé Bay, an inlet of the Gulf of St. Lawrence near the eastern tip of the Gaspé Peninsula. Population, 17,261.

Gaspé Peninsula (gäs-pā' pə-nīn'syə-lə) A peninsula of eastern Quebec, Canada, between Chaleur Bay and the mouth of the St. Lawrence River. Mountainous and heavily wooded, the peninsula is known for its picturesque coastal villages as well as its hunting and fishing. Jacques Cartier landed here in 1534.

gasp·er (gäs'pər) n. Chiefly British. A cigarette.

gas plant (gäs plänt) n. A Eurasian plant (Dictamnus albus) having aromatic foliage and white flowers and emitting a flammable vapor. Also called burning bush, dittany, fraxinella.

gas-ser (gäs'ər) n. 1. A well or drilling that yields natural gas. 2. Slang. Something highly entertaining or remarkable. 3. Slang. A talkative or boastful person.

Gas-ser (gäs'ər), Herbert Spencer. 1888-1963. American physiologist. He shared a 1944 Nobel Prize for research on nerve fibers.

gas station (gäs stā'shən) n. See service station (n., sense 1).

gas-sy (gäs'ē) adj. gas-si-er, gas-si-est. 1. Containing or full of gas.

2. Resembling gas. 3. Slang. Bombastic; boastful. —gas'si-ness n.

gast (gäst) v. tr. gast-ed, gast-ing, gasts. Obsolete. To frighten; scare. [Middle English gasten, from Old English gæstan, from gāst, ghost.]

gas-tight (gäs'tīt') adj. Impermeable by gas. —gas'tight'ness n.

Gas-to-ni-a (gä-stō'nē-ə) A city of southern North Carolina near the South Carolina border west of Charlotte. It is a textile center. Population, 54,732.

gastr- pref. Variant of gastro-.

gas-trec-to-my (gä-strĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. gas-trec-to-mies. Surgical excision of part or all of the stomach.

gas-tric (gäs'trĭk) adj. Of, relating to, or associated with the stomach.

gastric juice (gäs'trĭk jōōs) n. The colorless, watery, acidic digestive fluid that is secreted by various glands in the mucous membrane of the stomach and consists chiefly of hydrochloric acid, pepsin, rennin, and mucin.

gastric ulcer (gäs'trĭk ūl'sər) n. An ulcer occurring in the mucous membrane of the stomach.

gas-trin (gäs'trĭn) n. A hormone secreted by glands in the mucous membrane of the stomach that stimulates the production of gastric juice.

gas-tri-tis (gä-strĭ'tīs) n. Chronic or acute inflammation of the stomach, especially of the mucous membrane of the stomach.

gastro- or gastr- pref. 1. a. Belly: gastropod. b. Stomach: gastritis.

2. Gastric: gastrin. [Greek, from gastēr, gastr-, belly.]

gas-troc-ne-mi-us (gäs'trōk-nē'mē-əs, gäs'trə-) n. pl. gas-troc-ne-mi-i (-mē-ī'). The largest, most prominent muscle of the calf of the leg, the action of which extends the foot and bends the knee. [New Latin, from Greek gastroknē-mia, calf of the leg : gastro-, gastro- + knēmē, leg.]

gas-tro-en-ter-ic (gäs'trō-ĕn-tĕr'ĭk) adj. Gastrointestinal.

gas-tro-en-ter-i-tis (gäs'trō-ĕn'tə-rĭ'tīs) n. Inflammation of the mucous membrane of the stomach and intestines.

gas-tro-en-ter-ol-o-gy (gäs'trō-ĕn'tə-rōl'ə-jē) n. The branch of medicine that deals with the study of disorders affecting the stomach, intestines, and associated organs. —gas'tro-en'ter-o-log'ic (-ə-lōj'ĭk), gas'tro-en'ter-o-log'i-cal adj. —gas'tro-en'ter-ol'o-gist n.

gas·tro·in·tes·ti·nal (gäs'trō-ĭn-tēs'tə-nəl) adj. Abbr. GI Of or relating to the stomach and intestines: the gastrointestinal tract.

gas·tro·lith (gäs'trə-lĭth') n. 1. A pathological stony mass formed in the stomach; gastric calculus. 2. A small stone found in the stomach of some reptiles, fish, and birds that aids in digestion by helping grind ingested food material.

gas·trol·o·gy (gä-strōl'ə-jē) n. The medical study of the stomach and its diseases. —gas'tro·log'i·cal, gas'tro·log'ic adj. —gas'tro·log'i·cal·ly adv. —gas·trol'o·gist n.

gas·tro·nome (gäs'trə-nōm') also gas·tron·o·mer (gä-strōn'ə-mər) n. A connoisseur of good food and drink; a gourmet. Also called gastronomist [French, back-formation from gastronomie, gastronomy. See GASTRONOMY.]

gas·tro·nom·ic (gäs'trə-nōm'ĭk) also gas·tro·nom·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. Of or relating to gastronomy. —gas'tro·nom'i·cal·ly adv.

gas·tron·o·mist (gä-strōn'ə-mĭst) n. See gastronome.

gas·tron·o·my (gä-strōn'ə-mē) n. pl. gas·tron·o·mies. 1. The art or science of good eating. 2. A style of cooking, as of a particular region. [French gastronomie, from Greek gastronomia : gastro-, gastro- + -nomia, -nomy.]

gas·tro·pod (gäs'trə-pōd') n. Any of various mollusks of the class Gastropoda, such as the snail, slug, cowrie, or limpet, characteristically having a single, usually coiled shell or no shell at all, a ventral muscular foot for locomotion, and eyes and feelers located on a distinct head. — adj. Of or belonging to the class Gastropoda. [From New Latin Gastropoda, class name : GASTRO- + -poda, -pod.] —gas·trop'o·dan (gä-strōp'ə-dn), gas·trop'o·dous (-dəs) adj.

gas·tro·scope (gäs'trə-skōp') n. An endoscope that is inserted through the mouth and used for examining the interior of the stomach. —gas'tro·scop'ic (-skōp'ĭk) adj. —gas·tros'co·pist (gä-strōs'kə-pĭst) n. —gas·tros'co·py (-kə-pē) n.

gas·tros·to·my (gä-strōs'tə-mē) n. pl. gas·tros·to·mies. Surgical construction of a permanent opening from the external surface of the abdominal wall into the stomach, usually for inserting a feeding tube.

gas·trot·o·my (gä-strōt'ə-mē) n. pl. gas·trot·o·mies. A surgical incision into the stomach.

gas·tro·trich (gäs'trə-trĭk) n. Any of various minute aquatic animals of the phylum Gastrotricha, having a wormlike, ciliated body. [From New Latin Gastrotricha, phylum name : GASTRO- + Greek -trikha, neuter pl. of -trikhos, -trichous.]

gas·tro·vas·cu·lar (gäs'trō-väs'kyə-lər) adj. Having both a digestive and a circulatory function. Used especially to describe the body cavity of a coelenterate.

gas·tru·la (gäs'trə-lə) n. pl. gas·tru·las or gas·tru·lae (-lē'). An embryo at the stage following the blastula, consisting of a hollow, two-layered sac of ectoderm and endoderm surrounding an archenteron that communicates with the exterior through the blastopore. [New Latin : Greek gastēr, gastr-, belly + Latin -ula, feminine diminutive suff..] —gas'tru-lar (-lər) adj.

gas·tru·late (gäs'trə-lāt') v. intr. gas·tru·lat·ed, gas·tru·lat·ing, gas·tru·lates. To form or become a gastrula.

gas·tru·la·tion (gäs'trə-lā'shən) n. The process of forming a gastrula.

gas turbine (gäs tûr'bîn) n. An internal-combustion engine consisting essentially of an air compressor, a combustion chamber, and a turbine wheel that is turned by the expanding products of combustion.

gas·works (gäs'wûrks') pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). A factory where gas for heating and lighting is produced. Also called gashouse gat¹ (gät) n. A narrow passage extending inland from a shore; a channel. [Probably Dutch, from Middle Dutch.]

gat² (gät) n. Slang. A pistol. [Short for GAT(LING GUN).]

gat³ (gät) v. Archaic. A past tense of get.

gate¹ (gät) n. 1. A structure that can be swung, drawn, or lowered to block an entrance or a passageway. 2. a. An opening in a wall or fence for entrance or exit. b. The structure surrounding such an opening, such as the monumental or fortified entrance to a palace or walled city. 3. a. A means of access: the gate to riches. b. A passageway, as in an airport terminal, through which passengers proceed for embarkation. 4. A mountain pass. 5. The total paid attendance or admission receipts at a public event: a good gate at the football game. 6. A device for controlling the passage of water or gas through a dam or conduit. 7. The channel through which molten metal flows into a shaped cavity of a mold. 8. Sports. A passage between two upright poles through which a skier must go in a slalom race. 9. Electronics. A circuit with multiple inputs and one output that is energized only when a designated set of input pulses is received. — v. tr.

gat·ed, gat·ing, gates. 1. Chiefly British. To confine (a student) to the grounds of a college as punishment. 2. Electronics. To select part of (a wave) for transmission, reception, or processing by magnitude or time interval. —idioms. get the gate. Slang. To be dismissed or rejected. give (someone) the gate. Slang. 2. To discharge from a job. 3. To reject or jilt. [Middle English, from Old English geat.]

gate² (gät) n. 1. Chiefly British. A particular way of acting or doing; manner. 2. Archaic. A path or way. [Middle English, from Old Norse gata. See ghē- in Appendix.]

gâ·teau or ga·teau (gă-tō', gä-) *n. pl. gâ·teaux or ga·teaux (gă-tō', gä-). A cake or pastry, especially a light one filled with custard, fruit, or nuts. [French, from Old French gastel, cake, from Frankish wastil*, food.]*

gate·crash·er (gät'krăsh'ər) n. Slang. One who gains admittance, as to a party or concert, without being invited or without paying. —gate/crash' v.

gate-fold (gāt'föld') n. Printing. A foldout, especially one that opens to double the page size.

gate-house (gāt'hous') n. 1. A lodge at the entrance to the driveway of an estate. 2. A fortified structure built over the gateway to a city or castle. 3. A building that houses the controls of a dam or canal lock.

gate-keeper (gāt'kē'pər) n. 1. One that is in charge of passage through a gate. 2. One who monitors or oversees the actions of others.

gate-leg table (gāt'læg' tā'bəl) n. A drop-leaf table with paired legs that swing out to support the leaves.

gate-post (gāt'pōst') n. An upright post on which a gate is hung or against which it closes.

ga-ter also 'ga-ter (gā'tər) n. Informal. Variants of gator.

Gates (gāts) A community of western New York, a suburb of Rochester. Population, 29,756.

Gates (gāts), Horatio. 1728?-1806. American Revolutionary general who became a hero after winning the Battle of Saratoga (1777) but suffered a humiliating defeat at Camden, South Carolina (1780).

Gates (gāts), John Warne. Known as "Bet-a-million." 1855-1911. American financier who made a fortune manufacturing barbed wire and was notorious for his speculations in the stock market.

Gates-head (gāts'hēd') A borough of northeast England on the Tyne River opposite Newcastle. Dating probably to Saxon times, it has an iron and steel industry that developed in the 19th century. Population, 214,100.

gate-way (gāt'wā') n. 1. An opening or a structure framing an opening, such as an arch, that may be closed by a gate. 2. Something that serves as an entrance or a means of access: a gateway to success; the gateway to the West.

gateway drug (gāt'wā' drüg) n. A habit-forming substance whose use may lead to the abuse of drugs that are more addictive or more dangerous: Marijuana is considered a gateway drug for cocaine.

Gath (gāth) An ancient city of Palestine east-northeast of Gaza. It was one of the five Philistine city-kingdoms and the home of Goliath.

gath-er (gāth'ər) v. gath-ered, gath-er-ing, gath-ers. — v. tr. 1. To cause to come together; convene. 2. a. To accumulate (something) gradually; amass. b. To harvest or pick: gather flowers; gather wild foods. 3. To gain by a process of gradual increase: gather speed. 4. To collect into one place; assemble. 5. To pick up and enfold: gathered the kittens into her arms. 6. Printing. To arrange (signatures) in sequence for bookbinding. 7. a. To draw into small folds or puckers, as by pulling a thread through cloth. b. To contract and wrinkle (the brow). 8. To draw about or bring (one thing) closer to something else: gathered the shawl about my shoulders. 9. To conclude; infer: I gather that a decision has not been reached. 10. To summon up; muster: gathered up his courage. 11. To attract or be a center of attraction for: The parade gathered a large crowd. — v. intr. 1. To come together in a group; assemble. 2. To accumulate: Dark clouds are gathering. 3. To grow or increase by degrees. 4. To come to a head, as a boil; fester. 5. To forage for wild foodstuffs. — n. 1. a. The act or an instance of gathering. b. A quantity gathered. 2. A small fold or pucker made by gathering cloth. [Middle English getheren, gaderen, from Old English gadrian. See ghedh- in Appendix.] —gath'er-er n.

SYNONYMS: gather, collect, assemble, congregate, accumulate, amass. These verbs mean to bring or come together in a group or mass. Gather is the most general term and therefore the most widely applicable: The tour guide gathered the visitors in the hotel lobby. A group of students gathered in front of the administration building to demand divestiture. I gathered sticks as kindling for the fire. Clouds gather before a thunderstorm. Collect is often interchangeable with gather: A proctor will collect (or gather) the examination papers at the end of the hour. Tears collected (or gathered) in her eyes. Frequently, however, collect refers to the careful selection of like or related things that become part of an organized whole: collects antiques; collected stamps. Assemble in all of its senses implies that the persons or things involved have a definite and usually close relationship. With respect to persons the term suggests convening out of common interest or purpose: Assembling an able staff was more difficult than raising the funds to finance the venture. The new legislature will assemble in January. With respect to things assemble implies gathering and fitting together components, as of a structure or machine: The curator is devoting time and energy to assembling an interesting exhibit of Stone Age artifacts. Congregate refers chiefly to the coming together of a large number of persons or animals: After the lecture the physicians congregated in the library to compare notes. Accumulate applies to the increase of like or related things over an extended period: They gradually accumulated enough capital to be financially secure after retirement. Old newspapers and magazines are accumulating in the basement. Amass refers to the collection or accumulation of things, especially valuable things, to form an imposing quantity: families who amassed great fortunes in the days before income tax. See also Synonyms at reap gath-er-ing (gäth'ər-īng) n. 1. a. The action of one that gathers. b. That which is gathered or amassed; a collection or an accumulation. 2. An assembly of persons; a meeting. 3. The collecting of food that grows wild, such as berries, roots, and grains. 4. A gather in cloth. 5. A suppurated swelling; a boil or an abscess.

Gat-i-neau (gät'n-ō', gä-tē-nō') A town of southwest Quebec, Canada, northeast of Hull near the mouth of the Gatineau River, about 386 km (240 mi) long.

The river rises in the Laurentian Plateau and flows generally southwest to the Ottawa River. The city is an industrial center. Population, 74,988.

Gat·ling (găt'ľing), Richard Jordan. 1818-1903. American firearms inventor remembered for inventing the first rapid-firing gun (patented 1862).

Gatling gun (găt'ľing gűn) n. A machine gun having a cluster of barrels that are fired in sequence as the cluster is rotated. [After Richard Jordan GATLING.]

ga·tor or ga·ter also 'ga·tor also 'ga·ter (gă'tər) n. Informal. An alligator.

Gat-or-ade (gă'tə-răd') A trademark used for a thirst-quenching beverage drunk especially by athletes.

GATT abbr. General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Ga·tún Lake (gə-tűn' ľăk, gă-) An artificial lake of central Panama formed by the impounding of the Chagres River. It is a major link in the Panama Canal system.

gauche (gűsh) adj. Lacking social polish; tactless. See Synonyms at awkward. [French, awkward, lefthanded, from Old French, from gauchir, to turn aside, walk clumsily, of Germanic origin.] —gauche/ly adv. —gauche/ness n.

gau·che·rie (gű'shə-rű') n. 1. An awkward or tactless act, manner, or expression. 2. A lack of tact; awkwardness. [French, from gauche, gauche. See GAUCHE.]

gau·cho (gou'chű) n. pl. gau·chos. 1. A cowboy of the South American pampas. 2. gauchos. Calf-length pants with flared legs. [American Spanish, probably from Quechua wáhcha, poor person, orphan, vagabond.]

gaud (gűd) n. A gaudy or showy ornament or trinket. [Middle English gaud, gaudi, sing. of gaudies, large, ornamental beads on a rosary, trinkets, from Medieval Latin gaudia, from Latin, pl. of gaudium, joy (referring to the Joyful Mysteries of the Virgin Mary), from gaudere, to rejoice. See gău- in Appendix.]

gaud·er·y (gű'də-rű) n. pl. gaud·er·ies. Showy or gaudy decoration; ostentatious or pretentious show.

Gau·dí (gou'dű, gou-dű'), Antonio. 1852-1926. Spanish architect who worked mainly in Barcelona, developing a startling new style that paralleled developments in art nouveau and incorporated color as well as odd bits of material. His most celebrated work is the façade of the Expiatory Church of the Holy Family.

gaud·y¹ (gű'dű) adj. gaud·i·er, gaud·i·est. Showy in a tasteless or vulgar way. [Possibly from GAUDY² (influenced by GAUD).] —gaud/i·ly adv. —gaud/i·ness n.

SYNONYMS: gaudy, flashy, garish, loud, meretricious, tawdry. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “tastelessly showy”: a gaudy costume; a flashy ring; garish colors; a loud sport shirt; a meretricious yet stylish book; tawdry ornaments.

gaud-y² (gô'dē) n. pl. gaud-ies. Chiefly British. A feast, especially an annual university dinner. [Middle English gaudi, gaud, prank, trick, possibly from Old French gaudie, merriment (from gaudir, to enjoy, make merry, from Latin gaudēre, to rejoice), and from Latin gaudium, enjoyment, merry-making (from gaudēre, to rejoice); see gāu- in Appendix.]

gauf·fer (gôf'ər, gô'fər) v. & n. Variant of goffer.

Gau·ga·me·la (gô'gə-mē'lə) An ancient village of Assyria northeast of Nineveh. Alexander the Great defeated the Persians under Darius III here in 331 B.C.

gauge also gage (gāj) n. Abbr. ga. 1. a. A standard or scale of measurement. b. A standard dimension, quantity, or capacity. 2. An instrument for measuring or testing. 3. A means of estimating or evaluating; a test: a gauge of character. See Synonyms at standard. 4. Nautical. The position of a vessel in relation to another vessel and the wind. 5. a. The distance between the two rails of a railroad. b. The distance between two wheels on an axle. 6. The interior diameter of a shotgun barrel as determined by the number of lead balls of a size exactly fitting the barrel that are required to make one pound. Often used in combination: a 12-gauge shotgun. 7. The amount of plaster of Paris combined with common plaster to speed setting of the mixture. 8. Thickness or diameter, as of sheet metal or wire. 9. The fineness of knitted cloth as determined by the number of loops per 12 inches. — v. tr. gauged also gaged, gaug·ing also gag·ing, gaug·es also gag·es. 1. To measure precisely. 2. To determine the capacity, volume, or contents of. 3. To evaluate or judge: gauge a person's ability. 4. To adapt to a specified measurement. 5. To mix (plaster) in specific proportions. 6. To chip or rub (bricks or stones) to size. [Middle English, from Old North French, gauging rod, of Germanic origin.] — gauge'a·ble adj.

gaug·er also gag·er (gā'jər) n. Chiefly British. A revenue officer who inspects bulk goods subject to duty.

Gau·guin (gō-găN'), (Eugène Henri) Paul. 1848-1903. French artist whose paintings are characterized by simplified forms and brilliant colors and are partially responsible for the significance of primitivism in modern art.

Gaul¹ (gôl) n. 1. A Celt of ancient Gaul. 2. A French person.

Gaul² (gôl) Formerly Gal·li·a (găl'ē-ä). An ancient region of western Europe south and west of the Rhine River, west of the Alps, and north of the Pyrenees, corresponding roughly to modern-day France and Belgium. The Romans extended the designation to include northern Italy, particularly after Julius Caesar's conquest of the area in the Gallic Wars (58-51 B.C.).

Gaul·ish (gô'līsh) n. The Celtic language of ancient Gaul.

Gaull·ism (gō'līz'əm, gô'-) n. 1. The political movement supporting Gen. Charles de Gaulle as leader of the French government in exile during World War II. 2. a. The political movement headed by Charles de Gaulle after World War II.

b. The political principles and goals of Charles de Gaulle and his followers.

—Gaull'ist n.

gaum (gôm) v. tr. gaumed, gaum-ing, gaums. Upper Southern U.S. To smudge or smear. [Perhaps alteration of obsolete gome, grease, variant of coom, soot, mixture of dirt and axle grease, variant of CULM².]

gaunt (gônt) adj. gaunt-er, gaunt-est. 1. Thin and bony; angular. See Synonyms at lean². 2. Emaciated and haggard; drawn. 3. Bleak and desolate; barren. [Middle English, perhaps from Old French gant, possibly of Scandinavian origin.] —gaunt'ly adv. —gaunt'ness n.

gaunt-let¹ also gant-let (gônt'lît, gânt'/-) n. 1. A protective glove worn with medieval armor. 2. A protective glove with a flared cuff, used in manual labor, in certain sports, and for driving. 3. A challenge: throw down the gauntlet; take up the gauntlet. 4. A dress glove cuffed above the wrist. [Middle English, from Old French gantellet, diminutive of gant, glove, from Frankish want*.]

WORD HISTORY: In the first and second editions of The American Heritage Dictionary Usage Notes explained why the spelling gauntlet is acceptable for both *gauntlet*¹ and *gauntlet*². Such has not always been the case. The story of *gauntlet*¹, as in to throw down the gauntlet, is unexciting: it comes from the Old French word gantellet, a diminutive of gant, “glove.” From the time of its appearance in Middle English (in a work composed in 1449), the word has been spelled with an au as well as an a, still a possible spelling. But the other gauntlet, as in to run the gauntlet, is an alteration of the earlier English form gantlope, which came from the Swedish word gatlopp, a compound of gata, “lane,” and lopp, “course.” The earliest recorded form of the English word, found in 1646, is gantelope, showing that alteration of the Swedish word had already occurred. The English word was then influenced by the spelling of the word gauntlet, “glove,” and in 1676 we find the first recorded instance of the spelling gauntlet for this word, although gantelope is found as late as 1836. From then on spellings with au and a are both found. The au seems to have won out, although one could say that the a is preferable because it reflects the Swedish source. In regard to a word that has been so altered in form, this seems a rather fine point.

gaunt-let² also gant-let (gônt'lît, gânt'/-) n. 1. a. A form of punishment in which men armed with sticks or other weapons arrange themselves in two lines facing each other and beat the person forced to run between them. b. The lines of men so arranged. 2. An onslaught or attack from all sides: “The hostages... ran the gauntlet of insult on their way to the airport” (Harper’s). 3. A severe trial; an ordeal. [Alteration (influenced by GAUNTLET¹), of gantlope, from Swedish gatlopp: gata, lane (from Old Swedish); see ghē- in Appendix + lopp, course, running (from Middle Low German lōp).] gaur (gour) n. A large, dark-coated wild ox (Bos gaurus) of hilly areas of south-east Asia. Also called seladang [Hindi, from Sanskrit gaurah. See g^wou- in Appendix.]

gauss (gous) n. pl. gauss or gauss-es. Abbr. G Physics. The centimeter-gram-second unit of magnetic induction, equal to one maxwell per square centimeter. [After Karl Friedrich GAUSS.] Gauss (gous), Karl Friedrich. 1777-1855. German mathematician and astronomer known for his contributions to algebra, differential geometry, probability theory, and number theory.

Gauss-i-an distribution (gou'sē-ən dīs'trə-byōō'shən) n. See normal distribution. [After Karl Friedrich GAUSS.] Gau-ta-ma (gô'tə-mə, gou'-), Siddhartha. See Buddha.

Gau-tier (gō-tyā'), Théophile. 1811-1872. French writer who influenced French literature during its shift from romanticism to aestheticism and naturalism. His works include Young France (1833) and Enamels and Cameos (1852).

gauze (gôz) n. 1. a. A thin, transparent fabric with a loose open weave, used for curtains and clothing. b. A thin, loosely woven surgical dressing, usually made of cotton. c. A thin plastic or metal woven mesh. 2. A mist or haze. [French gaze, possibly from Spanish gasa (from Arabic qazz, raw silk, possibly from Persian kazh).] —gauz'i-ly adv. —gauz'i-ness n.

gauz-y (gô'zē) adj. gauz-i-er, gauz-i-est. Resembling gauze in thinness or transparency. See Synonyms at airy. —gauz'i-ly adv. —gauz'i-ness n.

ga-vage (gə-vāzh') n. Introduction of nutritive material into the stomach by means of a tube. [French, from gaver, to force down the throat, ultimately from Old French gave, throat, from Old Latin gaba*.]

Ga-var-nie (gäv'ər-nē', gä-vär-) A waterfall, about 422 m (1,384 ft) high, of southwest France in the Pyrenees south of Lourdes. Nearby is the Cirque de Gavarnie, a vast natural amphitheater with steep walls up to 1,708 m (5,600 ft) high.

gave (gāv) v. Past tense of give.

gav-el¹ (gäv'əl) n. 1. A small mallet used by a presiding officer or an auctioneer to signal for attention or order or to mark the conclusion of a transaction. 2. A maul used by masons in fitting stones. — v. tr. gav-eled also gav-elled, gav-el-ing also gav-el-ling, gav-els also gav-els. To bring about or compel by using a gavel: “The chairman... tries to gavel the demonstration to an end” (New Yorker). [Origin unknown.]

gav-el² (gäv'əl) n. Tribute or rent in ancient and medieval England. [Middle English, from Old English gafol. See ghabh- in Appendix.]

gav-el-kind (gäv'əl-kīnd') n. An English system of land tenure from Anglo-Saxon times to 1926 that provided for the equal division of land among all qualified heirs. [Middle English gavelkinde : Old English gafol, gavel; see GAVEL² + Old English gecynd, kind; see KIND².]

gav-el-to-gav-el (gäv'əl-tə-gäv'əl) adj. Informal. Extending from the opening to the close, as of a political convention: gavel-to-gavel television coverage.

ga-vi-al (gā'vē-əl) n. A large reptile (Gavialis gangeticus) of southern Asia, related to and resembling the crocodiles and having a long, slender snout. Also called gharial [French, from Hindi gharīyāl.]

Gäv-le (yëv'lě) A city of eastern Sweden on the Gulf of Bothnia north-northwest of Stockholm. Chartered in 1446, it has a thriving export trade. Population, 67,300.

ga-votte (gə-vöt') n. 1. A French peasant dance resembling the minuet.

2. Music for this dance in moderately quick 4/4 time. [French, from Provençal gavoto, from gavot, native of the Alps, possibly from gava, crop of a bird, from Old Latin gaba*, gullet, throat.] —ga-votte' v.

GAW abbr. Guaranteed annual wage.

Ga-wain (gə-wān', gä'wān', gou'ən, gä'wən) n. In Arthurian legend, a nephew of King Arthur and a Knight of the Round Table.

gawk (gōk) n. An awkward, loutish person; an oaf. — v. intr. gawked, gawk-ing, gawks. To stare or gape stupidly. [Perhaps alteration (influenced by gawk hand, left hand, from dialectal gaulic, left-handed, clumsy), of obsolete gaw, to gape, from Middle English gawen, from Old Norse gā, to heed.] —gawk'er n.

gawk-y (gō'kē) adj. gawk-i-er, gawk-i-est. Awkward; ungainly. —gawk'i-ly adv.

gay (gā) adj. gay-er, gay-est. 1. Showing or characterized by cheerfulness and lighthearted excitement; merry. 2. Bright or lively, especially in color: a gay, sunny room. 3. Of, relating to, or sharing the lifestyle and concerns of the homosexual community. 4. Homosexual. 5. Given to social pleasures. 6. Dissolute; licentious. — n. A gay person, especially an openly gay person in contemporary society. [Middle English gai, from Old French, possibly of Germanic origin.] —gay'ness n.

USAGE NOTE: The word gay is now standard in its use to refer to the American homosexual community and its members; in this use it is generally lowercased. Gay is distinguished from homosexual in emphasizing the cultural and social aspects of homosexuality. Many writers reserve gay for male homosexuals, but the word is also used to refer to homosexuals of both sexes; when the intended meaning is not clear in the context, the phrase gay and lesbian should be used. Like the other names of social groups that are derived from adjectives (e.g., Black), gay may be regarded as offensive when used as a noun to refer to particular individuals, as in There were two gays on the panel; here a phrase such as gay people should be used instead. But there is no objection to the use of the noun in the plural to refer to the general gay community, as in Gays have united in opposition to the policy. See Usage Note at homosexual.

Gay (gā), John. 1685-1732. English writer known especially for his play The Beggar's Opera (1728).

Ga-ya (gə-yä', gī'ə) A city of northeast India south of Patna. The surrounding area is sacred to Buddhist and Hindu pilgrims. Population, 247,075.

ga-yal (gə-yäl') n. A domesticated bovine mammal (Bos frontalis) of India and Burma, having thick, pointed horns, a dark coat, and a tufted tail. [Bengali gayāl, probably from Sanskrit gauḥ, ox. See g^wou- in Appendix.]

gay·e·ty (gā'ī-tē) n. Variant of gaiety.

gay feather (gā'fēth'ər) n. See blazing star (n., sense 2).

Gay-Lus-sac (gā'lə-säk', -lū-säk'), Joseph Louis. 1778-1850. French chemist and physicist who isolated the element boron (1809) and formulated a law that explains the behavior of a gas under constant pressure.

gay·ly (gā'lē) adv. Variant of gaily.

Gay-nor (gā'nər), Janet. 1906-1984. American actress who won the first Academy Award for best actress (1928).

gaz. abbr. Gazette; gazetteer.

Ga-za (gä'zə, gǎz'ə, gā'zə) A city of southwest Asia in the Gaza Strip, a narrow coastal area along the Mediterranean Sea adjoining Israel and Egypt. The territory was part of the British mandate for Palestine (1917-1948), passed to Egypt in 1949, and was occupied by Israel in 1967. Palestinian autonomy was promised in the 1979 Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty but has not yet been achieved. The city of Gaza was one of the five major Philistine city-kingdoms. Population, 118,272.

ga-zar (gə-zär') n. A loosely woven silk with a crisp finish. [Probably ultimately from Arabic qazz, raw silk. See GAUZE.]

gaze (gāz) v. intr. gazed, gaz-ing, gaz-es. To look steadily, intently, and with fixed attention. — n. A steady, fixed look. [Middle English gasen, probably of Scandinavian origin.] — gaz'er n.

SYNONYMS: gaze, stare, gape, glare, peer, ogle. These verbs mean to look long and intently. Gaze refers to prolonged looking that is often indicative of wonder, fascination, awe, or admiration: gazing at the stars; gazed into her eyes. To stare is to gaze fixedly; the word can indicate curiosity, boldness, insolence, or stupidity: stared at them in disbelief; staring into the distance. Gape suggests a prolonged open-mouthed look reflecting amazement, awe, or lack of intelligence: tourists gaping at the sights. To glare is to fix another with a hard, piercing stare: He glared furiously at me when I contradicted him. To peer is to look narrowly, searchingly, and seemingly with difficulty: peered through her spectacles at the contract. To ogle is to stare in an amorous, usually impertinent manner: construction workers on their lunch hour ogling passing women.

ga-ze-bo (gə-zā'bō, -zē'-) n. pl. ga-ze-bos or ga-ze-boes. 1. A freestanding, roofed, usually open-sided structure providing a shady resting place. 2. See belvedere. [Origin unknown.]

gaze-hound (gāz'hound') n. A dog, such as the Afghan hound or the greyhound, that hunts its prey by sight rather than by scent.

ga-zelle (gə-zěl') n. Any of various small, swift antelopes of the genus Gazella and related genera of Africa and Asia, characteristically having a slender neck and annulate horns. [French, from Old French, from Arabic ḡazāl.]

ga-zette (gə-zět') n. Abbr. gaz. 1. A newspaper. 2. An official journal.

3. Chiefly British. An announcement in an official journal. — v. tr. ga-zet-ted, ga-zet-ting, ga-zettes. Chiefly British. To announce or publish in an official journal or in a newspaper. [French, from Italian gazzetta, probably from Italian dialectal gazeta, a small coin (possibly from the price).]

gaz-et-teer (gǎz'ī-tīr') n. Abbr. gaz. 1. A geographic dictionary or index.

2. Archaic. A writer for a gazette; a journalist.

Ga-zi-an-tep (gä'zē-än-těp') Formerly Ain-tab (īn-tāb'). A city of southern Turkey north of Aleppo, Syria. An ancient Hittite center, it was strategically important during the Crusades. The surrounding area is known for its textiles and pistachio nuts. Population, 374,290.

gaz-pa-cho (gə-spä'chō, gəz-pä'-) n. pl. gaz-pa-chos. A chilled soup made with chopped tomatoes, cucumbers, onions, peppers, and herbs. [Spanish.]

G.B. abbr. Great Britain.

Gbe (bě, gbě) n. A closely related group of languages, including Ewe and Fon, that are spoken in coastal Ghana, Togo, Benin, and Nigeria. [Gbe, language, voice.]

GC abbr. Gigacycle.

GCA abbr. Ground-controlled approach.

G.C.B. abbr. Knight of the Grand Cross, Order of the Bath.

gcd or g.c.d. abbr. Mathematics. Greatest common divisor.

gcf or g.c.f. abbr. Mathematics. Greatest common factor.

G clef (jē' klěf) n. Music. See treble clef.

GCT abbr. Greenwich civil time.

Gd The symbol for the element gadolinium.

gd. abbr. Good.

G.D. abbr. Grand duchy.

Gdańsk (gə-dānsk', -dānsk', -dīnsk') also Dan-zig (dān'sīg, dān'tsik) A city of northern Poland near the mouth of the Vistula River on the Gulf of Gdańsk, an inlet of the Baltic Sea. An old Slavic settlement, Gdańsk was a part of the Hanseatic League after the 13th century and was later ruled by Poland and Prussia. The Treaty of Versailles (1919) declared it a free city, although it came under Nazi control in 1935. Hitler's demand that Gdańsk be returned to Germany led to his invasion of Poland and the beginning of World War II (September 1939). The city was liberated by the Russians in 1945 and subsequently restored to Poland.

Population, 467,200.

G.D.R. or GDR abbr. German Democratic Republic.

gds. abbr. Goods.

Gdy-ni-a (gə-dīn'ē-ə, -dīn'yə) A city of northern Poland on the Gulf of Gdańsk northwest of Gdańsk. It has been a major Baltic port since the 1930's. Population, 243,100.

Ge The symbol for the element germanium.

ge- pref. Variant of geo-.

ge-an-ti-cline (jē-än'tī-klīn') n. A large upward fold of the earth's crust.

—ge-an'ti-cli'nal adj.

gear (gîr) n. 1. a. A toothed machine part, such as a wheel or cylinder, that meshes with another toothed part to transmit motion or to change speed or direction. b. A complete assembly that performs a specific function in a larger machine. c. A transmission configuration for a specific ratio of engine to axle torque in a motor vehicle. 2. Equipment, such as tools or clothing, used for a particular activity; paraphernalia: fishing gear. See Synonyms at equipment. 3. a. Clothing and accessories: the latest gear for teenagers. b. Personal belongings, including clothing: keeps her gear in a trunk. 4. The harness for a horse. 5. Nautical. a. A ship's rigging. b. A sailor's personal effects. — v. geared, gear-ing, gears. — v. tr. 1. a. To equip with gears. b. To connect by gears. c. To put into gear. 2. To adjust or adapt so as to make suitable: geared the speech to a conservative audience. 3. To provide with gear; equip. — v. intr. 1. To come into or be in gear. 2. To become adjusted so as to fit or blend. — phrasal verb. gear up. To get ready for a coming action or event: a group of investors who had geared up for the takeover fight. [Middle English gere, equipment, from Old Norse gervi; akin to gera, to do, make, make ready.]

gear-box (gîr'böks') n. 1. See transmission (n., sense 3). 2. A protective casing for a system of gears.

gear-ing (gîr'ing) n. 1. A system of gears and associated elements by which motion is transferred within a machine. 2. The act or technique of providing with gears.

gear ratio (gîr rā'shō) n. The ratio of the speed of rotation of the powered gear of a gear train to that of the final or driven gear.

gear-shift (gîr'shift') n. A mechanism for changing from one gear to another in a transmission.

gear train (gîr trān) n. A system of interconnected gears.

gear-wheel also gear wheel (gîr'hwêl', -wêl') n. A wheel with a toothed rim.

Geat (gēt, yăt) n. A member of an ancient Germanic people of southern Sweden conquered by the Swedes in the sixth century A.D. [Old English Gēat.]

Ge·bel Mu·sa (jēb'əl mōō'sə, -sə) See Jebel Musa.

Ge·ber (jē'bər, gā'-) also Ja·bir (jā'bər, jă'bîr), fl. eighth century?. Arab scholar and alchemist who wrote a number of influential books of alchemical theory, including Summa Perfectionis.

geck·o (gĕk'ō) n. pl. geck·os or geck·oes. Any of various usually small tropical and subtropical lizards of the family Gekkonidae, having toes padded with setae containing numerous suction cups that enable them to climb on vertical surfaces. [Malay (Javanese) ge'kok.]

GED abbr. 1. General equivalency diploma. 2. General educational development.

Ged·des (gĕd'ēz), Norman Bel. 1893-1958. American architect and theatrical and industrial designer who popularized the concept of streamlining.

gee¹ (jē) n. The letter g.

gee² (jē) interj. Used to command a horse or an ox to turn to the right. — v. intr. geed, gee-ing, gees. To turn to the right.

gee³ also jee (jē) interj. Used as a mild expletive or exclamation, as of surprise, enthusiasm, or sympathy. [Alteration of JESUS.]

gee⁴ (jē) n. Slang. A thousand dollars. [From *GEE*¹, from the first letter of GRAND.]

Gee·chee (gē'chē) n. 1. Southeastern U.S. Gullah. 2. The local dialect of English spoken in Charleston, South Carolina. [After the Ogeechee River.]

geek (gĕk) n. Slang. 1. An odd or ridiculous person. 2. A carnival performer whose show consists of bizarre acts, such as biting the head off a live chicken. [Perhaps alteration of dialectal geck, fool, from Low German gek, from Middle Low German.] —geek'y adj.

Gee·long (jə-lông') A city of southeast Australia southwest of Melbourne. It is a manufacturing center with a thriving tourist industry. Metropolitan area population, 137,173.

geese (gēs) n. Plural of goose.

gee whiz (jē hwĭz) interj. Used to express mild surprise, amazement, or enthusiasm.

gee-whiz (jē'hwĭz', -wĭz') adj. Informal. Marked by or inducing a sense of wide-eyed wonder or excitement, as in response to an amazing achievement: "The book seems a little too gee-whiz even for describing what everyone does admit is a revolution" (Savvy).

gee-zer (gē'zər) n. An eccentric old man. See Usage Note at adage. [Probably alteration of dialectal guiser, masquerader, from Middle English gysar, from gyssen, to dress, from gyse, guise, fashion. See GUISE.]

WORD HISTORY: A relationship with a word we know well is disguised in the word geezer. A clue to this relationship is found in British dialect. The English Dialect Dictionary defines geezer as “a queer character, a strangely-acting person,” and refers the reader to guiser, “a mummer, masquerader.” The citations for guiser refer to practices such as the following: “People, usually children... go about on Christmas Eve, singing, wearing masks, or otherwise disguised,” the last word of this passage being the one to which geezer is related.

ge-fil-te fish (gə-fil'tə fɪʃ) n. Finely chopped fish, usually whitefish, pike, or carp, mixed with crumbs, eggs, and seasonings, cooked in a broth in the form of balls or oval-shaped cakes and usually served chilled. [Yiddish : gefilt, past participle of filn, to fill, stuff + fish, fish.]

ge-gen-schein (gā'gən-shīn') n. A faint, glowing spot in the sky, exactly opposite the position of the sun. Also called counterglow [German : gegen, against (from Middle High German, from Old High German gegin) + Schein, light (from Middle High German schīn, from Old High German schīn, from scīnan, to shine).]

Ge-hen-na (gī-hĕn'ə) n. 1. A place or state of torment or suffering. 2. The abode of condemned souls; hell. [Late Latin, from Greek Geenna, from Hebrew Gē' Hinnōm, possibly short for Gē ben Hinnōm, valley of the son of Hinnom, a valley south of Jerusalem.]

Geh-rig (gĕr'ig), Henry Louis. Known as “Lou.” 1903-1941. American baseball player. In 14 seasons with the New York Yankees (1925-1939), Gehrig was the American League's most valuable player 4 times. He earned a career batting average of .340.

Gei-ger counter (gī'gər koun'tər) n. An instrument that detects and measures the intensity of radiation, such as particles from radioactive material, consisting of a Geiger tube and associated electronic equipment. [After Hans Wilhelm Geiger (1882-1945), German physicist.]

gei-ger tree (gī'gər trē) n. A small evergreen tree (Cordia sebestena) native to the Florida Keys, the West Indies, and northern South America, having large orange and scarlet flowers in terminal clusters. It is widely cultivated in the tropics. [After John Geiger (fl. c. 1832), American friend of John James Audubon.]

Geiger tube (gī'gər tōōb) n. A metal or glass tube filled with gas that is ionized by passing charged particles, producing within the tube an electric charge indicative of a particular particle. [After Hans Wilhelm Geiger (1882-1945), German physicist.]

Gei-kie (gē'kē), Sir Archibald. 1835-1924. Scottish geologist who directed the Geological Survey of the United Kingdom and the Museum of Practical Geology (1882-1901).

Gei-sel (gē'zəl), Theodor Seuss. Pen name Dr. Seuss. 1904-1991. American writer and illustrator of children's books. His works, known for their humorous verse and playful illustrations, include The Cat in the Hat (1957) and Green Eggs and Ham (1960).

gei-sha (gā'shə, gē'-) n. pl. geisha or gei-shas. One of a class of professional women in Japan trained from girlhood in conversation, dancing, and singing in order to lend an atmosphere of chic and gaiety to professional or social gatherings of men. [Japanese : gei, art + sha, person.]

gel (jəl) n. 1. A colloid in which the disperse phase has combined with the dispersion medium to produce a semisolid material, such as a jelly. 2. A gelatin used in theatrical lighting. 3. A jellylike substance used in styling hair. — v. intr.

gelled, gel-ling, gels. To become a gel. [Short for GELATIN.] — gel'a-ble adj.

Ge-la (jě'lā) A city of southern Sicily, Italy, on the Mediterranean Sea. Founded c. 688 B.C. by Greek colonists from Crete and Rhodes, it reached the height of its prosperity in the fifth century B.C. The dramatist Aeschylus lived here. Population, 74,789.

ge-län-de-sprung (gə-lən'də-shpröŋ') n. Sports. A jump in skiing made from a crouching position with the use of both poles. [German : Gelände, open field (from Middle High German gelende, from Old High German gilanti, from lant, land); see lendh- in Appendix + Sprung, jump (from Middle High German sprunc, from Old High German, from springan, to jump).]

gel-ate (jěl'āt') v. intr. gel-at-ed, gel-at-ing, gel-ates. To gel.

gel-a-tin also gel-a-tine (jěl'ə-tn) n. 1. a. A colorless or slightly yellow, transparent, brittle protein formed by boiling the specially prepared skin, bones, and connective tissue of animals and used in foods, drugs, and photographic film. b. Any of various similar substances. 2. A jelly made with gelatin, used as a dessert or salad base. 3. A thin, transparent membrane used over a theatrical light to color it. [French gélatine, from Italian gelatina, diminutive of gelata, jelly from feminine past participle of gelare, to freeze, from Latin gelāre. See gel- in Appendix.]

ge-lat-i-nize (jə-lăt'n-īz', jěl'ə-tn-īz') v. ge-lat-i-nized, ge-lat-i-niz-ing, ge-lat-i-niz-es. — v. tr. 1. To convert to gelatin or jelly. 2. To coat with gelatin. — v. intr. To become gelatinous. — ge-lat'i-ni-za'tion (-lăt'n-ī-zā'shən) n.

ge-lat-i-nous (jə-lăt'n-əs) adj. 1. Resembling gelatin; viscous. 2. Of, relating to, or containing gelatin. — ge-lat'i-nous-ly adv. — ge-lat'i-nous-ness n.

ge-la-tion (jě-lā'shən) n. 1. Solidification by cooling or freezing. 2. The process of forming a gel. [Latin gelātiō, gelātiōn-, from gelātus, past participle of gelāre, to freeze. See gel- in Appendix.]

ge·la·to (jə-lä'tō, jě-) n. pl. ge·la·ti (-tē). An Italian ice cream or ice. [Italian, from past participle of gelare, to freeze. See GELATIN.]

geld¹ (gěld) v. tr. geld·ed or gelt (gělt), geld·ing, gelds. 1. To castrate (a horse, for example). 2. To deprive of strength or vigor; weaken. [Middle English gelden, from Old Norse gelda.]

geld² (gěld) n. A tax paid to the crown by English landholders under Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings. [Middle English geld, and Medieval Latin geldum both from Old English geld, gield, payment.]

Gel·der·land (gěld' dəɹ-länd', Kĕĕl' dəɹ-länt') A region and former duchy of east-central Netherlands. The duchy was formed in 1339 and passed to the Hapsburgs in 1543. It became part of the Netherlands in 1579, although a portion of the territory was ceded to Prussia in the 18th century.

geld·ing (gěld' dīng) n. A castrated animal, especially a male horse. [Middle English, from Old Norse geldingr, from gelda, to geld.]

gel·id (jěł' id) adj. Very cold; icy: gelid ocean waters. See Synonyms at cold. [Latin gelidus, from gelū, frost. See gel- in Appendix.] —ge·lid/i·ty (jə-līd' i-tē), gel' id·ness n. —gel' id·ly adv.

gel·ig·nite (jěł' ɪg-nīt') n. An explosive mixture composed of nitroglycerine, guncotton, wood pulp, and potassium nitrate. [GEL(ATIN) + Latin ignis, fire + -ITE¹.]

Gell-Mann (gěł' mən'), Murray. Born 1929. American physicist. He won a 1969 Nobel Prize for his study of subatomic particles.

Gel·sen·kir·chen (gěł' zən-kīɹ' kən, -Kĕən) A city of west-central Germany in the Ruhr Valley northeast of Essen. It is a major industrial and coal-mining center. Population, 287,956.

gelt¹ (gělt) n. Slang. Money. [Yiddish, from Middle High German geld, from Old High German gelt, recompense.]

gelt² (gělt) v. A past tense and a past participle of geld¹.

gem (jěm) n. 1. A pearl or mineral that has been cut and polished for use as an ornament. 2. a. Something that is valued for its beauty or perfection: a little gem of a book. b. A beloved or highly prized person. 3. A type of muffin. — v. tr. gemmed, gem·ming, gems. To adorn with or as if with precious or semiprecious stones. [Middle English gemme, from Old French, from Latin gemma. See gembh- in Appendix.]

GEM abbr. Ground-effect machine.

Ge·ma·ra (gə-mär' ə, -môɹ' ə) n. The second part of the Talmud, consisting primarily of commentary on the Mishnah. [Aramaic gēmārā, completion, from gēmar, to complete.] —Ge·ma'ric adj. —Ge·ma'rist n.

gem clip (jěm klīp) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See paper clip. [Origin unknown.]

gem·i·nate (jěm'ə-nāt') v. gem·i·nat·ed, gem·i·nat·ing, gem·i·nates. — v. tr. 1. To double. 2. To arrange in pairs. — v. intr. To occur in pairs. — adj. (-nīt, -nāt') Forming a pair; doubled. — n. (-nīt, -nāt') Linguistics. A double or long consonant. [Latin gemināre, gemināt-, from geminus, twin.] — gem'·i·na'tion n.

Gem·i·ni (jěm'ə-nī', -nē') pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere containing the stars Castor and Pollux. Also called Twins 2. a. The third sign of the zodiac in astrology. Also called Twins b. One who is born under this sign. [Middle English, from Latin Geminī, pl. of geminus, twin.]

Gem·i·ni·an (jěm'ə-nī'ən, -nē'-) n. One who is born under the sign of Gemini.

gem·ma (jěm'ə) n. pl. gem·mae (jěm'ē'). An asexual budlike propagule as in liverworts, capable of developing into a new individual; a bud. [Latin, bud. See gembh- in Appendix.]

gem·mate (jěm'āt') adj. Having or reproducing by gemmae. — v. intr.

gem·mat·ed, gem·mat·ing, gem·mates. To produce gemmae or reproduce by means of gemmae. [From Latin gemma'tus, past participle of gemma're, to bud, from gemma, bud. See gembh- in Appendix.] — gem·ma'tion (jě-mā'shən) n.

gem·mip·a·rous (jě-mīp'ər-əs) adj. Botany. Reproducing by buds or gemmae. [Latin gemma, bud; see GEMMA + -PAROUS.] — gem·mip'a·rous·ly adv.

gem·mol·o·gy (jě-mōl'ə-jē) n. Variant of gemology.

gem·mu·la·tion (jěm'yə-lā'shən) n. Production of or reproduction by gemmules.

gem·mule (jěm'yōl) n. 1. A small gemma or similar structure, especially a reproductive structure in some sponges that remains dormant through the winter and later develops into a new individual. 2. A hypothetical particle of heredity postulated to be the mediating factor in the production of new cells in the theory of pangenesis. [French, from Latin gemma, diminutive of gemma, bud. See gembh- in Appendix.] — gem'mu·lif'er·ous (jěm'yō-līf'ər-əs) adj.

gem·my (jěm'ē) adj. 1. Full of or set with gems. 2. Glittering like a gem.

gem·ol·o·gy or gem·mol·o·gy (jě-mōl'ə-jē) n. The study of gems.

— gem'o·log'i·cal (jěm'ə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. — gem·ol'o·gist n.

ge·mot also ge·mote (gə-mōt') n. A public meeting or local judicial assembly in Anglo-Saxon England. [Old English gemōt: ge-, collective pref.; see kom in Appendix + mōt, assembly.]

gems·bok (gěmz'bōk') n. A large antelope (Oryx gazella) of arid regions of southern Africa, having long, sharp, straight horns, a tufted tail, and distinctive black and white markings on the head. [Afrikaans, from Dutch, from German Gemsbock: Gemse, chamois (from Middle High German gemeze, from Old High German gamiza*, from Late Latin camox) + Bock, buck (from Middle High German boc, from Old High German).]

gem·stone (jĕm/'stōn') n. A precious or semiprecious stone that may be used as a jewel when cut and polished.

ge·müt·lich (gə-mōōt/'lik, -müt/'likH) adj. Warm and congenial; pleasant or friendly. [German, from Middle High German gemüetlich, from gemüete, spirit, feelings, from Old High German gimuoti, from muot, mind, spirit, joy. See mē¹ in Appendix.]

ge·müt·lich·keit (gə-müt/'likH-kīt', -mōōt/-) n. Warm friendliness; amicability. [German, from gemütlich, congenial. See GEMÜTLICH.]

gen. abbr. 1. Gender. 2. General; generally. 3. Generator. 4. Generic.

5. Grammar. Genitive. 6. Genus.

Gen. abbr. 1. General. 2. Bible. Genesis.

-gen or -gene suff. 1. Producer: androgen. 2. One that is produced: phosgene. [French -gène, from Greek -genēs, born. See genə- in Appendix.]

gen·darme (zhän/'därm') n. 1. A member of the French national police organization constituting a branch of the armed forces with responsibility for general law enforcement. 2. Slang. A police officer. [French, from Old French gent d'armes, sing. of gens d'armes, mounted soldiers, men-at-arms : gens, people, men (from Latin gentes, pl. of gēns, clan); see genə- in Appendix + de, of (from Latin dē); see DE- + armes, pl. of arme, weapon; see ARM².]

gen·dar·me·rie (zhän-där/'mə-rē) n. 1. A body of French gendarmes.

2. Slang. A group of police officers. [French, from Old French, calvary, from gent d'armes, gendarme, mounted soldier. See GENDARME.]

gen·der (jĕn/'dər) n. Abbr. g., gen. 1. Grammar. a. A grammatical category used in the analysis of nouns, pronouns, adjectives, and, in some languages, verbs that may be arbitrary or based on characteristics such as sex or animacy and that determines agreement with or selection of modifiers, referents, or grammatical forms. b. One category of such a set. c. The classification of a word or grammatical form in such a category. d. The distinguishing form or forms used.

2. Sexual identity, especially in relation to society or culture. — n. attributive.

Often used to modify another noun: “Women entered graduate schools... and encountered gender discrimination when they applied for the few academic positions” (New York Times). — v. tr. gen·dered, gen·der·ing, gen·ders. To engender. [Middle English gendre, from Old French, kind, gender, from Latin genus, gener-. See genə- in Appendix.] — gen·der·less adj.

USAGE NOTE: Traditionally, gender has been used primarily to refer to the grammatical categories of “masculine,” “feminine,” and “neuter”; but in recent years the word has become well established in its use to refer to sex-based categories, as in phrases such as gender gap and the politics of gender. This usage is supported by the practice of many anthropologists, who reserve sex for reference to biological categories, while using gender to refer to social or cultural categories.

According to this rule, one would say The effectiveness of the medication appears to depend on the sex (not gender) of the patient, but In peasant societies, gender (not sex) roles are likely to be more clearly defined. This distinction is useful in principle, but it is by no means widely observed, and considerable variation in usage occurs at all levels.

gender bender or gen·der·ben·der (jĕn'dər-bĕn'dər) n. Slang. 1. One who dresses or acts in an androgynous manner. 2. Something, such as a theatrical performance or a book, whose portrayal of gender roles is unexpectedly non-traditional or androgynous.

gender gap or gen·der·gap (jĕn'dər-găp') n. A disproportionate difference, as in attitudes and voting preferences, between the sexes. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: “His gender-gap troubles multiplied after an impromptu speech about ‘women’s place’” (Newsweek).

gen·der·neu·tral (jĕn'dər-nōō'trəl, -nyōō'-) adj. Free of explicit or implicit reference to gender or sex, as is the term police officer (instead of policewoman or policeman) or the term crewed (instead of manned).

gene (jĕn) n. A hereditary unit that occupies a specific location on a chromosome and determines a particular characteristic in an organism. Genes exist in a number of different forms and can undergo mutation. [From Greek genos, race, offspring. See genə- in Appendix.]

-gene suffix. Variant of -gen.

ge·ne·al·o·gy (jĕ'nĕ-ŏl'ə-jĕ, -ăl'-, jĕn'ĕ-) n. pl. ge·ne·al·o·gies. 1. A record or table of the descent of a person, family, or group from an ancestor or ancestors; a family tree. 2. Direct descent from an ancestor; lineage or pedigree.

3. The study or investigation of ancestry and family histories. [Middle English genealogie, from Old French, from Late Latin geneālogia, from Greek : genea, family; see genə- in Appendix + -logia, -logy.] — ge'ne·a·log'i·cal (-ə-lŏj'ī-kəl) adj. — ge'ne·a·log'i·cal·ly adv. — ge'ne·al'o·gist n.

gene amplification (jĕn äm'plə-fī-kă'shən) n. A cellular process characterized by the production of multiple copies of a particular gene or genes to amplify the phenotype that the gene confers on the cell. Drug resistance in cancer cells is linked to amplification of the gene that prevents absorption of the chemotherapeutic agent by the cell.

gene flow (jĕn flō) n. Transfer of genes from one population to another of the same species, as by migration or the dispersal of seeds and pollen.

gene frequency (jĕn frĕ'kwən-sĕ) n. The frequency of occurrence of an allele in relation to that of other alleles of the same gene in a population.

gene pool (jĕn pōol) n. The collective genetic information contained within a population of sexually reproducing organisms.

gen·er·a (jĕn'ər-ə) n. Plural of genus.

gen·er·a·ble (jĕn'ər-ə-bəl) adj. Capable of being generated: generable ideas.

[Latin generābilis, from generāre, to produce. See GENERATE.]

gen·er·al (jĕn'ər-əl) adj. Abbr. gen., genl. 1. Concerned with, applicable to, or affecting the whole or every member of a class or category: “subduing all her impressions as a woman, to something more general” (Virginia Woolf).

2. Affecting or characteristic of the majority of those involved; prevalent: general discontent. 3. Being usually the case; true or applicable in most instances but not all: the general correctness of her decisions. 4. a. Not limited in scope, area, or application: as a general rule. b. Not limited to or dealing with one class of things; diversified: general studies. 5. Involving only the main features rather than precise details: a general grasp of the subject. 6. Highest or superior in rank: the general manager. — n. 1. Abbr. Gen. a. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps that is above lieutenant general. b. One who holds this rank or a similar rank in another military organization. 2. A general officer. 3. A statement, principle, or fact that embraces or is applicable to the whole. 4. Archaic. The public. — idiom. in general. Generally. [Middle English, from Latin generālis, from genus, gener-, kind. See genə- in Appendix.]

—gen'er-al·ness n.

SYNONYMS: general, common, generic, universal. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “belonging to, relating to, or affecting the whole”: the general welfare; a common enemy; generic differences between birds and reptiles; universal military conscription.

ANTONYM: particular

Gen·er·al American (jĕn'ər-əl ə-mĕr'ĭ-kən) n. The speech of native English speakers of the upper Midwestern United States, considered by some to be representative of that of the majority of the country, excluding the Southeast, New York City, and eastern New England.

general anesthetic (jĕn'ər-əl ən'ĭs-thĕt'ĭk) n. An anesthetic that causes loss of sensation in the entire body and induces unconsciousness.

general assembly (jĕn'ər-əl ə-sĕm'blĕ) n. 1. A legislative body, especially a U.S. state legislature. 2. General Assembly. Abbr. GA, G.A. The principal deliberative body of the United Nations, in which each member nation is represented and has one vote. 3. The supreme governing body of some religious denominations.

General Court (jĕn'ər-əl kôrt) n. 1. A legislative body having judicial powers in colonial New England. 2. The state legislature of Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

general court-martial (jĕn'ər-əl kôrt'mär'shəl) n. A court-martial consisting of at least five officers for trying major offenses.

gen·er·al·cy (jĕn'ər-əl-sē) n. pl. gen·er·al·cies. The rank, appointment, authority, or tenure of a general.

general delivery (jĕn'ər-əl dī-līv'ə-rē) n. 1. A department of a post office that holds mail for addressees until it is called for. 2. Mail directed to this department.

general election (jĕn'ər-əl ĭ-lĕk'shən) n. An election involving all or most constituencies of a state or nation in the choice of candidates.

gen·er·al·is·si·mo (jĕn'ər-əl-līs'ə-mō') n. pl. gen·er·al·is·si·mos. The commander in chief of all the armed forces in certain countries. [Italian, superlative of generale, a general, from Latin generālis, general. See GENERAL.]

gen·er·al·ist (jĕn'ər-ə-līst) n. One who has broad general knowledge and skills in several areas.

gen·er·al·i·ty (jĕn'ə-rāl'ī-tē) n. pl. gen·er·al·i·ties. 1. The state or quality of being general. 2. An observation or a principle having general application; a generalization. 3. An imprecise or vague statement or idea. 4. The greater portion or number; the majority.

gen·er·al·i·za·tion (jĕn'ər-ə-lī-zā'shən) n. 1. The act or an instance of generalizing. 2. A principle, a statement, or an idea having general application.

gen·er·al·ize (jĕn'ər-ə-līz') v. gen·er·al·ized, gen·er·al·iz·ing, gen·er·al·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. a. To reduce to a general form, class, or law. b. To render indefinite or unspecific. 2. a. To infer from many particulars. b. To draw inferences or a general conclusion from. 3. a. To make generally or universally applicable. b. To popularize. — v. intr. 1. a. To form a concept inductively. b. To form general notions or conclusions. 2. To deal in generalities; speak or write vaguely. 3. Medicine. To spread through the body. Used of a usually localized disease.

gen·er·al·ized (jĕn'ər-ə-līzd') adj. 1. Biology. Not specifically adapted to a particular environment or function; not specialized. 2. Generally prevalent: observed a state of generalized discontent.

gen·er·al·ly (jĕn'ər-ə-lē) adv. Abbr. gen. 1. Popularly; widely: generally known. 2. a. As a rule; usually: The child generally has little to say. b. For the most part: a generally boring speech. 3. Without reference to particular instances or details; not specifically: generally speaking.

general officer (jĕn'ər-əl ô'fī-sər) n. An officer in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps ranking above colonel.

General of the Air Force (jĕn'ər-əl ŭv thē âr fôrs) n. 1. The highest commissioned rank in the U.S. Air Force. 2. One who holds this rank.

General of the Army (jĕn'ər-əl ŭv thē âr'mē) n. 1. The highest commissioned rank in the U.S. Army. 2. One who holds this rank.

general paresis (jĕn'ər-əl pə-rē'sis) n. A brain disease occurring as a late consequence of syphilis, characterized by dementia, progressive muscular weakness, and paralysis.

general practitioner (jĕn'ər-əl prāk-tīsh'ə-nər) n. Abbr. G.P., GP A physician whose practice is not oriented to a specific medical specialty but instead covers a variety of medical problems in patients of all ages. Also called family doctor gen·er·al·pur·pose (jĕn'ər-əl-pûr'pəs) adj. Designed for or suitable to more than one use; broadly useful: a general-purpose loan.

general relativity (jĕn'ər-əl rĕl'ə-tiv'i-tē) n. The geometric theory of gravitation developed by Albert Einstein, incorporating and extending the theory of special relativity to accelerated frames of reference and introducing the principle that gravitational and inertial forces are equivalent.

Gen·er·al San Mar·tín (jĕn'ər-əl sän mär-tĕn', hĕn'ĕ-räl' sän) A city of eastern Argentina, a manufacturing suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 384,306.

General Sar·mien·to (jĕn'ər-əl sār-myĕn'tō, hĕn'ĕ-räl') A city of eastern Argentina, a suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 499,648.

general semantics (jĕn'ər-əl sĭ-măn'tiks) n. (used with a sing. verb). A discipline developed by Alfred Korzybski that proposes to improve human behavioral responses through a more critical use of words and symbols.

gen·er·al·ship (jĕn'ər-əl-shĭp') n. 1. The rank, office, or tenure of a general. 2. Leadership or skill in the conduct of a war. 3. Skillful management or leadership.

general staff (jĕn'ər-əl stăf) n. A group of military officers charged with assisting the commander of a division or higher unit in planning, coordinating, and supervising operations.

general store (jĕn'ər-əl stôr) n. A retail store, usually located in a rural community, that sells a wide variety of merchandise but is not divided into departments.

general strike (jĕn'ər-əl strĭk) n. A strike by all or most of the workers in an industry or throughout a country or an area.

gen·er·ate (jĕn'ə-rāt') v. tr. gen·er·at·ed, gen·er·at·ing, gen·er·ates.

1. a. To bring into being; give rise to: generate a discussion. b. To produce as a result of a chemical or physical process: generate heat. 2. To engender (offspring); procreate. 3. Mathematics. To form (a geometric figure) by describing a curve or surface. 4. Computer Science. To produce (a program) by instructing a computer to follow given parameters with a skeleton program. [Latin generāre, generāt-, to produce, from genus, gener-, birth. See genə- in Appendix.]

gen·er·a·tion (jĕn'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. All of the offspring that are at the same stage of descent from a common ancestor: Mother and daughters represent two generations. 2. Biology. A form or stage in the life cycle of an organism: asexual generation of a fern. 3. The average interval of time between the birth of parents and the birth of their offspring. 4. a. A group of individuals born and living about the same time. b. A group of generally contemporaneous individuals regarded as having common cultural or social characteristics and attitudes: “They’re the television generation” (Roger Enrico). 5. a. A period of sequential technological development and innovation. b. A class of objects derived from a preceding class: a new generation of computers. 6. The act or process of generating; origination, production, or procreation. —gen·er·a·tion·al adj.

generation gap (jěŋ'ə-rā'shən gǎp) n. A broad difference in values and attitudes between one generation and another, especially between young people and their parents.

Gen·er·a·tion X (jěŋ'ə-rā'shən ɛks') n. A group of people born between 1961 and 1972 typified by a college education, dissatisfaction with career opportunities, and pessimism. [After the novel Generation X by Douglas Coupland.]

gen·er·a·tive (jěŋ'ər-ə-tīv, -ə-rā'-) adj. 1. Having the ability to originate, produce, or procreate. 2. Of or relating to the production of offspring. —gen·er·a·tive·ly adv. —gen·er·a·tive·ness n.

generative cell (jěŋ'ər-ə-tīv sěl) n. Botany. A cell of the male gametophyte or pollen grain in seed plants that divides to give rise directly or indirectly to sperm.

generative grammar (jěŋ'ər-ə-tīv grām'ər) n. A linguistic theory that attempts to describe a native speaker's tacit grammatical knowledge by a system of rules that in an explicit and well-defined way can generate all of the well-formed, or grammatical, sentences of a language while excluding all ungrammatical, or impossible, sentences.

gen·er·a·tor (jěŋ'ə-rā'tər) n. Abbr. gen. 1. a. One that generates, especially a machine that converts mechanical energy into electrical energy. b. An apparatus that generates vapor or gas. 2. A circuit that generates a specified waveform. 3. Mathematics. See generatrix. 4. Computer Science. A program that produces specific programs from the definition of an operation.

gen·er·a·trix (jěŋ'ə-rā'trīks) n. pl. gen·er·a·tri·ces (-ə-rā'trī-sēz', -ər-ə-trī'sēz). Mathematics. A geometric element that generates a geometric figure, especially a straight line that generates a surface by moving in a specified fashion. Also called generator ge·ner·ic (jə-nēr'ik) adj. Abbr. gen. 1. Relating to or descriptive of an entire group or class; general. See Synonyms at general. 2. Biology. Of or relating to a genus. 3. Not having a trademark or brand name. — n. 1. A product, such as a drug or detergent, that is sold without a brand name or trademark. 2. A wine that is a blend of several grape varieties and does not carry the name of any specific grape. [From Latin genus, gener-, kind. See genə- in Appendix.]

—ge·ner·i·cal·ly adv.

gen·er·os·i·ty (jěŋ'ə-rōs'ī-tē) n. pl. gen·er·os·i·ties. 1. Liberality in giving or willingness to give: “Uncommon generosity causes neglect rather than ingratitude”

(Héloïse). 2. Nobility of thought or behavior; magnanimity. 3. Amplitude; abundance. 4. A generous act. [Middle English generosite, from Old French, from Latin generōsitās, from generōsus, magnanimous. See GENEROUS.]

gen·er·ous (jĕn'ər-əs) adj. 1. Liberal in giving or sharing. See Synonyms at liberal. 2. Characterized by nobility and forbearance in thought or behavior; magnanimous. 3. Marked by abundance; ample: a generous slice of cake. 4. Having a rich bouquet and flavor: a generous wine. 5. Obsolete. Of noble lineage. [French genereux, of noble birth, magnanimous, from Latin generōsus, from genus, gener-, birth. See genə- in Appendix.] —gen'er-ous-ly adv. —gen'er-ous-ness n.

Gen·e·see (jĕn'ĭ-sē', jĕn'ĭ-sē') A river rising in northern Pennsylvania and flowing about 241 km (150 mi) generally northward across western New York to Lake Ontario.

gen·e·sis (jĕn'ĭ-sĭs) n. pl. gen·e·ses (-sēz'). 1. The coming into being of something; the origin. See Synonyms at beginning. 2. Genesis. Abbr. Gen., Gn. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Latin, from Greek. See genə- in Appendix.]

-genesis suff. Origin; production: abiogenesis. [Latin, from Greek, birth, origin. See genə- in Appendix.]

gene-splic·ing (jĕn'splĭ'sĭŋ) n. The process in which fragments of DNA from one or more different organisms are combined to form recombinant DNA and are made to function within the cells of a host organism.

gen·et¹ (jĕn'ĭt, jə-nĕt') n. Any of several Old World carnivorous mammals of the genus Genetta, having grayish or yellowish fur with dark spots and a long, ringed tail. [Middle English, from Old French genete.]

gen·et² (jĕn'ĭt) n. Variant of jennet.

Ge·net (zhə-nā'), Jean. 1910-1986. French writer who is best known for his absurdist plays, including The Balcony (1956) and The Screens (1961).

Ge·nêt (zhə-nā') See Janet Flanner.

Ge·nêt (zhə-nā') or Genet, Edmond Charles Edouard. Known as "Citizen Genêt." 1763-1834. French diplomat who attempted (1793) to draw the United States into France's war against Great Britain and Spain.

gene therapy (jĕn thĕr'ə-pĕ) n. The treatment of certain disorders, especially those caused by genetic anomalies or deficiencies, by introducing specific engineered genes into a patient's cells.

ge·net·ic (jə-nĕt'ĭk) also ge·net·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to genetics or genes. b. Affecting or affected by genes: a genetic disorder. 2. Of, relating to, or influenced by the origin or development of something. 3. Linguistics. Of or relating to the relationship between or among languages that are descendants of a protolanguage. [From Greek genetikos, genitive, from genesis, origin. See GENESIS.] —ge·net'i·cal·ly adv.

- genetic code (jə-nět'ík kōd) n. The sequence of nucleotides in the DNA molecule of a chromosome that specifies the amino acid sequence in the synthesis of proteins. It is the basis of heredity. —genetic coding n.
- genetic coun·sel·ing (jə-nět'ík koun'sə-līng, koun'slīng) n. The counseling of prospective parents on the probabilities and dangers of inherited diseases occurring in their offspring and on the diagnosis and treatment of such diseases. —genetic counselor n.
- genetic drift (jə-nět'ík drīft) n. Random fluctuations in the frequency of the appearance of a gene in a small, isolated population, presumably owing to chance rather than natural selection.
- genetic engineering (jə-nět'ík ɛn'jə-nîr'īng) n. Scientific alteration of the structure of genetic material in a living organism. It involves the production and use of recombinant DNA and has been employed to create bacteria that synthesize insulin and other human proteins. —genetic engineer n.
- ge·net·i·cist (jə-nět'ī-sīst) n. One who specializes in genetics.
- genetic load (jə-nět'ík lōd) n. The difference in fitness between the theoretically most fit genotype within a population and the average genotype.
- genetic map (jə-nět'ík mǎp) n. A graphic representation of the arrangement of genes or mutable sites on a chromosome.
- genetic marker (jə-nět'ík mār'kər) n. A known DNA sequence associated with a particular gene or trait that is used to indicate the presence of that gene or trait. Genetic markers associated with certain diseases can often be detected in the blood serum, where their presence is used to determine whether an individual is at high risk for developing a disease.
- ge·net·ics (jə-nět'īks) n. 1. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of biology that deals with heredity, especially the mechanisms of hereditary transmission and the variation of inherited characteristics among similar or related organisms. 2. (used with a pl. verb). The genetic constitution of an individual, a group, or a class.
- Ge·ne·va (jə-nē'və) 1. A city of southwest Switzerland located on Lake Geneva and bisected by the Rhone River. Originally an ancient Celtic settlement, it was a focal point of the Reformation after the arrival of John Calvin in 1536. Geneva was the headquarters of the League of Nations (1920-1946) and is still the home of many international organizations. Population, 159,500. 2. A city of west-central New York at the northern end of Seneca Lake west-southwest of Syracuse. It is a manufacturing center in an agricultural region. Population, 15,133.
- Geneva, Lake. Also, Lake. Le·man (lē'mən, lə-mān'). A lake on the Swiss-French border between the Alps and the Jura Mountains. It is traversed east to west by the Rhone River.

Geneva bands (jə-nē'və bāndz) pl.n. Two strips of white cloth that hang from the front of the collar of some clerical and academic robes. [After Geneva, Switzerland.]

Geneva Convention (jə-nē'və kən-vən'shən) n. One of a series of agreements first formulated at an international convention held in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1864, establishing rules for the treatment of prisoners of war, the sick, and the wounded.

Geneva cross (jə-nē'və krôs) n. A red Greek or St. George's cross on a white ground, used as a symbol by the Red Cross and as a sign of neutrality. [After Geneva, Switzerland.]

Geneva gown (jə-nē'və goun) n. A loose black academic or clerical gown with wide sleeves. [After Geneva, Switzerland.]

Ge·ne·van (jə-nē'vən) also Gen·e·vese (jĕn'ə-vēz', -vēs') adj. 1. Of or relating to Geneva, Switzerland, or its inhabitants. 2. Of or relating to the teachings of John Calvin in Geneva; Calvinistic. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Geneva, Switzerland. 2. A Calvinist.

Gen·ghis Khan (jĕng'gĭs kăn', gĕng'-) also Jen·ghis Khan or Jen·ghiz Khan (jĕn'gĭz kăn', -gĭs, jĕng'-), Originally Temujin. 1162?-1227. Mongol conqueror who united the Mongol tribes and in 1206 took the name Genghis Khan ("supreme conqueror"). He annexed northern China, central Asia, Iran, and southern Russia.

gen·ial¹ (jĕn'yəl) adj. 1. Having a pleasant or friendly disposition or manner; cordial and kindly. See Synonyms at gracious. 2. Conducive to life, growth, or comfort; mild: "the genial sunshine... saturating his miserable body with its warmth" (Jack London). 3. Obsolete. Relating to or marked by genius.

4. Obsolete. Of or relating to marriage; nuptial. [Latin geniālis, festive, from genius, spirit of festivity. See genə- in Appendix.] —ge'ni-al'i-ty (jĕ'nĕ-ăl'i-tĕ), gen'ial-ness n. —gen'ial-ly adv.

ge·ni·al² (jĭ-nĭ'əl) n. Of or relating to the chin. [From Greek geneion, chin, from genus, jaw. See genu-² in Appendix.]

gen·ic (jĕ'nĭk, jĕn'ĭk) adj. Of, relating to, produced by, or being genes or a gene. —gen'i-cal-ly adv.

-genic suff. 1. Producing; generating: dysgenic. 2. Produced or generated by: cryptogenic. 3. Suitable for production or reproduction by a specified medium: photogenic. [-GEN + -IC.]

ge·nic·u·late (jə-nĭk'yə-lĭt) also ge·nic·u·lat·ed (-lă'tĭd) adj. 1. Bent abruptly, as a knee. 2. Having kneelike joints; able to bend at an abrupt angle. [Latin geniculātus, with bended knee, from geniculum, diminutive of genū, knee. See genu-¹ in Appendix.] —ge·nic'u·late-ly adv. —ge·nic'u·la'tion n.

ge·nie (jē'nē) n. 1. A supernatural creature who does one's bidding when summoned. 2. A jinni. [French génie, spirit, from Latin genius, guardian spirit. See GENIUS.]

ge·ni·i (jē'nē-ī') n. Roman Mythology. Plural of genius (n., sense 4).

gen·ip (jĕn'əp) n. 1. A tropical American tree (Melicoccus bijugatus) having small, fragrant, greenish-white flowers and small fruits with a green, leathery rind and a juicy, yellowish, translucent pulp. 2. The sweet, edible fruit of this plant. Also called honeyberry, Spanish lime. 3. See genipap (n., sense 2). [Possibly alteration of GENIPAP.]

gen·i·pap (jĕn'ə-păp') n. 1. A tropical American evergreen tree (Genipa americana) having yellowish-white flowers and edible fruits used in preserves or drinks. The fruits yield dark blue dye that is used extensively as a body paint by Indians of tropical America. 2. The reddish-brown fruit of this plant. Also called genip, marmalade box. [Portuguese genipapo, from Tupi jenipapo, from yandi-ipab, genipap fruit.]

genit. abbr. Grammar. Genitive.

gen·i·tal (jĕn'ī-tl) adj. 1. Of or relating to biological reproduction. 2. Of or relating to the genitalia. 3. Psychology. Of or relating to the stage of psychosexual development in psychoanalytic theory beginning in puberty and during which the genitals become the focus of sexual gratification. — n. A reproductive organ, especially one of the external sex organs. Often used in the plural. [Middle English, from Latin genitālis, from genitus, past participle of gignere, to beget. See genə- in Appendix.] — gen'i·tal·ly adv.

genital herpes (jĕn'ī-tl hûr'pēz) n. A highly contagious, sexually transmitted viral infection of the genital and anal regions caused by herpes simplex and characterized by small clusters of painful lesions.

gen·i·ta·li·a (jĕn'ī-tā'lē-ə, -tāl'yə) pl.n. The reproductive organs, especially the external sex organs; the genitalia. [Latin genitālia, from neuter pl. of genitālis, genital. See GENITAL.]

genital wart (jĕn'ī-tl wôrt) n. A pointed papilloma typically found on the skin or mucous membranes of the anus and external genitalia. It is caused by a virus that is transmitted through sexual contact. Also called condyloma acuminatum, venereal wart.

gen·i·ti·val (jĕn'ī-tī'vəl) adj. Grammar. Of, relating to, or in the genitive case. — gen'i·ti·val·ly adv.

gen·i·tive (jĕn'ī-tiv) Grammar. adj. Abbr. gen., genit., g., G. 1. Of, relating to, or designating a case that expresses possession, measurement, or source. 2. Of or relating to an affix or a construction, such as a prepositional phrase, characteristic of the genitive case. — n. 1. The genitive case. 2. A form or construction in this case. [Middle English genetif, from Latin genetivus, from genitus, past participle of gignere, to beget. See genə- in Appendix.]

gen·i·tor (jĕn'ī-tər) n. 1. One who produces or creates. 2. Anthropology. A natural father or mother. [Middle English genitour, from Old French genitor, from Latin, from genitus, past participle of gignere, to beget. See genə- in Appendix.]

gen·i·to·u·ri·nar·y (jĕn'ī-tō-yōōr'ə-nĕr'ē) adj. Abbr. GU Of or relating to the genital and urinary organs or their functions. [GENIT(AL) + URINARY.]

gen·ius (jĕn'γəs) n. pl. gen·ius·es. 1. a. Extraordinary intellectual and creative power. b. A person of extraordinary intellect and talent: “One is not born a genius, one becomes a genius” (Simone de Beauvoir). c. A person who has an exceptionally high intelligence quotient, typically above 140. 2. a. A strong natural talent, aptitude, or inclination: has a genius for choosing the right words. b. One who has such a talent or inclination: a genius at diplomacy. 3. The prevailing spirit or distinctive character, as of a place, a person, or an era: the genius of Elizabethan England. 4. pl. ge·ni·i (jĕ'nĕ-ī'). Roman Mythology. A tutelary deity or guardian spirit of a person or place. 5. A person who has great influence over another. 6. A jinni in Muslim mythology. [Middle English, guardian spirit, from Latin. See genə- in Appendix.]

ge·ni·us lo·ci (jĕ'nĕ-əs lō'sī', -kĕ, -kī) n. 1. The distinctive atmosphere or pervading spirit of a place. 2. The guardian deity of a place. [Latin genius locī: genius, spirit + locī, genitive sing. of locus, place.]

Genk (gĕngk) A city of northeast Belgium north of Liège. It is a commercial and industrial center. Population, 61,808.

genl. abbr. General.

gen·o·a (jĕn'ō-ə) n. Nautical. A large jib used on a racing yacht. Also called genoa jib [After Genoa.]

Gen·o·a (jĕn'ō-ə) A city of northwest Italy on the Gulf of Genoa, an arm of the Ligurian Sea. An ancient settlement, Genoa flourished under the Romans and also enjoyed great prosperity during the Crusades. Today, it is Italy's chief port and a major commercial and industrial center. Population, 760,300.
—Gen'o·ese' (-ĕz', -ĕs'), Gen'o·vese' (-vĕz', -vĕs') adj. & n.

genoa jib (jĕn'ō-ə jīb) n. Nautical. See genoa.

gen·o·cide (jĕn'ə-sīd') n. The systematic and planned extermination of an entire national, racial, political, or ethnic group. [Greek genos, race; see genə- in Appendix + -CIDE.] —gen'o·cid'al (-sīd'l) adj. —gen'o·cid'al·ly adv.

ge·noise (zhə-nwōz') n. A delicate, buttery sponge cake. [French, from feminine of genois, Genoese, after Genoa.] ge·nome (jĕ'nōm') also ge·nom (-nōm) n. A complete haploid set of chromosomes with its associated genes. [GEN(E) + -OME.] —ge·nom'ic (-nōm'ik) adj.

gen·o·type (jĕn'ə-tīp', jĕ'nə-) n. 1. The genetic constitution of an organism or a group of organisms. 2. A group or class of organisms having the same genetic constitution. [Greek genos, race; see genə- in Appendix + Latin typus, type; see TYPE.] —gen'o·typ'ic (-tĭp'ĭk), gen'o·typ'i·cal adj.

—gen'o·typ'i·cal·ly adv. —gen'o·ty·pic'i·ty (-tĭ-pĭs'ĭ-tē) n.

-genous suff. 1. Producing; generating: hematogenous. 2. Produced by or in a specified manner: hypogenous. [-GEN + -OUS.]

gen·re (zhän'rə) n. 1. A type or class: “Emaciated famine victims... on television focused a new genre of attention on the continent” (Helen Kitchen). 2. a. A category of artistic composition, as in music or literature, marked by a distinctive style, form, or content: “his six String Quartets... the most important works in the genre since Beethoven's” (Time). b. A realistic style of painting that depicts scenes from everyday life. [French, from Old French, kind, from Latin genus, gener-. See genə- in Appendix.]

gen·ro (gĕn'rō) n. pl. gen·ros. Any of a group of elder male politicians of Japan who were formerly advisers to the emperor. [Japanese genrō : Chinese yuán, first + Chinese lǎo, elder.]

gens (jĕnz) n. pl. gen·tes (jĕn'tēz'). 1. A patrilineal clan of ancient Rome composed of several families of the same name claiming a common ancestor and belonging to a common religious cult. 2. Anthropology. An exogamous patrilineal clan. [Latin gēns. See genə- in Appendix.]

Gen·ser·ic (jĕn'sə-rĭk', gĕn'-) also Gai·ser·ic (gĭ'zə-), Died A.D. 477. King of the Vandals (428-477) who invaded Africa from Spain (429), captured Carthage and made it his capital (439), and sacked Rome (455).

gent¹ (jĕnt) adj. Archaic. Graceful; elegant. [Middle English, noble, excellent, from Old French, well-born, from Latin genitus, past participle of gignere, to beget. See genə- in Appendix.]

gent² (jĕnt) n. Informal. A gentleman. [Short for GENTLEMAN.]

Gent (gĕnt, KHĕnt) See Ghent.

gen·ta·mi·cin (jĕn'tə-mĭ'sĭn) n. A broad-spectrum antibiotic derived from an actinomycete of the genus Micromonospora, used in its sulfate form to treat various infections. [Alteration of gentamycin : GENT(I)A(N VIOLET) + -MYCIN.]

gen·teel (jĕn-tēl') adj. 1. Refined in manner; well-bred and polite. 2. Free from vulgarity or rudeness. 3. Elegantly stylish: genteel manners and appearance. 4. a. Striving to convey a manner or an appearance of refinement and respectability. See Synonyms at polite. b. Marked by affected and somewhat prudish refinement. [French gentil, from Old French. See GENTLE.] —gen·teel'ly adv. —gen·teel'ness n.

gen·teel·ism (jĕn-tēl'ĭz'əm) n. A word or an expression thought by its user to be more refined than another, as in expectorate for spit.

gen·tes (jĕn'tēz') n. Plural of gens.

gen·tian (jĕn'shən) n. 1. Any of numerous plants of the genus Gentiana, characteristically having showy, variously colored flowers. 2. The dried rhizome and roots of a yellow-flowered European gentian, G. lutea, sometimes used as a tonic.

[Middle English gencian, from Old French genciane, from Latin gentiāna, perhaps after Gentius, second-century B.C. king of Illyria.]

gentian violet (jĕn'shən vī'ə-līt) n. A dye used in microscopy as a biological stain and in medicine as a bactericide, a fungicide, and an anthelmintic.

gen·tile (jĕn'tīl') n. 1. Often Gentile. One who is not of the Jewish faith or is of a non-Jewish nation. 2. Often Gentile. A Christian. 3. A pagan or heathen. 4. Often Gentile. Mormon Church. A non-Mormon. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a Gentile. 2. Of or relating to a gens, tribe, or people. 3. Grammar. Expressing national or local origins. [Middle English gentil, from Late Latin gentilis, pagan, from Latin, of the same clan. See GENTLE.]

Gen·ti·le da Fa·bri·a·no (jĕn-tē'lā dā fā'brē-ä'nō), 1370?-1427. Italian painter of religious subjects best known for The Adoration of the Magi (1423).

Gen·ti·le·schi (jĕn'tē-lēs'kē), Artemisia. 1593?-1652?. Italian Renaissance painter whose works include self-portraits and paintings of courageous women of the Old Testament.

gen·ti·lesse (jĕn'tə-lēs') n. Archaic. Refinement and courtesy resulting from good breeding. [Middle English, from Old French, from gentil, noble. See GENTLE.]

gen·til·i·ty (jĕn-tīl'ī-tē) n. 1. The quality of being well-mannered; refinement. 2. The condition of being born to the gentry. 3. Persons of high social standing considered as a group. 4. An attempt to convey or maintain the appearance of refinement and elegance. [Middle English gentilete, nobility of birth, from Old French, from Latin gentilitās, from gentilis, of the same clan. See GENTLE.]

gen·tle (jĕn'tl) adj. gen·tler, gen·tlest. 1. Considerate or kindly in disposition; amiable and tender. 2. Not harsh or severe; mild and soft: a gentle scolding; a gentle tapping at the window. 3. Easily managed or handled; docile: a gentle horse. 4. Not steep or sudden; gradual: a gentle incline. 5. a. Of good family; wellborn. b. Suited to one of good breeding; refined and polite. 6. Archaic. Noble; chivalrous: a gentle knight. — n. Archaic. One of good birth or relatively high station. — v. tr. gen·tled, gen·tling, gen·tles. 1. To make less severe or intense: The peaceful sunset gentled her dreadful mood. 2. To soothe, as by stroking; pacify. 3. To tame or break (a domestic animal, for instance): gentle a horse. 4. To raise to the status of a noble. [Middle English gentil, courteous, noble, from Old French, from Latin gentilis, of the same clan, from gēns, gent-, clan. See genə- in Appendix.] — gen'tle·ness n. — gen'tly adv.

gentle breeze (jĕn'tl brēz) n. Meteorology. A wind with a speed from 8 to 12 miles (13 to 19 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale.

gen·tle·folk (jĕn'tl-fōk') also gen·tle·folks (-fōks') pl.n. Persons of good family and relatively high station.

gen·tle·man (jĕn'tl-mən) n. 1. A man of gentle or noble birth or superior social position: "He's too much a gentleman to be a scholar" (Aphra Behn). 2. A well-mannered and considerate man with high standards of proper behavior. See Usage Note at lady. 3. A man of independent means who does not need to have a wage-paying job. 4. A man: Do you know this gentleman? 5. gentlemen. Used as a form of address for a group of men. 6. A manservant; a valet.

—gen'tle-man-ly adj.

gen-tle-man-at-arms (jĕn'tl-mən-ət-ärmz') n. pl. gen-tle-men-at-arms (-mĭn-ət-ärmz'). One of a military corps of 40 gentlemen who attend the British sovereign as a ceremonial guard on state occasions.

gentleman farmer (jĕn'tl-mən fār'mər) n. pl. gentlemen farmers. A man of independent means who farms chiefly for pleasure rather than income.

gen-tle-man's agreement or gen-tle-men's agreement (jĕn'tl-mənz ə-grĕ'mənt) n. pl. gentleman's agreements or gentlemen's agreements. An unwritten agreement guaranteed only by the pledged word or secret understanding of the participants.

gentleman's gentleman (jĕn'tl-mənz jĕn'tl-mən) n. A manservant; a valet.

gen-tle-men's agreement (jĕn'tl-mənz ə-grĕ'mənt) n. Variant of gentleman's agreement.

gen-tle-people (jĕn'tl-pĕ'pəl) n. Used as a form of address for a group of people.

gen-tle-person (jĕn'tl-pŭr'sən) n. A person of good breeding; a lady or a gentleman.

gen-tle-wom-an (jĕn'tl-wŏom'ən) n. 1. A woman of gentle or noble birth or superior social position. 2. A well-mannered and considerate woman with high standards of proper behavior. 3. A woman acting as a personal attendant to a lady of rank.

Gen-tof-te (gĕn'tŭf'tə) A city of eastern Denmark, a mainly residential suburb of Copenhagen on Sjaelland Island. Population, 67,112.

gen-tri-fi-ca-tion (jĕn'trə-fī-kā'shən) n. The restoration and upgrading of deteriorated urban property by the middle classes, often resulting in displacement of lower-income people.

gen-tri-fy (jĕn'trə-fī') v. tr. gen-tri-fied, gen-tri-fy-ing, gen-tri-fies. To subject to gentrification: gentrify a row of Victorian houses. [GENTR(Y) + -FY.]

—gen'tri-fi'er n.

gen-try (jĕn'trĕ) n. pl. gen-tries. 1. People of gentle birth, good breeding, or high social position. 2. a. An upper or ruling class. b. The class of English landowners ranking just below the nobility. 3. People of a particular class or group: another commuter from the suburban gentry. [Middle English gentri, nobility of birth, from Old French genterie, variant of genterise, gentilise, from gentil, noble. See GENTLE.]

gen·u·flect (jĕn'yə-flĕkt') v. intr. gen·u·flect·ed, gen·u·flect·ing, gen·u·flects. 1. To bend the knee or touch one knee to the floor or ground, as in worship. 2. To be servilely respectful or deferential; grovel. [Late Latin genūflectere : Latin genū, knee; see genu-¹ in Appendix + Latin flectere, to bend.]
—gen'·u·flec'tion (-flĕk'shən) n.

gen·u·ine (jĕn'yōō-ĭn) adj. 1. Actually possessing the alleged or apparent attribute or character: genuine leather. 2. Not spurious or counterfeit; authentic. See Synonyms at authentic. 3. a. Honestly felt or experienced: genuine devotion. b. Actual; real: a genuine dilemma. 4. Free from hypocrisy or dishonesty; sincere. 5. Being of pure or original stock: a genuine Hawaiian. [Latin genuīnus, natural, possibly from alteration of ingenuus, native, freeborn. See INGENUOUS.]
—gen'·u·ine·ly adv. —gen'·u·ine·ness n.

ge·nus (jĕ'nəs) n. pl. gen·er·a (jĕn'ər-ə). Abbr. gen. 1. Biology. A taxonomic category ranking below a family and above a species and generally consisting of a group of species exhibiting similar characteristics. In taxonomic nomenclature the genus name is used, either alone or followed by a Latin adjective or epithet, to form the name of a species. See Table at taxonomy. 2. Logic. A class of objects divided into subordinate species having certain common attributes. 3. A class, group, or kind with common attributes. [Latin, kind. See genə- in Appendix.]

-geny suff. Production; generation; origin: ontogeny. [Greek -geneia, from -genēs, born. See genə- in Appendix.]

geo- or ge- pref. 1. Earth: geocentric. 2. Geography: geopolitical. [Greek geō-, from gē, earth.]

ge·o·bot·a·ny (jĕ'ō-bōt'n-ē) n. See phytogeography. —ge'·o·bo·tan'ic (-bə-tān'ik), ge'·o·bo·tan'i·cal adj. —ge'·o·bo·tan'ic·al·ly adv.
—ge'·o·bot'a·nist (-bōt'n-ĭst) n.

ge·o·cen·tric (jĕ'ō-sĕn'trĭk) adj. 1. Relating to, measured from, or with respect to the center of the earth. 2. Having the earth as a center. —ge'·o·cen'tri·cal·ly adv.

ge·o·chem·is·try (jĕ'ō-kĕm'ĭ-strĕ) n. The chemistry of the composition and alterations of the solid matter of the earth or a celestial body.
—ge'·o·chem'i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —ge'·o·chem'i·cal·ly adv. —ge'·o·chem'ist n.

ge·o·chro·nol·ogy (jĕ'ō-krə-nōl'ə-jĕ) n. The chronology of the earth's history as determined by geologic events. —ge'·o·chron'·o·log'ic (-krōn'ə-lōj'ik), ge'·o·chron'·o·log'i·cal adj. —ge'·o·chron'·o·log'i·cal·ly adv.
—ge'·o·chro·nol'·o·gist n.

ge·o·chro·nom·e·try (jĕ'ō-krə-nōm'ĭ-trĕ) n. Measurement of geologic time, as through isotopic radioactive decay. —ge'·o·chron'·o·met'ric (-krōn'ə-mĕt'rik) adj.

ge·o·code (jē'ə-kōd') n. The demographic characterization of a neighborhood or locality, especially as used in marketing.

ge·o·co·ro·na (jē'ō-kə-rō'nə) n. The outermost region of the earth's atmosphere, consisting chiefly of ionized hydrogen.

ge·ode (jē'ōd') n. A hollow, usually spheroidal rock with crystals lining the inside wall. [French géode, from Latin geōdēs, a precious stone, from Greek, earthlike : gē, earth + -ōdēs, -oidēs, -oid.]

ge·o·des·ic (jē'ə-dēs'ik, -dē'sik) adj. 1. Mathematics. Of or relating to the geometry of geodesics. 2. Of or relating to geodesy. — n. Mathematics. The shortest line between two points on any mathematically defined surface. [From GEODESY.]

geodesic dome (jē'ə-dēs'ik dōm) n. A domed or vaulted structure of light-weight straight elements that form interlocking polygons.

ge·od·e·sy (jē-ōd'ī-sē) n. The geologic science of the size and shape of the earth. [New Latin geōdaesia, from Greek geōdaisia : geō-, geo- + daiesthai, to divide; see dā- in Appendix.] — ge·od'·e·sist n.

ge·o·det·ic (jē'ə-dēt'ik) also ge·o·det·i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. Geodesic. — ge'·o·det'·i·cal·ly adv.

geodetic survey (jē'ə-dēt'ik sər-vā') n. A survey of a large area of land in which corrections are made to account for the curvature of the earth.

geo·duck also gwe·duc (gōō'ē-dük') n. A very large, edible clam (Panope generosa) of the Pacific coast of northwest North America. [From Puget Salish g'wídaq.]

ge·o·ec·o·nom·ics also ge·o·ec·o·nom·ics (jē'ō-ĕk'ə-nŏm'iks, -ē'kə-) n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. The study of the relationship between politics and economics, especially on an international scale. 2. A governmental policy employing geoeconomics. 3. A combination of international economic and political factors relating to or influencing a nation or region. — ge'·o·ec'·o·nom'ic adj.

— ge'·o·ec'·o·nom'·i·cal·ly adv. — ge'·o·e·con'·o·mist (-i-kŏn'ə-mĭst) n.

Geof·frey of Mon·mouth (jĕf'rē ūf mŏn'məth), 1100?-1154. English prelate and chronicler whose Historia Regum Britanniae (c. 1139) is a source of Arthurian legend.

geog. abbr. 1. a. Geographer. b. Geography. 2. Geographic.

ge·o·graph·ic (jē'ə-grāf'ik) also ge·o·graph·i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. Abbr. geog. 1. Of or relating to geography. 2. Concerning the topography of a specific region. — ge'·o·graph'·i·cal·ly adv.

geographic mile (jē'ə-grāf'ik mīl) n. A nautical mile.

ge·og·ra·phy (jē-ōg'rə-fē) n. pl. ge·og·ra·phies. Abbr. geog. 1. The study of the earth and its features and of the distribution of life on the earth, including human life and the effects of human activity. 2. The physical characteristics, especially the surface features, of an area. 3. A book on geography. 4. An ordered arrangement of constituent elements: charting a geography of the mind.

[Latin geōgraphia, from Greek : geō-, geo- + -graphia, -graphy.]

—ge·og′ra·pher n.

ge·oid (jē′oid′) n. The hypothetical surface of the earth that coincides everywhere with mean sea level. [German, from Greek geoidēs, earthlike : gē, earth + -oidēs, -oid.] —ge·oid′al (-oid′l) adj.

geol. abbr. 1. Geologic; geological. 2. a. Geologist. b. Geology.

geologic time (jē′ə-lōj′ik tīm) n. The period of time covering the physical formation and development of the earth, especially the period prior to human history.

ge·ol·o·gize (jē-ōl′ə-jīz′) v. intr. ge·ol·o·gized, ge·ol·o·giz·ing, ge·ol·o·giz·es. To study geology or make geologic investigations.

ge·ol·o·gy (jē-ōl′ə-jē) n. pl. ge·ol·o·gies. Abbr. geol. 1. The scientific study of the origin, history, and structure of the earth. 2. The structure of a specific region of the earth's crust. 3. A book on geology. 4. The scientific study of the origin, history, and structure of the solid matter of a celestial body. [Medieval Latin geōlogia, study of earthly things : Greek geō-, geo- + Greek -logia, -logy.]

—ge′o·log′ic (jē′ə-lōj′ik), ge′o·log′i·cal adj. —ge′o·log′i·cal·ly adv.

—ge·ol′o·gist n.

geom. abbr. 1. Geometric. 2. Geometry.

geomagnetic equator (jē′ō-măg-nēt′ik ĭ-kwā′tər) n. The imaginary great circle on the earth's surface formed by the intersection of a plane passing through the earth's center perpendicular to the axis connecting the north and south magnetic poles.

geomagnetic storm (jē′ō-măg-nēt′ik stōrm) n. See magnetic storm.

ge·o·mag·ne·tism (jē′ō-măg′nĭ-tiz′əm) n. 1. The magnetism of the earth.

2. The study of the earth's magnetism. —ge′o·mag·net′ic (-nēt′ik) adj.

—ge′o·mag·net′i·cal·ly adv.

ge·o·man·cy (jē′ə-măn′sē) n. Divination by means of lines and figures or by geographic features. [Middle English geomancie, from Medieval Latin geōmantia, from Late Greek geōmanteia, divination by signs from the earth : Greek geō-, geo- + Greek manteia, divination; see -MANCY.] —ge′o·man′cer n.

—ge′o·man′tic (-tĭk) adj.

ge·o·met·ric (jē′ə-mēt′rik) also ge·o·met·ri·cal (-rĭ-kəl) adj. Abbr. geom.

1. Mathematics. a. Of or relating to geometry and its methods and principles.

b. Increasing or decreasing in a geometric progression. 2. Using simple geometric forms such as circles and squares in design and decoration.

—ge′o·met′ri·cal·ly adv.

geometric isomer (jē′ə-mēt′rik ĭ′sə-mər) n. Any of a set of isomers that differ because of a structural asymmetry about a double bond in the molecule.

ge·o·met·ri·cize (jē'ə-mět'ri-sīz') v. tr. ge·o·met·ri·cized, ge·o·met·ri·cizing, ge·o·met·ri·ciz·es. To design or form in geometric patterns or figures.

geometric mean (jē'ə-mět'rik mēn) n. Mathematics. The *n*th root, usually the positive *n*th root, of a product of n factors.

geometric pace (jē'ə-mět'rik pās) n. See pace¹ (n., sense 3a).

geometric progression (jē'ə-mět'rik prə-grēsh'ən) n. Mathematics. A sequence, such as the numbers 1, 3, 9, 27, 81, in which each term is multiplied by the same factor in order to obtain the following term.

ge·o·met·rics (jē'ə-mět'riks) n. (used with a pl. verb.) 1. Mathematics. Geometric qualities or properties. 2. A pattern or design characterized by the use of geometric figures: Bright geometrics enhance the appearance of the cloth.

geometric series (jē'ə-mět'rik sîr'ēz) n. Mathematics. An infinite series of the form $a + ax + ax^2 + ax^3 + \dots$ ge·om·e·trid (jē-öm'i-trīd) n. Any of various moths of the family Geometridae, having caterpillars commonly known as measuring worms that move by looping the body in alternate contractions and expansions. — adj. Of or belonging to the Geometridae. [From New Latin Geōmetridae, family name, from Latin geōmetrēs, geometrician, land-measurer, from Greek, from geōmetrein, to measure land. See GEOMETRY.]

ge·om·e·trize (jē-öm'i-trīz') v. ge·om·e·trized, ge·om·e·triz·ing, ge·om·e·triz·es. Mathematics. — v. intr. 1. To study geometry. 2. To apply the methods of geometry. — v. tr. 1. To present in geometric form. 2. To bring into conformance with the laws and principles of geometry.

ge·om·e·try (jē-öm'i-trē) n. pl. ge·om·e·tries. Abbr. geom. 1. Mathematics. a. The mathematics of the properties, measurement, and relationships of points, lines, angles, surfaces, and solids. b. A system of geometry: Euclidean geometry. c. A geometry restricted to a class of problems or objects: solid geometry. d. A book on geometry. 2. a. Configuration; arrangement. b. A surface shape. 3. A physical arrangement suggesting geometric forms or lines. [Middle English geometrie, from Old French, from Latin geōmetria, from Greek, from geōmetrein, to measure land : gē, earth + metron, measure; see mē⁻² in Appendix.]

—ge·om'e·tri'cian (jē-öm'i-trīsh'ən, jē'ə-mī-), ge·om'e·ter n.

ge·o·mor·phic (jē'ə-môr'fik) adj. Of or resembling the earth, its shape, or surface configuration.

ge·o·mor·phol·o·gy (jē'ō-môr-fōl'ə-jē) n. The study of the evolution and configuration of landforms. —ge'o·mor'pho·log'ic (-môr'fə-lōj'ik), ge'o·mor'pho·log'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. —ge'o·mor'pho·log'i·cal·ly adv.

—ge'o·mor·phol'o·gist n.

ge·oph·a·gy (jē-ōf'ə-jē) n. The eating of earthy substances, such as clay or chalk, practiced among various peoples as a custom or for dietary or subsistence reasons. —ge·oph'a·gism n. —ge·oph'a·gist n.

ge·o·phone (jē'ə-fōn') n. An electronic receiver designed to pick up seismic vibrations.

ge·o·phys·ics (jē'ō-fīz'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The physics of the earth and its environment, including the physics of fields such as meteorology, oceanography, and seismology. —ge'ō·phys'i·cal adj. —ge'ō·phys'i·cal·ly adv. —ge'ō·phys'i·cist (-ī-sīst) n.

ge·o·phyte (jē'ə-fīt') n. A perennial plant, such as a crocus or tulip, propagated by buds on underground bulbs, tubers, or corms.

ge·o·pol·i·tics (jē'ō-pōl'ī-tīks) n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. The study of the relationship among politics and geography, demography, and economics, especially with respect to the foreign policy of a nation. 2. a. A governmental policy employing geopolitics. b. A Nazi doctrine holding that the geographic, economic, and political needs of Germany justified its invasion and seizure of other lands. 3. A combination of geographic and political factors relating to or influencing a nation or region. —ge'ō·po·lit'i·cal (-pə-līt'ī-kəl) adj.

—ge'ō·po·lit'i·cal·ly adv. —ge'ō·pol'i·ti·cian (-tīsh'ən) n.

ge·o·pon·ic (jē'ə-pōn'īk) adj. Of or relating to agriculture or farming. [Greek geōponikos, from geōponein, to till : gē, earth + ponein, to toil; see (s)pen- in Appendix.]

ge·o·pon·ics (jē'ə-pōn'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study or science of agriculture.

ge·o·pres·sured (jē'ō-prēsh'ərd) also ge·o·pres·sur·ized (jē'ō-prēsh'ə-rīzd') adj. Being under high pressure within the earth.

Geor·die¹ (jôr'dē) n. Chiefly British. 1. A native or inhabitant of Newcastle upon Tyne, England, or its environs. 2. The dialect of English spoken by Geordies. [Scots, diminutive of George.]

Geor·die² (jôr'dē) n. Scots. A formerly used British gold coin worth one pound and five pence; a guinea. [Scots, diminutive of George, after Saint. GEORGE, whose image was once stamped on it.]

George (jôrj) n. 1. A jeweled figure of Saint George killing the dragon, used as an insignia of the Knights of the Garter. 2. An English coin during the reign of Henry VIII, imprinted with a figure of Saint George.

George (jôrj), Saint. Died c. A.D. 303. Christian martyr and patron of England who, according to legend, slew a fearsome dragon.

George I¹ (jôrj), 1660-1727. Elector of Hanover (1698-1727) and king of Great Britain and Ireland (1714-1727) who left the affairs of his country in the hands of Sir Robert Walpole.

George I² (jôrj), 1845-1913. King of Greece (1863-1913) who was elected by the Greek Assembly and introduced a democratic constitution (1864).

George II¹ (jôrj), 1683-1760. King of Great Britain and Ireland and elector of Hanover (1727-1760). His 1743 victory at the Battle of Dettingen (a village of present-day south-central Germany) was the last time that a British monarch led his troops in the field.

George II² (jôrj), 1890-1947. King of Greece (1922-1923 and 1935-1947). He was deposed by a military junta in 1923 but returned to the throne in 1935 after a plebiscite.

George III (jôrj), 1738-1820. King of Great Britain and Ireland (1760-1820) and of Hanover (1815-1820). His government's policies fed American colonial discontent, leading to revolution in 1776.

George IV (jôrj), 1762-1830. King of Great Britain and Ireland and of Hanover (1820-1830) who caused controversy when he attempted to divorce his estranged wife, Caroline of Brunswick.

George V (jôrj), 1865-1936. King of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and emperor of India (1910-1936) who gave up his German titles during World War I.

George V Coast also George V Land (jôrj; kōst) A section of the coastal area of Antarctica between Wilkes Land and Victoria Land. It is claimed by Australia.

George VI (jôrj), 1895-1952. King of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (1936-1952) and emperor of India (1936-1947). He acceded to the throne on the abdication of his brother Edward VIII and won enormous popularity by his dedication to his duties, especially during World War II.

George (jôrj), Henry. 1839-1897. American journalist and reformer known for his theories on taxation, contained in Progress and Poverty (1879).

George (jôrj), Lake. 1. A lake of northeast Florida formed by a widening of the St. Johns River. 2. A glacial lake of northeast New York in the foothills of the Adirondack Mountains south of Lake Champlain. Discovered in 1646, it was the site of numerous battles during the French and Indian War and the American Revolution. Today the lake is the center of a large recreational area.

George (jôrj), Stefan. 1868-1933. German poet who was influenced by Nietzsche and the French symbolists. He wrote stylistically innovative poems, published in The Year of the Soul (1897) and other collections.

George River (jôrj rîv'ər) A river of northeast Quebec, Canada, rising on the Quebec-Labrador border and flowing about 563 km (350 mi) northward to Ungava Bay.

Georges Bank (jôr'jîz bāŋk) A submerged sandbank in the Atlantic Ocean east of Cape Cod, Massachusetts. It is a highly productive fishing ground.

George-town (jôrj'toun') 1. Also George Town. The capital of the Cayman Islands, on Grand Cayman in the West Indies west of Jamaica. It is an international banking center. Population, 7,617. 2. The capital and largest city of Guyana, in the northern part of the country on the Atlantic Ocean. Founded by the British in 1781, it was called Stabroek while it was controlled by the Dutch and was renamed Georgetown in 1812. Population, 78,500. 3. A section of western Washington, D.C. Settled c. 1665, it was incorporated as a town in 1789 but lost its charter in 1871 and was annexed by Washington, D.C., in 1878. It is known for its fashionable old houses and private gardens.

George Town (jôrj toun) 1. Also Pi-nang or Pe-nang (pə-näng', pē'näng'). A city of western Malaysia on Pinang Island in the Strait of Malacca. It is a leading seaport. Population, 250,578. 2. See Georgetown (sense 1).

georgette (jôr-jět') n. A sheer, strong silk or silklike clothing fabric with a dull, creped surface. [Originally a trademark.]

Geor-gia (jôr'jə) 1. A region and republic of Asia Minor in the Caucasus on the Black Sea south of Russia. It developed as a kingdom c. 4th century B.C. and reached the height of its prosperity and cultural flowering in the 12th and 13th centuries. Acquired by Russia between 1801 and 1829, the region was briefly independent (1918-1921). Invaded by the Red Army in 1921, it was proclaimed a soviet republic and officially joined the U.S.S.R. in 1922. Georgia was a constituent republic of the U.S.S.R. from 1936 to 1991. The capital is Tbilisi. Population, 5,201,000. 2. Abbr. GA, Ga. A state of the southeast United States. It was admitted as one of the original Thirteen Colonies in 1788. Georgia was founded in 1732 by a group led by the British philanthropist James Oglethorpe and named for King George II. Atlanta is the capital and the largest city. Population, 6,508,419.

Geor-gia (jôr'jə), Strait of. A channel between Vancouver Island, Canada, and mainland British Columbia and northern Washington State. Part of the Inland Passage to Alaska, the strait links Puget Sound with Queen Charlotte Sound.

Geor-gian (jôr'jən) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the reigns of the four Georges who ruled Great Britain from 1714 to 1830. 2. Of or relating to the U.S. state of Georgia or its inhabitants. 3. Of or relating to the country of Georgia or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of the U.S. state of Georgia. 2. a. A native or inhabitant of the the country of Georgia. b. The non-Indo-European language of the Georgians. 3. A person of, or whose style is imitative of, the period of the first four Georges of Great Britain.

Geor-gian Bay (jôr'jən bā) An extension of Lake Huron in southeast Ontario, Canada. Many of its small, wooded islands are summer resorts.

geor-gic (jôr'jik) adj. also geor-gi-cal (-jĭ-kəl) Of or relating to agriculture or rural life. — n. A poem concerning farming or rural life. [Latin geōrgicus, from Greek geōrgikos, from geōrgos, farmer : geō-, geo- + ergon, work; see werg- in Appendix.]

Geor-gi-na (jôr-jē'nə) An intermittent river, about 1,126 km (700 mi) long, of the Simpson Desert in north-central Australia.

ge·o·sci·ence (jē'ō-sī'əns) n. Any one of the sciences, such as geology or geochemistry, that deals with the earth. —ge'·o·sci'en·tist n.

ge·o·sta·tion·ar·y (jē'ō-stā'shə-nēr'ē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being a satellite that travels above Earth's equator from west to east at an altitude of approximately 35,900 kilometers (22,300 miles) and at a speed matching that of Earth's rotation, thus remaining stationary in relation to Earth. 2. Of, relating to, or being the orbit of such a satellite.

ge·o·strat·e·gy (jē'ō-strāt'ə-jē) n. pl. ge·o·strat·e·gies. 1. The branch of geopolitics that deals with strategy. 2. The geopolitical and strategic factors that together characterize a certain geographic area. 3. Governmental strategy based on geopolitics. —ge'·o·stra·te'gic (-strā-tē'jĭk) adj. —ge'·o·strat'e·gist n.

ge·o·stroph·ic (jē'ə-strōf'ĭk) adj. Of or relating to force caused by the earth's rotation. [GEO- + Greek strophē, a turning; see STROPHE + -IC.] —ge'·o·stro·ph'i·cal·ly adv.

ge·o·syn·chro·nous (jē'ō-sĭng'krə-nəs, -sĭn'-) adj. Geostationary. —ge'·o·syn'chro·nous·ly adv.

ge·o·syn·cline (jē'ō-sĭn'klĭn') n. An extensive, usually linear depression in the earth's crust. —ge'·o·syn·cli'nal (-sĭn-klĭ'nəl) adj.

ge·o·tax·is (jē'ō-tāk'sĭs) n. Biology. Movement of a motile organism using the earth's gravity for orientation. —ge'·o·tac'tic (-tĭk) adj. —ge'·o·tac'ti·cal·ly adv.

ge·o·tec·ton·ic (jē'ō-tĕk-tŏn'ĭk) adj. Of or relating to the shape, structure, and arrangement of the rock masses resulting from structural deformation of the earth's crust.

ge·o·ther·mal (jē'ō-thûr'məl) also ge·o·ther·mic (-mĭk) adj. Of or relating to the internal heat of the earth. —ge'·o·ther'mal·ly adv.

ge·ot·ro·pism (jē-ŏt'rə-pĭz'əm) n. Biology. The growth of a living organism in response to gravity, as the downward growth of plant roots. —ge'·o·tro'pic (jē'ə-trō'pĭk, -trŏp'ĭk) adj. —ge'·o·tro'pi·cal·ly adv.

ger. abbr. Grammar. Gerund.

Ger. abbr. German; Germany.

Ge·ra (gĕr'ə) A city of east-central Germany south-southwest of Leipzig. Chartered in the early 13th century, it is an industrial and transportation center. Population, 129,891.

ge·rah (gĭr'ə) n. An ancient Hebrew coin and unit of weight. [Hebrew gērā, grain, bean.]

Ge·raint (jə-rānt') n. In Arthurian legend, a Knight of the Round Table and the husband of Enid.

ge·ra·ni·al (jə-rā'nĕ-əl) n. A structural isomer of citral that is obtained from the oxidation of geraniol. [GERANI(OL) + -AL³.]

ge-ra-ni-ol (jə-rā'nē-ōl', -ōl', -ōl') n. A fragrant, pale yellow liquid alcohol, C₉H₁₇COH, derived chiefly from the oils of geranium and citronella and used in cosmetics and flavorings. [GERANI(UM) + -OL¹.]

ge-ra-ni-um (jə-rā'nē-əm) n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Geranium, having palmately divided leaves and pink or purplish flowers. Also called cranesbill 2. Any of various plants of the genus Pelargonium, native chiefly to southern Africa and widely cultivated for their rounded, often variegated leaves and showy clusters of red, pink, or white flowers. Also called storks-bill 3. Color. A strong to vivid red. [New Latin Geranium, genus name, from Latin geranium, crane'sbill, from Greek geranion, diminutive of geranos, crane. See gerə-² in Appendix.]

ger-bil (jûr'bəl) n. 1. Any of various small, mouselike rodents of the genus Gerbillus and related genera of arid regions of Africa and Asia Minor, having long hind legs and a long tail. 2. The Mongolian gerbil (Meriones unguiculatus), having large dark eyes and a long furry tail and often kept as a pet. [French gerbille, from New Latin Gerbillus, genus name, diminutive of gerbō, jerboa. See JERBOA.]

ge-rent (jîr'ənt) n. One that rules or manages. [From Latin gerēns, gerent-present participle of gerere, to manage.]

ger-e-nuk (gě'rə-nōok') n. An African gazelle (Litocranius walleri) having long legs, a long slender neck, and backward-curving horns in the male. [Somali garanūg, Waller's gazelle.]

ger-fal-con (jûr'fāl'kən, -fôl'-, -fô'-) n. Variant of gyrfalcon.

ger-i-at-ric (jě'rē-ăt'rik) adj. 1. Of or relating to geriatrics. 2. Of or relating to the aged or to characteristics of the aging process. — n. An aged person. [Back-formation from GERIATRICS.]

ger-i-a-tri-cian (jě'rē-ə-trîsh'ən) also ger-i-at-rist (-ăt'rist) n. A physician who specializes in geriatrics.

ger-i-at-rics (jě'rē-ăt'riks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of medicine that deals with the diagnosis and treatment of diseases and problems specific to the aged. [Greek gēras, old age; see gerə-¹ in Appendix + -IATRICS.]

Gé-ri-cault (zhā-rē-kō'), (Jean Louis André) Théodore. 1791-1824. French painter whose boldly colored, unorthodox works, such as The Raft of the Medusa (1819), introduced romanticism to French painting.

germ (jûrm) n. 1. Biology. A small mass of protoplasm or cells from which a new organism or one of its parts may develop. 2. The earliest form of an organism; a seed, bud, or spore. 3. A microorganism, especially a pathogen.

4. Something that may serve as the basis of further growth or development: the germ of a project. [Middle English, bud, from Old French germe, from Latin germen. See genə- in Appendix.]

ger-man¹ (jûr'mən) n. 1. An intricate dance for many couples. 2. A party for dancing at which this dance is featured. [Short for German cotillion.]

ger-man² (jûr'mən) adj. Having the same parents or the same grandparents on either the mother's or the father's side. Often used in combination: a cousin-german; a brother-german. [Middle English germain, from Old French, from Latin germānus, from germen, offshoot. See genə- in Appendix.]

Ger-man (jûr'mən) adj. Abbr. Ger. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of Germany or its people. 2. Of or relating to the German language. — n. Abbr. Ger.

1. a. A native or inhabitant of Germany. b. A person of German ancestry.

2. The West Germanic language of Germany, Austria, and part of Switzerland. In this sense, also called High German [Middle English, from Latin Germānus.]

German cockroach (jûr'mən kək'rōch') n. A small, light brown cockroach (Blatella germanica) that is a common household pest. Also called Croton bug ger-man-der (jər-män'dər) n. Any of various usually aromatic plants of the genus Teucrium, with purplish or reddish flowers. [Middle English germandre, from Old French germandree, alteration of Medieval Latin germandrea, from Late Greek khamandrua, from Greek khamaidrus: khamai, on the ground; see dhghem- in Appendix + drus, oak; see deru- in Appendix.]

ger-mane (jər-mān') adj. Being both pertinent and fitting. See Synonyms at relevant. [Middle English germain, having the same parents, closely connected. See GERMAN².] — ger-mane/ly adv. — ger-mane/ness n.

German East Af-ri-ca (jûr'mən ēst əf'rī-kə) A former German protectorate of eastern Africa comprising much of what is now Tanzania, Rwanda, and Burundi. The protectorate was declared in 1885 and lasted until the Allies captured the territory in World War I.

Ger-ma-ni-a (jər-mā'nē-ə, -mān'yə) 1. An ancient region of central Europe north of the Danube and east of the Rhine. It was never under Roman control.

2. A part of the Roman Empire west of the Rhine River corresponding to present-day northeast France and sections of Belgium and the Netherlands.

Ger-man-ic (jər-män'ik) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or characteristic of Germany or its people, language, or culture. b. Of or relating to the Teutons. c. Of or relating to speakers of a Germanic language. 2. Of, relating to, or constituting the Germanic languages. — n. A branch of the Indo-European language family that comprises North Germanic, West Germanic, and the extinct East Germanic.

Ger-man-i-cus Cae-sar (jər-män'i-kəs sē'zər), 15 B.C.-A.D. 19. Roman general. Highly popular after his military triumphs in the Rhineland (A.D. 11-16), he was recalled to Rome by his jealous uncle Emperor Tiberius and died there, possibly from poison. He was the father of Caligula and the grandfather of Nero.

Ger-man-ism (jûr'mə-nīz'əm) n. 1. An attitude, a custom, or a feature that seems characteristically German. 2. A German idiom or phrasing that appears in another language. 3. Esteem for Germany and emulation of German ways.

Ger-man-ist (jûr'mə-nīst) n. A specialist in the study of German or Germanic culture, literature, or language.

ger·ma·ni·um (jər-mā'nē-əm) n. Symbol Ge A brittle, crystalline, gray-white metalloid element, widely used as a semiconductor, as an alloying agent and catalyst, and in certain optical glasses. Atomic number 32; atomic weight 72.59; melting point 937.4°C; boiling point 2,830°C; specific gravity 5.323 (at 25°C); valence 2, 4. [After Germania.]

Ger·man·ize (jûr'mə-nīz') v. Ger·man·ized, Ger·man·iz·ing, Ger·man·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To give a German quality to. 2. Archaic. To translate into German. — v. intr. To have or adopt German customs or attitudes.

—Ger'man·i·za'tion (-mə-nī-zā'shən) n. —Ger'man·iz'er n.

German measles (jûr'mən mē'zəlz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). See rubella.

Ger·man·o·phile (jər-măn'ə-fīl') n. One who admires Germany, its people, and its culture. —Ger·man'o·phile' adj.

Ger·man·o·phobe (jər-măn'ə-fōb') n. One who dislikes or fears Germany, its people, and its culture. —Ger·man'o·phobe' adj.

—Ger·man'o·pho'bi·a n.

German shepherd (jûr'mən shēp'ərd) n. Any of a breed of large dog developed in Germany, having a dense grayish to brownish or black coat and often trained to assist the police and guide the blind. Also called police dog

German shorthaired pointer (jûr'mən shôrt'hârd' poin'tər) n. Any of a breed of medium to large sporting and hunting dog, developed in Germany and having a short, smooth coat with white and reddish to tan markings.

German silver (jûr'mən sīl'vər) n. See nickel silver.

German Southwest Af·ri·ca (jûr'mən south-wĕst' äf'rī-kə) A former German colony of southwest Africa. It was annexed by Germany in 1885 and awarded to South Africa as the mandate of South-West Africa (now Namibia) by the League of Nations in 1919.

Ger·man·town (jûr'mən-toun') 1. A residential section of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Settled in 1683, it was the site of a Revolutionary War battle (October 4, 1777) in which George Washington's troops unsuccessfully attacked the British encampment. The original township was annexed by Philadelphia in 1854. 2. A town of extreme southwest Tennessee, a suburb of Memphis. Population, 32,893.

German wirehaired pointer (jûr'mən wīr'hârd' poin'tər) n. Any of a breed of medium to large sporting and hunting dog, developed in Germany and having a flattened, wiry coat with white and reddish to tan markings.

Ger·ma·ny (jûr'mə-nē) Abbr. Ger. A country of north-central Europe bordered on the north by the Baltic and North seas. Occupied since c. 500 B.C. by Germanic tribes, it was part of the kingdom of the Franks by the time of Charlemagne and later became a loose federation of principalities and the nucleus of the Holy Roman Empire after the coronation of Otto I in 962. Religious strife and dynastic feuds weakened the imperial state, which was broken up by Napoleon in 1806. After 1815 Germany became a confederation, then an empire centered around Prussia (1871-1918). The Weimar Republic, proclaimed after Germany's defeat in World War I, collapsed under the rise of Adolf Hitler and the Nazis. Hitler's megalomaniac dream of a Third Reich led to World War II and to yet another defeat by Allied forces. From 1949 to 1990 the territory was divided between West Germany and East Germany. Berlin is the capital and largest city and Bonn the seat of government. Population, 77,750,743.

germ cell (jûrm sĕl) n. An ovum or a sperm cell or one of its developmental precursors.

germ-free (jûrm'frĕ') adj. Free of microorganisms.

ger-mi-cide (jûr'mĭ-sĭd') n. An agent that kills germs, especially pathogenic microorganisms; a disinfectant. —ger'mi-cid'al (-sĭd'l) adj.

ger-mi-nal (jûr'mə-nəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having the nature of a germ cell. 2. Of, relating to, or occurring in the earliest stage of development: was active in the germinal stages of the space program. [French, from Latin germen, germin-, seed. See genə- in Appendix.] —ger'mi-nal-ly adv.

germinal disk (jûr'mə-nəl dĭsk) n. Embryology. A flattened, disklike region of cells from which the embryo begins to develop in the fertilized ovum of many vertebrate species. Also called blastodisk, embryonic disk.

germinal vesicle (jûr'mə-nəl vĕs'ĭ-kəl) n. The enlarged nucleus of an oocyte before meiotic division is completed.

ger-mi-nate (jûr'mə-nāt') v. ger-mi-nat-ed, ger-mi-nat-ing, ger-mi-nates. — v. tr. To cause to sprout or grow. — v. intr. 1. To begin to sprout or grow. 2. To come into existence: An idea began to germinate in his mind. [Latin germināre, germināt-, to sprout, from germen, germin-, seed. See genə- in Appendix.] —ger'mi-na'tion n. —ger'mi-na'tive adj.

—ger'mi-na'tor n.

germ layer (jûrm lā'ər) n. Any of three cellular layers, the ectoderm, endoderm, or mesoderm, into which most animal embryos differentiate and from which the organs and tissues of the body develop through further differentiation.

germ plasm (jûrm plăz'əm) n. 1. The cytoplasm of a germ cell, especially that part containing the chromosomes. 2. Germ cells as distinguished from other body cells. 3. Hereditary material; genes. In this sense, also called plasm germ theory (jûrm thĕ'ə-rĕ) n. The doctrine holding that infectious diseases are caused by the activity of microorganisms within the body.

germ warfare (jûrm wôr'fâr') n. The use of injurious microorganisms, such as bacteria or viruses, as weapons in warfare.

germ-y (jûr'mĕ) adj. germ-i-er, germ-i-est. Full of germs. —germ'i-ness n.

ger-o-don-tics (jĕr'ə-dŏn'tĭks) n. The branch of dentistry that deals with the diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of diseases and problems specific to the aged. [Greek gēras, old age; see GERIATRICS + ODONT(O)- + -ICS.]

—ger'ō-don'tic adj.

Gé·rôme (zhā-rōm', -rôm'), Jean Léon. 1824-1904. French painter of historical genre works, such as Cockfight (1847).

Ge·ro·na (jə-rō'nə, hě-rô'nä) A city of northeast Spain northeast of Barcelona. Dating from pre-Roman times, it was ruled by the Moors from c. 713 to 785 and from 795 to 1015. Population, 67,259.

Ge·ron·i·mo (jə-rŏn'ə-mō'), 1829-1909. Apache leader who resisted the U.S. government policy to consolidate his people on reservations by leading a series of raids against Mexican and American settlements in the Southwest (1876-1886).

geront- pref. Variant of geronto-.

ge·ron·tic (jə-rŏn'tik) adj. Of or relating to the last phase of life.

geronto- or geront- pref. Old age; aged one: gerontology. [French géronto-, from Greek geronta-, from gerōn, geront-, old man. See gerə-¹ in Appendix.]

ger·on·toc·ra·cy (jěr'ən-tŏk'rə-sē) n. pl. ger·on·toc·ra·cies. 1. Government based on rule by elders. 2. A governing group of elders. —ge·ron'to·crat' (jə-rŏn'tə-krät') n. —ge·ron'to·crat'ic adj.

ger·on·tol·o·gy (jěr'ən-tŏl'ə-jē) n. The scientific study of the biological, psychological, and sociological phenomena associated with old age and aging.

—ge·ron'to·log'i·cal (jə-rŏn'tə-lŏj'ī-kəl), ge·ron'to·log'ic (-lŏj'ik) adj.

—ger'on·tol'o·gist n.

Ger·ould (jěr'əld), Katherine Elizabeth Fullerton. 1879-1944. American writer particularly known for her Jamesian short stories, collected in volumes such as Vain Oblations (1914).

Ger·ry (gěr'ē), Elbridge. 1744-1814. American politician. A signer of the Declaration of Independence (1776) and a delegate to the Continental Congress (1787), he served as governor of Massachusetts (1810-1811) and as Vice President of the United States (1813-1814) under James Madison.

ger·ry·man·der (jěr'ē-măn'dər, gěr'-) v. tr. ger·ry·man·dered, ger·ry·man·der·ing, ger·ry·man·ders. To divide (a geographic area) into voting districts so as to give unfair advantage to one party in elections. — n.

1. The act, process, or an instance of gerrymandering. 2. A district or configuration of districts differing widely in size or population because of gerrymandering. [After Elbridge GERRY + (SALA)MANDER (from the shape of an election district created while Gerry was governor of Massachusetts).]

WORD HISTORY: “An official statement of the returns of voters for senators give[s] twenty nine friends of peace, and eleven gerrymanders.” So reported the May 12, 1813, edition of the Massachusetts Spy. A gerrymander sounds like a strange political beast, which in fact it is, considered from a historical perspective. This beast was named by combining the word salamander, “a small lizardlike amphibian,” with the last name of Elbridge Gerry, a former governor of Massachusetts—a state noted for its varied, often colorful political fauna. Gerry (whose name, incidentally, was pronounced with a hard g, though gerrymander is now commonly pronounced with a soft g) was immortalized in this way because an election district created by members of his party in 1812 looked like a salamander. According to one version of how gerrymander was coined, the shape of the district attracted the eye of the painter Gilbert Stuart, who noticed it on a map hanging in a newspaper editor’s office. Stuart decorated the map with a head, wings, and claws and then said to the editor, “That will do for a salamander!” “Gerrymander!” came the reply. A new political beast was created then and there. The word is first recorded in April 1812 with respect to the creature or its caricature, but it soon came to mean not only “the action of shaping a district to gain political advantage” but also “any representative elected from such a district by that method.” Within the same year gerrymander was also recorded as a verb.

Gershwin (gûrsh’wîn), George. 1898-1937. American composer who brought jazz idiom to classical music forms in his orchestral works, such as Rhapsody in Blue (1924), and composed the scores for many musical comedies. His collaborations with his brother, lyricist Ira Gershwin (1896-1983), include the popular song “Fascinatin’ Rhythm” (1924) and the opera Porgy and Bess (1935).

gerund (jěr’ənd) n. Abbr. ger. Grammar. 1. In Latin, a noun derived from a verb and having all case forms except the nominative. 2. In other languages, a verbal noun analogous to the Latin gerund, such as the English form ending in -ing when used as a noun, as in singing in We admired the choir’s singing. [Late Latin gerundium, from Latin gerundum, variant of gerendum, gerundive of gerere, to carry on.] —ge-run’di-al (jə-rŭn’dē-əl) adj.

ge-run-dive (jə-rŭn’dīv) n. A verbal adjective in Latin that in the nominative case expresses the notion of fitness or obligation and in other cases functions as a future passive participle. [Middle English gerundif, from Late Latin gerundivus, from gerundium, gerund. See GERUND.]

Ge-ry-on (jîr’ē-ən, gěr’-) n. Greek Mythology. A monster with three bodies that was slain by Hercules.

Ge-sell (gĭ-zĕl’), Arnold Lucius. 1880-1961. American psychologist and pediatrician noted for his research on child development.

Ges-ner (gĕs’nər), Konrad von. 1516-1565. Swiss encyclopedist and naturalist who published an annotated bibliography of all known books in Latin, Greek, and Hebrew (1545-1549). His Historia Animalium (1551-1558) is considered the basis of modern zoology.

ges-ne-ri-ad (gĕs-nîr’ē-ăd’, jĕs-) n. Any of numerous, mostly tropical herbs or shrubs of the family Gesneriaceae, including African violets, the Cape primrose, and gloxinia. [From New Latin Gesneria, type genus, after Konrad von GESNER.]

ges-so (jěs'ō) n. pl. ges-soes. 1. A preparation of plaster of Paris and glue used as a base for low relief or as a surface for painting. 2. A surface of gesso. [Italian, from Latin gypsum, gypsum. See GYPSUM.] —ges/soed adj.

gest or geste (jěst) n. 1. A notable adventure or exploit. 2. a. A verse romance or tale. b. A prose romance. [Middle English geste. See JEST.]

ge-stalt or Ge-stalt (gə-shtält', -shtôlt', -stält', -stôlt') n. pl. ge-stalts or ge-stalt-en (-shtält'n, -shtôlt'n, -stält'n, -stôlt'n). A physical, biological, psychological, or symbolic configuration or pattern of elements so unified as a whole that its properties cannot be derived from a simple summation of its parts. [German, shape, from Middle High German, from past participle of stellen, to place, from Old High German. See stel- in Appendix.]

Ge-stalt-ist (gə-shtäl'tĭst, -shtôl'-, -stäl'-, -stôl'-) n. An adherent or a practitioner of the principles of Gestalt psychology.

Gestalt psychology (gə-shtält' sĭ-kŏl'ə-jē) n. The school or theory in psychology holding that psychological, physiological, and behavioral phenomena are irreducible experiential configurations not derivable from a simple summation of perceptual elements such as sensation and response.

Ge-sta-po (gə-stä'pō, -shtä'-) n. 1. The German internal security police as organized under the Nazi regime, known for its terrorist methods directed against those suspected of treason or questionable loyalty. 2. gestapo. pl. ge-sta-pos. A police organization that employs terroristic methods to control a populace.

— adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the German security police organized under the Nazi regime. 2. gestapo. Of, relating to, or characteristic of terroristic police methods or operations: gestapo tactics. [German Ge(heime) Sta(ats)po(lizei), secret state police : geheim, secret + Staat, state + Polizei, police.]

ges-tate (jěs'tāt') v. ges-tat-ed, ges-tat-ing, ges-tates. — v. tr. 1. To carry within the uterus from conception to delivery. 2. To conceive and develop in the mind. — v. intr. 1. To gestate offspring. 2. To develop gradually. [Back-formation from GESTATION.]

ges-ta-tion (jě-stā'shən) n. 1. The period of development in the uterus from conception until birth; pregnancy. 2. The conception and development of a plan or an idea in the mind. [Late Latin gestātiō, gestātiōn-, from Latin, a carrying, from gestātus, past participle of gestāre frequentative of gerere, to carry.]

—ges'ta-to'ry (jěs'tə-tŏr'ē, -tŏr'ē), ges-ta'tion-al adj.

geste (jěst) n. Variant of gest.

ges-tic (jěs'tĭk) adj. Relating to bodily movements or gestures, especially in dancing. [From obsolete gest, bearing, from French geste, from Old French, from Latin gestus. See GESTURE.]

ges·tic·u·late (jĕ-stĭk'yə-lāt') v. ges·tic·u·lat·ed, ges·tic·u·lat·ing, ges·tic·u·lates. — v. intr. To make gestures especially while speaking, as for emphasis. — v. tr. To say or express by gestures. [Latin gesticulārī, gesticulāt-, from gesticulus, gesticulation, diminutive of gestus, gesture, bearing. See GESTURE.] — ges·tic·u·la'tive adj. — ges·tic·u·la'tor n. — ges·tic·u·la-to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

ges·tic·u·la·tion (jĕ-stĭk'yə-lā'shən) n. 1. The act of gesticulating. 2. A deliberate, vigorous motion or gesture. See Synonyms at gesture.

ges·ture (jĕs'chər) n. 1. A motion of the limbs or body made to express or help express thought or to emphasize speech. 2. The act of moving the limbs or body as an expression of thought or emphasis. 3. An act or a remark made as a formality or as a sign of intention or attitude: sent flowers as a gesture of sympathy. — v. ges·tured, ges·tur·ing, ges·tures. — v. intr. To make gestures. — v. tr. To show, express, or direct by gestures. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin gestūra, bearing, from Latin gestus, from past participle of gerere, to behave.] — ges'tur·al adj. — ges'tur·al·ly adv. — ges'tur·er n.

SYNONYMS: gesture, gesticulation, sign, signal. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “an expressive, meaningful bodily motion”: an emphatic gesture of disapproval; frantic gesticulations in an attempt to get help; made a sign for silence; giving the signal to advance.

ge·sund·heit (gə-zōönt'hīt') interj. Used to wish good health to a person who has just sneezed. [German, health, from Middle High German gesuntheit, from gesunt, healthy, from Old High German gisunt.]

get (gĕt) v. got (gŏt), got·ten (gŏt'n) or got, get·ting, gets. — v. tr.

1. a. To come into possession or use of; receive: got a poodle for her birthday.
b. To meet with or incur: got nothing but trouble for her efforts. 2. a. To go after and obtain: got a book at the library; got breakfast in town. b. To go after and bring: Get me a pillow. c. To purchase; buy: get groceries. 3. a. To acquire as a result of action or effort: He got his information out of an encyclopedia. You can't get water out of a stone. b. To earn: got high marks in math and science. c. To accomplish or attain as a result of military action. 4. To obtain by concession or request: couldn't get the time off; got permission to leave. 5. a. To arrive at; reach: When did you get home? b. To reach and board; catch: She got her plane two minutes before takeoff. 6. To succeed in communicating with, as by telephone: couldn't get me at the office until nine. 7. To become affected with (an illness, for example) by infection or exposure; catch: get the flu; got the mumps. 8. a. To be subjected to; undergo: got a severe concussion. b. To receive as retribution or punishment: got six years in prison for embezzling funds. c. To sustain a stated injury to: got my arm broken. 9. a. To gain or have understanding of: Do you get this question? b. To learn (a poem, for example) by heart; memorize. c. To find or reach by calculating: get a total; can't get the answer. d. To perceive by hearing: I didn't get your name when we were introduced. 10. To procreate; beget.

11. a. To cause to become or be in a specified state or condition: got the children tired and cross; got the shirt clean. b. To make ready; prepare: get lunch for a crowd. c. To cause to come or go: somehow got the car through traffic. d. To cause to move or leave: Get me out of here! 12. To cause to undertake or perform; prevail on: got the guide to give us the complete tour. 13. a. To take, especially by force; seize: The detective got the suspect as he came out of the restaurant.

b. Informal. To overcome or destroy: The ice storm got the rose bushes. c. To evoke an emotional response or reaction in: Romantic music really gets me. d. To annoy or irritate: What got me was his utter lack of self-discipline. e. To present a difficult problem to; puzzle. f. To take revenge on, especially to kill in revenge for a wrong. g. Informal. To hit or strike: She got him on the chin. The bullet got him in the shoulder. 14. Baseball. To put out. 15. To begin or start. Used with the present participle: I have to get working on this or I'll miss my deadline. 16. a. To have current possession of. Used in the present perfect form with the meaning of the present: We've got plenty of cash. b. To have as an obligation. Used in the present perfect form with the meaning of the present: I have got to leave early. You've got to do the dishes. — v. intr. 1. a. To become or grow to be: eventually got well. b. To be successful in coming or going: When will we get to New York?

2. To be able or permitted: never got to see Europe; finally got to work at home.

3. a. To be successful in becoming: get free of a drug problem. b. Used with the past participle of transitive verbs as a passive voice auxiliary: got stuck in the elevator. c. To become drawn in, entangled, or involved: got into debt; get into a hassle. 4. Informal. To depart immediately: yelled at the dog to get. 5. To work for gain or profit; make money: puts all his energy into getting and spending. — n.

1. a. The act of begetting. b. Progeny; offspring. 2. Sports. A return in tennis on a shot that seems impossible to reach. — phrasal verbs. get about. To be out of bed and beginning to walk again, as after an illness. get across. 2. To make understandable or clear: I have tried to get my point across. 3. To be convincing or understandable: How can I get across to the students? get after. To urge or scold: You should get after them to mow the lawn. get along. 5. To be or continue to be on harmonious terms: gets along with the in-laws. 6. To manage or fare with reasonable success: can't get along on those wages. 7. a. To make progress. b. To advance, especially in years. 8. To go away; leave. 9. a. To make progress. b. To advance, especially in years. get around. 10. To circumvent or evade: managed to get around the real issues. 11. Informal. To convince or win over by flattering or cajoling. 12. To travel from place to place: It is hard to get around without a car. 13. To become known; circulate: Word got around. get at. 14. To touch or reach successfully: The cat hid where we couldn't get at it. 15. To try to make understandable; hint at or suggest: I don't know what you're getting at.

16. To discover or understand: If we could only get at the cause of the problem!

get away. 17. To break free; escape. 18. To leave or go away: wanted to come along, but couldn't get away. get back. To return to a person, place, or condition: getting back to the subject. get by. 20. To pass or outstrip. 21. To succeed at a level of minimal acceptability or with the minimal amount of effort: just got by in high school. 22. To succeed in managing; survive: We'll get by if we economize. 23. To be unnoticed or ignored by: His mistake got by the editor but was caught by the proofreader. get down. 24. To descend. 25. To give one's attention. Often used with to: Let's get down to work. 26. To exhaust, discourage, or depress: The heat was getting me down. 27. To swallow: got the pill down on the first try. 28. To describe in writing. 29. Informal. To lose one's inhibitions; enjoy oneself wholeheartedly. get in. 30. a. To enter. b. To arrive: We got in late last night. 31. To become or cause to become involved: She got in with the wrong crowd. Repeated loans from the finance company got me in deeper and deeper. 32. To become accepted, as in a club. 33. To succeed in making or doing: got in six deliveries before noon. 34. a. To enter. b. To arrive: We got in late last night. get into. 35. To become involved in: got into trouble by stealing cars. 36. Informal. To be interested in: got into gourmet cooking. get off. 37. To start, as on a trip; leave. 38. a. To fire (a round of ammunition, for example): got off two shots before the deer disappeared. b. To write and send, as a letter. 39. To escape, as from punishment or danger: got off scot-free. 40. To obtain a release or lesser penalty for: The attorney got her client off with a slap on the wrist. 41. Slang. To act or speak with effrontery. Used in the imperative to express contempt or disdainful disbelief. 42. Slang. To have an orgasm. 43. Slang. a. To feel great pleasure or gratification. b. To experience euphoria, for example, as a result of taking a drug. 44. To get permission to leave one's workplace: got off early and went fishing. 45. a. To fire (a round of ammunition, for example): got off two shots before the deer disappeared. b. To write and send, as a letter. 46. Slang. a. To feel great pleasure or gratification. b. To experience euphoria, for example, as a result of taking a drug. get on. 47. To be or continue on harmonious terms: She gets on well with the neighbors. 48. To manage or fare with reasonable success. 49. a. To make progress; continue: get on with a performance. b. To advance in years. 50. To acquire understanding or knowledge: got on to the con game. 51. a. To make progress; continue: get on with a performance. b. To advance in years. get out. 52. a. To leave or escape. b. To cause to leave or escape. 53. To become known: Somehow the secret got out. 54. To publish, as a newspaper. 55. a. To leave or escape. b. To cause to leave or escape. get over. 56. To prevail against; overcome. 57. To recover from: finally got over the divorce. 58. To get across. get through. 59. To arrive at the end of; finish or complete. 60. a. To succeed in making contact; reach. b. To make oneself understood.*

61. a. To succeed in making contact; reach. b. To make oneself understood. get to. 62. a. To begin. Used with the present participle: got to reminiscing.
b. To start to deal with: didn't get to the housework until Sunday. 63. To influence or affect, especially adversely: The noise really gets to me. 64. a. To begin. Used with the present participle: got to reminiscing. b. To start to deal with: didn't get to the housework until Sunday. get together. 65. To bring together; gather. 66. To come together. 67. To arrive at an agreement. get up. 68. a. To arise from bed or rise to one's feet. b. To climb. 69. To act as the creator or organizer of: got up a petition against rezoning. 70. To dress or adorn: She got herself up in a bizarre outfit. 71. To find within oneself: trying to get up the nerve to quit. 72. a. To arise from bed or rise to one's feet. b. To climb. —idioms.
get around to. To find the time or occasion for. get away with. To escape the consequences of (a blameworthy act, for example): got away with cheating but was later caught. get back at. To take revenge on. get cracking. To begin to work; get started. get even. To obtain revenge. get even with. To repay with an equivalent act, as for revenge. get going. To make a beginning; get started. get it. Informal. To be punished or scolded. get it on. Slang. 9. To become filled with energy or excitement. 10. To engage in sexual intercourse. get nowhere. To make no progress. get on the stick. To begin to work. get (someone's) goat. To make angry or vexed. get somewhere. Informal. To make progress. get there. Informal. To make progress or achieve success. get wind of. To learn of: got wind of the scheme. [Middle English geten, from Old Norse geta. See ghend- in Appendix.] —get'a·ble, get'ta·ble adj.

USAGE NOTE: The use of get in the passive, as in We got sunburned at the beach, is generally avoided in formal writing. In less formal contexts, however, the construction does provide a useful distinction in attributing a more active role to its subject than would the corresponding passive with be. Thus if Jones has committed a flagrant breach of law in order to test a particular statute, the situation might best be described by the sentence Jones got arrested by the police; whereas if Jones did nothing to provoke the police action, the sentence Jones was arrested by the police would be preferred.

ge·ta (gět'ə, gě'tä) n. pl. geta or ge·tas. A wooden-soled shoe worn by the Japanese. [Japanese.]

Ge·ta·fe (hě-tä'fě) A town of central Spain south of Madrid. It is an industrial and agricultural center. Population, 128,522.

get·a·way (gět'ə-wā') n. 1. The act or an instance of escaping: made a quick getaway. 2. The start, as of a race. 3. A place appropriate for a vacation.

geth·sem·a·ne (gěth-sēm'ə-nē) n. An instance or a place of great suffering.

Geth·sem·a·ne (gĕth·sĕm'ə·nĕ) In the New Testament, a garden east of Jerusalem near the foot of the Mount of Olives. It was the scene of Jesus's agony and betrayal.

get·ter (gĕt'ər) n. A material added in small amounts during a chemical or metallurgical process to absorb impurities.

get-to·geth·er (gĕt'tə·gĕth'ər) n. Informal. 1. A meeting. 2. A casual social gathering.

get·tough (gĕt'tŭf') adj. Informal. Marked by resoluteness, aggressiveness, or austerity: the government's new get-tough policy on organized crime.

Get·ty (gĕt'ē), J(ean) Paul. 1892-1976. American business executive who amassed a multibillion-dollar fortune and established a museum in Malibu, California (1953), to publicly display his vast art collection.

Get·tys·burg (gĕt'ĕz·bŭrg') A town of southern Pennsylvania east-southeast of Chambersburg. It was the site of a major Union victory in the Civil War (July 1-3, 1863), which checked Robert E. Lee's invasion of the North. The battle and Abraham Lincoln's famous Gettysburg Address (delivered at the dedication of a cemetery here on November 19, 1863) are commemorated by a national park. President Dwight D. Eisenhower's farm, a national historic site, is also in Gettysburg. Population, 7,194.

get·up (gĕt'ŭp') n. 1. Informal. An outfit or a costume. 2. Printing. Arrangement and production style, as of a magazine or book.

get-up-and-go (gĕt'ŭp'ən·gō') n. Informal. Initiation of action motivated by energy and ambition.

get·well (gĕt'wĕl') adj. Expressing wishes for one's recovery: a get-well card.

GeV abbr. Physics. Giga-electron volts.

gew·gaw (gyōō'gō', gōō'-) n. A decorative trinket; a bauble. [Middle English giuegaue.]

Ge·würz·tra·mi·ner (gə·vöörts'trə·mĕ'nər, -wŭrts'-) n. 1. A dry white table wine with a spicy bouquet, produced in the Alsace region of France. 2. A similar wine produced elsewhere. [German : Gewürz, spice (from würze, from Middle High German wirze, from Old High German wurz, plant); see wrād- in Appendix + Traminer, grape variety (from Tramin, wine-growing district of the southern Tyrol).]

gey·ser (gĕ'zər) n. 1. A natural hot spring that intermittently ejects a column of water and steam into the air. 2. (gĕ'zər) Chiefly British. A gas-operated hot-water heater. [After Icelandic Geysir, name of a hot spring of southwest Iceland, from geysa, to gush, from Old Norse. See gheu- in Appendix.]

gey·ser·ite (gĕ'zə·rīt') n. A white or grayish opaline siliceous deposit formed around natural hot springs.

Ge·zer (gē'zər) An ancient city of Canaan on the coastal Plain of Sharon northwest of Jerusalem. Excavations here have revealed many levels of prehistoric cultures.

Ge·zi·ra (jə-zîr'ə), El. A region of east-central Sudan between the Blue Nile and the White Nile.

GFE abbr. Government-furnished equipment.

GFWC abbr. General Federation of Women's Clubs.

GGPA abbr. Graduate grade-point average.

GH abbr. Growth hormone.

Gha·gha·ra (gä'gə-rä') or Gha·ghra (gä'grə, -grä) also Gog·ra (gög'rə, -rä)

A river rising in southwest Tibet and flowing about 965 km (600 mi) south through the Himalaya Mountains in Nepal then southeast into northern India, where it joins the Ganges River.

Gha·na (gä'nə, gän'ə) 1. A medieval African kingdom in what is now eastern Senegal, southwest Mali, and southern Mauritania. It was founded probably in the 6th century A.D. and prospered because of its location astride the trans-Saharan caravan routes. The kingdom declined after the 11th century. 2. A country of western Africa on the Gulf of Guinea. Inhabited in precolonial times by a number of ancient kingdoms, including that of the Ashanti, Ghana was a British colony after the 1870's and became independent in 1957. Accra is the capital and the largest city. Population, 12,205,574. —Gha'na-ian, Gha'ni-an adj. & n.

gha·ri·al (gür'ē-əl) n. See gavial.

ghast·ly (gäst'lē) adj. ghast·li·er, gha·st·li·est. 1. Inspiring shock, revulsion, or horror by or as if by suggesting death; terrifying: a ghastly murder.

2. Suggestive of or resembling ghosts. 3. Extremely unpleasant or bad: "in the most abominable passage of his ghastly little book" (Conor Cruise O'Brien).

4. Very serious or great: a ghastly error. [Alteration (influenced by GHOST), of Middle English gastli, from gasten, to terrify. See AGHAST.] —ghast'li-ness n.

—ghast'ly adv.

SYNONYMS: ghastly, grim, gruesome, grisly, macabre, lurid. These adjectives describe what is shockingly repellent in aspect or appearance. Ghastly applies to what inspires shock or horror because it suggests death: ghastly wounds; a ghastly pallor; a ghastly shriek. Grim refers to what repels because of its stern or fierce aspect or its harsh, relentless nature: the grim task of burying the victims of the earthquake. Gruesome and grisly describe what horrifies or revolts because of its appalling crudity or utter inhumanity: a gruesome murder; gruesome evidence of human sacrifice; grisly jokes about cadavers and worms; "the grisly gang who work [Hitler's] wicked will" (Winston S. Churchill). Macabre suggests the gruesome, often grotesque horror of death and decay: macabre stories about tortures conceived by a madman. Lurid sometimes refers to what is of a ghastly or unnatural hue suggestive of death: As her illness worsened her skin took on a pallid, greenish, lurid appearance. More often the term describes what shocks because of its terrible and ghastly nature: lurid crimes. At other times it merely refers to glaring and usually unsavory sensationalism: a lurid, melodramatic, but accurate account of the accident.

ghat also ghaut (gôt, gät) n. A broad flight of steps leading down to the bank of a river in India, used especially by bathers. [Hindi ghāt, from Sanskrit ghaṭṭah, from ghaṭṭ, he shakes, rubs.]

Ghats (gôts) Two mountain ranges of southern India. The Eastern Ghats extend about 1,448 km (900 mi) along the coast of the Bay of Bengal. The Western Ghats extend about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) along the coast of the Arabian Sea. The ranges are separated by the Deccan Plateau.

ghaut (gôt, gät) n. Variant of ghat.

gha·zi (gä'zē) n. pl. gha-zies. Islam. 1. A man who has fought successfully against infidels. 2. Often used as a title for such a warrior. [Arabic ghāzī, participle of ghāzā, to raid.]

Gha·zi·a·bad (gä'zē-ə-bäd') A city of north-central India northeast of New Delhi. An agricultural market, the city was the scene of fighting during the Indian Mutiny (1857). Population, 271,730.

ghee (gē) n. A clarified, semifluid butter used especially in Indian cooking. [Hindi ghī, from Sanskrit ghṛtam, possibly from gharati, he sprinkles.]

Ghent (gěnt) also Gent (gěnt, KHěnt) A city of western Belgium west-northwest of Brussels. Founded in the seventh century, it was a medieval wool-producing center and remained virtually independent until its capture by the Hapsburgs in 1584. Population, 236,540.

gher·kin (gūr'kĭn) n. 1. a. A West Indian vine (Cucumis anguria) having prickly, mature fruits that are sold as curiosities. The immature fruits are widely used for pickling. b. The fruit of this plant. Also called gooseberry gourd 2. A small cucumber, especially one used for pickling. [Dutch gurken, pl. of gurk, cucumber, short for agurk, possibly from Polish ogorek, perhaps from Late Greek angourion.]

ghet·to (gět'ō) n. pl. ghet-tos or ghet-toes. 1. A section of a city occupied by a minority group who live there especially because of social, economic, or legal pressure. 2. A section or quarter in a European city to which Jews were formerly restricted. 3. Something that resembles the restriction or isolation of a city ghetto: "trapped in ethnic or pink-collar managerial job ghettos" (Diane Weathers). [Italian.]

ghetto blaster (gět'ō bläs'tər) n. Slang. A portable stereo.

ghet·to·ize (gět'ō-īz') v. tr. ghet-to-ized, ghet-to-iz-ing, ghet-to-iz-es.

1. To set apart in or as if in a ghetto; isolate. 2. To make into or similar to a ghetto: “He left a city ghettoized and strangled by highways and the auto” (New York). —ghet'to-i-za'tion (-'izā'shən) n.

Ghib-el-line (gīb'ə-lēn', -līn', -līn) n. A member of the aristocratic political faction who fought during the Middle Ages for German imperial control of Italy, in opposition to the Guelphs and the papacy. [Italian Ghibellino, from Middle High German wībeling*, name of a Hohenstaufen estate.]

Ghi-ber-ti (gē-bēr'tē), Lorenzo. 1378?-1455. Florentine sculptor whose series of bronze panels Gates of Paradise (1425-1452) for the doors of the baptistry of Florence Cathedral are among the greatest works of early Renaissance art.

ghil-lie (gīl'ē) n. Variant of gillie.

Ghir-lan-da-io also Ghir-lan-da-jo (gīr-län-dä'yō), Domenico. Originally Domenico Bigordi. 1449-1494. Florentine painter known especially for his narrative frescoes, such as Scenes from the Life of Saint Francis (1483-1485).

ghost (gōst) n. 1. The spirit of a dead person, especially one believed to appear in bodily likeness to living persons or to haunt former habitats. 2. The center of spiritual life; the soul. 3. A demon or spirit. 4. A returning or haunting memory or image. 5. a. A slight or faint trace: just a ghost of a smile. b. The tiniest bit: not a ghost of a chance. 6. A faint, false image, as: a. A secondary image on a television or radar screen caused by reflected waves. b. A displaced image in a photograph caused by the optical system of the camera. c. A false spectral line caused by imperfections in the diffraction grating. d. A displaced image in a mirror caused by reflection from the front of the glass. 7. Informal. A ghost-writer. 8. a. A nonexistent publication listed in bibliographies. b. A fictitious employee or business. 9. Physiology. A red blood cell having no hemoglobin. — v. ghost-ed, ghost-ing, ghosts. — v. intr. 1. Informal. To engage in ghostwriting. 2. To move noiselessly like a ghost: “Two young deer ghosted out of the woods” (Nancy M. Debevoise). — v. tr. 1. To haunt. 2. Informal. To ghost-write: was hired to ghost the memoirs of a famous executive. [Middle English gost, from Old English gāst, breath, spirit.] —ghost'y adj.

ghost crab (gōst krāb) n. Any of several light-colored burrowing crabs of the genus Ocypoda frequenting the tide line along sandy shores from the northeast United States to Brazil. Also called white crab ghost dance (gōst dāns) n. Either of two group dances associated with a messianic religious movement among Native American peoples of the Southwest and Great Plains in the late 19th century. Ghost dance prophets foretold the imminent disappearance of whites, the restoration of traditional lands and ways of life, and the resurrection of dead ancestors.

ghost-ing (gō'stīŋ) n. The appearance of one or more false images on a television screen.

ghost·ly (gōst'lē) adj. ghost·li·er, ghost·li·est. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a ghost, a wraith, or an apparition; spectral. 2. Of or relating to the soul or spirit; spiritual. —ghost'li·ness n. —ghost'ly adv.

ghost net (gōst nēt) n. A plastic drift net that has been abandoned by a fishing boat and that entangles and kills fish, porpoises, seabirds, and other marine life.

ghost story (gōst stôr'ē) n. A story having supernatural or frightening elements, especially a story featuring ghosts or spirits of the dead.

ghost town (gōst toun) n. A once thriving town, especially a boomtown of the American West, that has been completely abandoned.

ghost·weed (gōst'wēd') n. See snow-on-the-mountain.

ghost word (gōst wûrd) n. A word that has come into a language through the perpetuation of a misreading of a manuscript, a typographical error, or a misunderstanding.

ghost·write (gōst'rīt') v. ghost·wrote (-rōt'), ghost·writ·ten (-rīt'n), ghost·writ·ing, ghost·writes. — v. intr. To work as a ghostwriter. — v. tr. To write (a speech, for example) as a ghostwriter. See Usage Note at author.

ghost·writ·er (gōst'rī'tər) n. One who writes for and gives credit of authorship to another.

ghost·writ·ten (gōst'rīt'n) v. Past participle of ghostwrite.

ghost·wrote (gōst'rōt') v. Past tense of ghostwrite.

ghoul (gōl) n. 1. One who delights in the revolting, morbid, or loathsome.

2. A grave robber. 3. An evil spirit or demon in Muslim folklore believed to plunder graves and feed on corpses. [Arabic gūl, from gāla, to seize suddenly.]

—ghoul'ish adj. —ghoul'ish·ly adv. —ghoul'ish·ness n.

GHQ abbr. General headquarters.

GHz abbr. Gigahertz.

gi abbr. Gill (liquid measure).

GI¹ (jē'ī) n. pl. GIs or GI's. An enlisted person in or a veteran of any of the U.S. armed forces, especially a person enlisted in the army. — adj. 1. Relating to or characteristic of an enlisted person. 2. Conforming to or in accordance with U.S. military regulations or procedures. 3. Issued by an official U.S. military supply department. — adv. In strict accordance with military regulations or practices. — v. tr. GI'd, GI'ing, GI's. Slang. To clean (barracks, for example) thoroughly for or as if for an inspection. [From abbreviation of galvanized iron (applied to trash cans, etc.), later reinterpreted as government issue.]

GI² abbr. 1. Galvanized iron. 2. Gastrointestinal. 3. General issue. 4. Also G.I. Government Issue.

Gia·co·met·ti (jä-kə-mět'ē, -kô-mět'tē), Alberto. 1901-1966. Swiss sculptor, painter, and exponent of surrealism who is best known for his elongated sculptures of human figures, such as Walking Man (1960).

Giaever (yā'vər), Ivar. Born 1929. Norwegian-born American physicist. He shared a 1973 Nobel Prize for theoretical advances in the field of solid-state electronics.

gi·ant (jī'ənt) n. 1. a. A person or thing of great size. b. A person of extraordinary power, significance, or importance: a giant in the field of physics; an intellectual giant. 2. a. Greek Mythology. One of a race of humanlike beings of enormous strength and stature who were destroyed in battle with the Olympians. b. A being in folklore or myth similar to one of these beings. — adj. Marked by exceptionally great size, magnitude, or power: a giant wave; a giant impact. [Middle English, from Old French geant, jaiant, from Vulgar Latin gagās, gagan-*, from Latin gigās, from Greek gigas.]

giant chinquapin (jī'ənt čhīŋ'kə-pīn') n. See chinquapin (n., sense 2).

gi·ant·ess (jī'ən-tīs) n. A female giant.

gi·ant·ism (jī'ən-tīz'əm) n. 1. The quality or condition of being a giant. 2. See gigantism (n., sense 2).

giant panda (jī'ənt pān'də) n. See panda (n., sense 1).

giant redwood (jī'ənt rēd'wōd') n. See giant sequoia.

Gi·ant's Causeway (jī'ənts kôz'wā') A basaltic formation on the northern coast of Northern Ireland. It consists of thousands of columns of volcanic origin forming three natural platforms. According to legend, it was once a bridge for giants crossing between Ireland and Scotland.

giant schnauzer (jī'ənt shnou'zər) n. Any of a breed of dog developed in Germany, similar in appearance to but larger than the standard schnauzer and used chiefly in police work.

giant sequoia (jī'ənt sī-kwoi'ə) n. A very tall, coniferous evergreen tree (Sequoiadendron giganteum) native to the high western slopes of the Sierra Nevada in southern California and having a massive trunk and light-colored, reddish wood. Also called big tree, giant redwood.

giant slalom (jī'ənt slä'ləm) n. Sports. A downhill skiing race in which participants must pass between pairs of gates set along a course that is larger and often steeper than a slalom course.

giant star (jī'ənt stār) n. Any of a class of highly luminous, exceptionally massive stars.

giaour (jour) n. Islam. A nonbeliever; an infidel. [Alteration of obsolete gower, gour, from Turkish gâvur, from Persian gabr, infidel, Zoroastrian, from Arabic kāfir, infidel, from kafara, not to believe.]

gi·ar·di·a (jē-är'dē-ə, jār'-) n. Any of various flagellated, usually nonpathogenic protozoa of the genus Giardia that may be parasitic in the intestines of vertebrates including human beings and most domestic animals. [New Latin, after Alfred Mathieu Giard (1846-1908), French zoologist.]

gi-ar-di-a-sis (jē'är-dī'ə-sīs) n. Intestinal infection with the protozoan Giardia lamblia. It is usually asymptomatic in human beings but may produce abdominal cramps, diarrhea, and nausea.

Gi-auque (jē-ōk'), William Francis. 1895-1982. Canadian-born American chemist. He won a 1949 Nobel Prize for his research in low-temperature thermodynamic chemistry.

gib¹ (gīb) n. A plain or notched, often wedge-shaped piece of wood or metal designed to hold parts of a machine or structure in place or provide a bearing surface, usually adjusted by a screw or key. — v. tr. gibbed, gib-bing, gibs. To fasten with a gib. [Origin unknown.]

gib² (gīb) n. A male cat, especially a castrated one. [Middle English, probably short for the personal name Gilbert.]

Gib. abbr. Gibraltar.

gib-ber (jīb'ər) v. intr. gib-bered, gib-ber-ing, gib-bers. To prattle and chatter unintelligibly. — n. Unintelligible or foolish talk. [Probably back-formation from GIBBERISH.]

gib-ber-el-lic acid (jīb'ə-rĕl'ik äs'īd) n. A hormone, C₁₉H₂₂O₆, obtained from the fungus Gibberella fujikuroi and used to promote the growth of plants, especially seedlings. [From GIBBERELLIN.]

gib-ber-el-lin (jīb'ə-rĕl'īn) n. Any of several plant hormones, such as gibberellic acid, used to promote stem elongation. [From New Latin Gibberella (fujikoroi), the fungus from which gibberellin was first isolated, from Latin gibberella, feminine diminutive of gibber, hump.]

gib-ber-ish (jīb'ər-īsh) n. 1. Unintelligible or nonsensical talk or writing.

2. a. Highly technical or esoteric language. b. Unnecessarily pretentious or vague language. [Probably gibber-, of imitative origin + -ISH.]

gib-bet (jīb'īt) n. 1. A device used for hanging a person until dead; a gallows.

2. An upright post with a crosspiece, forming a T-shaped structure from which executed criminals were formerly hung for public viewing. — v. tr. gib-bet-ed or gib-bet-ted, gib-bet-ing or gib-bet-ting, gib-bets or gib-bets. 1. To execute by hanging on a gibbet. 2. a. To hang on a gibbet for public viewing. b. To expose to infamy or public ridicule. [Middle English gibet, from Old French, diminutive of gibe, staff, probably from Frankish gibb*, forked stick.]

gib-bon (gīb'ən) n. Any of several small, arboreal apes of the genus Hylobates of southeast Asia and the East Indies, having a slender body, long arms, and no tail. [French.]

Gib-bon (gīb'ən), Edward. 1737-1794. British historian who wrote the classic text The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire (1776-1788).

gib-bos-i-ty (gī-bōs'ī-tē) n. pl. gib-bos-i-ties. 1. The condition of being gibbous. 2. A rounded hump or protuberance.

gib-bous (gĭb'əs) adj. 1. a. Characterized by convexity; protuberant. b. More than half but less than fully illuminated. Used of the moon or a planet: “the gibbous moon, its light reflecting whitely” (John Barth). 2. Having a hump; hump-backed. [Middle English, bulging, from Late Latin gibbōsus, hunch-backed, from Latin gibbus, hump.] —gib'bous-ly adv. —gib'bous-ness n.

Gibbs (gĭbz), Josiah Willard. 1839-1903. American mathematician and physicist who formulated the theoretical foundation of physical chemistry, developed vector analysis, and conducted optical and thermodynamic research.

Gibbs free energy (gĭbz frē ɛn'ər-jē) n. See free energy (n., sense 2).

[After Josiah Willard GIBBS.]

gibe also jibe (jĭb) v. gibed also jibed, gib-ing also jib-ing, gibes also jibes. — v. intr. To make taunting, heckling, or jeering remarks. See Synonyms at ridicule. — v. tr. To deride with taunting remarks. — n. A derisive remark. [Possibly from obsolete French giber, to handle roughly, play, from Old French.] —gib'er n. —gib'ing-ly adv.

Gib-e-on (gĭb'ē-ən) An ancient village of Palestine near Jerusalem. In the Old Testament, its inhabitants were condemned by Joshua to serve as manual laborers for the Israelites. —Gib'e-o-nite' n.

gib-lets (jĭb'lĭts) pl.n. The edible heart, liver, or gizzard of a fowl. [From Middle English gibelet, from Old French, game stew, perhaps alteration of giberet*, from gibier, game.]

Gi-bral-tar¹ (jə-brôl'tər) Abbr. Gib. A British colony at the northwest end of the Rock of Gibraltar, a peninsula on the south-central coast of Spain in the Strait of Gibraltar, connecting the Mediterranean Sea and the Atlantic Ocean between Spain and northern Africa. Gibraltar was captured by Arabs in 711 and passed to the Spanish in 1462. Great Britain took control in 1704 during the War of the Spanish Succession, although Spain has made repeated claims to regain the territory. The population of the colony is 29,648.

Gi-bral-tar² (jĭ-brôl'tər) n. An invincible fortress or stronghold.

Gibraltar fever (jə-brôl'tər fē'vər) n. See brucellosis (n., sense 1).

Gib-ran (jə-brän'), (Gibran) Kahlil. 1883-1931. Lebanese-born American mystic poet and painter best known for The Prophet (1923), a vivid description of his philosophy of redemption through love.

Gib-son (gĭb'sən) n. A dry martini garnished with a small pickled onion. [From the name Gibson.]

Gib-son (gĭb'sən), Althea. Born 1927. American tennis player. The first Black American to play at Wimbledon (1951), she won the U.S. women's singles title and the singles and doubles titles at Wimbledon in 1957 and 1958.

Gibson Desert (gĭb'sən dəz'ərt) A desert of west-central Australia bounded by the Great Sandy Desert on the north and Great Victoria Desert on the south. The area includes a number of salt lakes.

Gibson girl (gĭb'sən gŭrl) n. The American young woman of the 1890's as idealized in sketches by the American illustrator Charles Dana Gibson (1867-1944). — adj. Of or relating to a clothing style marked by a high neck, puffed sleeves, and a tightly fitted waistline.

gid (gĭd) n. A disease of herbivores, especially sheep, caused by the presence of the larvae of the tapeworm Multiceps multiceps in the brain and resulting in a staggering gait. Also called sturdy [Back-formation from GIDDY.]

gid·dap (gĭ-dăp', -dŭp') also gid·dy·ap (gĭd'ē-ăp', -ŭp') or gid·dy·up (-ŭp') interj. Used to command a horse to go ahead or go at a faster pace. [Alteration of get up.]

gid·dy (gĭd'ē) adj. gid·di·er, gid·di·est. 1. a. Having a reeling, lightheaded sensation; dizzy. b. Causing or capable of causing dizziness: a giddy climb to the topmast. 2. Frivolous and lighthearted; flighty. — v. intr. tr. gid·died, gid·dy·ing, gid·dies. To become or make giddy. [Middle English gidi, crazy, from Old English gidig. See gheu(ə)- in Appendix.] — gid'·di·ly adv. — gid'·di·ness n.

SYNONYMS: giddy, dizzy, vertiginous. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “producing a sensation of whirling and a tendency to fall”: a giddy precipice; a dizzy pinnacle; a vertiginous height.

WORD HISTORY: The word giddy refers to fairly lightweight experiences or situations, but at one time it had to do with profundities. Giddy can be traced back to the same Germanic root ·gud- that has given us the word God. The Germanic word ·gudigaz formed on this root meant “possessed by a god.” Such possession can be a rather unbalancing experience, and so it is not surprising that the Old English representative of ·gudigaz, gidig, meant “mad, possessed by an evil spirit,” or that the Middle English development of gidig, gidi, meant the same thing, as well as “foolish; mad (used of an animal); dizzy; uncertain, unstable.” Our sense “lighthearted, frivolous,” represents the ultimate secularization of gid·dy.

gid·dy·ap (gĭd'ē-ăp', -ŭp') or gid·dy·up (-ŭp') interj. Variants of giddap.

Gide (zhĕd), André. 1869-1951. French writer noted for his diaries and novels, such as The Immoralist (1902) and Lafcadio's Adventures (1914), which examine alienation and the drive for individuality in an often disapproving society. He won the 1947 Nobel Prize for literature.

Gid·e·on¹ (gĭd'ē-ən) In the Old Testament, a Hebrew judge who vehemently opposed the Baal cult and defeated the Midianites.

Gid·e·on² (gĭd'ē-ən) n. A member of an interdenominational and international society known for placing Bibles in hotel rooms. [From Gideons International, formerly the Gideon Society, after GIDEON¹.]

gie (gē) v. Scots. Variant of give.

Giel-gud (gīl'gōöd', gēl'-), Sir (Arthur) John. Born 1904. British actor and director particularly noted for his performances in and productions of Shakespearean plays.

Gies-sen (gē'sən) A city of west-central Germany north of Frankfurt. Chartered in 1248, it is a manufacturing center in a mining area. Population, 70,743.

gift (gīft) n. 1. Something that is bestowed voluntarily and without compensation. 2. The act, right, or power of giving. 3. A talent, an endowment, an aptitude, or a bent. — v. tr. gift-ed, gift-ing, gifts. 1. Usage Problem. To present with a gift. 2. To endow with. [Middle English, from Old Norse. See ghabh- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Gift has a long history of use as a verb meaning “to present as a gift; endow.” The practice appears to provide a useful distinction, inasmuch as the verb give can sometimes be ambiguous between “to transfer physical possession” and “to transfer ownership”; and in fact a verb analogous to gift is found in a number of other languages (for example, Italian regalare, “to give as a gift,” from regalo, “gift, present”). Unfortunately the verbal use of gift in Modern English is irredeemably tainted (as is its derivative giftable) by its association with the language of advertising and publicity (as in Gift her with this copper warming plate). In an earlier survey the usage was rejected by a large majority of the Usage Panel. Where clarity is required, substitutes such as give as a gift, bestow, or donate are recommended. • The phrase free gift should, of course, be considered redundant. But the increasing currency of its use is indicative mainly of the degree to which the word gift itself has been expropriated by advertisers to refer to merchandise offerings to which an obligation is attached—if not a direct price, then taking a test drive, sitting through a sales pitch, or enrolling in a book club. It is perhaps to this use of gift, rather than to the redundancy free gift, that critics ought most strenuously to object.

gift·a·ble (gīft'ə-bəl) Usage Problem. adj. Appropriate for a gift. — n. Something suitable for giving as a gift.

gift certificate (gīft sər-tīf'ī-kīt) n. A certificate usually presented as a gift that entitles the recipient to select merchandise of an indicated cash value at a commercial establishment.

gift-ed (gīft'īd) adj. 1. Endowed with great natural ability, intelligence, or talent: a gifted child; a gifted pianist. 2. Revealing special talent: a gifted rendition of the aria. — gift-ed-ly adv. — gift-ed-ness n.

gift of gab (gīft ūv gāb) n. The ability to talk readily, glibly, and convincingly.

gift of tongues (gīft ūv tūngz) n. An ecstatic utterance that is partly or wholly unintelligible to hearers, especially such an utterance considered as a charismatic gift in certain Christian congregations. Also called glossolalia, speaking in tongues. [From the Apostles' speaking in tongues in Acts 2:4.]

gift-ware (gĭft'wâr') n. Wares or merchandise appropriate for gifts.

gift-wrap (gĭft'răp') v. tr. gift-wrapped, gift-wrap-ping, gift-wraps.

To wrap (something intended as a gift) in a decorative manner. — n. Gift-wrapping.

gift-wrap-ping (gĭft'răp'ing) n. Decorative wrapping paper.

Gi-fu (gĕ'fōō') A city of central Honshu, Japan, north-northwest of Nagoya. A manufacturing center, the city was rebuilt after a devastating earthquake and fire in 1891. Population, 411,740.

gig¹ (gĭg) n. 1. A light, two-wheeled carriage drawn by one horse. 2. Nautical.

a. A long, light ship's boat, usually reserved for use by the ship's captain. b. A fast, light rowboat. 3. a. An object that whirls. b. Games. A three-digit selection in a numbers game. — v. intr. gigged, gig-ging, gigs. To ride in a gig. [Perhaps from obsolete gig, spinning top, from Middle English gyg-, possibly of Scandinavian origin.]

gig² (gĭg) n. 1. An arrangement of barbless hooks that is dragged through a school of fish to hook them in their bodies. 2. A pronged spear for fishing or catching frogs. — v. gigged, gig-ging, gigs. — v. tr. To fish for or catch with a gig. — v. intr. To catch a fish or frog with a gig. [Short for FISHGIG.]

gig³ (gĭg) Slang. n. A demerit given in the military. — v. tr. gigged, gig-ging, gigs. To give a military demerit to. [Origin unknown.]

gig⁴ (gĭg) Slang. n. A job, especially a booking for musicians. — v. intr.

gigged, gig-ging, gigs. To work as a musician: "gigging weekends as a piano player in the ski joints" (Joel Oppenheimer). [Origin unknown.]

giga- pref. One billion (10^9): gigahertz. [From Greek gigas, giant.]

gig-a-bit (jĭg'ə-bit', gĭg'-) n. Computer Science. A unit of information equal to one billion (10^9) bits.

gig-a-byte (jĭg'ə-bit', gĭg'-) n. Computer Science. A unit of information equal to one billion (10^9) bytes.

gig-a-cy-cle (jĭg'ə-sī'kəl, gĭg'-) n. Abbr. GC See gigahertz.

gig-a-hertz (jĭg'ə-hûrtz', gĭg'-) n. Abbr. GHz A unit of frequency equal to one billion (10^9) hertz. Also called gigacycle, kilomegacycle.

gi-gan-tesque (jī'găn-tĕsk') adj. Of enormous size or magnitude; huge.

[French, from Italian gigantesco, from gigante, giant, from Latin gigās, gigant-. See GIANT.]

gi-gan-tic (jī-găn'tik) adj. 1. Relating to or suggestive of a giant.

2. a. Exceedingly large of its kind: a gigantic toadstool. b. Very large or extensive: a gigantic corporation. See Synonyms at enormous. [From Latin gigās, gigant-, giant; see GIANT, or from Greek gigantikos (from gigas, gigant-, giant).]

—gi-gan'ti-cal-ly adv.

gi-gan-tism (jī-gǎn'tíz'əm) n. 1. The quality or state of being gigantic; abnormally large size. 2. Excessive growth of the body or any of its parts, especially as a result of oversecretion of the growth hormone by the pituitary gland. In this sense, also called giantism gig-a-ton (jīg'ə-tūn', gīg'-) n. A unit of explosive force equal to that of one billion (10^9) tons of TNT.

gig-a-watt (jīg'ə-wōt', gīg'-) n. Abbr. GW One billion (10^9) watts.

gig-gle (gīg'əl) v. gig-gled, gig-gling, gig-gles. — v. intr. To laugh with repeated short, spasmodic sounds. — v. tr. To utter while giggling. — n. A short, spasmodic laugh. [Of imitative origin.] — gig'gler n. — gig'gling-ly adv. — gig'gly adj.

GIGO (gī'gō, gē'-) n. Computer Science. An informal rule holding that the integrity of output is dependent on the integrity of input. [g(arbage) i(n) g(arbage) o(ut).] gig-o-lo (jīg'ə-lō', zhīg'-) n. pl. gig-o-los. 1. A man who has a continuing sexual relationship with and receives financial support from a woman. 2. A man who is hired as an escort or a dancing partner for a woman. [French, perhaps from gigolette, dancing girl, prostitute, from giguer, to dance, from gigue, fiddle, from Old French. See GIGOT.]

gig-ot (jīg'ət, zhē-gō') n. 1. A leg of mutton, lamb, or veal for cooking. 2. A leg-of-mutton sleeve. [French, from Old French, diminutive of gigue, fiddle, from Middle High German gīge, from Old High German gīga.]

gigue (zhēg) n. See jig (n., sense 1). [French, probably from JIG.]

Gi-jón (hē-hōn') A city of northwest Spain on the Bay of Biscay west of Santander. Of pre-Roman origin, it is a major port and industrial center. Population, 262,395.

Gi-ku-yu (gī-kōō'yōō) n. Variant of Kikuyu.

Gi-la monster (hē'lə mōn'stər) n. A venomous lizard (Heloderma suspectum) of arid regions of the southwest United States and western Mexico, having black and orange or yellow scales. [After the Gila River.]

Gila River (hē'lə rīv'ər) A river rising in the mountains of western New Mexico and flowing about 1,014 km (630 mi) generally westward across southern Arizona to the Colorado River at Yuma in the southwest corner of the state.

gil-bert (gīl'bərt) n. The centimeter-gram-second electromagnetic unit of magnetomotive force, equal to 4π ampere-turn. [After William GILBERT.]

Gil-bert (gīl'bərt), Cass. 1859-1934. American architect whose design of the 60-story Woolworth Building in New York City (1913) greatly influenced the development of the skyscraper.

Gil-bert (gīl'bərt), Henry Franklin Belknap. 1868-1928. American composer who was the first to base his works, such as Nocturne, after Whitman (1925), wholly on American folk music themes.

Gilbert (gɪl'bərt), Sir Humphrey. 1539?-1583. English navigator who urged exploration for the Northwest Passage, established in Newfoundland (1583) the first English colony in North America, and was lost at sea during a homeward voyage.

Gilbert (gɪl'bərt), Walter. Born 1932. American biologist. He shared a 1980 Nobel Prize for developing methods of mapping the structure and function of DNA.

Gilbert (gɪl'bərt), William. 1544-1603. English court physician noted for his studies of electricity and magnetism.

Gilbert (gɪl'bərt), Sir William Schwenck. 1836-1911. British playwright and lyricist known for a series of comic operas, including H.M.S. Pinafore (1878) and The Pirates of Penzance (1879), written with composer Sir Arthur Sullivan.

Gilbert Islands (gɪl'bərt i'lændz) A group of islands of western Kiribati in the central Pacific Ocean. First visited by the British in 1765, the islands were made a protectorate in 1892 and later became part of the Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony (1915-1976). Full independence as the principal islands of Kiribati was achieved in 1979.

gild¹ (gɪld) v. tr. gild-ed or gilt (gɪlt), gild-ing, gilds. 1. To cover with or as if with a thin layer of gold. 2. To give an often deceptively attractive or improved appearance to. 3. Archaic. To smear with blood. —idiom. gild the lily. 1. To adorn unnecessarily something already beautiful. 2. To make superfluous additions to what is already complete. [Middle English gilden, from Old English gyldan. See ghel-² in Appendix.] —gild'er n.

gild² (gɪld) n. Variant of guild.

gild-ing (gɪl'dɪŋ) n. 1. The art or process of applying gilt to a surface. 2. Gold leaf or a paint containing or simulating gold; gilt. 3. Something used to give a superficially attractive appearance.

Gil-e-ad (gɪl'ē-əd) A mountainous region of ancient Palestine east of the Jordan River in what is now northwest Jordan.

Gil-ga-mesh (gɪl'gə-məsh') n. Mythology. The semidivine king of Erech, a city of southern Babylonia, and hero of an epic collection of mythic tales, one of which tells of a flood that covered the earth.

gill¹ (gɪl) n. 1. Zoology. The respiratory organ of most aquatic animals that breathe water to obtain oxygen, consisting of a filamentous structure of vascular membranes across which dissolved gases are exchanged. 2. a. Often gills. The wattle of a bird. b. gills. Informal. The area around the chin and neck. 3. Botany. One of the thin, platelike structures on the underside of the cap of a mushroom or similar fungus. — v. gilled, gill-ing, gills. — v. tr. 1. To catch (fish) in a gill net. 2. To gut or clean (fish). — v. intr. To become entangled in a gill net. Used of fish. —idiom. to the gills. Informal. As full as possible; completely. [Middle English gile, of Scandinavian origin.] —gilled adj.

gill² (jīl) n. Abbr. gi 1. A unit of volume or capacity in the U.S. Customary System, used in liquid measure, equal to 4 of a pint or four ounces (118 milliliters). 2. A unit of volume or capacity, used in dry and liquid measure, equal to 4 of a British Imperial pint (142 milliliters). See Table at measurement. [Middle English gille, from Old French, wine measure, from Late Latin gillō, vessel for cooling liquids.]

gill³ (gīl) n. Chiefly British. 1. A ravine. 2. A narrow stream. [Middle English gille, from Old Norse gil.]

gill⁴ also jill or Gill (jīl) n. A girl, often one's sweetheart. [Middle English gille, from Gille, a woman's name.]

gill arch (gīl ärch) n. 1. One of several bony or cartilaginous arches located on either side of the pharynx and supporting the gills in fish and amphibians.

2. Embryology. One of several corresponding arches in the embryo of a higher vertebrate that develop into structures of the ear and neck. Also called branchial arch gill cleft (gīl klēft) n. See gill slit (n., sense 1).

Gilles de la Tourette syndrome (zhēl də lä tōō-rēt' sīn'drōm') n. See Tourette's syndrome.

Gillette (jə-lēt'), King Camp. 1855-1932. American inventor and manufacturer who developed the safety razor (c. 1895) and founded the Gillette Safety Razor Company (1901).

Gillette (jə-lēt'), William Hooker. 1855?-1937. American actor and playwright noted for his dramatizations of the works of Arthur Conan Doyle.

gill fungus (gīl fūng'gəs) n. A fleshy fungus having a cap with gills on the underside.

gil-lie also ghil-lie (gīl'ē) n. pl. gil-lies. 1. Scots. A professional fishing and hunting guide. See Regional note at mozo. 2. A low-cut sports shoe with fringed laces. [Scottish Gaelic gille, boy, servant, from Old Irish gilla, from gildaē.]

Gillingham (jīl'ŋg-əm) A municipal borough of southeast England north of Maidstone. The Royal School of Military Engineering is here. Population, 95,900.

gill-net (gīl'nēt') v. tr. gill-net-ted, gill-net-ting, gill-nets. To catch (fish) by means of a gill net.

gill net (gīl nēt) n. A fishing net set vertically in the water so that fish swimming into it are entangled by the gills in its mesh.

gill-net-ter (gīl'nēt'ər) n. 1. One who uses a gill net to catch fish. 2. Nautical. A boat used in fishing with gill nets.

gill slit (gīl slīt) n. 1. One of several narrow external openings connecting with the pharynx, characteristic of sharks and related fishes, through which water passes to the exterior, thereby bathing the gills. Also called branchial cleft, gill cleft. 2. Embryology. One of several rudimentary invaginations in the surface of the embryo, present during development of all air-breathing vertebrates and corresponding to the functional gill slits of aquatic species. Also called branchial groove gil·ly·flow·er (gĭl'ē-flou'ər) n. 1. The carnation or a similar plant of the genus Dianthus. 2. Any of several plants, such as the wallflower, that have fragrant flowers. [Alteration (influenced by FLOWER), of Middle English gilofre, from Old French gilofre, girofle, clove, from Late Latin gariofilum, from Greek karuophullon : karuon, nut; see kar- in Appendix + phullon, leaf; see bhel-³ in Appendix.]

Gil·man (gĭl'mən), Charlotte Anna Perkins. 1860-1935. American feminist, writer, and editor best known for Women and Economics (1898), an influential manifesto calling for the economic independence of women.

Gil·man (gĭl'mən), Daniel Coit. 1831-1908. American educator who as the first president of Johns Hopkins University (1875-1901) oversaw the development of that institution's graduate program and medical school.

Gil·mer (gĭl'mər), Elizabeth Meriwether. Pen name Dorothy Dix. 1870-1951. American journalist noted for her syndicated advice column for the Love-lorn (1896-1949).

Gil·roy (gĭl'roi') A city of western California southeast of San Jose. Located in the fertile Santa Clara Valley, the city is a trade center with varied industries. Population, 31,487.

Gil·son·ite (gĭl'sə-nīt') A trademark used for a natural black bitumen employed in the manufacture of acid, alkali, and waterproof coatings.

gilt¹ (gĭlt) v. A past tense and a past participle of gild¹. — adj. 1. Covered with gold or gilt. 2. Resembling gold, as in color or luster. — n. 1. Abbr. gt. A thin layer of gold or something simulating gold that is applied in gilding.

2. Superficial brilliance or gloss. 3. Slang. Money.

gilt² (gĭlt) n. A young sow that has not farrowed. [Middle English, young sow, from Old Norse gyltr.]

gilt-edged (gĭlt'ēj'd') also gilt-edge (-ēj') adj. 1. Having gilded edges, as the pages of a book. 2. Of the highest quality or value: gilt-edged securities; gilt-edged credentials. 3. Very wealthy: "Barricades prevented the curious from coming any closer to the gathering of gilt-edged mourners" (Edward Rothstein).

gim·bal (gĭm'bəl, jĭm'-) n. A device consisting of two rings mounted on axes at right angles to each other so that an object, such as a ship's compass, will remain suspended in a horizontal plane between them regardless of any motion of its support. Often used in the plural. Also called gimbal ring — v. tr. gim·baled or gim·balled, gim·bal·ing or gim·bal·ling, gim·bals or gim·bals. To support with or support on gimbals. [Alteration of obsolete gemel, double ring. See GIMMAL.]

gim·crack (jĭm'kräk') n. A cheap and showy object of little or no use; a gew-gaw. — adj. Cheap and tasteless; gaudy: “The shelves groan with an array of gim-crack gifts from fans: a stuffed piranha fish... a ceramic... bull, a papier-mâché replica of an Apollo moonwalker” (Harry F. Waters). [Possibly alteration of Middle English gibecrake, small ornament.] — gim'crack'er-y n.

gim·el (gĭm'əl) n. The third letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew gĕmel.]

gim·let (gĭm'lĭt) n. 1. A small hand tool having a spiraled shank, a screw tip, and a cross handle and used for boring holes. 2. A cocktail made with vodka or gin, sweetened lime juice, and sometimes effervescent water and garnished with a slice of lime. — v. tr. gim·let·ed, gim·let·ing, gim·lets. To penetrate with or as if with a gimlet. — adj. Having a penetrating or piercing quality: gimlet eyes. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman guimbelet, perhaps from Middle Dutch wimmelkijn, diminutive of wimmel, auger.]

gim·let-eyed (gĭm'lĭt-ĭd') adj. Having keen vision.

gim·mal (gĭm'əl, jĭm'-) n. 1. A ring made of two or more interlocked rings. 2. Any of various linkages allowing one part to rotate within another rotating part, used especially in clockworks. [Alteration of gemel, from Middle English, sing. of gemeles, twins, from Old French, from Latin gemellus, diminutive of geminus, twin.]

gim·me (gĭm'ē) adj. Slang. Demanding material things or especially money; acquisitive: today's gimme society; tired of gimme letters. — n. Sports. A putt that is considered made in an informal game of golf. [Alteration of give me.]

gimme cap (gĭm'ē kăp) n. Slang. A cloth cap with a bill, adorned with the name of an organization or a product logo: “one-size-fits-all gimme caps” (Charles Leerhsen).

gim·mick (gĭm'ĭk) n. 1. a. A device employed to cheat, deceive, or trick, especially a mechanism for the secret and dishonest control of gambling apparatus. b. An innovative or unusual mechanical contrivance; a gadget. 2. a. An innovative stratagem or scheme employed especially to promote a project: an advertising gimmick. b. A significant feature that is obscured, misrepresented, or not readily evident; a catch. 3. A small object whose name does not come readily to mind. — v. tr. gim·micked, gim·mick·ing, gim·micks. 1. To add gimmicks to; clutter with gadgets or attention-getting details. Often used with up. 2. To change or affect by means of a gimmick. [Origin unknown.] — gim'mick-y adj.

gim·mick·ry (gĭm'ĭk-rē) n. pl. gim·mick·ries. 1. An array or abundance of gimmicks. 2. The use of gimmicks.

gimp¹ (gĭmp) n. A narrow flat braid or rounded cord of fabric used for trimming. Also called guimpe, guipure. [Perhaps from French guimpe. See GUIMPE.]

gimp² (gĭmp) Slang. n. 1. A limp or a limping gait. 2. A person who limps. — v. intr. gimped, gim·ing, gimps. To walk with a limp. [Origin unknown.] — gimp'y adj.

gimp³ (gĩmp) n. Spirit; pep. [Origin unknown.]

gin¹ (jĩn) n. A strong, colorless alcoholic beverage made by distilling or redistilling rye or other grain spirits and adding juniper berries or aromatics such as anise, caraway seeds, or angelica root as flavoring. [Alteration of geneva, from Dutch jenever, from Middle Dutch geniver, juniper, from Old French geneivre, from Vulgar Latin iiniperus*, from Latin iūniperus.] —gin/ny adj.

gin² (jĩn) n. 1. Any of several machines or devices, especially: a. A machine for hoisting or moving heavy objects. b. A pile driver. c. A snare or trap for game. d. A pump operated by a windmill. 2. A cotton gin. — v. tr. ginned, gin-ning, gins. 1. To remove the seeds from (cotton) with a cotton gin. 2. To trap in a gin. [Middle English, from Old French, short for engin, skill. See ENGINE.]

gin³ (jĩn) n. Games. Gin rummy.

gin and tonic (jĩn ənd tɔn'ɪk) n. A drink made of gin and quinine water and usually garnished with a slice of lemon or lime.

gin-ger (jĩn'jər) n. 1. A plant (Zingiber officinale) of tropical southeast Asia having yellowish-green flowers and a pungent, aromatic rhizome. 2. The rhizome of this plant, often dried and powdered and used as a spice. Also called gingerroot 3. a. Any of several related plants having variously colored, often fragrant flowers. b. Wild ginger. 4. Color. A strong brown. 5. Informal. Spirit and liveliness; vigor. — v. tr. gin-gered, gin-ger-ing, gin-gers. 1. To spice with ginger. 2. Informal. To make lively: A steel drum band gingered up the party. [Middle English gingivere, from Old English gingifer, and from Old French gingivre both from Medieval Latin gingiber, from Latin zingiberi, from Greek zingiberis, of Middle Indic origin (; akin to Pali singiveram), from Dravidian : akin to Tamil iñci, ginger (of southeast Asian origin) + Tamil vēr, root.] —gin/ger-y adj.

ginger ale (jĩn'jər əl) n. An effervescent, sweetened soft drink flavored with ginger.

ginger beer (jĩn'jər bɪr) n. A nonalcoholic drink similar to ginger ale but flavored with fermented ginger.

gin-ger-bread (jĩn'jər-brəd') n. 1. a. A dark molasses cake flavored with ginger. b. A soft molasses and ginger cookie cut in various shapes, sometimes elaborately decorated. 2. a. Elaborate ornamentation. b. Superfluous or tasteless embellishment, especially in architecture. [Middle English gingebred, a stiff pudding, preserved ginger, alteration (influenced by bred, bread, bread); see BREAD, of Old French gingembrat, from Medieval Latin gingibrātum*, from gingiber, ginger. See GINGER.] —gin/ger-bread' adj. —gin/ger-bread'y adj.

gingerbread palm (jĩn'jər-brəd' pəm) n. See doom palm.

ginger group (jĩn'jər grōp) n. Chiefly British. A highly active or galvanizing group within a larger organization or body.

gin-ger-ly (jĭn'jər-lē) adv. With great care or delicacy; cautiously. — adj.

Cautious; careful. [Possibly alteration of obsolete French gensor, delicate, from Old French, comparative of gent, gentle. See GENT¹.] — gin'ger-li-ness n.

gin-ger-root (jĭn'jər-rōōt', -rōōt') n. See ginger (n., sense 2).

gin-ger-snap (jĭn'jər-snäp') n. A flat, brittle cookie spiced with ginger and sweetened with molasses.

ging-ham (gĭng'əm) n. A yarn-dyed cotton fabric woven in stripes, checks, plaids, or solid colors. [Dutch ginggang, from Malay, from genggang, at intervals.]

gin-gi-va (jĭn'jə-və, jĭn-jī'-) n. pl. gin-gi-vae (-vē'). See gum². [Latin gingīva.]

gin-gi-val (jĭn'jə-vəl, jĭn-jī'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to the gums. 2. Linguistics. Alveolar.

gin-gi-vec-to-my (jĭn'jə-vĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. gin-gi-vec-to-mies. Surgical removal of gum tissue.

gin-gi-vi-tis (jĭn'jə-vī'tis) n. Inflammation of the gums, characterized by redness and swelling.

ging-ko (gĭng'kō) n. Variant of ginkgo.

gink (gĭnk) n. Slang. A man, especially one regarded as foolish or contemptible. [Origin unknown.]

gink-go also ging-ko (gĭng'kō) n. pl. gink-goes also ging-koes. A deciduous, dioecious tree (Ginkgo biloba) native to China and having fan-shaped leaves and fleshy yellowish seeds with a disagreeable odor. The male plants are often grown as ornamental street trees. Also called maidenhair tree [Japanese ginkyō.]

gin mill (jĭn mĭl) n. Slang. A bar or saloon.

gin rummy (jĭn rŭm'ē) n. Games. A variety of rummy for two or more persons in which a player may win by matching all his or her cards or may end the game by melding with unmatched cards that add up to ten points or fewer.

Gins-berg (gĭnz'bərg), Allen. Born 1926. American poet of the beat generation. His works include Howl (1956) and Kaddish (1961), poetic expressions of the countercultural movement of the 1950's and 1960's.

Gins-burg (gĭnz'bərg), Ruth Bader. Born 1933. American jurist who was appointed an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in 1993.

gin-seng (jĭn'sĕng') n. 1. Any of several plants of the genus Panax, especially P. pseudoginseng of eastern Asia or P. quinquefolius of North America, having small greenish flowers grouped in umbels, palmately compound leaves, and forked roots believed to have medicinal properties. 2. The roots of these plants. [Chinese (Mandarin) rén shĕn : rén, man + shĕn, ginseng (perhaps from the forked shape of the root).]

Gin-za (gĭn'zə) A major shopping and entertainment district of Tokyo, Japan.

gin-zo (gĭn'zō) n. pl. gin-zoes. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a person of Italian ancestry. [Origin unknown.]

Gior-gio-ne (jōr-jō'nē, -nē), Originally Giorgio Barbarelli. Also known as Giorgio da Castelfranco. 1478?-1510. Italian painter and early master of the Venetian school. Among the works ascribed to him are The Tempest (c. 1505) and Sleeping Venus (c. 1510).

Giot-to (jō'tō, jōt'ō), Full name Giotto di Bondone. 1267?-1337. Florentine painter, architect, and sculptor. Considered the greatest painter of pre-Renaissance Italy, he turned from the formulaic Byzantine style to a more natural representation of human expression and movement.

gip (jĭp) v. & n. Slang. Variant of gyp.

Gip-sy (jĭp'sē) n. Variant of Gypsy.

gi-raffe (jə-rāf') n. pl. gi-raffes or giraffe. An African ruminant mammal (Giraffa camelopardalis) having a very long neck and legs, a tan coat with orange-brown to black blotches, and short horns. It is the tallest land animal, often reaching a height of 5 meters (162 feet), and feeds principally by browsing in the tree canopy of wooded grasslands. [French girafe, from Italian giraffa, from Arabic dialectal zirāfah, probably of African origin.] — gi-raff'ish adj.

gir-an-dole (jĭr'ən-dōl') n. 1. A composition or structure in radiating form or arrangement, such as a rotating display of fireworks. 2. An ornamental branched candleholder, sometimes backed by a mirror. [French, from Italian girandola, from girare, to turn, from Late Latin gĭrāre. See GYRATE.]

Gi-rard (jə-rārd'), Stephen. 1750-1831. French-born American financier and philanthropist who bought out the Bank of the United States (1812) and helped finance the War of 1812.

gir-a-sol (jĭr'ə-sōl', -sōl', -sōl') n. 1. Also gir-o-sol. See fire opal. 2. Also gir-a-sole. See Jerusalem artichoke. [Italian girasole, sunflower, opal : girare, to turn (from Latin gĭrāre); see GYRATE + sole, sun (from Latin sōl); see sāwel- in Appendix.]

Gi-raud (zhē-rō'), Henri Honoré. 1879-1949. French military officer and politician who shared with Charles de Gaulle the presidency of the French Committee of National Liberation (1943).

Gi-rau-doux (zhē-rō-dōō'), (Hippolyte) Jean. 1882-1944. French writer primarily known for his dramas, such as Electra (1937), that are based on Greek mythology or biblical stories. He also wrote several novels.

gird¹ (gûrd) v. gird-ed or girt (gûrt), gird-ing, girds. — v. tr. 1. a. To encircle with a belt or band. b. To fasten or secure (clothing, for example) with a belt or band. c. To surround. See Synonyms at surround. 2. To equip or endow. 3. To prepare (oneself) for action. — v. intr. To prepare for action: “Men still spoke of peace but girded more sternly for war” (W. Bruce Lincoln). — idiom.

gird (up) (one's) loins. To summon up one's inner resources in preparation for action. [Middle English girden, from Old English gyrdan. See gher¹ in Appendix.]

gird² (gûrd) v. intr. tr. gird-ed, gird-ing, girds. To jeer or jeer at. — n. A sarcastic remark. [Middle English girden, to strike.]

gird-er (gûr'dær) n. A horizontal beam, as of steel or wood, used as a main support for a building or bridge.

gir-dle (gûr'dl) n. 1. a. A belt or sash worn around the waist. b. Something that encircles like a belt. c. A woman's elasticized, flexible undergarment worn over the waist and hips. 2. A band made around the trunk of a tree by the removal of a strip of bark. 3. The edge of a cut gem held by the setting.

4. Anatomy. The pelvic or pectoral girdle. — v. tr. gir-dled, gir-dling, gir-dles. 1. To encircle with or as if with a belt. See Synonyms at surround.

2. To circle around: a ring of hills that girdled the city. 3. To remove a band of bark and cambium from the circumference of (a tree), usually in order to kill it.

[Middle English girdel, from Old English gyrdel. See gher¹ in Appendix.]

gird-ler (gûrd'lær) n. 1. One that makes girdles. 2. Any of several insects that chew circular bands around twigs or stems in preparing a nesting site.

girl (gûrl) n. 1. A female child. 2. An immature or inexperienced woman, especially a young woman. 3. A daughter: our youngest girl. 4. Informal. A grown woman: a night out with the girls. 5. A female who comes from or belongs to a particular place: a city girl. 6. Offensive. A female servant, such as a maid. 7. A female sweetheart: cadets escorting their girls to the ball. [Middle English girle, child, girl.] — girl'hood' n.

girl Friday (gûrl frī'dē) n. Informal. An efficient and faithful woman aide or employee. [GIRL + (MAN) FRIDAY.]

girl-friend also girl friend (gûrl'frënd') n. 1. A favored female companion or sweetheart. 2. A female friend.

Girl Guide (gûrl gīd) n. A member of the Girl Guides, a British organization of young women and girls founded in 1910.

girl-ie also girl-y (gûr'lē) adj. Informal. Featuring minimally clothed or naked women typically in pornographic contexts: girlie magazines.

girl-ish (gûr'lish) adj. Characteristic of or befitting a girl: girlish charm.

—girl'ish-ly adv. —girl'ish-ness n.

Girl Scout (gûrl skout) n. A member of the Girl Scouts, an organization of young women and girls, founded in the United States in 1912 on the plan of the Girl Guides, for character development and citizenship training.

girl wonder (gûrl wûn'dær) n. An extremely talented and accomplished young woman.

girl-y (gûr'lē) adj. Variant of girlie.

girn (gûrn) v. intr. girned, girn-ing, girns. Scots. 1. To complain in a whining voice. 2. To contort one's face; grimace. [Middle English girnen, variant of grinnen, grennan. See GRIN.] — girn n.

Gi-ronde¹ (jə-rōnd', zhē-rōnd') An estuary of southwest France formed by the Garonne and Dordogne rivers and opening into the Bay of Biscay.

Gi-ronde² (jə-rōnd', zhī-) n. A moderate republican political party of Revolutionary France (1791-93). [After Gironde, a department of southwest France.]

— Gi-rond'ist n.

gir-o-sol (jīr'ə-sōl', -sōl', -sōl') n. Variant of girasol (n., sense 1).

girt¹ (gûrt) v. girt-ed, girt-ing, girts. — v. tr. 1. To gird. 2. To secure with a girth. 3. To measure the girth of. — v. intr. To measure in girth. [Variant of GIRD¹.]

girt² (gûrt) v. A past tense and a past participle of gird¹.

girth (gûrth) n. 1. The distance around something; the circumference. 2. Size; bulk: a person of large girth. 3. A strap encircling an animal's body in order to secure a load or saddle on its back; a cinch. — v. tr. girthed, girth-ing, girths. 1. To measure the circumference of. 2. To encircle. 3. To secure with a girth. [Middle English gerth, girth strap, from Old Norse gjörðh, girdle. See gher¹ in Appendix.]

Gi-rin (gûr'tn), Thomas. 1775-1802. British landscape painter considered the founder of modern watercolor painting.

gi-sarme (gī-zärm') n. A halberd with a long shaft and two-sided blade, carried by medieval foot soldiers. [Middle English, from Old French guisarme, possibly from Old High German getīsarn : getan, to weed + īsarn, iron; see eis- in Appendix.]

Gis-card d'Es-taing (zhī-skär' dēs-täng', -täng'), Valéry. Born 1926. French political leader who as president of France (1974-1981) struggled against rising inflation and unemployment.

Gish (gīsh), Lillian Diana. 1893-1993. American actress best known for her roles in silent films, such as The Birth of a Nation (1915). Her sister Dorothy (1898-1968) was also a film actress.

gis-mo (gīz'mō) n. Variant of gizmo.

Gis-sing (gīs'ing), George Robert. 1857-1903. British writer best known for his novels about poverty and hardship, such as New Grub Street (1891).

gist (jīst) n. 1. The central idea; the essence. See Synonyms at substance. 2. Law. The grounds for action in a suit. [From Anglo-Norman (cest action) gist, (this action) lies, third person sing. of gesir, to lie, from Latin iacēre. See yē- in Appendix.]

gite (zhēt) n. A simple, usually inexpensive rural vacation retreat especially in France. [French gîte, lodging, lair, from Old French giste, from feminine past participle of gesir, to lie. See GIST.]

git-tern (gĭt'ərn) n. Music. A medieval guitar. [Middle English giterne, from Old French guiterne, from Latin cithara. See CITHARA.]

Giu-lio Ro-ma-no (jōōl'yō rō-mă'nō), 1492?-1546. Italian architect and painter. A student of Raphael, he developed a Mannerist style that is evident in his later frescoes.

Giur-giu (jōōr'jōō') A city of southern Romania on the Danube River south of Bucharest. Founded in the tenth century by Genoese merchants on the site of a Roman settlement, it was ruled by the Turks after 1417. Population, 62,710.

give (gĭv) v. gave (gāv), giv-en (gĭv'ən), giv-ing, gives. — v. tr. 1. To make a present of: We gave her flowers for her birthday. 2. To place in the hands of; pass: Give me the scissors. 3. a. To deliver in exchange or recompense; pay: will give five dollars for the book. b. To let go for a price; sell. 4. a. To administer: give him some cough medicine. b. To convey by a physical action: gave me a punch in the nose. c. To inflict as punishment: gave the child a spanking; was given life imprisonment for the crime. d. Law. To accord by verdict: A decision was given for the plaintiff. 5. a. To bestow, especially officially; confer: The Bill of Rights gives us freedom of speech. b. To accord or tender to another: Give him your confidence. c. To put temporarily at the disposal of: gave them the cottage for a week. d. To entrust to another, usually for a specified reason: gave me the keys for safe-keeping. e. To convey or offer for conveyance: Give him my best wishes. f. Law. To execute and deliver. Used especially in the phrase give bond. 6. a. To endure the loss of; sacrifice: gave her son to the war; gave her life for her country. b. To devote or apply completely: gives herself to her work. c. To furnish or contribute: gave their time to help others. d. To offer in good faith; pledge: Give me your word. 7. a. To allot as a portion or share. b. To bestow as a name. c. To attribute (blame, for example) to someone; assign. d. To award as due: gave us first prize. 8. To emit or utter: gave a groan; gave a muted response. 9. To submit for consideration, acceptance, or use: give an opinion; give an excuse. 10. a. To proffer to another: gave the toddler my hand. b. To consent to engage (oneself) in sexual intercourse with a man. 11. a. To perform for an audience: give a recital. b. To present to view: gave the sign to begin. 12. a. To offer as entertainment: give a dinner party. b. To propose as a toast. 13. a. To be a source of; afford: His remark gave offense. Music gives her pleasure. b. To cause to catch or be subject to (a disease or bodily condition): The draft gave me a cold. c. To guide or direct, as by persuasion or behavior. Used with an infinitive phrase: You gave me to imagine you approved of my report. 14. a. To yield or produce: Cows give milk. b. To bring forth or bear: trees that give fruit. c. To produce as a result of calculation: 5×12 gives 60. 15. a. To manifest or show: gives promise of brilliance; gave evidence of tampering. b. To carry out (a physical movement): give a wink; give a start. 16. To permit one to have or take: gave us an hour to finish. 17. To take an interest to the extent of: "My dear, I don't give a damn" (Margaret Mitchell). —

v. intr. 1. To make gifts or donations: gives generously to charity. 2. a. To yield to physical force. b. To collapse from force or pressure: The roof gave under the weight of the snow. c. To yield to change: Both sides will have to give on some issues. 3. To afford access to or a view of; open: The doors give onto a terrace. 4. Slang. To be in progress; happen: What gives? — n. 1. Capacity or inclination to yield under pressure. 2. The quality or condition of resilience; springiness: “Fruits that have some give... will have more juice than hard ones” (Elizabeth Schneider). —phrasal verbs. give away. 1. To make a gift of. 2. To present (a bride) to the bridegroom at a wedding ceremony. 3. a. To reveal or make known, often accidentally. b. To betray. give back. To return: gave me back my book. give in. 5. To hand in; submit: She gave in her report. 6. To cease opposition; yield. give of. To devote or contribute: She really gave of her time to help. They give of themselves to improve the quality of education. give off. To send forth; emit: chemical changes that give off energy. give out. 9. To allow to be known; declare publicly: gave out the bad news. 10. To send forth; emit: gave out a steady buzzing. 11. To distribute: gave out the surplus food. 12. To stop functioning; fail. 13. To become used up or exhausted; run out: Their determination finally gave out. give over. 14. To hand over; entrust. 15. a. To devote to a particular purpose or use: gave the day over to merrymaking. b. To surrender (oneself) completely; abandon: finally gave myself over to grief. give up. 16. a. To surrender: The suspects gave themselves up. b. To devote (oneself) completely: gave herself up to her work. 17. a. To cease to do or perform: gave up their search. b. To desist from; stop: gave up smoking. 18. To part with; relinquish: gave up the apartment; gave up all hope. 19. a. To lose hope for: We had given the dog up as lost. b. To lose hope of seeing: We'd given you up an hour ago. 20. To admit defeat. 21. To abandon what one is doing or planning to do. Often used with on: gave up on writing the novel. —idioms. give a good account of (oneself). To behave or perform creditably. give birth to. 2. To bear as offspring. 3. To be the origin of: a hobby that gave birth to a successful business. give ground. To yield to a more powerful force; retreat. give it to. Informal. To punish or reprimand severely: My parents really gave it to me for coming in late. give or take. Plus or minus a small specified amount: The chalet is close to the road, give or take a few hundred yards. give rise to. To be the cause or origin of; bring about. give (someone) the eye. To look at admiringly or invitingly. give the lie to. 9. To show to be inaccurate or untrue. 10. To accuse of lying. give up the ghost. To cease living or functioning; die. give way. 12. a. To retreat or withdraw. b. To yield the right of way: gave way to an oncoming car. c. To relinquish ascendancy or position: as day gives way slowly to night. 13. a. To collapse from or as if from physical pressure: The ladder gave way. b. To yield to urging or demand; give in. 14. To abandon oneself: give way to hysteria. [Middle English given, from Old English giefan, and Old Norse gefa; see ghabh- in Appendix.]

give-and-take also give and take (gĭv'ən-tāk') n. 1. The practice of compromise. 2. Lively exchange of ideas or conversation: “the raucous give and take of American democracy” (Charles Kuralt).

give-a-way (gĭv'ə-wā') n. Informal. 1. The act or an instance of giving something away, especially the appropriation of natural resources or public lands for private gain. 2. Something given away at no charge, especially a premium.

3. Something that accidentally exposes or betrays. 4. A radio or television program on which prizes are given away to contestants. 5. Legislation, such as a tax law, that benefits only one segment of the population.

give-back (gĭv'bāk') n. 1. A cutback in employee wages or benefits conceded by a labor union in acknowledgment of unfavorable economic conditions or in exchange for other benefits. 2. Something that is rebated or returned.

giv-en (gĭv'ən) v. Past participle of give. — adj. 1. a. Specified; fixed: We will meet at a given time and location. b. Granted as a supposition; acknowledged or assumed: Given the condition of the engine, it is a wonder that it even starts.

2. Having a tendency; inclined: My neighbor is given to lavish spending.

3. Bestowed as a gift; presented. 4. Law. Issued on a specified date. Used of legal documents. — n. Something assumed or taken for granted. Often used in the plural.

Gi·ven·chy (gə-vĭn'chē, zhē-vāN-shē'), Hubert de. Born 1927. French fashion designer noted for his separates and elegant evening gowns.

given name (gĭv'ən nām) n. A name given to a person at birth or at baptism.

giv-er (gĭv'ər) n. 1. One that gives: a giver of gifts. 2. A donor or contributor. Often used in combination: almsgivers.

give-up (gĭv'ŭp') n. 1. A commission shared among two or more stockbrokers on a trade from one firm to another. 2. Something relinquished or conceded; a giveback.

Gi·za (gē'zə) A city of northern Egypt, an industrial suburb of Cairo on the Nile River. The Great Pyramids and the Sphinx are nearby. Population, 1,608,400.

giz·mo also gis·mo (gĭz'mō) n. pl. giz·mos. A mechanical device or part whose name is forgotten or unknown; a gadget. [Origin unknown.]

giz·zard (gĭz'ərd) n. 1. A modified muscular pouch immediately behind the stomach in the alimentary canal of birds, having a thick lining and often containing ingested grit, which aids in the mechanical breakdown of seeds before digestion. 2. A similar digestive organ found in certain invertebrates, such as the earthworm. [Alteration of Middle English giser, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin gicērium*, from Latin gigēria, cooked entrails of poultry, probably from Persian jigar, liver. See yĕk^wŕ in Appendix.]

Gjel·le·rup (gĕl'ə-rōp'), Karl. 1857-1919. Danish writer whose novels include An Idealist (1878) and The Pilgrim Kamanoto (1906). He shared the 1917 Nobel Prize for literature.

Gk. abbr. Greek.

gl. abbr. Gloss (explanatory note).

glā·bel·la (glā-bĕl'ə) n. pl. glā·bel·lae (-bĕl'ē). The smooth area between the eyebrows just above the nose. [New Latin, from Latin glabellus, hairless, diminutive of glaber.] — glā·bel'lar adj.

glā·brate (glā'brāt', -brīt) or glā·bres·cent (glā-brĕs'ənt) adj. Botany.

Almost glabrous or becoming glabrous with age or maturity: glabrate stems.

[GLABR(OUS) + -ATE¹.]

glā·brous (glā'brəs) adj. Having no hairs, projections, or pubescence; smooth: a glabrous scalp; glabrous leaves. [From Latin glaber, glabr-, bald.]

— glā'brous·ness n.

glā·cé (glā-sā') adj. 1. Having a smooth, glazed or glossy surface, such as certain silks or leathers. 2. Coated with a sugar glaze; candied. — v. tr. glā·céed, glā·cé·ing, glā·cés. 1. To glaze. 2. To candy. [French, from past participle of glacer, to glaze, freeze, from Old French, to freeze, from Latin glaciāre. See GLACIATE.]

Glance Bay (glās bā) A town of northeast Nova Scotia, Canada, on the Atlantic coast of Cape Breton Island. It is a mining center and fishing port. The first transatlantic wireless message was transmitted from nearby Table Head in 1902. Population, 21,466.

glā·cial (glā'shəl) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or derived from a glacier.

b. Suggesting the extreme slowness of a glacier: Work proceeded at a glacial pace.

2. a. Often Glacial. Characterized or dominated by the existence of glaciers.

Used of a geologic epoch. b. Pleistocene. 3. Extremely cold; icy: glacial waters.

See Synonyms at cold. 4. Having the appearance of ice. 5. a. Lacking warmth and friendliness: a glacial stare. b. Coldly detached: a glacial composure.

[French, from Old French, icy, from Latin glaciālis, from glaciēs, ice. See gel- in Appendix.] — glā'cial·ly adv.

glacial acetic acid (glā'shəl ə-sĕ'tik əs'īd) n. Acetic acid that is at least 99.8 percent pure.

glā·ci·ate (glā'shĕ-āt', -sĕ-) v. tr. glā·ci·at·ed, glā·ci·at·ing, glā·ci·ates.

1. a. To cover with ice or a glacier. b. To subject to or affect by glacial action.

2. To freeze. [Latin glaciāre, glaciāt-, to freeze, from glaciēs, ice. See gel- in Appendix.] — glā'ci·a'tion n.

glā·cier (glā'shər) n. A huge mass of ice slowly flowing over a land mass, formed from compacted snow in an area where snow accumulation exceeds melting and sublimation. [French, from Old French, cold place, from glace, ice, from Vulgar Latin glacia*, from Latin glaciēs. See gel- in Appendix.] — glā'ciered adj.

Glacier Bay (glā'shər bā) A narrow inlet of the Pacific Ocean in southeast Alaska northwest of Juneau. It is surrounded by towering mountain peaks with spectacular glaciers tumbling into the bay.

glacier meal (glā'shər mēl) n. See rock flour.

Glacier Peak (glā'shər pēk) A mountain, 3,215 m (10,541 ft) high, of north-west-central Washington in the Cascade Mountains east-northeast of Everett.

glaci-ol-o-gy (glā'shē-ōl'ə-jē, -sē-) n. The scientific study of glaciers and their effects on the landscape. [GLACI(ER) + -LOGY.] —glaci-ol-log'ic (-ə-lōj'ik), glaci-ol-log'i-cal adj. —glaci-ol'o-gist n.

glacis (glā-sē', glās'ē, glā'sis) n. pl. glacis. 1. a. A gentle slope; an incline.

b. A slope extending down from a fortification. 2. A neutral area separating conflicting forces. [French, from Old French, from glacer, to slide, from glace, ice, from Latin glaciēs. See gel- in Appendix.]

Glack-ens (glāk'ənz), William James. 1870-1938. American painter noted for his realistic depictions of street life, such as Chez Mouquin (1905), and his later, brighter, impressionistic works.

glad¹ (glād) adj. glad-der, glad-dest. 1. a. Experiencing or exhibiting joy and pleasure. b. Appreciative: was glad of the fire's warmth. 2. Providing joy and pleasure: a glad occasion. 3. Very willing; pleased: glad to help. 4. Bright and cheerful: a glad May morning. 5. Archaic. Having a naturally cheerful disposition. — v. tr. intr. glad-ded, glad-ding, glads. Archaic. To gladden. [Middle English, from Old English glæd. See ghel² in Appendix.] —glad'ly adv.

—glad'ness n.

SYNONYMS: glad, happy, cheerful, lighthearted, joyful, joyous. These adjectives mean being in or showing good spirits. Glad often refers to the feeling that results from the gratification of a wish or from satisfaction with immediate circumstances: is glad of her success; was glad he had seen her. "Some folks rail against other folks, because other folks have what some folks would be glad of" (Henry Fielding). Happy applies to a pleasurable feeling of contentment, as from a sense of fulfillment: "Ask yourself whether you are happy, and you cease to be so" (John Stuart Mill). Cheerful suggests the good spirits characteristic of a person who is pleased with something or who has a naturally outgoing nature: She was as cheerful as anyone confined to a hospital bed could be. Lighthearted stresses the absence of care: "He whistles as he goes, lighthearted wretch,/Cold and yet cheerful" (William Cowper). Joyful and joyous suggest lively, often exultant happiness: a joyful heart; a joyful state of affairs; joyous laughter; joyous news.

glad² (glād) n. Botany. A gladiolus.

Glad-beck (glād'bēk', glät'-) A city of west-central Germany in the Ruhr Valley west-northwest of Dortmund. It is an industrial center. Population, 76,812.

glad-den (glād'n) v. glad-dened, glad-den-ing, glad-dens. — v. tr. To make glad. See Synonyms at please. — v. intr. Archaic. To be glad.

Glad·den (glăd'n), Washington. 1836-1918. American cleric and proponent of the "social gospel," the application of fundamental Christian ideals to contemporary social problems.

glade (glād) n. 1. An open space in a forest. 2. An everglade. [Middle English, perhaps from glad, bright and shining. See GLAD¹.]

glad hand (glăd hănd) n. Informal. A warm and hearty, but often insincere welcome or greeting.

glad-hand (glăd'hănd') v. glad--hand-ed, glad--hand-ing, glad--hands. Informal. — v. tr. To extend a glad hand to: presidential hopefuls glad-handing the factory workers. — v. intr. To extend a glad hand: was whistle-stopping and glad-handing for the last five months. — glad'hand'er n.

glad·i·ate (glăd'ē-ăt', -ăt, glă'dē-) adj. Sword-shaped, as a leaf of an iris. [New Latin gladiātus, from Latin gladius, sword. See GLADIATOR.]

glad·i·a·tor (glăd'ē-ătər) n. 1. A person, usually a professional combatant, a captive, or a slave, trained to entertain the public by engaging in mortal combat with another person or a wild animal in the ancient Roman arena. 2. A person engaged in a controversy or debate, especially in public; a disputant. 3. Sports. A professional boxer. [Middle English, from Latin gladiātor, from gladius, sword, of Celtic origin.] — glad'i-a-to'ri-al (-ə-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-) adj.

glad·i·o·lus (glăd'ē-ō'ləs) n. pl. glad·i·o·li (-lī, -lē) or glad·i·o·lus·es. 1. Also glad·i·o·la (-lə). Botany. Any of numerous plants of the genus Gladiolus, native chiefly to tropical and southern Africa and having sword-shaped leaves and showy, variously colored, irregular flowers arranged in one-sided spikes. Also called sword lily 2. Anatomy. The large middle section of the sternum. [Middle English gladiol, from Latin gladiolus, wild iris, diminutive of gladius, sword. See GLADIATOR.]

glad rags (glăd răgz) pl.n. Slang. Stylish clothes.

glad·some (glăd'səm) adj. Causing or showing gladness or joy: a gladsome occasion; a gladsome smile. — glad'some·ly adv. — glad'some·ness n.

Glad·stone¹ (glăd'stōn', -stən) A city of western Missouri, an industrial suburb surrounded by Kansas City. Population, 24,990.

Glad·stone² (glăd'stōn', -stən) n. 1. A light four-wheeled convertible carriage with two interior seats and places outside for a driver and footman. 2. A Gladstone bag. [After William Ewart GLADSTONE.]

Glad·stone (glăd'stōn', -stən), William Ewart. 1809-1898. British political leader who served as Liberal prime minister four times (1868-1874, 1880-1885, 1886, and 1892-1894). He enacted educational and parliamentary reforms and supported Irish home rule.

Gladstone bag (glăd'stōn' băg) n. A piece of light hand luggage consisting of two hinged compartments. [After William Ewart GLADSTONE.]

Glag·o·lit·ic (gläg'ə-lit'ik) also Glag·o·lith·ic (-lith'ik) adj. Belonging to or written in an uncial cursive alphabet attributed to Saint Cyril, formerly used in the writing of various Slavic languages but now limited to the Catholic liturgical books used by some communities along the Dalmation coast. [From Serbo-Croatian glagoljica, from glagol, word; akin to Old Church Slavonic glagolŭ, speech, word. See gal- in Appendix.]

glair also glaire (glâr) n. 1. A sizing or glaze made of egg white. 2. A viscous substance resembling egg white. [Middle English glaire, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin clāria*, from Latin clārus, clear. See kelə-² in Appendix.]

glaiive (glāv) n. Archaic. A sword, especially a broadsword. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin gladius.]

Glå·ma (glô'mə) also Glom·ma (-mə, -mä) A river of eastern Norway flowing about 587 km (365 mi) generally southward to the Skagerrak.

glam·or (glām'ər) n. Variant of glamour.

glam·or·ize also glam·our·ize (glām'ə-rīz') v. tr. glam·or·ized, glam·or·iz·ing, glam·or·iz·es. 1. To make glamorous: tried to glamorize the bathroom with expensive fixtures. 2. To treat or portray in a romantic manner; idealize or glorify: a show that glamorizes police work. —glam'or-i-za'tion (-ər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. —glam'or-iz'er n.

glam·or·ous also glam·our·ous (glām'ər-əs) adj. Full of or characterized by glamour. —glam'or·ous·ly adv. —glam'or·ous·ness n.

glam·our also glam·or (glām'ər) n. 1. An air of compelling charm, romance, and excitement, especially when delusively alluring. 2. Archaic. A magic spell; enchantment. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a glamour job; a glamour stock. [Scots, magic spell, alteration of GRAMMAR (from the association of learning with magic).]

USAGE NOTE: Many words, such as honor, vapor, and labor, are usually spelled with an -or ending in American English but with an -our ending in British English. The preferred spelling of glamour, however, is -our, making it an exception to the usual American practice. The adjective is more often spelled glamorous in both American and British usage.

glam·our·ize (glām'ə-rīz') v. Variant of glamorize.

glam·our·ous (glām'ər-əs) adj. Variant of glamorous.

glance¹ (gläns) v. glanced, glanc·ing, glanc·es. — v. intr. 1. a. To direct the gaze briefly: glance at the menu; glanced in the rearview mirror. b. To move rapidly from one thing to another. Used of the eyes. 2. To shine briefly; glint. See Synonyms at flash. 3. To strike a surface at such an angle as to be deflected: A pebble glanced off the windshield. See Synonyms at brush¹. 4. To make a passing reference; touch briefly: a history course that only glanced at the Korean con- flict. — v. tr. 1. To strike (a surface) at an angle; graze: The arrow glanced the target but didn't stick. 2. To cause to strike a surface at an angle: glanced a stone off the wall. — n. 1. A brief or cursory look: gave the paper a glance before breakfast. 2. A quick flash of light; a gleam. 3. An oblique movement following impact; a deflection: The car struck the barrier and went off at a glance.

—idiom. at first glance. On initial consideration: At first glance the plan seemed unworkable. [Middle English glauncen, alteration (influenced by glenten, to shine); see ghel-² in Appendix, of glacen, from Old French glacer, to slide. See GLACIS.]

glance² (gläns) n. Any of various minerals that have a brilliant luster: silver glance. [German Glanz, from Middle High German glanz, from Old High German, bright. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glanc-ing (glän'sing) adj. 1. Oblique in direction; slanting or deflected: struck him a glancing blow. 2. Not straightforward; indirect: made glancing allusions to the scandal. —glanc'ing-ly adv.

gland¹ (gländ) n. 1. a. A cell, a group of cells, or an organ that produces a secretion for use elsewhere in the body or in a body cavity or for elimination from the body. b. Any of various organs, such as lymph nodes, that resemble true glands but perform a nonsecretory function. 2. Botany. An organ or a structure that secretes a substance. [French glande, from Old French glandre, alteration of Latin glandula, diminutive of glāns, gland-, acorn.]

gland² (gländ) n. A device, such as the outer sleeve of a stuffing box, designed to prevent a fluid from leaking past a moving machine part. [Origin unknown.]

glan-dered (glän'dərd) adj. Affected with glanders.

glan-ders (glän'dərz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A contagious, usually fatal disease of horses and other equine species, caused by the bacterium Pseudomonas mallei and symptomized by swollen lymph nodes, nasal discharge, and ulcers of the respiratory tract and skin. The disease is communicable to other mammals, including human beings. [Middle English glaundres, from Old French glandres, glandular swelling, pl. of glandre, gland. See GLAND¹.] —glan'der-ous adj.

glan-des (glän'dēz) n. Plural of glans.

glan-du-lar (glän'jə-lər) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, affecting, or resembling a gland or its secretion. b. Functioning as a gland. 2. Having glands. 3. Resulting from the abnormal function of glands or a gland. 4. a. Innate; visceral: has a glandular aversion to materialistic values. b. Carnal; sensual. [French glandulaire, from glandule, small gland, from Latin glandula. See GLAND¹.]

—glan'du-lar-ly adv.

glandular fever (glän'jə-lər fē'vər) n. See infectious mononucleosis.

glans (glänz) n. pl. glan-des (glän'dēz). 1. The glans penis. 2. The glans clitoridis. [Latin glāns, gland-, acorn, glans (from its shape).]

glans cli·tor·i·dis (glänz klī-tôr'ī-dīs, klī-) n. The small mass of erectile tissue at the tip of the clitoris. [New Latin glāns clītoridis : Latin glāns, glans + Greek kleitoridos, genitive of kleitoris, clitoris.]

glans penis (glänz pē'nīs) n. The bulbous head or tip of the penis. [New Latin glāns pēnis : Latin glāns, glans + Latin pēnis, genitive of pēnis, penis.]

glare¹ (glâr) v. glared, glar·ing, glares. — v. intr. 1. To stare fixedly and angrily. See Synonyms at gaze. 2. To shine intensely and blindingly: A hot sun glared down on the desert. 3. To be conspicuous; stand out obtrusively: The headline glared from the page. — v. tr. To express by staring angrily: He glared his disapproval. — n. 1. A fierce or angry stare. 2. a. An intense, blinding light. See Synonyms at blaze¹. b. Garish or showy brilliance; gaudiness. [Middle English glaren, to glitter; akin to Middle Low German glaren, to glisten. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glare² (glâr) n. A sheet or surface of glassy and very slippery ice. [Probably from GLARE¹.]

glar·ing (glâr'ing) adj. 1. Shining intensely and blindingly: the glaring noonday sun. 2. Tastelessly showy or bright; garish. 3. Conspicuous; obvious: a glaring error. See Synonyms at flagrant. 4. Staring with anger, fierceness, or hostility: glaring eyes. — glar'ing·ly adv. — glar'ing·ness n.

glar·y (glâr'ē) adj. glar·i·er, glar·i·est. Dazzlingly bright; glaring.

Gla·ser (glā'zər), Donald Arthur. Born 1926. American physicist. He won a 1960 Nobel Prize for his invention of the bubble chamber, an apparatus used to study subatomic particles.

Glas·gow (gläs'kō, -gō, glätz'-) A city of southwest Scotland on the Clyde River. Founded in the late sixth century, Glasgow is a major port, an industrial center, and the largest city in Scotland. Population, 767,456.

Glas·gow (gläs'kō, -gō, glätz'-), Ellen Anderson Gholson. 1873?-1945.

American writer known for her realistic, historical novels of Virginia, such as In This Our Life (1941), for which she won a Pulitzer Prize.

Glash·ow (glăsh'ō), Sheldon Lee. Born 1932. American physicist. He shared a 1979 Nobel Prize for theorizing that electromagnetism and weak interaction are facets of the same phenomenon.

glas·nost (glăs'nəst, -nōst) n. An official policy of the Soviet government emphasizing candor with regard to discussion of social problems and shortcomings. [Russian glasnost', public information, publicity, from glas, voice; akin to Old Church Slavonic glasŭ. See gal- in Appendix.]

Glas·pell (glăs'pěl'), Susan Keating. 1882-1948. American writer who cofounded an alternative theater group, the Provincetown Players (1915), and wrote novels, short stories, and plays, such as Alison's House (1930).

glass (glăs) n. 1. Any of a large class of materials with highly variable mechanical and optical properties that solidify from the molten state without crystallization, are typically made by silicates fusing with boric oxide, aluminum oxide, or phosphorus pentoxide, are generally hard, brittle, and transparent or translucent, and are considered to be supercooled liquids rather than true solids.

2. Something usually made of glass, especially: a. A drinking vessel. b. A mirror. c. A barometer. d. A window or windowpane. 3. a. glasses. A pair of lenses mounted in a light frame, used to correct faulty vision or protect the eyes. b. Often glasses. A binocular or field glass. c. A device, such as a monocle or spy-glass, containing a lens or lenses and used as an aid to vision. 4. The quantity contained by a drinking vessel; a glassful. 5. Objects made of glass; glassware.

— v. glassed, glass-ing, glass-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To enclose or encase with glass. b. To put into a glass container. c. To provide with glass or glass parts. 2. To make glassy; glaze. 3. a. To see reflected, as in a mirror. b. To reflect. 4. To scan (a tract of land or forest, for example) with an optical instrument. — v. intr. 1. To become glassy. 2. To use an optical instrument, as in looking for game. [Middle English glas, from Old English glæs. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

Glass (gläs), Carter. 1858-1946. American politician who as U.S. representative from Virginia (1902-1919), secretary of the treasury (1918-1920), and U.S. senator (1920-1946) was instrumental in the founding and administration of the Federal Reserve System.

glass blowing (gläs blō'ing) n. The art or process of shaping an object from molten glass by blowing air into it through a tube. —glass blower n.

glassed-in (gläst'ın') adj. Enclosed by glass or panels of glass: a glassed-in porch; a glassed-in bookcase.

glass eel (gläs ēl) n. An eel in its transparent, postlarval stage. Also called elver glass eye (gläs ī) n. 1. An artificial eye fashioned of glass. 2. An eye whose iris is whitish, pale, or colorless.

glass-fish (gläs'fish') n. pl. glassfish or glass-fish-es. Any of various small, semitransparent Old World fishes of the genera Ambassis or Chanda, used to stock aquariums.

glass-ful (gläs'fööl') n. The quantity that a glass can hold.

glass harmonica (gläs här-mön'ī-kə) n. Music. An instrument consisting of a set of graduated glass bowls on a rotating spindle that produce tones when a finger is pressed to their moistened rims.

glass-house (gläs'hous') n. 1. See glasswork (n., sense 3). 2. Chiefly British. A greenhouse. 3. A place, position, or situation involving intense public scrutiny.

glass-ine (glä-sēn') n. A nearly transparent, resilient glazed paper resistant to the passage of air and grease.

glass jaw (gläs jò) n. 1. Sports. Vulnerability of a boxer to a knockout punch. 2. Vulnerability, especially of a public figure, to destructive criticism.

glass-mak-er (gläs'mā'kər) n. One that makes glass. —glass/mak'ing n.

glass snake (gläs snāk) n. Any of several slender, limbless, snakelike lizards of the genus Ophisaurus, having a tail that breaks or snaps off readily and later regenerates. [From the brittleness of its tail.]

glass-ware (gläs'wâr') n. Objects, especially containers, made of glass. Also called glasswork glass wool (gläs wööl) n. Fine-spun fibers of glass used especially for insulation and in air filters.

glass-work (gläs'wûrk') n. 1. a. The manufacture of glassware or glass.

b. The cutting and fitting of glass panes; glaziery. 2. See glassware.

3. glassworks. (used with a sing. verb). An establishment where glass is manufactured. In this sense, also called glasshouse glass-wort (gläs'wûrt', -wört') n. Any of various plants of the genus Salicornia, growing in salt marshes and having fleshy stems and rudimentary, scalelike leaves. Also called samphire [From its former use in making glass.]

glass-y (gläs'ē) adj. glass-i-er, glass-i-est. 1. Characteristic of or resembling glass. 2. Lifeless; expressionless: “the face changing to a demon’s face with a fixed glassy grin” (Katherine Anne Porter). —glass/i-ly adv. —glass/i-ness n.

Glas-ton-bur-y (gläs'tən-bēr'ē) 1. A municipal borough of southwest England south-southwest of Bristol. There are extensive remains of an Iron Age village nearby. Glastonbury is the traditional site of King Arthur’s Isle of Avalon. Population, 6,773. 2. A city of central Connecticut southeast of Hartford. Settled in 1650, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 27,901.

Glas-we-gian (gläs-wē'jən, gläz-) adj. Of or relating to Glasgow, Scotland. — n. A native or resident of Glasgow, Scotland. [Glas(gow) + Galwegian, person from Galloway (Medieval Latin Galwidia, Galloway, a region of southern Scotland + -IAN).]

Glau-ber’s salt (glou'bærz sôlt) n. A colorless hydrated sodium sulfate, $\text{Na}_2\text{SO}_4 \cdot 10\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used in paper and glass manufacturing and as a cathartic and diuretic. [After Johann Rudolf Glauber (1604-1668), German chemist.]

glau-co-ma (glou-kō'mə, glô-) n. Any of a group of eye diseases characterized by abnormally high intraocular fluid pressure, damaged optic disk, hardening of the eyeball, and partial to complete loss of vision. [Latin glaucoma, cataract, from Greek glaukōma, from glaukos, gray.] —glau-co'ma-tous (-kō'mə-təs) adj.

glau-co-nite (glô'kə-nīt') n. A greenish clay mineral, a hydrous silicate of potassium, iron, aluminum, or magnesium, $(\text{K}, \text{Na})(\text{Al}, \text{Fe}, \text{Mg})_2(\text{Al}, \text{Si})_4\text{O}_{10}(\text{OH})_2$, found in greensand and used as a fertilizer and water softener. [Greek glaukon, neuter of glaukos, gray + -ITE¹.] —glau'co-nit'ic (-nīt'ik) adj.

glau-cous (glô'kəs) adj. 1. Of a pale grayish or bluish green. 2. Botany. Covered with a grayish, bluish, or whitish waxy coating or bloom that is easily rubbed off: glaucous leaves. [Latin glaucus, from Greek glaukos.] —glau'cous-ness n.

glaze (glāz) n. 1. A thin, smooth, shiny coating. 2. A thin, glassy coating of ice. 3. a. A coating of colored, opaque, or transparent material applied to ceramics before firing. b. A coating, as of syrup, applied to food. c. A transparent coating applied to the surface of a painting to modify the color tones. 4. A glassy film, as one over the eyes. — v. glazed, glaz-ing, glaz-es. — v. tr. 1. To fit, furnish, or secure with glaze: glaze a window. 2. To apply a glaze to: glaze a doughnut; glaze pottery. 3. To coat or cover thinly with ice. 4. To give a smooth, lustrous surface to. — v. intr. 1. To be or become glazed or glassy: His eyes glazed over from boredom. 2. To form a glaze. [From Middle English glasen, from glas, glass, from Old English glæs. See ghel-² in Appendix.] — glaz'er n.

glazier (glā'zhār) n. One that cuts and fits glass, as for doors and windows.

[Middle English glasier, from glas, glass. See GLAZE.] — glazier-y (-zhə-rē) n.

glazing (glā'zīng) n. 1. a. Glasswork. b. Glass set or made to be set in frames. 2. a. A glaze. b. The act or process of applying a glaze.

Gla-zu-nov (glāz'ə-nôf', -nôv', glə-zōō-nôf'), Aleksandr Konstantinovich. 1865-1936. Russian composer who studied under Rimski-Korsakov, with whom he completed Borodin's opera Prince Igor (1890). He also wrote eight symphonies and many chamber works.

gld. abbr. Guild.

gleam (glēm) n. 1. A brief beam or flash of light: saw gleams of daylight through the cracks. 2. A steady but subdued shining; a glow: the gleam of burnished gold.

3. A brief or dim indication; a trace: a gleam of intelligence. — v. gleamed, gleam-ing, gleams. — v. intr. 1. To emit a gleam; flash or glow: "It shone with gold and gleamed with ivory" (Edith Hamilton). See Synonyms at flash.

2. To be manifested or indicated briefly or faintly. — v. tr. To cause to emit a flash of light. [Middle English glem, from Old English glæm. See ghel-² in Appendix.] — gleam'er n.

glean (glēn) v. gleaned, glean-ing, gleans. — v. intr. To gather grain left behind by reapers. — v. tr. 1. To gather (grain) left behind by reapers. 2. To collect bit by bit: "records from which historians glean their knowledge" (Kemp Malone). See Synonyms at reap. [Middle English glenen, from Old French gleaner, from Late Latin glennāre, probably of Celtic origin.] — glean'er n.

glean-ings (glē'nīngz) pl.n. Things that have been collected bit by bit: the gleanings of patient scholars.

Glea-son (glē'sən), Herbert John. Known as "Jackie." 1916-1987. American entertainer best remembered for his portrayal of bus driver Ralph Kramden on the television comedy The Honeymooners (1952-1957).

gle-ba (glē'bə) n. pl. gle-bae (-bē'). The fleshy, spore-bearing inner mass of a puffball. [Latin glēba, clod.]

glebe (glēb) n. 1. A plot of land belonging or yielding profit to an English parish church or an ecclesiastical office. 2. Archaic. The soil or earth; land. [Latin glēba, clod.]

glede (glēd) n. Any of several birds of prey, especially a European kite (Milvus milvus). [Middle English, from Old English glida. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glee (glē) n. 1. Jubilant delight; joy. See Synonyms at mirth. 2. Music. An unaccompanied part song scored for three or more male voices that was popular in the 18th century. [Middle English gle, entertainment, from Old English glēo. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glee club (glē klüb) n. Music. A group of singers who perform usually short pieces of choral music.

gleed (glēd) n. Archaic. A glowing coal; an ember. [Middle English glede, from Old English glēd. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glee-ful (glē'fəl) adj. Full of jubilant delight; joyful. —glee'ful-ly adv.
—glee'ful-ness n.

glee-man (glē'mən) n. Music. A medieval itinerant singer; a minstrel. [Middle English gleman, from Old English glēoman : glēo, minstrelsy; see GLEE + man, man; see MAN.]

glee-some (glē'səm) adj. Archaic. Gleeful.

gleet (glēt) n. 1. Inflammation of the urethra resulting from chronic gonorrhea and characterized by a mucopurulent discharge. 2. The discharge that is characteristic of this inflammation. [Middle English glet, slime, from Old French glette, from Latin glittus, sticky.] —gleet'y adj.

gleg (glĕg) adj. Scots. Alert and quick to respond. [Middle English, clear-sighted, from Old Norse glöggr. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glen (glĕn) n. A valley. [Middle English, from Scottish Gaelic gleann, from Old Irish glenn.]

Glen Bur-nie (glĕn bŭr'nē) A community of north-central Maryland south of Baltimore. It is mainly residential. Population, 37,305.

Glen Cove (glĕn kōv) A city of southeast New York on northwest Long Island north of Mineola. Chiefly residential, it also has light industries. Population, 24,149.

Glen-dale (glĕn'dāl') 1. A city of south-central Arizona, an industrial suburb of Phoenix in an irrigated agricultural area. Population, 148,134. 2. A city of southern California, an industrial suburb of Los Angeles. It is located on part of the first Spanish land grant in the area (1784). Population, 180,038.

Glendale Heights (glĕn'dāl' hīts) A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 27,973.

Glen-do-ra (glĕn-dōr'ə, -dōr'ə) A city of southern California at the foot of the San Gabriel Mountains east-northeast of Los Angeles. The city grew as a fruit-shipping center but is now mainly residential. Population, 38,500.

Glen-dow-er (glĕn'dou'ər, glĕn-dou'-), Owen. 1359?-1416?. Welsh rebel who led a revolt against Henry IV (1400), controlled most of Wales, and summoned his own parliament (1405) before being effectively crushed by English forces (1409).

Glen El-lyn (glĕn ĕl'ĭn) A village of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 24,944.

Glen-gar-ry (glĕn-gär'ĕ) n. pl. Glen-gar-ries. A woolen cap that is creased lengthwise and often has short ribbons at the back. [After Glengarry, a valley of central Scotland.]

Glenn (glĕn), John Herschel, Jr. Born 1921. American astronaut and politician. On February 20, 1962, aboard Friendship 7, he became the first American to orbit the earth. He was elected U.S. senator from Ohio in 1974, 1980, and 1986.

Glens Falls (glĕnz fōlz) A city of eastern New York on the Hudson River north-northeast of Saratoga Springs. Settled c. 1762, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 15,023.

Glen-side (glĕn'sīd') A community of southeast Pennsylvania, a manufacturing suburb of Philadelphia. Population, 17,400.

Glen-view (glĕn'vyōō') A village of northeast Illinois, a chiefly residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 37,093.

gley (glā) n. A sticky, bluish-gray subsurface layer of clay found in some waterlogged soils. [Russian dialectal gleĭ, clay.]

gli-a (glĕ'ə, glī'ə) n. See neuroglia. —gli'al (glĕ'əl, glī'əl) adj.

gli-a-din (glī'ə-dĭn) n. Any of several simple proteins derived from rye or wheat gluten. [Italian gliadina, from Medieval Greek glia, glue. See ZOOGLĒA.]

glib (glĭb) adj. glib-ber, glib-best. 1. a. Performed with a natural, offhand ease: glib conversation. b. Showing little thought, preparation, or concern: a glib response to a complex question. 2. Marked by ease and fluency of speech or writing that often suggests or stems from insincerity, superficiality, or deceitfulness. [Possibly of Low German origin. See ghel² in Appendix.] —glib'ly adv.

—glib'ness n.

SYNONYMS: glib, slick, smooth-tongued. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “being, marked by, or engaging in ready but often insincere or superficial discourse”: a glib denial; a slick commercial; a smooth-tongued hypocrite. See also Synonyms at talkative glide (glĭd) v. glid-ed, glid-ing, glides. — v. intr. 1. To move in a smooth, effortless manner: a submarine gliding through the water. See Synonyms at slide.

Glid-den (glĭd'n), Charles Jasper. 1857-1927. American telephone-industry pioneer who organized the first telephone exchange, in Lowell, Massachusetts (1877).

2. To move silently and furtively. 3. To occur or pass imperceptibly. 4. To fly without propulsion. Used of an aircraft. 5. Music. To blend one tone into the next; slur. 6. Linguistics. To articulate a glide in speech. — v. tr. To cause to move or pass smoothly, silently, or imperceptibly. — n. 1. The act of gliding. 2. Music. A slur. 3. Linguistics. a. The transitional sound produced by passing from the articulatory position of one speech sound to that of another. b. See semivowel. [Middle English gliden, from Old English glīdan. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glide path (glīd pāth) n. The path of descent of an aircraft, delineated by a radio beam that directs the pilot in landing the craft.

glid-er (glī'dər) n. 1. A light, engineless aircraft designed to glide after being towed aloft or launched from a catapult. 2. A swinging couch suspended from a vertical frame. 3. A device that aids gliding.

glim (glīm) n. 1. A source of light, as a candle. 2. The illumination given off by such a source. [Perhaps short for GLIMMER.]

glim-mer (glīm'ər) n. 1. A dim or intermittent flicker or flash of light. 2. A faint manifestation or indication; a trace: a glimmer of understanding. — v. intr. glim-mered, glim-mer-ing, glim-mers. 1. To emit a dim or intermittent light. See Synonyms at flash. 2. To appear faintly or indistinctly: Hope still glimmered in our minds. [Middle English glimeren. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glimpse (glīmps) n. 1. A brief, incomplete view or look. 2. Archaic. A brief flash of light. — v. glimpsed, glimps-ing, glimps-es. — v. tr. To obtain a brief, incomplete view of. — v. intr. To look briefly; glance: glimpsed at the headlines. [Middle English glimsen. See ghel-² in Appendix.] — glimps'er n.

Glin-ka (glīng'kə, glyēn'kə), Mikhail Ivanovich. 1804-1857. Russian composer considered the founder of Russian nationalistic music. His best-known works are the operas A Life for the Czar (1836) and Ruslan and Ludmilla (1842).

glint (glīnt) n. 1. A momentary flash of light; a sparkle. 2. A faint or fleeting indication; a trace. — v. glint-ed, glint-ing, glints. — v. intr. To gleam or flash briefly. See Synonyms at flash. — v. tr. To cause to gleam or flash. [Middle English glent, of Scandinavian origin. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glint-y (glīn'tē) adj. glint-i-er, glint-i-est. 1. Sparkling; glittery. 2. Cheap and flashy.

gli-o-ma (glē-ō'mə, glī-) n. pl. gli-o-mas or gli-o-ma-ta (-mä'tə). A tumor originating in the neuroglia of the brain or spinal cord.

glis-sade (glī-sād', -sād') n. 1. A gliding step in ballet. 2. A controlled slide, in either a standing or sitting position, used in descending a steep icy or snowy incline. — v. intr. glis-sad-ed, glis-sad-ing, glis-sades. To perform a glis-sade. [French, from glisser, to slide, from Old French, possibly alteration (influenced by glacer, to slide); see GLACIS, of glier, to glide, of Germanic origin. See ghel-² in Appendix.] — glis-sad'er n.

glis-san-do (glī-sän'dō) n. pl. glis-san-di (-dē) or glis-san-dos. Music. A rapid slide through a series of consecutive tones in a scalelike passage. [French glissade; see GLISSADE + -ando as in ACCELERANDO, or DIMINUENDO.]

glis-ten (glīs'tən) v. intr. glis-tened, glis-ten-ing, glis-tens. To shine by reflection with a sparkling luster. See Synonyms at flash. — n. A sparkling, lustrous shine. [Middle English glisnen, from Old English glisnian. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glis-ter (glīs'tər) v. intr. glis-tered, glis-ter-ing, glis-ters. To glisten. — n. Glitter; brilliance. [Middle English glisteren, probably from Middle Dutch glisteren, or Middle Low German glisteren; see ghel-² in Appendix.]

glitch (glīch) n. 1. A minor malfunction, mishap, or technical problem; a snag: a computer glitch; a navigational glitch; a glitch in the negotiations. 2. A false or spurious electronic signal caused by a brief, unwanted surge of electric power. 3. Astronomy. A sudden change in the period of rotation of a neutron star. [Probably from Yiddish glitsh, a slip, lapse, from glitshn, to slip, from Middle High German glitschen, alteration of glīten, to glide, from Old High German glītan. See ghel-² in Appendix.] — glitch'y adj.

WORD HISTORY: Although in retrospect glitch seems to be a word that people would always have found useful, it is first recorded in English in 1962 in the writing of John Glenn: “Another term we adopted to describe some of our problems was ‘glitch.’” Glenn then gives the technical sense of the word the astronauts had adopted: “Literally, a glitch is a spike or change in voltage in an electrical current.” In this very passage we see how the word moved from its narrow, technical electronic sense to a more general sense, even if the astronauts were not necessarily the first to extend the meaning of glitch. Since then the word has passed beyond technical use and now covers a wide variety of malfunctions and mishaps.

glit-ter (glīt'tər) n. 1. A sparkling or glistening light. 2. Brilliant or showy, often superficial attractiveness. 3. Small pieces of light-reflecting decorative material. — v. intr. glit-tered, glit-ter-ing, glit-ters. 1. a. To sparkle brilliantly; glisten. See Synonyms at flash. b. To sparkle coldly or malevolently: eyes that glittered at the prospect of revenge. 2. To be brilliantly, often deceptively, attractive. [From Middle English gliteren, to sparkle, from Old Norse glitra. See ghel-² in Appendix.] — glit'ter-ing-ly adv. — glit'ter-y adj.

glit-te-ra-ti (glīt'tə-rä'tē) pl.n. Informal. Highly fashionable celebrities; the smart set: “private parties on Park Avenue and Central Park West, where the literati mingled with glitterati” (Skylines). [GLITTER + (LITER)ATI.]

Glit-ter-tind-en (glīt'tər-tīn'ən) A peak, 2,473.6 m (8,110 ft) high, of south-central Norway. It is the highest elevation in Scandinavia.

glitz (glīts) Informal. n. Ostentatious showiness; flashiness: “a garish barrage of show-biz glitz” (Peter G. Davis). — v. tr. glitz-ed, glitz-ing, glitz-es. To invest with an ostentatiously showy quality: “have started to glitz up their shows with filmed backdrops” (Bill Barol). [Back-formation from glitzy, flashy, showy, probably from German glitzern, to glitter, from Middle High German glitzen, to shine, from Old High German glīzan. See ghel-² in Appendix.] —glitz’i-ness n. —glitz’y adj.

Gli-wi-ce (glī-vēt’sə, glē-vē’tsə) A city of south-central Poland west-northwest of Katowice. Chartered in 1276, it was ceded by Austria to Prussia in 1742 and assigned to Poland by the Potsdam Conference in 1945. Population, 212,500.

gloom (glōm) n. Archaic. Twilight; gloaming. [Back-formation from GLOAM-ING.]

gloom-ing (glō’mīng) n. Twilight; dusk. [Middle English gloming, from Old English glōmung, from glōm, dusk. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

gloat (glōt) v. intr. gloat-ed, gloat-ing, gloats. To feel or express great, often malicious, pleasure or self-satisfaction: Don’t gloat over your rival’s misfortune. — n. 1. The act of gloating. 2. A feeling of great, often malicious, pleasure or self-satisfaction. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin. See ghel-² in Appendix.] —gloat’er n.

glob (glōb) n. 1. A small drop; a globule. 2. A soft, thick lump or mass: a glob of mashed potatoes; globs of red mud. [Middle English globbe, large mass, from Latin globus, globular mass.]

glob-al (glō’bəl) adj. 1. Having the shape of a globe; spherical. 2. Of, relating to, or involving the entire earth; worldwide: global war; global monetary policies. 3. Comprehensive; total: “a... global, generalized sense of loss” (Maggie Scarf). 4. Computer Science. Of or relating to an entire program, document, or file. —glob’al-ly adv.

glob-al-ism (glō’bə-līz’əm) n. A national geopolitical policy in which the entire world is regarded as the appropriate sphere for a state’s influence. —glob’al-ist n.

glob-al-ize (glō’bə-līz’) v. tr. glob-al-ized, glob-al-iz-ing, glob-al-iz-es. To make global or worldwide in scope or application. —glob’al-i-za’tion n. —glob’al-iz’er n.

global village (glō’bəl vīl’ij) n. The entire world and its inhabitants: “The global village has come to understand that no society that seeks respect can support or tolerate... savagery” (Hugh Sidey).

global warming (glō’bəl wōr’mīng) n. A conjectural greenhouse effect on Earth that is attributed to deforestation and an increase in industrial air emissions.

globe (glōb) n. 1. A body with the shape of a sphere, especially a representation of the earth in the form of a hollow ball. 2. a. The earth. b. A planet. 3. A spherical or bowllike container, especially a glass cover for a light bulb. 4. A sphere emblematic of sovereignty; an orb. — v. intr. tr. globed, glob-ing, globes. To assume the shape of or form into a sphere. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin globus.]

globe amaranth (glōb ăm'ə-rănth') n. A widely cultivated ornamental plant (Gomphrena globosa) native to the Old World tropics, having colorful scalelike perianths and numerous flowers grouped in heads.

globe artichoke (glōb ăr'tī-chōk') n. See artichoke (n., sense 1).

globe·fish (glōb'fish') n. pl. globefish or globe·fish-es. Any of various fishes, especially the ocean sunfish or puffer, having or capable of assuming a globular shape.

globe·flow·er (glōb'flou'ər) n. Any of several plants of the genus Trollius having palmately lobed leaves, solitary, usually yellow flowers, and many follicles.

globe mallow (glōb măl'ō) n. Any of several herbs or shrubs of the genus Sphaeralcea, native to the arid regions of North and South America and having colorful cuplike corollas and numerous stamens fused into tubes.

globe thistle (glōb thī'səl) n. Any of several Eurasian plants of the genus Echinops having bipinnately dissected leaves with prickly margins and dense, bluish, globose flower heads.

globe·trot (glōb'trōt') v. intr. globe-trot-ted, globe-trot-ting, globe-trots. To travel often and widely, especially for sightseeing. [Back-formation from globetrotter.] — globe'trot'er n. — globe'trot'ting n.

glo·bin (glō'bīn) n. The protein that is a constituent of hemoglobin. [Back-formation from HEMOGLOBIN.]

glo·boid (glō'boid') adj. Having a globelike shape; spheroid. — n. A globe-shaped object.

glo·bose (glō'bōs') also glo·bous (-bəs) adj. Spherical; globular. — glo'bose/ly adv. — glo'bose'ness, glo·bos'i·ty (-bōs'ī-tē) n.

glob·u·lar (glōb'yə-lər) adj. 1. Having the shape of a globe or globule; spherical. 2. Consisting of globules. 3. Worldwide; global. — glob'u·lar·ly adv. — glob'u·lar·ness n.

globular cluster (glōb'yə-lər klūs'tər) n. Astronomy. A system of stars, generally smaller in size than a galaxy, that is more or less globular in conformation.

glob·ule (glōb'yōol) n. A small spherical mass, especially a small drop of liquid. [French, from Latin globulus, diminutive of globus, sphere.]

glob·u·lif·er·ous (glōb'yə-lif'ər-əs) adj. Composed of or producing globules.

glob·u·lin (glōb'yə-līn) n. Any of a class of proteins found extensively in blood plasma, milk, muscle, and plant seeds that are insoluble in pure water, soluble in dilute salt solution, and coagulable by heat. [GLOBUL(E) + -IN.]

glo·chid·i·um (glō-kīd'ē-əm) n. pl. glo·chid·i·a (-ē-ə). 1. Zoology. The parasitic larva of certain freshwater mussels of the family Unionidae, having hooks for attaching to the gills or other external parts of a host fish. 2. Also glo-chid (glō'kɪd). Botany. One of the minute barbed hairs or bristles on certain plants, such as the prickly pear. [New Latin glōchidium, from Greek glōkhis, glōkhid-, barb of an arrow.] —glo-chid/i-ate (-īt, -āt') adj.

glock-en-spiel (glōk'ən-spēl', -shpēl') n. Music. A percussion instrument with a series of metal bars tuned to the chromatic scale and played with two light hammers. [German : Glocken, pl. of Glocke, bell (from Middle High German, from Old High German glocka, of imitative origin) + Spiel, play; see SPIEL.]

glogg (glög) also glögg (glœg) n. A hot punch made of red wine, brandy, and sherry flavored with almonds, raisins, and orange peel. [Swedish glögg, alteration of glödgat (vin), mulled (wine), from past participle of glödga, to mull, from glöd, ember. See ghel² in Appendix.]

glom (glöm) Slang. v. glommed, glom-ming, gloms. — v. tr. 1. To steal. 2. To seize; grab. 3. To look or stare at. — v. intr. To seize upon or latch on to something: “The country has glommed onto the spectacle of a wizard showman turning the tables on his inquisitors” (Mary McGrory). — n. A glimpse; a look. [Probably from Scots glam, to snatch at, from Scottish Gaelic.]

glom-er-a (glöm'ər-ə) n. Plural of glomus.

glom-er-ate (glöm'ər-īt) adj. Formed into a compact, rounded mass; tightly clustered; conglomerate. [Latin glomerātus, past participle of glomerāre, to wind into a ball, from glomus, glomer-, ball.]

glom-er-ule (glöm'ə-rōōl', glöm'yə-) n. 1. Botany. A compact, cymose cluster of flowers. 2. Anatomy. A glomerulus. [New Latin glomerulus. See GLOMERULUS.] —glo-mer'u-late (glō-mēr'yə-līt) adj.

glo-mer-u-lus (glō-mēr'yə-ləs) n. pl. glo-mer-u-li (-lī'). Anatomy. 1. A small cluster or mass of blood vessels or nerve fibers. 2. A tuft of capillaries situated within a Bowman's capsule at the end of a renal tubule in the vertebrate kidney that filters waste products from the blood and thus initiates urine formation. [New Latin, diminutive of Latin glomus, glomer-, ball.]

Glom-ma (glō'mə, -mä) See Glåma.

glo-mus (glō'məs) n. pl. glom-er-a (glöm'ər-ə). A small body surrounded by many nerve fibers, consisting of an anastomosis between fine arterioles and veins. [Latin.]

gloom (glōōm) n. 1. a. Partial or total darkness; dimness: switched on a table lamp to banish the gloom of a winter afternoon. b. A partially or totally dark place, area, or location. 2. a. An atmosphere of melancholy or depression: Gloom pervaded the office. b. A state of melancholy or depression; despondency. — v.

gloomed, gloom-ing, glooms. — v. intr. 1. To be or become dark, shaded, or obscure. 2. To feel, appear, or act despondent, sad, or mournful. — v. tr.

1. To make dark, shaded, or obscure. 2. Archaic. To make despondent; sadden.

[Probably from Middle English gloumen, to become dark, look glum.]

gloom·y (glōō'mē) adj. gloom·i·er, gloom·i·est. 1. Partially or totally dark, especially dismal and dreary: a damp, gloomy day. 2. Showing or filled with gloom: gloomy faces. 3. a. Causing or producing gloom; depressing: gloomy news. b. Marked by hopelessness; very pessimistic: gloomy predictions. See Synonyms at glum. —gloom'i·ly adv. —gloom'i·ness n.

glop (glöp) n. Slang. 1. A soft, soggy mixture, as of food: cafeterias serving non-descript glop. 2. Something, such as a piece of writing, that is judged to be worthless. [Probably imitative of the sound of food being mixed.] —glop v. —glop'py adj.

Glo-ri-a (glôr'ē-ə, glôr'-) n. 1. a. A Latin doxology beginning with the words Gloria Patri. b. A Latin doxology forming part of the Ordinary of the Mass and beginning with the words Gloria in excelsis Deo. c. A musical setting for either of these doxologies. 2. gloria. A halo or nimbus. [Middle English, from Late Latin Glōria, from Latin glōria, glory.]

glo-ri-fy (glôr'ə-fī', glôr'-) v. tr. glo-ri-fied, glo-ri-fy-ing, glo-ri-fies. 1. To give glory, honor, or high praise to; exalt. 2. To cause to be or seem more glorious or excellent than is actually the case: Your descriptions have glorified an average house into a mansion. 3. To give glory to, especially through worship. [Middle English glorifien, from Old French glorefier, from Latin glōrificāre: glōria, glory + -ficāre, -fy.] —glo'ri-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —glo'ri-fi'er n.

glo-ri-ole (glôr'ē-ōl', glôr'-) n. See glory (n., sense 8). [French, from Latin glōriola, diminutive of glōria, glory.]

glo-ri-ous (glôr'ē-əs, glôr'-) adj. 1. Having or deserving glory; famous. 2. Conferring or advancing glory: a glorious achievement. 3. Characterized by great beauty and splendor; magnificent: a glorious sunset. 4. Delightful; wonderful: had a glorious visit with old friends. —glo'ri-ous-ly adv. —glo'ri-ous-ness n.

glo-ry (glôr'ē, glôr'ē) n. pl. glo-ries. 1. Great honor, praise, or distinction accorded by common consent; renown. 2. Something conferring honor or renown. 3. A highly praiseworthy asset: Your hair is your crowning glory. 4. Adoration, praise, and thanksgiving offered in worship. 5. Majestic beauty and splendor; resplendence: The sun set in a blaze of glory. 6. The splendor and bliss of heaven; perfect happiness. 7. A height of achievement, enjoyment, or prosperity: Paris in its greatest glory. 8. A halo, nimbus, or aureole. In this sense, also called gloriole — v. intr. glo-ried, glo-ry-ing, glo-ries. To rejoice triumphantly; exult: a sports team that gloried in its hard-won victory. [Middle English glorie, from Old French, from Latin glōria.]

glo-ry-of-the-snow (glôr'ē-əv-thə-snō', glôr'-) n. A small bulbous plant (Chionodoxa luciliae) native to southwest Asia, Crete, and Cyprus, cultivated for its early-blooming blue flowers.

gloss¹ (glôs, glös) n. 1. A surface shininess or luster. 2. A superficially or deceptively attractive appearance. — v. glossed, gloss-ing, gloss-es. — v. tr. 1. To give a bright sheen or luster to. 2. To make attractive or acceptable by deception or superficial treatment: a résumé that glossed over the applicant's lack of experience. See Synonyms at palliate. — v. intr. To become shiny or lustrous. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Icelandic glossi, a spark. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

gloss² (glôs, glös) n. Abbr. gl. 1. a. A brief explanatory note or translation of a difficult or technical expression usually inserted in the margin or between lines of a text or manuscript. b. A collection of such notes; a glossary. 2. An extensive commentary, often accompanying a text or publication. 3. A purposefully misleading interpretation or explanation. — v. tr. glossed, gloss-ing, gloss-es. 1. To provide (an expression or a text) with a gloss or glosses. 2. To give a false interpretation to. [Middle English glose, from Old French, from Medieval Latin glōsa, from Late Latin glōssa, foreign word requiring explanation, from Greek, tongue, language.] — gloss'er n.

gloss. abbr. Glossary.

glos-sa (glô'sə, glös'ə) n. pl. glos-sae (glô'sē, glös'ē) or glos-sas. 1. Anatomy. The tongue. 2. Zoology. A tonguelike structure in the labium of an insect. [Greek glōssa, tongue.]

glos-sal (glô'səl, glös'əl) adj. Of or relating to the tongue.

glos-sa-ry (glô'sə-rē, glös'ə-) *n. pl. glos-sa-ries. Abbr. gloss. A list of difficult or specialized words with their definitions, often placed at the back of a book. [Middle English glosarie, from Latin glōssārium, from glōssa, foreign word. See GLOSS².] — glos-sar'i-al (glô-sâr'ē-əl, glō-) adj. — glos'sa-rist *n.

glos-si-tis (glô-sī'tis, glō-) n. Inflammation of the tongue. — glos-sit'ic (-sīt'ik) adj.

glos-sog-ra-phy (glô-sög'rə-fē, glō-) n. The compilation of glosses or glossaries. — glos-sog'ra-pher n.

glos-so-la-li-a (glô'sə-lā'lē-ə, glös'ə-) n. 1. Fabricated and nonmeaningful speech, especially such speech associated with a trance state or certain schizophrenic syndromes. 2. See gift of tongues. [New Latin : Greek glōssa, tongue + Greek lalein, to babble.]

glos-so-pha-ryn-ge-al nerve (glô'sō-fə-rin'jē-əl nûrv, -jəl, -făr'an-jē'əl, glös'ō-) n. Either of the ninth pair of cranial nerves that contain both sensory and motor fibers and supply the tongue, soft palate, pharynx, and parotid gland.

gloss-y (glô'sē, glös'ē) adj. gloss-i-er, gloss-i-est. 1. Having a smooth, shiny, lustrous surface: glossy satin. See Synonyms at sleek. 2. Superficially and often speciously attractive; showy: glossy trendsetters. — n. pl. gloss-ies. 1. A photographic print on smooth, shiny paper. 2. Chiefly British. A popular magazine printed on smooth-coated stock. — gloss'i-ly adv. — gloss'i-ness n.

glot-tal (glötʹl) adj. Linguistics. Relating to or articulated in the glottis.

glottal stop (glötʹl stöp) n. Linguistics. A speech sound produced by a momentary complete closure of the glottis, followed by an explosive release.

glot-tis (glötʹʹis) n. pl. glot-tis-es or glot-ti-des (-tī-dēzʹ). 1. The opening between the vocal cords at the upper part of the larynx. 2. The vocal apparatus of the larynx. [Greek glōttis, from glōtta, glōssa, tongue.]

Glouces-ter (glösʹtər, glôʹstər) 1. A borough of southwest-central England on the Severn River west-northwest of London. On the site of the Roman city Gle-vum, it was the Saxon capital of Mercia and is today a market town and industrial center. Population, 91,600. 2. A city of northeast Massachusetts on Cape Ann and the Atlantic Ocean northeast of Boston. Its sheltered harbor has been used by fishing fleets for three centuries. Population, 28,716.

glove (glüv) n. 1. a. A fitted covering for the hand with a separate sheath for each finger and the thumb. b. A gauntlet. 2. a. Baseball. An oversized padded leather covering for the hand, used in catching balls, especially one with more finger sheaths than the catcher's or first baseman's mitt. b. Sports. A boxing glove. — v. gloved, glov-ing, gloves. — v. tr. 1. To furnish with gloves. 2. To cover with or as if with a glove. — v. intr. To don gloves, as before performing an operation on a patient. [Middle English, from Old English glōf.]

glove compartment (glüv kəm-pärtʹmənt) n. A small storage container in the dashboard of an automobile. Also called glove box Glov-er (glüvʹər), Sarah Ann. 1785-1867. British music teacher who invented the tonic sol-fa system of music notation (c. 1812).

Glov-ers-ville (glüvʹərz-vīlʹ) A city of east-central New York northwest of Schenectady. Its glove-making industry dates to the late 18th century. Population, 16,656.

glow (glō) v. intr. glowed, glow-ing, glows. 1. To shine brightly and steadily, especially without a flame: Embers glowed in the furnace. 2. a. To have a bright, warm, usually reddish color: The children's cheeks glowed from the cold. b. To flush; blush. 3. To be exuberant or radiant: parents glowing with pride. — n. 1. A light produced by a body heated to luminosity; incandescence. See Synonyms at blaze¹. 2. Brilliance or warmth of color, especially redness: "the evening glow of the city streets when the sun has gone behind the tallest houses" (Seán O'Faoláin). 3. A sensation of physical warmth. 4. A warm feeling, as of pleasure or well-being. [Middle English glouen, from Old English glōwan. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

glow-er (glouʹər) v. intr. glow-ered, glow-er-ing, glow-ers. To look or stare angrily or sullenly. See Synonyms at frown. — n. An angry or sullen look or stare. [Middle English gloren, probably of Scandinavian origin. See ghel-² in Appendix.] — glow'er-ing-ly adv.

glow plug (glō plŭg) n. A small electric heating element in an internal-combustion engine that facilitates starting by preheating the air in a cylinder and is used especially in diesel engines.

glow-worm (glō'wŭrm') n. Any of various luminous female beetles or beetle larvae of the families Phengodidae and Lampyridae, especially the larva or wingless grublike female of a firefly.

glox-in-ia (glŏk-sĭn'ē-ə) n. Any of several tropical South American plants of the genus Sinningia, especially S. speciosa, cultivated as a houseplant for its showy, variously colored flowers. [New Latin, after Benjamin Peter Gloxin, 18th-century German botanist.]

gloze (glōz) v. glazed, gloz-ing, gloz-es. — v. tr. To minimize or underplay; gloss: glazed over the embarrassing part. See Synonyms at palliate. — v. intr. Archaic. To use flattery or cajolery. [Middle English glosen, to interpret, explain away, from Old French gloser, from glose, gloss. See GLOSS².]

gluc- pref. Variant of gluco-.

glu-ca-gon (glōō'kə-gŏn') n. A hormone produced by the pancreas that stimulates an increase in blood sugar levels, thus opposing the action of insulin. [probably GLUC(O)- + Greek agōn, present participle of agein, to lead, drive; see ag- in Appendix.]

Gluck (glŏok), Alma. 1884-1938. Romanian-born American soprano who appeared in 20 roles with New York's Metropolitan Opera (1909-1912) and became one of the first successful recording artists.

Gluck (glŏok), Christoph Willibald. 1714-1787. German operatic composer noted for his emphasis on dramatic impact and musical simplicity. His works include Orfeo ed Euridice (1762) and Alceste (1767).

gluco- or gluc- pref. Glucose: glucagon. [From GLUCOSE.]

glu-co-cor-ti-coid (glōō'kō-kŏr'tĭ-koid') n. Any of a group of steroid hormones, such as cortisone, that are produced by the adrenal cortex, are involved in carbohydrate, protein, and fat metabolism, and have anti-inflammatory properties.

glu-co-ne-o-gen-e-sis (glōō'kə-nē'ə-jĕn'ĭ-sĭs) n. The formation of glucose, especially by the liver, from noncarbohydrate sources, such as amino acids and the glycerol portion of fats. — glu'co-ne'o-ge-net'ic (-ŏ-jə-nĕt'ĭk) adj.

glu-cose (glōō'kōs') n. 1. A monosaccharide sugar, C₆H₁₂O₆, occurring widely in most plant and animal tissue. It is the principal circulating sugar in the blood and the major energy source of the body. 2. A colorless to yellowish syrupy mixture of dextrose, maltose, and dextrans containing about 20 percent water, used in confectionery, alcoholic fermentation, tanning, and treating tobacco. In this sense, also called starch syrup [French, from Greek gleukos, sweet wine.]

glu-co-side (glōō'kə-sĭd') n. A glycoside, the sugar component of which is glucose. — glu'co-sid'ic (-sĭd'ĭk) adj. — glu'co-sid'i-cal-ly adv.

glue (glōō) n. 1. a. A strong liquid adhesive obtained by boiling collagenous animal parts such as bones, hides, and hooves into hard gelatin and then adding water. b. Any of various similar adhesives, such as paste, mucilage, or epoxy. 2. An adhesive force or factor: Idealism was the glue that held our group together. — v. tr. glued, glu-ing, glues. 1. To stick or fasten with or as if with glue. 2. To fasten on something attentively: Our eyes were glued to the stage. [Middle English glu, from Old French, from Late Latin glūs, glūt-, from Latin glūten.] —glu'ey adj. —glu'i-ness n.

glum (glŭm) adj. glum-mer, glum-mest. 1. Moody and melancholy; dejected. 2. Gloomy; dismal. — n. 1. The quality or state of being moody, melancholy, and gloomy or an instance of it: "He was a charming mixture of glum and glee" (Lillian Hellman). 2. glums. Chiefly British. The blues. Often used with the: "Most other publications have got the glums" (Tina Brown). [Probably akin to Middle English gloumen, to become dark. See GLOOM.] —glum'ly adv. —glum'ness n.

SYNONYMS: glum, gloomy, morose, dour, saturnine. These adjectives mean having a broodingly cheerless aspect or disposition. Glum implies silent dejection: Why so glum? The votes haven't been counted yet. Gloomy suggests somber melancholy: She takes a gloomy view of the future. Morose implies sourness of temper and a tendency to be uncommunicative: He stared down at his dinner plate in a morose and unsociable manner. Dour especially suggests grimness or humorlessness and sometimes an obstinate nature: "To a Western eye, [they] seem poorly dressed, ill-groomed, dour and preoccupied" (Peter Lewis). Saturnine suggests gloominess or melancholy of temperament and often a tendency to be bitter or sardonic: the saturnine faces of the judges.

glu-ma-ceous (glōō-mā'shəs) adj. Having or resembling glumes.

glume (glōōm) n. One of the two chaffy basal bracts of a grass spikelet. [Latin glūma, husk. See gleubh- in Appendix.]

glu-on (glōō'ŏn) n. A hypothetical massless, neutral elementary particle believed to mediate the strong interaction that binds quarks together. [GLU(E) + -ON¹.]

glut (glŭt) v. glut-ted, glut-ting, gluts. — v. tr. 1. To fill beyond capacity, especially with food; satiate. See Synonyms at satiate. 2. To flood (a market) with an excess of goods so that supply exceeds demand. — v. intr. To eat or indulge in something excessively. — n. An oversupply. [Middle English glotten, probably from Old French glotoiier, to eat greedily, from Latin gluttire.]

glu-tam-ic acid (glōō-tām'ik əs'id) n. A nonessential amino acid, C₅H₉NO₄, occurring widely in plant and animal tissue and having a salt, sodium glutamate, that is used as a flavor-intensifying seasoning. [GLUT(EN) + AM(IDE) + -IC.]

glu·ta·mine (glōō'tə-mēn') n. A nonessential amino acid, C₅H₁₀N₂O₃, occurring widely in plant and animal tissue and produced commercially for use in medicine and biochemical research. [GLUT(EN) + AMINE.]

glu·tar·al·de·hyde (glōō'tə-räl'də-hīd') n. A water-soluble oily liquid, OHC(CH₂)₃CHO, containing two aldehyde groups, used in tanning leather and as a fixative for biological tissues. [Blend of glutaric acid (from GLUTEN), and ALDEHYDE.]

glu·te·i (glōō'tē-ī', glōō-tē'ī') n. Plural of gluteus.

glutei max·i·mi (glōō'tē-ī' māk'sə-mī') n. Plural of gluteus maximus.

glu·ten (glōōt'n) n. A mixture of plant proteins occurring in cereal grains, chiefly corn and wheat, used as an adhesive and as a flour substitute. [French, from Latin glūten, glue.] —glu'ten·ous adj.

glu·teth·i·mide (glōō-tēth'ə-mīd') n. A nonbarbiturate sedative and hypnotic drug, C₁₃H₁₅NO₂. [GLUTE(N) + THI(O)- + (A)MIDE.]

glu·te·us (glōō'tē-əs, glōō-tē'-) n. pl. glu·te·i (glōō'tē-ī', glōō-tē'ī'). Any of the three large muscles of each buttock, especially the gluteus maximus, that extend, abduct, and rotate the thigh. [New Latin, from Greek gloutos, buttock.] —glu'te·al adj.

gluteus max·i·mus (glōō'tē-əs māk'sə-məs) n. pl. glutei max·i·mi (māk'sə-mī'). The largest and outermost gluteus. [New Latin : gluteus, gluteus + maximus, largest.]

glu·ti·nous (glōōt'n-əs) adj. Of the nature of or resembling glue; sticky. [Middle English, from Latin glūtinōsus, from glūten, glūtin-, glue.] —glu'ti·nous·ly adv. —glu'ti·nous·ness, glu'ti·nos'i·ty (-ōs'ī-tē) n.

glut·ton (glūt'n) n. 1. A person who eats or consumes immoderate amounts of food and drink. 2. A person with an inordinate capacity to receive or withstand something: a glutton for punishment. 3. See wolverine (n., sense 1). [Middle English glotoun, from Old French gloton, from Latin gluttō, gluttōn-.]

glut·ton·ous (glūt'n-əs) adj. 1. Given to or marked by gluttony. 2. Indulging in something, such as an activity, to excess; voracious. See Synonyms at vora·cious. —glut'ton·ous·ly adv.

glut·ton·y (glūt'n-ē) n. pl. glut·ton·ies. Excess in eating or drinking.

glyc- pref. Variant of glyco-.

glyc·er·al·de·hyde (glīs'ə-räl'də-hīd') n. A sweet, colorless, crystalline solid, C₃H₆O₃, that is an intermediate compound in carbohydrate metabolism. [GLYCER(IN) + ALDEHYDE.]

gly·cer·ic acid (glī-sēr'īk əs'īd) n. A colorless, syrupy acid, C₃H₆O₄, obtained from oxidation of glycerol. [From GLYCERIN.]

glyc·er·ide (glīs'ə-rīd') n. A natural or synthetic ester of glycerol and fatty acids. [GLYCER(IN) + -IDE.]

glyc-er-in also glyc-er-ine (glīs'ər-īn) n. Glycerol or a preparation of glycerol. [French glycérine, from Greek glukeros, sweet.]

glyc-er-ol (glīs'ə-rōl', -rōl', -rōl') n. A syrupy, sweet, colorless or yellowish liquid, $C_3H_8O_3$, obtained from fats and oils as a byproduct of saponification and used as a solvent, an antifreeze, a plasticizer, and a sweetener and in the manufacture of dynamite, cosmetics, liquid soaps, inks, and lubricants. [GLYCER(IN) + -OL¹.]

glyc-er-yl (glīs'ər-əl) n. A trivalent radical, CH_2CHCH_2 , obtained from glycerol by the removal of hydroxyl groups. [GLYCER(IN) + -YL.]

gly-cin (glī'sīn) also gly-cine (-sēn', -sīn) n. A poisonous crystalline compound, $C_8H_9NO_3$, used as a photographic developer. [Probably from GLYCINE.]

gly-cine (glī'sēn', -sīn) n. 1. A sweet-tasting crystalline nonessential amino acid, $C_2H_5NO_2$, that is the principal amino acid occurring in sugar cane. It is derived from the alkaline hydrolysis of gelatin and used in biochemical research and medicine. 2. Variant of glycin. [GLYC(O)- + -INE².]

glyco- or glyc- pref. 1. Sugar: glycoprotein. 2. Glycogen: glycogenesis. [From Greek glukus, sweet.]

gly-co-gen (glī'kə-jən) n. A polysaccharide, $(C_6H_{10}O_5)_n$, that is the main form of carbohydrate storage in animals and occurs primarily in the liver and muscle tissue. It is readily converted to glucose as needed by the body to satisfy its energy needs. Also called animal starch —gly'co-gen'ic (-jēn'ik) adj.

gly-co-gen-e-sis (glī'kə-jēn'ī-sīs) n. The formation or synthesis of glycogen. [GLYCO- + -GENESIS.] —gly'co-ge-net'ic (-jə-nēt'ik) adj.

gly-co-gen-ol-y-sis (glī'kə-jə-nōl'ī-sīs) n. pl. gly-co-gen-ol-y-ses (-sēz'). The biomedical breakdown of glycogen to glucose. —gly'co-gen'o-lyt'ic (-jēn'ə-līt'ik) adj.

gly-col (glī'kōl', -kōl', -kōl') n. 1. Ethylene glycol. 2. Any of various alcohols containing two hydroxyl groups.

gly-col-ic acid (glī-kōl'ik əs'īd) n. A colorless crystalline compound, $C_2H_4O_3$, found in sugar beets, cane sugar, and unripe grapes that is used in leather dyeing and tanning and in pharmaceuticals, pesticides, adhesives, and plasticizers.

gly-co-lip-id (glī'kə-līp'īd) n. A lipid that contains carbohydrate groups.

gly-col-y-sis (glī-kōl'ə-sīs) n. The ATP-generating metabolic process that occurs in nearly all living cells by which carbohydrates and sugars, typically glucose, are converted in a series of steps to pyruvic acid. —gly'co-lyt'ic adj.

gly-co-pro-tein (glī'kō-prō'tēn', -tē-īn) n. Any of a group of conjugated proteins that contain a carbohydrate as the nonprotein component.

gly-cos-a-mi-no-gly-can (glī'kōs-ə-mē'nō-glī'kăn) n. Any of a group of polysaccharides with high molecular weight that contain amino sugars and often form complexes with proteins. Also called mucopolysaccharide [GLYC(O)- + (HEX)OS(E) + AMIN(E) + glycan, polysaccharide (GLYC(O)- + -AN²).]

gly·co·side (glī'kə-sīd') n. Any of a group of organic compounds, occurring abundantly in plants, that yield a sugar and one or more nonsugar substances on hydrolysis. [Glycose (variant of GLUCOSE) + -IDE.] —gly'co-sid'ic (-sīd'ik) adj.

gly·co·su·ri·a (glī'kə-sōōr'ē-ə, -shōōr'-) n. Excess sugar in the urine, often associated with diabetes mellitus. [Glycose (variant of GLUCOSE) + -URIA.] —gly'co-su'ric adj.

Glyn (glīn), Elinor (Sutherland). 1864-1943. British writer noted for her sensational romance novels, including Three Weeks (1907) and It (1927).

glyph (glīf) n. 1. Architecture. A vertical groove, especially in a Doric column or frieze. 2. A symbolic figure that is usually engraved or incised. 3. A symbol, such as a stylized human figure on a public sign, that imparts information non-verbally. [Greek gluphē, carving, from gluphein, to carve. See gleubh- in Appendix.] —glyph'ic adj.

glyph·tic (glīp'tik) adj. Of or relating to engraving or carving, especially on precious stones. [Greek gluptikos, from gluptos, carved, from gluphein, to carve. See gleubh- in Appendix.]

glyph·tics (glīp'tiks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The art of engraving or carving, especially on precious stones; glyptography.

glyph·to·graph (glīp'tə-grāf') n. An engraved inscription on a precious stone. [Greek gluptos, carved; see GLYPTIC + -GRAPH.]

glyph·tog·ra·phy (glīp-tōg'rə-fē) n. The art or process of carving or engraving on precious stones. —glyph·tog'ra·pher n. —glyph'to·graph'ic (-tə-grāf'ik), glyph'to·graph'i·cal adj.

GM or G.M. abbr. 1. General manager. 2. Games. Grand master.

gm. abbr. Gram.

G-man (jē'mān') n. An agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. [G(OVERNMENT) + MAN.]

GMAT abbr. 1. Graduate Management Admissions Test. 2. Or G.m.a.t. Greenwich mean astronomical time.

gmel·i·na (gmēl'i-nə, gmā'lī-) n. A deciduous tree (Gmelina arborea) native to southeast Asia, having large opposite leaves, brownish-yellow flowers grouped in cymose panicles, and yellow drupes. [New Latin, genus name, after Johann Georg Gmelin (1709-1755), German botanist.]

GMP (jē'ēm-pē') n. A nucleotide composed of guanine, ribose, and one phosphate group that is formed during protein synthesis. Also called guanylic acid [G(UANOSINE) M(ONO)P(HOSPHATE).]

GMT or G.m.t. abbr. Greenwich mean time.

GMW abbr. Gram molecular weight.

Gn abbr. Bible. Genesis.

gnar also gnarr (när) v. intr. gnarred, gnar·ring, gnars. To snarl; growl. [Imitative.]

gnarl¹ (närl) v. intr. gnarled, gnarl-ing, gnarls. To snarl; growl. [Frequentative of GNAR.]

gnarl² (närl) n. A protruding knot on a tree. — v. tr. gnarled, gnarl-ing, gnarls. To make knotted; twist. [Back-formation from GNARLED.]

gnarled (närlɔd) adj. 1. Having gnarls; knotty or misshapen: gnarled branches.

2. Morose or peevish; crabbed. 3. Rugged and roughened, as from old age or work: the gnarled hands of a carpenter. [Probably variant of knarled, from knarl, tangle, knot, alteration of Middle English knarre, knot in wood. See KNAR.]

gnarr (nä) v. Variant of gnar.

gnash (näsh) v. tr. gnashed, gnash-ing, gnash-es. 1. To grind or strike (the teeth, for example) together. 2. To bite (something) by grinding the teeth.

[Alteration of Middle English gnasten, gnaisten, possibly of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse gnastan, a gnashing.] — gnash n.

gnat (nä) n. Any of various small, biting, two-winged flies, such as a punkie or black fly. [Middle English, from Old English gnæt.]

gnat-catch-er (nä'tkäç'ər, -kěç'-) n. Any of several tiny North American birds of the genus Polioptila, having bluish-gray and white plumage, a long tail, and a small, slender bill.

gna-thal (nä'thəl, näth'əl) adj. Gnathic. [Greek gnathos, jaw; see genu-² in Appendix + -AL¹.]

gnath-ic (näth'ik) adj. Of or relating to the jaw. [Greek gnathos, jaw; see genu-² in Appendix + -IC.]

gna-thite (nä'thit', näth'it') n. A jawlike appendage of an arthropod. [Greek gnathos, jaw; see GNATHIC + -ITE¹.]

-gnathous suff. Having a specified kind of jaw: metagnathous. [New Latin -gnathus, from Greek -gnathos, from gnathos, jaw. See genu-² in Appendix.]

gnaw (nô) v. gnawed, gnaw-ing, gnaws. — v. tr. 1. a. To bite, chew on, or erode with the teeth. b. To produce by gnawing: gnaw a hole. See Synonyms at bite. c. To erode or diminish gradually as if by gnawing: waves gnawing the rocky shore. 2. To afflict or worry persistently: fear that constantly gnawed me.

— v. intr. 1. To bite or chew persistently: The dog gnawed at the bone. 2. To cause erosion or gradual diminishment. 3. To cause persistent worry or pain: Hunger gnawed at the prisoners. [Middle English gnauen, from Old English gnagan.] — gnaw'er n.

gnd. abbr. Ground (electricity).

gneiss (nīs) n. A banded or foliated metamorphic rock, usually of the same composition as granite. [German Gneis, probably alteration of Middle High German gneist, spark (from its appearance), from Old High German gneisto.]

— gneiss'ic (nī'sik), gneiss'oid' (nī'soid') , gneiss'ose' (nī'sōs') adj.

Gniez-no (gnyžəʹnō, -nô) A city of central Poland east-northeast of Poznań.

Polish kings were crowned here from 1025 to 1320. The city passed to Prussia in 1793 and was restored to Poland in 1919. Population, 67,400.

gnoc-chi (nyôʹkē) pl.n. Dumplings made of flour, semolina, or potatoes, boiled or baked and served with grated cheese or a sauce. [Italian, pl. of gnocco, probably alteration of nocchio, knot in wood.]

gnome¹ (nōm) n. One of a fabled race of dwarflike creatures who live underground and guard treasure hoards. [French, from New Latin gnomus.]

—gnomʹish adj.

gnome² (nōm) n. A pithy saying that expresses a general truth or fundamental principle; an aphorism. [Greek gnōmē, from gignōskein, to know. See gnō- in Appendix.]

gnō-mic (nōʹmīk) adj. Marked by aphorisms; aphoristic: gnomic verse; a gnomic style.

gnō-mon (nōʹmönʹ, -mən) n. 1. An object, such as the style of a sundial, that projects a shadow used as an indicator. 2. The geometric figure that remains after a parallelogram has been removed from a similar but larger parallelogram with which it shares a corner. [Latin gnōmōn, from Greek, from gignōskein, to know. See gnō- in Appendix.] —gnō-monʹic, gnō-monʹi-cal adj.

gnō-sis (nōʹsīs) n. Intuitive apprehension of spiritual truths, an esoteric form of knowledge sought by the Gnostics. [Greek gnōsis, knowledge, from gignōskein, to know. See gnō- in Appendix.]

Gnos-tic (nösʹtīk) adj. 1. gnostic. Of, relating to, or possessing intellectual or spiritual knowledge. 2. Of or relating to Gnosticism. — n. A believer in Gnosticism. [Late Latin Gnōsticus, a Gnostic, from Late Greek Gnōstikos, from Greek gnōstikos, concerning knowledge, from gnōsis, knowledge. See GNOSIS.]

Gnos-ti-cism (nösʹtī-sizʹəm) n. The doctrines of certain pre-Christian pagan, Jewish, and early Christian sects that valued the revealed knowledge of God and of the origin and end of the human race as a means to attain redemption for the spiritual element in human beings and that distinguished the Demiurge from the unknowable Divine Being.

GNP abbr. Gross national product.

GnRH abbr. Gonadotropin-releasing hormone.

gnu (nōō, nyōō) n. Either of two large African antelopes (Connochaetes gnou or C. taurinus) having a drooping mane and beard, a long tufted tail, and curved horns in both sexes. Also called wildebeest [Probably from Dutch gnoe, from Nguni (Xhosa) i-ngu, white-tailed gnu, from San !nu, black wildebeest.]

go¹ (gō) v. went (wěnt), gone (gôn, gön), go-ing, goes (gōz). — v. intr.

1. To move or travel; proceed: We will go by bus. Solicitors went from door to door seeking donations. How fast can the boat go? 2. To move away from a place; depart: Go before I cry. 3. a. To pursue a certain course: messages that go through diplomatic channels to the ambassador. b. To resort to another, as for aid: went directly to the voters of her district. See Synonyms at resort. 4. a. To extend between two points or in a certain direction; run: curtains that go from the ceiling to the floor. b. To give entry; lead: a stairway that goes to the basement. 5. To function properly: The car won't go. 6. a. To have currency. b. To pass from one person to another; circulate: Wild rumors were going around the office. 7. To pass as the result of a sale: The gold watch went to the highest bidder. 8. Informal. Used as an intensifier when joined by and to a coordinate verb: She went and complained to Personnel. 9. Used in the progressive tense with an infinitive to indicate future intent or expectation: I am going to learn how to dance. 10. a. To be in a certain condition. b. To come to be in a certain condition: go mad; hair that had gone gray. c. To continue to be in a certain condition or continue an activity: go barefoot all summer. d. To carry out an action to a certain point or extent: Your parents went to great expense to put you through college. 11. a. To be customarily located; belong: The fork goes to the left of the plate. Where do the plates go? b. To be capable of entering or fitting: Will the suitcase go into the trunk of your car? 12. a. To pass into someone's possession: All the jewelry went to her heirs. b. To be allotted: How much of your salary goes for rent? 13. To be a contributing factor: It all goes to show us that the project can be completed on time. 14. a. To have a particular form: as the saying goes. b. To be such, by and large: well behaved, as big dogs go. 15. a. To pass by; elapse: The day went pleasantly enough until I received your call. b. To be used up. c. To be discarded or abolished: All luxuries will have to go. 16. a. To become weak; fail: His hearing has started to go. b. To come apart; break up. 17. To cease living; die. 18. a. To get along; fare: How are things going? b. To have a successful outcome: creativity that made the advertising campaign really go. 19. To be suitable or appropriate as an accessory or accompaniment: a color that goes beautifully with your complexion. 20. a. To have authority: Whatever I say goes. b. To be valid, acceptable, or adequate. 21. Informal. To excrete waste from the bladder or bowels. 22. Informal. To begin an act: Here goes! 23. Obsolete. To walk. — v. tr. 1. To proceed or move according to: I was free to go my own way. 2. To traverse: Only two of the runners went the entire distance. 3. Informal. a. To bet: go $20 on the black horse. b. To bid: I'll go $500 on the vase. 4. Informal. a. To take on the responsibility or obligation for: go bail for a client. b. To participate to (a given extent): Will you go halves with me if we win the lottery? 5. To amount to; weigh: a shark that went 400 pounds. 6. Informal. To enjoy: I could go a cold beer right now. 7. Usage Problem. To say. Used chiefly in verbal narration: First I go, "Thank you," then he goes, "What for?" — n. pl. goes. 1. The act or an instance of going. 2. An attempt; an effort: had a go at acting. 3. The time or period of an activity. 4. Informal. Energy; vitality: had lots of go. 5. Informal. a. The go-ahead. b. Often Go. The starting point: "And from Go there was something deliciously illicit about the whole affair” (Erica Abeel). c. Informal. A situation in which planned operations can be effectuated: The space mission is a go. — adj. Informal. Functioning correctly and ready for action: All systems are go. — phrasal verbs. go about. To set about to do; undertake: Go about your chores in a responsible way. go along. To cooperate: They get along by going along. go around. 3. To satisfy a demand or requirement: just enough food to go around. 4. To go here and there; move from place to place. 5. To have currency: rumors going around. go at. 6. To attack, especially with energy. 7. To approach; undertake: He went at the job with a lot of energy. go by. 8. To elapse; pass: as time goes by. 9. To pay a short visit: My parents were away when we went by last week. go down. 10. a. To drop below the horizon; set: The sun went down. b. To fall to the ground: The helicopter went down in a ball of fire. c. To sink: The torpedoed battleship went down. d. To experience defeat or ruin. 11. To admit of easy swallowing: a cough syrup that goes down readily. 12. Chiefly British. To leave a university. 13. Slang. To occur; happen: “a collection of memorable pieces about the general craziness that was going down in those days” (James Atlas). 14. a. To be accepted or tolerated: How will your ideas go down as far as corporate marketing is concerned? b. To come to be remembered in posterity: a debate that will go down as a turning point in the campaign. go for. 15. Informal. To have a special liking for: I really go for progressive jazz. 16. To attack: an opponent who is known to go for the jugular in arguments. 17. To pass for or serve as: a couch that also goes for a bed. go in. 18. To take part in a cooperative venture: went in with the others to buy a present. 19. To make an approach, as before an attack: Troops went in at dawn. go off. 20. To undergo detonation; explode. 21. To make a noise; sound: The siren went off at noon. 22. To leave: Don’t go off mad. 23. Informal. To adhere to the expected course of events or the expected plan: The project went off smoothly. go on. 24. To take place; happen: didn’t know what was going on. 25. a. To continue: Life must go on. b. To keep on doing (something): Don’t go on talking. c. To proceed: She went on to become a senator. 26. Informal. To talk volubly: My, you do go on. go out. 27. To become extinguished. 28. a. To go outdoors; leave one’s residence: He went out at seven. b. To take part in social life outside the home: goes out a lot. 29. To become unfashionable: High boots went out last year. 30. To undergo structural collapse: The bridge went out. go over. 31. To gain acceptance or approval: a new style that didn’t go over. 32. To examine: go over the test scores. go through. 33. To examine carefully: went through the students’ papers. 34. To experience: We went through hell while working on this project. 35. To perform: I went through the sonata in 30 minutes. go under. 36. To suffer defeat or destruction; fail. 37. To lose consciousness. go up. Chiefly British. To go to a university. go with. To date regularly. — idioms. go all the way. To engage in sex. go back on. To fail to honor or keep: go back on a promise. go begging. To be in little or no demand: “Prestige or no prestige, directors’ jobs at some companies have actually gone begging” (Bill Powell). go belly up. Informal. To undergo total financial failure: “A record number of... banks went belly up” (New Republic). go bust. Informal. To undergo financial collapse: “Railroads were in the news mainly when they were going bust” (Christian Science Monitor). go by the board. To be discarded or ignored: old dress codes that have now gone by the board. go down on. Vulgar Slang. To perform oral sex on. go down the line. To provide strong support. go fly a kite. Informal. To cease being an annoyance. Often used in the imperative. go for broke. Informal. To commit or expend all of one’s available resources toward achievement of a goal: “Why not go for broke and take on somebody who is quite young and see what he does?” (Roger L. Stevens). go for it. Informal. To expend all one’s strength and resources toward achievement of an end or purpose. go in for. 12. To have interest in: goes in for classical music. 13. To take part in: goes in for water skiing. go it alone. To undertake a project, trip, or responsibility without the presence or help of others. go off the deep end. To behave hysterically or very recklessly. go one better. To surpass or outdo by one degree: He’s gone me one better. go out for. To seek to become a participant in: go out for varsity soccer. go out of (one’s) way. To inconvenience oneself in doing something beyond what is required. go out the window. Informal. To become insignificant or inoperative: “As soon as a third body is introduced to the Newtonian system, all lawful ordering of processes goes out the window” (Fusion). go places. Informal. To be on the way to success: a young executive who is clearly going places. go steady. To date someone exclusively. go the distance. To carry a course of action through to completion. go the vole. To risk all of one’s resources in the prospect of achieving great gains. go to pieces. 24. To lose one’s self-control. 25. To suffer the loss of one’s health. go to the mat. Informal. To fight or dispute until one side or another is victorious: The governor will go to the mat with the legislature over the controversial spending bill. go to town. Informal. 27. To work or perform efficiently and rapidly. 28. To be highly successful. go up in flames (or go up in smoke). To be utterly destroyed. go without saying. To be self-evident: It goes without saying that success is the product of hard work. on the go. Constantly busy or active. to go. To be taken out, as restaurant food or drink: coffee and doughnuts to go. [Middle English gon, from Old English gān. See ghē- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Go has long been used to describe the production of nonlinguistic noises, as in The train went “toot.” The cow goes “moo.” In recent years, however, younger speakers have extended this use of go to the report of speech, as in Then he goes, “You think you’re real smart, don’t you.” For speakers young enough to get away with it, this usage serves a useful purpose in informal spoken narrative as an explicit indicator of a direct quotation, particularly when the speaker wishes to mimic the accent or intonation of the original spoken source. Largely restricted to the “narrative present” used in vivid description, it is highly inappropriate in formal speech or writing.

go² (gō) n. Games. A Japanese game for two, played with counters on a board that is ruled with 19 vertical and 19 horizontal lines. [Japanese.]

go·a (gō'ə) n. A gazelle (Procapra picticaudata) native to Tibet and having backward-curving horns in the male. [Tibetan dgoba.]

Go·a (gō'ə) A former Portuguese colony (1510-1961) of southwest India on the Malabar Coast.

goad (gōd) n. 1. A long stick with a pointed end used for prodding animals. 2. An agent or means of prodding or urging; a stimulus. — v. tr. goad·ed, goad·ing, goads. To prod or urge with or as if with a long pointed stick. [Middle English gode, from Old English gād.]

Goa, Da·man, and Di·u (də-män' də-män' ənd də'ōō) A union territory of southwest India on the Malabar Coast of the Arabian Sea. Formerly three non-contiguous Portuguese colonies, the territory was formally annexed by India in 1962.

go·a·head (gō'ə-hěd') Informal. n. 1. Permission to proceed: waiting for the go-ahead from the control tower. 2. Energetic assertiveness. — adj. Characterized by energy and assertiveness: a go-ahead marketing strategy.

goal (gōl) n. 1. The purpose toward which an endeavor is directed; an objective. See Synonyms at intention. 2. Sports. a. The finish line of a race. b. A specified structure or zone into or over which players endeavor to advance a ball or puck. c. The score awarded for such an act. [Middle English gol, boundary, possibly from Old English gāl*, barrier.]

goal·ie (gō'lē) n. Sports. See goalkeeper.

goal·keep·er (gōl'kē'pər) n. Sports. A player assigned to protect the goal in various sports. Also called goalie, goaltender, netkeeper.

goal kick (gōl kīk) n. Sports. A free kick that is awarded to a defensive soccer player when the ball has been driven out of bounds over the end line by an opponent.

goal line (gōl līn) n. Sports. 1. A line located at either end and typically running the width of a playing area, on which a goal post or goal is positioned.

2. Football. A line at either end of the playing field over which the ball must be carried or passed to score a touchdown.

goal post (gōl pōst) n. Sports. One of a pair of posts often joined with a crossbar and set at each end of a playing field to form a goal.

goal·tend·er (gōl'těn'dər) n. Sports. See goalkeeper.

goal·tend·ing (gōl'těn'dīng) n. 1. Sports. The act of protecting a goal, as in hockey and other such sports. 2. Basketball. An illegal play in which a player deflects a ball that is on the downward path to the basket or that is already on the rim of the basket, carrying the penalty of an automatic score when committed by the defense or nullifying the field goal when committed by the offense.

go-a-round (gō'ə-round') n. 1. An argument; a go-round. 2. An evasive excuse; a runaround.

goat (gōt) n. 1. Any of various hollow-horned, bearded ruminant mammals of the genus Capra, originally of mountainous regions of the Old World, especially any of the domesticated forms of C. hircus, raised for wool, milk, and meat. 2. A lecherous man. 3. A scapegoat. [Middle English got, from Old English gāt.]
—goat'ish adj.

Goat (gōt) n. See Capricorn.

goat antelope (gōt ăn'tl-ōp') n. Any of various wild ruminant mammals, such as the mountain goat or the chamois, having characteristics of both goats and antelopes.

goat-ee (gō-tē') n. A small chin beard trimmed into a point. [Alteration of goaty (from GOAT, from its resemblance to a goat's beard).]

WORD HISTORY: When assessing American contributions to the English language and to fashion, let us not forget the goatee. Early comments on this style of beard appear first in American writings, making this word an Americanism. Although the style raises few eyebrows now, the early comments were not favorable: "One chap's... rigged out like a show monkey, with a little tag of hair hangin down under his chin jest like our old billy goat, that's a leetle too smart for this latitude, I think." This 1842 description, found in William Tappan Thompson's Major Jones's Courtship, also reveals the etymology of the word. The first actual recorded occurrence of the word, found in Daniel Lee and Joseph H. Frost's Ten Years in Oregon, published in 1844, also sounds disapproving: "A few individuals... leave what is called, by some of their politer neighbors, a 'goaty' under the chin."

goat-fish (gōt'fīsh') n. pl. goatfish or goat-fish-es. Any of various brightly colored fishes of the family Mullidae of warm seas, having two sensory barbels on the chin. Also called red mullet, surmullet.

Goat Island (gōt ī'lənd) An island of western New York in the Niagara River dividing Niagara Falls into the American and Canadian falls.

goats-beard also goat's-beard (gōts'bīrd') n. 1. A European weed (Tragopogon pratensis) widely naturalized in eastern North America, having grasslike leaves and yellow, dandelionlike flower heads. 2. A tall dioecious plant (Aruncus dioicus) native to the eastern United States, having bipinnately compound leaves and a large panicle of small white flowers.

goat-skin (gōt'skīn') n. 1. The skin of a goat. 2. Leather made from a goat-skin. 3. A container, as for wine, made from a goatskin.

goat's rue (gōts' rōō) n. 1. A North American plant (Tephrosia virginiana) having large yellow flowers marked with purple and grouped in a terminal raceme or panicle. 2. A Eurasian plant (Galega officinalis) cultivated for its showy, variously colored flowers or as food for livestock.

goat-suck-er (gōt'sūk'ər) n. Any of various chiefly nocturnal, insectivorous birds of the family Caprimulgidae, which includes the nighthawk and the whip-poorwill. [Translation of Greek aigothēlas: aigos, goat + -thēlas, sucker (from thēlē, teat, from the belief that the bird sucked milk from goats).]

gob¹ (gōb) n. 1. A small mass or lump. 2. Often gobs. Informal. A large quantity: a gob of money; gobs of time. [Middle English gobbe, probably from Old French gobe, mouthful, from gober, to gulp, of Celtic origin.]

gob² (gōb) n. Slang. The mouth. [Perhaps from Scottish and Irish Gaelic.]

gob³ (gōb) n. Slang. A sailor. [Origin unknown.]

Go-bat (gō-bä'), Charles Albert. 1834-1914. Swiss politician and noted advocate of world peace. He shared the 1902 Nobel Peace Prize.

gob-bet (gōb'it) n. 1. A piece or chunk, especially of raw meat. 2. A bit or morsel: a diary containing gobbets of useful information. 3. A small amount of liquid; a drop. [Middle English gobet, from Old French, diminutive of gobe, mouthful. See GOB¹.]

gob-ble¹ (gōb'əl) v. gob-bled, gob-bling, gob-bles. — v. tr. 1. To devour in large, greedy gulps. 2. To take greedily; grab: gobbled up the few remaining tickets. — v. intr. To eat greedily or rapidly. [Frequentative of Middle English gobben, to drink greedily, probably from gobbe, lump, mouthful. See GOB¹.]

gob-ble² (gōb'əl) n. The guttural, chortling sound of a male turkey. — v. intr.

gob-bled, gob-bling, gob-bles. To make this sound. [Imitative.]

gob-ble-dy-gook also gob-ble-de-gook (gōb'əl-dē-gōök') n. Unclear, wordy jargon. [Imitative of the gobbling of a turkey.]

gob-bler (gōb'lər) n. A male turkey.

Go-be-lin (gō'bə-līn, gōb'ə-) n. A tapestry of a kind woven at the Gobelin works in Paris, France, noted for rich pictorial design.

go-be-tween (gō'bī-twēn') n. One who acts as an intermediary or messenger between two sides.

Go-bi (gō'bē) A desert of southeast Mongolia and northern China. It consists mainly of a series of shallow alkaline basins.

gob-let (gōb'līt) n. 1. A drinking vessel, such as a glass, that has a stem and base. 2. Archaic. A drinking bowl without handles. [Middle English gobelet, from Old French, diminutive of gobel, cup, probably of Celtic origin.]

goblet cell (gōb'līt sēl) n. Any of the specialized epithelial cells found in the mucous membrane of the stomach, intestines, and respiratory passages that secrete mucus. [From its shape.]

gob·lin (gōb'lin) n. A grotesque, elfin creature of folklore, thought to work mischief or evil. [Middle English gobelin, from Norman French gobelin*, name of a ghost that supposedly haunted the town of Évreux in the 12th century.]

go·by (gō'bē) n. pl. goby or go·bies. Any of numerous usually small spiny-finned fishes of the family Gobiidae, having the pelvic fins united to form a suction disk. [Latin gōbius, gudgeon, from Greek kōbios.]

go·by (gō'bī') n. Informal. An intentional slight; a snub.

go·cart (gō'kärt') n. 1. A small wagon for children to ride in, drive, or pull.

2. A small frame on casters designed to help support a child learning to walk.

3. A handcart. 4. A stroller.

go cup (gō küp) n. New Orleans. An alcoholic beverage provided in a plastic cup for a patron who wishes to take the drink out.

god (gōd) n. 1. God. a. A being conceived as the perfect, omnipotent, omniscient originator and ruler of the universe, the principal object of faith and worship in monotheistic religions. b. The force, effect, or a manifestation or aspect of this being. c. Christian Science. "Infinite Mind; Spirit; Soul; Principle; Life; Truth; Love" (Mary Baker Eddy). 2. A being of supernatural powers or attributes, believed in and worshiped by a people, especially a male deity thought to control some part of nature or reality. 3. An image of a supernatural being; an idol. 4. One that is worshiped, idealized, or followed: money was their god. 5. A very handsome man. 6. A powerful ruler or despot. [Middle English, from Old English. See gheu(ə)- in Appendix.]

God·al·might·y (gōd'ōl-mī'tē) interj. Used to express extreme surprise or dismay.

Go·dard (gō-där'), Jean Luc. Born 1930. French filmmaker known for his innovative cinematic and narrative technique. His films, such as Breathless (1959) and Every Man for Himself (1980), chronicle the evolution of his political radicalism.

Go·da·va·ri (gō-dä'və-rē) A river of central India flowing about 1,448 km (900 mi) from the Western Ghats southeast across the Deccan Plateau to the Bay of Bengal.

God·aw·ful (gōd'ō'fəl) adj. Slang. Extremely trying; atrocious.

god·child (gōd'chīld') n. A person for whom another serves as sponsor at baptism.

god·damn also God·damn (gōd'dām') interj. Used to express extreme displeasure, anger, or surprise. — n. Damn. — v. tr. intr. god·damned, god·damn·ing, god·damns. To damn. — adj. Variant of goddamned.

god·damned (gōd'dāmd') or god·damn (-dām') adj. Damned.

—god'damned', god'dam' adv.

God·dard (gɔd'ərd), Robert Hutchings. 1882-1945. American physicist who developed and launched the first successful liquid-fueled rocket (1926) and invented numerous rocketry devices.

god·daugh·ter (gɔd'də'tər) n. A female godchild.

god·dess (gɔd'is) n. 1. A female being of supernatural powers or attributes, believed in and worshiped by a people. 2. An image of a female supernatural being; an idol. 3. Something, such as fame or wealth, that is worshiped or idealized. 4. A woman of great beauty or grace.

go·dev·il (gə'dev'əl) n. 1. A logging sled. 2. A railway handcar. 3. A jointed tool for cleaning an oil pipeline and disengaging obstructions. 4. An iron dart dropped into an oil well to explode a charge of dynamite.

Go·dey (gə'dē), Louis Antoine. 1804-1878. American publisher who cofounded (1830) Godey's Lady's Book, the first American women's magazine.

god·fa·ther (gɔd'fä'thər) n. 1. A man who sponsors a person at baptism. 2. One that has a relationship to another person or to something that is the equivalent of being a baptismal sponsor: the godfather of a new generation of nuclear physicists. 3. Slang. The leader of an organized crime family. — v. tr.

god·fa·thered, god·fa·ther·ing, god·fa·thers. To serve as or as if a godfather to.

god·for·sak·en also God·for·sak·en (gɔd'fər-sä'kən) adj. 1. Located in a dismal or remote area. 2. Desolate; forlorn.

God·frey of Bouil·lon (gɔd'frē ʊf bō-yôn'), 1061?-1100. French leader of the First Crusade (1096-1099) who was proclaimed "Protector of the Holy Sepulchre" after the capture of Jerusalem.

god·head (gɔd'hēd') n. 1. Divinity; godhood. 2. Godhead. a. The Christian God, especially the Trinity. b. The essential and divine nature of God, regarded abstractly. [Middle English godhode, godhede, from Old English godhād: god, god; see GOD + -hād, -hood.]

god·hood (gɔd'hōd') n. The quality or state of being a god; divinity.

god·less (gɔd'lis) adj. 1. Recognizing or worshiping no god. 2. Wicked, impious, or immoral. —god·less·ly adv. —god·less·ness n.

god·like (gɔd'lik') adj. Resembling or of the nature of a god or God; divine. —god·like·ness n.

god·ling (gɔd'lɪŋ) n. A minor god.

god·ly (gɔd'li) adj. god·li·er, god·li·est. 1. Having great reverence for God; pious. 2. Divine. —god·li·ness n.

god·moth·er (gɔd'mʊth'ər) n. 1. A woman who sponsors a person at baptism. 2. One that has a relationship to another person or to something that is the equivalent of being a baptismal sponsor: the godmother to a new generation of physicians. — v. tr. god·moth·ered, god·moth·er·ing, god·moth·ers. To serve as or as if a godmother to.

Go·dol·phin (gə-dōl'fɪn), Sidney First Earl of Godolphin. 1645-1712. English politician and financier who served as treasurer for Charles II, James II, William III, and Anne.

god·ox·ious (gɒd-ɒk'shəs) adj. Informal. Extremely distasteful and repellent: “sixteen godoxious syrups in a thimble of soda” (Padgett Powell). [Probably GOD(-AWFUL) + (OBN)OXIOUS.]

Go·doy (gō-doi', gô-thoi'), Manuel de. 1767-1851. Spanish politician whose alliance with Napoleon I against Great Britain led to the defeat of French and Spanish naval forces at Trafalgar (1805).

Godoy Cruz (gō-doi' krōōz', krōōs') A city of western Argentina, a manufacturing suburb of Mendoza. Population, 141,553.

god·par·ent (gɒd'pâr'ənt, -pâr'-) n. A godfather or a godmother.

God's acre (gɒdz ā'kær) n. A churchyard or burial ground. [Translation of German Gottesacker : Gottes, genitive of Gott, god + Acker, field.]

god·send (gɒd'sënd') n. Something wanted or needed that comes or happens unexpectedly. [Alteration of Middle English goddes sand, God's message : goddes, genitive of God, God; see GOD + sand, message (from Old English); see sent- in Appendix.]

god·son (gɒd'sŭn') n. A male godchild.

God·speed (gɒd'spēd') n. Success or good fortune. [Middle English God spede (you), may God prosper (you) : God, god; see GOD + spede, third person sing. present subjunctive of speden, to prosper (from Old English spēdan, from spēd, success); see SPEED.]

Godt·håb (gôt'hôp') The capital of Greenland, on the southwest coast of the island on Godthåb Fjord. The town was founded in 1721. Population, 10,559.

Go·du·nov (gōd'n-ôf', gɒd'-, gə-dōō-nôf'), Boris Fyodorovich. 1551?-1605. Czar of Russia (1598-1605) who became regent for Fyodor I (1557-1598) on the death of Ivan IV (1584) and was chosen czar on Fyodor's death. His reign was marked by the colonization of Siberia and the reclamation of land in Sweden.

God·win (gɒd'wɪn), William. 1756-1836. British writer and political theorist who believed in the perfectibility of human nature and maintained that people could live harmoniously without laws and institutions. His most important work is Enquiry Concerning Political Justice (1793).

Godwin Aus·ten (gɒd'wɪn ô'stən), Mount. See K2.

god·wit (gɒd'wɪt') n. Any of various large shore birds of the genus Limosa, having a long, slender, slightly upturned bill. [Origin unknown.]

Goeb·bels (gœ'bæls), (Paul) Joseph. 1897-1945. German Nazi propaganda minister (1933-1945) who exploited the German radio, press, cinema, and theater to launch propaganda against the Jews and other groups. Intensely loyal to Hitler, he killed his family and himself after Germany's defeat.

Goe·ring (gër'ĩng, gûr'-, gœ'rĩng), Hermann Wilhelm. See Hermann Wilhelm Göring.

goes (gōz) v. Third person singular present tense of go¹.

Goes (gōos), Hugo van der. 1440?-1482. Flemish painter whose emotive, spiritual works include The Adoration of the Shepherds (c. 1476).

Goe·thals (gō'thəlz), George Washington. 1858-1928. American army officer and engineer who directed the construction of the Panama Canal (1907-1914).

Goe·the (gœ'tə), Johann Wolfgang von. 1749-1832. German writer and scientist. A master of poetry, drama, and the novel, he spent 50 years on his two-part dramatic poem Faust (published 1808 and 1832). He also conducted scientific research in various fields, notably botany, and held several governmental positions. —Goe'the·an (-tēən) adj.

goe·thite (gō'thīt', gœ'tīt') n. A red, yellow, or brown mineral, essentially HFeO_2 , one of the common constituents of rust. [After Johann Wolfgang von Goethe.]

go·fast (gō'făst') n. Nautical. A sleek, high-performance motorboat, often used in smuggling operations.

go·fer also go·fer (gō'fər) n. Slang. An employee who runs errands in addition to performing regular duties. [Alteration of go for, from that person's having to go for or after things.]

gof·fer also gauf·fer (gǒf'ər, gô'fər) v. tr. gof·fered, gof·fer·ing, gof·fers. To press ridges or narrow pleats into (a frill, for example). — n. 1. An iron used for pressing ridges or narrow pleats. 2. Ridges or pleats produced in this manner. [French gaufre, to emboss, from Old French, from gaufre, honeycomb, waffle; akin to Middle Low German wāfel. See webh- in Appendix.]

go·get·ter (gō'gět'ər, -gět'-) n. Informal. An enterprising person.

gog·gle (gǒg'əl) v. gog·gled, gog·gling, gog·gles. — v. intr. 1. To stare with wide and bulging eyes. 2. To roll or bulge. Used of the eyes. — v. tr. To roll or bulge (the eyes). — n. 1. A stare or leer. 2. goggles. A pair of tight-fitting eyeglasses, often tinted or having side shields, worn to protect the eyes from hazards such as dust, glare, or flying debris. [Middle English gogelen, to squint.] —gog'gly adj.

gog·gle·eyed (gǒg'əl-īd') adj. Having prominent or rolling eyes.

Gogh (gō, gôKH, KHôKH), Vincent van. See Vincent van Gogh.

go·go¹ also go·go (gō'gō') adj. Informal. Of or relating to discotheques or to the energetic music and dancing performed at discotheques. [From À GOGO.]

go·go² also go·go (gō'gō') adj. Informal. 1. Marked by assertive action: a go-go sales executive. 2. a. Of, relating to, or engaging in a type of speculative, short-term stock-market operation: a go-go fund. b. Characterized by the fast growth and development that invites speculative investment: go-go industries such as microprocessing and laser technology. [Intensive reduplication of GO¹ (influenced by GO-GO¹).]

Go·gol (gō'gəl, gō'gōl), Nikolai Vasilievich. 1809-1852. Russian writer considered the founder of realism in Russian literature. His works include the short stories "Diary of a Madman" (1835) and "The Overcoat" (1842) and the novel Dead Souls (1842).

Gog·ra (gög'rə, -rā) See Ghaghara.

Goi·â·ni·a (goi-ăn'ē-ə, -ă'nē-ə) A city of south-central Brazil southwest of Brasília. It is a shipping and processing center in an agricultural and cattle-raising region. Population, 702,858.

Goi·del·ic (goi-děl'ik) n. A branch of the Celtic languages that includes Irish Gaelic, Scottish Gaelic, and Manx. — adj. 1. Of or relating to the Gaels. 2. Of, relating to, or characteristic of Goidelic. [From Old Irish Goídil, Gael, possibly from Old Welsh -guoidel, Gwyddel.]

go·ing (gō'ing) n. 1. Departure: comings and goings. 2. The condition underfoot as it affects one's headway in walking or riding: Once we left the trail the going was rough. 3. Informal. Progress toward a goal; headway: It was easy going during my senior year. — adj. 1. Working; running: a machine in going order. 2. In full operation; flourishing: a going business. 3. Current; prevailing: The going rates are high. 4. To be found; available: the best products going. — idiom. going on. Approaching: The child is six, going on seven years of age.

go·ing·o·ver (gō'ing-ō'vər) n. pl. go·ings·o·ver (gō'ingz-). Informal. 1. An examination; an inspection. 2. a. A severe beating. b. A severe reprimand.

go·ings·on (gō'ingz-ŏn', -ŏn') pl.n. Informal. Actions or behavior, especially when regarded with disapproval: "cool observers of nutty goings-on" (Variety).

goi·ter (goi'tər) n. A noncancerous enlargement of the thyroid gland, visible as a swelling at the front of the neck, that is often associated with iodine deficiency. Also called struma [French goitre, from Provençal goitron, from Vulgar Latin guttūriō*, guttūriōn-, throat, from Latin guttur.] — goi'trous (-trəs) adj.

Go·lan Heights (gō'län' hīts) An upland region between northeast Israel and southwest Syria northeast of the Sea of Galilee. Fortified by Syria after 1948, the area was captured by Israel in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War and formally annexed by that country in 1981.

Gol·con·da¹ (göl-kŏn'də) A ruined city of south-central India west of Hyderabad. Capital of an ancient kingdom (c. 1364-1512), it was later one of the five Muslim kingdoms of the Deccan until its capture by Aurangzeb's forces in 1687. Golconda was once known for the diamonds found nearby and cut in the city.

Gol·con·da² (göl-kŏn'də) n. A source of great riches, such as a mine. [After Golconda¹.]

gold (göld) n. 1. a. Symbol Au A soft, yellow, corrosion-resistant element, the most malleable and ductile metal, occurring in veins and alluvial deposits and recovered by mining or by panning or sluicing. A good thermal and electrical conductor, gold is generally alloyed to increase its strength, and it is used as an international monetary standard, in jewelry, for decoration, and as a plated coating on a wide variety of electrical and mechanical components. Atomic number 79; atomic weight 196.967; melting point 1,063.0°C; boiling point 2,966.0°C; specific gravity 19.32; valence 1, 3. b. Coinage made of this element. c. A gold standard. 2. Money; riches. 3. Color. A light olive-brown to dark yellow, or a moderate, strong to vivid yellow. 4. Something regarded as having great value or goodness: a heart of gold. 5. a. A medal, as in the Olympics, made of gold: won 9 golds in 13 events. b. A gold record. — adj. Having the color of gold. [Middle English, from Old English. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

gold·beat·ing (gōld'bē'tīng) n. The act, process, or art of beating sheets of gold into gold leaf. — gold'beat'er n.

gold beetle (gōld bēt'l) n. See gold bug (n., sense 1).

Gold·berg (gōld'bərg), Arthur Joseph. 1908-1990. American jurist and diplomat who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1962-1965) and a U.S. representative to the United Nations (1965-1968).

Gold·berg (gōld'bərg), Reuben Lucius. Known as “Rube.” 1883-1970. American cartoonist noted for his intricate diagrams of complicated, impractical contraptions designed to effect comparatively simple results.

Gold·berg·er (gōld'bûr-gər), Joseph. 1874-1929. Austrian-born American physician who determined that pellagra is a deficiency disease treatable with a diet supplemented with yeast or other niacin-rich foods.

gold·brick (gōld'brik') Slang. n. A person, especially a soldier, who avoids assigned duties or work; a shirker. — v. gold·bricked, gold·brick·ing, gold·bricks. — v. intr. To shirk one's assigned duties or responsibilities. — v. tr. To cheat; swindle. — gold'brick'er n.

gold brick (gōld brik) n. 1. A bar of gilded cheap metal that appears to be genuine gold. 2. A fraudulent, worthless substitute.

gold bug (gōld būg) n. 1. Any of several North American beetles, especially Metriona bicolor, having a golden metallic luster. Also called gold beetle 2. A supporter of the gold standard. 3. A speculator in or a purchaser of gold.

gold coast (gōld kōst) n. Informal. 1. A rich neighborhood. 2. The executive suite or suites in a company's headquarters. [After Gold Coast.]

Gold Coast (gōld kōst) 1. A section of coastal western Africa along the Gulf of Guinea on the southern shore of Ghana. It was named for the large quantities of gold formerly found in the area and brought to the coast for sale. 2. A former British colony in the southern part of the Gold Coast, now part of Ghana.

gold digger (gōld dīg'ər) n. Informal. A woman who seeks money and expensive gifts from men.

gold dust (gōld düst) n. Gold in powdered form.

gold·en (gōl'dən) adj. 1. Of, relating to, made of, or containing gold.

2. a. Color. Having the color of gold or a yellow color suggestive of gold.

b. Lustrous; radiant: the golden sun. c. Suggestive of gold, as in richness or splendor: a golden voice. 3. Of the greatest value or importance; precious. 4. Marked by peace, prosperity, and often creativeness: a golden era. 5. Very favorable or advantageous; excellent: a golden opportunity. 6. Having a promising future; seemingly assured of success: a golden generation. 7. Of or relating to a 50th anniversary. —gold'en-ly adv. —gold'en-ness n.

golden age (gōl'dən āj) n. 1. A period of great peace, prosperity, and happiness. 2. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. The first age of the world, an untroubled and prosperous era during which people lived in ideal happiness.

golden ager (gōl'dən ā'jər) n. A senior citizen.

golden Al·ex·an·ders (gōl'dən əl'ig-zăn'dərz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.) An herb (Zizia aurea) of eastern North America, having compound umbels of small yellow flowers and ternately compound leaves. [Middle English alisaundre, probably from Medieval Latin (petroselinum) Alexandrīnum, horse-parsley, after ALEXANDER III¹.]

golden aster (gōl'dən əs'tər) n. Any of various North American plants of the genus Chrysopsis having yellow, rayed flower heads.

golden bantam (gōl'dən băn'təm) n. A variety of corn having large, bright-yellow kernels on a relatively small ear.

golden calf (gōl'dən kăf) n. 1. A golden image of a sacrificial calf fashioned by Aaron and worshiped by the Israelites. 2. a. Money as an object of worship; mammon. b. The subject of intense veneration: "Arms control... has evolved [into] the golden calf of liberalism" (Patrick J. Buchanan).

golden chinquapin (gōl'dən çĩng'kə-pĩn') n. See chinquapin (n., sense 2).

golden club (gōl'dən klüb) n. An aquatic plant (Orontium aquaticum) of the eastern United States, having a clublike, golden-yellow spadix, small blue-green berries, and floating leaves.

golden eagle (gōl'dən ē'gəl) n. A large eagle (Aquila chrysaetos) of mountainous areas of the Northern Hemisphere, having dark plumage with brownish-yellow feathers on the back of the head and neck.

gol·den·eye (gōl'dən-ī') n. 1. Either of two diving ducks (Bucephala clangula or B. islandica) of northern regions, having a short black bill, a rounded head, and yellow eyes. 2. Any of various lacewings of the family Chrysopidae having yellow or copper-colored eyes. [From their golden-yellow eyes.]

Gold·en Fleece (gōl'dən flēs) n. Greek Mythology. The fleece of the golden ram, stolen by Jason and the Argonauts from the king of Colchis.

Golden Gate (gōl'dən gāt) A strait in western California connecting the Pacific Ocean and San Francisco Bay. Discovered in 1579 by Sir Francis Drake, it was known as the Golden Gate long before the name gained new popularity during the gold rush of 1849.

golden glow (gōl'dən glō) n. A tall plant (Rudbeckia laciniata) cultivated for its large, yellow, many-rayed double flower heads.

golden handcuffs (gōl'dən händ'küfs') pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Slang. A lucrative incentive to an executive intended to discourage resignation or ensure long-term cooperation after departure.

golden handshake (gōl'dən händ'shāk') n. Slang. A lucrative severance agreement offered to an employee typically as an inducement to retire.

Golden Horde (gōl'dən hôrd) n. The Mongol army that swept over eastern Europe in the 13th century and established a suzerain in Russia.

Golden Horn (gōl'dən hôrn) An inlet of the Bosphorus in northwest Turkey forming the harbor of Istanbul.

golden mean (gōl'dən mēn) n. The course between extremes.

golden needles (gōl'dən nēd'lz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). See enokidake.

golden oak mushroom (gōl'dən ōk mūsh'rōom') n. See shiitake.

golden oldie (gōl'dən ōl'dē) n. A recording, movie, or other form of entertainment that was very popular in the past.

golden parachute (gōl'dən pără'shōot') n. Slang. An employment agreement that guarantees a key executive lucrative severance benefits if control of the company changes hands followed by management shifts.

golden pheasant (gōl'dən fēz'ənt) n. A pheasant (Chrysolophus pictus) of China and Tibet that has a long tail and brilliantly colored plumage.

gold-en-rod (gōl'dən-rōd') n. Any of numerous chiefly North American plants of the genus Solidago, having clusters of small yellow flower heads that bloom in late summer or fall.

golden rule (gōl'dən rōol) n. The biblical teaching that one should behave toward others as one would have others behave toward oneself.

gold-en-seal (gōl'dən-sēl') n. A woodland plant (Hydrastis canadensis) of eastern North America, having small greenish-white flowers and a yellow root formerly used medicinally. Also called orangeroot golden section (gōl'dən sēk'shən) n. A ratio, observed especially in the fine arts, between the two dimensions of a plane figure or the two divisions of a line such that the smaller is to the larger as the larger is to the sum of the two, a ratio of roughly three to five.

golden umbrella (gōl'dən ūm-brēl'ə) n. Slang. A golden parachute.

Golden Valley (gōl'dən vāl'ē) A city of southeast Minnesota, a suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 20,971.

gold-field (gōld'fēld') n. An area containing abundant deposits of gold or gold ore.

gold-filled (gōld'fīld') adj. Made of a hard base metal with an outer layer of gold.

gold·finch (gōld'fīnch') n. 1. Any of several small American finches of the genus Carduelis, especially C. tristis, of which the male has yellow plumage with a black forehead, wings, and tail. 2. A small Eurasian finch (Carduelis carduelis) having brownish plumage with black wings boldly marked with yellow and a red patch across the face.

gold·fish (gōld'fīsh') n. pl. goldfish or gold·fish·es. A freshwater fish (Carassius auratus) native to eastern Asia, characteristically having brassy or reddish coloring and bred in many ornamental forms as an aquarium fish.

gold foil (gōld foil) n. Gold rolled or beaten into sheets somewhat thicker than gold leaf.

gold·i·locks (gōl'dē-lōks') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A European plant (Aster linosyris) having narrow, sessile leaves and dense corymbs of small, bright yellow, discoid flower heads. [Middle English goldi, golden (from gold, gold); see GOLD + locks, pl. of LOCK².]

Gold·ing (gōl'dīng), William Gerald. 1911-1993. British writer noted for his dark novels, such as The Lord of the Flies (1954) and Pincher Martin (1956). He won the 1983 Nobel Prize for literature.

gold leaf (gōld lēf) n. Gold beaten into extremely thin sheets used especially for gilding.

Gold·man (gōld'mən), Emma. 1869-1940. Russian-born American anarchist. Jailed repeatedly for her advocacy of birth control and opposition to military conscription, she was deported to the Soviet Union in 1919. Her writings include My Disillusionment in Russia (1923) and Living My Life (1931).

gold mine (gōld mīn) n. Informal. A rich or plentiful source of something desired.

gold-of-pleas·ure (gōld'əv-plēzh'ər) n. A Eurasian plant (Camelina sativa) having small yellow flowers and seeds rich in oil.

Gol·do·ni (gōl-dō'nē), Carlo. 1707-1793. Italian dramatist who wrote more than 250 plays, including 150 comedies, such as The Mistress of the Inn (1753).

gold rush (gōld rŭsh) n. 1. A rush of migrants to an area where gold has been discovered. 2. Headlong pursuit of wealth and success: a gold rush on Wall Street.

Golds·bor·o (gōldz'bŭr'ō) A city of east-central North Carolina southeast of Raleigh. It is a manufacturing center and marketplace for a tobacco-growing region. Population, 40,709.

gold·smith (gōld'smith') n. 1. An artisan who fashions objects of gold. 2. A trader or dealer in gold articles.

Gold·smith (gōld'smith'), Oliver. 1730?-1774. British writer whose literary reputation rests on his novel The Vicar of Wakefield (1766), the pastoral poem goldsmith beetle (gōld'smith' bēt'l) n. Either of two scarabaeid beetles (Cotalpa lanigera or Cetonia aurata) having metallic greenish-yellow coloring.

The Deserted Village (1770), and the dramatic comedy She Stoops to Conquer (1773).

gold standard (gōld stān'dərd) n. A monetary standard under which the basic unit of currency is equal in value to and exchangeable for a specified amount of gold.

Gold·stein (gōld'stēn), Joseph Leonard. Born 1940. American biochemist. He shared a 1985 Nobel Prize for discoveries related to cholesterol metabolism.

gold·stone (gōld'stōn') n. An aventurine with gold-colored inclusions.

gold·thread (gōld'thrēd') n. Any of several plants of the genus Coptis, having white flowers, slender yellow roots, ternately divided evergreen leaves, and clusters of follicles.

Gold·wa·ter (gōld'wô'tər, -wōt'ər), Barry Morris. Born 1909. American politician. A conservative Republican, he served as U.S. senator from Arizona (1953-1965 and 1969-1987) and ran unsuccessfully for President in 1964.

Gold·wyn (gōld'wĭn), Samuel. 1882-1974. Polish-born American film producer who founded his own film company (1917) and merged with Louis B. Mayer to form Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer (1925). His many productions include The Best Years of Our Lives (1946), for which he won an Academy Award.

go·lem (gō'ləm) n. In Jewish folklore, an artificially created human being supernaturally endowed with life. [Hebrew gōlem, lump, clod, fool, from gālam, to wrap up.]

Go·le·ta (gō-lē'tə) A city of southern California on the Pacific Ocean west of Santa Barbara. It is a trade center for an agricultural region. Population, 28,100.

golf (gōlf, gōlf) n. Sports. A game played on a large outdoor course with a series of 9 or 18 holes spaced far apart, the object being to propel a small, hard ball with the use of various clubs into each hole with as few strokes as possible. — v. intr.

golfed, golf·ing, golfs. To play this game. [Middle English.] —golf'er n.

golf club (gōlf klüb) n. Sports. 1. One of a set of clubs having a slender shaft and a head of wood or iron, used in golf. 2. An organization of golfers.

golf course (gōlf kôrs) n. Sports. A large tract of land laid out for golf. Also called golflinks golf·links (gōlf'lĭngks', gōlf'-) pl.n. Sports. See golf course.

Gol·gi (gōl'jē), Camillo. 1844?-1926. Italian histologist. He shared a 1906 Nobel Prize for research on the structure of the nervous system.

Golgi apparatus (gōl'jē äp'ə-rā'təs) n. A network of stacked membranous vesicles present in most living cells that functions in the formation of secretions within the cell. Also called Golgi body, Golgi complex. [After Camillo GOLGI.] gol·go·tha (gōl'gə-thə) n. A place or occasion of great suffering. [After Golgotha (Calvary).]

Gol-go·tha (göl'gə-thə, göl-göth'ə) See Calvary¹.

gol·iard (göl'yərd, -yär') n. A wandering student in medieval Europe disposed to conviviality, license, and the making of ribald and satirical Latin songs. [Middle English, from Old French, glutton, goliard, from gole, throat, from Latin gula.] —gol·iar'dic (göl-yär'dīk) adj.

Go·li·ath¹ (gə-lī'əth) In the Old Testament, a giant Philistine warrior who was slain by David with a stone and sling.

Go·li·ath² (gə-lī'əth) n. A person or thing of colossal power or achievement.

gol·li·wog or gol·li·wogg (göl'ē-wög') n. A doll fashioned in grotesque caricature of a Black male. [After Golliwog, a character in books by Florence Upton (died 1922), American illustrator.]

gol·ly (göl'ē) interj. Used to express mild surprise or wonder. [Alteration of GOD.]

gom·been (göm-bēn') n. Irish. Usury. [Irish Gaelic gaimbín, diminutive of gamba, leg, lump (perhaps influenced by glamba, heap).]

Go·mel (gō'məl, gō'-, gō'myīl) A city of eastern Belarus southeast of Minsk. First mentioned in 1142, it was controlled alternately by Russia and Poland, passing finally to Russia in 1772. Population, 465,000.

Gó·mez (gō'měz, -mēs), Juan Vicente. 1857?-1935. Venezuelan guerrilla leader who seized the presidency in 1908 and ruled tyrannically until his death. His reign was marked by increased economic stability and industrialization.

Gómez Pa·la·ci·o (gō'měz pə-lä'sē-ō, pä-lä'syô) A city of north-central Mexico west of Monterrey. It is a processing and transportation center in an agricultural region. Population, 116,967.

Go·mor·rah¹ (gə-môr'ə, -mör'ə) An ancient city of Palestine near Sodom, possibly covered by the waters of the Dead Sea. According to the Old Testament, the city was destroyed by fire because of its wickedness.

Go·mor·rah² (gə-môr'ə, -mör'ə) n. A wicked or depraved place: “confirmed my fantasy of Hollywood as both Oz and Gomorrah” (Julie Salamon).

Gom·pers (göm'pərz), Samuel. 1850-1924. British-born American labor leader who as president of the American Federation of Labor (1886-1924, except 1895) won higher wages, shorter hours, and greater freedom for union members.

gom·pho·sis (göm-fō'sīs) n. pl. gom·pho·ses (-sēz). Anatomy. A type of immovable articulation, as of a tooth inserted into its bony socket. [Greek gomphōsis, from gomphoun, to fasten with bolts, from gomphos, bolt. See gembh- in Appendix.]

Go·mul·ka (gō-mōl'kə, gə-), Wladyslaw. 1905-1982. Polish politician who as secretary of the Communist Party in Poland (1956-1970) advocated a liberal type of socialism.

gon- pref. Variant of gono-.

-gon suff. A figure having a specified kind or number of angles: isogon. [Greek -gōnon, from neuter of gōnos, angled, from gōnia, angle. See genu¹ in Appendix.]

go·nad (gō'năd') n. An organ in animals that produces gametes, especially a testis or an ovary. [New Latin gonas, gonad-, from Greek gonos, procreation, genitals. See genə- in Appendix.] —go·nad'al (gō-năd'l), go·nad'ic adj.

go·nad·o·trop·ic (gō-năd'ə-tröp'ik, -trō'pik) also go·nad·o·troph·ic (-trōf'ik, -trō'fik) adj. Acting on or stimulating the gonads: a gonadotropic hormone.

go·nad·o·tro·pin (gō-năd'ə-trō'pīn, -tröp'īn) also go·nad·o·tro·phin (-trō'fīn, -trō'pīn) n. A hormone that stimulates the growth and activity of the gonads, especially any of several pituitary hormones that stimulate the function of the ovaries and testes.

go·nad·o·tro·pin·re·leas·ing hormone (gō-năd'ə-trō'pīn-rī-lēs'ing hōr'mōn', -tröp'īn-) n. Abbr. GnRH A hormone produced by the hypothalamus that signals the anterior pituitary gland to begin secreting luteinizing hormone and follicle-stimulating hormone. Also called luteinizing hormone-releasing hormone

Go·na·ïves (gō'nə-ēv', gō-nä-) A city of western Haiti on an arm of the Caribbean Sea north-northwest of Port-au-Prince. Haitian independence was proclaimed here in 1804. Population, 34,209.

Gon·çal·ves Di·as (gən-săl'vəs dē'əs, gōŃ-sōl'vis dē'äs), Antônio. 1823-1864. Brazilian poet known for his patriotic works, including "Song of Exile" (1843).

Gon·court (gôn-kōr'), Edmond Louis Antoine Huot de. 1822-1896. French writer who collaborated with his brother Jules Alfred Huot de Goncourt (1830-1870) on numerous works, most notably naturalistic novels such as Madame Gervaisais (1869).

Gond (gönd) n. A member of a Dravidian people inhabiting central India.

Gon·dar (gön'dər, -där') also Gon·der (-dər) A town of northwest Ethiopia on Lake Tana. An early capital of Ethiopia, it flourished c. 1630 to c. 1860. Population, 85,941.

Gon·di (gön'dē) n. The Dravidian language of the Gonds.

gon·do·la (gön'dl-ə, gön-dō'lə) n. 1. Nautical. a. A lightweight narrow barge with ends that curve up into a point and often a small cabin in the middle, propelled with a single oar from the stern and used on the canals of Venice. b. A flat-bottomed riverboat. 2. A gondola car. 3. A basket, an enclosure, or an instrument sling suspended from and carried aloft by a balloon. 4. An enclosed structure suspended from a cable, used for conveying passengers, as to and from a ski slope. [Italian, from Old Italian gondula.]

gondola car (gön'dl-ə kär) n. An open railroad freight car with low sides.

gon-do-lier (gŏn'dl-îr') n. Nautical. The person who propels a gondola.

[French, from Italian gondoliere, from gondola, gondola. See GONDOLA.]

Gon-do-mar (gŏn'də-mär', gŏn'dô-), Count of Title of Diego Sarmiento de Acuña. 1567-1626. Spanish ambassador to England (1613-1618 and 1619-1622) who persuaded James I to abandon his ties to the French and Protestants.

Gond-wa-na-land (gŏnd-wä'nə-länd') n. The protocontinent of the Southern Hemisphere, a hypothetical landmass that according to the theory of plate tectonics broke up into India, Australia, Antarctica, Africa, and South America.

[After Gondwana, a region of central India, from GOND.]

gone (gŏn, gŏn) v. Past participle of go¹. — adj. 1. Past; bygone. 2. Advanced beyond hope or recall. 3. Dying or dead. 4. Ruined; lost: a gone cause.

5. Carried away; absorbed. 6. Used up; exhausted. 7. Slang. Infatuated: gone on the girl. 8. Slang. Pregnant: is five months gone.

gon-er (gô'nər, gŏn'ər) n. Slang. One that is ruined or doomed. [From GONE.]

gon-fa-lon (gŏn'fə-lŏn', -lən) n. A banner suspended from a crosspiece, especially as a standard in an ecclesiastical procession or as the ensign of a medieval Italian republic. [Italian gonfalone, of Germanic origin. See g^when- in Appendix.]

gon-fa-lon-ier (gŏn'fə-lə-nîr') n. The bearer of a gonfalon. [French, from Italian gonfaloniere, from gonfalone, gonfalon. See GONFALON.]

gong (gŏng, gŏng) n. 1. A rimmed metal disk that produces a loud, sonorous tone when struck with a padded mallet. 2. A usually saucer-shaped bell that is struck with a mechanically operated hammer. — v. intr. gonged, gong-ing, gongs. To make the sound of a gong. [Malay gŏng.]

Gon-gor-ism (gŏng'gə-rîz'əm) n. A florid, ornate literary style, often employing elaborate puns and conceits. [After Luis de Góngora y Argote (1561-1627), Spanish poet.] — Gon'gor-is'tic (-rîs'tîk) adj.

go-nid-i-um (gŏ-nîd'ē-əm) n. pl. go-nid-i-a (-ē-ə). 1. An asexually produced reproductive cell, such as a zoospore, found in certain algae. 2. An algal cell filled with chlorophyll, formed in the thallus of a lichen. [New Latin, from Greek gonos, seed, offspring. See GONO-.] — go-nid'i-al adj.

gon-if (gä'nəf) n. Variant of ganef.

go-ni-om-e-ter (gŏ'nē-ŏm'î-tər) n. 1. An optical instrument for measuring crystal angles, as between crystal faces. 2. A radio receiver and directional antenna used as a system to determine the angular direction of incoming radio signals. [Greek gōnia, angle; see genu⁻¹ in Appendix + -METER.]

— go'ni-o-met'ric (-nē-ə-mēt'rîk), go'ni-o-met'ri-cal adj.

— go'ni-om'e-try n.

go-ni-on (gŏ'nē-ŏn') n. The outer point on either side of the lower jaw at which the jawbone angles upward. [French, from Greek gōnia, angle. See genu⁻¹ in Appendix.]

- Gonne (gŏn, gŭn), Maud. 1865-1953. Irish patriot and actress. A leader of the Irish independence movement, she was a founder (1906) of Sinn Fein. William Butler Yeats's play Cathleen ni Houlihan (1892) is based on Gonne's life.
- gono- or gon- pref. Sexual; reproductive: gonophore. [Greek, from gonos, seed, procreation. See genə- in Appendix.]
- gon·o·coc·cus (gŏn'ə-kŏk'əs) n. pl. gon·o·coc·ci (-kŏk'sī', -kŏk'ī'). The bacterium Neisseria gonorrhoeae, which is the causative agent of gonorrhea.
—gon'·o·coc'cal (-kŏk'əl), gon'·o·coc'cic (-kŏk'ik, -kŏk'sik) adj.
- go-no-go (gō-nō'gō) adj. Of, relating to, or involving a mandatory decision to continue or abort a course of action: a go-no-go launch of the space shuttle.
- gon·o·phore (gŏn'ə-fŏr', -fŏr') n. A structure bearing or consisting of a reproductive organ or part, such as a reproductive polyp or bud in a hydroid colony. —gon'·o·pho'ric (-fŏr'ik, -fŏr'-), go·noph'·o·rous (gə-nŏf'ər-əs) adj.
- gon·o·pore (gŏn'ə-pŏr', -pŏr') n. A reproductive aperture or pore, especially of certain insects and worms.
- gon·or·rhe·a (gŏn'ə-rē'ə) n. A sexually transmitted disease caused by gonococcal bacteria that affects the mucous membrane chiefly of the genital and urinary tracts and is characterized by an acute purulent discharge and painful or difficult urination, though women often have no symptoms. [Late Latin, spermatorrhea, from Greek gonorrhōia : gono-, gono- + -rhoia, -rrhea.]
—gon'or·rhe'al, gon'or·rhe'ic adj.
- gony suff. Generation; reproduction; manner of origin: heterogony. [Latin -gonia, from Greek -goneia, from gonos, offspring. See genə- in Appendix.]
- Gon·za·les (gən-zä'līs), Richard Alonzo. Known as "Pancho." Born 1928. American tennis player who won the U.S. men's singles championship eight times (1953-1959 and 1961).
- Gon·za·lo de Cór·do·ba (gən-zä'lō də kŏr'də-bə, gŏn-thä'lŏ thē kŏr'thŏ-vä), Fernández. See Gonzalo Fernández de Córdoba.
- gon·zo (gŏn'zō) adj. Slang. 1. Using exaggerated, often highly subjective or self-indulgent style and tending toward bizarre or unconventional subjects, chiefly in journalism: "a hyperkinetic, gonzo version of Graham Greene" (New Yorker). 2. Bizarre; unconventional. [Perhaps Italian, simpleton (perhaps short for Borgonzone, Burgundian), or Spanish ganso, dullard, goose (of Germanic origin); see ghans- in Appendix.]
- goo (gōō) n. Informal. 1. A sticky, wet, viscous substance. 2. Sentimental drivel. [Perhaps short for BURGŌO.]
- goo·ber (gōō'bər) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See peanut (n., sense 2). [Of Bantu origin; akin to Kongo or Kimbundu n-guba.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Most Southerners recognize the terms goober and goober pea as other names for the peanut. Goober is related to Kongo or Kimbundu n- guba, “peanut.” The word is especially interesting as one of a small stock of African language borrowings brought over by slaves. Most of these words have to do with the food items imported from Africa for the slaves to eat. In this category are gumbo, “okra,” which is of Bantu origin, and yam, which is of West African origin. The noun cooter is related to the Mandingo word kuta and the Tshiluba word nkudu, both meaning “turtle.” Cooter is still used in South Carolina, Georgia, and the Gulf States to denote the edible freshwater turtle of the genus Chrysemys and, by extension, other turtles and tortoises.

goober pea (gōō'bər pē) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See peanut (n., sense 2).

See Regional note at goober.

good (gōōd) Abbr. gd., G, G. adj. bet-ter (bĕt'ər), best (bĕst). 1. Being positive or desirable in nature; not bad or poor: a good experience; good news from the hospital. 2. a. Having the qualities that are desirable or distinguishing in a particular thing: a good exterior paint; a good joke. b. Serving the desired purpose or end; suitable: Is this a good dress for the party? 3. a. Not spoiled or ruined: The milk is still good. b. In excellent condition; sound: a good tooth. 4. a. Superior to the average; satisfactory: a good student. b. Used formerly to refer to the U.S. Government grade of meat higher than standard and lower than choice. 5. a. Of high quality: good books. b. Discriminating: good taste. 6. Worthy of respect; honorable: ruined the family's good name. 7. Attractive; handsome: good looks. 8. Beneficial to health; salutary: a good night's rest. 9. Competent; skilled: a good machinist. 10. Complete; thorough: a good workout. 11. a. Reliable; sure: a good investment. b. Valid or true: a good reason. c. Genuine; real: a good dollar bill. 12. a. In effect; operative: a warranty good for two years; a driver's license that is still good. b. Able to continue in a specified activity: I'm good for another round of golf. 13. a. Able to pay or contribute: Is she good for the money that you lent her? b. Able to elicit a specified reaction: He is always good for a laugh. 14. a. Ample; substantial: a good income. b. Bountiful: a good table. 15. Full: It is a good mile from here. 16. a. Pleasant; enjoyable: had a good time at the party. b. Propitious; favorable: good weather; a good omen. 17. a. Of moral excellence; upright: a good person. b. Benevolent; kind: a good soul; a good heart. c. Loyal; staunch: a good Republican. 18. a. Well-behaved; obedient: a good child. b. Socially correct; proper: good manners. 19. Sports. Having landed within bounds or within a particular area of a court: The first serve was wide, but the second was good. 20. Used to form exclamatory phrases expressing surprise or dismay: Good heavens! Good grief! — n. 1. a. Something that is good. b. A good, valuable, or useful part or aspect. 2. Welfare; benefit: for the common good. 3. Goodness; virtue: There is much good to be found in people. 4. goods. a. Commodities; wares: frozen goods. b. Portable personal property. c. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Fabric; material. 5. goods. Slang. Incriminating information or evidence: tried to get the goods on the crook. — adv. Informal. Well. — idioms. as good as. Practically; nearly: as good as new. for good. Permanently; forever: I'm moving to Europe for good. good and. Informal. Very; thoroughly: I'll do it when I'm good and ready. no good. Informal. 4. Worthless. 5. Futile; useless: It's no good arguing with them. to the good. 6. For the best; advantageous. 7. In an advantageous financial position: ended up to the good. [Middle English, from Old English gōd. See ghedh- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Good is properly used as an adjective with linking verbs such as be, seem, or appear: The future looks good. The soup tastes good. It should not be used as an adverb with other verbs: The car runs well (not good). Thus, The dress fits well and looks good. See Usage Note at well².

Good Book (gōōd böök) n. The Bible.

good-bye or good·bye also good·by (gōōd-bī') interj. Used to express farewell. — n. pl. good·bys also good·bys. An expression of farewell. [Alteration (influenced by good day), of God be with you.]

WORD HISTORY: More than one reader has no doubt wondered exactly how good-bye is derived from the phrase “God be with you.” To understand this, it is helpful to see earlier forms of the expression, such as God be wy you, b'w'y, godb·wye, god buy' ye, and good·b'wy. It is no mistake to think that the first word of the expression is now good and not God, for good replaced God by analogy with such expressions as good day, perhaps after people no longer had a clear idea of the original sense of the expression. A letter of 1573 written by Gabriel Harvey contains the first recorded use of good-bye: “To requite your gallonde [gallon] of god·bwyes, I regive you a pottle of howdyes,” recalling another contraction that is still used.

good faith (gōōd fāth) n. Compliance with standards of decency and honesty: bargained in good faith.

good·fel·low·ship (gōōd'fēl'ō-shīp') n. Pleasant sociability; comradeship.

good·for·noth·ing (gōōd'fər-nūth'ing) n. A person of little worth or usefulness. — adj. Having little worth; useless.

Good Friday (gōōd frī'dē) n. The Friday before Easter, observed by Christians in commemoration of the crucifixion of Jesus.

good·heart·ed (gōōd'hār'tīd) adj. Kind and generous. — good'·heart'ed·ly adv. — good'heart'ed·ness n.

Good Hope (gōōd' hōp'), Cape of. A promontory on the southwest coast of South Africa south of Cape Town. It was first circumnavigated in 1488 by Bartolomeu Dias, who named it Cape of Storms.

Good·hue (gōöd'hyōō'), Bertram Grosvenor. 1869-1924. American architect whose works include the chapel of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point (1908) and the Nebraska State Capitol (completed 1934).

good·hu·mored (gōöd'hyōō'mərd) adj. Cheerful; amiable. —good'·hu'·mored·ly adv. —good'·hu'·mored·ness n.

good·ie (gōöd'ē) n. Variant of goody¹.

good·ish (gōöd'ish) adj. 1. Somewhat good. 2. Somewhat large or big; goodly.

good·look·ing (gōöd'lōök'ing) adj. Of a pleasing or attractive appearance; handsome.

good·ly (gōöd'lē) adj. good·li·er, good·li·est. 1. Of pleasing appearance; comely. 2. Somewhat large; considerable: a goodly sum. —good'·li·ness n.

good·man (gōöd'mən) n. Archaic. 1. a. The male head of a household. b. A husband. 2. Goodman. Used formerly as a courtesy title before the surname of a man not of noble birth.

Good·man (gōöd'mən), Benjamin David. Called “Benny.” Known as “the King of Swing.” 1909-1986. American clarinetist whose band, formed in 1934, introduced swing, a style of jazz that was greatly popular in the 1930's and 1940's.

good nature (gōöd nā'chər) n. A cheerful, obliging disposition.

good·na·tured (gōöd'nā'chərd) adj. Having an easygoing, cheerful disposition. See Synonyms at amiable. —good'·na'tured·ly adv. —good'·na'tured·ness n.

good·ness (gōöd'nīs) n. 1. The state or quality of being good. 2. The beneficial or nutritious part. — interj. Used to express mild surprise.

good offices (gōöd öf'ī-sīz) pl.n. Beneficial acts performed for another, especially acts performed by a mediator in a dispute.

good old boy also good ol' boy or good ole boy (gōöd öl boi) n. Slang. A man who follows the stereotypical behavior of his peers, especially one who embodies the revelry, camaraderie, or bigotry regarded as typical of some white men of the rural southern United States.

Good·rich (gōöd'rich'), Samuel Griswold. Pen name Peter Parley. 1793-1860. American publisher and writer of more than 100 moralistic books for children.

Good Samaritan (gōöd sə-mär'ī-tn) n. A compassionate person who unselfishly helps others. [After the passerby in the New Testament parable who was the only person to aid a man who had been beaten and robbed (Luke 10:30-37).]

good·sized (gōöd'sīzd') adj. Of a fairly large size.

good·tem·pered (gōöd'tēm'pərd) adj. Having an even temper; not easily irritated. —good'·tem'pered·ly adv. —good'·tem'pered·ness n.

good·wife (gōöd'wīf') n. Archaic. 1. The female head of a household. 2. Goodwife. Used formerly as a courtesy title before the surname of a married woman not of noble birth.

- good-will also good will (gōōd'wīl') n. 1. An attitude of kindness or friendliness; benevolence. 2. Cheerful acquiescence or willingness. 3. A good relationship, as of a business enterprise with its customers or a nation with other nations.
- Good-win Sands (gōōd'wīn sǎndz) A stretch of dangerous shoals in the Strait of Dover off the southeast coast of England.
- good-y¹ (gōōd'ē) Informal. interj. Used to express delight. — n. also good-ie pl. good-ies. Something attractive or delectable, especially something sweet to eat.
- good-y² (gōōd'ē) n. pl. good-ies. Archaic. A goodwife. [Short for GOODWIFE.]
- Good-year (gōōd'yīr'), Charles. 1800-1860. American inventor and manufacturer who developed vulcanized rubber (1839).
- good-y-good-y (gōōd'ē-gōōd'ē) adj. Affectedly sweet, good, or virtuous. — n. pl. good-y-good-ies. One who is affectedly sweet, good, or virtuous.
- goody two-shoes (gōōd'ē tōō'shōōz') n. pl. goody two-shoes. Informal. A goody-goody. [After the title character in The History of Little Goody Two-Shoes, a nursery tale perhaps by Oliver Goldsmith.]
- goo-ey (gōō'ē) adj. goo-i-er, goo-i-est. Sticky and viscous.
- goof (gōōf) Slang. n. 1. An incompetent, foolish, or stupid person. 2. A careless mistake; a slip. — v. goofed, goof-ing, goofs. — v. intr. 1. To make a silly mistake; blunder. 2. To waste or kill time. — v. tr. To spoil, as through clumsiness; bungle: goof up a job. [Possibly alteration of dialectal goff, fool, from obsolete French goffe, stupid.]
- goof-ball or goof ball (gōōf'bōl') Slang. n. 1. A foolish, incompetent, or stupid person. 2. A barbiturate or tranquilizer in the form of a pill, especially when taken for nonmedical purposes. — adj. Silly or outlandish: "Underneath his goofball braggadocio lies a kind of purity" (David Ansen).
- goof-off (gōōf'ōf', -ōf') n. Slang. One who shirks work or responsibility.
- goof-proof (gōōf'prōōf') adj. Slang. Protected against mistakes: a goofproof recipe.
- goof-y (gōō'fē) adj. goof-i-er, goof-i-est. Slang. Silly; ridiculous: a goofy hat. — goof/i-ly adv. — goof/i-ness n.
- goo-gol (gōō'gōl') n. The number 10 raised to the power 100 (10^{100}), written out as the numeral 1 followed by 100 zeros. [Coined at the age of nine by Milton Sirotta, nephew of Edward Kasner (1878-1955), American mathematician.]
- goo-gol-plex (gōō'gōl-plēks') n. The number 10 raised to the power googol, written out as the numeral 1 followed by 10^{100} zeros. [GOOGOL + -plex as in DUPLEX.]
- goo-goo (gōō'gōō') adj. Slang. Amorous, often humorously so: made goo-goo eyes at her. [Perhaps alteration of GOGGLE.]
- gook¹ (gōōk, gōōk) n. Variant of guck.

gook² (gōok) n. Offensive Slang. 1. Used as a disparaging term for an Asian person. 2. Used as a disparaging term for a North Vietnamese soldier or guerrilla in the Vietnam War. [Origin unknown.]

Goo-la-gong Caw-ley (gōo'lə-gōng kô'lē), Evonne. Born 1951. Australian tennis player who won women's singles championships at Wimbledon (1971 and 1980), the French Open (1971), and the Australian Open (1974, 1976, and 1978).

goom-bah (gōom'bä, gōom'-) n. Slang. A companion or an associate, especially an older friend who acts as a patron, a protector, or an adviser. [Origin unknown.]

goon (gōon) n. Slang. 1. A thug hired to intimidate or harm opponents. 2. A stupid or oafish person. [Probably ultimately short for GOONEY, simpleton.]

goo-ney also goo-ny (gōo'nē) n. pl. goo-neys also goo-nies. An albatross, especially the black-footed albatross. Also called gooney bird [Origin unknown.]

goop (gōop) n. Slang. A sticky, wet, viscous substance. [Perhaps alteration of GOO.] —goop'y adj.

goos-an-der (gōo-săn'dər) n. Chiefly British. A fish-eating duck (Mergus merganser), the male of which has a glossy greenish-black head and a white body. [Origin unknown.]

goose (gōos) n. pl. geese (gēs). 1. a. Any of various wild or domesticated water birds of the family Anatidae, and especially of the genera Anser and Branta, characteristically having a shorter neck than that of a swan and a shorter, more pointed bill than that of a duck. b. The female of such a bird. c. The flesh of such a bird used as food. 2. Informal. A silly person. 3. pl. goos-es. A tailor's pressing iron with a long curved handle. 4. Slang. A poke, prod, or pinch between or on the buttocks. — v. tr. goosed, goos-ing, goos-es. Slang. 1. To poke, prod, or pinch (a person) between or on the buttocks. 2. To move to action, spur: "The pilot goosed his craft, powering away" (Nicholas Proffitt).

[Middle English gos, from Old English gōs. See ghans- in Appendix.]

goose barnacle (gōos bär'nə-kəl) n. Any of various barnacles of the genus Lepas, having a fleshy stalk that attaches to rocks or floating objects such as ship hulls. Also called gooseneck barnacle goose-ber-ry (gōos'bēr'ē, -bə-rē, gōoz'-) n. 1. a. A spiny European shrub (Ribes uva-crispa), having lobed leaves, greenish flowers, and edible greenish to yellow or red berries. b. The fruit of this plant. 2. Any of several plants bearing similar fruit.

gooseberry gourd (gōos'bēr'ē gôrd) n. See gherkin (n., sense 1b).

goose bumps (gōos būmps) pl.n. Momentary roughness of the skin caused by erection of the papillae in response to cold or fear. Also called goose flesh, goose pimples.

Goose Creek (gōos krēk) A city of southeast South Carolina, a suburb of Charleston. Population, 24,692.

goose egg (gōōs ěg) n. Slang. Zero, especially when written as a numeral to indicate that no points have been scored.

goose-fish (gōōs'fīsh') n. pl. goosefish or goose-fish-es. Any of several anglerfishes of the genus Lophius, such as L. americanus of North American Atlantic waters. Also called monkfish goose flesh (gōōs flĕsh) n. See goose bumps.

goose-foot (gōōs'fōōt') n. pl. goose-foots. Any of various weeds of the genus Chenopodium, having small greenish flowers. [From the shape of its leaves.]

goose grass (gōōs grās) n. 1. See silverweed. 2. See yard grass.

goose-neck (gōōs'nĕk') n. A slender, curved object or part, such as the flexible shaft of a type of desk lamp. —goose-necked' adj.

gooseneck barnacle (gōōs'nĕk' bār'nə-kəl) n. See goose barnacle.

goose pimples (gōōs pĭm'pəlz) pl.n. See goose bumps.

goose step (gōōs stĕp) n. A military parade step executed by swinging the legs sharply from the hips and keeping the knees locked.

goose-step (gōōs'stĕp') v. intr. goose--stepped, goose--step-ping, goose--steps. To march in such a way that the legs swing sharply from the hips and the knees are locked.

goos-y also goos-ey (gōō'sē) adj. goos-i-er, goos-i-est. 1. Relating to or resembling a goose. 2. Foolish or scatterbrained.

GOP or G.O.P. abbr. Grand Old Party.

go-pher (gō'fər) n. 1. Any of various short-tailed, burrowing rodents of the family Geomyidae of North America, having fur-lined external cheek pouches. Also called pocket gopher 2. Any of various ground squirrels of the genus Citellus of North American prairies. 3. Any of several burrowing tortoises of the genus Gopherus, especially G. polyphemus of the southeast United States. [Probably short for earlier megopher, gopher tortoise, of unknown origin.]

gopher ball (gō'fər bōl) n. Baseball. A pitched ball that is hit for a home run. [Origin unknown.]

gopher snake (gō'fər snāk) n. See bull snake.

Göp-ping-en (gœp'ĭng-ən) A city of southwest Germany east-southeast of Stuttgart. Chartered in the mid-12th century, the city was twice devastated by fire (1425 and 1782). Population, 51,713.

Go-rakh-pur (gōr'ək-pōōr', gōr'-) A city of northern India east of Lucknow. It was founded c. 1400. Population, 290,814.

Gor-ba-chev (gōr'bə-chōf', -chōf', gər-bə-chōf'), Mikhail Sergeyevich. Born 1931. Soviet politician who served as general secretary of the Communist Party (1985-1991) and president of the U.S.S.R. (1989-1991). He won the 1990 Nobel Peace Prize.

- Gor·cha·kov (gôr'chə-kôf'), Prince Aleksandr Mikhailovich. 1798-1883. Russian diplomat who as foreign minister (1856-1882) sought to reaffirm Russia as a European power after its loss in the Crimean War (1853-1856).
- Gor·di·an knot (gôr'dē-ən nôt) n. 1. An exceedingly complicated problem or deadlock. 2. An intricate knot tied by King Gordius of Phrygia and cut by Alexander the Great with his sword after hearing an oracle promise that whoever could undo it would be the next ruler of Asia.
- Gor·don (gôr'dn), Charles George. Known as "Chinese Gordon." 1833-1885. British army officer who took part in the capture of Peking (Beijing) in 1860 and commanded the Chinese force that quashed the Taiping Rebellion (1863-1864). While governor-general of Sudan, he was killed in battle.
- Gor·don (gôr'dn), Charles William. Pen name Ralph Connor. 1860-1937. Canadian writer and Presbyterian missionary to lumber and mining camps. His novels include The Man from Glengary (1901).
- Gor·don (gôr'dn), Lord George. 1751-1793. British rebel who instigated anti-Catholic riots in London (1780) to demand the repeal of the Catholic Relief Act of 1778.
- Gor·don (gôr'dn), Ruth. 1896-1985. American actress and screenwriter who debuted on Broadway in Peter Pan (1915). Her many films included Rosemary's Baby, for which she won an Academy Award (1968).
- Gordon setter (gôr'dn sět'ər) n. A medium-sized hunting dog of a breed originating in Scotland, and having a silky black-and-tan coat. [After Alexander, Fourth Duke of Gordon (1745?-1827), Scottish hunter.]
- Gore (gôr), Albert, Jr. Born 1948. Vice President of the United States (since 1993) under Bill Clinton.
- gore¹ (gôr) v. tr. gored, gor·ing, gores. To pierce or stab with a horn or tusk. [Middle English goren, probably from gore, spear, from Old English gār.]
- gore² (gôr) n. 1. A triangular or tapering piece of cloth forming a part of something, as in a skirt or sail. 2. A small triangular piece of land. — v. tr. gored, gor·ing, gores. 1. To provide with a gore. 2. To cut into a gore. [Middle English, from Old English gāra, triangular piece of land.]
- gore³ (gôr) n. Blood, especially coagulated blood from a wound. [Middle English, filth, from Old English gor.]
- Go·ren (gôr'ən), Charles Henry. 1901-1991. American contract bridge expert who developed a point-count system of bidding and wrote more than 50 books about the game.
- Gore-Tex (gôr'těks) A trademark used for a water-repellant, breathable laminated fabric used primarily in outerwear and shoes.
- Gor·gas (gôr'gəs), William Crawford. 1854-1920. American army surgeon who suppressed yellow fever in Havana (1898) and in the Panama Canal Zone (1904-1913), thereby making construction of the canal possible.

gorge (gôrj) n. 1. A deep, narrow passage with steep rocky sides; a ravine. 2. A narrow entrance into the outwork of a fortification. 3. The throat; the gullet. 4. The crop of a hawk. 5. An instance of gluttonous eating. 6. The contents of the stomach; something swallowed. 7. A mass obstructing a narrow passage: a shipping lane blocked by an ice gorge. — v. gorged, gorg-ing, gorg-es. — v. tr. 1. To stuff with food; glut: gorged themselves with candy. See Synonyms at satiate. 2. To devour greedily. — v. intr. To eat gluttonously. [Middle English, throat, from Old French, from Late Latin gurga, perhaps from Latin gurgēs, whirlpool, abyss.] —gorg'er n.

gor-geous (gôr'jəs) adj. 1. a. Dazzlingly beautiful or magnificent: wore a gorgeous Victorian gown. b. Characterized by magnificence or virtuosic brilliance: the pianist's gorgeous technique. 2. Informal. Wonderful; delightful. [Middle English gorgeouse, probably from Old French gorgias, jewelry-loving, elegant, from gorge, throat. See GORGE.] —gor'geous-ly adv. —gor'geous-ness n.

gor-ger-in (gôr'jər-ĭn) n. Architecture. The necking of a column. [French, from Old French, from gorge, throat. See GORGE.]

gor-get (gôr'jĭt) n. 1. A piece of armor protecting the throat. 2. An ornamental collar. 3. The scarflike part of a wimple covering the neck and shoulders. 4. A band or patch of distinctive color on the throat of an animal, especially an area of brightly colored feathers on the throat of a bird. [Middle English, from Old French gorgete, diminutive of gorge, throat. See GORGE.]

Gor-gon (gôr'gən) n. 1. Greek Mythology. Any of the three sisters Stheno, Euryale, and the mortal Medusa who had snakes for hair and eyes that if looked into turned the beholder into stone. 2. gorgon. A woman regarded as ugly or terrifying. [Middle English, from Latin Gorgō, Gorgon-, from Greek, from gorgos, terrible.] —Gor-go'ni-an (-gō'nĕ-ən) adj.

gor-go-ni-an (gôr-gō'nĕ-ən) n. Any of various corals of the order Gorgonacea, having a flexible, often branching skeleton of horny material. — adj. Of or belonging to the order Gorgonacea. [From Latin gorgonia, coral, from Gorgō, Gorgon-, Gorgon. See GORGON.]

gor-gon-ize (gôr'gə-nĭz') v. tr. gor-gon-ized, gor-gon-iz-ing, gor-gon-iz-es. To have a paralyzing or stupefying effect on.

Gor-gon-zo-la (gôr'gən-zō'lə) n. A pungent, blue-veined, pressed Italian cheese made of cow's milk. [After Gorgonzola, a town of northern Italy.]

go-ri-l-la (gə-rĭl'ə) n. 1. The largest of the anthropoid apes (Gorilla gorilla) native to the forests of equatorial Africa, having a stocky body and coarse, dark brown or black hair. 2. Slang. a. A brutish man. b. A thug. [New Latin, from Greek Gorillai, a tribe of hairy women, perhaps of African origin.]

WORD HISTORY: Two traditions of exploration come together in the history of the word gorilla, which also illustrates how knowledge of the classics has influenced scientific terminology. Dr. Thomas S. Savage, an American missionary to western Africa, first described the gorilla in 1847, giving it the New Latin name Troglodytes gorilla. In doing so he was using his knowledge of Greek literature, in which there exists a fourth-century B.C. translation of a report written by Hanno, another visitor to western Africa. This Carthaginian navigator, who voyaged before 480 B.C., went as far as Sierra Leone in his explorations. In the Greek translation of his report he tells of seeing Gorillai, the name of which he allegedly learned from local informants and which he thought were members of a tribe of hairy women. In fact they were probably the same creatures that Thomas Savage described about 24 centuries later.

Gö·ring also Goe·ring (gër'ĩng, gûr'-, gœ'rĩng), Hermann Wilhelm. 1893-1946. German Nazi politician and military leader who was responsible for the buildup of German air forces, directed the German wartime economy, and was named Hitler's successor (1939). Severely criticized for Germany's military decline, he lost favor with Hitler and was stripped of his command (1943). After he was convicted and sentenced to death at the Nuremberg trials (1946), he committed suicide.

Gor·ki (gôr'kē), Maksim. See Maksim Gorky.

Gor·ky or Gor·ki (gôr'kē) Formerly Nizh·ny Nov·go·rod (nĩzh'nē nõv'gə-röd', nyē'zhnē nõv'gə-rət). A city of western Russia on the Volga River west of Kazan. Founded as a frontier post in 1221, it was formerly famous for its trade fairs. Maksim Gorky was born here, and the city was renamed in his honor in 1932. Population, 1,399,000.

Gor·ky (gôr'kē), Arshile. 1904-1948. Armenian-born American painter considered a transitional figure between surrealism and abstract expressionism. His works include The Liver Is the Cock's Comb (1944).

Gorky also Gor·ki (gôr'kē), Maksim also Maxim Pen name of Aleksei Maksimovich Peshkov. 1868-1936. Russian writer who supported the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917 and helped develop socialist realism as the officially accepted literary aesthetic. His works include The Life of Klim Samgin (1925-1936), an unfinished cycle of novels.

Gör·litz (gûr'lĩts', gœr'-) A city of east-central Germany east of Dresden on the Polish border. It was founded c. 1200 and grew as a cloth-weaving center. A small part of the city on the eastern bank of the Neisse River was awarded to Poland after World War II. Population, 80,216.

Gor·lov·ka (gôr-lôf'kə, gôr'ləf-kə) A city of southeast Ukraine in the Donets Basin north of Donetsk. It is a major coal-mining and industrial center. Population, 342,000.

gorm (gôrm) n. Upper Southern U.S. Variant of gaum.

gor-mand-ize (gôr'mən-dīz') v. gor-mand-ized, gor-mand-izing, gor-mand-izes. — v. intr. To eat gluttonously; gorge. — v. tr. To devour (food) gluttonously. [From GOURMANDISE, gluttony (obsolete).] — gor'-mand-iz'er n.

gorm-less (gôrm'līs) adj. Chiefly British. Lacking intelligence and vitality; dull. [From dialectal gawm, sense, from Middle English gome, notice, from Old Norse gaumr.]

go-round (gō'round') n. An argument; a go-around.

gorp (gôrp) n. A mixture of high-energy foods, such as dried fruit, nuts, and seeds, eaten especially as a snack. [Origin unknown.]

gorse (gôrs) n. Any of several spiny shrubs of the genus Ulex, especially U. europaeus, native to Europe and having fragrant yellow flowers and black pods. Also called *furze, whin*¹. [Middle English gorst, gors, from Old English.]

Gor-ton (gôr'tn), John Grey. Born 1911. Australian politician who as prime minister (1968-1971) pursued liberal reforms.

go-ry (gôr'ē, gôr'ē) adj. go-ri-er, go-ri-est. 1. Covered or stained with gore; bloody. 2. Full of or characterized by bloodshed and violence. See Synonyms at bloody. — gor'i-ly adv. — gor'i-ness n.

Gor-zów Wiel-ko-pol-ski (gô'zhōof vyél'kə-pôl'skē) A city of western Poland on the Warta River west-northwest of Poznań. Founded as a German city in 1257, it was assigned to Poland by the Potsdam Conference of 1945. Population, 115,100.

gosh (gōsh) interj. Used to express mild surprise or delight. [Alteration of GOD.]

gos-hawk (gôs'hôk') n. 1. A large, powerful hawk (Accipiter gentilis) having broad, rounded wings, a long tail, and gray or brownish plumage. 2. Any of several similar or related hawks. [Middle English goshawk, from Old English gōshafoc : gōs, goose; see GOOSE + hafoc, hawk; see HAWK¹.]

Go-shen (gō'shən) 1. A region of ancient Egypt on the eastern delta of the Nile River. According to the Old Testament, it was inhabited by the Israelites from the time of Jacob until the Exodus. 2. A city of northern Indiana east-southeast of South Bend. It is a manufacturing center in a farming region. Population, 23,797.

Go-siute (gō'shōot) n. pl. Gosiute or Go-siutes. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting an area southwest of Great Salt Lake. b. A member of this people. 2. The Uto-Aztecan language of this people, a dialect of Shoshone.

Gos-lar (gôs'lär') A city of central Germany southeast of Hanover at the foot of the Harz Mountains. It was founded in the tenth century as a mining settlement and was a free imperial city until 1802, when it passed to Prussia. Population, 50,516.

gos-ling (göz'līng) n. 1. A young goose. 2. A naive or inexperienced young person. [Middle English, variant (influenced by gos, goose); see GOOSE, of gesling, from Old Norse gæslīngr, diminutive of gās. See ghans- in Appendix.]

go-slow (gō'slō') adj. Informal. Deliberate and careful, as in behavior or viewpoint: "a go-slow effort to maintain a sense of continuity and order" (Christian Science Monitor).

gospel (gōs'pəl) n. 1. Often Gospel. The proclamation of the redemption preached by Jesus and the Apostles, which is the central content of Christian revelation. 2. a. Gospel. Bible. One of the first four books of the New Testament, describing the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus and recording his teaching. b. A similar narrative. 3. Often Gospel. A lection from any of the first four books of the New Testament included as part of a religious service. 4. A teaching or doctrine of a religious teacher. 5. Music. Gospel music. 6. Something, such as an idea or a principle, accepted as unquestionably true: The teacher said it, and that made it gospel. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a gospel meeting; a gospel singer. [Middle English, from Old English gōdspel (ultimately translation of Greek euangelion); see EVANGEL : gōd, good; see GOOD + spel, news.]

gospel-er also gospel-ler (gōs'pə-lər) n. 1. One who teaches or professes faith in a gospel. 2. One who reads or sings the Gospel as part of a church service.

gospel music (gōs'pəl myōō'zīk) n. Music. A kind of distinctively American religious music that is associated with evangelism and is based on the simple melodies of folk music blended with melodic and rhythmic elements of spirituals and jazz.

gospel side also Gospel side (gōs'pəl sīd) n. The left side of an altar or a chancel as the congregation faces it. [So called from the practice in some churches of reading the Gospel and the Epistle from different sides.]

gos-port (gōs'pōrt', -pōrt') n. A flexible speaking tube used for one-way communication between individual compartments or cockpits of an airplane. [After Gosport.]

Gos-port (gōs'pōrt', -pōrt') A municipal borough of southern England west of Portsmouth. Formerly a victualing station for the Royal Navy, it was an embarkation point for the invasion of France in 1944. Population, 77,400.

gos-sa-mer (gōs'ə-mər) n. 1. A soft, sheer, gauzy fabric. 2. Something delicate, light, or flimsy. 3. A fine film of cobwebs often seen floating in the air or caught on bushes or grass. — adj. Sheer, light, delicate, or tenuous. See Synonyms at airy. [Middle English gossomer : gos, goose; see GOOSE + somer, summer (probably from the abundance of gossamer during early autumn when geese are in season); see SUMMER¹.] — gos'sa-mer-y adj.

Gosse (gōs), Sir Edmund William. 1849-1928. British writer noted for his influential literary criticism.

gos-sip (gōs'əp) n. 1. Rumor or talk of a personal, sensational, or intimate nature. 2. A person who habitually spreads intimate or private rumors or facts.

3. Trivial, chatty talk or writing. 4. A close friend or companion. 5. Chiefly British. A godparent. — v. intr. gos-siped, gos-sip-ing, gos-sips. To engage in or spread gossip. [Middle English godsib, gossip, godparent, from Old English godsibb : god, god; see GOD + sibb, kinsman; see s(w)e- in Appendix.] —gos/-sip-er n. —gos/sip-ry n. —gos/sip-y adj.

SYNONYMS: gossip, blab, tattle. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to engage in or communicate idle, indiscreet talk”: gossiping about the neighbors’ domestic problems; can’t be trusted with a secret—he always blabs; is disliked by her classmates for tattling on mischief makers.

gos-sip-mon-ger (gɒs’əp-mʌŋg’gər, -mɒŋg’-) n. One who relates gossip.

gos-sy-pol (gɒs’ə-pɒl’, -pɒl’, -pɒl’) n. A toxic pigment, C₃₀H₃₀O₈, obtained from cottonseed oil and detoxified by heating, that has been experimentally shown to inhibit sperm production. [New Latin Gossypium, genus name (from Latin gossypion, cotton plant) + -OL¹.]

got (gɒt) v. Past tense and a past participle of get.

Gö-ta Canal (yœ’tə kə-näl’) A system of rivers, lakes, and canals of southern Sweden extending from the Kattegat at the mouth of the Göta River, about 93 km (58 mi) long, to the Baltic Sea.

Gö-te-borg (yœ’tə-bôr’ē) A city of southwest Sweden on the Kattegat at the starting point of the Göta Canal system. Founded in 1604, it is a major port and industrial center. Population, 424,085.

Goth (gøth) n. A member of a Germanic people who invaded the Roman Empire in the early centuries of the Christian era. [From Middle English Gothes, Goths, from Late Latin Gothī (of Germanic origin), and from Old English Gotan.]

Goth. abbr. Gothic.

Go-tha (gō’thə, -tä) A city of central Germany west of Erfurt. First mentioned in the tenth century, it is an industrial and cultural center. The Almanach de Gotha, a record of Europe’s aristocratic and royal houses, was first published here in 1763. Population, 57,662.

Goth-am (gøth’əm) New York City. The nickname was popularized by Washington Irving and others in Salmagundi, a series of satirical sketches (1807-1808). —Goth’am-ite’ (-ə-mīt’) n.

Goth-ic (gøth’ik) adj. Abbr. Goth. 1. a. Of or relating to the Goths or their language. b. Germanic; Teutonic. 2. Of or relating to the Middle Ages; medieval. 3. a. Of or relating to an architectural style prevalent in western Europe from the 12th through the 15th century and characterized by pointed arches, rib vaulting, and flying buttresses. b. Of or relating to an architectural style derived from medieval Gothic. 4. Of or relating to painting, sculpture, or other art forms prevalent in northern Europe from the 12th through the 15th century. 5. Often gothic. Of or relating to a style of fiction that emphasizes the grotesque, mysterious, and desolate. 6. gothic. Barbarous; crude. — n. 1. The extinct East Germanic language of the Goths. 2. Gothic art or architecture. 3. Often gothic. Printing. a. See black letter. b. See sans serif. 4. A novel in a style emphasizing the grotesque, mysterious, and desolate. —Goth/i-cal·ly adv.

WORD HISTORY: The combination Gothic romance represents a union of two of the major influences in the development of European culture, the Roman Empire and the Germanic tribes that invaded it. The Roman origins of romance must be sought in the etymology of that word, but we can see clearly that Gothic is related to the name Goth used for one of the Germanic tribes that invaded the Roman Empire. The word Gothic, which is first recorded in 1611 in a reference to the language of the Goths, was extended in sense in several ways, meaning “Germanic,” “medieval, not classical,” “barbarous,” and also an architectural style that was not Greek or Roman. Gothic, originally in the sense “medieval, not classical,” was applied by Horace Walpole to his novel The Castle of Otranto, a Gothic Story, published in 1765. From this novel, filled with scenes of terror and gloom in a medieval setting, have descended the Gothic romances of today.

Gothic arch (göth'ik ärch) n. A pointed arch, especially one with a jointed apex.

Goth-i-cism (göth'ī-sīz'əm) n. 1. The use or imitation of Gothic style, as in architecture. 2. A barbarous or crude manner or style.

Goth-i-cize also goth-i-cize (göth'ī-sīz') v. tr. Goth-i-cized, Goth-i-ciz-ing, Goth-i-ciz-es. To make Gothic.

Got-land (göt'länd, göt'lünd) A region of southeast Sweden comprising several islands in the Baltic Sea, including Gotland Island. Inhabited since the Stone Age, Gotland is the traditional homeland of the Goths.

got-ten (göt'n) v. A past participle of get.

göt-ter-däm-mer-ung or Göt-ter-däm-mer-ung (göt'ər-däm'ə-rüŋg', gœt'ər-däm'ə-röŋg') n. A turbulent ending of a regime or an institution: “The nation had been flirting with forms of götterdämmerung, with extremes of vocabulary and behavior and an appetite for violent resolution” (Lance Morrow). [After Götterdämmerung, an opera by Richard Wagner : German Götter-, genitive pl. of Gott, god (from Middle High German got, from Old High German); see gheu(ə)- in Appendix + German Dämmerung, twilight (from Middle High German dämerunge, from Old High German demerunga, from demar, twilight).]

Göt-tin-gen (gœt'ing-ən) A city of central Germany northeast of Kassel. Chartered in 1210, the city is noted for its university, founded in the 1730's. Population, 132,454.

Gott-schalk (göch'ôk', göt'shôk'), Louis Moreau. 1829-1869. American composer and pianist whose compositions, such as The Dying Poet (1864), often incorporate Black and Creole rhythms.

Gott-wald-ov (gôt'vâl-dôf') A city of eastern Czech Republic east of Brno. It has an important shoemaking industry. Population, 85,383.

gouache (gwâsh, gōō-âsh') n. 1. a. A method of painting with opaque water-colors mixed with a preparation of gum. b. An opaque pigment used when painting in this way. 2. A painting executed in this manner. [French, from Italian guazzo, from Latin aquātiō, watering, from aquātus, past participle of aquāri, to fetch water, from aqua, water. See ak^w-ā- in Appendix.]

Gou-da¹ (gou'də, gōō'-, KHOU'dä) A city of western Netherlands northeast of Rotterdam. Chartered in 1272, it is noted for its cheese market. Population, 60,026.

Gou-da² (gōō'də, gou'-'-) n. A mild, close-textured, pale yellow cheese made from whole or partially skimmed milk. [After Gouda¹.]

Gou-dy (gou'dē), Frederic William. 1865-1947. American printer and designer of more than 90 typefaces.

gouge (gouj) n. 1. A chisel with a rounded, troughlike blade. 2. a. A scooping or digging action, as with such a chisel. b. A groove or hole scooped with or as if with such a chisel. 3. Informal. A large amount, as of money, exacted or extorted. — v. tr. gouged, goug-ing, goug-es. 1. To cut or scoop out with or as if with a gouge: "He began to gouge a small pattern in the sand with his cane" (Vladimir Nabokov). 2. a. To force out the eye of (a person) with one's thumb. b. To thrust one's thumb into the eye of. 3. Informal. To extort from. 4. Slang. To swindle. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin gubia, variant of gulbia, of Celtic origin.] — goug'er n.

gou-lash (gōō'lâsh', -lâsh') n. A stew of beef or veal and vegetables, seasoned mainly with paprika. [Hungarian gulyás (hús), herdsman's (meat), goulash, from gulya, herdsman.]

Gould (gōōld), Chester. 1900-1985. American cartoonist who created the Dick Tracy comic strip (1931).

Gould (gōōld), Glenn. 1932-1982. Canadian pianist noted for his performances and recordings of the works of Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms.

Gould (gōōld), Jay. 1836-1892. American financier and speculator who with James Fisk and Daniel Drew wrested control of the Erie Railroad from Cornelius Vanderbilt (1867-1868). With Fisk, he caused the financial panic of September 24, 1869, with an attempt to corner the gold market.

Gou-nod (gōō'nō, gōō-nō'), Charles François. 1818-1893. French composer particularly noted for his ecclesiastical music and the operas Faust (1859) and Romeo and Juliet (1867).

gou-ra-mi (gōō-rä'mē, gōōr'ə-) n. pl. gou-ra-mis. Any of various freshwater fishes of the family Anabantidae of southeast Asia, capable of breathing air and popular in home aquariums. [Malay gurami, carp, of Javanese origin.]

gourd (gôrd, gôrd, gôörd) n. 1. Any of several trailing or climbing plants related to the pumpkin, squash, and cucumber and bearing fruits with a hard rind.

2. a. The fruit of such a plant, often of irregular and unusual shape. b. The dried and hollowed-out shell of one of these fruits, often used as a drinking utensil. [Middle English gourde, from Anglo-Norman, ultimately from Latin cucurbita.]

gourde (gôörd) n. Abbr. g., G. A basic unit of currency in Haiti. See Table at currency. [Haitian, from feminine of French gourd, dull, from Late Latin gurdus, blunt, from Latin, dullard.]

gour-mand (gôör-mänd', gôör'mänd) n. 1. A lover of good food. 2. A gluttonous eater. See Usage Note at gourmet. [Middle English gourmant, glutton, from Old French gormant.]

gour-man-dise (gôör'män-dēz') n. A taste and relish for good food: “You could see the gourmandise shining on his rosy lips” (Glenway Wescott). [Middle English gromandise, gluttony, from Old French gormandise, from gormant, glutton.]

gour-met (gôör-mā', gôör'mā') n. A connoisseur of fine food and drink. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: gourmet cooking; gourmet restaurants. [French, from Old French, alteration (influenced by gourmand, glutton); see GOURMAND, of groumet, servant, valet in charge of wines, from Middle English grom, boy, valet.]

USAGE NOTE: A gourmet is a person with discriminating taste in food and wine, as is a gourmand. Gourmand can also mean one who enjoys food in great quantities. An epicure is much the same as a gourmet, but the word may sometimes carry overtones of excessive refinement.

Gour-mont (gôör-môn'), Rémy de. 1858-1915. French writer known for his symbolic novels, such as A Virgin Heart (1907), and works of criticism and philosophy.

gout (gout) n. 1. Pathology. A disturbance of uric-acid metabolism occurring predominantly in males, characterized by painful inflammation of the joints, especially of the feet and hands, and arthritic attacks resulting from elevated levels of uric acid in the blood and the deposition of urate crystals around the joints. The condition can become chronic and result in deformity. 2. A large blob or clot: “and makes it bleed great goutts of blood” (Oscar Wilde). [Middle English goute, from Old French, drop, gout, from Medieval Latin gutta, from Latin, drop (from the belief that gout was caused by drops of morbid humors).]

—gout/i-ness n. —gout/y adj.

gout-weed (gout/'wēd') n. A European plant (Aegopodium podagraria) widely naturalized in eastern North America, having small white flowers grouped in compound umbels. A variegated form is commonly grown as an edging or a ground cover. Also called bishop's weed gov. abbr. 1. Government. 2. Or Gov. Governor.

gov-ern (gŭv'ərn) v. gov-erned, gov-ern-ing, gov-erns. — v. tr. 1. To make and administer the public policy and affairs of; exercise sovereign authority in. 2. To control the speed or magnitude of; regulate: a valve governing fuel intake. 3. To control the actions or behavior of: Govern yourselves like civilized human beings. 4. To keep under control; restrain: a child who could not be gov-erned. 5. To exercise a deciding or determining influence on: Chance usually gov-erns the outcome of the game. 6. Grammar. To require (a specific morphological form) of accompanying words. — v. intr. 1. To exercise political authority. 2. To have or exercise a determining influence. [Middle English governen, from Old French governer, from Latin gubernāre, from Greek kubernan.]

—gov/ern-a-ble adj.

Go-ver-na-dor Va-la-da-res (gŭv'ər-nə-dôr' vāl'ə-dār'is, gô'vīr-nä-dôr' vā'lä-där'is) A city of eastern Brazil northeast of Belo Horizonte. It is a processing center in a lumbering and agricultural region. Population, 173,624.

gov-er-nance (gŭv'ər-nəns) n. 1. The act, process, or power of governing; government: "Regaining a sense of the state is thus an absolute priority, not only for an effective policy against... terrorism, but also for governance itself" (Moorhead Kennedy). 2. The state of being governed.

gov-er-ness (gŭv'ər-nīs) n. A woman employed to educate and train the children of a private household. [Middle English governesse, short for gouvernouresse, from Old French governeresse, feminine of gouverneur, governor, from Latin gubernātor. See GUBERNATORIAL.]

gov-er-nes-sy (gŭv'ər-nīs'ē, -nī-sē) adj. Fastidious, especially about matters of learning; prim.

gov-ern-ment (gŭv'ərn-mənt) n. Abbr. gov., govt. 1. The act or process of governing, especially the control and administration of public policy in a political unit. 2. The office, function, or authority of one who governs or of a governing body. 3. Exercise of authority in a political unit; rule. 4. The agency or apparatus through which an individual or a body that governs exercises authority and performs its functions. 5. A governing body or organization, as: a. The ruling political party or coalition of political parties in a parliamentary system. b. The cabinet in a parliamentary system. c. The persons who make up a governing body. 6. A system or policy by which a political unit is governed.

7. Management or administration of an organization, a business, or an institution. 8. Political science. —gov'ern-ment'al (-mĕn'tl) adj.

—gov'ern-ment'al-ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: In American usage government always takes a singular verb. In British usage government, in the sense of a governing group of officials, is usually construed as a plural collective and therefore takes a plural verb: The government are determined to follow this course. See Usage Note at collective noun.

Gov-ern-ment Issue (gŭv'ĕrn-mĕnt یش'ōō) n. Abbr. GI, G.I. Something, such as military equipment, that is issued by a government.

gov-er-nor (gŭv'ĕr-nĕr) n. Abbr. gov., Gov. 1. A person who governs, especially: a. The chief executive of a state in the United States. b. An official appointed to govern a colony or territory. c. A member of a governing body. 2. The manager or administrative head of an organization, a business, or an institution. 3. A military commandant. 4. Chiefly British. Used as a form of polite address for a man. 5. A feedback device on a machine or an engine that is used to provide automatic control, as of speed, pressure, or temperature.

WORD HISTORY: The American Revolution did away with much that was British, but it neglected to discard an important British political term. The word governor certainly seems to denote a very American office, and England has no corresponding official with that title for its counties. Nonetheless, governor has had a long history in English with reference to political rulers. In Middle English governour, the ancestor of governor, meant both “a sovereign ruler” and “a subordinate or substitute ruler.” In the later sense it was a natural term to use for heads of the British colonies in North America as well as elsewhere. During our colonial period royal governors were often unpopular, yet the word was not dropped after the Revolutionary War and in fact was chosen to designate the executive head of a state when the United States of America was created.

gov-er-nor-gen-er-al (gŭv'ĕr-nĕr-jĕn'ĕr-əl) n. pl. gov-er-nors-gen-er-al (gŭv'ĕr-nĕrz-) or gov-er-nor-gen-er-als (-jĕn'ĕr-əlz). A governor of a large territory who has other subordinate governors under his or her jurisdiction.

—gov'er-nor-gen'er-al-ship' n.

gov-er-nor-ship (gŭv'ĕr-nĕr-ship') n. The office, term, or jurisdiction of a governor.

Gov-er-nors Island (gŭv'ĕr-nĕrz ī'lænd) An island of southeast New York in Upper New York Bay south of Manhattan. Now a U.S. military base, the island was used by the British as a residence for the colonial governor of New York in the 17th and 18th centuries.

govt. abbr. Government.

gow-an (gou'ən) n. Scots. A yellow or white wildflower, especially the Old World daisy. [Probably alteration of Middle English gollan, a plant with yellow flowers,; akin to Old Norse gullinn, golden, from gull, gold. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

Gow-er (gou'ər, gôr', gōr'), John. 1325?-1408. English poet who wrote allegorical, didactic works, such as Vox Clamantis (1382?-1384), in Latin, French, and English.

gown (goun) n. 1. A long, loose, flowing garment, such as a robe or nightgown. 2. A long, usually formal dress for a woman. 3. A robe or smock worn in operating rooms and other parts of hospitals as a guard against contamination. 4. A distinctive outer robe worn on ceremonial occasions, as by scholars or clerics. 5. The faculty and student body of a university: perfect accord between town and gown. — v. intr. tr. gowned, gown-ing, gowns. To dress oneself in or invest (another) with a gown. [Middle English goune, from Old French, from Late Latin gunna, leather garment.]

gowns-man (gounz'mən) n. One who wears a distinctive gown as a mark of profession or office.

goy (goi) n. pl. goy-im (goi'ım) or goys. Offensive. Used as a disparaging term for one who is not a Jew. [Yiddish, from Hebrew gôy, nation, one who is not Jewish, non-Jew, Jew ignorant of the Jewish religion.] — goy'ish adj.

Go-ya y Lu-ci-en-tes (goi'ə ē lōo-syĕn'tĕs, gô'yä ē lōo-thyĕn'tĕs), Francisco José de. 1746-1828. Spanish painter and etcher whose art reflected the political and social turmoil of his times. His highly influential works include portraits of Spanish nobility and The Third of May 1808 (1814).

G.P. or GP abbr. General practitioner.

GPA abbr. Grade point average.

g.p.d. abbr. Gallons per day.

g.p.m. abbr. Gallons per minute.

GPO abbr. 1. General post office. 2. Government Printing Office.

g.p.s. abbr. Gallons per second.

GQ abbr. General quarters.

gr. abbr. 1. Grade. 2. Grain. 3. Gram. 4. Gravity. 5. Great. 6. Gross. 7. Group.

Gr. abbr. Greece; Greek

Graaf-i-an follicle (grä'fĕ-ən fōl'i-kəl, gräf'ĕ-) n. Any of the fluid-filled vesicles in the mammalian ovary containing a maturing ovum. [After Regnier de Graaf (1641-1673), Dutch physician and anatomist.]

grab¹ (grăb) v. grabbed, grab-bing, grabs. — v. tr. 1. To take or grasp suddenly: grabbed the letter from me. 2. To capture or restrain; arrest. 3. To obtain or appropriate unscrupulously or forcibly: grab public funds; grab power. 4. To take hurriedly: grabbed my coat and hat and left. 5. Slang. To capture the attention of: a plot that grabs the reader. — v. intr. To make a grasping or snatching motion: We grabbed for the life raft. — n. 1. Sudden seizure of something or someone; a snatch: “The imminence of death is reflected in every last power-stroke and grab of the great money bosses” (Dylan Thomas). 2. One that is grabbed. 3. A mechanical device for gripping an object. —idiom. up for grabs. Slang. Available for anyone to take or win: “The reputation of the... king is still up for grabs” (William Zinsser). [Obsolete Dutch, or Low German grabben from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German; see ghrebh-¹ in Appendix.]

—grab/ber n.

grab² (grăb) n. Nautical. An Oriental coastal vessel with two or three masts.

[Arabic gurāb, raven, swift galley.]

grab bag (grăb băg) n. 1. A container filled with articles, such as party gifts, to be drawn unseen. 2. Slang. A miscellaneous collection: The meeting evolved into a grab bag of petty complaints.

grab-ble (grăb'əl) v. intr. grab-bled, grab-bling, grab-bles. 1. To feel around with the hands; grope. 2. To fall down; sprawl. [Probably from Dutch grabbelen, from Middle Dutch, frequentative of grabben, to grab. See GRAB¹.]

—grab/bler n.

grab-by (grăb'ē) adj. grab-bi-er, grab-bi-est. Informal. Inclined to grab; greedy. —grab/bi-ness n.

gra-ben (gră'bən) n. A usually elongated depression between geologic faults.

[German Graben, from Middle High German grabe, trench, from Old High German grabo, from graban, to dig. See ghrebh-² in Appendix.]

Grac-chi (grăk'ī) See Gracchus.

Grac-chus (grăk'əs), Tiberius Sempronius. 163-133 B.C. Roman social reformer. Known with his brother Gaius Sempronius Gracchus (153-121 B.C.) as “the Gracchi,” he sought to aid poor farmers through greater subdivision of land but was killed in a riot. Gaius assumed his brother’s work, initiating several reforms, and met a similar fate.

grace (grās) n. 1. Seemingly effortless beauty or charm of movement, form, or proportion. See Synonyms at elegance. 2. A characteristic or quality pleasing for its charm or refinement. 3. A sense of fitness or propriety. 4. a. A disposition to be generous or helpful; goodwill. b. Mercy; clemency. 5. A favor rendered by one who need not do so; indulgence. 6. A temporary immunity or exemption; a reprieve. 7. Graces. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. Three sister goddesses, known in Greek mythology as Aglaia, Euphrosyne, and Thalia, who dispense charm and beauty. 8. Theology. a. Divine love and protection bestowed freely on people. b. The state of being protected or sanctified by the favor of God. c. An excellence or a power granted by God. 9. A short prayer of blessing or thanksgiving said before or after a meal. 10. Grace. Used with His, Her, or Your as a title and form of address for a duke, a duchess, or an archbishop.

11. Music. An embellishment such as an appoggiatura or a trill. — v. tr.

graced, grac-ing, grac-es. 1. To honor or favor: You grace our table with your presence. 2. To give beauty, elegance, or charm to. 3. Music. To embellish with grace notes. — idioms. in the bad graces of. Out of favor with. in the good graces of. In favor with. with bad grace. In a grudging manner. with good grace. In a willing manner. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin grātia, from grātus, pleasing. See g^werə-² in Appendix.]

Grace (grās), William Russell. 1832-1904. Irish-born American shipping magnate active in the exploitation of Peruvian resources. He also served as mayor of New York City (1880-1882 and 1884-1886).

grace cup (grās kŭp) n. 1. A cup used at the end of a meal, usually after grace, for the final toast. 2. The final toast of a meal.

grace-ful (grās'fəl) adj. Showing grace of movement, form, or proportion: "England's slow, graceful economic collapse" (J.C. Winters). — grace'ful-ly adv. — grace'ful-ness n.

grace-less (grās'lis) adj. 1. Lacking grace; clumsy. 2. Having or exhibiting no sense of propriety or decency. 3. Inferior or clumsy in treatment or performance: a graceless production of the play. — grace'less-ly adv. — grace'less-ness n.

grace note (grās nōt) n. Music. A note, especially an appoggiatura, added as an embellishment.

grace period (grās pĭr'ē-əd) n. 1. A period in which a debt may be paid without accruing further interest or penalty. 2. A period in which an insurance policy is effective even though the premium is past due.

grac-ile (grās'əl, -ĭl') adj. 1. Gracefully slender. 2. Graceful. [Latin gracilis.] — gra-cil'i-ty (grə-sĭl'ĭ-tē) n.

gra-ci-o-so (grä'sē-ō'sō, -zō) n. pl. gra-ci-o-sos. A clown or buffoon in Spanish comedies. [Spanish, amiable, clown, from Latin grātiōsus. See GRACIOUS.]

gra-cious (grā'shəs) adj. 1. Characterized by kindness and warm courtesy. 2. Characterized by tact and propriety: responded to the insult with gracious humor. 3. Of a merciful or compassionate nature. 4. Condescendingly courteous; indulgent. 5. Characterized by charm or beauty; graceful. 6. Characterized by elegance and good taste: gracious living. 7. Archaic. Enjoying favor or grace; acceptable or pleasing. — interj. Used to express surprise or mild emotion. [Middle English, from Old French gracieus, from Latin grātiōsus, from grātia, good will. See GRACE.] — gra'cious-ly adv. — gra'cious-ness n.

SYNONYMS: gracious, cordial, genial, sociable. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "marked by kindness, sympathy, and unaffected politeness": gracious even to unexpected visitors; a cordial welcome; a genial guest; enjoyed a sociable chat.

grack·le (grāk'əl) n. 1. Any of several American blackbirds of the family Icteridae, especially of the genus Quiscalus, having iridescent blackish plumage. Also called crow blackbird 2. Any of several Asian mynas of the genus Gracula. [New Latin Gracula, genus name, from Latin grāculus, jackdaw. See gerə-² in Appendix.]

grad (gräd) n. Informal. A graduate of a school or college.

grad. abbr. 1. Gradient. 2. Graduated.

gra·date (grä'dāt') v. gra·dat·ed, gra·dat·ing, gra·dates. — v. intr. To pass imperceptibly from one degree, shade, or tone to another. — v. tr. 1. To cause to pass imperceptibly from one degree, shade, or tone to another. 2. To arrange in or according to grades. [Back-formation from GRADATION.]

gra·da·tion (grā-dā'shən) n. 1. a. A series of gradual, successive stages; a systematic progression. b. A degree or stage in such a progression. 2. A passing by barely perceptible degrees from one tone or shade, as of color, to another. See Synonyms at nuance. 3. The act of gradating or arranging in grades.

4. Linguistics. See ablaut. [Latin gradātiō, gradātiōn-, from gradus, step. See GRADE.] —gra·da'tion·al adj. —gra·da'tion·al·ly adv.

grade (gräd) n. Abbr. gr. 1. A stage or degree in a process. 2. A position in a scale of size, quality, or intensity. 3. An accepted level or standard. 4. A set of persons or things all falling in the same specified limits; a class. 5. a. A class at an elementary school or the pupils in it. b. grades. Elementary school. 6. A mark indicating a student's level of accomplishment. 7. A military, naval, or civil service rank. 8. The degree of inclination of a slope, road, or other surface. 9. A slope or gradual inclination, especially of a road or railroad track. 10. The level at which the ground surface meets the foundation of a building. 11. A domestic animal produced by crossbreeding one of purebred stock with one of ordinary stock. 12. Linguistics. A degree of ablaut. — v. grad·ed, grad·ing, grades. — v. tr. 1. To arrange in steps or degrees. 2. To arrange in a series or according to a scale. 3. a. To determine the quality of (academic work, for example); evaluate. b. To give a grade to (a student, for example). 4. To level or smooth to a desired or horizontal gradient. 5. To grade. 6. To improve the quality of (livestock) by crossbreeding with purebred stock. — v. intr. 1. To hold a certain rank or position. 2. To change or progress gradually. [French, from Latin gradus. See ghredh- in Appendix.]

grade crossing (gräd krô'sīng) n. An intersection of railroad tracks, roads, walkways, or a combination of these at the same level.

grade point (gräd point) n. A point assigned to a course credit, as in a university, that corresponds to the letter grade made in a course. Also called grade index grade point average (grād point äv'ər-īj) n. Abbr. GPA The average grade earned by a student, figured by dividing the grade points earned by the number of credits attempted. Also called grade point index grad·er (grā'dər) n. 1. One that grades, especially: a. One who grades students' work. b. A piece of heavy equipment used to level or smooth road or other surfaces to the desired gradient. 2. A student in a specified class in an elementary or high school. Often used in combination: tenth graders.

grade school (grād skōōl) n. See elementary school. —grade'-school'er (grād'skōō'lər) n.

gra·di·ent (grā'dē-ənt) n. Abbr. grad. 1. A rate of inclination; a slope. 2. An ascending or descending part; an incline. 3. Physics. The rate at which a physical quantity, such as temperature or pressure, changes relative to change in a given variable, especially distance. 4. Mathematics. A vector having coordinate components that are the partial derivatives of a function with respect to its variables. 5. Biology. A series of progressively increasing or decreasing differences in the growth rate, metabolism, or physiological activity of a cell, an organ, or an organism. [Perhaps GRADE + -ient as in QUOTIENT.]

gra·din (grād'n) also gra·dine (grā'dēn', grā-dēn') n. One of a series of steps or tiered seats, as in an amphitheater. [French, from Italian gradino, diminutive of grado, step, from Latin gradus. See GRADE.]

grad·u·al (grāj'ōō-əl) adj. Advancing or progressing by regular or continuous degrees: gradual erosion; a gradual slope. — n. Roman Catholic Church. 1. A book containing the choral portions of the Mass. 2. A biblical text sung between the Epistle and the Gospel of the Mass. [Middle English, having steps, from Medieval Latin graduālis, from Latin gradus, step; see GRADE. N., Middle English from Medieval Latin graduāle, the part of the service sung by the choir from the altar steps, gradual, from neuter sing. of graduālis, having steps.] —grad'u·al·ly adv. —grad'u·al·ness n.

grad·u·al·ism (grāj'ōō-ə-līz'əm) n. The belief in or the policy of advancing toward a goal by gradual, often slow stages. —grad'u·al·ist n. —grad'u·al·is'tic adj.

grad·u·ate (grāj'ōō-āt') v. grad·u·at·ed, grad·u·at·ing, grad·u·ates. — v. intr. 1. To be granted an academic degree or diploma: Two thirds of the entering freshmen stayed to graduate. 2. a. To change gradually or by degrees. b. To advance to a new level of skill, achievement, or activity: After a summer of diving instruction, they had all graduated to back flips. — v. tr. 1. a. To grant an academic degree or diploma to: The teachers hope to graduate her this spring. b. Usage Problem. To receive an academic degree from. 2. To arrange or divide into categories, steps, or grades. 3. To divide into marked intervals, especially for use in measurement. — n. (–īt) 1. One who has received an academic degree or diploma. 2. A graduated container, such as a cylinder or beaker. — adj. (–īt)

1. Possessing an academic degree or diploma. 2. Of, intended for, or relating to studies beyond a bachelor's degree: graduate courses. [Middle English graduaten, to confer a degree, from Medieval Latin graduārī, graduāt-, to take a degree, from Latin gradus, step. See GRADE.] —grad'u-a'tor n.

USAGE NOTE: The verb graduate has denoted the action of conferring an academic degree or diploma since at least 1421, as in She was graduated from Yale in 1980. This earlier pattern of use is still defensible, if slightly old-fashioned, and is acceptable to 78 percent of the Usage Panel. In general usage, however, it has largely yielded to the much more recent active pattern (first attested in 1807): She graduated from Yale in 1980. This pattern, which no longer bears any taint of incorrectness, is acceptable to 89 percent of the Panel. It has the advantage of ascribing the accomplishment to the student, rather than to the institution, as is usually appropriate in discussions of individual cases. When the institution's responsibility is emphasized, however, the older pattern may still be recommended. A sentence such as The university graduated more computer science majors in 1987 than in the entire previous decade stresses the university's accomplishment, say, of its computer science program. On the other hand, the sentence More computer science majors graduated in 1987 than in the entire previous decade implies that the class of 1987 was in some way a remarkable group. • The transitive use of graduate, as in She graduated Yale in 1980, was unacceptable to 77 percent of the Usage Panel.

grad·u·a·tion (grāj'ōō-ā'shən) n. 1. a. Conferral or receipt of an academic degree or diploma marking completion of studies. b. A ceremony at which degrees or diplomas are conferred; a commencement. 2. a. A division or an interval on a graduated scale. b. A mark indicating the boundary of such an interval. 3. An arrangement in or a division into stages or degrees.

Graeco- pref. Variant of Greco-.

graf·fi·ti (grə-fē'tē) n. Plural of graffito.

graf·fi·tist (grə-fē'tīst) n. One who produces graffiti.

graf·fi·to (grə-fē'tō) n. pl. graf·fi·ti (-tē). Usage Problem. A drawing or an inscription made on a wall or other surface, usually so as to be seen by the public. Often used in the plural. [Italian, diminutive of graffio, a scratching, scribble, probably from graffiare, to scratch, scribble, probably from Vulgar Latin graphiāre*, to write with a stylus, from Latin graphium, stylus, from Greek grapheion, graphion, from graphein, to write. See gerbh- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The form graffiti, based on the Italian plural, is far more common than the singular form graffito. Graffiti is often used as a singular noun. When the reference is to a particular inscription (as in There was a bold graffiti on the wall), the form graffito would be etymologically correct but might strike some readers as pedantic outside an archaeological context. There is no substitute for the singular use of graffiti when the word is used as a mass noun to refer to inscriptions in general or to the related social phenomenon. The sentence Graffiti is a major problem for the Transit Authority Police cannot be reworded Graffito is... (since graffito can refer only to a particular inscription) or Graffiti are..., which suggests that the police problem involves only the physical marks and not the larger issue of vandalism. In such contexts, the use of graffiti as a singular is justified by both utility and widespread precedent.

graft¹ (grăft) v. graft-ed, graft-ing, grafts. — v. tr. 1. a. To unite (a shoot or bud) with a growing plant by insertion or by placing in close contact. b. To join (a plant or plants) by such union. 2. To transplant or implant (living tissue, for example) surgically into a bodily part to replace a damaged part or compensate for a defect. 3. To join or unite closely: graft new customs onto old. — v. intr. 1. To make a graft. 2. To be or become joined. — n. 1. a. A detached shoot or bud united or to be united with a growing plant. b. The union or point of union of a detached shoot or bud with a growing plant by insertion or attachment. c. A plant produced by such union. 2. a. Material, especially living tissue or an organ, surgically attached to or inserted into a bodily part to replace a damaged part or compensate for a defect. b. The procedure of implanting or transplanting such material. c. The configuration or condition resulting from such a procedure. [Middle English graften, alteration of graffen, probably from Old French grafier, from graffe, stylus, graft (from its shape), from Latin graphium, stylus; see GRAFFITO. N., Middle English grafte alteration of graffe, from Old French graffe.] graft² (grăft) n. 1. Unscrupulous use of one's position to derive profit or advantages; extortion. 2. Money or an advantage gained or yielded by unscrupulous means. — v. tr. intr. graft-ed, graft-ing, grafts. To gain by or practice unscrupulous use of one's position. [Origin unknown.]

graft-age (grăf'tij) n. The process of making a graft in horticulture.

graft-er¹ (grăf'tər) n. One that grafts: a grafter of roses.

graft-er² (grăf'tər) n. One who gains profit or advantage by unscrupulous use of position: "the cheats and grafters in Wall Street and Washington" (Alex Brummer).

graft-ver-sus-host disease or graft versus host disease (grăft'vûr'səs-hōst' dī-zēz', -səz-) n. A pathological condition in which cells from the transplanted tissue of a donor initiate an immunologic attack on the cells and tissue of the recipient.

gra-ham (grā'əm) n. Whole-wheat flour. [After Sylvester Graham (1794-1851), American cleric and social reformer.]

Gra·ham (grā'əm), John First Viscount Dundee. Known as “Bloody Claverse” and “Bonnie Dundee.” 1649?-1689. Scottish Jacobite leader and long-time persecutor of the Covenanters, whom he defeated in a bloody battle in which he was mortally wounded (1689).

Gra·ham (grā'əm), Katharine Meyer. Born 1917. American newspaper executive who as publisher of the Washington Post (1969-1979) oversaw the controversial publication of the Pentagon Papers (1971) and the exposure of the Watergate scandal (1972-1974).

Gra·ham (grā'əm), Martha. 1894-1991. American dancer and choreographer. A central figure in modern dance, she founded the Dance Repertory Theatre in New York City in 1930. Her works include Appalachian Spring (1944) and Clytemnestra (1958).

Gra·ham (grā'əm), Thomas. 1805-1869. Scottish chemist noted for his study of the diffusion of gases and his discovery of dialysis.

Gra·ham (grā'əm), William Franklin. Known as “Billy.” Born 1918. American religious leader who has conducted evangelical tours throughout the world.

graham cracker (grā'əm krāk'ər) n. A slightly sweet, usually rectangular cracker made with whole-wheat flour.

Gra·hame (grā'əm), Kenneth. 1859-1932. British writer known for his essays and children's books, notably The Wind in the Willows (1908).

Graham Island (grā'əm ī'lənd) An island off western British Columbia, Canada, in the Pacific Ocean. It is the largest and northernmost of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Graham Land (grā'əm lənd) A region of Antarctica near the tip of the Antarctic Peninsula. Part of the British Antarctic Territory, it is also claimed by Argentina and Chile.

Gra·ian Alps (grā'ən grī'ən) A section of the western Alps on the border between southeast France and northwest Italy. The highest elevation is Gran Paradiso, 4,063.5 m (13,323 ft), in the Italian section of the range.

grail (grāl) n. 1. Grail. A cup or plate that, according to medieval legend, was used by Jesus at the Last Supper and that later became the object of many chivalrous quests. Also called Holy Grail 2. Often Grail. The object of a prolonged endeavor. [Middle English greal, from Old French graal, from Medieval Latin gradālis, flat dish.]

grain (grān) n. Abbr. gr. 1. a. A small, dry, one-seeded fruit of a cereal grass, having the fruit and the seed walls united. Also called caryopsis b. The fruits of cereal grasses especially after having been harvested, considered as a group. 2. Cereal grasses considered as a group: a field of grain. 3. a. A relatively small discrete particulate or crystalline mass: a grain of sand. b. A small amount or the smallest amount possible: hasn't a grain of sense. 4. Aerospace. A mass of solid propellant. 5. A unit of weight in the U.S. Customary System, an avoirdupois unit equal to 0.002285 ounce (0.065 gram). See Table at measurement. 6. The arrangement, direction, or pattern of the fibrous tissue in wood. 7. a. The side of a hide or piece of leather from which the hair or fur has been removed. b. The pattern or markings on this side of leather. 8. The pattern produced, as in stone, by the arrangement of particulate constituents. 9. The relative size of the particles composing a substance or pattern: a coarse grain. 10. A painted, stamped, or printed design that imitates the pattern found in wood, leather, or stone. 11. The direction or texture of fibers in a woven fabric. 12. A state of fine crystallization. 13. a. Basic temperament or nature; disposition. b. An essential quality or characteristic. 14. Archaic. Color; tint. — v. grained, grain-ing, grains. — v. tr. 1. To cause to form into grains; granulate. 2. To paint, stamp, or print with a design imitating the grain of wood, leather, or stone. 3. To give a granular or rough texture to. 4. To remove the hair or fur from (hides) in preparation for tanning. — v. intr. To form grains. — idiom. with a grain of salt. With reservations; skeptically: Take that advice with a grain of salt. [Middle English, from Old French graine, from Latin grānum. See grə-no- in Appendix.]

—grain'er n.

grain alcohol (grān əl'kə-hôl') n. See alcohol (n., sense 1).

Grain Coast (grān kōst) A historical region of western Africa along the coast of the Atlantic Ocean, roughly identical with present-day Liberia. It was named for its once-thriving trade in grains of paradise.

grain elevator (grān ɛl'ə-vā'tər) n. A building equipped with mechanical lifting devices and used for storing grain.

grains of paradise (grānz ðv pər'ə-dīs') pl.n. 1. The pungent, aromatic seeds of a tropical African plant (Aframomum melegueta) used medicinally and for flavoring beverages. 2. The seeds of cardamom.

grain-y (grā'nē) adj. grain-i-er, grain-i-est. 1. Made of or resembling grain; granular. 2. Resembling the grain of wood. 3. Having sharp divisions between light and dark patches; not smooth. Used of photographs and film.

—grain'i-ness n.

gram¹ (grām) n. Abbr. g, gm., gr. A metric unit of mass equal to one thousandth (10^{-3}) of a kilogram. See Table at measurement. [French gramme, from Late Latin gramma, a small weight, from Greek, something written, small weight. See gerbh- in Appendix.]

gram² (grām) n. 1. Any of several plants, such as the chickpea, bearing seeds widely used as food in tropical Asia. 2. The seeds of such a plant. [Obsolete Portuguese, from Latin grānum, seed. See grə-no- in Appendix.]

-gram suff. Something written or drawn; a record: cardiogram. [Greek -gramma, from gramma, letter. See gerbh- in Appendix.]

gra-ma also gram-ma (grā'mə, grām'ə) n. Any of various grasses of the genus Bouteloua of western North America and South America, forming dense tufts or mats and often used as pasturage. [American Spanish, from Spanish, Bermuda grass, quitch grass, from Latin grāmen, grāmin-, grass.]

gram·a·rye (grām'ə-rē) n. Occult learning; magic. [Middle English gramarie, probably from Old French gramaire, grammar, book of magic. See GRAMMAR.]

gram atom (grām ät'əm) n. One mole of atoms of an element.

gram-a-tom·ic mass (grām'ə-tōm'ik mäs) n. The mass of one mole of atoms of an element. Also called gram-atomic weight gram calorie (grām käl'ə-rē) n. See calorie (n., sense 1).

gram equivalent (grām ĭ-kwiv'ə-lənt) n. The amount of a substance whose weight in grams is numerically equal to its equivalent weight.

gra·mer·cy (grə-mûr'sē, grām'ər-) interj. Archaic. Used to express surprise or gratitude. [Middle English gramerci, from Old French grand merci : grand, great; see GRAND + merci, thanks; see MERCY.]

gram·i·ci·din (grām'ĭ-sīd'n) n. An antibiotic produced by the soil bacterium Bacillus brevis and used to treat infections caused by certain gram-positive bacteria. [GRAM(-POSITIVE) + -CID(E) + -IN.]

gra·min·e·ous (grə-mĭn'ē-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of grasses. 2. Of or belonging to the grass family. [From Latin grāmineus, grassy, from grāmen, grāmin-, grass.] —gra·min'·e·ous·ness n.

gram·i·niv·o·rous (grām'ə-nĭv'ər-əs) adj. Feeding on grasses. [Latin grāmen, grāmin-, grass + -VOROUS.]

gram·ma (grāmə, grām'ə) n. Variant of grama.

gram·mar (grām'ər) n. Abbr. gram. 1. a. The study of how words and their component parts combine to form sentences. b. The study of structural relationships in language or in a language, sometimes including pronunciation, meaning, and linguistic history. 2. a. The system of inflections, syntax, and word formation of a language. b. The system of rules implicit in a language, viewed as a mechanism for generating all sentences possible in that language. 3. a. A normative or prescriptive set of rules setting forth the current standard of usage for pedagogical or reference purposes. b. Writing or speech judged with regard to such a set of rules. 4. A book containing the morphologic, syntactic, and semantic rules for a specific language. 5. a. The basic principles of an area of knowledge: the grammar of music. b. A book dealing with such principles. [Middle English gramere, from Old French gramaire, alteration of Latin grammatica, from Greek grammatikē, from feminine of grammatikos, of letters, from gramma, grammat-, letter. See gerbh- in Appendix.]

gram·mar·ian (grə-mâr'ē-ən) n. A specialist in grammar.

grammar school (grām'ər skōol) n. 1. See elementary school. 2. Chiefly British. A secondary or preparatory school. 3. A school stressing the study of classical languages.

gram·mat·i·cal (grə-măt'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to grammar.

2. Conforming to the rules of grammar: a grammatical sentence. [Late Latin grammaticālis, from Latin grammaticus, from Greek grammatikos, of letters. See GRAMMAR.] —gram·mat'·i·cal'·i·ty (-kăl'ī-tē) n. —gram·mat'·i·cal·ly adv.

grammatical gender (grə-măt'ī-kəl jěn'dər) n. Gender assigned to a word arbitrarily or on the basis of its grammatical form.

Gram·mat·i·cus (grə-măt'ī-kəs) See Aelfric.

gram·ma·tol·o·gy (grăm'ə-tōl'ə-jē) n. The study and science of systems of graphic script. [Greek gramma, grammat-, letter; see GRAMMAR + -LOGY.]

—gram'ma-to-log'ic (-tə-lōj'ik), gram'ma-to-log'i-cal adj.

—gram'ma-tol'o-gist n.

gramme (grăm) n. Chiefly British. Variant of gram¹.

gram·mo·lec·u·lar weight (grăm'mə-lěk'yə-lər wāt) n. Abbr. GMW See mole⁵ (n., sense 2).

gram molecule (grăm mōl'ī-kyōōl') n. See mole⁵ (n., sense 1).

Gram·my (grăm'ē) A service mark used for any of the statuettes awarded by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences for excellence in the recording industry.

gram·neg·a·tive or Gram·neg·a·tive (grăm'něg'ə-tīv) adj. Of, relating to, or being a bacterium that does not retain the violet stain used in Gram's method.

gram·o·phone (grăm'ə-fōn') n. A record player; a phonograph. [Originally a trademark.]

gramp (grämp) or gramps (grämps) n. Informal. A grandfather. [Alteration of GRANDP(A).]

Gram·pi·an Mountains (grăm'pē-ən moun'tənz) A mountain range of central Scotland extending northeast to southwest and forming a natural barrier between the Highlands and the Lowlands. Ben Nevis, 1,343.8 m (4,406 ft), is the highest point.

gram·pos·i·tive or Gram·pos·i·tive (grăm'pōz'ī-tīv) adj. Of, relating to, or being a bacterium that retains the violet stain used in Gram's method.

gram·pus (grăm'pəs) n. 1. A cetacean (Grampus griseus) related to and resembling the dolphins but lacking a beaklike snout. 2. Any of various similar cetaceans, such as the killer whale. [Alteration (perhaps influenced by GRAND), of Middle English graspeis, from Old French craspois, graspeis, from Medieval Latin crassus piscis, craspiscis : Latin crassus, fat + Latin piscis, fish.]

Gram's method (grămz mēth'əd) n. A staining technique used to classify bacteria in which a bacterial specimen is first stained with crystal violet, then treated with an iodine solution, decolorized with alcohol, and counterstained with safranin. Gram-positive bacteria retain the violet stain; gram-negative bacteria do not. [After Hans Christian Joachim Gram (1853-1938), Danish physician.]

gra·na (grā'nə) n. Botany. Plural of granum.

Gra·na·da (grə-nā'də, grā-nā'thā) A city of southern Spain southeast of Córdoba. Founded by the Moors in the eighth century, it became the center of an independent kingdom in 1238. The city was captured by Castilian troops in 1492, ending Moorish control in Spain. Population, 256,191.

gran·a·dil·la (grăn'ə-dīl'ə, -dē'yə) n. 1. Any of various tropical American passionflowers, especially Passiflora quadrangularis, bearing edible fruit. 2. The egg-shaped, fleshy fruit of such a plant. [Spanish, diminutive of granada, pomegranate, from Latin grānātum, from neuter of grānātus, seedy, from grānum, seed. See grə-no- in Appendix.]

Gra·na·dos (grə-nā'dōs, grā-nā'thōs), Enrique. 1867-1916. Spanish pianist and composer noted for his nationalistic music, such as Goyescas (1912-1914), piano works inspired by the paintings of Goya.

gran·a·ry (grăn'ə-rē, grā'nə-) n. pl. gran·a·ries. 1. A building for storing threshed grain. 2. A region yielding much grain. [Latin grānārium, from grānum, grain. See grə-no- in Appendix.]

Gran·by (grăn'bē) A city of southern Quebec, Canada, east of Montreal. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 38,069.

Gran Cha·co (grăn' chā'kō) A lowland plain of central South America divided among Paraguay, Bolivia, and Argentina. The arid plain is largely uninhabited.

grand (gränd) adj. grand·er, grand·est. 1. Large and impressive in size, scope, or extent; magnificent. 2. a. Rich and sumptuous: A grand meal was laid before them. b. Of a solemn, stately, or splendid nature. 3. a. Dignified or noble in appearance or effect: a grand old face that bespeaks suffering but not defeat. b. Noble or admirable in conception or intent: a grand purpose. c. Lofty or sublime in character: a speech delivered in the grand style of the great orators. 4. Wonderful or very pleasing: had a grand time. 5. Having higher rank than others of the same category: a grand admiral. 6. Having more importance than others; principal: the grand ballroom of a hotel. 7. Of a haughty or pretentious nature. 8. Including or covering all units or aspects: the grand total. — n. 1. Music. A grand piano. 2. Slang. A thousand dollars. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin grandis.] —grand/ly adv. —grand/ness n.

SYNONYMS: grand, magnificent, imposing, stately, majestic, august, grandiose. These adjectives mean strikingly large in size, scope, or extent. Both grand and magnificent apply to what is physically or aesthetically impressive. Grand implies dignity, sweep, or eminence: buildings on a grand scale; a grand coronation ceremony; a performance in the grand manner. Magnificent suggests splendor, sumptuousness, and grandeur: a magnificent cathedral; magnificent jewels; a magnificent poem. Imposing describes what impresses by virtue of its size, bearing, or power: an imposing residence; mountain peaks of imposing height. Stately refers principally to what is dignified and handsome, as in size or proportions: stately homes; stately columns; a stately oak. Majestic suggests lofty dignity or nobility: the majestic Alps; a majestic wave of the hand. August describes what inspires solemn reverence or awe, as because of exalted rank or character: was ushered into the archbishop's august presence. Grandiose refers to what is marked by imposing largeness (simple but grandiose architecture); it often suggests pretentiousness, affectation, or pompousness (grandiose ideas; a grandiose writing style).

gran·dad·dy (grăn'dăd'ē) n. Variant of granddaddy.

gran·dam (grăn'dăm', -dəm) also gran·dame (-dăm', -dəm, -dəm) n. 1. See grandmother (n., sense 1). 2. An old woman. [Middle English grandame, from Old French dame-grant : dame, lady; see DAME + grant, great; see GRAND.]

grand·aunt (gränd'ănt', -ănt') n. See great-aunt.

grand·ba·by (gränd'bā'bē, grăn'-) n. Informal. A grandchild.

Grand Ba·ha·ma (gränd bə-hă'mə, -hă'-) An island of the Bahamas in the Atlantic Ocean east of West Palm Beach, Florida.

Grand Banks (gränd bängks) An extensive area of shoals in the western Atlantic Ocean off southeast Newfoundland, Canada. The mingling of the cold Labrador Current and the warmer Gulf Stream and the shallowness of the water make the area a major source of food fish.

Grand Canal (gränd kə-năl') 1. Begun in the 6th to 5th century B.C., it was an inland waterway, about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) long, of eastern China extending from Tianjin in the north to Hangzhou in the south. Begun in the 5th to 6th century B.C., it was extended in the 7th century A.D. and completed in the 13th century. 2. The principal waterway of Venice, Italy. Crossed by the Rialto and other bridges, the canal is lined with impressive buildings.

Grand Ca·na·ry (gränd kə-nâr'ē) One of the Canary Islands in the Atlantic Ocean east-southeast of Tenerife Island. It is the principal island of the group.

Grand Canyon (gränd kăn'yən) A gorge of the Colorado River in northwest Arizona. It is up to 1.6 km (1 mi) deep, from 6.4 to 29 km (4 to 18 mi) wide, and more than 321.8 km (200 mi) long. The eroded walls of the canyon record many centuries of geologic time.

Grand Cay·man (gränd kă-măn', kă'mən) See Cayman Islands.

grand·child (gränd'chıld', grăn'-) n. A child of one's son or daughter.

Grand Cou·lee (gränd kōō'lē) A gorge, about 48 km (30 mi) long, of north-central Washington, carved by the Columbia River. It is fed by water from the Grand Coulee Dam.

grand·dad (grăn'dăd') n. Informal. A grandfather.

grand·dad·dy also gran·dad·dy (grăn'dăd'ē) n. Informal. 1. A grandfather. 2. One that is the first, oldest, or most respected of its kind: the granddaddy of modern computers.

grand-daugh-ter (grăn'dô'tər) n. A daughter of one's son or daughter.

grand duchess (grănd dŭch'is) n. 1. The wife or widow of a grand duke.

2. A woman who is the sovereign of a grand duchy. 3. The daughter or granddaughter of a czar in the male line. 4. Used as the title for such a noblewoman.

grand duchy (grănd dŭch'ē) n. Abbr. G.D. A territory ruled by a grand duke or a grand duchess.

grand duke (grănd dōok) n. 1. A nobleman who is the sovereign of a grand duchy. 2. A son or grandson of a czar in the male line. 3. Used as the title for such a nobleman.

Gran-de (grăn'də, grăn'dī), Rio. A river, about 1,046 km (650 mi) long, flowing from southeast Brazil generally northwest to the Paranaíba River, with which it forms the Paraná River.

grande dame (grănd' dăm', grănd' dăm') n. pl. grandes dames also grand dames (grănd' dăm', grănd' dăm'). 1. A highly respected elderly or middle-aged woman. 2. A respected woman having extensive experience in her field: the grande dame of women's professional tennis. [French : grande, great + dame, lady.]

gran-dee (grăn-dē') n. 1. a. A nobleman of the highest rank in Spain or Portugal. b. Used as the title for such a nobleman. 2. A person of eminence or high rank. [Spanish grande, from Latin grandis, great.]

grande luxe (grăn'də lōoks) n. Great luxury. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a grande luxe hotel; a grande luxe lifestyle. [French : grande, great + luxe, luxury.]

Grande Prairie (grănd prâr'ē) A city of western Alberta, Canada, northwest of Edmonton. It is a trade center in a farming region. Population, 24,263.

Grande-Terre (grăn'târ', grănd-) An island of eastern Guadeloupe in the Leeward Islands of the West Indies.

gran-deur (grăn'jər, -jōor') n. 1. The quality or condition of being grand; magnificence: "The world is charged with the grandeur of God" (Gerard Manley Hopkins). 2. Nobility or greatness of character. [Middle English, from Old French, from grand, great, from Latin grandis.]

Grand Falls (grănd fôlz) See Churchill Falls.

grand-fa-ther (grănd'fä'thər, grăn'-) n. 1. The father of one's mother or father. 2. A forefather; an ancestor. 3. Computer Science. A stored file of data from which two successive files have been derived, used for comparison with or as a backup copy for the newer files. — v. tr. grand-fa-thered, grand-fa-ther-ing, grand-fa-thers. To exempt (one already involved in an activity or a business) from new regulations concerning that activity or business: The city passed an ordinance restricting the size of advertising signs, but grandfa-thered all those signs erected before 1982. [V., from GRANDFATHER CLAUSE.]

grandfather clause (gränd'fä'thər klôz) n. 1. A provision in a statute that exempts those already involved in a regulated activity or business from the new regulations established by the statute. 2. A clause in the constitutions of several southern states before the year 1915, intended to disfranchise Black people by exempting from stringent voting requirements all lineal descendants of persons who were registered voters before 1867.

grandfather clock (gränd'fä'thər klök) n. A pendulum clock enclosed in a tall, narrow cabinet. [From the song My Grandfather's Clock by Henry C. Work.]

grand-fa-ther-ly (gränd'fä'thər-lē, grän'-) adj. 1. Characteristic of or befitting a grandfather. 2. Having the qualities of a grandfather.

Grand Forks (gränd fôrks) A city of eastern North Dakota on the Red River north of Fargo. Established as a fur-trading post in 1801, it is the seat of the University of North Dakota (founded 1883). Population, 49,425.

Grand Gui-gnol (grän gē-nyôl') n. Drama that emphasizes the horrifying or the macabre. [After Le Grand Guignol, a theater in Paris.]

gran-dil-o-quence (grän-dil'ə-kwəns) n. Pompous or bombastic speech or expression. [From grandiloquent, from Latin grandiloquus: grandis, great + loquī, to speak; see talk^w- in Appendix.] —gran-dil'o-quent adj.

—gran-dil'o-quent-ly adv.

gran-di-ose (grän'dē-ōs', grän'dē-ōs') adj. 1. Characterized by greatness of scope or intent; grand. See Synonyms at grand. 2. Characterized by feigned or affected grandeur; pompous. [French, from Italian grandioso, from grande, great, from Latin grandis.] —gran'di-ose'ly adv. —gran'di-os'i-ty (-ōs'ī-tē), gran'di-ose'ness n.

gran-di-o-so (grän'dē-ō'sō, -zō, grän') adv. & adj. Music. In a grand and noble style. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian. See GRANDIOSE.]

Grand Island (gränd ī'lənd) A city of southeast-central Nebraska west of Lincoln. It was settled on the Platte River in 1857 and moved to its present location on the railroad line in 1866. Population, 39,386.

Grand Junc-tion (gränd jüŋk'shən) A city of western Colorado at the junction of the Gunnison and Colorado rivers near the Utah border. It is a trade and manufacturing center in an irrigated farming region. Population, 29,034.

grand jury (gränd jōōr'ē) n. Law. A jury of 12 to 23 persons convened in private session to evaluate accusations against persons charged with crime and to determine whether the evidence warrants a bill of indictment.

grand-kid (gränd'kīd', grän'-) n. Informal. A grandchild.

Grand Lama (gränd lä'mə) n. Either of two traditionally reincarnating high lamas of Tibetan Buddhism, the Dalai Lama or the Panchen Lama.

grand larceny (gränd lär'sə-nē) n. Law. The theft of property of a value exceeding the amount constituting petit larceny.

grand·ma (gränd'mä', grän'-, gräm'mä', gräm'ə) n. Informal. A grand-mother.

grand mal (grän mäl', grän, gränd' mäl') n. A severe form of epilepsy characterized by seizures involving spasms and loss of consciousness. [French : grand, great + mal, illness.]

Grand·ma Mo·ses (gränd'mä mō'ziz, -zīs) See Anna Mary Robertson Moses.

Grand Ma·nan Island (gränd mə-nän' ī'lənd) An island of southern New Brunswick, Canada, in the Bay of Fundy. Settled by Loyalists after the American Revolution, it is a popular summer resort. Grand Manan Channel separates the island from the coast of Maine.

grand march (gränd mārč) n. A ceremonial march at a ball in which all couples take part.

grand master or grand·mas·ter (gränd'mäs'tər) n. 1. Abbr. GM, G.M. Games. A chess player regarded as having the highest level of ability. 2. A person of the highest competence or achievement in a field: a grand master of foreign diplomacy.

Grand'·Mère (grän-mēr') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, north of Trois Rivières. It is a manufacturing center with pulp and paper mills. Population, 15,442.

grand·moth·er (gränd'müth'ər, grän'-) n. 1. The mother of one's father or mother. Also called grandam 2. A female ancestor.

grand·moth·er·ly (gränd'müth'ər-lē, grän'-) adj. 1. Characteristic of or befitting a grandmother. 2. Having the qualities of a grandmother.

grand·neph·ew (gränd'něf'yōō, grän'-) n. A son of one's nephew or niece.

grand·niece (gränd'nēs', grän'-) n. A daughter of one's nephew or niece.

grand opera (gränd öp'ər-ə) n. Music. A serious or melodramatic drama having the entire text set to music.

grand·pa (gränd'pä', grän'-, gräm'pä', gräm'pə) n. Informal. A grandfather.

grand·par·ent (gränd'pär'ənt, -pär'-, grän'-) n. A parent of one's mother or father; a grandmother or grandfather. —grand'pa·ren'tal (-pə-rěnt'l) adj. —grand'par·ent·hood' n.

grand piano (gränd pē-än'ō) n. Music. A piano having the strings strung in a horizontal harp-shaped frame supported usually on three legs.

Grand Prairie (gränd prār'ē) A city of northeast Texas halfway between Dallas and Fort Worth. Located in a highly urbanized area, the city has an aerospace industry and is the site of an enormous amusement park. Population, 99,616.

Grand Pré (grän' prā', grän') A village of western Nova Scotia, Canada, on an arm of the Bay of Fundy. Settled by Acadians, it is the setting for Longfellow's poem Evangeline (1847).

Grand Prix (grän' prē') n. pl. Grand Prix (prēz', prē'). Sports. Any of several competitive international road races for sports cars of specific engine size over an exacting, usually risky course. [French, short for Grand Prix de Paris, originally an international horserace established in 1863 at Longchamp in Paris.]

Grand Rapids (gränd räp'idz) A city of west-central Michigan on the Grand River west-northwest of Lansing. Built on the site of an Ottawa village, it has been a furniture-manufacturing center since the mid-1800's. Population, 189,126.

Grand River (gränd rīv'ər) 1. A river of southeast Ontario, Canada, flowing about 265 km (165 mi) south and southeast to Lake Erie. 2. A river rising in southeast Iowa and flowing about 483 km (300 mi) southeast across northwest Missouri to the Missouri River. 3. A river, about 418 km (260 mi) long, of southern Michigan flowing north and northwest to Lake Michigan. 4. A river of northern South Dakota formed by the confluence of its northern and southern forks and flowing about 322 km (200 mi) eastward to the Missouri River. The North Fork rises in southwest North Dakota.

grand-sire (gränd'sir', grän'-) also grand-sir (-sər) n. Archaic. 1. A grandfather. 2. A male ancestor; a forefather. 3. An old man.

grand slam (gränd släm) n. 1. Games. The winning of all the tricks during the play of one hand in bridge and other whist-derived card games. 2. Sports. The winning of all the major or specified events, especially on a professional circuit. 3. Baseball. A home run hit when three runners are on base.

grand-son (gränd'sün', grän'-) n. A son of one's son or daughter.

grand-stand (gränd'ständ', grän'-) n. 1. A roofed stand for spectators at a stadium or racetrack. 2. The spectators or audience at an event. — v. intr.

grand-stand-ed, grand-stand-ing, grand-stands. To perform ostentatiously so as to impress an audience. — grand/stand'er n.

Grand Te-ton (gränd tē'tōn', tēt'n) A mountain, 4,198.6 m (13,766 ft) high, of the Teton Range in northwest Wyoming. It is the highest elevation in the range.

grand tour (gränd tōr) n. 1. A comprehensive tour or survey. 2. An extended tour of continental Europe formerly considered a finishing course in the education of young men of the English upper class.

Grand Trav-erse Bay (gränd träv'ərs bā) An arm of Lake Michigan in northwest Michigan. It is noted for its boating and fishing.

Grand Turk (gränd tûrk) The chief island of the Turks and Caicos Islands in the Atlantic Ocean southeast of the Bahamas. The town of Grand Turk (population, 3,146) is the capital of the island group.

grand-un-cle (gränd'üŋg'kəl) n. See great-uncle.

grand unified theory or grand unification theory (gränd yōō'nə-fid' thē'ə-rē) n. Physics. A theory of elementary particles that unites the weak, strong, electromagnetic, and gravitational interactions into one field theory, viewing the known interactions as low-energy manifestations of a single unified interaction.

Grand-view (gränd'vyōō') A city of western Missouri surrounded on three sides by southern Kansas City. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 24,502.

grange (grānj) n. 1. Grange. a. An association of farmers founded in the United States in 1867. b. One of the branch lodges of this association. 2. Chiefly British. A farm, especially the residence and outbuildings of a gentleman farmer. 3. Archaic. A granary. [Middle English, granary, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin *grānica, from Latin grānum, seed. See grə-no- in Appendix.]

Grange (grānj), Harold Edward. Known as "Red." 1903-1991. American football player. A three-time All-American running back for the University of Illinois (1923-1925), he played professionally for the Chicago Bears (1925-1935).

grani- pref. Grain; seed: granivorous. [Latin grāni-, from grānum, seed. See GRAM².]

Gra-nit (grä-nēt'), Ragnar Arthur. Born 1900. Finnish-born Swedish physiologist. He shared a 1967 Nobel Prize for research on the human eye.

gran-ite (grän'īt) n. 1. A common, coarse-grained, light-colored, hard igneous rock consisting chiefly of quartz, orthoclase or microcline, and mica, used in monuments and for building. 2. Unyielding endurance; steadfastness: a will of granite. [Italian granito, from past participle of granire, to make grainy, from grano, grain, from Latin grānum. See grə-no- in Appendix.] —gra-nit'ic (grän-īt'ik, grə-), gran'it-oid' (grän'ī-toid') adj.

Gran-ite City (grän'īt sīt'ē) A city of southwest Illinois, an industrial suburb of East St. Louis on the Mississippi River. Population, 32,862.

Granite Peak (grän'īt pēk) A mountain, 3,903.7 m (12,799 ft) high, of southern Montana northeast of Yellowstone National Park. It is the highest elevation in the state.

gran-ite-ware (grän'īt-wâr') n. 1. Iron utensils with a mottled enamel resembling granite. 2. Earthenware with a speckled glaze resembling granite.

gra-niv-o-rous (grə-niv'ər-əs) adj. Feeding on grain and seeds.

gran-ny or gran-nie (grän'ē) n. pl. gran-nies. 1. Informal. A grandmother. 2. Informal. A fussy person. 3. Chiefly Southern U.S. See midwife (n., sense 1). [Short for GRANDMOTHER, or GRANDAM.]

granny flat (grän'ē flăt) n. See accessory apartment.

granny knot (grän'ē nōt) n. A knot resembling a square knot but with the second tie crossed incorrectly. [So called in contempt.]

grano- pref. Granite: granolith. [German, from Granit, granite, from Italian granito. See GRANITE.]

gra-no-la (grə-nō'lə) n. Rolled oats mixed with various ingredients, such as dried fruit, brown sugar, and nuts, and used especially as a breakfast cereal. [Originally a trademark.]

gran-o-lith (grän'ə-līth') n. A paving stone of crushed granite and cement. —gran'o-lith'ic adj.

gran·o·phyre (grăn'ə-fîr') n. A fine-grained granite porphyry having a groundmass with irregular intergrowths of quartz and feldspar. [German Granophyr : grano-, grano- + Porphyrr, porphyry (from Medieval Latin porphyrium); see PORPHYRY.] —gran'·o·phyr'ic (-fîr'ik) adj.

Gran Pa-ra-di-so (grăn' pä-rä-dē'zō) A peak, 4,063.5 m (13,323 ft) high, of the Graian Alps in northwest Italy. It is the highest elevation in the range.

grant (grănt) v. tr. grant-ed, grant-ing, grants. 1. To consent to the fulfillment of: grant a request. 2. To accord as a favor, prerogative, or privilege: granted the franchise to all citizens. 3. a. To bestow; confer: grant aid. b. To transfer (property) by a deed. 4. To concede; acknowledge: I grant the genius of your plan, but you still will not find backers. — n. 1. The act of granting. 2. a. Something granted. b. A giving of funds for a specific purpose: federal grants for medical research. 3. Law. a. A transfer of property by deed. b. The property so transferred. c. The deed by which the property is so transferred. 4. One of several tracts of land in New Hampshire, Maine, and Vermont originally granted to an individual or a group. [Middle English granten, from Old French granter, variant of creanter, from Vulgar Latin crēdentāre*, to assure, from Latin crēdēns, crēdent- present participle of crēdere, to believe. See kerd- in Appendix.] —grant'a-ble adj. —grant'er n.

SYNONYMS: grant, vouchsafe, concede, accord, award. These verbs mean to give as a favor, prerogative, or privilege. Grant usually implies that the giver is in a higher position, as one of authority, than the receiver and that he or she acts out of justice, mercy, or generosity: granted the petitioner's request; granting permission. Vouchsafe emphasizes more strongly the giver's superior position and connotes condescension: won't vouchsafe an answer to your question. Concede usually implies giving reluctantly in response to a strong claim: had to concede the mayor's incorruptible honesty. Accord and award suggest that what is granted is proper, merited, or appropriate: must accord the senator the respect she is due; hopes to be awarded a stipend for further research.

Grant (grănt), Cary. 1904-1986. British-born American actor who was the epitome of the elegant leading man in films such as The Philadelphia Story (1940) and North by Northwest (1959).

Grant (grănt), Heber Jediah. 1856-1945. American Mormon leader who served as president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (1918-1945).

Grant (grănt), Ulysses Simpson. Originally Hiram Ulysses Grant. 1822-1885. The 18th President of the United States (1869-1877) and a Civil War general. After his victorious Vicksburg campaign (1862-1863), he was made commander in chief of the Union Army (1864) and accepted the surrender of Gen. Robert E.

Lee at Appomattox (1865). Grant's two-term presidency was marred by widespread graft and corruption.

grant·ee (grăn-tē') n. Law. One to whom a grant is made.

grant-in-aid (grănt'ĭn-ād') n. pl. grants-in-aid (grănts'-). 1. A giving of federal funds to a state or local government to subsidize a public project. 2. A giving of funds to an institution or a person in order to subsidize a project or program.

gran·tor (grăn'tər, -tôr') n. Law. One that makes a grant.

Grant's gazelle (grănts gə-zěl') n. A large gazelle (Gazella granti) of East Africa that has long, curved horns. [After James Augustus Grant (1827-1892), Scottish explorer.]

grants-man-ship (grănts'mən-shĭp') n. The art of obtaining grants-in-aid. [GRANT + (GAME)SMANSHIP.]

Grants Pass (grănts păs) A city of southwest Oregon on the Rogue River west-northwest of Medford. It is an important lumbering center with varied industries. Population, 15,302.

gran·u·lar (grăn'yə-lər) adj. 1. Composed or appearing to be composed of granules or grains. 2. Having a grainy texture. 3. Biology. Containing granules: granular cells. —gran'u-lar'i-ty (-lăr'ĭ-tē) n. —gran'u-lar-ly adv.

gran·u·late (grăn'yə-lăt') v. gran·u·lat·ed, gran·u·lat·ing, gran·u·lates. — v. tr. 1. To form into grains or granules. 2. To make rough and grainy. — v. intr. To become granular or grainy. —gran'u-la'tive adj. —gran'u-la'tor n.

gran·u·la-tion (grăn'yə-lă'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of granulating. b. The condition or appearance of being granulated. 2. Physiology. a. Small, fleshy, beadlike protuberances, consisting of outgrowths of new capillaries, on the surface of a wound that is healing. Also called granulation tissue b. The formation of these protuberances. 3. Astronomy. The small, transient, brilliant granular markings on the photosphere of the sun.

gran·ule (grăn'yōol) n. 1. A small grain or pellet; a particle. 2. Geology. A rock or mineral fragment larger than a sand grain and smaller than a pebble, between 2 and 4 millimeters in diameter. 3. Astronomy. One of the small, transient, brilliant markings in the photosphere of the sun. 4. Biology. A cellular or cytoplasmic particle, especially one that stains readily. [Late Latin grānulum diminutive of Latin grānum, grain. See grə-no- in Appendix.]

gran·u·lite (grăn'yə-līt') n. A fine-grained metamorphic rock often banded in appearance and composed chiefly of feldspar, quartz, and garnet.

—gran'u-lit'ic (-līt'ĭk) adj.

gran·u·lo·cyte (grăn'yə-lō-sīt') n. Any of a group of white blood cells having granules in the cytoplasm. —gran'u-lo-cyt'ic (-sīt'ĭk) adj.

gran·u·lo·ma (grăn'yə-lō'mə) n. pl. gran·u·lo·mas or gran·u·lo·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A mass of inflamed granulation tissue, usually associated with ulcerated infections. —gran'u·lo·ma·tous (-mə-təs) adj.

gran·u·lose (grăn'yə-lōs') adj. Having a surface covered with granules.

gra·num (grā'nəm) Botany. n. pl. gra·na (-nə). A stacked membranous structure within a chloroplast that contains the chlorophyll and is the site of the light reactions of photosynthesis. [Latin grānum, seed. See GRAIN.]

Gran·ville·Bar·ker (grăn'vīl-bär'kər), Harley Granville. 1877-1946. British actor, playwright, theater manager, and critic particularly noted for his productions and criticism of the works of Shakespeare.

grape (grāp) n. 1. Any of numerous woody vines of the genus Vitis, bearing clusters of edible berries and widely cultivated in many species and varieties. 2. The fleshy, smooth-skinned, purple, red, or green berry of a grape, eaten raw or dried as a raisin and widely used in winemaking. 3. Color. A dark violet to dark grayish purple. 4. Grapeshot. [Middle English, from Old French, bunch of grapes, hook, of Germanic origin.]

grape fern (grāp fûrn) n. Any of various ferns of the genus Botrychium, having a fertile frond bearing small, grapelike clusters of spore cases. Also called moonwort grape·fruit (grāp'frōt') n. 1. A tropical or semitropical evergreen (Citrus paradisi) cultivated for its edible fruit. 2. The large, round fruit of this tree, having a yellow rind and juicy, somewhat acid pulp. [Probably so called because the fruit grows in clusters.]

grape hyacinth (grāp hī'ə-sīnth) n. Any of various plants of the genus Muscari, native to Eurasia and having narrow leaves and dense terminal racemes of rounded, usually blue flowers.

grape·shot (grāp'shōt') n. A cluster of small iron balls formerly used as a cannon charge. [From its resemblance to a cluster of grapes.]

grape sugar (grāp shōōg'ər) n. Dextrose obtained from grapes.

grape·vine (grāp'vīn') n. 1. A vine on which grapes grow. 2. a. The informal transmission of information, gossip, or rumor from person to person. b. A usually unrevealed source of confidential information.

grap·ey or grap·y (grā'pē) adj. grap·i·er, grap·i·est. Of or resembling grapes: a wine with a grapey taste. —grap'i·ness n.

graph¹ (grāf) n. 1. A diagram that exhibits a relationship, often functional, between two sets of numbers as a set of points having coordinates determined by the relationship. Also called plot 2. A pictorial device, such as a pie chart or bar graph, used to illustrate quantitative relationships. Also called chart — v. tr.

graphed, graph·ing, graphs. 1. To represent by a graph. 2. To plot (a function) on a graph. [Short for graphic formula.] graph² (grăf) n. 1. The spelling of a word. 2. Any of the possible forms of a grapheme. 3. A written character that represents a vowel, consonant, syllable, word, or other expression and that cannot be further analyzed. [Greek graphē, writing. See GRAPHIC.]

-graph suff. 1. Something written or drawn: monograph. 2. An instrument for writing, drawing, or recording: seismograph. [French -graphie, from Late Latin -graphus, from Greek -graphos, from graphein, to write. See gerbh- in Appendix.]

graph-eme (grăf'ēm') n. 1. A letter of an alphabet. 2. All of the letters and letter combinations that represent a phoneme, as f, ph, and gh for the phoneme /f/. [GRAPH² + -EME.] — gra·phe'mic (gră-fē'mīk) adj. — gra·phe'mi-cal·ly adv.

-grapher suff. One who writes about a specified subject or in a specified manner: steno-grapher. [From Late Latin -graphus, from Greek -graphos, from graphein, to write. See gerbh- in Appendix.]

graph-ic (grăf'īk) adj. also graph-i-cal (-ī-kəl) 1. a. Of or relating to written representation. b. Of or relating to pictorial representation. 2. Of, relating to, or represented by or as if by a graph. 3. a. Described in vivid detail. b. Clearly outlined or set forth. 4. Of or relating to the graphic arts. 5. Of or relating to graphics. 6. Geology. Having crystals resembling printed characters. — n. 1. A work of graphic art. 2. A pictorial device used for illustration, as in a lecture. 3. A graphic display generated by a computer or an imaging device. [Latin graphicus, from Greek graphikos, from graphē, writing, from graphein, to write. See gerbh- in Appendix.] — graph'i-cal·ly adv. — graph'ic-ness n.

SYNONYMS: graphic, lifelike, realistic, vivid. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “strikingly sharp and accurate”: a graphic account of the battle; a lifelike portrait; a realistic description; a vivid recollection of the accident.

graphical user interface (grăf'ī-kəl yōō'zər ɪn'tər-fās') n. Computer Science. GUI.

graphic arts (grăf'īk ārts) pl.n. 1. The fine or applied visual arts and associated techniques involving the application of lines and strokes to a two-dimensional surface. 2. The fine or applied visual arts and associated techniques in which images are produced from blocks, plates, or type, as in engraving and lithography.

graph-ics (grăf'īks) n. 1. a. (used with a sing. verb). The making of drawings in accordance with the rules of mathematics, as in engineering or architecture. b. (used with a pl. verb). Calculations, as of structural stress, from such drawings. 2. Computer Science. a. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The pictorial representation and manipulation of data, as used in computer-aided design and computer-aided manufacture, in typesetting and the graphic arts, and in educational and recreational programs. b. (used with a sing. verb). The process by which a computer displays data pictorially.

graph-ite (grăf'īt') n. A soft, steel-gray to black, hexagonally crystallized allotrope of carbon with a metallic luster and a greasy feel, used in lead pencils, lubricants, paints, and coatings, that is fabricated into a variety of forms such as molds, bricks, electrodes, crucibles, and rocket nozzles. Also called black lead, plumbago. [Greek graphein, to write; see gerbh- in Appendix + -ITE¹.]

—gra-phit'ic (gră-fīt'ik) adj.

graph-i-tize (grăf'ī-tīz') v. tr. graph-i-tized, graph-i-tizing, graph-i-tiz-es. 1. To convert into graphite, as by a heating process. 2. To coat or impregnate with graphite. —graph'i-ti-za'tion (-tī-zā'shən) n.

gra-phol-o-gy (gră-fōl'ə-jē) n. The study of handwriting, especially when employed as a means of analyzing character. [Greek graphē, writing; see GRAPHIC + -LOGY.] —graph'o-log'i-cal (grăf'ə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —gra-phol'o-gist n.

graph paper (grăf pā'pər) n. Paper ruled usually into small squares of equal size for use in drawing charts, graphs, or diagrams.

-graphy suff. 1. A writing or representation produced in a specified manner or by a specified process: photography. 2. a. A writing about a specified subject: oceanography. b. A representation of a specified object: phonography. [Latin -graphia, from Greek, from graphein, to write. See gerbh- in Appendix.]

grap-nel (grăp'nəl) n. 1. Nautical. A small anchor with three or more flukes, especially one used for anchoring a small vessel. Also called grapple, grappling. 2. See grapple (n., sense 1a). [Middle English grapnel, probably ultimately from Old French grapin, hook, diminutive of grape. See GRAPE.]

grap-pa (gră'pə) n. An Italian brandy distilled from the pomace of grapes used in winemaking. [Italian, from Italian dialectal, grape stalk, brandy, of Germanic origin.]

grap-ple (grăp'əl) n. 1. a. An iron shaft with claws at one end, usually thrown by a rope and used for grasping and holding, especially one for drawing and holding an enemy ship alongside. Also called grapnel, grappling, grappling hook, grappling iron. b. Nautical. See grapnel (n., sense 1). 2. The act of grappling. 3. Sports. a. A contest in which the participants attempt to clutch or grip each other. b. A grasp or grip in such a contest. — v. grap-pled, grap-pling, grap-ples. — v. tr. 1. To seize and hold, as with a grapple. 2. To seize firmly, as with the hands. — v. intr. 1. To hold onto something with or as if with a grapple. 2. To use a grapple or similar device, as for dragging. 3. To struggle, in or as if in wrestling: grappled with their consciences; grapple with the political realities of our time. [Middle English grapel, from Old French grapil, diminutive of grape, hook. See GRAPE.] —grap'pler n.

grap-pling (grăp'ling) n. 1. See grapple (n., sense 1a). 2. Nautical. See grapnel (n., sense 1). grappling hook (grăp'ling hōök) n. See grapple (n., sense 1a).

grappling iron (grăp'ling ī'ərn) n. See grapple (n., sense 1a).

grap-to-lite (grăp'tə-līt') n. Any of numerous extinct colonial marine animals chiefly of the orders Dendroidea and Graptoloidea of the late Cambrian to the early Mississippian periods, whose fossil remains are often used to date the rocks of the Silurian and Ordovician ages. [Greek graptos, written (from graphein, to write); see GRAPHIC + -LITE (from the resemblance of the fossils' impressions on shale to markings on a slate).]

grap-y (grā'pē) adj. grap-i-er, grap-i-est. Variant of grapey.

GRAS abbr. Generally recognized as safe. Used by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration as a label designating food ingredients or additives not known to be harmful to human beings when used as intended.

Gras-mere (gräs'mîr') A lake of northwest England in the Lake District. Dove Cottage, in the former village of Grasmere, was the home of William Wordsworth from 1799 to 1808. The cottage is now a museum.

grasp (grăsp) v. grasped, grasp-ing, grasps. — v. tr. 1. To take hold of or seize firmly with or as if with the hand. 2. To clasp firmly with or as if with the hand. 3. To take hold of intellectually; comprehend. See Synonyms at apprehend. — v. intr. 1. To make a motion of seizing, snatching, or clutching. 2. To show eager and prompt willingness or acceptance: grasps at any opportunity. — n. 1. The act of grasping. 2. a. A firm hold or grip. b. An embrace. 3. The ability or power to seize or attain; reach: Victory in the election was within her grasp. 4. Understanding; comprehension: "only a vague intuitive grasp of the meaning of greatness in literature" (Gilbert Highet). [Middle English graspen. See ghrebh-¹ in Appendix.]

grasp-ing (grăs'pîng) adj. Exceedingly eager for material gain; avaricious. — grasp-ing-ly adv. — grasp-ing-ness n.

grass (gräs) n. 1. a. The grass family. b. The members of the grass family considered as a group. 2. Any of various plants having slender leaves characteristic of the grass family. 3. An expanse of ground, such as a lawn, covered with grass or similar plants. 4. Grazing land; pasture. 5. Slang. Marijuana. 6. Electronics. Small variations in amplitude of an oscilloscope display caused by electrical noise. — v. grassed, grass-ing, grass-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To cover with grass. b. To grow grass on. 2. To feed (livestock) with grass. — v. intr. 1. To become covered with grass. 2. To graze. [Middle English gras, from Old English græs. See ghrē- in Appendix.]

Grass (gräs), Günter Wilhelm. Born 1927. German writer whose novels, notably The Tin Drum (1959) and Dog Years (1963), concern the political and social climate of Germany during and after World War II.

Grasse (grās, gräs) A town of southeast France west of Nice. Probably founded in Roman times, it was an independent republic in the 12th century. The city has long been noted for its perfume industry. Population, 24,553.

Grasse (grās, gräs), Comte François Joseph Paul de Marquis de Grasse-Tilly. 1722?-1788. French naval officer who during the American Revolution commanded the French fleet in Chesapeake Bay, thereby preventing British naval forces from aiding Cornwallis at Yorktown (1781).

grass family (grās fām'ə-lē) n. A large and widespread family of plants, the Gramineae (or Poaceae), characterized by usually hollow stems, sheath-forming leaves in two longitudinal rows, and minute flowers arranged in spikelets. The grasses include important food plants such as wheat, rice, corn, barley, oats, and sorghum and also plants for turf and fodder.

grass green (grās grēn) n. Color. A moderate yellow-green to strong or dark yellowish-green. —grass'-green' (grās'grēn') adj.

grass-hopper (grās'höp'ər) n. 1. Any of numerous orthopteran insects of the families Locustidae (or Acrididae) and Tettigoniidae, often destructive to plants and characteristically having long, powerful hind legs adapted for jumping. Regional. Also called hoppergrass 2. A light, usually unarmed airplane used for liaison and scouting. 3. A cocktail consisting of crème de menthe, crème de cacao, and cream.

grass-land (grās'länd') n. An area, such as a prairie or meadow, of grass or grasslike vegetation.

Gras-so (grās'ō, grä'sō), Ella Tambussi. 1919-1981. American public official. As governor of Connecticut (1975-1981), she was the first woman to achieve an American state governorship in her own right.

grass-roots (grās'rōōts', -rōōts') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. People or society at a local level rather than at the center of major political activity. Often used with the. 2. The groundwork or source of something. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a grassroots movement; a grassroots constituency.

grass snake (grās snāk) n. Any of several greenish, nonvenomous snakes, especially Opheodrys vernalis of eastern North America or Natrix natrix of Europe.

grass tree (grās trē) n. Any of several woody-stemmed Australian plants of the genus Xanthorrhoea, having stiff grasslike leaves, palmlike stems, and a spike of small white flowers.

grass widow (grās wīd'ō) n. 1. A woman who is divorced or separated from her husband. 2. A woman whose husband is temporarily absent. 3. An abandoned mistress. 4. The mother of an illegitimate child. [Perhaps in allusion to a bed of grass or hay.]

WORD HISTORY: The term grass widow cries out for explanation as to what grass means and how grass widow came to have its varied though related senses. Grass probably refers to a bed of grass or hay as opposed to a real bed. This association would help explain the earliest recorded sense of the word (1528), “an unmarried woman who has lived with one or more men,” as well as the related senses “an abandoned mistress” and “the mother of an illegitimate child.” Later on, after the sense of grass had been obscured, people may have interpreted grass as equivalent to the figurative use of pasture, as in out to pasture. Hence grass widow could have developed the senses “a divorced or separated wife” or “a wife whose husband is temporarily absent.”

grass widower (grās wīd'ō-ər) n. 1. A man who is divorced or separated from his wife. 2. A man whose wife is temporarily absent.

grass-y (grās'ē) adj. grass-i-er, grass-i-est. 1. Covered with or abounding in grass. 2. Resembling or suggestive of grass, as in color or odor.

grate¹ (grāt) v. grat-ed, grat-ing, grates. — v. tr. 1. To reduce to fragments, shreds, or powder by rubbing against an abrasive surface. 2. To cause to make a harsh grinding or rasping sound through friction: grated her teeth in anger. 3. To irritate or annoy persistently. 4. Archaic. To rub or wear away. — v. intr. 1. To make a harsh rasping sound by or as if by scraping or grinding. 2. To cause irritation or annoyance: a noise that grates on one's nerves. — n. A harsh rasping sound made by scraping or rubbing: the grate of a key in a lock. [Middle English graten, from Old French grater, to scrape, of Germanic origin.]

grate² (grāt) n. 1. A framework of parallel or latticed bars for blocking an opening. 2. A framework of metal bars used to hold fuel or food in a stove, furnace, or fireplace. 3. A fireplace. 4. A perforated iron plate or screen for sieving and grading crushed ore. — v. tr. grat-ed, grat-ing, grates. To equip with a grate. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin grāta, alteration of Latin crātis, wickerwork.] grate-ful (grāt'fəl) adj. 1. Appreciative of benefits received; thankful. 2. Expressing gratitude. 3. Affording pleasure or comfort; agreeable. [From obsolete grate, pleasing, from Latin grātus. See g^werə-² in Appendix.] — grate'-ful-ly adv. — grate'ful-ness n.

grat-er (grā'tər) n. One that grates, as an implement with sharp-edged slits and perforations on which to grate foods.

Gra-tian (grā'shən, -shē-ən), A.D. 359-383. Emperor of Rome (367-383) who ruled jointly (from 379) with Theodosius I. Unpopular for his persecution of pagans and heretics and his weakness for frivolity, he was murdered by followers of the usurper Maximus (died 383).

grat·i·fi·ca·tion (grăt'ə-fī-kā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of gratifying. b. The condition of being gratified. 2. An instance or a cause of being gratified.

3. Archaic. a. A reward. b. A gratuity.

grat·i·fy (grăt'ə-fī') v. tr. grat·i·fied, grat·i·fy·ing, grat·i·fies. 1. To please or satisfy: His achievement gratified his father. See Synonyms at please. 2. To give what is desired to; indulge: gratified her curiosity. 3. Archaic. To reward. [Middle English gratifien, to favor, from Latin grātificārī: grātus, pleasing; see g^werə-² in Appendix + -ficārī, -fy.] —grat'·i·fi'er n. —grat'·i·fy'ing adj. —grat'·i·fy'ing·ly adv.

gratin (grăt'n, grăt'n, gră-tăn') n. A crust consisting of browned crumbs and butter, often with grated cheese. [French, from obsolete grater, to scratch, scrape, from Old French. See GRATE¹.]

grat·ing (grā'tīng) n. 1. A grill or network of bars set in a window or door or used as a partition; a grate. 2. A diffraction grating.

grat·is (grăt'is, gră'tis, grā'-) adv. & adj. Without charge. [Middle English, from Latin grātīs, alteration of grātīūs, out of kindness, free, ablative pl. of grātia, kindness. See g^werə-² in Appendix.]

grat·i·tude (grăt'ī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. The state of being grateful; thankfulness. [Middle English, from Old French, probably from Late Latin grātītūdō, grātītūdin-, from Latin grātus, pleasing. See g^werə-² in Appendix.]

Grat·tan (grăt'n), Henry. 1746-1820. Irish politician and orator who supported suffrage for Catholics and opposed the union of Ireland with England (1800).

gra·tu·i·tous (grə-tōō'ī-təs, -tyōō'-) adj. 1. Given or granted without return or recompense; unearned. 2. Given or received without cost or obligation; free. 3. Unnecessary or unwarranted; unjustified: gratuitous criticism. [From Latin grātuītus. See g^werə-² in Appendix.] —gra·tu·i·tous·ly adv.

—gra·tu·i·tous·ness n.

gra·tu·i·ty (grə-tōō'ī-tē, -tyōō'-) n. pl. gra·tu·i·ties. A favor or gift, usually in the form of money, given in return for service. See Synonyms at bonus. [French gratuité, from Old French gratuite, from Medieval Latin grātuītās, probably from Latin grātuītus, voluntary. See GRATUITOUS.]

grat·u·late (grăch'ə-lăt') Archaic. v. tr. grat·u·lat·ed, grat·u·lat·ing, grat·u·lates. To congratulate. [Latin grātulāārī, grātulāt-, ultimately from grātārī, to rejoice with. See GRATEFUL.] —grat'·u·la'tion n. —grat'·u·la'to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

grau·pel (grou'pəl) n. See snow pellet. [German Graupel, diminutive of Graupe, hulled grain, probably of Slavic origin; akin to Russian krupa, groats.]

gra·va·men (grə-vā'mən) n. pl. gra·va·mens or gra·vam·i·na (-vām'ə-nə). Law. The part of a charge or an accusation that weighs most substantially against the accused. [Medieval Latin gravāmen, injury, accusation, from Late Latin, encumbrance, obligation, from Latin gravāre, to burden, from gravis, heavy. See GRAVE².]

grave¹ (grāv) n. 1. a. An excavation for the interment of a corpse. b. A place of burial. 2. Death or extinction: faced the grave with calm resignation. [Middle English, from Old English græf. See ghrebh-² in Appendix.]

grave² (grāv) adj. grav-er, grav-est. 1. Requiring serious thought; momentous: a grave decision in a time of crisis. 2. Fraught with danger or harm: a grave wound. 3. Dignified and somber in conduct or character: a grave procession. See Synonyms at serious. 4. Somber or dark in hue. 5. (also grāv) Linguistics.

a. Written with or modified by the mark (˘), as the è in Sèvres. b. Of or referring to a phonetic feature that distinguishes sounds produced at the periphery of the vocal tract, as in labial and velar consonants and back vowels. — n. (also grāv) Linguistics. A mark (˘) indicating a pronounced e for the sake of meter in the usually nonsyllabic ending -ed in English poetry. [French, from Old French, from Latin gravis. See g^werə-¹ in Appendix.] — grave/ly adv. — grave/ness n.

grave³ (grāv) v. tr. graved, grav-en (grā'vən) or graved, grav-ing, graves. 1. To sculpt or carve; engrave. 2. To stamp or impress deeply; fix permanently. [Middle English graven, from Old English grafan. See ghrebh-² in Appendix.]

grave⁴ (grāv) v. tr. graved, grav-ing, graves. To clean and coat (the bottom of a wooden ship) with pitch. [Middle English graven.]

grave⁵ (grā'vā) adv. & adj. Music. In a slow and solemn manner. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from Latin gravis, heavy. See GRAVE².]

grave-dig-ger (grāv'dīg'ər) n. One that digs graves.

grav-el (grāv'əl) n. 1. An unconsolidated mixture of rock fragments or pebbles. 2. Pathology. The sandlike granular material of urinary calculi. — v. tr.

grav-eled or grav-elled, grav-el-ing or grav-el-ling, grav-els or grav-els.

1. To apply a surface of rock fragments or pebbles to. 2. To confuse; perplex.

3. Informal. To irritate. [Middle English, from Old French gravele, diminutive of grave, pebbly shore, of Celtic origin.]

grav-el-blind (grāv'əl-blīnd') adj. Having minimal vision. [On the model of SAND-BLIND.]

grav-el-ly (grāv'əl-lē) adj. 1. Of, full of, or covered with rock fragments or pebbles: a gravelly beach. 2. Having a harsh rasping sound: a gravelly voice.

grav-en (grā'vən) v. A past participle of grave³.

graven image (grā'vən ım'ij) n. An idol or a fetish carved in wood or stone.

grav-er (grā'vər) n. 1. One who carves or engraves. 2. An engraver's cutting tool.

grave robber (grāv rōb'ər) n. One who plunders valuables from tombs or graves or who steals corpses after burial, as for illicit dissection.

Graves (gräv') A region of southwest France in the Garonne River valley. The area is known for its fine table wines.

Graves (grāvz), Robert Ranke. 1895-1985. British writer and critic whose works include poetic delineations of his tour of service in World War I, love poems, and the critical work The White Goddess (1948).

Graves' disease (grāvz dĩ-zēz') n. A condition usually caused by excessive production of thyroid hormone and characterized by an enlarged thyroid gland, protrusion of the eyeballs, a rapid heartbeat, and nervous excitability. Also called exophthalmic goiter [After Robert J. Graves (1797-1853), Irish physician.]

Graves-end (grāvz'ënd') A municipal borough of southeast England on the Thames River east of London. Known as "the Gateway to the Port of London," it is an industrial and shipping center. Pocahontas is buried here. Population, 96,300.

grave-side (grāv'sīd') n. The area beside a grave. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a graveside ceremony; a graveside oration.

grave-site (grāv'sīt') n. A place used for graves or a grave.

grave-stone (grāv'stōn') n. A stone placed over a grave as a marker; a tombstone.

grave-yard (grāv'yārd') n. A burial ground; a cemetery.

graveyard shift (grāv'yārd' shift) n. 1. A work shift that runs during the early morning hours, as from midnight to 8 A.M. 2. The workers on an early-morning shift.

grav-id (grāv'id) adj. Carrying developing young or eggs: a gravid uterus; a gravid female. [Latin gravidus, from gravis, heavy. See g^werə-¹ in Appendix.] —gra-vid'i-ty (grə-vid'ī-tē), grav'id-ness n. —grav'id-ly adv.

gra-vim-e-ter (gră-vīm'ī-tər, grā'və-mē'-) n. 1. An instrument used to measure specific gravity. 2. An instrument used to measure variations in a gravitational field. [French gravimètre: Latin gravis, heavy; see GRAVITY + -mètre, -meter.] —gra-vim'e-try (gră-vīm'ī-trē, grə-) n.

grav-i-met-ric (grāv'ə-mēt'rīk) also grav-i-met-ri-cal (-rī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to measurement by weight. 2. Of or relating to measurement of variations in a gravitational field. [From gravimetry, measurement of specific gravity, from GRAVIMETER.] —grav'ī-met'ri-cal-ly adv.

grav-ing dock (grā'vīng dōk) n. A dry dock where the hulls of ships are repaired and maintained.

grav-i-sphere (grāv'ī-sfir') n. The spherical region of space dominated by the gravitational field of a celestial body. [GRAVI(TY) + SPHERE.]

grav-i-tate (grāv'ī-tāt') v. intr. grav-i-tat-ed, grav-i-tat-ing, grav-i-tates. 1. To move in response to the force of gravity. 2. To move downward. 3. To be attracted by or as if by an irresistible force: "My excuse must be that all Celts gravitate towards each other” (Oscar Wilde). [New Latin gravitāre, gravitāt-, from Latin gravitās, heaviness. See GRAVITY.] —grav/i-tat'er n.

grav·i-ta-tion (gräv'ī-tā'shən) n. 1. Physics. a. The natural phenomenon of attraction between massive bodies. b. The act or process of moving under the influence of this attraction. 2. A movement toward a source of attraction: the gravitation of the middle classes to the suburbs. —grav'i-ta'tion-al adj.

—grav'i-ta'tion-al-ly adv. —grav'i-ta'tive adj.

gravitational collapse (gräv'ī-tā'shənəl kə-läps') n. Astronomy. 1. The implosion of a star or other celestial body under the influence of its own gravity, resulting in a body that is many times smaller and denser than the original body. 2. The process by which stars, star clusters, and galaxies form from interstellar gas under the influence of gravity.

gravitational constant (gräv'ī-tā'shənəl kōn'stənt) n. Abbr. G Physics. The constant in Newton's law of gravitation that yields the rate of acceleration of a less massive body toward a more massive body when multiplied by the product of the masses of the two bodies and divided by the square of the distance between them.

gravitational interaction (gräv'ī-tā'shənəl in'tər-äk'shən) n. Physics. A hypothetical weak, fundamental interaction between elementary particles.

gravitational wave (gräv'ī-tā'shənəl wāv) n. Physics. A hypothetical wave that is held to propagate the force of gravity and to travel at the speed of light.

Also called gravity wave grav·i-ton (gräv'ī-tōn') n. Physics. A hypothetical particle postulated to be the quantum of gravitational interaction and presumed to have an indefinitely long lifetime, zero electric charge, and zero rest mass. [GRAVIT(ATION) + -ON¹.]

grav·i-ty (gräv'ī-tē) n. 1. Abbr. gr. Physics. a. The natural force of attraction exerted by a celestial body, such as Earth, upon objects at or near its surface, tending to draw them toward the center of the body. b. The natural force of attraction between any two massive bodies, which is directly proportional to the product of their masses and inversely proportional to the square of the distance between them. c. Gravitation. 2. Grave consequence; seriousness or importance: They are still quite unaware of the gravity of their problems. 3. Solemnity or dignity of manner. [French gravité, heaviness, from Old French, from Latin gravitās, from gravis, heavy. See g^werə-¹ in Appendix.]

gravity wave (gräv'ī-tē wāv) n. Physics. See gravitational wave.

grav-lax (gräv'läks) n. Raw, thinly sliced salmon marinated in spices, especially dill, and served usually as an appetizer. [Swedish : grava, to bury (from the original process of curing it in the ground); see ghrebh-² in Appendix + lax, salmon; see laks- in Appendix.]

gra-vure (grə-vyōōr') n. 1. a. A method of printing with etched plates or cylinders; intaglio printing. b. Photogravure. 2. a. A plate used in the process of gra-vure. b. A reproduction produced by gravure. [French, from graver, to engrave, from Old French, of Germanic origin. See ghrebh-² in Appendix.]

gra·vy (grā'vĕ) n. pl. gra·vies. 1. a. The juices that drip from cooking meat.

b. A sauce made by thickening and seasoning these juices. 2. Slang. a. Money, profit, or benefit easily or illicitly gained. b. Payment or benefit in excess of what is expected or required. [Middle English grave, from Old French, possibly a misreading of grane, stew, sauce, from Latin grānātus, having many seeds. See POMEGRANATE.]

gravy boat (grā'vĕ bōt) n. An elongated dish or pitcher for serving gravy.

gravy train (grā'vĕ trān) n. Slang. An occupation or other source of income that requires little effort while yielding considerable profit.

gray also grey (grā) adj. gray·er also grey·er, gray·est also grey·est.

1. Color. Of or relating to an achromatic color of any lightness between the extremes of black and white. 2. a. Dull or dark: a gray, rainy afternoon.

b. Lacking in cheer; gloomy: a gray mood. 3. a. Having gray hair; hoary. b. Old or venerable. 4. Intermediate in character or position, as with regard to a subjective matter: the gray area between their differing opinions on the film's morality.

— n. 1. Color. An achromatic color of any lightness between the extremes of black and white. 2. An object or animal of the color gray. 3. Often Gray. a. A member of the Confederate Army in the Civil War. b. The Confederate Army.

— v. tr. intr. grayed also greyed, gray·ing also grey·ing, grays also greys. To make or become gray. [Middle English grei, from Old English græg.]

—gray'ly adj. —gray'ness n.

Gray (grā), Asa. 1810-1888. American botanist who greatly enlarged and improved the description of North American flora and was the chief American advocate of Charles Darwin's theories.

Gray (grā), Hanna Holborn. Born 1930. German-born American educator who was appointed president of the University of Chicago (1978), thus becoming the first woman to preside over a major American university.

Gray (grā), Horace. 1828-1902. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1882-1902).

Gray (grā), Robert. 1755-1806. American explorer who twice circumnavigated the globe (1787-1790 and 1790-1793) and discovered Grays Harbor and the Columbia River (1792).

Gray (grā), Thomas. 1716-1771. British poet considered a forerunner of English romanticism. His most famous work is Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (1751).

gray·beard (grā'bīrd') n. An old man.

gray eminence (grā ĕm'ə-nəns) n. See éminence grise.

gray·fish (grā'fīsh') n. pl. grayfish or gray·fish·es. See dogfish (n., sense 1).

gray-ish (grā'ish) adj. Somewhat gray.

gray jay (grā jā) n. A bird (Perisoreus canadensis) of North American conifer forests, having gray plumage and a black-capped head. Also called camp robber, Canada jay, moosebird, whiskey jack.

gray-lag also grey-lag (grā'läg') n. A wild gray goose (Anser anser) of Europe. [Possibly GRAY + LAG¹, lingering behind (obsolete), from its being the last of the geese to leave England on its annual migration.]

gray-ling (grā'līng) n. pl. grayling or gray-lings. Any of several freshwater food and game fishes of the genus Thymallus of the Northern Hemisphere, having a small mouth and large dorsal fin.

gray-mail (grā'māl') n. A defensive tactic in an espionage trial whereby the accused threatens to reveal secret information unless the charges are dropped. [GRAY + (BLACK)MAIL.]

gray market (grā mär'kīt) n. The business of buying or selling goods, such as imports, at prices below those set by an official regulatory agency. [GRAY + (BLACK) MARKET.]

gray matter (grā măt'ər) n. 1. Brownish-gray nerve tissue, especially of the brain and spinal cord, composed of nerve cell bodies and their dendrites and some supportive tissue. 2. Informal. Brains; intellect.

gray mullet (grā mül'īt) n. See mullet (n., sense 1).

grays-by (grāz'bē) n. A tropical grouper (Epinephelus cruentatus), abundant among the coral reefs of the Florida Keys and the West Indies. [Origin unknown.]

Grays Harbor (grāz här'bər) An inlet of the Pacific Ocean in western Washington. It is the shipping point for a lumbering area.

Grays Peak (grāz pēk) A mountain, 4,352.4 m (14,270 ft) high, in the Front Range of the Rocky Mountains in central Colorado. It is the highest elevation in the range.

gray squirrel (grā skwūr'əl) n. A common squirrel (Sciurus carolinensis) of eastern North America, having grayish or blackish fur.

gray-wacke (grā'wāk', -wāk'ə) n. Any of various dark gray sandstones that contain shale. [Partial translation of German Grauwacke : grau, gray + Wacke, rock (from Middle High German, from Old High German waggo, boulder); see wegh- in Appendix.]

gray whale (grā hwāl) n. A whalebone whale (Eschrichtius robustus) of northern Pacific waters, having grayish-black coloring with white blotches. Also called devilfish gray wolf (grā woōlf) n. A large, tawny gray wolf (Canis lupus) that formerly occupied diverse habitats throughout northern North America and Eurasia but now lives in fewer, more limited areas because of human encroachment. Also called timber wolf Graz (gräts) A city of southeast Austria on the Mur River south-southwest of Vienna. It was probably founded in the 12th century. Population, 243,166.

graze¹ (grāz) v. grazed, graz-ing, graz-es. — v. intr. 1. To feed on growing grasses and herbage. 2. Informal. a. To eat a variety of appetizers as a full meal. b. To eat snacks throughout the day in place of full meals. — v. tr. 1. To feed on (herbage) in a field or on pastureland. 2. To feed on the herbage of (a piece of land). 3. To afford herbage for the feeding of: This field will graze 30 head of cattle. 4. To put (livestock) out to feed. 5. To tend (feeding livestock) in a pasture. [Middle English grasen, from Old English grasian, from græs, grass. See ghrē- in Appendix.] — graze/a-ble, graz/a-ble adj. — graz'er n.

graze² (grāz) v. grazed, graz-ing, graz-es. — v. tr. 1. To touch lightly in passing; brush. See Synonyms at brush¹. 2. To scrape or scratch slightly; abrade. — v. intr. To scrape or touch something lightly in passing. — n. 1. The act of brushing or scraping along a surface. 2. A minor scratch or abrasion. [Perhaps from GRAZE¹.]

grazier (grā'zhər) n. A person who grazes cattle. [Middle English grasier, from grasen, to graze. See GRAZE¹.]

grazi-o-so (grät'sē-ō'sō, -zō) adv. & adj. Music. In a graceful, smooth manner. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from Latin grātiōsus, gracious, agreeable. See GRACIOUS.]

Gr. Brit. abbr. Great Britain.

grease (grēs) n. 1. Soft or melted animal fat, especially after rendering. 2. A thick oil or viscous substance, especially when used as a lubricant. 3. a. The oily substance present in raw wool; suint. b. Raw wool that has not been cleansed of this oily substance. 4. Slang. Something, such as money or influence, that facilitates the attainment of an object or a desire: accepted some grease to fix the outcome of the race. — v. tr. greased, greas-ing, greas-es (grēs, grēz). 1. To coat, smear, or soil with grease: greased the pie pan. 2. To lubricate with grease. 3. To facilitate the progress of. 4. Slang. To kill. See Regional note at greasy. — idiom. grease (someone's) palm (or grease (someone's) hand). Slang. To bribe. [Middle English grese, from Anglo-Norman grece, from Vulgar Latin crassia*, from Latin crassus, fat, thick.] — grease/less adj. — grease/proof adj.

grease gun (grēs gŭn) n. 1. A hand-powered pump used to force grease under pressure into bearings. 2. A submachine gun.

grease monkey (grēs mŭng'kē) n. Slang. A mechanic, especially one who works on motor vehicles or aircraft.

grease-paint also grease paint (grēs'pānt') n. Theatrical makeup, especially a preparation of grease mixed with colorings.

grease pencil (grēs pĕn'səl) n. A pencil of hard grease mixed with colorings, used especially for marking on glossy or glazed surfaces.

greas·er (grē'sər, -zər) n. 1. One who greases, such as a worker who greases working parts in a machine. 2. Slang. A tough young man, especially one from a white working-class background who is much involved with motorcycles or cars. 3. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Latin American, especially a Mexican.

grease·wood (grēs'wōd') n. A spiny shrub (Sarcobatus vermiculatus) of western North America, having small alternate leaves, white stems, and small greenish flowers.

greas·y (grē'sē, -zē) adj. greas·i·er, greas·i·est. 1. Coated or soiled with grease. 2. Containing grease, especially too much grease: a greasy hamburger. 3. Suggestive of grease in slickness or slipperiness: a greasy character.

—greas'i·ly adv. —greas'i·ness n.

REGIONAL NOTE: In the Southern states the adjective greasy and the verb grease are pronounced with a (z) rather than with an (s) sound. This pronunciation is so stable and so characteristic of Southern dialects that dialect scholars use it to trace the migration of Southern speakers into other dialect areas, such as southern Indiana.

greasy spoon (grē'sē spōn) n. Slang. A small, inexpensive, often unsanitary restaurant.

great (grāt) adj. great·er, great·est. Abbr. gr., gt. 1. Very large in size. 2. Larger in size than others of the same kind. 3. Large in quantity or number: A great throng awaited us. See Synonyms at large. 4. Extensive in time or distance: a great delay. 5. Remarkable or outstanding in magnitude, degree, or extent: a great crisis. 6. Of outstanding significance or importance: a great work of art. 7. Chief or principal: the great house on the estate. 8. Superior in quality or character; noble: “For he was great, ere fortune made him so” (John Dryden). 9. Powerful; influential: one of the great nations of the West. 10. Eminent; distinguished: a great leader. 11. Grand; aristocratic. 12. Informal. Enthusiastic: a great lover of music. 13. Informal. Very skillful: great at algebra. 14. Informal. Very good; first-rate: We had a great time at the dance. 15. Being one generation removed from the relative specified. Often used in combination: a great-granddaughter. 16. Archaic. Pregnant. — n. 1. pl. greats or great. One that is great: a composer considered among the greats. 2. Music. a. A division of most pipe organs, usually containing the most powerful ranks of pipes. b. A similar division of other organs. — adv. Informal. Very well: got along great with the teacher. [Middle English grete, from Old English grēat, thick, coarse.] —great'ly adv. —great'ness *n.

Great A·ba·co (grāt' äb'ə-kō') The largest island of the Abaco and Cays group in the northern Bahamas.

Great Al·föld (grāt ôl'fæld) See Alföld.

great ape (grāt āp) n. Any of various anthropoid apes of the family Pongidae, which includes the chimpanzees, gorillas, and orangutans.

great auk (grāt ôk) n. A large, flightless sea bird (Pinguinus impennis) formerly common on northern Atlantic coasts but extinct since the middle of the 19th century.

great-aunt or great aunt (grāt'ānt', -ānt') n. A sister of one's grandparent. Also called grandaunt Great Aus·tra·lian Bight (grāt ô-strāl'yən bīt) A wide bay of the Indian Ocean on the southern coast of Australia. Much of the coastline consists of high cliffs extending inland to form the Nullarbor Plain.

Great Barrier Reef (grāt bār'ē-ər rēf) The largest coral reef in the world, about 2,011 km (1,250 mi) long, off the northeast coast of Australia. Its vividly colored banks are known for their exotic fish and crustaceans.

Great Basin (grāt bā'sīn) A desert region of the western United States comprising most of Nevada and parts of Utah, California, Idaho, Wyoming, and Oregon. John C. Frémont explored and named the area (1843-1845).

Great Bear (grāt bār) n. See Ursa Major.

Great Bear Lake (grāt bār lāk) A lake of northwest mainland Northwest Territories, Canada. The Great Bear River, about 113 km (70 mi) long, flows westward from the lake to the Mackenzie River.

Great Bend (grāt bēnd) A city of central Kansas on the Arkansas River northwest of Wichita. It is located on the old Santa Fe Trail. Population, 15,427.

great blue heron (grāt blōō hēr'ən) n. A large American heron (Ardea herodias) having blue-gray plumage and a predominantly white head with a dark crest.

Great Brit·ain (grāt brīt'n) Abbr. G.B., Gr. Brit., Gt. Brit. 1. An island off the western coast of Europe comprising England, Scotland, and Wales. It is separated from the mainland by the English Channel and from Ireland by the Irish Sea. 2. See United Kingdom.

great circle (grāt sūr'kəl) n. 1. A circle described by the intersection of the surface of a sphere with a plane passing through the center of the sphere. 2. A segment of such a circle representing the shortest distance between two terrestrial points.

great·coat (grāt'kōt') n. A heavy overcoat.

Great Com·o·ro (grāt kōm'ə-rō') The largest of the Comoro Islands, in the northern Mozambique Channel of the Indian Ocean.

Great Cros·by (grāt krōz'bē) See Crosby.

Great Dane (grāt dān) n. Any of various large, powerful dogs of a breed developed in Germany, having a muscular body, a short smooth coat, and a narrow head.

great divide (grāt dī-vid') n. 1. A large or major watershed of a landmass.

2. A major point of division, especially death.

Great Di·vide (grāt dī-vid') See Continental Divide.

Great Di·vid·ing Range (grāt dī-vī'dĩng rānj) also Eastern High·lands (hī'ləndz) A chain of mountains curving along the eastern coast of Australia.

great·en (grāt'n) v. tr. intr. great·ened, great·en·ing, great·ens. Archaic.
To make or become great or greater.

great·er also Great·er (grā'tər) adj. Of, relating to, or being a city considered together with its populous suburbs: the greater metropolitan area of Dallas; Greater Los Angeles.

Greater An·til·les (grā'tər ən-tīl'ēz) An island group of the northern West Indies including Cuba, Jamaica, Hispaniola, and Puerto Rico.

greater omentum (grā'tər ō-měn'təm) n. A fold of the peritoneum, passing from the stomach to the transverse colon. Also called caul great·est common divisor (grā'tīst kōm'ən dī-vī'zər) n. Abbr. gcd, g.c.d. Mathematics. The largest number that divides evenly into each of a given set of numbers. Also called greatest common factor, highest common factor.

Greater Sun·da Islands (grā'tər sūn'də ī'ləndz, sōn'-) See Sunda Islands.

Great Falls (grāt fōlz) A city of central Montana on the Missouri River north-northeast of Helena. At the center of extensive hydroelectric power installations, Great Falls is popularly known as "Electric City." Population, 55,097.

Great Grims·by (grāt grīmz'bē) See Grimsby (sense 2).

great·heart·ed (grāt'här'tīd) adj. 1. Noble or courageous in spirit: a great-hearted general. 2. Generous; magnanimous: a greathearted landowner.
—great'heart'ed·ly adv. —great'heart'ed·ness n.

great horned owl (grāt hōrnd owl) n. A large North American owl (Bubo virginianus) having prominent ear tufts and brownish plumage with a white throat.

Great In·di·an Desert (grāt ĩn'dē-ən dəz'ərt) See Thar Desert.

Great Kar·roo (grāt kə-rōō') See Karoo.

Great Lakes (grāt lāks) A group of five freshwater lakes of central North America between the United States and Canada, including Lakes Superior, Huron, Erie, Ontario, and Michigan. French traders first sighted the lakes in the early 17th century. Today the Great Lakes connect Midwestern ports with the Atlantic Ocean via the St. Lawrence Seaway.

great laurel (grāt lôr'əl) n. See rosebay (n., sense 1).

Great Mi·am·i River (grāt mī-ām'ē rĭv'ər, -ām'ə) See Miami River.

Great Na·ma·qua·land (grāt nə-mä'kwə-lānd') See Namaqualand.

Great Ouse River (grāt ōōz rĭv'ər) See Ouse River (sense 1).

Great Pee Dee (grāt pē' dē') See Pee Dee.

- Great Plains (grāt plānz) A vast grassland region of central North America extending from the Canadian provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba southward to Texas. Much of the area is used for cattle and wheat ranching.
- Great Power (grāt pou'ər) n. One of the nations having great political, social, and economic influence in international affairs.
- Great Pyrenees (grāt pîr'ə-nēz') n. Any of a breed of large, heavy-boned dogs having a thick white coat and originally developed to guard sheep.
- Great Rift Valley (grāt rift vāl'ē) A geologic depression of southwest Asia and eastern Africa extending from the Jordan River valley to Mozambique. The region is marked by a series of faults caused by volcanic action.
- Great Russian (grāt rûsh'an) n. A member of the Russian-speaking people inhabiting Russia.
- Great Saint Bernard Pass (grāt sânt' bər-nârd' pās) An Alpine pass, 2,473.6 m (8,110 ft) high, on the Italian-Swiss border. It has been used since ancient times.
- Great Salt Lake (grāt sôlt lâk) A shallow body of salt water of northwest Utah between the Wasatch Range on the east and the Great Salt Lake Desert on the west. The lake is a remnant of prehistoric Lake Bonneville, which covered an extensive area of the Great Basin. Great Salt Lake Desert is barren and uncultivated.
- Great Sand·y Desert (grāt sǎn'dē dēz'ərt) A vast arid area of northwest Australia north of the Gibson Desert.
- Great Sark (grāt sârk) See Sark.
- great seal (grāt sēl) n. The principal seal of a government or state, with which official documents are stamped.
- great skua (grāt skyōō'ə) n. A predatory gull-like sea bird (Catharacta skua) of northern regions, having brownish plumage.
- Great Slave Lake (grāt slāv lâk) A lake of southern Northwest Territories, Canada. The British fur trader Samuel Hearne (1745-1792) discovered the lake in 1771 while exploring for the Hudson's Bay Company.
- Great Smok·y Mountains (grāt smō'kē moun'tənz) A range of the Appalachian Mountains on the North Carolina-Tennessee border rising to 2,026.1 m (6,643 ft) at Clingmans Dome. The mountains, named for the smokelike haze that often envelops them, are noted for their luxuriant vegetation.
- Great South Bay (grāt south bā) An arm of the Atlantic Ocean between the southern shore of Long Island and offshore barrier islands.
- Great Spirit (grāt spîr'it) n. The principal deity in the religion of many Native American peoples.
- great-un·cle or great uncle (grāt'üŋg'kəl) n. A brother of one's grandparent. Also called granduncle Great Vic-to-ri-a Desert (grāt vīk-tōr'ē-ə dēz'ərt, -tōr'-) An arid region of south-central Australia sloping to the Nullarbor Plain on the south.

Great Vowel Shift (grāt vou'əl shift) n. A series of phonetic changes occurring in Early Modern English in which the Middle English low and mid long vowels were raised, (ä) and (ō) becoming (ā) and (ōō), for example, while the high long vowels (ē) and (ōō) became the diphthongs (ī) and (ou).

Great Wall of Chi-na (grāt wōl ūv chī'nə) A line of fortifications extending about 2,414 km (1,500 mi) across northern China. Built in the third century B.C. by some 300,000 laborers (mainly criminals, conscript soldiers, and slaves), the wall is today a major tourist attraction.

Great War (grāt wōr) n. World War I.

great white shark (grāt hwīt shārk) n. A large shark (Carcharodon carcharias) of temperate and tropical waters that grows to about 7 meters (23 feet). It is the only shark known to feed regularly on marine mammals.

greave (grēv) n. Leg armor worn below the knee. Often used in the plural. [Sing. of Middle English greves, from Old French, shins.]

greaves (grēvz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The unmelted residue left after animal fat has been rendered. [From Low German greven.]

grebe (grēb) n. Any of various swimming and diving birds of the family Podicipedidae, having a pointed bill and lobed, fleshy membranes along each toe. [French grèbe.]

Gre-cian (grē'shən) adj. Greek. — n. A native or inhabitant of Greece. [From Latin Graecia, Greece, from Graecus, Greek. See GREEK.]

Gre-cism (grē'siz'əm) n. 1. The style or spirit of Greek culture, art, or thought. 2. Something done in imitation of Greek style or spirit. 3. An idiom of the Greek language.

Gre-cize (grē'sīz') v. tr. Gre-cized, Gre-ciz-ing, Gre-ciz-es. To make Greek or Hellenic in form or style. [French gréciser, from Late Latin graecizāre, from Greek graikizein, to speak Greek, from Graikos, Greek.]

Gre-co (grēk'ō), El. Born Doménikos Theotokópoulos. 1541-1614. Greek-born Spanish painter of religious works, such as Christ Stripped of His Garments (1579) and Assumption (1577), characterized by elongated human figures, contrasting colors, and deep shadows.

Greco- or Graeco- pref. Greece; Greek: Greco-Roman. [From Latin Graecus, Greek. See GREEK.]

Grec-o-Ro-man (grēk'ō-rō'mən, grē'kō-) adj. Of or relating to both Greece and Rome: Greco-Roman mythology.

gree (grē) n. Scots. Superiority; mastery. [Middle English gre, from Old French, step, from Latin gradus. See GRADE.]

Greece (grēs) Formerly Hel-las (hēl'əs) Abbr. Gr. 1. A country of southeast Europe on the southern Balkan Peninsula and including numerous islands in the Mediterranean, Aegean, and Ionian seas. One of the most important centers of early civilization, Greece grew and flourished as an amalgam of independent city-states, although intercity strife led to conquest by Philip II of Macedon in 338 B.C. Greece was ruled by the Ottoman Turks from the 15th century A.D. until its independence in 1829. Athens is the capital and the largest city. Population, 9,740,417.

2. A community of western New York, a suburb of Rochester. Population, 15,632.

greed (grēd) n. An excessive desire to acquire or possess more than what one needs or deserves, especially with respect to material wealth: “Many... attach to competition the stigma of selfish greed” (Henry Fawcett). [Back-formation from GREEDY.]

greed·y (grē'dē) adj. greed·i·er, greed·i·est. 1. Excessively desirous of acquiring or possessing, especially wishing to possess more than what one needs or deserves. 2. Wanting to eat or drink more than one can reasonably consume; gluttonous. 3. Extremely eager or desirous: greedy for the opportunity to prove their ability. [Middle English gredi, from Old English grædig. See gher-² in Appendix.] —greed/i·ly adv. —greed/i·ness n.

Greek (grēk) n. Abbr. Gr., Gk. 1. a. The Indo-European language of the Greeks. Greek, the sole member of the Hellenic branch, consists of several groups of ancient and modern regional, social, and literary dialects and is divided into several historical periods. b. Greek language and literature from the middle of the eighth century B.C. to the end of the third century A.D., especially the Attic Greek of the fifth and fourth centuries B.C. 2. a. A native or inhabitant of Greece. b. A person of Greek ancestry. 3. Informal. A member of a fraternity or sorority that has its name composed of Greek letters. 4. Informal. Something that is unintelligible: Quantum mechanics is Greek to me. — adj. Of or relating to Greece or its people, language, or culture. [Middle English Grek, from Old English Grēcas, the Greeks, from Latin Graecus, Greek, from Greek Graikos, tribal name.]

Greek Catholic (grēk kăth'ə-lik) n. 1. A member of the Eastern Orthodox Church. 2. A member of a Uniat church.

Greek Church (grēk chûrch) n. The Eastern Orthodox Church.

Greek cross (grēk krôs) n. A cross formed by two bars of equal length crossing in the middle at right angles to each other.

Greek fire (grēk fîr) n. An incendiary preparation first used by the Byzantine Greeks to set fire to enemy ships.

Greek Orthodox Church (grēk ôr'thə-dōks' chûrch) n. The state church of Greece, an autonomous part of the Eastern Orthodox Church.

Greek revival (grēk rī-vī'vəl) n. An architectural style imitating elements of ancient Greek temple design, popular in the United States and Europe in the first half of the 19th century.

Gree-ley (grē'lē) A city of north-central Colorado north-northeast of Denver. It was founded in 1870 as a cooperative farm and temperance center and named for its patron, Horace Greeley. Population, 60,536.

Gree-ley (grē'lē), Horace. 1811-1872. American journalist and politician who founded and edited the New York Tribune (1841-1872). In 1872 he ran unsuccessfully for President.

Gree-ly (grē'lē), Adolphus Washington. 1844-1935. American army officer and explorer who led an Arctic expedition (1881-1884) that reached the northernmost point achieved up until that time, 83°24'.

green (grēn) n. 1. Color. The hue of that portion of the visible spectrum lying between yellow and blue, evoked in the human observer by radiant energy with wavelengths of approximately 490 to 570 nanometers; any of a group of colors that may vary in lightness and saturation and whose hue is that of the emerald or somewhat less yellow than that of growing grass; one of the additive or light primaries; one of the psychological primary hues. 2. Something green in color. 3. greens. Green growth or foliage, especially: a. The branches and leaves of plants used for decoration. b. Leafy plants or plant parts eaten as vegetables. 4. A grassy lawn or plot, especially: a. A grassy area located usually at the center of a city or town and set aside for common use; a common. b. Sports. A putting green. 5. greens. A green uniform: “a young... sergeant in dress greens” (Nelson DeMille). 6. Slang. Money. 7. Green. A supporter of a social and political movement that espouses global environmental protection, bioregionalism, social responsibility, and nonviolence. — adj. green-er, green-est. 1. Color. Of the color green. 2. Abounding in or covered with green growth or foliage: the green woods. 3. Made with green or leafy vegetables: a green salad. 4. Characterized by mild or temperate weather: a green climate. 5. Youthful; vigorous: at the green age of 18. 6. Not mature or ripe; young: green tomatoes. 7. Brand-new; fresh. 8. Not yet fully processed, especially: a. Not aged: green wood. b. Not cured or tanned: green pelts. 9. Lacking training or experience. See Synonyms at young. 10. a. Lacking sophistication or worldly experience; naive. b. Easily duped or deceived; gullible. 11. Having a sickly or unhealthy pallor indicative of nausea or jealousy, for example. — v. tr. intr. greened, green-ing, greens. To make or become green. — idiom. green around the gills (or green about the gills). Pale or sickly in appearance. [Middle English grene, from Old English grēne; see ghrē- in Appendix. N., sense 7 translation of German Grünen, Greens, from grün, green.] — green'ly adv. — green'ness n.

Green (grēn), Anna Katherine. 1846-1935. American writer of detective fiction whose novels include The Leavenworth Case (1878).

Green (grēn), Henrietta Howland. Known as “Hetty.” 1834-1916. American financier who became America’s richest woman through her shrewd investment of a large inheritance. Her miserly lifestyle was the subject of many anecdotes.

Green (grĕn), Paul Eliot. 1894-1981. American playwright noted for his dramas portraying Southern life, such as In Abraham's Bosom (1926), for which he won a Pulitzer Prize.

Green (grĕn), William. 1873-1952. American labor leader who as president of the American Federation of Labor (1924-1952) led the struggle with the Congress of Industrial Organizations after the two unions split (1936).

green alga (grĕn ăl'gə) n. Any of the numerous algae of the division Chlorophyta, such as spirogyra and sea lettuce, that have chlorophyll unmasked by other pigments.

Gree·na·way (grĕ'nə-wā') , Catherine. Known as "Kate." 1846-1901. British artist and writer noted for her illustrations of her own children's books, such as Under the Window (1879).

green·back (grĕn'băk') n. A note of U.S. currency.

Green Bay (grĕn bā) A city of eastern Wisconsin on Green Bay, an arm of Lake Michigan. Founded as a trading post in 1634, the city is a port of entry with varied industries. Population, 96,466.

green bean (grĕn bĕn) n. See string bean (n., sense 1).

green·belt (grĕn'bĕlt') n. A belt of recreational parks, farmland, or uncultivated land surrounding a community.

Green·belt (grĕn'bĕlt') A city of central Maryland, a residential suburb of Washington, D.C. It was planned and built by the federal government as an experimental model community. Population, 21,096.

Green Beret (grĕn bə-rā) n. A member of the U.S. Army Special Forces. [From the green beret that is part of the uniform.]

green·bri·er (grĕn'brī'ər) n. See catbrier.

green card (grĕn kărd) n. An official document issued by the U.S. government to aliens, allowing them to work legally in the United States. [Formerly a green-colored card.]

green corn (grĕn kôrn) n. Young, tender ears of sweet corn.

Green·dale (grĕn'dāl') A village of southeast Wisconsin, a suburb of Milwaukee. It was founded in the 1930's as a planned community built by the federal government. Population, 15,128.

green dragon (grĕn drăg'ən) n. A tuberous plant (Arisaema dracontium) of eastern North America, having divided leaves and minute flowers at the base of a long, slender spadix projecting from a narrow green spathe. Also called dragon-root

Greene (grĕn), (Henry) Graham. 1904-1991. British writer particularly known for his novels, such as The Power and the Glory (1940), which reflect his ardent Catholic beliefs.

Greene (grēn), Nathanael. 1742-1786. American Revolutionary general whose strategies in the South significantly weakened British strength in the region.

Greene (grēn), Robert. 1558?-1592. English writer noted for his plays, such as Friar Bacon and Friar Bungay (c. 1589).

green·er·y (grē'nə-rē) n. pl. green·er·ies. 1. a. Green foliage; verdure.

b. Such foliage used for decoration. 2. A place where plants are grown.

green-eyed (grēn'īd') adj. Jealous.

Green-field (grēn'fēld') 1. A town of northwest Massachusetts north of Northampton. The first cutlery factory in America was established here in the early 1800's. Population, 18,666. 2. A city of southeast Wisconsin, a residential suburb of Milwaukee. Population, 33,403.

Greenfield Park (grēn'fēld' pārk) A town of southern Quebec, Canada, a residential suburb of Montreal on the opposite bank of the St. Lawrence River. Population, 18,527.

green·finch (grēn'fīnč') n. A common Eurasian finch (Carduelis chloris) having green and yellow plumage.

green·fly (grēn'flī') n. A green aphid commonly occurring as a destructive pest of various cultivated plants.

green·gage (grēn'gāj') n. A variety of plum (Prunus domestica) having yellowish-green skin and sweet flesh. [GREEN + gage after Sir William Gage, 18th-century English botanist.]

green·gro·cer (grēn'grō'sər) n. Chiefly British. A retail seller of fresh fruits and vegetables. —green'gro'cer·y n.

green·head (grēn'hēd') n. A male mallard duck.

green·heart (grēn'hārt') n. 1. a. A tropical American tree (Ocotea rodioei) having dark, greenish, durable wood. b. Any of various similar trees. 2. The wood of any of these trees.

green·horn (grēn'hôrn') n. 1. An inexperienced or immature person, especially one who is easily deceived. 2. A newcomer, especially one who is unfamiliar with the ways of a place or group. [Middle English greene horn, horn of a newly slaughtered animal : grene, green; see GREEN + horn, horn; see HORN.]

green·house (grēn'hous') n. 1. A structure, primarily of glass, in which temperature and humidity can be controlled for the cultivation or protection of plants. 2. Slang. A clear plastic bubble or shell covering part of an aircraft.

greenhouse effect (grēn'hous' ĭ-fěkt') n. 1. The phenomenon whereby the earth's atmosphere traps solar radiation, caused by the presence in the atmosphere of gases such as carbon dioxide, water vapor, and methane that allow incoming sunlight to pass through but absorb heat radiated back from the earth's surface. 2. A similar retention of solar radiation, as by another planet or in a solar panel.

Green-how (grē'nou), Rose O'Neal. 1815?-1864. American Confederate spy. A prominent Washington, D.C., socialite, she obtained and disseminated information on Union troop movements (1861-1862). Exiled to the South, she continued her activities and ultimately drowned while attempting to evade the Union blockade of Wilmington, North Carolina.

green·ie (grē'nē) n. Slang. An amphetamine pill that is green in color.

green·ing¹ (grē'nĭng) n. 1. Restoration of vitality or freshness; rejuvenation. 2. An adoption or alignment with the ideals or practices of the Green movement: the greening of the mayor's platform; the greening of the cities.

green·ing² (grē'nĭng) n. Any of several varieties of green-skinned apples.

green·ish (grē'nĭsh) adj. Somewhat green.

Green-land (grēn'lænd, -lænd') An island of Denmark in the northern Atlantic Ocean off northeast Canada. Most of the island lies within the Arctic Circle. Discovered by Eric the Red in the tenth century, it is the largest island in the world.

—Green-land'ic (-lænd'dĭk) adj.

Greenland Sea (grēn'lænd sē) A section of the southern Arctic Ocean off the eastern coast of Greenland.

Greenland spar (grēn'lænd spär) n. See cryolite.

green·let (grēn'lĭt) n. Any of various small greenish birds of the genus Hylophilus of Central and South America, related to the vireos.

green light (grēn līt) n. 1. The green-colored light that signals traffic to proceed. 2. Informal. Permission to proceed.

green·ling (grēn'lĭng) n. Any of various marine food fishes of the family Hexagrammidae, which frequent rocky coastal areas of the northern Pacific.

green·mail (grēn'māl') n. An antitakeover maneuver in which the target firm purchases the raider's stock at a price above that available to other stockholders.

[GREEN, money + (BLACK)MAIL.] —green'mail'er n.

green manure (grēn mə-nōör') n. A growing crop, such as clover or grass, that is plowed under the soil to improve fertility.

green·mar·ket (grēn'mär'kĭt) n. See farmers' market.

green monkey (grēn mŭng'kē) n. A long-tailed African monkey (Cercopithecus aethiops subsp. sabaeus) having yellowish-gray fur with a greenish tinge.

Green Mountains (grēn moun'tənz) A range of the Appalachian Mountains extending from southern Quebec, Canada, through Vermont to western Massachusetts. The range rises to 1,339.9 m (4,393 ft) at Mount Mansfield in north-central Vermont.

Green-ock (grē'nək, grēn'ək) A burgh of southwest Scotland on the Firth of Clyde. It is a port and manufacturing center. Population, 56,194.

green·ock·ite (grē'nək-ĭt') n. A yellow to brown or red mineral, CdS, the only ore of cadmium. [After Charles Murray Cathcart, Second Earl Greenock (1783-1859), British soldier.]

- Gree-nough (grē'nō'), Horatio. 1805-1852. American sculptor whose principal work is the neoclassical statue of George Washington at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.
- green pepper (grēn pĕp'ər) n. The unripened green fruit of pepper plants of the genus Capsicum.
- green plover (grēn plŭv'ər) n. See lapwing.
- green revolution (grēn rĕv'ə-lōō'shən) n. A significant increase in agricultural productivity resulting from the introduction of high-yield varieties of grains, the use of pesticides, and improved management techniques.
- Green River (grēn rĭv'ər) 1. A river rising in central Kentucky and flowing about 595 km (370 mi) generally northwest to the Ohio River near Evansville, Indiana. 2. A river, about 1,175 km (730 mi) long, rising in western Wyoming and flowing through northwest Colorado and eastern Utah to the Colorado River.
- green-room (grēn'rōōm', -rōōm') n. A waiting room or lounge in a theater or concert hall for the use of performers when they are off-stage. [So called because such rooms were originally painted green.]
- green-sand (grēn'sänd') n. A sand or sediment having a dark greenish color caused by the presence of glauconite.
- Greens-bor-o (grēnz'bŭr'ə, -bŭr'ō) A city of north-central North Carolina east of Winston-Salem. Settled in 1749, it is a textile center. Population, 183,521.
- Greens-burg (grēnz'bŭrg') A city of southwest Pennsylvania east-southeast of Pittsburgh. It was settled in the late 1700's and incorporated as a city in 1928. Population, 16,318.
- green-shank (grēn'shāngk') n. A European wading bird (Tringa nebularia) having greenish legs and a long bill.
- green-sick-ness (grēn'sĭk'nĭs) n. See chlorosis (n., sense 2). —green/sick' adj.
- green-side (grēn'sĭd') adj. Sports. Situated beside a putting green: a greenside bunker.
- greens-keep-er (grēnz'kĕ'pər) n. Sports. One who is responsible for the maintenance of a golf course.
- green snake (grēn snāk) n. Any of several slender, yellow-green nonvenomous North American snakes of the genus Opheodrys, such as the grass snake.
- green soap (grēn sōp) n. A translucent, yellowish-green soft or liquid soap made chiefly from vegetable oils and used in the treatment of skin disorders.
- green-stick fracture (grēn'stĭk' frāk'chər) n. A partial bone fracture, usually occurring in children, in which the bone is bent but only broken on one side.
- green-stone (grēn'stōn') n. Any of various altered basic igneous rocks colored green by chlorite, hornblende, or epidote.
- green-sward (grēn'swôrd') n. Ground that is green with grass; turf.

green tea (grĕn tĕ) n. Tea made from leaves that are not fermented before being dried.

green thumb (grĕn thŭm) n. An extraordinary ability to make plants grow well.

green turtle (grĕn tŭr'tl) n. A large marine turtle (Chelonia mydas) having greenish flesh that is prized as food, especially in turtle soup.

Green-ville (grĕn'vĭl') 1. A city of western Mississippi on the Mississippi River north of Vicksburg. It is a trade, processing, and industrial center in a fertile agricultural region. Population, 45,226. 2. A city of eastern North Carolina southeast of Rocky Mount. Founded in 1786, the city grew as a tobacco market. Population, 44,972. 3. A city of northwest South Carolina northwest of Columbia. Located in the Piedmont near the Blue Ridge, it was laid out in 1797 and is today a resort and manufacturing center. Population, 58,282. 4. A city of northeast Texas northeast of Dallas. It is a manufacturing center in a cotton-producing area. Population, 23,071.

green-way (grĕn'wā') n. A corridor of undeveloped land, as along a river or between urban centers, that is reserved for recreational use or environmental preservation.

Green-wich 1. (grĕn'ĭch, grĭn'ĭj) A borough of Greater London in southeast England on the Thames River. It is the site of the original Royal Observatory, through which passes the prime meridian, or longitude 0°. 2. (grĕn'ĭch, grĭn'-, grĕn'wĭch') A town of southwest Connecticut on Long Island Sound near the New York border. Settled in 1640, it is mainly residential. Population, 58,441.

Green-wich time (grĕn'ĭch tĭm, grĭn'ĭj) n. See universal time.

Green-wich Village (grĕn'ĭch vĭl'ĭj, -ĭj, grĭn'-) A mainly residential section of lower Manhattan in New York City. Settled during colonial times, the area began to attract notice as an artists' and writers' community after 1910.

green-winged teal (grĕn'wĭngd' tĕl) n. A small freshwater duck (Anas crecca), the male of which has gray plumage, a brown head, and an iridescent green speculum.

green-wood (grĕn'wŏod') n. A wood or forest with green foliage.

Green-wood (grĕn'wŏod') 1. A city of central Indiana, a residential suburb of Indianapolis. Population, 26,265. 2. A city of west-central Mississippi east of Greenville. It is a trade center for a cotton-growing region. Population, 18,906. 3. A city of western South Carolina west-northwest of Columbia. The city was settled in 1824 on the site of a trading post established in 1751. Population, 20,807.

greet (grĕt) v. tr. greet-ed, greet-ing, greets. 1. To salute or welcome in a friendly and respectful way with speech or writing, as upon meeting or in opening a letter. 2. To receive with a specified reaction: greet a joke with laughter.

3. To be perceived by: A din greeted our ears. [Middle English greten, from Old English grētan.] —greet'er n.

greet-ing (grē'tīng) n. A word or gesture of welcome or salutation.

greeting card (grē'tīng kărd) n. A folded card bearing a message of greeting, congratulation, or other sentiment, usually sent or given on a special occasion or holiday.

greg-a-rine (grĕg'ə-rīn') n. Any of various sporozoan protozoans of the order Gregarinida that are parasitic within the digestive tracts of various invertebrates including arthropods and annelids. — adj. Of or belonging to the order Gregarinida. [From New Latin Gregarina, type genus, from Latin gregarius, belonging to a flock. See GREGARIOUS.] —greg'a-rin'i-an (-rīn'ē-ən) adj.

gre-gar-i-ous (grī-gâr'ē-əs) adj. 1. Seeking and enjoying the company of others; sociable. See Synonyms at social. 2. Tending to move in or form a group with others of the same kind: gregarious bird species. 3. Botany. Growing in groups that are close together but not densely clustered or matted. [Latin gregarius, belonging to a flock, from grex, greg-, flock. See ger- in Appendix.] —gre-gar'i-ous-ly adv. —gre-gar'i-ous-ness n.

Gre-go-ri-an calendar (grī-gôr'ē-ən kăl'ən-dăr, -gôr'-) n. The solar calendar in use throughout most of the world, sponsored by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582 as a corrected version of the Julian calendar. See Table at calendar.

Gregorian chant (grī-gôr'ē-ən chănt) n. Roman Catholic Church. A liturgical chant that is monodic, rhythmically unstructured, and sung without accompaniment. [After Saint. GREGORY I.]

Greg-o-ry I (grĕg'ə-rĕ), Saint Known as “Gregory the Great.” 540?-604. Pope (590-604) who increased papal authority, enforced rules of life for the clergy, and sponsored many important missionary expeditions, notably that of Saint Augustine to Britain (596).

Greg-o-ry VII (grĕg'ə-rĕ), Original name Hildebrand. 1020?-1085. Pope (1073-1085) who sought to establish the supremacy of the pope within the Church and the authority of the Church over the state.

Greg-o-ry XIII (grĕg'ə-rĕ), Originally Ugo Buoncompagni. 1502-1585. Pope (1572-1585) who established many Catholic universities and seminaries and sponsored the adoption of the Gregorian calendar (1582).

Greg-o-ry (grĕg'ə-rĕ), Lady Isabella Augusta Persse. 1852-1932. Irish playwright. She was a founder (1899) and director (1904-1932) of the Abbey Theatre, for which she wrote a number of short plays, including Spreading the News (1904).

Greg-o-ry of Nys-sa (grĕg'ə-rĕ ūf nīs'ə), Saint. A.D. 335?-394?. Eastern theologian and church father who led the conservative faction during the Trinitarian controversy of the fourth century.

Greg·o·ry of Tours (grĕg'ə-rĕ ūf tōōr, tōōr), Saint. 538-594. Frankish prelate and historian who produced a valuable history of the sixth-century Franks.

Greifs-wald (grĭfs'vālt') A city of northeast Germany near the Baltic Sea southeast of Stralsund. Chartered in 1250, it is an industrial and commercial center. Population, 62,991.

greige (grā, grāzh) adj. Not bleached or dyed; unfinished. Used of textiles. [French grège, from Italian (seta) greggia, raw (silk), from greggio, gray, of Germanic origin.]

grei-sen (grī'zən) n. A granitic rock composed chiefly of quartz and mica. [German, from greissen, to split.]

grem·lin (grĕm'lĭn) n. 1. An imaginary gnomelike creature to whom mechanical problems, especially in aircraft, are attributed. 2. A maker of mischief. [Perhaps blend of Irish gruaimín, bad-tempered little fellow (from Middle Irish gruaim, gloom, surliness), and GOBLIN.]

WORD HISTORY: Elves, goblins, and trolls seem to be the timeless creations of the distant past, but gremlins were born in the 20th century. In fact, gremlin is first recorded only in the 1920's, as a Royal Air Force term for a low-ranking officer or enlisted man saddled with oppressive assignments. Said to have been invented by members of the Royal Naval Air Service in World War I, gremlin is used in works written in the 1940's for "an imaginary gnomelike creature who causes difficulties in aircraft." The word seems likely to have been influenced by goblin, but accounts of its origin are various and none are certain. One source calls in Fremlin beer bottles to explain the word; another, the Irish Gaelic word gruaimín, "ill-humored little fellow." Whatever the word's origin, it is certain that gremlins have taken on a life of their own.

Gre·na·da (grə-nā'də) A country in the Windward Islands of the West Indies comprising the island of Grenada and the southern Grenadines. The island of Grenada was settled first by the French (after 1650) and became a British colony in 1783. The country achieved independence in 1974. Because of Cuban intervention in Grenada's government, President Ronald Reagan ordered an invasion (October 25, 1983) of some 1,900 U.S. troops to protect the approximately 1,000 American citizens on the island. St. George's, on Grenada, is the capital and the largest city. Population, 110,100.

gre·nade (grə-nād') n. 1. A missile containing priming and bursting charges, designed to be thrown by hand or deployed by a specially equipped launcher. 2. A glass container filled with a chemical that is dispersed when the container is thrown and smashed. [French, from Old French (pome) grenate, pomegranate (from its shape). See POMEGRANATE.]

gren·a·dier (grĕn'ə-dîr') n. 1. a. A member of the British Grenadier Guards, the first regiment of the royal household infantry. b. A soldier who is a member of a special corps or regiment. c. A soldier equipped with grenades. 2. Any of various deep-sea fishes of the family Macrouridae, having a long tapering tail and lacking a tail fin. In this sense, also called rat-tail [French, from grenade, grenade. See GRENADE.]

gren·a·dine (grĕn'ə-dĕn', grĕn'ə-dĕn') n. 1. A thick, sweet syrup made from pomegranates and used as a flavoring, especially in beverages. 2. A thin, loosely woven fabric of silk, cotton, or synthetic fiber. [French, from grenade, pomegranate, from Old French grenate. See POMEGRANATE.]

Gren·a·dines (grĕn'ə-dĕnz') An archipelago in the Windward Islands of the eastern Caribbean Sea. The southern islands are part of Grenada; the other islands are part of St. Vincent and the Grenadines.

Gren·del (grĕn'dl) n. The male monster, descended from Cain, slain by Beowulf in the Old English epic Beowulf.

Gren·fell (grĕn'fĕl', -fəl), Sir Wilfred Thomason. 1865-1940. British missionary and physician who ministered to fishing crews in the North Sea and later established medical and social facilities in Labrador and Newfoundland.

Gre·no·ble (grə-nō'bəl, -nōbl') A city of southeast France on the Isère River south-southwest of Chambéry. An ancient Roman city, Grenoble is a noted tourist and skiing center and was the site of the 1968 Winter Olympics. Population, 156,637.

Gren·ville (grĕn'vîl', -vəl), George. 1712-1770. British political leader who as prime minister (1763-1765) instigated the Stamp Act (1765), which provoked rebellious activities in the American colonies.

Gren·ville (grĕn'vîl'), Sir Richard. 1542?-1591. English naval officer who commanded the fleet carrying the first colonists to Virginia (1585) and organized the English defense against the Spanish Armada (1588). He was killed in a battle that pitted his ship against 15 Spanish ships.

Gresh·am (grĕsh'əm) A city of northwest Oregon, a mainly residential suburb of Portland. Population, 33,005.

Gresh·am (grĕsh'əm), Sir Thomas. 1519-1579. English financier. A founder of the Royal Exchange, he is traditionally credited with Gresham's law.

Gresh·am's law (grĕsh'əmz lô) n. The theory holding that if two kinds of money in circulation have the same denominational value but different intrinsic values, the money with higher intrinsic value will be hoarded and eventually driven out of circulation by the money with lesser intrinsic value. [After Sir Thomas GRESHAM.]

gres·so·ri·al (grĕ-sôr'ĕ-əl, -sôr'-) adj. Adapted for walking or having limbs adapted for walking. Used of flightless birds. [From New Latin gressorius, from Latin gressus, step, from past participle of gradī, to walk. See ghredh- in Appendix.]

Gret-na (grēt'nə) A city of southeast Louisiana on the Mississippi River opposite New Orleans. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 17,208.

Gretna Green (grēt'nə grēn) A village of southern Scotland on the English border. It was famous as a place for runaway marriages from 1754 until 1856, when the Scottish law was changed to require a 21-day residence period for one of the parties before issuance of a license.

Greuze (grœz), Jean Baptiste. 1725-1805. French painter of moralistic genre works, such as The Paralytic Tended by His Children (1763).

Gre-ven-broich (grā'vən-broik', -broiKH') A city of west-central Germany northwest of Cologne. It is a railroad junction and manufacturing center. Population, 56,580.

grew (grōō) v. Past tense of grow.

grex (grēks) n. Botany. A classification for cultivars derived from the same hybrid. [Latin, herd, flock. See GREGARIOUS.]

grey (grā) adj., n. & v. Variant of gray.

Grey (grā), Charles Second Earl Grey. 1764-1845. British politician who as prime minister (1830-1834) implemented parliamentary and social reforms, notably the abolition of slavery throughout the British Empire.

Grey (grā), Sir Edward Third Viscount Grey of Fallodon. 1862-1933. British public official who as secretary of state (1905-1916) advocated the 1914 declaration of war on Germany.

Grey (grā), Lady Jane. 1537-1554. Queen of England for nine days (1553). Proclaimed queen on the death of Edward VI (July 10, 1553), she was imprisoned after her short reign, replaced by the popular Mary Tudor, later Mary I, and subsequently beheaded for treason.

Grey (grā), Zane. 1875-1939. American writer of Western adventure novels, including Riders of the Purple Sage (1912).

grey-hen (grā'hěn') n. The female of the black grouse.

grey-hound (grā'hound') n. Any of a breed of tall, slender dogs, having a smooth coat, a narrow head, and long legs and capable of running swiftly. [Middle English grehound, from Old English grīghund: grīg, gray + hund, hound; see HOUND.]

grey-lag (grā'läg') n. Variant of graylag.

grib-ble (grīb'əl) n. Any of several small, wood-boring marine isopod crustaceans of the genus Limnoria, especially L. lignorum, which often damage underwater wooden structures. [Possibly diminutive of GRUB.]

grid (grīd) n. 1. a. A framework of crisscrossed or parallel bars; a grating or mesh. b. A cooking surface of parallel metal bars; a gridiron. 2. Something resembling a framework of crisscrossed parallel bars, as in rigidity or organization: The city's streets form a grid. 3. A pattern of regularly spaced horizontal and vertical lines forming squares on a map, a chart, an aerial photograph, or an optical device, used as a reference for locating points. 4. Electricity. a. An interconnected system for the distribution of electricity or electromagnetic signals over a wide area, especially a network of high-tension cables and power stations. b. A corrugated or perforated conducting plate in a storage battery. c. A network or coil of fine wires located between the plate and the filament in an electron tube. 5. Football. The gridiron. 6. Sports. The starting positions of cars on a race-course. 7. Printing. A device in a photocomposition machine on which the characters used in composition are etched. [Short for GRIDIRON.] —grid'ded adj.

grid-der (grīd'ər) n. Football. A player.

grid-dle (grīd'l) n. A flat metal surface, such as a pan, that is used for cooking by dry heat. — v. tr. grid-dled, grid-dling, grid-dles. To cook on a flat metal surface. [Middle English gridel, gridiron, from Old North French gredil, from Latin crātīcula, diminutive of crātis, wickerwork hurdle, lattice.]

grid-dle-cake (grīd'l-kāk') n. See pancake.

grid-i-ron (grīd'ī'ərən) n. 1. Football. a. The field of play. b. The game itself. 2. A metal structure high above the stage of a theater, from which ropes or cables are strung to scenery and lights. 3. a. A flat framework of parallel metal bars used for broiling meat or fish. b. An object resembling such a framework. [Middle English gridirne, alteration (influenced by iren, irne, iron); see IRON, of gridere, alteration of gridel. See GRIDDLE.]

grid-lock (grīd'lök') n. 1. A traffic jam in which no vehicular movement is possible, especially one caused by the blockage of key intersections within a grid of streets. 2. A complete lack of movement or progress resulting in a backup or stagnation: “the political gridlock that prevented... the President and Congress from moving expeditiously to cut the budget” (Robert D. Hormats). —grid'lock' v. —grid'locked' adj.

grief (grēf) n. 1. Deep mental anguish, as that arising from bereavement. See Synonyms at regret. 2. A source of deep mental anguish. 3. Annoyance or frustration: Trying to follow their directions was nothing but grief. 4. Trouble or difficulty: the griefs of trying to meet a deadline. 5. Archaic. A grievance. [Middle English, from Old French, from grever, to harm, aggrieve. See GRIEVE.]

Grieg (grēg, grīg), Edvard Hagerup. 1843-1907. Norwegian composer whose works, such as the incidental music for Peer Gynt (1876), incorporate Norwegian folk music idioms.

Grier (grīr), Robert Cooper. 1794-1870. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1846-1870). griev-ance (grē'vəns) n. 1. a. An actual or supposed circumstance regarded as just cause for protest. b. A complaint or protestation based on such a circumstance. See Synonyms at injustice. 2. Indignation or resentment stemming from a feeling of having been wronged. 3. Obsolete. a. The act of inflicting hardship or harm. b. The cause of hardship or harm. [Middle English grevaunce, from Old French grevance, from grever, to harm. See GRIEVE.]

grieve (grēv) v. grieved, griev-ing, grieves. — v. tr. 1. To cause to be sorrowful; distress. 2. Archaic. To hurt or harm. — v. intr. To experience or express grief. [Middle English greven, from Old French grever, to harm, from Latin gravāre, to burden, from gravis, heavy. See g^werə-¹ in Appendix.]
—griev'er n. —griev'ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: grieve, lament, mourn, sorrow. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to feel, show, or express grief, sadness, or regret”: grieved over her father's sudden death; lamenting over the decline in academic standards; mourning for lost hopes; sorrowed over the innocent victims of the dictatorship.

ANTONYM: rejoice

Grieve (grēv), Christopher Murray. See Hugh MacDiarmid.

griev-ous (grē'vəs) adj. 1. Causing grief, pain, or anguish: a grievous loss.
2. Serious or dire; grave: a grievous crime. [Anglo-Norman grevous, from grever, to harm, aggrieve, from Latin gravāre, to burden. See GRIEVE.] —griev'ous-ly adv. —griev'ous-ness n.

grif-fin also grif-fon or gryph-on (grif'ən) n. A fabulous beast with the head and wings of an eagle and the body of a lion. [Middle English griffoun, from Old French griffon, from grif, from Latin grȳphus, variant of grȳps, grȳph-, from Greek grups.]

Grif-fin (grif'in) A city of west-central Georgia south-southeast of Atlanta. It is a textile and food-processing center in a farming region. Population, 20,728.

Grif-fith (grif'ith) A town of extreme northwest Indiana south of Hammond. It is mainly residential. Population, 17,916.

Grif-fith (grif'ith), Arthur. 1872-1922. Irish nationalist leader who was a founder of the Sinn Fein movement for Irish independence (1905). He led the Irish delegation that negotiated the 1921 treaty with England that established the Irish Free State.

Grif-fith (grif'ith), D(avid Lewelyn) W(ark). 1875-1948. American filmmaker who developed several cinematic techniques, such as fade-ins, fade-outs, close-ups, moving-camera shots, and flashbacks. The Birth of a Nation (1915) is among his many films.

grif-fon (grif'ən) n. 1. Any of a breed of dog originating in Belgium and having a short, bearded muzzle. Also called Brussels griffon 2. Any of various wirehaired hunting dogs of a breed originating in the Netherlands in the late 19th century.
3. Variant of griffin. [French, from Old French. See GRIFFIN.]

grift (grift) Slang. n. 1. Money made dishonestly, as in a swindle. 2. A swindle or confidence game. — v. grift-ed, grift-ing, grifts. — v. intr. To engage in swindling or cheating. — v. tr. To obtain by swindling or cheating. [Perhaps alteration of GRAFT².] — grift'er n.

grig (grig) n. A lively, bright person. [Middle English, dwarf.]

Gri-gnard (grēn-yär'), François Auguste Victor. 1871-1935. French chemist. He shared a 1912 Nobel Prize for his discovery of a group of reagents used in the synthesis of organic compounds.

gri-gri also gris-gris (grē'grē) n. pl. gri-gris also gris-gris (grē'grē). An African charm, fetish, or amulet. [French, of West African origin; akin to Bulanda grigri, amulet.]

grill (gril) v. tr. grilled, grill-ing, grills. 1. To broil on a gridiron. 2. To torture or afflict as if by broiling. 3. Informal. To question relentlessly; cross-examine. 4. To mark or emboss with a gridiron. — n. 1. A cooking surface of parallel metal bars; a gridiron. 2. Food cooked by broiling or grilling. 3. An informal restaurant or a room in a restaurant where grilled foods are served; a grillroom. 4. A series of marks grilled or embossed on a surface. 5. Variant of grille.

[French griller, from gril, gridiron, from Old French greille, from Latin crātīcula, diminutive of crātis, wickerwork, lattice.] — grill'er n.

grill-lage (gril'ij) n. A network or frame of timber or steel serving as a foundation, usually on ground that is wet or soft. [French, from Old French, trellis, from greille, gridiron. See GRILL.]

grille also grill (gril) n. 1. A grating of metal, wood, or another material used as a screen, divider, barrier, or decorative element, as in a window or on the front end of an automotive vehicle. 2. An opening covered with a grating. [French, from Old French greille. See GRILL.]

grill-er-y (gril'ə-rē) n. pl. grill-er-ies. A grill; a grillroom.

Grill-par-zer (gril'pärt'sər), Franz. 1791-1872. Austrian dramatist whose works, such as The Ancestress (1817), were initially condemned by censors and rejected by the public but were accepted posthumously as among Austria's greatest literature.

grill-room (gril'rōom', -rōom') n. A place where grilled foods are served to customers; a grill.

grill-work (gril'wûrk') n. Material formed into grilles or a grille.

grilse (grils) n. pl. grilse. A young Atlantic salmon on its first return from the sea to fresh or brackish waters. [From Middle English grills, young salmon (pl.).]

grim (grim) adj. grim-mer, grim-mest. 1. Unrelenting; rigid. 2. Uninviting or unnerving in aspect; forbidding: "undoubtedly the grimmest part of him was his iron claw" (J.M. Barrie). 3. Ghastly; sinister: "He made a grim jest at the horrifying nature of his wound" (Reginald Pound). See Synonyms at ghastly.

4. Dismal; gloomy: a grim, rainy day. 5. Ferocious; savage: the grim advance of the pillaging army. [Middle English, from Old English, fierce, severe.] —grim/ly adv. —grim/ness n.

grim·ace (grīm'is, grī-mās') n. A sharp contortion of the face expressive of pain, contempt, or disgust. — v. intr. grim·aced, grim·ac·ing, grim·ac·es. To make a sharp contortion of the face. [French, from Old French grimache, alteration of grimuche, probably from Frankish grīma*, mask.] —grim/ac·er n.

gri·mal·kin (grī-môl'kīn, -mäl'-) n. 1. A cat, especially an old female cat.

2. An old woman considered to be ill-tempered. [Variant of graymalkin : GRAY + obsolete Malkin, diminutive of the personal name Matilda.]

grime (grīm) n. Black dirt or soot, especially such dirt clinging to or ingrained in a surface. — v. tr. grim·ed, grim·ing, grimes. To cover with black dirt or soot; begrime. [Middle English grim; akin to Middle Dutch grīme. See ghrēi- in Appendix.]

Grim·ké (grīm'kē), Sarah Moore. 1792-1873. American feminist and abolitionist. She and her sister Angelina Emily Grimké (1805-1879) were among the first American women to speak publicly against slavery and the repression of women.

Grimm (grīm), Jakob Ludwig Karl. 1785-1863. German philologist and folklorist who formulated Grimm's Law (1819), the basis for much of modern comparative linguistics. With his brother Wilhelm Karl (1786-1859) he collected Germanic folk tales and published them as Grimm's Fairy Tales (1812-1815).

Grimm's Law (grīnz lô) n. A formula describing the regular changes undergone by Indo-European stop consonants represented in Germanic, essentially stating that Indo-European p, t, and k became Germanic f, th, and h; Indo-European b, d, and g became Germanic p, t, and k; and Indo-European bh, dh, and gh became Germanic b, d, and g. [After Jakob Ludwig Karl GRIMM.]

Grims·by (grīnz'bē) 1. A town of southern Ontario, Canada, on Lake Ontario east-southeast of Hamilton. Grimsby is a manufacturing center. Population, 15,797. 2. or Officially Great Grimsby A borough of eastern England near the mouth of the Humber River southeast of Hull. It is a major fishing port and has varied industries. Population, 91,800.

Grim·sel Pass (grīm'zəl pās) An Alpine pass, 2,183.5 m (7,159 ft) high, of southern Switzerland between the Rhone and Aare river valleys.

grim·y (grī'mē) adj. grim·i·er, grim·i·est. Covered or smudged with grime. See Synonyms at dirty. —grim/i·ly adv. —grim/i·ness n.

grin (grīn) v. grinned, grin·ning, grins. — v. intr. To draw back the lips and bare the teeth, as in mirth or good humor. — v. tr. To express with a grin: I grinned my approval. — n. 1. The act of grinning. 2. The facial expression produced by grinning. See Synonyms at smile. [Middle English grennen, to grimace, from Old English grennian.] —grin/ner n. —grin/ning·ly adv.

grind (grīnd) v. ground (ground), grind-ing, grinds. — v. tr. 1. a. To crush, pulverize, or reduce to powder by friction, especially by rubbing between two hard surfaces: grind wheat into flour. b. To shape, sharpen, or refine with friction: grind a lens. 2. To rub (two surfaces) together harshly; gnash: grind the teeth. 3. To bear down on harshly; crush. 4. To oppress or weaken gradually: “Laws grind the poor, and rich men rule the law” (Oliver Goldsmith). 5. a. To operate by turning a crank: ground a hurdy-gurdy. b. To produce or process by turning a crank: grinding a pound of beef. 6. To produce mechanically or without inspiration: The factory grinds out a uniform product. 7. To instill or teach by persistent repetition: ground the truth into their heads. — v. intr. 1. To perform the operation of grinding something. 2. To become crushed, pulverized, or powdered by friction. 3. To move with noisy friction; grate: a train grinding along rusty rails. 4. Informal. To devote oneself to study or work: grinding for a test; grinding away at housework. 5. Slang. To rotate the pelvis erotically, as in the manner of a stripteaser. — n. 1. The act of grinding. 2. A crunching or grinding noise. 3. A specific grade or degree of pulverization, as of coffee beans: drip grind. 4. Informal. A laborious task, routine, or study: the daily grind. 5. Informal. A student who works or studies excessively. 6. Slang. An erotic rotation of the pelvis. [Middle English grinden, from Old English grindan. See ghrendh- in Appendix.] — grind’ing-ly adv.

grind-er (grīn’dər) n. 1. One that grinds, especially: a. One who sharpens cutting edges. b. A mechanical device that grinds: a meat grinder. 2. A molar. 3. grinders. Informal. The teeth. 4. New England. See submarine (n., sense 2). See Regional note at submarine.

grind-stone (grīnd’stōn’) n. 1. A revolving stone disk used for grinding, polishing, or sharpening tools. 2. A millstone. — idiom. put (one’s) nose to the grindstone. Informal. To work in earnest.

grin-go (grīng’gō) n. pl. grin-gos. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a foreigner in Latin America, especially an American or English person. [Spanish, foreign, foreign language, gibberish, probably alteration of griego, Greek, from Latin Graecus. See GREEK.]

WORD HISTORY: The word gringo is an offensive term in Latin America for a foreigner, particularly an American or English person. But the word existed in Spanish before this particular sense came into being. In fact, gringo may be an alteration of the word griego, the Spanish development of Latin Graecus, “Greek.” Griego first meant “Greek, Grecian,” as an adjective and “Greek, Greek language,” as a noun. The saying “It’s Greek to me” exists in Spanish, as it does in English, and helps us understand why griego came to mean “unintelligible language” and perhaps, by further extension of this idea, “stranger, that is, one who speaks a foreign language.” The altered form gringo lost touch with Greek but has the senses “unintelligible language,” “foreigner, especially an English person,” and in Latin America, “North American or Britisher.” Its first recorded English use (1849) is in John Woodhouse Audubon’s Western Journal: “We were hooted and shouted at as we passed through, and called ‘Gringoes.’” gri-ot (grē-ōʹ, grēʹō, grēʹöt) n. A storyteller in western Africa who perpetuates the oral tradition and history of a village or family. [French, alteration of guiriot, perhaps ultimately from Portuguese criado, domestic servant, from Latin creātus, one brought up or trained, from past participle of creāre, to produce, bring up.

See CREATE.]

grip¹ (grĭp) n. 1. a. A tight hold; a firm grasp: a drowning swimmer now safely in the grip of a lifeguard. b. The pressure or strength of such a grasp: a wrestler with an unmatched grip. c. A manner of grasping and holding: The crate afforded no comfortable grip. 2. a. Intellectual hold; understanding: a good grip on French history. b. Ability to function properly or well; competence: getting a grip on the new technique. 3. a. A mechanical device that grasps and holds. b. A part, such as a handle, that is designed to be grasped and held. 4. A suitcase or valise.

5. a. A stagehand who helps in shifting scenery. b. A member of a film production crew who adjusts sets and props and sometimes assists the camera operator. — v. gripped, grip-ping, grips. — v. tr. 1. To secure and maintain a tight hold on; seize firmly. 2. To hold the interest or attention of: a scene that gripped the entire audience. — v. intr. To maintain a secure grasp. [Middle English, from Old English gripe, grasp, and gripa, handful.] —grip/per n.

—grip/ping-ly adv.

grip² (grĭp) n. Variant of grippe.

gripe (grĭp) v. griped, grip-ing, gripes. — v. intr. 1. Informal. To complain naggingly or petulantly; grumble. 2. To have sharp pains in the bowels. — v. tr. 1. Informal. To irritate; annoy: Her petty complaints really gripe me. 2. To cause sharp pain in the bowels of. 3. To grasp; seize. 4. To oppress or afflict. — n.

1. Informal. A complaint. 2. gripes. Sharp, spasmodic pains in the bowels. 3. A firm hold; a grasp. 4. A grip; a handle. [Middle English gripen, to seize, from Old English grīpan.] —grip/er n.

grippe also grip (grĭp) n. See influenza (n., sense 1). [French, from Old French, claw, quarrel, from gripper, to seize, grasp, from Frankish grīpan*.]

—grip/py adj.

grip-sack (grĭpʹsākʹ) n. A small suitcase.

Gris (grēs), Juan. Originally José Victoriano Gonzáles. 1887-1927. Spanish painter who adopted and further developed cubism. His works include Homage to Picasso (1912).

gri-saille (grĭ-zīʹ, -zālʹ) n. 1. A style of monochromatic painting in shades of gray, used especially for the representation of relief sculpture. 2. A painting or design in this style. 3. a. Vitriifiable glass paint. b. A lacy pattern painted on light glass with vitriifiable paint and fired. [French, from gris, gray, from Old French, from Frankish grīs*.]

gris·e·o·ful·vin (grīz'ē-ə-fūl'vīn) n. An antibiotic, C₁₇H₁₇ClO₆, administered orally for the treatment of ringworm and other fungal infections of the skin, hair, and nails. [From New Latin griseofulvum, species of penicillium : Medieval Latin grīseus, griseous; see GRISEOUS + Latin fulvum, neuter of fulvus, tawny; see ghel-² in Appendix.]

gris·e·ous (grīz'ē-əs, grīs'-) adj. Mottled with gray, especially bluish gray; grizzled. [Medieval Latin grīseus, of Germanic origin.]

gris·ette (grī-zět') n. A French working-class girl or young woman. [French, a cheap gray dress fabric, grisette, from gris, gray. See GRISAILLE.]

gris·gris (grē'grē) n. Variant of grigri.

gris·ly (grīz'lē) adj. gris·li·er, gris·li·est. Inspiring repugnance; gruesome. See Synonyms at ghastly. [Middle English grisli, from Old English grislīc. See ghrēi- in Appendix.] —gris/li·ness n.

Gris-Nez (grē-nā'), Cape. A promontory of northern France extending into the Strait of Dover near Calais. It is the nearest point to the island of Great Britain.

gris·son (grī'sən, grīz'ən) n. Either of two small carnivorous mammals (Galictis vittata or G. cuja) of Central and South America, having grizzled fur, a slender body, and short legs. [French, from Old French, gray fur, from gris, gray. See GRISAILLE.]

grist (grīst) n. 1. Grain or a quantity of grain for grinding. 2. Ground grain. —idiom. grist for (one's) mill (or grist for the mill). Something that can be used to advantage. [Middle English, Old English grīst. See ghrendh- in Appendix.]

gris·tle (grīs'əl) n. Cartilage, especially when present in meat. [Middle English, from Old English.]

gris·tly (grīs'lē) adj. gris·tli·er, gris·tli·est. 1. Composed of or containing gristle. 2. Resembling gristle. —gris/tli·ness n.

grist·mill (grīst'mīl') n. A mill for grinding grain.

grit (grīt) n. 1. Minute rough granules, as of sand or stone. 2. The texture or fineness of sand or stone used in grinding. 3. A coarse hard sandstone used for making grindstones and millstones. 4. Informal. Indomitable spirit; pluck. — v. grit·ted, grit·ting, grits. — v. tr. 1. To clamp (the teeth) together. 2. To cover or treat with grit. — v. intr. To make a grinding noise. [Middle English gret, sand, from Old English grēot.]

grith (grīth) n. Protection or sanctuary provided by Old English law to persons in certain circumstances, as when in a church or traveling on the king's highway. [Middle English, from Old English, from Old Norse grīdh, domicile, asylum.]

grits (grīts) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. A ground, usually white meal of dried and hulled corn kernels that is boiled and served as a breakfast food or side dish. 2. Coarsely ground grain, especially corn. [Alteration of Middle English grutta, coarse meal, from Old English grytta, pl. of grytt.]

grit·ty (grīt'ē) adj. grit·ti·er, grit·ti·est. 1. Containing, covered with, or resembling grit. 2. Showing resolution and fortitude; plucky: a gritty decision.
—grit'ti·ly adv. —grit'ti·ness n.

griv·et (grīv'īt) n. A long-tailed African monkey (Cercopithecus aethiops) having a greenish-gray coat and tufts of white hair on the face. [French.]

griz·zle (grīz'əl) v. tr. intr. griz·zled, griz·zling, griz·zles. To make or become gray. — n. 1. a. The color of a grizzled animal. b. A grizzled animal. 2. Archaic. Gray hair. — adj. 1. Gray. 2. Grizzled. [From Middle English grisel, gray, from Old French, diminutive of gris, gray. See GRISAILLE.]

griz·zled (grīz'əld) adj. 1. Streaked with or partly gray. 2. Having brownish fur or hair tipped with gray.

griz·zly (grīz'lē) adj. griz·zli·er, griz·zli·est. Grayish or flecked with gray. — n. pl. griz·zlies. A grizzly bear.

grizzly bear (grīz'lē bār) n. The brown bear of northwest North America, now considered a subspecies (Ursus arctos subsp. horribilis). Also called silvertip gro. abbr. Gross.

groan (grōn) v. groaned, groan·ing, groans. — v. intr. 1. To voice a deep, inarticulate sound, as of pain, grief, or displeasure. 2. To make a sound expressive of stress or strain: floorboards groaning. — v. tr. To utter or express with groans or a groan. — n. The sound made in groaning. [Middle English gronen, from Old English grānian.] —groan'er n. —groan'ing·ly adv.

groat (grōt) n. An English silver coin worth four pence, used from the 14th to the 17th century. [Middle English grot, from Middle Dutch groot, a thick, large coin, translation of Medieval Latin (dēnārius) grossus.]

groats (grōts) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Hulled, usually crushed grain, especially oats. [Middle English grotes, from Old English grotan.]

gro·cer (grō'sər) n. One that sells foodstuffs and various household supplies. [Middle English, wholesaler, from Anglo-Norman grosser, from Medieval Latin grossārius, grocerius, from Late Latin grossus, thick.]

gro·cer·y (grō'sə-rē) n. pl. gro·cer·ies. 1. A store selling foodstuffs and various household supplies. 2. groceries. Commodities sold by a grocer.

Grod·no (grōd'nō, -nə, grōd'-) A city of western Belarus the Neman River near the Polish border. Capital of an independent principality until 1398, Grodno was ruled at various times by Lithuania, Poland, and Russia. Population, 247,000.

grog (grōg) n. An alcoholic liquor, especially rum diluted with water. [After Old Grog, nickname of Edward Vernon (1684-1757), British admiral who ordered that diluted rum be served to his sailors, from GROGRAM (from his habit of wearing a grogram cloak.)] grog-gy (grög'ē) adj. grog-gi-er, grog-gi-est. Unsteady and dazed; shaky.

[From GROG.] —grog-gi-ly adv. —grog-gi-ness n.

grog-ram (grög'rəm, grō'grəm) n. A coarse, often stiffened fabric made of silk, mohair, wool, or a blend of them. [Alteration of French gros grain, coarse texture. See GROSGRAIN.]

groin (groin) n. 1. Anatomy. The crease or hollow at the junction of the inner part of each thigh with the trunk, together with the adjacent region and often including the external genitals. 2. Architecture. The curved edge at the junction of two intersecting vaults. 3. A small jetty extending from a shore to protect a beach against erosion or to trap shifting sands. — v. tr. groined, groin-ing, groins. To provide or build with groins. [Alteration (influenced by LOIN), of Middle English grinde, perhaps from Old English grynde, abyss, hollow.]

grok (grök) v. tr. grok-ked, grok-king, groks. Slang. To understand profoundly through intuition or empathy. [Coined by Robert A. Heinlein in his Stranger in a Strange Land.]

Gro-lier de Ser-vières (grōlyā' də sēr-vyâr'), Jean Viscomte d'Aguisy. 1479-1565. French bibliophile known for his collection of 3,000 fine books, among the great personal libraries of his day.

grom-met (gröm'it) also grum-met (grüm'-) n. 1. a. A reinforced eyelet, as in cloth or leather, through which a fastener may be passed. b. A small metal or plastic ring used to reinforce such an eyelet. 2. Nautical. A loop of rope or metal used for securing the edge of a sail to its stay. [Probably from obsolete French gromette, gormette, chain joining the ends of a bit, from Old French, from gourmer, to bridle.]

grom-well (gröm'wəl, -wěl') n. See puccoon (n., sense 1). [Alteration of Middle English gromil, from Old French : gro-; perhaps akin to graine, grain + mil, millet (from Latin milium); see MILLET.]

Gro-my-ko (grə-mē'kō, grō-), Andrei Andreyevich. 1909-1989. Soviet political leader who joined the Communist Party in 1931 and served as ambassador to the United States (1943-1946) and the United Nations (1946-1948). He later held the posts of foreign minister (1957-1983) and chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (1983-1988).

Gro-ning-en (grō'nīng-ən, khrō'-) A city of northeast Netherlands north-northeast of Apeldoorn. An important trade and transportation center, it was captured by the Dutch in 1594. Population, 167,866.

groom (grōom, grōom) n. 1. A man or boy employed to take care of horses. 2. A bridegroom. 3. One of several officers in an English royal household.

4. Archaic. a. A man. b. A male servant. — v. tr. groomed, groom-ing, grooms. 1. To care for the appearance of; to make neat and trim: groomed him- self carefully in front of the mirror. 2. To clean and brush (an animal). 3. To prepare, as for a specific position or purpose: groom an employee for advancement. 4. Sports. To prepare (a trail) for skiers, as by packing down new snow or leveling moguls. — v. intr. To care for one's appearance. [Middle English grom. N., sense 2, short for BRIDEGROOM.] —groom'er n.

grooms-man (grōomz/'mən, grōomz/'-) n. A man who attends the bridegroom at a wedding.

Groo-te (grō'tə) also Groot (grōt), Gerhard. 1340-1384. Dutch religious reformer who criticized the worldliness of the clergy and espoused a life of prayer and learning.

Groote Ey-landt (grōōt' ī'lənd) An island of northern Australia in the western part of the Gulf of Carpentaria. Manganese is mined on the island.

groove (grōōv) n. 1. A long, narrow furrow or channel. 2. Slang. A settled routine: got into the groove of a nine-to-five job. 3. Slang. A situation or an activity that one enjoys or to which one is especially well suited: found his groove playing bass in a trio. 4. Slang. A very pleasurable experience. — v. grooved, groov-ing, grooves. — v. tr. To cut a groove or grooves. — v. intr. Slang.

1. a. To take great pleasure or satisfaction; enjoy oneself: just sitting around, grooving on the music. b. To be affected with pleasurable excitement. 2. To react or interact harmoniously. [Middle English groof, mining shaft, probably from Middle Dutch groeve, ditch. See ghrebbh-² in Appendix.]

groov-y (grōō'vē) adj. groov-i-er, groov-i-est. Slang. Very pleasing; wonderful. —groov'i-ness n.

grope (grōp) v. groped, grop-ing, gropes. — v. intr. 1. To reach about uncertainly; feel one's way: groped for the telephone. 2. To search blindly or uncertainly: grobe for an answer. — v. tr. 1. To make (one's way) by reaching about uncertainly. 2. Slang. To handle or fondle for sexual pleasure. — n. The act or an instance of groping. [Middle English gropen, from Old English grāpian.] —grop'er n. —grop'ing-ly adv.

Gro-pi-us (grō'pē-əs), Walter Adolph. 1883-1969. German-born American architect. Founder of the Bauhaus school of design, he exerted tremendous influence on modern architecture.

Grop-per (grōp'ər), William. 1897-1977. American cartoonist and painter known for his satirical works of social criticism, including The Senate (1935).

gros-beak (grōs'bēk') n. Any of various finches of the family Fringillidae of Europe and America, having a thick, conical bill. [Partial translation of French grosbec: gros, thick, large (from Old French); see GROSS + bec, beak.]

gro-schen (grō'shən) n. pl. groschen. A unit of currency in Austria. See Table at currency. [German, from Middle High German grosse, from Medieval Latin (dēnārius) grossus, thick (denarius), from Late Latin grossus, thick.]

gross-grain (grō'grān') n. 1. A closely woven silk or rayon fabric with narrow horizontal ribs. 2. A ribbon made of this fabric. [French gross grain, coarse texture : gross, coarse, thick (from Old French); see GROSS + grain, texture, grain (from Old French graine, grain, seed); see GRAIN.]

gross (grōs) adj. gross-er, gross-est. 1. a. Exclusive of deductions; total: gross profits. See Synonyms at whole. b. Unmitigated in any way; utter: gross incompetence. 2. Glaringly obvious; flagrant: gross injustice. See Synonyms at flagrant. 3. a. Brutishly coarse, as in behavior; crude. b. Offensive; disgusting. See Synonyms at coarse. c. Lacking sensitivity or discernment; unrefined.

d. Carnal; sensual. 4. a. Overweight; corpulent. b. Dense; profuse. 5. Broad; general: the gross outlines of a plan. — n. 1. pl. gross-es. The entire body or amount, as of income, before necessary deductions have been made. 2. pl.

gross. Abbr. gr., gro. A group of 144 items; 12 dozen. — v. tr. grossed, gross-ing, gross-es. To earn as a total income or profit before deductions.

—phrasal verb. gross out. Slang. To fill with disgust; nauseate: “The trick in making a family film... is finding ways to interest grown-ups without boring, confusing, or grossing out the younger set” (Christian Science Monitor). [Middle English, large, from Old French gross, from Late Latin grossus, thick. N., sense 2 from Middle English grosse, from Old French grosse (douzain), large (dozen), feminine of gross.] —gross'er n. —gross/ly adv. —gross/ness n.

Gross (grōs), Samuel David. 1805-1884. American surgeon and educator who wrote widely influential medical treatises, such as A System of Surgery (1859).

gross anatomy (grōs ə-nāt'ə-mē) n. The study of the organs, parts, and structures of a body that are visible to the naked eye. Also called macroscopic anatomy Grosse Pointe Farms (grōs' point' färmz) A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 10,551.

Grosse Pointe Woods (grōs' pwänt wōodz) A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 17,715.

Gros-se-to (grō-sā'tō, grōs-sē'tō) A city of central Italy northwest of Rome. It is a market town near the site of Rusellae, an Etruscan town abandoned in the 12th century. Population, 61,500.

Gross-glock-ner (grōs'glōk'nər) A peak, 3,799.4 m (12,457 ft) high, of southern Austria in the Hohe Tauern range of the Alps. It is the highest elevation in the range and the highest point of the country.

gross index (grōs ĭn'děks') n. Computer Science. The general index that is consulted first in locating a specific record.

gross national product (grōs nāsh'ə-nəl prōd'əkt) n. Abbr. GNP The total market value of all the goods and services produced by a nation during a specified period.

gross-out (grōs'out') n. Slang. Something that elicits disgust.

gros-su-la-rite (grōs'yə-lə-rīt') also gros-su-lar (-lər) n. A pale green, pink, brown, or black garnet, $\text{Ca}_3\text{Al}_2(\text{SiO}_4)_3$, occurring alone or as a constituent of the common garnet. [German Grossularit, from New Latin Grossulāria, former genus of gooseberry (from the color of some garnets), from French groseille, gooseberry, from Old French grosele, of Germanic origin; akin to Middle Dutch kroes, curled.]

Gros-ve-nor (grōv'nər), Gilbert Hovey. 1875-1966. American geographer who directed the National Geographic Society (1899-1966) and edited its magazine (1899-1954).

Gros Ventre (grō'vänt') n. pl. Gros Ventre or Gros Ventres (vänt'). 1.

See Atsina. 2. See Hidatsa. [French : gros, big + ventre, belly.]

Gros Ventre River (grō'vänt'riv'ər) A river rising in the Wind River Range of western Wyoming and flowing about 161 km (100 mi) westward to the Snake River.

grosz (grōsh) n. pl. gro-szy (grō'shē). A unit of currency in Poland. See Table at currency. [Polish, from Czech groš, from Medieval Latin (dēnārius) grossus, thick (denarius). See GROSCHEN.]

Grosz (grōs), George. 1893-1959. German-born American artist. Associated with the Berlin Dada movement, he is best known for his biting antimilitaristic caricatures of the 1920's.

grot (grōt) n. A grotto. [French grotte, from Italian grotta. See GROTTA.]

Grote (grōt), George. 1794-1871. British historian noted for his History of Greece (1846-1856).

gro-tesque (grō-těsk') adj. 1. Characterized by ludicrous or incongruous distortion, as of appearance or manner. 2. Outlandish or bizarre, as in character or appearance. See Synonyms at fantastic. 3. Of, relating to, or being the grotesque style in art or a work executed in this style. — n. 1. One that is grotesque. 2. a. A style of painting, sculpture, and ornamentation in which natural forms and monstrous figures are intertwined in bizarre or fanciful combinations. b. A work of art executed in this style. [From French, a fanciful style of decorative art, from Italian grottesca, from feminine of grottesco, of a grotto, from grotta, grotto. See GROTTA.] — gro-tesque/ly adv. — gro-tesque/ness n.

gro-tes-que-ry also gro-tes-que-rie (grō-těs'kə-rē) n. pl. gro-tes-que-ries.

1. The state of being grotesque; grotesqueness. 2. Something grotesque.

Gro-ti-us (grō'shē-əs, -shəs), Hugo. Originally Huig de Groot. 1583-1645.

Dutch jurist, politician, and theologian whose major work, Of the Law of War and Peace (1625), is considered the first comprehensive treatise on international law.

Grot-on (grōt'n) A town of southeast Connecticut on the Thames River opposite New London. Settled c. 1650, it is a port and the site of a U.S. submarine base. Population, 45,144.

grot-to (grōt'ō) n. pl. grot-toes or grot-tos. 1. A small cave or cavern. 2. An artificial structure or excavation made to resemble a cave or cavern. [Alteration of Italian grotta, from Vulgar Latin grupta*, from Latin crypta, vault. See CRYPT.]

grot-ty (grōt'ē) adj. grot-ti-er, grot-ti-est. Chiefly British. Wretched; miserable. [Alteration of GROTESQUE.] —grot'ti-ness n.

grouch (grouch) n. 1. A habitually complaining or irritable person. 2. A grumbling or sulky mood: in a grouch about the long line for tickets. 3. A complaint; a grudge: had only one grouch against the landlord. — v. intr. grouched, grouch-ing, grouch-es. To grumble or sulk. [From Middle English grucchen, to grumble, complain. See GRUDGE.]

grouch-y (grou'chē) adj. grouch-i-er, grouch-i-est. Tending to complain or grumble; peevish or grumpy. —grouch'i-ly adv. —grouch'i-ness n.

Grou-chy (grō-shē'), Marquis Emmanuel de. 1766-1847. French marshal who distinguished himself in the Napoleonic Wars but failed to stop reinforcements from reaching Wellington at the Battle of Waterloo (1815) and was thus partially blamed for the final defeat of Napoleon I.

ground¹ (ground) n. 1. a. The solid surface of the earth. b. The floor of a body of water, especially the sea. 2. Soil; earth: level the ground for a lawn. 3. Often grounds. An area of land designated for a particular purpose: a burial ground; parade grounds. 4. Often grounds. The land surrounding or forming part of a house or another building: a guesthouse on the grounds of the mansion. 5. An area or a position that is contested in or as if in battle: The soldiers held their ground against the enemy. Character witnesses helped the defendant stand her ground in the trial. 6. Something that serves as a foundation or means of attachment for something else: a ground of white paint under the mural. 7. A surrounding area; a background. 8. Often grounds. The foundation for an argument, a belief, or an action; a basis. 9. Often grounds. The underlying condition prompting an action; a cause: grounds for suspicion; a ground for divorce. See Synonyms at base¹. 10. An area of reference or discussion; a subject: The professor covered new ground in every lecture. 11. grounds. The sediment at or from the bottom of a liquid: coffee grounds. 12. Abbr. gnd.

Electricity. a. A large conducting body, such as the earth or an electric circuit connected to the earth, used as an arbitrary zero of potential. b. A conducting object, such as a wire, that is connected to such a position of zero potential. — v. ground-ed, ground-ing, grounds. — v. tr. 1. To place on or cause to touch the ground. 2. To provide a basis for (a theory, for example); justify. 3. To supply with basic information; instruct in fundamentals. 4. a. To prevent (an aircraft or a pilot) from flying. b. Informal. To restrict (someone) especially to a certain place as a punishment. 5. Electricity. To connect (an electric circuit) to a ground. 6. Nautical. To run (a vessel) aground. 7. a. Baseball. To hit (a ball) onto the ground. b. Football. To throw a ball to the ground in order to stop play and avoid being tackled behind the line of scrimmage. — v. intr. 1. To touch or reach the ground. 2. Baseball. To hit a ground ball: grounded to the second baseman. 3. Nautical. To run aground. — phrasal verb. ground out. Baseball. To be put out by hitting a ground ball that is fielded and thrown to first base. — idioms. drive into the ground (or run into the ground). To belabor (an issue or a subject). from the ground up. From the most basic level to the highest level; completely: designed the house from the ground up; learned the family business from the ground up. off the ground. Under way, as if in flight: Because of legal difficulties, the construction project never got off the ground. on (one's) own ground. In a situation where one has knowledge or competence: a sculptor back on her own ground after experiments with painting. [Middle English, from Old English grund.] ground² (ground) v. Past tense and past participle of grind.

ground ball also ground-ball (ground'ból') n. Baseball. A batted ball that rolls or bounces along the ground.

ground bass (ground bās) n. Music. A short musical passage that is continually repeated in the bass under the changing harmonies and melodies of the upper range.

ground beetle (ground bēt'l) n. See carabid.

ground-break-er (ground'brā'kər) n. One that is original or innovative.

ground-break-ing (ground'brā'kɪŋ) n. The act or ceremony of breaking ground to begin a construction project. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being a ceremony of breaking ground. 2. Characterized by originality and innovation: a groundbreaking technology.

ground cedar (ground sē'dər) n. See ground pine.

ground cherry (ground chēr'ē) n. Any of various chiefly New World plants of the genus Physalis, having small, globose, fleshy fruit enclosed in a papery, bladderlike, persistent calyx. Also called husk tomato ground cloth (ground klôth) n. 1. A waterproof cover used to protect an area of ground, such as a baseball field. 2. A waterproof sheet placed under camp bedding as a protection against moisture. Also called ground sheet ground-con-trolled approach (ground'kən-trōld' ə-prōch') n. Abbr.

GCA A control mode in which an aircraft is talked down for landing through the use of surveillance and precision approach radar.

ground cover also ground-cov-er (ground'kŭv'ər) n. 1. Small plants other than saplings, such as mosses, ferns, grasses, and undershrubs, growing on a forest floor; undergrowth. 2. a. A low-growing, dense growth of plants, such as a pachysandra or crown vetch, planted to prevent soil erosion in areas where turf is difficult or impossible to grow, as in deep shade or on a steep slope. b. A plant used for such a growth.

ground crew (ground krōō) n. A team of mechanics and technicians that maintain and service aircraft on the ground.

ground-effect machine (ground'ī-fěkt' mə-shēn') n. Abbr. GEM See air-cushion vehicle. [From ground effect, a peculiarity of certain aircraft when landing, in which a cushion of air directed off the wings prevents touchdown.]

ground-er (groun'dər) n. Baseball. A ground ball.

ground fish (ground fīsh) n. A fish, such as a flounder or cod, that lives at the bottom of a body of water. Also called groundling ground floor (ground flôr) n. 1. The floor of a building at or nearest ground level. 2. Informal. The beginning of a venture, especially regarded as a position of advantage: investors vying to get in on the ground floor of a development project.

ground glass (ground gläs) n. 1. Glass that has been ground or etched to create a roughened, nontransparent surface. 2. Glass that has been ground into fine particles, as for use as an abrasive.

ground hemlock (ground hēm'lök') n. A low-growing yew (Taxus canadensis) of northeast North America.

ground-hog also ground hog (ground'hôg', -hög') n. See woodchuck. See Regional note at woodchuck.

Ground-hog Day (ground'hôg' dā, -hög') n. February 2, on which according to popular legend is predicted an early spring if the groundhog does not see its shadow upon emerging from its burrow or six more weeks of winter if the groundhog does see its shadow. The day is observed each year with a celebration in Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania.

ground ivy (ground ī'vē) n. A creeping or trailing European aromatic plant (Glechoma hederacea), widely naturalized in North America and having rounded, scalloped leaves and small purplish flowers.

ground-keep-er (ground'kē'pər) n. Variant of groundskeeper.

ground-less (ground'līs) adj. Having no ground or foundation; unsubstantiated: groundless optimism. See Synonyms at baseless. —ground'less-ly adv. —ground'less-ness n.

ground level (ground lēv'əl) n. Physics. See ground state.

ground-ling (ground'līng) n. 1. a. A plant or an animal that lives on or close to the ground. b. See ground fish. 2. A person with uncultivated tastes. 3. A spectator in the cheap standing-room section of an Elizabethan theater.

ground loop (ground lōōp) n. A sharp horizontal turn made by an aircraft on the ground when taxiing, landing, or taking off.

ground-mass (ground'mäs') n. The fine-grained crystalline base of porphyritic rock in which larger crystals are embedded.

ground meristem (ground mēr'ī-stēm') n. Botany. The primary meristem that differentiates into the pith and cortex.

ground·nut (ground'nŭt') n. 1. a. A climbing vine (Apios americana) of eastern North America, having compound leaves, clusters of fragrant brownish flowers, and small edible tubers. b. Any of several plants having underground tubers or nutlike parts. c. The tuber or nutlike part of such a plant. 2. Chiefly British. A peanut.

ground·out (ground'out') n. Baseball. A play in which a batter is put out at first base after hitting a ground ball to an infielder.

ground pine (ground pīn) n. A club moss, especially Lycopodium obscurum or L. complanatum or a similar species. Also called ground cedar ground plan (ground plān) n. 1. A plan of a floor of a building drawn as if seen from overhead. 2. A preliminary plan or strategy: the ground plan for an invasion.

ground plum (ground plŭm) n. 1. A perennial plant (Astragalus crassicaarpus) of the central and western United States, having compound leaves, purple or white flowers, and green, plumlike, edible fruit. 2. The fruit of this plant.

ground rent (ground rĕnt) n. Chiefly British. Rent paid for land to be used chiefly for building.

ground robin (ground rŏb'ĭn) n. See towhee (n., sense 1). ground rule (ground rŏol) n. 1. Sports. A rule governing the playing of a game on a particular field, course, or court. 2. A basic rule of procedure or behavior. Often used in the plural.

ground·sel¹ (ground'səl, groun'-) n. Any of various plants of the genus Senecio, having rayed, usually yellow flower heads. [Middle English grundeswille, from Old English grundeswylige, alteration (influenced by grund, ground), of gundeswilge: gund, pus + swelgan, to swallow (from its use in reducing abscesses); see swel- in Appendix.]

ground·sel² (ground'səl, groun'-) n. Variant of groundsill.

ground sheet (ground shĕt) n. See ground cloth.

ground·side (ground'sĭd') n. The part of an airport used for operations unrelated to the departure and arrival of aircraft. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: groundside facilities; groundside personnel.

ground·sill (ground'sĭl') also ground·sel (ground'səl, groun'-) n. The horizontal timber nearest the ground in the frame of a building.

grounds·keep·er (groundz'kĕ'pĕr) also ground·keep·er (ground'-) n.

One who maintains grounds, as of an estate, a park, or an athletic field.

—grounds'keep'ing n.

ground speed also ground·speed (ground'spĕd') n. Abbr. GS The speed of an airborne aircraft relative to the ground it traverses in a given period of time.

ground squirrel (ground skwŭr'əl) n. Any of several burrowing or terrestrial squirrels of the genus Citellus or Spermophilus, including many species that hibernate during the winter.

- ground state (ground stāt) n. Physics. The state of least possible energy in a physical system, as of elementary particles. Also called ground level
- ground-stroke (ground'strōk') n. Sports. A swing of a tennis racquet at a ball that has bounced from the ground.
- ground substance (ground sŭb'stāns) n. 1. The intercellular material in which the cells and fibers of connective tissue are embedded. Also called matrix
2. See hyaloplasm.
- ground-swell (ground'swĕl') n. 1. A sudden gathering of force, as of public opinion: a groundswell of antiwar sentiment. 2. A broad, deep undulation of the ocean, often caused by a distant storm or an earthquake.
- ground water also ground-wa-ter (ground'wō'tər, -wōt'ər) n. Water beneath the earth's surface, often between saturated soil and rock, that supplies wells and springs.
- ground wave (ground wāv) n. A radio wave that travels along the surface of the earth.
- ground-work (ground'wûrk') n. A foundation; a basis. See Synonyms at base¹.
- ground zero (ground zîr'ō) n. 1. The target of a projectile, such as a missile or bomb. 2. The site directly below, directly above, or at the point of detonation of a nuclear weapon.
- group (grōop) n. Abbr. gr. 1. An assemblage of persons or objects gathered or located together; an aggregation: a group of dinner guests; a group of buildings near the road. 2. Two or more figures that make up a unit or design, as in sculpture. 3. A number of individuals or things considered together because of similarities: a small group of supporters across the country. 4. Linguistics. A category of related languages that is less inclusive than a family. 5. a. A military unit consisting of two or more battalions and a headquarters. b. A unit of two or more squadrons in the U.S. Air Force, smaller than a wing. 6. A class or collection of related objects or entities, as: a. Two or more atoms behaving or regarded as behaving as a single chemical unit. b. A column in the periodic table of the elements. c. A stratigraphic unit, especially a unit consisting of two or more formations deposited during a single geologic era. 7. Mathematics. A set with an associative binary operation under which the set is closed, which contains an identity element and an inverse for every element in the set. — adj. Of, relating to, constituting, or being a member of a group: a group discussion; a group effort. — v. grouped, group-ing, groups. — v. tr. To place or arrange in a group: grouped the children according to height. — v. intr. To belong to or form a group: The soldiers began to group on the hillside. [French groupe, from Italian gruppo, probably of Germanic origin.]

USAGE NOTE: Group as a collective noun can be followed by a singular or plural verb. It takes a singular verb when the persons or things that make up the group are considered collectively: The dance group is ready for rehearsal. Group takes a plural verb when the persons or things that constitute it are considered individually: The group were divided in their sympathies. See Usage Note at collective noun.

grou·per (grōō'pər) n. pl. grouper or grou·pers. Any of various often large food and game fishes of the genera Epinephelus, Mycteroperca, and related genera, which inhabit warm seas. [Portuguese garupa.]

group·ie (grōō'pē) n. Slang. 1. A fan, especially a young woman, who follows a rock group around on tours. 2. An enthusiastic supporter or follower: a ballet groupie; a fashion groupie.

group·ing (grōō'pɪŋ) n. 1. The act or process of uniting into groups. 2. A collection of people or things united into a group.

group insurance (grōōp ɪn-shōōr'əns) n. Insurance purchased by a group of persons, such as the employees of a company, often at a reduced individual rate.

group practice (grōōp prāk'tɪs) n. 1. The practice of health care by an association of medical, dental, or veterinary professionals who share premises and other resources. 2. An association of health care professionals who share premises and other resources.

group theory (grōōp thē'ə-rē) n. The branch of mathematics concerned with the discovery of groups and the description of their properties.

group therapy (grōōp thēr'ə-pē) n. A form of psychotherapy that involves sessions guided by a therapist and attended by several clients who confront their personal problems together. The interaction among clients is considered to be an integral part of the therapeutic process. —group therapist n.

group·think (grōōp'thɪŋk') n. 1. The act or practice of reasoning or decision-making by a group, as by a board of directors or a research team.

2. Conformity to the values or ethical standards of a group.

grouse¹ (grous) n. pl. grouse or grous-es. Any of various plump, chickenlike game birds of the family Tetraonidae, chiefly of the Northern Hemisphere and having mottled brown or grayish plumage. [Origin unknown.]

grouse² (grous) Informal. v. intr. groused, grouse·ing, grouse-es. To complain; grumble. — n. A cause for complaint; a grievance. [Perhaps from French dialectal groucer, from Old French grouchier. See GRUDGE.] —grouse'er n.

grout (grout) n. 1. a. A thin mortar used to fill cracks and crevices in masonry. b. A thin plaster for finishing walls and ceilings. 2. Often grouts. Chiefly British. Sediment; lees. — v. tr. grout·ed, grout·ing, grouts. To fill or finish with a thin mortar or plaster. [Middle English, grain used for making malt, mud, from Old English grūt, coarse meal.] —grout'er n.

grove (grōv) n. 1. A small wood or stand of trees that lacks dense undergrowth.

2. A group of trees planted and cultivated for the production of fruit or nuts: an orange grove. [Middle English, from Old English grāf.]

Grove (grōv), Sir George. 1820-1900. British musicologist whose Dictionary of Music and Musicians (first published 1878-1889) has become a standard reference work.

Grove City (grōv sīt'ē) A city of central Ohio south-southwest of Columbus. It is in a diversified farming area. Population, 19,661.

grov-el (grōv'əl, grūv'-) v. intr. grov-elled also grov-elled, grov-el-ing also grov-el-ling, grov-els also grov-els. 1. To behave in a servile or demeaning manner; cringe. 2. To lie or creep in a prostrate position, as in subservience or humility. 3. To give oneself over to base pleasures: "Have we not groveled here long enough, eating and drinking like mere brutes?" (Walt Whitman). [Back-formation from obsolete groveling, prone, face downward, from Middle English : (on) grufe, face downwards (from Old Norse ā grūfu, from grūfa, to grovel) + -ling, adv. suff.; see *-LING*².] —grov/el-er n. —grov/el-ing-ly adv.

Groves (grōvz) A city of southeast Texas east of Port Arthur near the Louisiana border. It is mainly residential. Population, 16,513.

Groves (grōvz), Leslie Richard. 1896-1970. American army officer and military director of the atomic bomb project (1942-1947).

grow (grō) v. grew (grō), grown (grōn), grow-ing, grows. — v. intr. 1. To increase in size by a natural process. 2. a. To expand; gain: The business grew under new management. b. To increase in amount or degree; intensify: The suspense grew. 3. To develop and reach maturity. 4. To be capable of growth; thrive: Some plants grow in deep shade. 5. To become attached by or as if by the process of growth: tree trunks that had grown together. 6. To come into existence from a source; spring up: love that grew from friendship. 7. To come to be by a gradual process or by degrees; become: grow angry; grow closer. — v. tr. 1. To cause to grow; raise: grow tulips. 2. To allow (something) to develop or increase by a natural process: grow a beard. —phrasal verbs. grow into. 1. To develop so as to become: A boy grows into a man. 2. To develop or change so as to fit: She grew into her job. He grew into the relationship slowly. grow on (or grow upon). 3. To become gradually more evident to: A feeling of distrust grew on me. 4. To become gradually more pleasurable or acceptable to: a taste that grows on a person. grow up. To become an adult. —idiom. grow out of. To develop or come into existence from: an article that grew out of a few scribbled notes; trust that grew out of long acquaintance. [Middle English growen, from Old English grōwan. See ghrē- in Appendix.] —grow'er n. —grow'ing-ly adv. grow-ing pains (grō'ing pānz) pl.n. 1. Pains in the limbs and joints of children or adolescents, often attributed to rapid growth but arising from various unrelated causes. 2. Emotional difficulties that occur during adolescence.

3. Problems that arise in the initiation or enlargement of an enterprise.

growl (groul) n. 1. The low, guttural, menacing sound made by an animal: the growl of a dog. 2. A gruff, surly utterance: The desk officer answered my greeting with a growl. — v. growled, growl-ing, grows. — v. intr. 1. To emit a low, guttural sound or utterance. 2. To speak in an angry or surly manner. — v. tr. To utter by growling: growled the orders. [Middle English groule, grollen, to rumble, growl, probably from Old French grouler, of Germanic origin.]
—growl'y adj.

grow lamp (grō lămp) n. See grow light.

growl-er (grou'lər) n. 1. One, such as a dog, that growls. 2. A small iceberg. 3. Informal. A container, such as a pail or pitcher, that is used for carrying beer. 4. Electricity. An electromagnetic device with two poles, used for magnetizing, demagnetizing, and finding short-circuited coils.

grow light (grō lit) n. A fluorescent lamp that emits a spectrum of light similar to that of the sun, used to grow plants indoors. Also called grow lamp grown (grōn) v. Past participle of grow. — adj. 1. Having full growth; mature: a grown woman. 2. Produced or cultivated in a certain way or place: locally grown produce.

grown-up also grown-up (grōn'ŭp') n. An adult.

grown-up (grōn'ŭp') adj. Of, characteristic of, or intended for adults; mature: a grown-up attitude toward work; grown-up movies.

growth (grōth) n. 1. a. The process of growing. b. Full development; maturity. 2. Development from a lower or simpler to a higher or more complex form; evolution. 3. An increase, as in size, number, value, or strength; extension or expansion: population growth. 4. Something that grows or has grown: a new growth of grass. 5. Pathology. An abnormal mass of tissue, such as a tumor, growing in or on a living organism. 6. A result of growth; a product: concerns that are a growth of the new responsibilities.

growth company (grōth kŭm'pə-nē) n. A company whose rate of growth significantly exceeds that of the average in its field or the overall rate of economic growth.

growth factor (grōth fāk'tər) n. A substance that affects the growth of an organism.

growth fund (grōth fŭnd) n. A mutual fund that offers long-term capital appreciation.

growth hormone (grōth hōr'mōn') n. Abbr. GH See somatotropin.

growth ring (grōth rīng) n. Botany. A growth layer in secondary xylem seen in a cross section.

Groz-ny or Groz-nyy (grôz'nē) A city of southwest Russia southwest of Astrakhan. It is the center of extensive oil fields discovered in 1893. Population, 393,000.

grub (grüb) v. grubbed, grub-bing, grubs. — v. tr. 1. To dig up by or as if by the roots: grubbed carrots with a stick. 2. To clear of roots and stumps by digging: grubbed a small plot. 3. Slang. To obtain by importunity: grub a cigarette. — v. intr. 1. To dig in the earth: grub for potatoes. 2. a. To search laboriously by or as if by digging; rummage. b. To toil arduously; drudge: grub for a living. — n. 1. The thick, wormlike larva of certain beetles and other insects. 2. A drudge. 3. Slang. Food. [Middle English grubben, from Old English grybban*. See ghrebh-² in Appendix.] — grub'ber n.

grub-by (grüb'ē) adj. grub-bi-er, grub-bi-est. 1. Dirty; grimy: grubby old work clothes. 2. Infested with grubs. 3. Contemptible; despicable: has a grubby way of treating others. — grub'bi-ly adv. — grub'bi-ness n.

grub-stake (grüb'stāk') n. Supplies or funds advanced to a mining prospector or a person starting a business in return for a promised share of the profits. — v. tr. grub-staked, grub-stak-ing, grub-stakes. To supply with funds in return for a promised share of profits. — grub'stak'er n.

Grub Street (grüb strēt) n. The world of impoverished writers and literary hacks. [After Grub Street, London, former name of Milton Street, where such writers lived.]

grudge (grŭj) v. tr. grudged, grudg-ing, grudg-es. 1. To be reluctant to give or admit: even grudged the tuition money. 2. To resent for having; begrudge: grudged him his good ways with the children. — n. A deep-seated feeling of resentment or rancor: bears a grudge about the accident. [Middle English gruggen, grucchen, to grumble, complain, from Old French grouchier, probably of Germanic origin.] — grudg'er n. — grudg'ing-ly adv.

Gru-dziadz (grōō'jônts') A city of north-central Poland on the Vistula River northeast of Bydgoszcz. Founded by the Teutonic Knights, it passed to Poland in 1466 and was ruled by Prussia from 1772 to 1919. Population, 93,900.

gru-el (grōō'əl) n. 1. A thin, watery porridge. 2. Chiefly British. Severe punishment. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

gru-el-ing also gru-el-ling (grōō'ə-līng, grōō'ling) adj. Physically or mentally demanding to the point of exhaustion: a grueling campaign. — gru'el-ing-ly adv.

grue-some (grōō'səm) adj. Causing horror and repugnance; frightful and shocking: a gruesome murder. See Synonyms at ghastly. [Obsolete grue, to shudder (from Middle English gruen, from Middle Dutch grūwen, or Middle Low German gruwen) + -SOME¹.] — grue'some-ly adv. — grue'some-ness n.

gruff (grūf) adj. gruff-er, gruff-est. 1. Brusque or stern in manner or appearance: a gruff reply. 2. Hoarse; harsh: a gruff voice. [Dutch grof, from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German.] —gruff'ly adv. —gruff'ness n.

SYNONYMS: gruff, brusque, blunt, bluff, curt, crusty. These adjectives mean abrupt and sometimes discourteous in manner or speech. Gruff implies roughness or surliness of manner and often harsh speech but does not necessarily suggest rudeness: Her answer was gruff, but her eyes twinkled. Brusque emphasizes rude abruptness: Try to cultivate a less brusque manner. Blunt stresses utter frankness and usually a disconcerting directness: I have to be blunt: you're not welcome here. Bluff refers to unpolished, unceremonious manner but usually implies hearty good nature: He has a bluff but rather pleasant manner. Curt denotes usually rude briefness and abruptness of speech: I received a curt letter telling me I was in arrears on my mortgage payments. Crusty suggests a rough and forbidding manner that sometimes conceals benevolence of spirit: He's a crusty old gentleman who feeds stray dogs and cats.

grum·ble (grūm'bəl) v. grum·bled, grum·bling, grum·bles. — v. intr.

1. To complain in a surly manner; mutter discontentedly: "The governed will always find something to grumble about" (Crane Brinton). 2. To rumble or growl. — v. tr. To express in a grumbling, discontented manner: grumbled a rude response. — n. 1. A muttered complaint. 2. A rumble; a growl. [Probably Dutch grommelen, to mutter, from Middle Dutch, frequentative of grommen.] —grum'bler n. —grum'bling·ly adv. —grum'bly adj.

grum·met (grūm'it) n. Variant of grommet.

grump (grūmp) n. 1. A cranky, complaining person. 2. Often grumps. A fit of ill temper. Often used with the. — v. intr. grumped, grump·ing, grumps.

1. To mutter complaints. 2. To behave in a grumpy manner. [Origin unknown.]

grump·y (grūm'pē) adj. grump·i·er, grump·i·est. Surly and peevish; cranky. —grump'i·ly adv. —grump'i·ness n.

Grü·ne·wald (grōō'nə-wōld', grū'nə-vālt'), Matthias. Originally Mathis Gothardt Nithart. Died 1528. German painter noted for his paintings of religious scenes, particularly the Crucifixion, in which he employed vivid colors and exaggerated figures to portray suffering.

grunge (grūnj) n. Slang. 1. Filth; dirt. 2. One that is dirty, inferior, obnoxious, or boring. [Back-formation from GRUNGY.]

grun·gy (grūn'jē) adj. grun·gi·er, grun·gi·est. Slang. In a dirty, rundown, or inferior condition: grungy old jeans. [Origin unknown.]

grun·ion (grūn'yən) n. A small fish (Leuresthes tenuis) of coastal waters of California and Mexico that spawns at night along beaches during the high tides of spring and summer. [Perhaps from Spanish gruñón, grumbler, from gruñir, to grumble, grunt, from Latin grunnire, grundire, to grunt.]

grunt (grünt) v. grunt-ed, grunt-ing, grunts. — v. intr. 1. To utter a deep, guttural sound, as a hog does. 2. To utter a sound similar to a grunt, as in disgust. — v. tr. To utter or express with a deep, guttural sound: He merely grunted his approval. — n. 1. A deep, guttural sound. 2. Any of various chiefly tropical marine fishes of the family Haemulidae that, upon removal from the water, produce grunting sounds by rubbing together tooth plates in the throat. 3. Slang. An infantryman in the U.S. military, especially in the Vietnam War: “They were called grunts... They were the infantrymen, the foot soldiers of the war” (Bernard Edelman). 4. Slang. One who performs routine or mundane tasks. 5. New England & Upstate New York. A dessert made by dropping pieces of biscuit dough onto blueberries as they boil and then covering and steaming the mixture. [Middle English grunten, from Old English grunnetan; probably akin to grunnian.] —grunt'er n. —grunt'ing-ly adv.

Grus (grūs, grōōs) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Indus and Phoenix. [Latin grūs, crane. See gera-² in Appendix.]

Gru-yère (grōō-yâr', grē-) n. A pale yellow cheese, with or without holes, that has a firm texture and a golden-brown rind and is often used in cooking. [French, after Gruyère, a district of west-central Switzerland.]

gr. wt. abbr. Gross weight.

gryph-on (grīf'ən) n. Variant of griffin.

GS abbr. 1. General staff. 2. Ground speed.

GSA abbr. 1. General Services Administration. 2. Girl Scouts of America.

GSC abbr. General staff corps.

GSO abbr. General staff officer.

GSR abbr. Galvanic skin response.

GST also G.s.t. abbr. Greenwich sidereal time.

G-string (jē'strīng') n. 1. A narrow loincloth supported by a waistband; a breechcloth. 2. A similar garment, usually decorated, that is worn especially by stripteasers. [Origin unknown.]

G-suit (jē'sōōt') n. A flight garment worn by astronauts and jet pilots that presses on the lower body to maintain the blood supply to the brain during rapid vertical acceleration. [G² + SUIT.]

gt. abbr. 1. Gilt. 2. Great. 3. Pharmacology. Gutta.

Gt. Brit. abbr. Great Britain.

G.T.C. abbr. Good 'til canceled.

gtd. abbr. Guaranteed.

GTP (jē'tē-pē') n. A nucleotide composed of guanine, ribose, and three phosphate groups and necessary for the synthesis of RNA and proteins. [G(UANOSINE)T(RI)P(HOSPHATE).]

GTS abbr. Nautical. Gas turbine ship.

gtt. abbr. Pharmacology. Guttae.

GU abbr. 1. Genitourinary. 2. Guam.

gua-ca-mo-le (gwä'kə-mō'lē) n. A thick paste of mashed avocado, often seasoned with tomato, peppers, or other condiments and usually served as a dip or in salads. [American Spanish, from Nahuatl ahuacamolli : ahuacatl, avocado + molli, sauce, paste.]

gua-cha-ro (gwä'chə-rō') n. pl. gua-cha-ros. A fruit-eating nocturnal bird (Steatornis caripensis) of South America, whose young have a layer of fat that yields an oil used in cooking and for lighting. Also called oilbird [American Spanish guácharo, from guacho, vagabond, from Quechua wáhcha, poor person, orphan.]

Gua-da-la-ja-ra (gwöd'l-ə-här'ə, gwä'thä-lä-hä'rä) 1. A city of west-central Mexico west-northwest of Mexico City. At an altitude of more than 1,525 m (5,000 ft), it is noted for its glassware and pottery. Population, 1,626,152. 2. A city of central Spain northeast of Madrid. Built on the site of a flourishing Roman colony, it was held by the Moors from 714 to 1081. Population, 58,436.

Gua-dal-ca-nal (gwöd'l-kə-näl') A volcanic island of the western Pacific Ocean, the largest of the Solomon Islands. Discovered in 1788, the island became a British protectorate in 1893 and was occupied by the Japanese in World War II, leading to an invasion by U.S. troops in August 1942. After fierce jungle fighting, the island was captured by the Allies in February 1943.

Gua-dal-qui-vir (gwöd'l-kwiv'ər, gwä'thāl-kē-vir') A river of southern Spain flowing about 644 km (400 mi) west and southwest to the Gulf of Cádiz.

Gua-da-lupe Hi-dal-go (gwäd'l-ōōp' hī-däl'gō, gwä'thä-lōō'pě ē-thäl'gō) Officially Gus-ta-vo A. Ma-de-ro (gōō-stä'vō ä' mə-gâr'ō, gōō-stä'vō ä' mə-thě'rō). A city of south-central Mexico, a suburb of Mexico City. On February 2, 1848, a treaty ending the Mexican War was signed here. Population, 88,537.

Gua-da-lupe Mountains (gwöd'l-ōōp' moun'tənz, gwöd'l-ōō'pě) A mountain range of southern New Mexico and western Texas rising to Guada-lupe Peak, 2,668.4 m (8,749 ft) high, in Texas. The peak is the highest point in Texas.

Guadalupe River (gwäd'l-ōōp' riv'ər) A river, about 402 km (250 mi) long, of southeast Texas flowing southeast to the San Antonio River near its mouth on San Antonio Bay.

Gua-de-loupe (gwöd'l-ōōp', gwöd'l-ōōp') An overseas department of France comprising the islands of Grande-Terre and Basse-Terre and smaller islands in the Leeward Islands of the West Indies. Discovered by Columbus in 1493, the islands were first colonized by the French in 1635. Basse-Terre is the capital. Population, 328,400.

Gua·dia·na (gwä-dyá'nə, -thyä'nä) A river rising in south-central Spain and flowing about 821 km (510 mi) west and south partly along the Spanish-Portuguese border to the Gulf of Cádiz.

guai·ac (gwī'äk') n. Variant of guaiacum (n., sense 2).

guai·a·col (gwī'ə-kôl', -kôl') n. A yellowish, oily, aromatic substance, C₇H₈O₂, derived from guaiacum or wood creosote and used chiefly as an expectorant, a local anesthetic, and an antiseptic. [GUAIIAC(UM) + -OL².]

guai·a·cum (gwī'ə-kəm) n. 1. A tree of the genus Guaiacum; a lignum vitae. 2. Also guai·ac (gwī'äk'). a. The wood of a guaiacum. b. A greenish-brown resin obtained from this tree, used medicinally and in varnishes. [New Latin, from Spanish guayacán, from Taino.]

Guam (gwäm) Abbr. GU An unincorporated territory of the United States, the largest and most southerly of the Mariana Islands in the western Pacific Ocean. Discovered by Magellan in 1521, the island was ceded by Spain to the United States in 1898. Agana is the capital. Population, 105,979. —Gua·ma'ni·an (gwä-mä'nē-ən) adj. & n.

guan (gwän) n. Any of several large game birds of the family Cracidae, native to the jungles of tropical America and related to and resembling the curassows. [American Spanish, of South American Indian origin.]

Gua·na·ba·ra Bay (gwä'nə-bär'ə bā) An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean on the southeast coast of Brazil. The city of Rio de Janeiro is on its southwest shore.

gua·na·co (gwə-nä'kō) n. pl. gua·na·cos or guanaco. A reddish-brown South American ruminant mammal (Lama guanicoe) related to and resembling the domesticated llama. [Spanish, from Quechua huanaco.]

gua·neth·i·dine (gwä-nēth'ī-dēn') n. A drug, C₁₀H₂₂N₄, used in the form of its sulfate salt in the treatment of hypertension. [Blend of GUANIDINE, and ETH(YL).]

Guang·dong (gwäng'dông') also Kwang·tung (kwäng'töong', gwäng'döong') A province of southeast China on the South China Sea. It has been part of China since c. 200 B.C. Guangzhou is the capital. Population, 62,530,000.

Guang·xi Zhuang·zu (gwäng'shē' jwäng'dzōō') also Kwang·si Chuang (kwäng'sē' chwäng') An autonomous region of southern China on the Vietnamese border. Nanning is the capital. Population, 38,730,000.

Guang·zhou (gwäng'jō') also Kwang·chow (kwäng'chō') Formerly Can·ton (kän'tön', kän'tön'). A city of southern China on a delta near the South China Sea. The capital of Guangdong province, it became a treaty port open to foreign trade after the Opium War (1839-1842). Population, 2,570,000.

gua·ni·dine (gwä'nī-dēn') n. A strongly alkaline crystalline compound, NHC(NH₂)₂, formed by the oxidation of guanine and found in the urine as a normal product of protein metabolism. It is commonly used in the organic synthesis of plastics, resins, and explosives. [GUAN(INE) + -ID(E) + -INE².]

gua-nine (gwä'nēn') n. Abbr. G A purine base, C₅H₅ON₅, that is an essential constituent of both RNA and DNA. [From GUANO, in which it is found.]

gua-no (gwä'nō) n. pl. gua-nos. 1. A substance composed chiefly of the dung of sea birds or bats, accumulated along certain coastal areas or in caves and used as fertilizer. 2. Any of various similar substances, such as a fertilizer prepared from ground fish parts. [Spanish, from Quechua huanu, dung.]

gua-no-sine (gwä'nə-sēn', -sīn) n. A nucleoside, C₁₀H₁₃N₅O₅, consisting of guanine and ribose. [GUAN(INE) + (RIB)OS(E) + -INE².]

guanosine mon-o-phos-phate (gwä'nə-sēn' mōn'ō-fōs'fāt') n. GMP.

guanosine triphosphate (gwä'nə-sēn' trī-fōs'fāt') n. GTP.

Guan-tá-na-mo (gwän-tä'nə-mo') A city of southeast Cuba north of Guantánamo Bay, an inlet of the Caribbean Sea. A U.S. naval station was established on the bay in 1903. The city was founded by French settlers from Haiti in the 19th century. Population, 166,558.

gua-nyl-ic acid (gwä-nīl'ik äs'īd) n. See GMP. [GUAN(INE) + -YL + -IC.]

Gua-po-ré (gwä'pə-rä', -pōō-rě', -pô-) A river of South America rising in western Brazil and flowing about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) northwest and partly along the Brazil-Bolivia border to the Mamoré River.

guar (gwär) n. An annual plant (Cyamopsis tetragonolobus) probably native to India, adapted to semiarid regions and grown as a forage crop and for its seeds, from which guar gum is obtained. Also called cluster bean [Hindi guār.]

guar. abbr. Guaranteed.

gua-ra-ni (gwä'rə-nē') n. pl. guarani or gua-ra-nis. A basic unit of currency in Paraguay. See Table at currency. [Spanish guaraní, Guarani. See GUARANI.]

Gua-ra-ni (gwä'rə-nē') n. pl. Guarani or Gua-ra-nis. 1. A member of a South American Indian people of Paraguay, northern Argentina, and southern Brazil. 2. The Tupi-Guaranian language of this people. [Spanish guaraní, of South American Indian origin.]

guar-an-tee (gär'an-tē') n. 1. Something that assures a particular outcome or condition: Lack of interest is a guarantee of failure. 2. a. A promise or an assurance, especially one given in writing, that attests to the quality or durability of a product or service. b. A pledge that something will be performed in a specified manner. 3. a. A guaranty by which one person assumes responsibility for paying another's debts or fulfilling another's responsibilities. b. A guaranty for the execution, completion, or existence of something. 4. A guarantor. — v. tr.

guar-an-teeed, guar-an-tee-ing, guar-an-tees. 1. To assume responsibility for the debt, default, or miscarriage of. 2. To assume responsibility for the quality or performance of: guarantee a product. 3. To undertake to do, accomplish, or ensure (something) for another: guaranteed to free the captives; guarantees freedom of speech. 4. To make certain: The rain guarantees a good crop this year.

5. To furnish security for. 6. To express or declare with conviction: I guarantee that you'll like this book. [Alteration of Middle English garant, warranty, from Old French. See GUARANTY.]

guar-an-tor (gär'ən-tôr', gär'ən-tər) n. One, such as a person or corporation, that makes or gives a promise, assurance, or pledge typically relating to quality, durability, or performance.

guar-an-ty (gär'ən-tē) n. pl. guar-an-ties. 1. An agreement by which one person assumes the responsibility of assuring payment or fulfillment of another's debts or obligations. 2. a. Something given as security for the execution, completion, or existence of something else. b. The act of providing such security.

3. a. A guarantee, as for a product or service: a new refrigerator still under guaranty. b. A guarantee to perform something in a specified way. 4. A guarantee serving to assure a particular outcome or condition. 5. A guarantor. — v. tr.

guar-an-tied, guar-an-ty-ing, guar-an-ties. To guarantee. [Anglo-Norman guarantie, from Old French, from garant, guarant, warrant, of Germanic origin. See wer-⁴ in Appendix.]

guard (gärd) v. guard-ed, guard-ing, guards. — v. tr. 1. To protect from harm by or as if by watching over: guard a bank; guarding the President. See Synonyms at defend. 2. To watch over so as to prevent escape or violence: guarded the prisoner. 3. Sports. To keep (an opposing player) from scoring or playing efficiently. 4. To maintain control over, as to prevent indiscretion: Guard what you say. 5. To supervise entry or exit through; keep watch at: guarded the door. 6. To furnish (a device or object) with a protective piece. 7. Archaic. To escort. — v. intr. 1. To take precautions: guard against infection. 2. To serve as a guard. — n. 1. One who protects, keeps watch, or acts as a sentinel. 2. One who supervises prisoners. 3. A group of people serving as an escort or performing drill exhibitions on ceremonial occasions: an honor guard. 4. Chiefly British. A railway employee in charge of a train. 5. Football. One of the two offensive linemen on either side of the center. 6. Basketball. Either of the two players normally positioned in the backcourt who are responsible for bringing the ball to and initiating offensive plays from the frontcourt. 7. Sports. A defensive position or stance, as in boxing or fencing. 8. a. The act or duty of guarding. b. Protection; watch: a prisoner under close guard. 9. Something that gives protection; a safeguard: a guard against tooth decay. 10. A device or an attachment that prevents injury, damage, or loss, especially: a. An attachment or a covering put on a machine to protect the operator or a part of the machine. b. A device on a foil, sword, or knife that protects the hand. c. A padded covering worn to protect a body part from injury: a shin guard. d. A small chain or band attached to a watch or bracelet to prevent loss. e. A ring worn to prevent a more valuable ring from sliding off the finger. 11. Electronics. A signal that prevents accidental activation of a device or ambiguous interpretation of data. — idioms. off (one's) guard. Not alert; unprepared. on (one's) guard. Alert and watchful; cautious. stand guard. 3. To keep watch. 4. To act as a sentinel. [Middle English garden, from Old French garder, guarder, of Germanic origin. See wer-³ in Appendix.]

—guard'er n.

guard·dant also gar·dant (gär'dnt) adj. Heraldry. Positioned so that the head is turned toward the viewer. Used of an animal depicted so that its body is viewed from the side. [Obsolete French, from Old French guardant, gardant, present participle of garder, to guard. See GUARD.] guard cell (gärd sël) n. Botany. One of the paired epidermal cells that control the opening and closing of a stoma in plant tissue.

guard·ed (gär'did) adj. 1. Protected; defended. 2. Watched over; supervised. 3. Cautious; restrained: We view these changes with guarded optimism.

—guard/ed-ly adv. —guard/ed-ness n.

guard hair (gärd hâr) n. Any of the long coarse hairs forming a layer that covers and protects the soft underfur of certain mammals.

guard·house (gärd'hous') n. 1. A building that accommodates a military guard. 2. A jail for the detention of military personnel guilty of minor offenses or awaiting court-martial.

guard·i·an (gär'dē-ən) n. 1. One that guards, watches over, or protects.

2. Law. One who is legally responsible for the care and management of the person or property of an incompetent or a minor. 3. A superior in a Franciscan monastery. [Middle English gardein, from Anglo-Norman, from Old French gardien, from alteration of gardenc, from garder, to guard. See GUARD.] —guard/i-an-ship' n.

Guard·mem·ber (gärd'mēm'bər) n. A National Guardmember.

guard·rail (gärd'räl') n. A protective railing, as on a staircase or along a highway.

guard·room (gärd'rōom', -rōom') n. 1. A room used by guards on duty. 2. A room in which military prisoners are confined.

guards·man (gärdz'mən) n. 1. A person who acts as a guard. 2. A National Guardmember. 3. Chiefly British. A soldier in a regiment of household guards.

guar gum (gwär güm) n. A water-soluble paste made from the seeds of the guar plant and used as a thickener and stabilizer in foods and pharmaceuticals.

Guar·ne·ri (gwär-nēr'ē, -nyēr'ē) Family of Italian violin makers, including Andrea (1626?-1698), who founded the family business, and his grandson Guiseppe (1687?-1745). They are considered second only to the Stradivari family for the quality of their instruments.

Guar·ne·ri·us (gwär-nâr'ē-əs, -nâr'-) n. A violin made by a member of the Guarneri family.

Gua·rul·hos (gwä-rōō'lyōōs) A city of southeast Brazil, an industrial suburb of São Paulo. Population, 426,693.

Gua·te·ma·la (gwä'tə-mä'lə) 1. Abbr. Guat. A country of northern Central America. Inhabited by a Mayan civilization for more than a thousand years before the Spanish conquest in 1524, Guatemala achieved independence in 1839. Guatemala is the capital and the largest city. Population, 6,054,227. 2. Also Guatemala City. The capital and largest city of Guatemala, in the south-central part of the country. Founded on its present site in 1776, it was rebuilt after major earthquakes in 1917 and 1918. Population, 754,243. —Gua'te·ma'lan adj. & n.

gua·va (gwä'və) n. 1. Any of various tropical American shrubs and trees of the genus Psidium, especially P. guajava, having white flowers and edible fruit.

2. The fruit of this plant. [Spanish guayaba, of Caribbean Indian origin.]

Gua·via·re (gwäv-yär'ē, -yä'rē) A river of central and eastern Colombia flowing about 1,046 km (650 mi) east from the Andes to the Orinoco River on the Colombia-Venezuela boundary.

Gua·ya·quil (gwī'ə-kēl') The largest city of Ecuador, in the western part of the country near the Gulf of Guayaquil, an inlet of the Pacific Ocean. Founded in 1535, the city was frequently subject to pirate attacks in the 17th century. Population, 1,204,532.

Guay·na·bo (gwī-nä'bō) A city of northeast Puerto Rico, a manufacturing suburb of San Juan. Population, 65,075.

gua·yu·le (gwī-ōō'lē) n. A shrub (Parthenium argentatum) of the southwest United States and Mexico whose sap was considered a potential source of natural rubber during World War II. [American Spanish, from Nahuatl cuauhuli: cuahu(itl), tree + uli, latex gum.]

gu·ber·na·to·ri·al (gōō'bər-nə-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-, gyōō'-) adj. Of or relating to a governor. [From Latin gubernātor, governor, from gubernāre, to govern. See GOVERN.]

guck (gük, gōök) also gook (gōök, gōök) n. Slang. A thick, messy substance, such as sludge. [Possibly G(OO) + (M)UCK.]

gudg·eon¹ (gǔj'ən) n. 1. a. A small Eurasian freshwater fish (Gobio gobio) related to the carp and used for bait. b. Any of various similar or related fishes. 2. Slang. One who is easily duped. [Middle English gojoun, from Old French gojon, from Latin gōbiō, gōbiōn-, variant of gōbius. See GOBY.]

gudg·eon² (gǔj'ən) n. 1. A metal pivot or journal at the end of a shaft or an axle, around which a wheel or other device turns. 2. The socket of a hinge into which a pin fits. 3. A metal pin that joins two pieces of stone. 4. Nautical. The socket for the pintle of a rudder. [Middle English gudyon, from Old French gojon, peg, diminutive of goi, gouge. See GOUGE.]

gudgeon pin (gǔj'ən pīn) n. See wrist pin.

Gud·run (gōōd'rōōn') also Guth·run (gōōth'-) n. Mythology. The daughter of the king of the Nibelungs and wife of Sigurd, later of Atli, in the Volsunga Saga.

guel·der rose (gĕl'dər rōz) n. A Eurasian shrub (Viburnum opulus) having clusters of white flowers and small red fruit. [After Guelderland (Gelderland).]

Guelph¹ (gwĕlf) A city of southern Ontario, Canada, west of Toronto. It is an industrial center in a farming area. Population, 71,207.

Guelph² also Guelf (gwĕlf) n. A member of a strong faction in medieval Italy that supported the power of the pope and the city-states in a struggle against the German emperors and the Ghibellines. [Italian Guelfo, from Middle High German Welf, name of the founder of a German princely family.]

Guen·e·vere (gwĕn'ə-vîr) n. Variant of Guinevere.

gue·non (gə-nōn') n. Any of various chiefly arboreal African monkeys, primarily of the genus Cercopithecus, having long hind legs and a long tail. [French.]

guer·don (gûr'dn) n. A reward; recompense. — v. tr. guer·doned, guer·don·ing, guer·dons. To reward. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin widerdōnum, alteration (influenced by Latin dōnum, gift); see DONATION, of Old High German widarlōn : widar, back, against; see wi- in Appendix + lōn, reward; see lau- in Appendix.]

Gue·rick·e (gā'rī-kə, gâr'ī-kē), Otto von. 1602-1686. German physicist noted for his study of pneumatics and the invention of the air pump (1650).

gue·ri·don (gĕr'ī-dōn', gā-rē-dōn') n. A small round table. [French guéridon, from the proper name Guéridon.]

gue·ril·la (gə-rīl'ə) n. Variant of guerrilla.

Guer·ni·ca (gwâr'nī-kə, gĕr-nē'kă) also Guernica y Lu·no (ē lōō'nō) A town of north-central Spain northeast of Bilbao. Its April 1937 bombing by German planes during the Spanish Civil War inspired one of Picasso's most famous paintings. Population, 12,100.

Guern·sey¹ (gûrn'zē) An island of southern Great Britain, one of the Channel Islands in the English Channel off the coast of northwest France.

Guern·sey² (gûrn'zē) n. pl. Guern·seys. Any of a breed of brown and white dairy cattle originally developed on the island of Guernsey and noted for producing a rich, golden milk.

guer·ril·la or gue·ril·la (gə-rīl'ə) n. A member of an irregular, usually indigenous military or paramilitary unit operating in small bands in occupied territory to harass and undermine the enemy, as by surprise raids. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: guerrilla warfare; guerrilla tactics. [Spanish, raiding party, guerrilla force, diminutive of guerra, war, of Germanic origin. See wers- in Appendix.]

guerrilla theater (gə-rīl'ə thĕ'ə-tər) n. See street theater.

Gues·clin (gā-klăn'), Bertrand du. 1320?-1380. French military commander active in numerous battles against the English.

Guesde (gĕd), Jules. 1845-1922. French journalist and socialist who organized the Marxist branch of the French labor movement (1879).

guess (gĕs) v. guessed, guess-ing, guess-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To predict (a result or an event) without sufficient information. b. To assume, presume, or assert (a fact) without sufficient information. 2. To form a correct estimate or conjecture of: guessed the answer. 3. To suppose; think: I guess he was wrong. — v. intr. 1. To make an estimate or conjecture: We could only guess at her motives. 2. To estimate or conjecture correctly. See Synonyms at conjecture. — n. 1. An act or instance of guessing. 2. A conjecture arrived at by guessing. [Middle English gessen, probably of Scandinavian origin. See ghend- in Appendix.] —guess'er n.

guess·ti·mate (gĕs'tĭ-tə-mĭt) n. Informal. An estimate based on conjecture. [Blend of GUESS, and ESTIMATE.] —guess'ti·mate' (-măt') v.

guess·work (gĕs'wûrk') n. 1. The process of making guesses. 2. An estimate or judgment made by guessing.

guest (gĕst) n. 1. One who is a recipient of hospitality at the home or table of another. 2. One to whom entertainment or hospitality has been extended by another in the role of host or hostess, as at a party. 3. One who pays for meals or accommodations at a restaurant, hotel, or other establishment; a patron. 4. A distinguished visitor to whom the hospitality of an institution, a city, or a government is extended. 5. A visiting performer, speaker, or contestant, as on a radio or television program. 6. Zoology. A commensal organism, especially an insect that lives in the nest or burrow of another species. — v. guest-ed, guest-ing, guests. — v. tr. To entertain as a guest. — v. intr. To appear as a guest: guested on a television series. — adj. 1. Provided for guests: guest rooms. 2. Participating as a guest: a guest conductor. [Middle English gest, from Old Norse gestr. See ghos-ti- in Appendix.]

Guest (gĕst), Edgar Albert. 1881-1959. British-born American journalist known for his widely syndicated, homey rhymes, collected in books such as A Heap o' Livin' (1916).

guest·house (gĕst'hous') n. A small house or cottage adjacent to a main house, used for lodging guests.

guest worker (gĕst wûrk'kər) n. A foreigner who is permitted to work in a country on a temporary basis, as for farm labor. [Translation of German Gastarbeiter.]

Gue·va·ra (gə-vär'ə, gĕ-vă'rä), Ernesto. Known as “Che.” 1928-1967. Argentine-born Cuban revolutionary leader who was Fidel Castro's chief lieutenant in the Cuban revolution (1956-1959) and later served as minister of industry (1961-1965). Active in other Latin American revolutions, he was captured and executed by the Bolivian army.

guff (gŭf) n. Slang. 1. Nonsense; baloney. 2. Insolent talk; back talk. [Perhaps imitative.]

guf-faw (gə-fô') n. A hearty, boisterous burst of laughter. — v. intr.

guf-fawed, guf-faw-ing, guf-faws. To laugh heartily and boisterously.

[Probably imitative.]

Gug-gen-heim (göög'ən-hīm') Family of American industrialists and philanthropists, including Meyer (1828-1905), who amassed the family fortune in the copper industry. His sons Daniel (1856-1930) and Simon (1867-1941) and his granddaughter Marguerite (1898-1979), known as "Peggy," were patrons of the arts. The family endowed the Guggenheim Museum of Modern Art in New York City (1959).

GUI (gōō'ē) n. An interface for issuing commands to a computer utilizing a pointing device, as a mouse, that manipulates and activates graphical images on a monitor. [G(RAPHICAL) U(SER) I(NTERFACE).]

Gui-an-a (gē-ăn'ə, -ă'nə, gī-) A region of northeast South America including southeast Venezuela, part of northern Brazil, and French Guiana, Suriname, and Guyana.

Guiana High-lands (gē-ăn'ə hī'ləndz) A mountainous tableland region of northern South America extending from southeast Venezuela into Guyana and northern Brazil.

guid-ance (gīd'ns) n. 1. The act or process of guiding. 2. Counseling, such as that provided for students seeking advice about vocational and educational matters. 3. Any of various processes for guiding the path of a vehicle, especially a missile, by means of built-in equipment.

guide (gīd) n. 1. a. One who shows the way by leading, directing, or advising. b. One who serves as a model for others, as in a course of conduct. 2. A person employed to conduct others, as through a museum, and give information about points of interest encountered. 3. a. Something, such as a pamphlet, that offers basic information or instruction: a shopper's guide. b. A guidebook.

4. a. Something that serves to direct or indicate. b. A device, such as a ruler, tab, or bar, that serves as an indicator or acts to regulate a motion or operation. 5. A soldier stationed at the right or left of a column of marchers to control alignment, show direction, or mark the point of pivot. — v. guid-ed, guid-ing, guides.

— v. tr. 1. To serve as a guide for; conduct. 2. To direct the course of; steer: guide a ship through a channel. 3. To exert control or influence over. 4. To supervise the training or education of. — v. intr. To serve as a guide. [Middle English, from Old French, from Old Provençal guida, from guidar, to guide, of Germanic origin. See weid- in Appendix.] — guid'a-ble adj. — guid'er n.

SYNONYMS: guide, lead, pilot, shepherd, steer, usher. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to conduct on or direct to the way": guided me to my seat; led the troops into battle; a teacher piloting his pupils through the museum; shepherding tourists to the chartered bus; steered the applicant to the proper department; guide-book (gīd'böök') n. A handbook of directions and other information, especially for travelers or tourists.

guid-ed missile (gī'dīd mīs'əl) n. A self-propelled missile that can be guided while it is in flight.

guide dog (gīd dôg) n. A dog that has been specially trained to guide a visually impaired or sightless person.

guided wave (gī'dīd wāv) n. An electromagnetic or acoustic wave transmitted by a process that limits its physical dispersion along the length of its transmission.

guide fossil (gīd fös'əl) n. See index fossil.

guide-line (gīd'līn') n. A statement or other indication of policy or procedure by which to determine a course of action: guidelines for the completion of tax returns.

guide-post (gīd'pōst') n. 1. A post with a sign giving directions for travelers, usually placed at a crossroad. 2. Something that serves as a guide or an example; a guideline.

guide rope (gīd rōp) n. A rope fastened to another rope that is lifting a load, used to guide the rope and steady the load.

guide-word (gīd'wûrd') n. A word or term that appears at the top of each page or column in a reference book, such as a dictionary, to indicate the first or last entry on the page.

Gui-do d'A-rez-zo (gwē'dō dā-rēt'sō) or Guido A-re-ti-no (är'ě-tē'nō), 990?-1050. Benedictine monk and music theorist who devised the four-line staff, thereby allowing precise musical notation.

gui-don (gī'dŏn', gīd'n) n. 1. A small flag or pennant carried as a standard by a military unit. 2. A soldier bearing such a flag or pennant. [French, from Old French, from Old Italian guidone, from guidare, to guide, from Old Provençal guidar. See GUIDE.]

Gui-do-ni-a (gwē-dō'nē-ə, -dô'nyä) A city of west-central Italy northeast of Rome. It was heavily damaged in World War II. Population, 50,990.

Gui-enne or Guy-enne (gē-ěn') A historical region and former province of southwest France. Part of England after the marriage of Eleanor of Aquitaine to Henry II in 1152, it was reconquered by France in 1453.

guild also gild (gīld) n. 1. a. An association of persons of the same trade or pursuits, formed to protect mutual interests and maintain standards. b. A similar association, as of merchants or artisans, in medieval times. 2. Ecology. One of four groups of plants, the lianas, epiphytes, saprophytes, and parasites, having a characteristic mode of existence that involves some dependence on other plant life. [Middle English gild, from Old Norse gildi, payment, guild.]

gul-der (gĭl'dər) n. Abbr. g., G., gld. A basic unit of currency in Netherlands, Netherlands Antilles, and Suriname. See Table at currency. [Middle English gilder, alteration of Middle Dutch gulden, golden. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

Guild-ford (gĭl'fərd) A municipal borough of southeast England southwest of London. It is a market town with varied industries. Population, 58,600.

guild-hall (gĭld'hôl') n. 1. The meeting hall of a guild. 2. A town hall.

guilds-man (gĭldz'mən) n. 1. A member of a guild. 2. An advocate of guild socialism.

guild socialism (gĭld sō'shə-līz'əm) n. An English socialist doctrine of the early 20th century according to which industry would be owned by the state but managed by guilds of workers.

guile (gĭl) n. 1. Treacherous cunning; skillful deceit. 2. Obsolete. A trick or stratagem. — v. tr. guiled, guil-ing, guiles. Archaic. To beguile; deceive. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin; akin to Old English wigle, divination, sorcery.]

guile-ful (gĭl'fəl) adj. Full of guile; deceitfully or treacherously cunning. See Synonyms at sly. —guile'ful-ly adv. —guile'ful-ness n.

guile-less (gĭl'lis) adj. Free of guile; artless. See Synonyms at naive.

—guile'less-ly adv. —guile'less-ness n.

Guil-ford (gĭl'fərd) A town of southern Connecticut east of New Haven. It was settled in 1639. Population, 17,375.

Gui-lin (gwē'lĭn') also Kwei-lin (kwā'-) A city of southeast China northwest of Guangzhou. The original city dates back to the sixth century A.D. Population, 325,000.

Guil-lain Bar-ré Syndrome (gē-yăn' bə-rā' sĭn'drōm') n. A temporary inflammation of the nerves, causing pain, weakness, and paralysis in the extremities and often progressing to the chest and face. It typically occurs after recovery from a viral infection or, in rare cases, following immunization for influenza.

[After Georges Guillain (1876-1961) and Jean Alexandre Barré (1880-1967), French neurologists.]

Guil-laume (gē-ōm'), Charles Édouard. 1861-1938. Swiss physicist. He won a 1920 Nobel Prize for his discovery of a steel-nickel alloy.

Guille-min (gē-əmăn'), Roger Charles Louis. Born 1924. French-born American physicist. He shared a 1977 Nobel Prize for research on hormones.

guil-le-mot (gĭl'ə-mōt') n. Any of several auks of the genus Cepphus, having black plumage with white markings. [French, diminutive of the personal name Guillaume.]

guil-loche (gĭ-lōsh', gē-yōsh') n. Architecture. An ornamental border formed of two or more curved bands that interlace to repeat a circular design. [French guilloch.]

guil-lo-tine (gīl'ə-tēn', gē'ə-) n. 1. A device consisting of a heavy blade held aloft between upright guides and dropped to behead the victim below. 2. An instrument, such as a paper cutter, similar in action to a guillotine. — v. tr.
guil-lo-tined, guil-lo-tin-ing, guil-lo-tines. 1. To behead with a guillotine. 2. To cut with or as if with a guillotine. [French, after Joseph Ignace Guillotin (1738-1814), French physician.]

WORD HISTORY: “At half past 12 the guillotine severed her head from her body.” So reads the statement containing the first recorded use of guillotine in English, found in the Annual Register of 1793. The word occurs in a context clearly illustrating the function of the guillotine, “a machine with a heavy blade that falls freely between upright guides to behead a condemned person.” Ironically, the guillotine, which became the most notable symbol of the excesses of the French Revolution, was named for a humanitarian physician, Joseph Ignace Guillotin. Guillotin, a member of the French Constituent Assembly, recommended in a speech to that body on October 10, 1789, that executions be performed by a beheading device rather than by hanging, the method used for commoners, or by the sword, reserved for the nobility. He argued that beheading by machine was quicker and less painful than the work of the rope and the sword. In 1791 the Assembly did indeed adopt beheading by machine as the state’s preferred method of execution. A beheading device designed by Dr. Antoine Louis, secretary of the College of Surgeons, was first used on April 25, 1792, to execute a highwayman named Pelletier or Peletier. The device was called a louisette or louison after its inventor’s name, but because of Guillotin’s famous speech, his name became irrevocably associated with the machine. After Guillotin’s death in 1814, his children tried unsuccessfully to get the device’s name changed. When their efforts failed, they were allowed to change their name instead.

guilt (gīlt) n. 1. The fact of being responsible for the commission of an offense. See Synonyms at blame. 2. Law. Culpability for a crime or lesser breach of regulations that carries a legal penalty. 3. a. Remorseful awareness of having done something wrong. b. Self-reproach for supposed inadequacy or wrongdoing. 4. Guilty conduct; sin. [Middle English gilt, from Old English gylt, crime.]

guilt-less (gīlt'lis) adj. Free of guilt; innocent. —guilt/less-ly adv. —guilt/less-ness n.

guilt-y (gīl'tē) adj. guilt-i-er, guilt-i-est. 1. Responsible for or chargeable with a reprehensible act; deserving of blame; culpable: guilty of cheating; the guilty party. 2. Law. Adjudged to have committed a crime. 3. Suffering from or prompted by a sense of guilt: a guilty conscience. 4. Hinting at or entailing guilt: a guilty smirk; a guilty secret. See Synonyms at blameworthy. —guilt/i-ly adv. —guilt/i-ness n.

guimpe (gǎmp, gǐmp) n. 1. A blouse worn under a jumper. 2. A yoke insert for a low-necked dress. 3. A starched cloth covering the neck and shoulders as part of a nun's habit. 4. See gimp¹. [French, from Old French guimpe, from Old High German wimpal. See weip- in Appendix.]

Guin. abbr. Guinea.

guin·ea (gĭn'ē) n. 1. Abbr. g., G. a. A gold coin issued in England from 1663 to 1813 and worth one pound and one shilling. b. The sum of one pound and one shilling. 2. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for an Italian or a person of Italian descent. [After the Guinea coast of Africa, the source of the gold from which it was first made.]

Guin·ea (gĭn'ē) Abbr. Guin. A country of western Africa on the Atlantic Ocean. It was a French colony from 1898 until 1958, when it gained its independence. Conakry is the capital and the largest city. Population, 4,830,000. —Guin'e-an adj. & n.

Guinea, Gulf of. A broad inlet of the Atlantic Ocean formed by the great bend in the west-central coast of Africa. It includes the Bights of Benin and Biafra.

Guin·ea-Bis·sau (gĭn'ē-bĭ-sou') A country of western Africa on the Atlantic Ocean. A Portuguese colony after 1879, it achieved independence in 1974. Bissau is the capital and the largest city. Population, 777,214.

guinea fowl (gĭn'ē foul) n. Any of several pheasantlike birds of the family Numididae native to Africa, especially a widely domesticated species (Numida meleagris) having blackish plumage marked with many small white spots. Also called guinea hen [After the Guinea coast of Africa.]

guinea pig (gĭn'ē pig) n. 1. Any of various small, short-eared domesticated rodents of the genus Cavia, having variously colored hair and no visible tail. They are widely kept as pets and often used as experimental animals. 2. Informal. A person who is used as a subject for experimentation or research. [Perhaps alteration (influenced by Guinea, used as a name for any faraway unknown country), of Guiana.]

guinea worm (gĭn'ē wŭrm) n. A long, threadlike nematode worm (Dracunculus medinensis) of tropical Asia and Africa that is a subcutaneous parasite of human beings and other mammals and causes ulcerative lesions on the legs and feet. [After the Guinea coast of Africa.]

Guin·e·vere (gwĭn'ə-vîr') also Guen·e·vere (gwĕn'-) n. The wife of King Arthur and lover of Lancelot according to Arthurian legend.

Gui·ney (gĭ'nē, gwĭ'-), Louise Imogen. 1861-1920. American writer whose poems and essays were influenced by the works of Tennyson and Hazlitt.

Guin·ness (gĭn'is), Sir Alec. Born 1914. British actor known for his extraordinary range of roles. His films include Kind Hearts and Coronets (1949) and The Bridge on the River Kwai (1957), for which he won an Academy Award.

gui-pure (gǐ-pōōr', -pyōōr') n. 1. A coarse, large-patterned lace without a net ground. 2. See gimp¹. [French, from Old French, from guiper, to cover with silk, of Germanic origin. See weip- in Appendix.]

Guis-card (gē-skār'), Robert. See Robert Guiscard.

guise (gīz) n. 1. Outward appearance or aspect; semblance. 2. False appearance; pretense: spoke to me under the guise of friendship. 3. Mode of dress; garb: huddled on the street in the guise of beggars. 4. Obsolete. Custom; habit. [Middle English, manner, fashion, from Old French, of Germanic origin. See weid- in Appendix.]

Guise (gēz), Second Duke Title of François de Lorraine. 1519-1563. French general and politician who suppressed the Huguenots.

Guise (gēz), Third Duke Title of Henri de Lorraine. 1550-1588. French military leader who helped plan the massacre of Huguenots on Saint Bartholomew's Day, 1572. His designs on the throne led to his assassination by order of Henry III.

gui-tar (gǐ-tār') n. Music. An instrument having a large, flat-backed sound box similar in shape to a violin, a long fretted neck, and usually six strings, played by strumming or plucking. [French guitare, from Spanish guitarra, from alteration of Greek kithara, cithara.] —gui-tar'ist n.

gui-tar·fish (gǐ-tār'fish') n. pl. guitarfish or gui-tar·fish·es. Any of several marine fishes of the family Rhinobatidae, having a guitar-shaped body and related to the skates and rays.

Gui-yang (gwē'yāng') also Kwei-yang (kwā'-) A city of southwest China east-northeast of Kunming. The capital of Guizhou province, it is a major transportation and industrial center. Population, 871,000.

Gui-zhou (gwē'jō') also Kwei-chow (kwā'chō') A province of southeast China. It passed under Chinese suzerainty in the 10th century and became a province in the 17th century. Guiyang is the capital. Population, 29,680,000.

Gui-zot (gē-zō'), François Pierre Guillaume. 1787-1874. French historian and politician who advocated a constitutional monarchy, served as premier (1847-1848), and published several historical works.

Gu·ja·rat (gōō'jə-rāt', gōōj'ə-) A region of western India bordering on the Arabian Sea. An independent kingdom after 1401, it was annexed by the Mogul Empire in 1572.

Gu·ja·ra·ti (gōō'jə-rä'tē, gōōj'ə-) n. pl. Gujarati or Gu·ja·ra·tis. 1. The Indic language of Gujarat. 2. A native or inhabitant of Gujarat.

Guj·ran·wa·la (gōōj'rən-wä'lə, gōōj'-) A city of northeast Pakistan north of Lahore. It was an early center of Sikh influence. Population, 597,000.

gul (gōōl) n. A stylized octagonal motif in oriental rugs. [Persian, rose. See JULEP.] gu·lag also Gu·lag (gōō'läg) n. 1. A network of forced labor camps in the Soviet Union. 2. A forced labor camp or prison, especially for political dissidents. 3. A place or situation of great suffering and hardship, likened to the atmosphere in a prison system or a forced labor camp. [Russian Gulag, from G(lavnoe) u(pravlenie) (ispravitel'no-trudovyykh) lag(ereĭ), Chief Administration of (Correctional Labor) Camps.]

gu·lar (gōō'lər, gyōō'-) adj. Of, relating to, or located on the throat. [Latin gula, throat + -AR.]

Gul·bar·ga (gŭl'bər-gä') A city of south-central India west of Hyderabad. It is a manufacturing center in an agricultural area. Population, 221,325.

gulch (gŭlch) n. A small ravine, especially one cut by a torrent. [Perhaps from dialectal gulch, to gush, (of land) to sink in, from Middle English gulchen, to drink greedily, to spew.]

gul·den (gōōl'dən, gōōl'-) n. pl. gul·dens or gulden. A guilder. [Middle English, from Dutch gulden (florijn), golden (florin), from Middle Dutch. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

gules (gyōōlz) n. Heraldry. The color red, indicated on a blazon by vertical lines. [Middle English goules, from Old French, red fur neckpiece, pl. of gole, throat, from Latin gula.]

gulf (gŭlf) n. 1. Abbr. g., G. A large area of a sea or ocean partially enclosed by land, especially a long landlocked portion of sea opening through a strait. 2. A deep, wide chasm; an abyss. 3. A wide gap, as in understanding: “the gulf between the Victorian sensibility and our own” (Babette Deutsch). 4. Something, such as a whirlpool, that draws down or engulfs. — v. tr. gulfed, gulf·ing, gulfs. To engulf. [Middle English goulf, from Old French golfe, from Old Italian golfo, from Late Latin colpus, colfus, from Greek kolpos, bosom, gulf.]

Gulf In-tra-coas-tal Waterway (gŭlf in'trə-kō'stəl wō'tər-wā') An inland waterway of bays, canals, and rivers from northwest Florida to Brownsville, Texas. It is approximately 1,770 km (1,100 mi) long.

Gulf of (gŭlf ŭv) For names of actual gulfs, see the specific element of the name; for example, Mexico, Gulf of; Lions, Gulf of.

Gulf·port (gŭlf'pōrt', -pōrt') A city of southeast Mississippi on an arm of the Gulf of Mexico west of Biloxi. Settled in 1891 as a railroad terminus, it developed as a port after 1902. Population, 40,775.

Gulf States (gŭlf stāts) 1. The countries bordering the Persian Gulf in southwest Asia, including Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Qatar, United Arab Emirates, and Oman. 2. The states of the southern United States with coastlines on the Gulf of Mexico. They are Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas.

Gulf Stream (gŭlf strēm) A warm ocean current of the northern Atlantic Ocean off eastern North America. It flows from the Gulf of Mexico through the Straits of Florida and then north and northeast to merge with the North Atlantic Drift.

gulf-weed also gulf weed (gŭlf'wēd') n. Any of several brownish seaweeds of the genus Sargassum of tropical Atlantic waters, having rounded air bladders and often forming dense, floating masses. Also called sargasso, sargassum. [After the Gulf of Mexico.]

gull¹ (gŭl) n. Any of various chiefly coastal aquatic birds of the family Laridae, having long wings, webbed feet, a thick, slightly hooked beak, and usually gray and white plumage. [Middle English gulle, possibly of Brythonic origin.]

gull² (gŭl) n. A person who is easily tricked or cheated; a dupe. — v. tr.

gulled, gull-ing, gulls. To deceive or cheat. [Probably from gull, to swallow (obsolete), from Middle English golen, to pretend to swallow, from gole, throat, perhaps from Old French goule. See GULLET.]

Gul-lah (gŭl'ə) n. 1. One of a group of people of African ancestry inhabiting the Sea Islands and coastal areas of South Carolina, Georgia, and northern Florida. 2. The creolized language of the Gullahs, based on English but including vocabulary elements and grammatical features from several African languages and spoken in isolated communities from Georgetown in eastern South Carolina to northern Florida. [Perhaps alteration of Angola, or from Gola, a people of Sierra Leone and Liberia.]

gul-let (gŭl'it) n. 1. The esophagus. 2. The throat. 3. Zoology. An invagination into the cytoplasm of certain ciliates, used for food intake. [Middle English golet, from Old French goulet, from goule, throat, from Latin gula.]

gul-li-ble (gŭl'ə-bəl) adj. Easily deceived or duped. [From GULL².]

—gul'li-bil'i-ty n. —gul'li-bly adv.

Gul-li-ver (gŭl'ə-vər) n. An Englishman who travels to the imaginary lands of Lilliput, Brobdingnag, and Laputa, and the country of the Houyhnhnms in Jonathan Swift's satire Gulliver's Travels (1726).

Gull-strand (gŭl'stränd'), Allvar. 1862-1930. Swedish ophthalmologist. He won a 1911 Nobel Prize for his study of the dioptrics of the human eye.

gull-wing (gŭl'wīng') adj. Hinged at the top so as to swing upward. Used of a type of automobile door.

gul-ly¹ (gŭl'ē) n. pl. gul-lies. A deep ditch or channel cut in the earth by running water after a prolonged downpour. — v. gul-ried, gul-ly-ing, gul-lies. — v. tr. To wear a deep ditch or channel in. — v. intr. To form a deep ditch or channel. [Perhaps alteration of Middle English golet, throat, channel. See GULLET.]

gul-ly² (gŭl'ē) n. pl. gul-lies. Chiefly British. A large knife. [Short for dialectal gully knife: gully (probably alteration of Middle English golet, throat); see GULLET + KNIFE.]

gulp (gŭlp) v. gulped, gulp-ing, gulps. — v. tr. 1. To swallow greedily or rapidly in large amounts: gulp down coffee. 2. To choke back by or as if by swallowing. — v. intr. 1. To choke or gasp, as in swallowing large amounts of liquid.

2. To swallow air audibly, as in nervousness. — n. 1. The act of gulping. 2. A large amount swallowed at one time. 3. Computer Science. A small group of bytes that may be either data or instruction. [From Middle English gulpen, or from Flemish or Dutch gulpen.] — gulp'er n. — gulp'ing-ly adv.

gum¹ (gŭm) n. 1. a. Any of various viscous substances that are exuded by certain plants and trees and dry into water-soluble, noncrystalline, brittle solids. b. A similar plant exudate, such as a resin. c. Any of various adhesives made from such exudates or other sticky substance. 2. A substance resembling the viscous substance exuded by certain plants, as in stickiness. 3. a. Any of various trees of the genera Eucalyptus, Liquidambar, or Nyssa that are sources of gum. b. The wood of such a tree; gumwood. 4. Chewing gum. — v. gummed, gum·ming, gums. — v. tr. To cover, smear, seal, fill, or fix in place with or as if with gum. — v. intr. 1. To exude or form gum. 2. To become sticky or clogged. — phrasal verb. gum up. To ruin or bungle: gum up the works. [Middle English gomme, from Old French, from Late Latin gumma, variant of Latin gummi, cummi, from Greek kommi, perhaps from Egyptian kmj-t.]

gum² (gŭm) n. The firm connective tissue covered by mucous membrane that envelops the alveolar arches of the jaw and surrounds the bases of the teeth. Also called gingiva — v. tr. gummed, gum·ming, gums. To chew (food) with toothless gums. [Middle English gome, from Old English gōma, palate, jaw.]

gum ac·croi·des (gŭm ə-kroi'dēz, äk-roi'-) n. See acaroid resin. [Alteration of New Latin acaroides. See ACAROID RESIN.]

gum ammoniac (gŭm ə-mō'nē-äk') n. See ammoniac².

gum arabic (gŭm ər'ə-bīk) n. A gum exuded by various African trees of the genus Acacia, especially A. senegal, used in the preparation of pills and emulsions and the manufacture of mucilage and candies and in general as a thickener and colloidal stabilizer. Also called acacia gum·ball (gŭm'bôl') n. A small ball of chewing gum with a colored sugar coating.

gum band (gŭm bänd) n. Pennsylvania. See rubber band. [Translation of German Gummiring.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Many Pennsylvanians are only a generation or two removed from German-speaking homes. It is natural that the English spoken in Pennsylvania would feature words borrowed directly from German. Gum band, the local equivalent for rubber band, is derived from German Gummiring, “rubber band.” Smearcase, a Pennsylvania term for cottage cheese, is from Schmierkäse, “soft cheese that can be ‘smear’d,’ or spread.” Other Pennsylvania expressions are calques, or direct translations, of German idioms. For example, in the expression The smearcase is all, a Pennsylvania word all comes from German alle, meaning gum benjamin (gŭm bĕn'jə-mən) n. See benzoin (n., sense 1).

“finished.”

gum benzoin (gŭm bĕn'zō-ĭn) n. See benzoin (n., sense 1).

gum·bo (gŭm'bō) n. pl. gum·bos. 1. a. See okra (n., sense 1). b. Chiefly Southern U.S. See okra (n., sense 2). See Regional note at goober. 2. A soup or stew thickened with okra pods. Also called okra. 3. A fine silty soil, common in the southern and western United States, that forms an unusually sticky mud when wet. 4. Gumbo. A patois spoken by some Black people and Creoles in Louisiana and the French West Indies. [Louisiana French gombo, of Bantu origin; akin to Tshiluba ki-ngumbo, okra.]

gum·boil (gŭm'boil') n. A small boil or abscess on the gum, often resulting from tooth decay.

gum·bo·lim·bo (gŭm'bō-lĭm'bō) n. pl. gum·bo·lim·bos. An aromatic, resinous tree (Bursera simaruba) of Florida, Central America, and the West Indies, having compound leaves and small white flowers. [Perhaps GUMBO + limbo (possibly of Bantu origin; akin to Kongo -dimbo, birdlime).]

gum·drop (gŭm'drŏp') n. A small candy made of sweetened, colored, and flavored gum arabic or gelatin and coated with coarse granulated sugar.

gum·ma (gŭm'ə) n. pl. gum·mas or gum·ma·ta (gŭm'ə-tə). A small, rubbery granuloma that has a necrotic center and is enclosed by an inflamed, fibrous capsule. It is characteristic of an advanced stage of syphilis. [New Latin, from Late Latin, gum. See GUM¹.] —gum'ma·tous adj.

gum·mite (gŭm'īt) n. An orange-red to grayish yellow mixture of several uranium oxides, silicates, and salts occurring naturally in the oxidation and hydration of uraninite. [German Gummit, from Gummi, gum, from Middle High German, from Medieval Latin, from Latin. See GUM¹.]

gum·mose (gŭm'ōs') adj. Variant of gummous.

gum·mo·sis (gŭ-mō'sĭs) n. The pathological formation of patches of gum on certain plants, such as sugar cane and some fruit trees, resulting from attack by insects, microorganisms, or adverse weather conditions. [Latin gummi, gum; see GUM¹ + -OSIS.]

gum·mous (gŭm'əs) also gum·mose (-ōs') adj. Made of or resembling gum.

gum·my (gŭm'ē) adj. gum·mi·er, gum·mi·est. 1. Consisting of or containing gum. 2. Covered or clogged with or as if with gum. 3. Having the texture or properties of gum; sticky and viscid. —gum'mi·ness n.

gum plant (gŭm plānt) n. Any of several North American plants of the genus Grindelia, especially G. squarrosa, having sticky leaves and bracts and yellow, rayed flower heads.

gump·tion (gŭmp'shən) n. Informal. 1. Boldness of enterprise; initiative or aggressiveness. 2. Guts; spunk. 3. Common sense. [Scots.]

gum resin (gŭm rĕz'ĭn) n. A mixture of gum and resin that exudes from some plants or trees.

gum-shoe (gŭm'shōō') n. 1. A sneaker or rubber overshoe. 2. Slang. An investigator, especially a detective. — v. intr. gum-shoed, gum-shoe-ing, gum-shoes. Slang. 1. To work as a detective. 2. To move about stealthily; sneak.

gum-wood (gŭm'wōōd') n. The wood of a gum tree.

gun (gŭn) n. 1. A weapon consisting of a metal tube from which a projectile is fired at high velocity into a relatively flat trajectory. 2. A cannon with a long barrel and a relatively low angle of fire. 3. A portable firearm, such as a rifle or revolver. 4. A device resembling a firearm or cannon, as in its ability to project something, such as grease, under pressure or at great speed. 5. A discharge of a firearm or cannon as a signal or salute. 6. One, such as a hunter, who carries or uses a gun. 7. a. A person skilled in the use of a gun. b. A professional killer: a hired gun. 8. The throttle of an engine, as of an automobile. — v. gunned, gun-ning, guns. — v. tr. 1. To shoot (a person): a bank robber who was gunned down by the police. 2. To open the throttle of (an engine) so as to accelerate: gunned the engine and sped off. 3. Maine. To hunt (game). — v. intr. To hunt with a gun. — phrasal verb. gun for. 1. To pursue relentlessly so as to overcome or destroy. 2. To go after in earnest; set out to obtain: gunning for a promotion. — idioms. go great guns. To proceed or perform with great speed, skill, or success. under the gun. Under great pressure or under threat. [Middle English gonne, cannon, short for Gunilda, woman's name applied to a siege engine, from Old Norse Gunnhildr, woman's name : gunnr, war; see g^when- in Appendix + hildr, war.]

gun-boat (gŭn'bōt') n. A small armed vessel.

gunboat diplomacy (gŭn'bōt' dĭ-plō'mā-sē) n. Diplomacy involving intimidation by threat or use of military force: "in the days when gunboat diplomacy was a more accepted tool of world powers" (Christian Science Monitor).

gun carriage (gŭn kār'ĭj) n. A frame or structure upon which a gun is mounted for firing or maneuvering.

gun control (gŭn kən-trōl') n. Regulation of the sale and use of rifles and handguns.

gun-cot-ton (gŭn'kōt'n) n. See nitrocellulose.

gun dog (gŭn dōg) n. A dog trained or bred to assist hunters, as in flushing or retrieving game.

gun-fight (gŭn'fīt') n. A duel or battle with firearms. — gun'fight'er n.

gun-fire (gŭn'fir') n. The firing of guns.

gun-flint (gŭn'flĭnt') n. The piece of flint used to strike the igniting spark in a flintlock.

gung ho (gŭng' hō') adj. Slang. Extremely enthusiastic and dedicated. [Earlier Gung Ho, motto of certain U.S. marine forces in Asia during World War II, from Chinese (Mandarin) gōnghé, to work together (short for gōngyèhézuòshè, Chinese Industrial Cooperative Society) : gōng, work + hé, together.]

gun·ite (gŭn'īt) n. A concrete mixture that is sprayed from a special gun over steel reinforcements in light construction. [Originally a trademark.]

gunk (gŭngk) n. Informal. A thick, greasy substance. [After Gunk, a trademark for a degreasing solvent.]

gun·lock (gŭn'lŏk') n. A device for igniting the charge of a firearm.

gun·man (gŭn'mən) n. 1. A man armed with a gun, especially an armed criminal or a professional killer. Also called gunslinger 2. A man skilled in the use of a gun.

gun·met·al (gŭn'mět'l) n. 1. An alloy of copper with 10 percent tin. 2. Metal used for guns. 3. Color. A dark gray. —gun'met'al adj.

gun moll (gŭn mŏl) n. Slang. The girlfriend of a gangster. [Obsolete British slang gun, thief (short for ganef); see GANEF + MOLL.]

Gun·nar (gŭon'är', -ər) n. Mythology. The husband of Brynhild, the brother-in-law of Sigurd, and the brother of Gudrun in the Volsunga Saga.

Gunn·bjørn (gŭon'byörn'), Mount. The highest peak, 3,702.4 m (12,139 ft), of Greenland, near the southeast coast.

Gunn effect (gŭn ĩ-fěkt') n. Electronics. The production of microwave oscillations when a constant voltage in excess of a critical level is applied to opposite faces of a semiconductor. [After John Battiscombe Gunn (born 1928), Egyptian-born British physicist.]

gun·nel¹ (gŭn'əl) n. Any of various small, elongated fishes of the family Pholidae, common in the tidal pools and coastal waters of northern seas. [Origin unknown.]

gun·nel² (gŭn'əl) n. Nautical. Variant of gunwale.

gun·ner (gŭn'ər) n. 1. A member of the armed forces who operates a gun. 2. A warrant officer in the U.S. Marine Corps having charge of ordnance. 3. Chiefly British. An artillery soldier, especially a private. 4. One who hunts with a gun.

gun·ner·a (gŭn'ər-ə, gə-nĭr'ə) n. Any of several plants of the tropical genus Gunnera, having gigantic leaves and small, red to purple drupes. [New Latin Gunnera, genus name, after Johann Ernst Gunnerus (1718-1773), Norwegian botanist.]

gun·ner·y (gŭn'ər-rē) n. 1. The science dealing with the techniques and procedures of operating guns. 2. The use of guns.

gunnery sergeant (gŭn'ər-rē sär'jənt) n. Abbr. GySgt 1. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Marine Corps that is above staff sergeant and below master sergeant and first sergeant. 2. One who holds this rank.

gun·ning (gŭn'ing) n. Maine. The sport of hunting: “Usually any kind of a tight camp will be kept available through our gunning... season” (John Gould).

Gun-ni-son (gŭn'ĩ-sən) A river, about 290 km (180 mi) long, of west-central Colorado flowing southwest, west, and northwest into the Colorado River at Grand Junction.

gun-ny (gŭn'ē) n. A coarse, heavy fabric made of jute or hemp, used especially for bags or sacks. See Regional note at gunnysack. [Hindi gonī, from Sanskrit goṇī, sack.]

gun-ny-sack (gŭn'ē-sāk') n. Chiefly Western U.S. A bag or sack made of gunny. Regional. Also called crocus sackRegional., croker sackRegional., tow bagRegional., tow sack.

REGIONAL NOTE: A large sack made from loosely woven, coarse material such as burlap goes by a variety of names in regional American English. In the greater West the usual term is gunnysack, which ultimately comes from the Sanskrit word gonī, meaning “jute or hemp fiber.” In the Upper South such a sack is called a tow sack, and in Eastern North Carolina, a tow bag. (The word tow is another synonym for fabric made from jute or hemp and probably derives from an Old English word for “spinning.”) In the Lower South the same type of bag is called a crocus sack or a croker sack, both terms deriving from the word crocus. According to Craig M. Carver, who draws on the research of Walter S. Avis, “Crocus is a coarse, loosely woven material once worn by slaves and laborers and common in colonial New England. It probably took its name from the sacks in which crocus or saffron was shipped.” Though the term crocus sack had virtually disappeared from New England by the end of the 19th century, it survives in the South.

gun-play (gŭn'plā') n. A shooting of guns with intent to inflict harm.

gun-point (gŭn'point') n. The point of a gun. —idiom. at gunpoint.
Under the threat of being shot.

gun-pow-der (gŭn'pou'dər) n. Any of various explosive powders used to propel projectiles from guns, especially a black mixture of potassium nitrate, charcoal, and sulfur.

gunpowder tea (gŭn'pou'dər tē) n. A Chinese green tea, each leaf of which is rolled into a pellet.

gun-room (gŭn'rōom', -rōom') n. The quarters of midshipmen and junior officers on a British warship.

gun-run-ner (gŭn'rŭn'ər) n. One that smuggles firearms and ammunition.
—gun/run'ning n.

gun-sel (gŭn'səl) n. Slang. A hoodlum or other criminal, especially one who carries a gun. [Perhaps alteration (influenced by GUN), of Yiddish gendzl, gosling, diminutive of gandz, goose, from Middle High German gans, from Old High German. See ghans- in Appendix.]

gun-ship (gŭn'shĭp') n. An armed aircraft, such as a helicopter, that is used to support troops and provide fire cover.

gun-shot (gŭn'shŏt') n. 1. The shooting of a gun. 2. The range of a gun: within gunshot. 3. Shot fired from a gun. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a gunshot wound; gunshot victims.

gun-shy (gŭn'shĭ') adj. 1. Afraid of loud noise, such as that of gunfire. 2. Extremely distrustful or wary.

gun-sling-er (gŭn'slĭng'ər) n. See gunman (n., sense 1). — gun'sling'ing n.

gun-smith (gŭn'smĭth') n. One that makes or repairs firearms.

gun-stock (gŭn'stŏk') n. The handle of a gun.

Gun-ter (gŭn'tər), Edmund. 1581-1626. English astronomer and mathematician who invented a surveying chain, quadrant, and scale and introduced the trigonometric terms cosine and cotangent.

Gun-ter's chain (gŭn'tərz chān) n. See chain (n., sense 8a). [After Edmund GUNTER.]

Gun-ther (gŏön'tər) n. Mythology. A king of Burgundy and the husband of Brunhild in the Nibelungenlied.

Gun-ther (gŭn'thər), John. 1901-1970. American writer who combined journalistic observations and personal experience in a series of books, including Inside Europe (1936). He also wrote novels and autobiographical works.

Gun-tur (gŏön-tŏör') A city of southeast India east-southeast of Hyderabad. Founded by the French in the 18th century, it was officially ceded to the British in 1823. Population, 367,699.

gun-wale also gun-nel (gŭn'əl) n. Nautical. The upper edge of the side of a vessel. [So called because guns were mounted on it.]

Guo-yu (gwŏ'yŏō') also Kuo-yu (kwŏ'-) n. See Mandarin (n., sense 4). [Chinese (Mandarin) : guó, nation, country + yŭ, language.]

gup-py (gŭp'ē) n. pl. gup-pies. A small, brightly colored live-bearing freshwater fish (Poecilia reticulata or Lebistes reticulatus), native to northern South America and adjacent islands of the West Indies and popular in home aquariums. [After R.J. Lechmere Guppy (1836-1916), clergyman of Trinidad who first supplied specimens to the British Museum.]

gur-gi-ta-tion (gŭr'jĭ-tā'shən) n. A whirling or surging motion, as of water. [Late Latin gurgitāre, to engulf (from Latin gurgēs, gurgit-, whirlpool) + -ATION.]

gur-gle (gŭr'gəl) v. gur-gled, gur-gling, gur-gles. — v. intr. 1. To flow in a broken, irregular current with a bubbling sound: water gurgling from a bottle.

2. To make a sound similar to this: The baby gurgled with pleasure. — v. tr. To express or pronounce with a broken, irregular, bubbling sound. [From Middle English gurguling, a gurgling sound in the abdomen, from Medieval Latin gurgulāre*, to gurgle, from Latin gurguliō, gullet.] —gur'gle n. —gur'gling-ly adv.

Gur·kha (gōōr'kə) n. 1. A member of a Rajput ethnic group predominant in Nepal. 2. A member of this people serving in the British or Indian armies.

[Nepalese : Sanskrit gāus, cow + Sanskrit rakṣati, he guards, protects.]

gur·nard (gūr'nərd) n. pl. gur·nards or gurnard. 1. Any of various widely distributed marine fishes of the family Triglidae, having large fanlike pectoral fins and a large armored head. 2. The flying gurnard. [Middle English, from Old French gornart, from gronir, to grunt (from its grunting when caught), from Latin grunnire.]

gur·ney (gūr'nē) n. pl. gur·neys. A metal stretcher with wheeled legs, used for transporting patients. [Possibly from the name Gurney.]

gu·ru (gōōr'ōō, gōō-rōō') n. pl. gu·rus. 1. Hinduism. A personal spiritual teacher. 2. a. A teacher and guide in spiritual and philosophical matters. b. A trusted counselor and adviser; a mentor. 3. a. A recognized leader in a field: the guru of high finance. b. An acknowledged and influential advocate, as of a movement or idea: “In a culture that worships slimness, he was the Guru of Lean” (Erica Abeel). [Hindi gurū, from Sanskrit guruḥ, from guru-, heavy, venerable. See g^werə-¹ in Appendix.]

Gu·ryev (gōōr'yəf) A city of northwest Kazakhstan at the mouth of the Ural River on the Caspian Sea. Founded in 1645 as a military outpost, it was a fishing port until the development of the region's petroleum resources in the 1930's. Population, 145,000.

gush (gūsh) v. gushed, gush·ing, gush·es. — v. intr. 1. To flow forth suddenly in great volume: water gushing from a hydrant. 2. To emit a sudden and abundant flow, as of tears. 3. To make an excessive display of sentiment or enthusiasm: gushed over the baby. — v. tr. To emit abundantly; pour forth. — n. 1. A sudden, copious outflow: a gush of tears. 2. Excessively demonstrative language or behavior. [Middle English gushen, perhaps of Scandinavian origin. See gheu- in Appendix.]

gush·er (gūsh'ər) n. One that gushes, especially an abundantly flowing gas or oil well.

gush·y (gūsh'ē) adj. gush·i·er, gush·i·est. Marked by excessive displays of sentiment or enthusiasm. —gush'i·ly adv. —gush'i·ness n.

gus·set (gūs'it) n. 1. A triangular insert, as in the seam of a garment, for added strength or expansion. 2. A triangular metal bracket used to strengthen a joist. 3. A piece of mail or plate armor protecting the joints in a suit of armor. [Middle English, from Old French gousset, perhaps diminutive of gousse, pod, husk.]

gus·sy (gūs'ē) v. tr. gus·sied, gus·sy·ing, gus·sies. Slang. To dress or decorate elaborately; adorn or embellish: gussied herself up in sequins and feathers.

[Perhaps from Australian slang gussie, an effeminate man, diminutive of the personal name Augustus.]

gust¹ (güst) n. 1. A strong, abrupt rush of wind. 2. A sudden burst, as of rain or smoke. 3. An outburst of emotion. — v. intr. gust-ed, gust-ing, gusts. To blow in gusts. [Probably from Old Norse gustr. See gheu- in Appendix.]

gust² (güst) n. 1. Archaic. Relish; gusto. 2. Obsolete. a. The sense of taste. b. Personal taste or inclination; liking. [Middle English guste, taste, from Latin gustus. See GUSTO.]

gus-ta-tion (gŭ-stā'shən) n. The act or faculty of tasting. [Latin gustātiō, gustātiōn-, an appetizer, from gustātus, past participle of gustāre, to taste, from gustus, taste. See GUSTO.]

gus-ta-to-ry (gŭs'tə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) also gus-ta-tive (-tə-tiv) adj. Of or relating to the sense of taste. — gus'ta-to-ri-ly adv.

Gus-ta-vo A. Ma-de-ro (gŭō-stā'vō ä' mə-dâr'ō, gŭō-stā'vō ä' mā-thĕ'rô) See Guadalupe Hidalgo.

Gus-ta-vus I (gŭs-tā'vəs, -tā'-), 1496-1560. King of Sweden (1523-1560) who established Lutheranism as the state religion, proposed the hereditary succession of the throne, and established a standing army and navy.

Gus-ta-vus II (gŭs-tā'vəs, -tā'-), Known as "Gustavus Adolphus." 1594-1632. King of Sweden (1611-1632) who was drawn into the Thirty Years' War by his desire to assure Swedish control of the Baltic States and was killed at the Battle of Lützen.

Gus-ta-vus III (gŭs-tā'vəs, -tā'-), 1746-1792. King of Sweden (1771-1792) who increased royal power, introduced reforms, and waged an unpopular war against Russia (1788-1790).

Gus-ta-vus IV (gŭs-tā'vəs, -tā'-), 1778-1837. King of Sweden (1792-1809) whose reign was marked by his hatred for Napoleon I. His tactless diplomacy and the loss of Swedish possessions to France and Russia led to his dethronement.

Gus-ta-vus V (gŭs-tā'vəs, -tā'-), 1858-1950. King of Sweden (1907-1950). A constitutional monarch, he kept Sweden neutral through both World Wars.

Gus-ta-vus VI (gŭs-tā'vəs, -tā'-), 1882-1973. King of Sweden (1950-1973). The last Swedish monarch with real political power, he was also an authority on Chinese art and archaeology.

gus-to (gŭs'tō) n. pl. gus-toes. 1. Vigorous enjoyment; zest. See Synonyms at zest. 2. Individual taste. 3. Archaic. Artistic style. [Italian, from Latin gustus, taste. See geus- in Appendix.]

gust-y (gŭs'tē) adj. gust-i-er, gust-i-est. 1. Blowing in or marked by gusts: a gusty storm. 2. Characterized by sudden outbursts. — gust'i-ly adv. — gust'i-ness n.

gut (güt) n. 1. a. The alimentary canal or a portion thereof, especially the intestine or stomach. b. The embryonic digestive tube, consisting of the foregut, the midgut, and the hindgut. 2. guts. The bowels; entrails; viscera. 3. Slang.

a. Innermost emotional or visceral response: She felt in her gut that he was guilty.

b. guts. The essential components or inner working parts: “The best part of a good car... is its guts” (Leigh Allison Wilson).

4. guts. Slang. a. Courage; fortitude. b. Nerve; audacity. 5. Slang. A gut course. 6. A thin, tough cord made from the intestines of animals, usually sheep, used as strings for musical instruments or as surgical sutures. 7. A narrow passage or channel. 8. Fibrous material taken from the silk gland of a silkworm before it spins a cocoon, used for fishing tackle. — v. tr. gut-ted, gut-ting, guts. 1. To remove the intestines or entrails of; eviscerate. 2. To extract essential or major parts of: gut a manuscript.

3. To destroy the interior of: Fire gutted the house. 4. To reduce or destroy the effectiveness of: A stipulation added at the last minute gutted the ordinance. —

adj. Slang. Arousing or involving basic emotions; visceral: “Conservationism is a gut issue in the West” (Saturday Review). — idiom. gut it out. Slang. To show pluck and perseverance in the face of opposition or adversity. [From Middle English guttēs, entrails, from Old English guttas. See gheu- in Appendix.]

—gut'ty adj.

GUT (güt) n. Physics. Grand unified theory.

gut-buck-et (güt'bŭk'it) n. Music. 1. An early type of jazz characterized by a strong beat and rollicking delivery, similar to barrelhouse. 2. A homemade bass instrument. [From gutbucket bass, a type of homemade bass instrument made from a bucket.]

gut course (güt kôrs) n. Slang. An undemanding academic course of study. [Possibly from GUT, to extract, excerpt.]

Gu-ten-berg (gōōt'n-bûrg'), Johann or Johannes. 1400?-1468?. German printer who is traditionally considered the inventor of movable type. His Mazarin Bible (c. 1455) is believed to be the first book printed with such type.

Gü-ters-loh (gōō'tərz-lō', güt'tərs-) A city of northwest Germany south-southwest of Bielefeld. It was chartered in 1825. Population, 78,414.

Guth-rie (güth'rē), Woodrow Wilson. Known as “Woody.” 1912-1967.

American folk singer and composer of numerous songs about hardship and social injustice. His best-known composition is “This Land Is Your Land” (1940).

Guth-run (gōōth'rōōn') n. Variant of Gudrun.

gut-less (güt'lis) adj. Slang. 1. Lacking courage or drive. 2. Lacking substance; weak or insignificant. —gut'less-ness n.

guts-y (güt'sē) adj. guts-i-er, guts-i-est. Slang. 1. Marked by courage or daring; plucky. 2. Robust and uninhibited; lusty: “the gutsy... intensity of her musical involvement” (Judith Crist). —guts'i-ly adv. —guts'i-ness n.

gut-ta (güt'tə) n. pl. gut-tae (güt'tē'). 1. Architecture. One of a series of small, droplike ornaments on a Doric entablature. 2. Abbr. gt. Pharmacology. A drop, as of liquid medicine. [Middle English, from Latin, drop.]

gut-ta-per-cha (güt'ə-pûr'chə) n. A rubbery substance derived from the latex of any of several tropical trees of the genera Palaquium and Payena, used as an electrical insulator, as a waterproofing compound, and in golf balls. [Malay gĕtah pĕrca : gĕtah, sap + pĕrca, strip of cloth.]

gut-tate (güt'āt') also gut-tat-ed (-ā'tid) adj. 1. Having or resembling drops.

2. Spotted as if by drops. [Latin guttātus, speckled, from gutta, drop.]

gut-ta-tion (gü-tā'shən) n. The exudation of water from leaves as a result of root pressure.

gut-ter (güt'ər) n. 1. A channel at the edge of a street or road for carrying off surface water. 2. A trough fixed under or along the eaves for draining rainwater from a roof. Regional. Also called eaves spoutRegional., eaves troughRegional., rainspoutRegional., spouting. 3. A furrow or groove formed by running water. 4. A trough or channel for carrying something off, such as that on either side of a bowling alley. 5. Printing. The white space formed by the inner margins of two facing pages, as of a book. 6. A degraded and squalid class or state of human existence. — v. gut-tered, gut-tering, gut-ters. — v. tr. 1. To form gutters or furrows in. 2. To provide with gutters. — v. intr. 1. To flow in channels or rivulets. 2. To melt away through the side of the hollow formed by a burning wick. Used of a candle. 3. To burn low and unsteadily; flicker. — adj. Befitting the lowest class of human life; vulgar, sordid, or unprincipled: gutter language; the gutter press. [Middle English goter, guter, from Old French gotier, from gote, drop, from Latin gutta.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Certain household words have proved important as markers for major U.S. dialect boundaries. The channels along the edge of a roof for carrying away rainwater (normally referred to in the plural) are variously known as eaves spouts or eaves troughs in New England and the Great Lakes states, spouting or rainspouts in New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania, and the Delmarva Peninsula, and gutters from Virginia southward. The transition points mark unusually clear boundaries for the three major dialect areas—Northern, Midland, and Southern—traditionally acknowledged by scholars of American dialects. Atypically, Southern gutters seems to have become the standard U.S. term.

gut-ter-snipe (güt'ər-snīp') n. 1. A street urchin. 2. A person of the lowest class.

gut-tur-al (güt'ər-əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the throat. 2. Having a harsh, grating quality, as certain sounds produced in the back of the mouth.

3. Linguistics. Velar. [French, from New Latin gutturālis, from Latin guttur, throat.] — gut'tur-al-ism, gut'tur-al/i-ty (-ə-räl'i-tē) , gut'tur-al-ness n. — gut'tur-al-ly adv.

gut-tur-al-ize (güt'ər-ə-līz') v. tr. gut-tur-al-ized, gut-tur-al-iz-ing, gut-tur-al-iz-es. 1. To pronounce in a guttural manner. 2. Linguistics. To velarize. —gut'tur-al-i-za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

guy¹ (gī) n. A rope, cord, or cable used to steady, guide, or secure something. — v. tr. guyed, guy-ing, guys. To steady, guide, or secure with a rope, cord, or cable. [Partly from Middle English gie, guide, guy (from Old French guie, from guier, to guide); see weid- in Appendix, and partly from Low German; akin to Dutch gei, brail .]

guy² (gī) n. 1. Informal. A man; a fellow. 2. guys. Informal. Persons of either sex. 3. Chiefly British. A person of odd or grotesque appearance or dress. 4. Often Guy. An effigy of Guy Fawkes paraded through the streets of English towns and burned on Guy Fawkes Day. — v. tr. guyed, guy-ing, guys. To hold up to ridicule; mock. [After Guy FAWKES.]

Guy-a-na (gī-än'ə, -ä'nə) Formerly Brit-ish Gui-a-na (brīt'ish gē-än'ə, -ä'nə, gī-). Abbr. Guy. A country of northeast South America on the Atlantic Ocean. Settled originally by the Dutch in the 17th century, it was a British colony from 1814 until 1966, when it gained its independence. Georgetown is the capital and the largest city. Population, 918,000. —Guy'a-nese' (-nēz', -nēs') adj. & n.

Guy-enne (gē-ĕn') See Guienne.

Guy Fawkes Day (gī' fôks' dā) n. November 5, observed in Great Britain to commemorate the foiling of the attempt led by Guy Fawkes in 1605 to blow up the king and members of Parliament in retaliation for increasing repression of Roman Catholics in England.

guy-ot (gē'ō) n. A flat-topped submarine mountain. [After Arnold Henri Guyot (1807-1884), Swiss-born American geologist and geographer.]

Guz-mán Blan-co (gōs-män' bläng'kō), Antonio. 1829-1899. Venezuelan political leader. Ousted from the vice-presidency (1868), he led a revolution, ruled as dictator (1870-1889), and was overthrown in a coup d'état.

guz-zle (güz'əl) v. guz-zled, guz-zling, guz-zles. — v. tr. 1. To drink greedily or habitually: guzzle beer. 2. To consume to excess: a car that guzzles gas. — v. intr. To drink, especially alcoholic beverages, greedily or habitually. [Origin unknown.] —guz'zler n.

GVW abbr. Gross vehicular weight.

GW abbr. Gigawatt.

Gwa-li-or (gwä'lē-ôr') A city of north-central India south of Agra. The city has many fine architectural remains from the Mogul era. Population, 539,015.

gwe-duc (gōō'ē-dük') n. Variant of geoduck.

Gwin-net (gwə-nĕt'), Button. 1735?-1777. American Revolutionary patriot primarily known for the value of his few existing autographs.

Gwyn or Gwynne (gwĭn), Eleanor. Known as "Nell." 1650?-1687. English actress. She was the lover of Charles II after c. 1668.

gybe (jīb) v. & n. Nautical. Variant of jibe¹.

gym (jīm) n. Sports. 1. A gymnasium. 2. A school course in physical education.

3. A metal frame supporting equipment used in outdoor play.

gym. abbr. Sports. Gymnastics.

gym·kha·na (jīm-kā'nə) n. Sports. 1. Any of various meets at which contests are held to test the skill of the competitors, as in equestrianism, gymnastics, or sports car racing. 2. The place where such an event is held. [Probably alteration (influenced by GYMNASTICS), of Hindi gend-khānā, racket court : gend, ball + khāna, house (from Persian).]

gym·na·si·um (jīm-nā'zē-əm) n. pl. gym·na·si·ums or gym·na·si·a (-zē-ə).

1. Sports. A room or building equipped for indoor sports. 2. (gīm-nā'zēōōm') An academic high school in some central European countries, especially Germany, that prepares students for the university. [Latin, school, from Greek gumnasion, from gumnazein, to exercise naked, from gumnos, naked. See nog^w- in Appendix.]

gym·nast (jīm'näst', -nəst) n. Sports. A person who is trained and skilled in gymnastics, especially one who engages in competition. [French gymnaste, from Greek gumnastēs, trainer of professional athletes, from gumnazein, to exercise.

See GYMNASIUM.]

gym·nas·tic (jīm-nās'tik) adj. Sports. Of or relating to gymnastics.

—gym·nas'ti·cal·ly adv.

gym·nas·tics (jīm-nās'tiks) n. 1. Abbr. gym. Sports. a. (used with a pl. verb).

Physical exercises designed to develop and display strength, balance, and agility, especially those performed on or with specialized apparatus. b. (used with a sing. verb). The art or practice of such exercises. 2. (used with a pl. verb). a. Complex intellectual or artistic exercises: mental gymnastics. b. Informal. Feats of physical agility: had to go through gymnastics to cross the slippery walk.

gym·nos·o·phist (jīm-nōs'ə-fīst) n. One of an ancient sect of Hindu ascetics who wore little or no clothing and were devoted to mystical contemplation.

[Middle English gumnosophist, from sing. of Latin gymnosophistae, from Greek gumnosophistai : gumnos, naked; see nog^w- in Appendix + sophistēs, expert; see SOPHIST.]

gym·no·sperm (jīm'nə-spûrm') n. A plant, such as a cycad or conifer, whose seeds are not enclosed within an ovary. [From New Latin Gymnospermae, class name, from Greek gumnospermōs : gumnos, naked; see nog^w- in Appendix + sperma, seed; see SPERM¹.] —gym'no·sper'mous adj. —gym'no·sper'my n.

gyn. abbr. 1. Gynecological. 2. Gynecologist. 3. Gynecology.

gyn- pref. Variant of gyno-.

gy·nan·dro·morph (jī-năn'drə-môrf', gī-, jī-) n. An organism having both male and female characteristics, especially an insect exhibiting a mixture of male and female tissues or sex organs. —gy·nan'dro·mor'phic, gy·nan'dro·mor'phous adj. —gy·nan'dro·mor'phism, gy·nan'dro·mor'phy n.

gy·nan·drous (jī-nān'drəs, gī-, jī-) adj. Having the stamens and pistil united to form a column, as in orchids.

gy·ar·chy (jīn'ār'kē, jī'nār'-, gī'-) n. pl. gyn·ar·chies. Government by women. —gyn·ar'chic adj.

-gyne suff. Female reproductive organ: trichogyne. [From Greek gunē, woman. See g^wen- in Appendix.]

gyneco- or gynec- pref. Woman: gynecology. [Greek gunaiko-, from gunē, gunaik-, woman. See GYNO-.]

gy·e·coc·ra·cy (jīn'ī-kōk'rə-sē, gī'-nī-, jī'-) or gy·noc·ra·cy (jī-nōk'rə-sē, gī-, jī-) n. pl. gyn·e·coc·ra·cies. 1. Government by women. 2. A society ruled by women. [Greek gunaikokratia : gunē, gunaik-, woman; see g^wen- in Appendix + -kratia, -cracy.] —gyn'e·co·crat'ic (-kə-krăt'ik) adj.

gy·e·coid (jīn'ī-koid', gī'nī-, jī'-) adj. Characteristic of a woman.

gynecol. abbr. 1. Gynecological. 2. Gynecologist. 3. Gynecology.

gy·ne·col·o·gy (gī'nī-kōl'ə-jē, jīn'ī-, jī'nī-) n. Abbr. gyn., gynecol. The branch of medicine dealing with the administration of health care to women, especially the diagnosis and treatment of disorders affecting the female reproductive organs. —gy'ne·co·log'i·cal (-kə-lōj'ī-kəl), gy'ne·co·log'ic adj.

—gy'ne·col'o·gist n.

gy·ne·co·mas·ti·a (jīn'ī-kō-mās'tē-ə, gī'nī-, jī'-) n. Abnormal enlargement of the breasts in a male.

gy·ne·cop·a·thy (jīn'ī-kōp'ə-thē, gī'nī-, jī'-) n. pl. gyn·e·cop·a·thies. Any of various diseases specific to women.

gyno- or gyn- pref. 1. Woman: gynarchy. 2. Female reproductive organ; pistil: gynophore. [From Greek gunē, woman. See g^wen- in Appendix.]

gy·noc·ra·cy (jī-nōk'rə-sē, gī-, jī-) n. Variant of gynecocracy.

gy·n·o·di·oe·cious (jīn'ō-dī-ē'shəs, gī'nō-, jī'-) adj. Having bisexual flowers on some plants and only female flowers on other plants of the same species.

—gy'no·di·oe'cism (jī'nō-dī-ē'siz'əm, gī'-) n.

gy·noe·ci·um (jī-nē'sē-əm, gī-, jī-) n. pl. gy·noe·ci·a (-sē-ə). The female reproductive organs of a flower; the pistil or pistils considered as a group. [New Latin, alteration (influenced by Greek oikos, house); see ECOLOGY, of Latin gynaec-ēum, women's apartments, from Greek gunaikeion, from neuter of gunaikeios, of women, from gunē, gunaik-, woman. See g^wen- in Appendix.]

gy·n·o·gen·e·sis (jīn'ə-jēn'ī-sīs, gī'nə-, jī'-) n. Parthenogenesis in which the egg is activated by sperm, but without fusion of the egg and sperm nuclei.

gy·n·o·phore (jīn'ə-fôr', -fôr', gī'nə-, jī'-) n. The stalk of a pistil.

—gyn'o·phor'ic (-fôr'ik, -fôr'-) adj.

-gynous suff. 1. Of, relating to, or having a specified number or kind of females: heterogynous. 2. a. Of, relating to, or situated in a specified place with respect to female plant organs: epigynous. b. Having a specified number or kind of female plant organs: protogynous. [From New Latin -gynus, from Greek gunē, woman. See g^wen- in Appendix.]

-gyny suff. 1. The state or condition of having a specified number of women or females: monogyny. 2. a. The condition of being situated in a specified place with respect to female plant organs: epigyny. b. The condition of having a specified number or kind of female plant organs: protogyny. [From Greek gunē, woman. See g^wen- in Appendix.]

Gyoár (dyûr, dyœr) A city of northwest Hungary near the Czechoslovakian border. On the site of a Roman military outpost evacuated in the fourth century A.D., it was later a Magyar stronghold and a royal free town (after 1743). Population, 128,252.

gyo·za (gyō'zə, gyô'zä') n. A Japanese dish consisting of pockets of dough that are stuffed, as with minced pork or shrimp, and fried. [Japanese.]

gyp also gip (jĭp) Slang. v. tr. gypped also gipped, gyp·ping also gip·ping, gyps also gips. To deprive (another) of something by fraud; cheat or swindle. — n. 1. A fraud or swindle. 2. One who defrauds; a swindler. [Probably short for GYPSY.] — gyp'per n.

gyp joint (jĭp joint) n. Slang. A business establishment that makes a practice of overcharging or cheating its customers.

gyp·sif·er·ous (jĭp-sĭf'ər-əs) adj. Containing gypsum. [GYPS(UM) + -FEROUS.]

gyp·soph·i·la (jĭp-sŏf'ə-lə) n. Any of various plants of the genus Gypsophila, having small white or pink flowers and including baby's breath. [New Latin Gypsophila, genus name : Greek gypsos, chalk; see GYPSUM + Greek philos, loving; see -PHILE.]

gyp·so·phile (jĭp'sə-fĭl') n. A plant living in gypsiferous soil. [GYPS(UM) + -PHILE.]

gyp·sum (jĭp'səm) n. A widespread colorless, white, or yellowish mineral, $\text{CaSO}_4 \cdot 2\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used in the manufacture of plaster of Paris, various plaster products, and fertilizers. [Middle English gypsum, from Latin gypsum, from Greek gypsos, probably of Semitic origin.]

gypsum board (jĭp'səm bôrd) n. See plasterboard.

Gyp·sy also Gip·sy (jĭp'sē) n. pl. Gyp·sies. 1. A member of a nomadic people that arrived in Europe in migrations from northern India around the 14th century, now also living in North America and Australia. Many Gypsy groups have preserved elements of their traditional culture, including an itinerant existence, tribal organization, and the Romany language. 2. See Romany (n., sense 2).

3. gypsy. One inclined to a nomadic, unconventional way of life. 4. A person who moves from place to place as required for employment, especially: a. A part-time or temporary member of a college faculty. b. A member of the chorus line in a theater production. [Alteration of Middle English gypcian, short for Egipcien, Egyptian (so called because they were thought to have come from Egypt).]

gypsy cab (jɪp'sē kăb) n. A taxicab that is licensed only to respond to calls but often cruises the streets for passengers.

gypsy moth (jɪp'sē mōth) n. 1. A European moth (Lymantria dispar) having hairy caterpillars that feed on foliage and are destructive to trees and shrubs. It was introduced into the United States in the late 1800's. 2. Informal. A moderate Republican representing a northeast or midwestern urban area in the U.S. House of Representatives.

gy·ral (jī'rəl) adj. 1. Moving in a circle or spiral; gyratory. 2. Of or relating to a gyros. —gy'ral·ly adv.

gy·rate (jī'rāt') v. intr. gy·rat·ed, gy·rat·ing, gy·rates. 1. To revolve around a fixed point or axis. 2. To revolve in or as if in a circle or spiral. See Synonyms at turn. — adj. Biology. In rings; coiled or convoluted. [Late Latin gŷrāre, gŷrāt-, from Latin gŷrus, circle. See GYRE.] —gy'ra'tor n.

gy·ra·tion (jī-rā'shən) n. 1. The act of gyrating. 2. a. Circular or spiral motion. b. Circular or spiral movement resembling that of a gyrating object: “increased volatility and unprecedented gyrations in interest rates” (Jack Egan).

gy·ra·to·ry (jī'rə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. Having a circular or spiral motion.

gyre (jīr) n. 1. A circular or spiral form; a vortex: “rain swirling the night into tunnels and gyres” (Anthony Hyde). 2. A circular or spiral motion, especially a circular ocean current. — v. intr. gyred, gyr·ing, gyres. To whirl. [Latin gŷrus, from Greek guros.]

gy·rene (jī-rēn') n. Slang. A member of the U.S. Marine Corps. [Perhaps alteration of GI¹ + (MA)RINE.]

gyr·fal·con also ger·fal·con (jŷr'făl'kən, -fôl'-, -fô'-) n. A large falcon (Falco rusticolus) of Arctic regions, having color phases that range from black to gray to white. [Middle English girfauoun, from Old French girfaut, gerfaucon: Old High German gīr, vulture + Old French faucon, falcon; see FALCON.]

gy·ri (jī'rī') n. Plural of gyros.

gy·ro¹ (jī'rō) n. pl. gy·ros. 1. A gyroscope. 2. A gyrocompass.

gy·ro² (jī'rō, jē'-) n. pl. gy·ros. A sandwich made usually of sliced roasted lamb, onion, and tomato stuffed in pita bread. [From Modern Greek guros, a turning, from Greek, circle (from the turning of the meat on a spit).]

gyro- pref. 1. Spinning: gyromagnetic. 2. Circle; spiral: gyroplane.

3. Gyroscopic: gyrostabilizer. [Greek guro-, circular, from guros, circle.]

gy·ro·com·pass (jī'rō-kŷm'pəs, -kōm'-) n. A compass with a motorized gyroscope whose angular momentum interacts with the force produced by the earth's rotation to maintain a north-south orientation of the gyroscopic spin axis, thereby providing a stable directional reference.

gy·ro·mag·net·ic (jī'rō-măg-nět'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or resulting from the magnetic properties of a spinning, electrically charged particle.

gyromagnetic ratio (jī'rō-măg-nět'ik rā'shō) n. The ratio of the magnetic moment to the intrinsic angular momentum of a spinning particle.

gy·ro pilot (jī'rō pī'lət) n. An automatic pilot incorporating a gyroscope that initiates corrections to control surfaces on aircraft and thus maintains a preset course and altitude.

gy·ro·plane (jī'rə-plān') n. An aircraft, such as a helicopter or autogyro, equipped with wings that rotate about an approximately vertical axis.

gy·ro·scope (jī'rə-skōp') n. A device consisting of a spinning mass, typically a disk or wheel, mounted on a base so that its axis can turn freely in one or more directions and thereby maintain its orientation regardless of any movement of the base. —gy'ro·scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj. —gy'ro·scop'i·cal·ly adv.

gy·ro·sta·bi·liz·er (jī'rō-stā'bə-lī'zər) n. An instrument having a heavy gyroscope whose axis spins in a vertical plane to reduce the side-to-side rolling of a ship or aircraft.

gy·ro·stat (jī'rə-stăt') n. A gyroscope consisting of a rotating wheel in a rigid case. —gy'ro·stat'ic adj. —gy'ro·stat'i·cal·ly adv.

gy·rus (jī'rəs) n. pl. gy·ri (-rī'). Any of the prominent, rounded, elevated convolutions on the surfaces of the cerebral hemispheres. [Latin gyrus, circle. See GYRE.]

GySgt abbr. Gunnery sergeant.

gyve (jīv) Archaic. n. A shackle or fetter, especially for the leg. — v. tr. gyved, gyv·ing, gyves. To shackle or fetter. [From Middle English gives, gyves.]

h¹ or H (āch) n. pl. h's or H's. 1. The eighth letter of the modern English alphabet. 2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter h. 3. The eighth in a series. 4. Something shaped like the letter H.

h² The symbol for Planck's constant.

h³ abbr. 1. Also h. Hit. 2. Hour.

H¹ 1. The symbol for the element hydrogen. 2. The symbol for enthalpy.

H² abbr. 1. Physics. Hamiltonian. 2. Henry. 3. Humidity.

h. also H. abbr. 1. Harbor. 2. Hard; hardness. 3. Height. 4. High. 5. Music. Horn. 6. Hundred. 7. Husband.

ha¹ also hah (hä) interj. Used to express surprise, wonder, triumph, puzzlement, or pique.

ha² abbr. 1. Hectare. 2. Latin. Hoc anno (this year). 3. Hour angle.

Haa-kon VII (hō'kən, -kōōn'), 1872-1957. King of Norway (1905-1957) who headed the exiled Norwegian government in London during the Nazi occupation of his country (1940-1945).

Haar-lem (här'ləm) A city of western Netherlands near the North Sea west of Amsterdam. Chartered in 1245, it is an industrial city best known as a flower-growing center and distribution point for bulbs, especially tulips. Population, 152,511.

Haar-lem-mer-meer (här'lə-mər-mâr') A city of western Netherlands west-northwest of Amsterdam in an agricultural area. Population, 83,428.

Ha-bak-kuk (häb'ə-kük', -kōök', hə-bäk'ək) n. Bible. 1. A Hebrew prophet of the late seventh century B.C. 2. Abbr. Hab. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Hebrew Hābaqqûq.] ha-ba-ne-ra (hä'bə-nâr'ə, ä'bə-) n. 1. A slow Cuban dance. 2. The music for this dance, in duple time. [Spanish (danza) habanera, (dance) of Havana, from La Habana, Havana, Cuba.]

hab. corp. abbr. Law. Habeas corpus.

hab-da-lah also Hab-da-lah (häv'dä-lä', häv-dô'lə) n. Judaism. A religious ceremony observed at the close of the Sabbath or a holy day. [Hebrew habdālā, separation.] ha-be-as corpus (hä'bē-əs kōr'pəs) n. Abbr. hab. corp. Law. One of a variety of writs that may be issued to bring a party before a court or judge, having as its function the release of the party from unlawful restraint. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin habeās corpus : Latin habeās, second person sing. present subjunctive of habēre, to have + Latin corpus, body (from the first words of the writ).]

Ha-ber (hä'bər), Fritz. 1868-1934. German chemist. He won a 1918 Nobel Prize for the synthetic production of ammonia.

Haber-Bosch process (hä'bər-bōsh' prōs'ēs') n. See Haber process.

[After Fritz HABER, and Karl BOSCH.]

hab·er·dash·er (häb'ər-däsh'ər) n. 1. A dealer in men's furnishings.

2. Chiefly British. A dealer in sewing notions and small wares. [Middle English, probably from Anglo-Norman hapertas, petty wares.]

hab·er·dash·er·y (häb'ər-däsh'ə-rē) n. pl. hab·er·dash·er·ies. 1. A haberdasher's shop. 2. The goods and wares sold by a haberdasher.

hab·er·geon (häb'ər-jən) also hau·ber·geon (hô'-) n. 1. A short, sleeveless coat of mail. 2. A hauberk. [Middle English, from Old French hauberjon, from hauberc, hauberk. See HAUBERK.]

Haber process (hä'bər prös'ēs') n. The principal commercial method of producing ammonia, by direct combination of nitrogen and hydrogen under high pressure in the presence of a catalyst, often iron. Also called Haber-Bosch process [After Fritz HABER.]

hab·ile (häb'il) adj. Generally able or adroit; handy. [Middle English habil, from Old French habile, from Latin habilis, from habēre, to handle. See ghabh- in Appendix.]

ha·bil·i·ment (hä-bil'i-mənt) n. 1. Often habiliments. a. The special dress or garb associated with an occasion or office: "shrouded from head to foot in the habiliments of the grave" (Edgar Allan Poe). b. Clothes. 2. habiliments. Characteristic furnishings or equipment; trappings: surrounded by the habiliments of the television news industry. [Middle English habiliment, from Old French habillement, from habiller, to clothe, alteration (influenced by habit, clothing); see HABIT, of abiller, to prepare, strip a tree of its branches : a-, toward (from Latin ad-); see AD- + bille, log; see BILLET².]

ha·bil·i·tate (hä-bil'i-tät') v. ha·bil·i·tat·ed, ha·bil·i·tat·ing, ha·bil·i·tates. — v. tr. 1. To clothe. 2. To fit out or equip (a mine) for operation. 3. Obsolete. To impart an ability or capacity to. — v. intr. To qualify oneself for a post or office. [Late Latin habilitāre, habilitāt-, to enable, from Latin habilitās, habilitāt-, ability, from habilis, able. See HABILE.] — ha·bil·i·ta'tion n.

hab·it (häb'it) n. 1. a. A recurrent, often unconscious pattern of behavior that is acquired through frequent repetition. b. An established disposition of the mind or character. 2. Customary manner or practice: a person of ascetic habits. 3. An addiction, especially to a narcotic drug. 4. Physical constitution. 5. Characteristic appearance, form, or manner of growth, especially of a plant or crystal. 6. a. A distinctive dress or costume, especially of a religious order. b. A riding habit. — v. tr. hab·it·ed, hab·it·ing, hab·its. To clothe; dress. [Middle English, clothing, from Old French, clothing, behavior, custom, from Latin habitus, from past participle of habēre, to have. See ghabh- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: habit, practice, custom, usage, use, wont, habitude. These nouns denote patterns of behavior established by continual repetition. Habit applies to a way of acting so ingrained in an individual that it is done without conscious thought: trying to break the smoking habit; has a habit of closing his eyes when he tells a story. “Habit rules the unreflecting herd” (William Wordsworth). Practice denotes a customary, often chosen pattern of individual or group behavior: It is our practice to eat an early dinner. “You will find it a very good practice always to verify your references, sir” (Martin Joseph Routh). Custom is either individual or group behavior as established by long practice and especially by accepted conventions: “No written law has ever been more binding than unwritten custom supported by popular opinion” (Carrie Chapman Catt). Usage refers to customary practice that has become an accepted standard for a group and thus regulates individual behavior: “laws.... corrected, altered, and amended by acts of parliament and common usage” (William Blackstone). Use and wont are terms for the customary and distinctive practice of an individual or a group: “situations where the use and wont of their fathers no longer meet their necessities” (J.A. Froude). Habitude refers to an individual’s habitual disposition to behave in a certain way rather than to a specific act: “His real habitude gave life and grace/To appertainings and to ornament” (Shakespeare).

hab·it·a·ble (hăb’î-tə-bəl) adj. Suitable to live in or on; inhabitable: habitable land. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin habitābilis, from habitāre, to dwell, frequentative of habēre, to have. See ghabh- in Appendix.]

—hab’it·a·bil’i·ty, hab’it·a·ble·ness n. —hab’it·a·bly adv.

hab·i·tant (hăb’î-tənt) n. 1. An inhabitant. 2. Also ha·bi·tan (ă’bē-tān’). An inhabitant of French descent living in Canada, especially Quebec, or in Louisiana. [Middle English, from Old French, from present participle of habiter, to dwell, from Latin habitāre. See HABITABLE.]

hab·i·tat (hăb’î-tăt’) n. 1. The area or type of environment in which an organism or ecological community normally lives or occurs: a marine habitat. 2. The place in which a person or thing is most likely to be found. [Latin, it dwells, third person sing. present of habitāre, to dwell. See HABITABLE.]

hab·i·ta·tion (hăb’î-tā’shən) n. 1. The act of inhabiting or the state of being inhabited. 2. a. A natural environment or locality. b. A place of abode; a residence. [Middle English habitacioun, from Latin habitātiō, habitātiōn-, from habitātus, past participle of habitāre, to dwell. See HABITABLE.]

hab·it·form·ing (hăb’î-t-fôr’mĭng) adj. 1. Capable of leading to physiological or psychological dependence: a habit-forming drug. 2. Tending to become habitual: The taste of success may become habit-forming.

ha·bit·u·al (hə-bĭch’ōō-əl) adj. 1. a. Of the nature of a habit: habitual lying. b. Being such by force of habit: a habitual liar. See Synonyms at chronic. 2. Established by long use; usual: my habitual place. See Synonyms at usual.

—ha·bit’u·al·ly adv. —ha·bit’u·al·ness n.

ha-bit-u-ate (hə-bīch'ōō-āt') v. ha-bit-u-at-ed, ha-bit-u-at-ing, ha-bit-u-ates. — v. tr. To accustom by frequent repetition or prolonged exposure. — v. intr. 1. To cause physiological or psychological habituation, as to a drug. 2. Psychology. To experience habituation. [From Middle English, accustomed, from Late Latin habituātus, past participle of habituārī, to be in a condition, from Latin habitus, condition, habit. See HABIT.] ha-bit-u-a-tion (hə-bīch'ōō-ā'shən) n. 1. The process of habituating or the state of being habituated. 2. a. Physiological tolerance to a drug resulting from repeated use. b. Psychological dependence on a drug. 3. Psychology. The decline of a conditioned response following repeated exposure to the conditioned stimulus.

hab-i-tude (hăb'ī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. A habitual tendency or way of behaving. See Synonyms at habit. [Middle English, from Latin habitudō, condition, from habitus. See HABIT.] ha-bit-u-é (hə-bīch'ōō-ā', hə-bīch'ōō-ā') n. A person who frequents a particular place, especially a place offering a specific pleasurable activity. See Synonyms at votary. [French, from past participle of habituier, to accustom, frequent, from Old French, from Late Latin habituārī, to be in a condition. See HABITUATE.] hab-i-tus (hăb'ī-təs) n. pl. habitus. The physical and constitutional characteristics of an individual, especially as related to the tendency to develop a certain disease. [Latin, condition. See HABIT.] ha-boob (hə-bōōb') n. A penetrating sandstorm or dust storm with violent winds, occurring chiefly in Arabia, North Africa, and India. [Arabic habūb, strong wind, from habba, to blow.]

Habs-burg (hăps'bûrg', hăps'bōōrk') See Hapsburg.

ha-ček (hă'chĕk') n. A diacritical mark (ˇ) that resembles an inverted circumflex and is used over certain letters, such as č, to indicate quality of pronunciation. [Czech háček, diminutive of hák, hook, from Middle High German hāken, from Old High German hāko. See keg- in Appendix.]

Ha-chi-no-he (hä'chĕ-nō'hĕ) A city of northern Honshu, Japan, on the Pacific Ocean. It is a major fishing and commercial port. Population, 241,428.

Ha-chi-o-ji (hä'chĕ-ō'jĕ) A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, west of Tokyo. It has been noted for its weaving industry since the early 18th century. Population, 426,650.

ha-chure (hă-shōōr', hăsh'ōōr) n. One of the short lines used on maps to shade or to indicate slopes and their degree and direction. — v. tr. ha-chured, ha-chur-ing, ha-chures (hă-shōōr'). To make hatching on (a map). [French, from Old French, from hacher, to cross-hatch. See HATCH³.]

ha-ci-en-da (hä'sĕ-ĕn'də) n. 1. A large estate or plantation in Spanish-speaking countries. 2. The house of the owner of such an estate. [Spanish, from Latin facienda, things to be done, neuter pl. gerundive of facere, to do. See dhē- in Appendix.]

Ha·ci·en·da Heights (hä'sē-ən'də hīts) A community of southern California, a suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 49,422.

hack¹ (hăk) v. hacked, hack-ing, hacks. — v. tr. 1. To cut or chop with repeated and irregular blows: hacked down the saplings. 2. To break up the surface of (soil). 3. Slang. To cut or mutilate as if by hacking: hacked millions off the budget. 4. Slang. To cope with successfully; manage: couldn't hack a second job. — v. intr. 1. To chop or cut something by hacking. 2. Computer Science. To work or perform as a hacker. 3. To cough roughly or harshly. — n. 1. A rough, irregular cut made by hacking. 2. A tool, such as a hoe, used for hacking. 3. A blow made by hacking. 4. A rough, dry cough. [Middle English hakken, from Old English -haccian; see keg- in Appendix. V., intr., sense 2, back-formation from HACKER¹.] — hack'a·ble adj.

hack² (hăk) n. 1. A horse used for riding or driving; a hackney. 2. A worn-out horse for hire; a jade. 3. a. One who undertakes unpleasant or distasteful tasks for money or reward; a hireling. b. A writer hired to produce routine or commercial writing. 4. A carriage or hackney for hire. 5. Informal. a. A taxicab. b. See hackie. — v. hacked, hack-ing, hacks. — v. tr. 1. To let out (a horse) for hire. 2. To make banal or hackneyed with indiscriminate use. — v. intr. 1. To drive a taxicab for a living. 2. To work for hire as a writer. 3. To ride on horseback at an ordinary pace. — adj. 1. By, characteristic of, or designating routine or commercial writing: hack prose. 2. Hackneyed; banal. [Short for HACKNEY.]

hack·a·more (hăk'ə-môr', -môr') n. A rope or rawhide halter with a wide band that can be lowered over a horse's eyes, used in breaking horses to a bridle. [Alteration of Spanish jáquima, halter, from Old Spanish xaquima, from Arabic šakīma, bit of a bridle.]

hack·ber·ry (hăk'bĕr'ē) n. 1. Any of various trees or shrubs of the genus Celtis, having inconspicuous flowers and small, usually ovoid drupes. 2. The fruit of such a plant. 3. The soft, yellowish wood of these trees or shrubs. Also called sugarberry [Alteration of obsolete hagberry: hag- (of Scandinavian origin) + BERRY.]

hack·but (hăk'büt') n. See harquebus. [French haquebute, from Old French haquebute, alteration (influenced by buter, to aim at), of Middle Dutch hakebus. See HARQUEBUS.] — hack'but·eer' (-bə-tîr'), hack'but'ter n.

Hack·en·sack (hăk'ən-săk') A city of northeast New Jersey east-southeast of Paterson on the Hackensack River, about 64 km (40 mi) long. The city is an industrial and residential suburb of New York City. Population, 37,049.

hack·er¹ (hăk'ər) n. 1. Computer Science. a. One who is proficient at using or programming a computer; a computer buff. b. One who illegally gains access to or enters another's electronic system to obtain secret information or steal money.

2. Sports. One who enthusiastically pursues a game or sport: a weekend tennis hacker. [Perhaps from hacker, amateurish or inept golfer or tennis player (possibly from HACK¹), or perhaps from hack, practical joke, clever scheme (from dialectal hack, to embarrass, confuse, play a trick on).]

hack·er² (hăk'ər) n. See hackie.

hack·ie (hăk'ē) n. A taxicab driver. Also called hack², hacker².

hack·le¹ (hăk'əl) n. 1. Any of the long, slender, often glossy feathers on the neck of a bird, especially a male domestic fowl. 2. hackles. The erectile hairs along the back of the neck of an animal, especially of a dog. 3. a. A tuft of cock feathers trimming an artificial fishing fly. b. A hackle fly. — v. tr. hack·led, hack·ling, hack·les. To trim (an artificial fishing fly) with a hackle. — idiom. get (one's) hackles up. To be extremely insulted or irritated. [Middle English hakell, cloak, skin, plumage, possibly from Old English hacele, cloak, mantle.]

hack·le² (hăk'əl) v. hack·led, hack·ling, hack·les. — v. tr. To chop roughly; mangle by hacking. — v. intr. To hack. [Frequentative of HACK¹.]

hack·le·back (hăk'əl-băk') n. See shovelnose.

hackle fly (hăk'əl flī) n. An artificial, usually wingless fishing fly trimmed with hackles.

hack·ly (hăk'lē) adj. Nicked or notched; jagged. [From HACKLE².]

hack·ma·tack (hăk'mə-tăk') n. See balsam poplar. [Perhaps from Western Abenaki.]

hack·ney (hăk'nē) n. pl. hack·neys. 1. Often Hackney. A horse of a breed developed in England, having a gait characterized by pronounced flexion of the knee. 2. A trotting horse suited for routine riding or driving; a hack. 3. A coach or carriage for hire. — v. tr. hack·neyed, hack·ney·ing, hack·neys. 1. To cause to become banal and trite through overuse. 2. To hire out; let. — adj. 1. Banal; trite. 2. Having been hired. [Middle English hakenei, probably after Hakenei, Hackney, a borough of London, England, where such horses were raised.]

hack·neyed (hăk'nēd) adj. Overfamiliar through overuse; trite. See Synonyms at trite.

hack·saw (hăk'sô') n. A saw consisting of a tough, fine-toothed blade stretched taut in a frame, used for cutting metal. [Alteration of Middle English hagge-saue, a kind of saw : haggen, to cut, chop; see HAGGLE + sawe, saw; see SAW¹.] — hack'saw' v.

hack·work (hăk'wûrk') n. 1. Commissioned work, such as writing or acting, done usually by formula and in conformance with commercial standards.

2. Tedious, monotonous, or uninteresting work of any kind.

had (hăd) v. Past tense and past participle of have.

had·dal (hād'1) adj. Of or relating to the deepest regions of the ocean, below about 6,000 meters (20,000 feet). [French, from Hadès, Hades, from Greek Haidēs. See weid- in Appendix.]

had·dock (hād'ək) n. pl. haddock or had·docks. A food fish (Melanogrammus aeglefinus) of northern Atlantic waters, related to and resembling the cod. [Middle English haddok.]

hade (hād) n. Geology. The angle of inclination from the vertical of a vein, fault, or lode. [Origin unknown.]

Ha·des (hā'dēz) n. 1. Greek Mythology. a. The god of the netherworld and dispenser of earthly riches. b. This netherworld kingdom, the abode of the shades of the dead. 2. Also hades. Hell. [Greek Haidēs. See weid- in Appendix.]

hadj (hāj) n. Islam. Variant of haj.

hadj·i (hāj'ē) n. Islam. Variant of haji.

Had·ley (hād'lē), Henry Kimball. 1871-1937. American composer and conductor whose romantic works include operas, such as Bianca (1918), symphonies, and chamber music.

had·n't (hād'nt) Had not.

Ha·dri·an (hā'drē-ən), A.D. 76-138. Emperor of Rome (117-138) who sought to end distinctions between Rome and the Roman provinces. During his visit to Britain (122), he ordered the construction of Hadrian's Wall.

Ha·dri·an's Wall (hā'drē-ənz wôl) An ancient Roman wall, 118.3 km (73.5 mi) long, across northern England. Built by the emperor Hadrian c. A.D. 122-126 and extended by Severus a century later, the wall marked the northern defensive boundary of Roman Britain. Fragmentary ruins of the wall remain.

had·ron (hād'rŏn') n. Any of a class of subatomic particles that are composed of quarks and take part in the strong interaction. [Greek hadros, thick; see sā- in Appendix + -ON¹.] —had·ron'ic adj.

had·ro·saur (hād'rə-sôr') n. Any of various amphibious dinosaurs of the genus Anatosaurus and related genera that had webbed feet and a ducklike bill. [New Latin Hadrosaurus, genus name : Greek hadros, thick; see HADRON + sauros, lizard.]

hadst (hădst) v. Archaic. A second person singular past tense of have.

hae (hā, hă) v. tr. haed, haen (hān, hăn), hae·ing, haes. Scots. To have.

Haeck·el (hĕk'əl), Ernst Heinrich. 1834-1919. German philosopher and naturalist who supported Darwin's theory, mapped a genealogical tree relating all animal life, and developed the maxim "Ontogeny recapitulates phylogeny."

Haeck·el's law (hĕk'əlz lô) n. See biogenetic law. [After Ernst Heinrich HAECKEL.] haem- also haema- or haemo- pref. Variants of hemo-.

haemat- or haemato- pref. Variants of hemato-.

-haemia suff. Variant of -emia.

haen (hān, hǎn) v. Scots. Past participle of hae.

haet (hāt) n. Scots. A minute amount; a jot. [Scots, short for hae it, take it.] ha·fiz (hǎ'fīz) n. Islam. 1. One who has memorized the Koran. 2. Used as a title of respect for such a person. [Persian, from Arabic ḥāfiẓ, from ḥafīẓa, to memorize, guard.]

Ha·fiz (hǎ-fīz', -fēz'), fl. 14th century. Persian poet whose sensuous rhyming couplets, many of which concern love, wine, and nature, are traditionally interpreted allegorically by Sufic Muslims.

haf·ni·um (hǎf'nē-əm) n. Symbol Hf A brilliant, silvery, metallic element separated from ores of zirconium and used in nuclear reactor control rods, as a getter for oxygen and nitrogen, and in the manufacture of tungsten filaments. Atomic number 72; atomic weight 178.49; melting point 2,220°C; boiling point 5,400°C; specific gravity 13.3; valence 4. [After Hafnia, Medieval Latin name for Copenhagen, Denmark.]

haft (hǎft) n. A handle or hilt, especially the handle of a tool or weapon. — v. tr. haft·ed, haft·ing, hafts. To fit into or equip with a hilt or handle. [Middle English, from Old English hæft. See kap- in Appendix.]

haf·ta·rah or haf·to·rah (hǎf'tä-rä', hǎf-tô'r'ə, -tôr'ə) n. Variants of haphtarah.

Ha·fun (hǎ-fōon'), Cape. A promontory of northeast Somalia on the Indian Ocean. It is the easternmost point of Africa.

hag¹ (hǎg) n. 1. An old woman considered ugly or frightful. 2. a. A witch; a sorceress. b. Obsolete. A female demon. 3. A hagfish. [Middle English hagge, perhaps short for Old English hægtesse, witch.] —hag'gish adj. —hag'gish·ly adv. —hag'gish·ness n.

hag² (hǎg) n. Chiefly British. 1. A boggy area; a quagmire. 2. A spot in boggy land that is softer or more solid than the surrounding area. 3. A cutting in a peat bog. [Middle English, gap, chasm, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse högg. See kau- in Appendix.]

Hag. abbr. Bible. Haggai.

Ha·gar (hǎ'gär, -gär) In the Old Testament, the Egyptian servant of Abraham's wife, Sarah. With Abraham she had a son, Ishmael.

Ha·gen (hǎ'gən) A city of west-central Germany northeast of Cologne. Chartered in 1746 and famous for its textiles in the late 18th century, it became an industrial and manufacturing center after 1870. Population, 207,636.

Ha·gen (hǎ'gən), Walter Charles. 1892-1969. American golfer who won the U.S. Open twice (1914 and 1919) and during the 1920's won the British Open four times and the U.S. Professional Golfers' Association tournament five times.

Hag·ers·town (hǎ'gärz-toun') A city of northern Maryland northwest of Frederick. It is a manufacturing center in an agricultural region. Population, 35,445.

hag·fish (hăg'fish') n. pl. hagfish or hag·fish·es. Any of various primitive, eel-shaped marine fishes of the family Myxinidae, having a jawless sucking mouth equipped with rasping teeth with which they bore into and feed on other fishes. [HAG¹ + FISH.]

Hag·ga·dah also Hag·ga·da (hä'gä-dä', hæ-gä'də, -gô'də) n. pl.

Hag·ga·doth (-dôt', -dôt', -dôs, -dəz). Judaism. 1. Traditional Jewish literature, especially the nonlegal part of the Talmud. 2. The book containing the story of the Exodus and the ritual of the Seder, read at the Passover Seder. [Hebrew haggādâ, narration, telling, from higgîd, to narrate, tell.]

hag·gad·ic also Hag·gad·ic (hə-găd'ik, -gä'dik, -gôdik) adj. Judaism. Of or relating to the Haggadah.

hag·ga·dist (hə-gä'dist, -gô'-) n. Judaism. 1. A haggadic writer. 2. A student of haggadic literature. — hag'ga·dis'tic (hăg'ə-dīs'tik) adj.

Hag·ga·i (hăg'ē-ī', hăg'ī') n. Bible. 1. A Hebrew prophet of the sixth century B.C. 2. Abbr. Hag. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Hebrew Haggay.]

hag·gard (hăg'ərd) adj. 1. a. Appearing worn and exhausted; gaunt. b. Wild or distraught in appearance. 2. Wild and intractable. Used of a hawk in falconry. — n. An adult hawk captured for training. [French hagard, wild, from Old French, wild hawk, raptor, perhaps of Germanic origin.] — hag'gard·ly adv. — hag'gard·ness n.

SYNONYMS: haggard, wasted, worn, careworn. These adjectives mean showing the physical effects of anxiety, disease, hunger, or fatigue. Haggard implies thinness, tiredness, and often the expression of one seemingly distraught or harried: Don't lose so much weight that you look haggard. Her eyes were haggard and cavernous. Wasted stresses frailness or enfeeblement such as results from prolonged illness or extreme hardship: "a tall, bent old man, wasted almost to a skeleton" (W.H. Hudson). Worn means showing the wearing effects of overwork, care, or suffering: "I was shocked to see the worn look of his handsome young face" (Charles Dickens). Careworn applies to one whose physical appearance reveals the effects of worry or burdensome responsibility: Her countenance looked careworn as she bent over her pile of mending.

Hag·gard (hăg'ərd), Sir (Henry) Rider. 1856-1925. British writer whose romantic adventure novels include King Solomon's Mines (1885) and She (1887).

hag·gis (hăg'is) n. A Scottish dish consisting of a mixture of the minced heart, lungs, and liver of a sheep or calf mixed with suet, onions, oatmeal, and seasonings and boiled in the stomach of the slaughtered animal. [Middle English hag-ese; perhaps akin to haggen, to chop. See HAGGLE.]

hag·gle (hăg'əl) v. hag·gled, hag·gling, hag·gles. — v. intr. 1. To bargain, as over the price of something; dicker: "He preferred to be overcharged than to haggle” (W. Somerset Maugham). 2. To argue in an attempt to come to terms. — v. tr. 1. To cut (something) in a crude, unskillful manner; hack. 2. Archaic. To harass or worry by wrangling. — n. An instance of bargaining or arguing. [Frequentative of dialectal hag, to chop, hack, from Middle English haggen, from Old Norse höggva. See kau- in Appendix.] —hag’gler n.

hagi- pref. Variant of hagio-.

hag-i-ar-chy (häg’ē-är’kē, hā’jē-) *n. pl. hag-i-ar-chie*s. Government by holy men, such as priests or saints. Also called hagiocracy hagio- or hagi- pref. 1. Saint: hagiography. 2. Holy: hagioscope. [Greek hagios, holy.]

hag-i-oc-ra-cy (häg’ē-ök’rə-sē, hā’jē-) *n. pl. hag-i-oc-ra-cie*s. See hagiarchy.

Hag-i-og-ra-pha (häg’ē-ög’rə-fə, hā’jē-) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Bible. The Writings. [Late Latin, from Late Greek, from neuter pl. of hagiographos, written by inspiration, scriptural : Greek hagio-, hagio- + Greek -graphos, written (from graphein, to write); see -GRAPH.] hag-i-og-ra-phy (häg’ē-ög’rə-fē, hā’jē-) *n. pl. hag-i-og-ra-phie*s.

1. Biography of saints. 2. A worshipful or idealizing biography.

—hag’i-og’raph-er n. —hag’i-o-graph’ic (-ə-gräf’ik), hag’i-o-graph’i-cal adj.

hag-i-ol-a-try (häg’ē-öl’ə-trē, hā’jē-) n. Worship of the saints.

hag-i-ol-o-gy (häg’ē-öl’ə-jē, hā’jē-) *n. pl. hag-i-ol-o-gie*s. 1. Literature dealing with the lives of saints. 2. A collection of sacred writings. 3. An authoritative list of saints. —hag’i-o-log’ic (-ə-løj’ik), hag’i-o-log’i-cal adj.

—hag’i-ol’o-gist n.

hag-i-o-scope (häg’ē-ə-sköp’, hā’jē-) n. A small opening in an interior wall of a church, enabling those in the transept to view the main altar.

—hag’i-o-scop’ic (-sköp’ik) adj.

hag-rid-den (häg’rid’n) adj. 1. Harassed by or as if by a witch. 2. Tormented or harassed, as by unreasoning fears: “a man hagridden by the future—haunted by visions of an imminent heaven or hell upon earth” (C.S. Lewis).

Hague (hāg), The. Also ’s Gra-ven-ha-ge (skrä’vən-hä’gə, skhrä’vən-hä’KHƏ). The de facto capital of the Netherlands, in the western part of the country near the North Sea. The Hague grew around a palace built c. 1250 by William of Holland (1228-1256) and is today the seat of the country’s legislature and supreme court and of the International Court of Justice. Population, 445,213.

hah (hä) interj. Variant of ha¹.

ha-ha¹ (hä’hä’) also haw-haw (hō’hō’) n. 1. A sound made in imitation of laughter. 2. ha-ha. Slang. An instance of amusement. Often used in the plural: drove around the baseball field at midnight just for ha-has; a party that was a real ha-ha. — interj. Used to express amusement or scorn.

ha-ha² (hä'hä') also haw-haw (hô'hô') n. A moat, walled ditch, or hedge sunk in the ground to serve as a fence without impairing the view or scenic appeal. [French (perhaps as an exclamation of surprise).]

Hahn (hän), Otto. 1879-1968. German chemist. He won a 1944 Nobel Prize for his work on atomic fission.

Hah-ne-mann (hä'nə-mən, -män'), (Christian Friedrich) Samuel. 1755-1843. German physician and founder of homeopathy. He postulated that medicine produces symptoms in healthy people that are similar to those that it relieves in sick people.

hah-ni-um (hä'nē-əm) n. Element 105. [After Otto HAHN.]

haick (hīk, hāk) n. Variant of haik.

Hai-da (hī'də) n. pl. Haida or Hai-das. 1. A Native American people inhabiting the Queen Charlotte Islands of British Columbia, Canada, and Prince of Wales Island in Alaska. 2. A member of this people. 3. Any or all of the language varieties spoken by the Haida. —Hai'dan adj.

Hai-fa (hī'fə) A city of northwest Israel on the Bay of Haifa, an inlet of the Mediterranean Sea. Located at the foot of Mount Carmel, the city probably dates from the third century A.D. and is now a major port and industrial center. Population, 224,700.

Haig (hāg), Alexander Meigs, Jr. Born 1924. American general and public official who served as U.S. secretary of state (1981-1982).

Haig (hāg), Douglas First Earl Haig. 1861-1928. British field marshal who was commander in chief of the British forces on the western front (1915-1918).

Haight-Ash-bu-ry (hāt'āsh'bēr-ē, -bə-rē) A section of central San Francisco. In the 1960's it was a famous gathering place for hippies and followers of the drug culture.

haik also haick (hīk, hāk) n. A large piece of cotton, silk, or wool cloth worn as an outer garment in Morocco. [Arabic ḥā'ik, from ḥāka, to weave.]

Hai-kou (hī'kou', -kō') A city of southern China on Hainan Island in the South China Sea. It is a seaport and an industrial center. Population, 266,302.

hai-ku (hī'kō) n. pl. haiku also hai-kus. 1. A Japanese lyric verse form having three unrhymed lines of five, seven, and five syllables, traditionally invoking an aspect of nature or the seasons. 2. A poem written in this form. [Japanese : hai, amusement (from Chinese pá, farce) + ku, sentence (from Chinese jù).]

hail¹ (hāl) n. 1. Precipitation in the form of pellets of ice and hard snow.

2. Something that falls with the force and quantity of a shower of ice and hard snow: a hail of pebbles; a hail of criticism. — v. hailed, hail-ing, hails. — v. intr. 1. To precipitate in pellets of ice and hard snow. 2. To fall like hailstones: Condemnations hailed down on them. — v. tr. To pour (something) down or forth: They hailed insults at me. [Middle English, from Old English hægel, hagol.]

hail² (hāl) v. hailed, hail-ing, hails. — v. tr. 1. a. To salute or greet. b. To greet or acclaim enthusiastically: The crowds hailed the boxing champion. 2. To call out to in order to catch the attention of: hail a cabdriver. — v. intr. Nautical. To signal or call to a passing ship as a greeting or as an identification. — n. 1. The act of greeting or acclaiming. 2. A shout made to catch someone's attention or to greet. 3. Hailing distance: told me to stay within hail. — interj. Used to express a greeting or tribute. — phrasal verb. hail from. To come or originate from: She hails from Oklahoma. [Middle English heilen, from (wæs) hæil, (be) healthy. See WASSAIL.]

hail-er (hā'lər) n. 1. One that greets, acclaims, or catches someone's attention. 2. A bullhorn.

Hai-le Se-las-sie (hī'lē sə-lās'ē, -lā'sē), Title of Ras Tafari Makonnen. 1892-1975. Emperor of Ethiopia (1930-1974). After the Italian invasion of his country (1936), he fled to England, returned to Ethiopia with Allied troops (1941), and was restored to the throne. He was deposed in a military coup (1974).

hail-fel-low (hāl'fēl'ō) also hail-fel-low-well-met (-wēl'mēt') adj. Heartily friendly and congenial. [From the obsolete greeting hail, fellow!] — hail'-fel'low n.

Hail Mar-y (hāl' mār'ē) n. pl. Hail Mar-ys. Roman Catholic Church. A prayer based on the greetings of Gabriel and Saint Elizabeth to the Virgin Mary.

hail-stone (hāl'stōn') n. A hard pellet of snow and ice.

hail-storm (hāl'stōrm') n. A storm with hail.

haim-ish also heim-ish (hā'mish) adj. Slang. Warm and comfortable; homey; folksy: "It is very gentle and sweet up here. It's... sort of haimish" (Janet Malcolm). [Yiddish hey mish, from Middle High German heimisch, from Old High German heimisc, from heim, home. See tkei- in Appendix.]

Hai-nan (hī'nän') An island of southern China in the South China Sea, separated from Leizhou Peninsula by a narrow strait.

Hai-naut (hā-nō', ě-nō') A historical region of southwest Belgium and northern France. It originated in the ninth century and was later joined, through royal marriages, with Flanders and Holland. Parts of Hainaut were annexed by France in the 1600's.

haint (hānt) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. Variant of haunt (n., sense 2).

Hai-phong (hī'fōng') A city of northeast Vietnam on the Red River delta near the Gulf of Tonkin. Established in 1874, it was shelled by the French in 1946 and heavily bombed by U.S. forces from 1965 to 1968 and again in 1972 during the Vietnam War. Population, 330,755.

hair (hâr) n. 1. a. Any of the cylindrical, keratinized, often pigmented filaments characteristically growing from the epidermis of a mammal. b. A growth of such filaments, as that forming the coat of an animal or covering the scalp of a human being. 2. A filamentous projection or bristle similar to a hair, such as a seta of an arthropod or an epidermal process of a plant. 3. Fabric made from the hair of certain animals: a coat of alpaca hair. 4. a. A minute distance or narrow margin: won by a hair. b. A precise or exact degree: calibrated to a hair. [Middle English her, from Old English hǣr.]

hair-ball (hâr'ból') n. A small mass of hair located in the stomach or intestine of an animal, such as a cat, resulting from an accumulation of small amounts of hair that are swallowed each time the animal licks its coat.

hair-breadth (hâr'brëdth') adj. Extremely close: a hairbreadth escape. — n. Variant of hairsbreadth.

hair-brush (hâr'brüşh') n. A brush for the hair.

hair cell (hâr sël) n. A cell in the organ of Corti having fine hairlike processes.

hair-cloth (hâr'klôth', -klôth') n. A wiry fabric woven especially from horse-hair or camel's hair, used for upholstering and for stiffening garments.

hair-cut (hâr'küt') n. 1. The act or an instance of cutting the hair. 2. A style in which hair is cut. — hair'cut'ter n. — hair'cut'ting adj. & n.

hair-do (hâr'dōo') n. pl. hair-dos. A style in which hair is arranged.

hair-dress-er (hâr'drës'ər) n. One who cuts or arranges hair.

hair-dress-ing (hâr'drës'ing) n. 1. The occupation of a hairdresser. 2. The act of dressing or arranging the hair. 3. A cosmetic or medicinal preparation for dressing the hair.

haired (hârd) adj. Having a specified kind of hair. Often used in combination: a longhaired cat; a shorthaired dog.

hair follicle (hâr föl'i-kəl) n. A tubular infolding of the epidermis containing the root of a hair.

hair-less (hâr'līs) adj. Having little or no hair. — hair'less-ness n.

hair-line (hâr'līn') n. 1. The outline of the growth of hair on the head, especially across the front. 2. A very slender line. 3. Printing. a. A very fine line on a typeface. b. A style of type using such lines. 4. a. A textile design having thin, threadlike stripes. b. A fabric, usually a worsted, with such stripes.

hair-piece (hâr'pēs') n. A covering or bunch of human or artificial hair used to conceal baldness or give shape to a coiffure.

hair-pin (hâr'pīn') n. 1. A thin, cylindrical strip of metal or other material bent in the shape of a long U, used by women to secure a hairdo or headdress.

2. Something shaped like a hairpin, especially a sharp turn in a road.

hair-rais-er (hâr'rā'zər) n. Informal. One that causes wild excitement, terror, or thrills.

hair-rais-ing (hâr'rā'zing) adj. Causing excitement, terror, or thrills.

hairs-breadth or hair's-breadth (hârz'brëdth') also hair-breadth (hâr/-) n. A small space, distance, or margin: won by a hairsbreadth.

hair seal (hâr sël) n. Any of various seals of the family Phocidae, having a stiff, hairlike coat in the adult and ears visible only as small indentations.

hair shirt (hâr shûrt) n. A coarse haircloth garment worn next to the skin by religious ascetics as penance.

hair space (hâr spās) n. Printing. The narrowest of the metal spaces used for separating words or letters.

hair-split-ting (hâr'split'ing) n. The making of unreasonably fine distinctions. —hair-split'ter n. —hair-split'ting adj.

hair spray also hair-spray (hâr'sprā') n. A commercial product sprayed on the hair to keep it in place.

hair-spring (hâr'sprīng') n. A fine coiled spring that regulates the movement of the balance wheel in a watch or clock.

hair-streak (hâr'strēk') n. Any of numerous butterflies of the subfamily Theclinae, having transverse streaks on the undersurface of the wings and fine, hairlike projections on the hind wings.

hair stroke (hâr strōk) n. A very fine line in writing or printing.

hair-style (hâr'stīl') n. The design of a coiffure. —hair'styl'ing n. —hair'styl'ist n.

hair trigger (hâr trīg'ər) n. A gun trigger adjusted to respond to a very slight pressure.

hair-trig-ger (hâr'trīg'ər) adj. Responding to the slightest provocation or stimulation: a hair-trigger temper; a hair-trigger reaction.

hair-weav-ing (hâr'wē'ving) n. The process of interweaving a hairpiece of human hair with the wearer's own hair. —hair'weave' v. —hair'weav'er n.

hair-worm (hâr'wûrm') n. 1. Any of various slender, parasitic nematode worms of the genus Trichostrongylus, which infest the stomach and small intestine of cattle, sheep, and related animals. 2. See horsehair worm.

hair-y (hâr'ē) adj. hair-i-er, hair-i-est. 1. Covered with hair or hairlike projections: a hairy caterpillar. 2. Consisting of or resembling hair: a hairy overcoat.

3. Slang. Fraught with difficulties; hazardous: a hairy escape; hairy problems. —hair'i-ness n.

Hai-ti (hā'tē) 1. A country of the West Indies comprising the western part of the island of Hispaniola and two offshore islands. A French colony after 1697, the country became independent in 1804 following a slave revolt led by Toussaint L'Ouverture. In the 20th century the country's history has been marked by the regimes of François ("Papa Doc") Duvalier, who ruled from 1957 to 1971, and his son Jean-Claude ("Baby Doc"), who was ousted in 1986. Port-au-Prince is the capital and largest city. Population, 5,053,791. 2. See Hispaniola.

Hai-tian (hā'shən, -tē-ən) adj. Of or relating to Haiti or its people or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Haiti. 2. Haitian Creole.

Haitian Creole (hā'shən krē'ōl') n. A language spoken by the majority of Haitians, based on French and various African languages.

haj or hajj also hadj (häj) n. pl. haj-es or hajj-es also hadj-es. Islam. A pilgrimage to Mecca during Dhu'l Hijja, made as an objective of the religious life of a Muslim. [Arabic hajj, from hajja, to go on a pilgrimage.]

haj·i or haj·ji also hadj·i (häj'ē) n. pl. haj-is or haj·jis also hadj-is. Islam.

1. One who has made a pilgrimage to Mecca. 2. Often used as a form of address for one who has made such a pilgrimage. [Arabic hājī, from hajj, pilgrimage. See HAJ.]

ha·ka (hä'kä) n. A Maori war dance accompanied by chanting. [Maori.]

hake (hāk) n. pl. hake or hakes. Any of various marine food fishes of the genera Merluccius and Urophycis, related to and resembling the cod. [Middle English, possibly from Old English haca, hook (from the shape of its lower jaw). See keg- in Appendix.]

ha·keem (hä'kēm) n. Variant of hakim¹.

Ha·ken·kreuz (hä'kən-kroits') n. A swastika. [German : Haken, hook (from Middle High German hāken); see HAČEK + Kreuz, cross (from Middle High German kriuze); see KREUZER.]

ha·kim¹ also ha·keem (hä'kēm) n. pl. ha·kims also ha·keems. A Muslim physician. [Arabic ḥakīm, wise, wise man, from ḥakama, to be judicious, exercise authority.]

ha·kim² (hä'kīm) n. pl. ha·kims. A Muslim ruler, provincial governor, or judge. [Arabic ḥākīm, from ḥakama, to exercise authority.]

Hak·luyt (häk'lōot'), Richard. 1552?-1616. English geographer who collected accounts of English exploratory voyages and published them in Principal Navigations, Voyages, and Discoveries of the English Nation (1589).

Ha·ko·da·te (hä'kô-dä'të) A city of southwest Hokkaido, Japan, on Tsugaru Strait. Its excellent harbor was first opened to foreign traders in 1854. Population, 319,190.

ha·ku (hä'kōo) n. Hawaii. A crown made of fresh flowers. [Hawaiian, from haku, to put in order, make a wreath.]

hal- pref. Variant of halo-.

Ha·la·kah also Ha·la·cha (hä'lä-KHä', hä-lä'KHə, -lô'-) n. Judaism. The legal part of Talmudic literature, an interpretation of the laws of the Scriptures.

[Mishnaic Hebrew halākā, rule, tradition, from hālak, to go.] — Ha·lak'ic (hä-läk'ik, -lä'KHik) adj.

ha·lal (hä-läl') Islam. n. Meat that has been slaughtered in the manner prescribed by the shari'a. — adj. 1. Of or being meat slaughtered in the prescribed way: *a halal butcher; a halal label. 2. In accordance with or permitted under the shari'a. [Arabic ḥalāl, that which is lawful.]*

ha·la·la (hä-lä'lə) n. pl. halala or ha·la·las. A coin of Saudi Arabia worth 100 of a riyal. [Arabic halalah.]

Hal-as (hăl'əs), George Stanley. 1895-1983. American professional football player (1922-1929) and coach (intermittently between 1922 and 1967) who revolutionized the sport with his innovative backfield formations.

hal-a-tion (hā-lā'shən) n. 1. A blurring or spreading of light around bright areas on a photographic image. 2. An area of glow around a bright object on a television screen. [HAL(O) + -ATION.]

ha-la-vah (hă'lə-vă') n. Variant of halvah.

hal-berd (hăl'bərd, hōl'-) also hal-bert (-bərt) n. A weapon of the 15th and 16th centuries having an axlike blade and a steel spike mounted on the end of a long shaft. [French hallebarde, from Old French alabarde, from Old Italian alabar-da, from Middle High German helmbarde, halmbarte : helm, handle + barte, ax (from Old High German barta); see bhardh-ā- in Appendix.] —hal'ber-dier' (-bər-dîr') n.

hal-cy-on (hăl'sē-ən) n. 1. A kingfisher, especially one of the genus Halcyon. 2. A fabled bird, identified with the kingfisher, that was supposed to have had the power to calm the wind and the waves while it nested on the sea during the winter solstice. — adj. 1. Calm and peaceful; tranquil. See Synonyms at calm.

2. Prosperous; golden: halcyon years. [Middle English alcioun, from Latin alcyōn, halcyōn, from Greek halkuōn, a mythical bird, kingfisher, alteration (influenced by hals, salt, sea, and kuōn, conceiving), of alkuōn.]

Hal-dane (hōl'dā', -dən) Family of Scottish intellectuals, including Richard Burdon Haldane (1856-1928), a philosopher and politician; his sister Elizabeth Sanderson Haldane (1862-1937), a writer and Scotland's first woman justice of the peace (1920); their brother John Scott Haldane (1860-1936), a physiologist; and his son John Burdon Sanderson Haldane (1892-1964), a geneticist.

hale¹ (hāl) adj. hal-er, hal-est. Free from infirmity or illness; sound. See Synonyms at healthy. [Middle English, from Old English hāl. See kailo- in Appendix.] —hale'ness n.

hale² (hāl) v. tr. haled, hal-ing, hales. 1. To compel to go: "In short order the human rights campaign was haled before a high court of indignation" (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). 2. Archaic. To pull, draw, drag, or hoist. [Middle English halen, to pull, drag, from Old French haler, of Germanic origin. See kelə-² in Appendix.]

Hale (hāl), Edward Everett. 1822-1909. American Unitarian cleric and writer whose more than 150 literary works include the story "The Man Without a Country" (1863). His sister Lucretia Peabody Hale (1820-1900) wrote two noted children's books, The Peterkin Papers (1880) and The Last of the Peterkins (1886).

Hale (hāl), George Ellery. 1868-1938. American astrophysicist who invented the spectroheliograph (1891) and directed the Mount Wilson Observatory (1904-1923).

Hale (hāl), Sir Matthew. 1609-1676. English jurist who promoted the Restoration, served as chief baron of the Exchequer (1660) and chief justice of the King's Bench (1671-1676), and was a noted scholar of English common law.

Hale (hāl), Nathan. 1755-1776. American Revolutionary soldier hanged by the British as a spy. According to tradition, his last words were "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Hale (hāl), Sarah Josepha Buell. 1788-1879. American writer and editor of Godey's Lady's Book (1837-1877), the most popular American women's magazine of its time. Her own works include the poem "Mary Had a Little Lamb" (1830).

Ha-le-a-ka-la Crater (hä'lē-ä'kə-lä'krā'tər) An enormous volcanic crater, 829.6 m (2,720 ft) deep, of eastern Maui, Hawaii. The mountain itself is 3,057 m (10,023 ft) high.

ha-ler (hä'lər, -lēr') n. pl. ha-lers or ha-le-ru (-lə-rōō'). A unit of currency in Czech Republic and Slovakia. See Table at currency. [Czech halěř, from Middle High German haller, an early German silver coin, after Schwäbisch Hall, a town of southwest Germany.]

Hale-thorpe (hāl'thōrp) A community of northern Maryland, a suburb of Baltimore. Population, 20,163.

Ha-lé-vy (ä-lā-vē'), (Jacques François) Fromental (Élie). 1799-1862.

French composer of operatic works, including La Juive and L'Eclair (both 1835).

Ha-lé-vy (ä-lā-vē'), Ludovic. 1834-1908. French writer whose works include novels, such as L'Abbé Constantin (1882), and lyrics for numerous operettas.

Ha-ley (hä'lē), Alex. 1921-1992. American writer best known for Roots (1976), a fictionalized chronicle tracing his family history back to its African origins.

Ha-ley (hä'lē), William John Clifton, Jr. Known as "Bill." 1925-1981. American singer who with his band, the Comets, recorded "Rock Around the Clock," "Shake, Rattle, and Roll" (both 1954), and other early and influential rock 'n' roll songs.

half (häf, häf) n. pl. halves (hävz, hävz). 1. Abbr. hf. a. One of two equal parts that together constitute a whole. b. One part approximately equal to the remaining part. 2. Informal. A 50-cent piece. 3. Sports. a. One of the two playing periods into which certain games are divided. b. A halfback. 4. Chiefly British. A school term; a semester. 5. Half an hour: a half past one. — adj. 1. Abbr. hf. a. Being one of two equal parts. b. Being approximately a half. 2. Partial or incomplete: gave me a half smile. — adv. 1. To the extent of exactly or nearly 50 percent: The tank is half empty. 2. Not completely or sufficiently; partly: only half right. — idioms. by half. 1. By a considerable extent. 2. By an excessive amount: too clever by half. by halves. In a reluctant manner; unenthusiastically. in half. Into halves. not half. Not at all: "Fancy housing? Not half likely, ma'am" (Russell Baker). not the half of. Only a fraction or a small part of. [Middle English, from Old English healf. See skel-¹ in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The phrases a half, half of, and half a or half an are all correct, though they may differ slightly in meaning. For example, a half day is used when day has the special sense “a working day,” and the phrase then means “4 hours.” Half of a day and half a day are not restricted in this way and can mean either 4 or 12 hours.

half-and-half (häf'ənd-häf', häf'ənd-häf') adj. Being half one thing and half another: a half-and-half mixture of linseed oil and turpentine. — adv. In equal portions. — n. 1. A mixture of two things in equal portions, especially a mixture of equal parts of milk and cream. 2. Chiefly British. A blend of malt liquors, especially porter and ale.

half-assed (häf'äst', häf'äst') adj. Vulgar Slang. 1. Not well planned or executed. 2. Incompetent. — half'-assed' adv.

half-back (häf'bäk', häf'-) n. Abbr. hb, hb. 1. Football. a. One of the two players positioned near the flanks behind the line of scrimmage. b. The position held by this player. 2. Sports. a. One of several players in various sports stationed behind the forward line. b. The position held by this player.

half-baked (häf'bäkt', häf'-) adj. 1. Only partly baked. 2. Informal. Insufficiently thought out; ill-conceived: a half-baked scheme. 3. Informal. Exhibiting a lack of good judgment or common sense: a half-baked visionary.

half binding (häf bīn'dīŋ) n. Printing. A bookbinding in which the back and often the corners of the volume are bound in a material differing from the rest of the cover.

half blood also half-blood (häf'blüd', häf'-) n. 1. a. The relationship existing between persons having only one parent in common. b. A person existing in such a relationship. 2. Offensive. A half-breed. 3. A half-blooded domestic animal.

half-blood-ed (häf'blüd'īd, häf'-) adj. 1. Having only one parent in common. 2. Having one parent of pedigreed stock and the other of unknown or mixed ancestry. Used of animals.

half boot (häf bōōt) n. A low boot extending just above the ankle.

half-bound (häf'bound', häf'-) adj. Printing. Having a half binding.

half-bred (häf'brēd', häf'-) adj. Having only one parent that is purebred; half-blooded. Used of animals.

half-breed (häf'brēd', häf'-) n. Offensive. A person having parents of different ethnic types. — adj. Half-blooded; hybrid. Used of animals.

half brother (häf brūth'ər) n. A brother related through one parent only.

half-caste (häf'käst', häf'käst') Offensive. n. A person of mixed racial descent. — adj. Of mixed racial descent.

half-cell (häf'säl', häf'-) n. Either of the two connected parts of an electrochemical cell, consisting of one electrode in a conductive fluid.

half cock (häf kök) n. The position of the hammer of a firearm when it is raised halfway and locked by a catch so that the trigger cannot be pulled.

half-cocked (häf'kökt', häf'-) adj. 1. Informal. Inadequately or poorly prepared: a halfcocked plan to buy out the company. 2. Being at the position of half cock. Used of a firearm. — adv. Informal. In an inadequate or poorly prepared manner: went off halfcocked and bought all the wrong items.

half-crown (häf'kroun', häf'-) n. A coin formerly used in Great Britain, worth two shillings and sixpence.

half-dol-lar (häf'döl'ər, häf'-) n. A U.S. silver coin worth 50 cents.

half gainer (häf gā'nər) n. Sports. A dive in which the diver springs from the board facing forward, rotates backward in the air in a half backward somersault, and enters the water headfirst, facing the board.

half-hearted (häf'här'tid, häf'-) adj. Exhibiting or feeling little interest, enthusiasm, or heart; uninspired: a halfhearted attempt at writing a novel. — half'heart'ed-ly adv. — half'heart'ed-ness n.

half hitch (häf hich) n. A knot or hitch made by looping a rope or strap around an object and then back around itself, bringing the end of the rope through the loop.

half-hour (häf'our', häf'-) n. 1. A period of 30 minutes. 2. The middle point of an hour: The clock chimes on the half-hour. — half'-hour'ly adv. & adj.

half-in-te-gral (häf'in'ti-grəl, häf'-) adj. Mathematics. Having an integer as a numerator and 2 as a denominator. Used of a fraction.

half-length (häf'længkth', -længth', häf'-) n. A portrait that shows only the upper half and hands of a person. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a half-length portrait. 2. Of half the full length.

half-life (häf'lif', häf'-) n. 1. Physics. The time required for half the nuclei in a sample of a specific isotopic species to undergo radioactive decay. 2. Biology.

a. The time required for half the quantity of a drug or other substance deposited in a living organism to be metabolized or eliminated by normal biological processes. Also called biological half-life b. The time required for the radioactivity of material taken in by a living organism to be reduced to half its initial value by a combination of biological elimination processes and radioactive decay.

half-light (häf'līt', häf'-) n. The soft, subdued light seen at dusk or dawn or in dimly lit interiors.

half-line or half line (häf'līn', häf'-) n. Mathematics. See ray¹ (n., sense 4).

half-mast (häf'mäst', häf'mäst') n. The position about halfway up a mast or pole at which a flag is flown as a symbol of mourning for the dead or as a signal of distress. Also called half-staff — v. tr. half--mast-ed, half--mast-ing, half--masts. To place (a flag) halfway up a mast or pole.

half-moon (häf'mōon', häf'-) n. 1. The moon when only half its disk is illuminated. 2. Something, such as the lunula of a fingernail, that is shaped like a crescent.

half nelson (häf nəl'sən) n. Sports. A wrestling hold in which one arm is passed under the opponent's arm from behind to the back of the neck.

half note (häf nōt) n. Music. A note having one half the value of a whole note.

half-pen-ny (hä'pə-nē, häp'nē) n. pl. half-pence (hä'pəns) or half-pen-nies. 1. a. A British coin worth one half of a new penny. b. A British coin worth one half of an old penny, no longer in circulation. 2. The sum of one half of a penny.

half-pint (häf'pīnt', häf'-) n. Slang. A small person or animal.

half relief (häf rī-lēf') n. Sculptural relief composed of modeled forms that project approximately halfway from the background. Also called demirelief, mezzo-relievo.

half rhyme (häf rīm) n. See off rhyme.

half sister (häf sīs'tər) n. A sister related through one parent only.

half-slip (häf'slīp', häf'-) n. A woman's slip that hangs from the waist.

half sole (häf sōl) n. A shoe sole that extends from the shank to the toe.

half-sole (häf'sōl', häf'-) v. tr. half-·soled, half-·sol-ing, half-·soles. To fit or repair with a half sole.

half-staff (häf'stäf', häf'stäf') n. See half-mast.

half step (häf stĕp) n. 1. Music. See semitone. 2. A marching step of 15 inches (38 centimeters) at quick time and 18 inches (46 centimeters) at double time.

half-tim-bered (häf'tīm'bərd, häf'-) also half-tim-ber (-bər) adj. Having a wooden framework with plaster, brick, stone, or other masonry filling the spaces.

half-time (häf'tīm', häf'-) n. Abbr. HT Sports. The intermission between halves in certain games, such as basketball or football.

half title (häf tīt'l) n. Printing. The title of a book printed at the top of the first page of the text or on a full page preceding the main title page.

half-tone (häf'tōn', häf'-) n. Abbr. HT 1. A tone or value halfway between a highlight and a dark shadow. 2. a. A picture in which the gradations of light are obtained by the relative darkness and density of tiny dots produced by photographing the subject through a fine screen. b. A picture made by such a process.

half tone (häf tōn) n. Music. See semitone.

half-track (häf'trāk', häf'-) n. A lightly armored military motor vehicle, with caterpillar treads in place of wheels.

half-truth (häf'trōōth', häf'-) n. A statement, especially one intended to deceive, that omits some of the facts necessary for a full description or account.

half volley (häf vōl'ē) n. Sports. A stroke in certain games, such as tennis, in which the ball is hit immediately after it bounces off the ground.

half-way (häf'wā', häf'-) adj. 1. Midway between two points or conditions: a half-way sign on the trail. 2. Reaching or including only half or a portion; partial: halfway measures. —half'way' adv.

halfway house (häf'wā' hous) n. 1. A rehabilitation center where people who have left an institution, such as a hospital or prison, are helped to readjust to the outside world. 2. A stopping place, such as an inn, that marks the midpoint of a journey.

half-wit (häf'wit', häf'-) n. Offensive. A person regarded as foolish or stupid. —half'-wit'ted adj. —half'-wit'ted-ly adv. —half'-wit'ted-ness n.

hal-i-but (häl'ə-bət, höl'-) n. pl. halibut or hal-i-buts. Any of several large, edible flatfishes of the genus Hippoglossus and related genera, of northern Atlantic or Pacific waters. [Middle English : hali, holi, holy (from its being eaten on holy days); see HOLY + butte, flatfish (from Middle Dutch); see bhau- in Appendix.]

Hal-i-car-nas-sus (häl'ī-kär-näs'əs) An ancient Greek city of southwest Asia Minor on the Aegean Sea in present-day Turkey. In the fourth century B.C. Queen Artemisia built a magnificent tomb here for her husband, King Mausolus. His mausoleum was considered one of the Seven Wonders of the World.

hal-ide (häl'īd', hā'līd') n. A chemical compound of a halogen with a more electropositive element or group.

hal-i-dom (häl'ī-dəm) n. Obsolete. 1. Something considered holy. 2. A sanctuary. [Middle English, from Old English hāligdōm : hālig, holy; see HOLY + -dōm, -dom.]

ha-li-er (hä'lē-yər, häl'-yər, häl'-yər) n. pl. halier. A unit of currency in Slovakia. See Table at currency.

Hal-i-fax (häl'ə-fäks') 1. The capital and largest city of Nova Scotia, Canada, in the south-central part of the province on the Atlantic Ocean. Founded in 1749, it served as an important naval base in the American Revolution, the War of 1812, and both World Wars. Population, 114,594. 2. A borough of northeast England northeast of Manchester. It is an industrial center. Population, 192,500.

Hal-i-fax (häl'ə-fäks'), First Earl of Title of Edward Frederick Lindley Wood. 1881-1959. British public official who was viceroy of India (1926-1931) and foreign secretary (1938-1940), implemented Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy of appeasement toward Nazi Germany, and served as ambassador to the United States (1941-1946).

hal-ite (häl'īt', hā'līt') n. 1. A colorless or white mineral, NaCl, occurring as cubic crystals and found in dried lakebeds in arid climates, mined or gathered for use as table salt. 2. Rock salt.

hal-i-to-sis (häl'ī-tō'sīs) n. The condition of having stale or foul-smelling breath. [Latin hālitus, breath (; akin to hālāre, to breathe) + -osis.]

hall (hól) n. 1. A corridor or passageway in a building. 2. A large entrance room or vestibule in a building; a lobby. 3. a. A building for public gatherings or entertainments. b. The large room in which such events are held. 4. A building used for the meetings, entertainments, or living quarters of a fraternity, sorority, church, or other social or religious organization. 5. a. A building belonging to a school, college, or university that provides classroom, dormitory, or dining facilities. b. A large room in such a building. c. The group of students using such a building: The entire hall stayed up late studying. d. Chiefly British. A meal served in such a building. 6. The main house on a landed estate. 7. a. The castle or house of a medieval monarch or noble. b. The principal room in such a castle or house, used for dining, entertaining, and sleeping. [Middle English halle, large residence, from Old English heall. See kel-¹ in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The halls of academe and city hall remind us that what we commonly mean by the word hall, “a passageway, an entrance room,” represents a shrunken version of what hall once commonly designated. Going back to the Indo-European root kel-¹, “to cover,” the Old English word heall, ancestor of our hall, referred to “a large place covered by a roof, whether a royal residence, an official building, or a large private residence, or a large room in a residence where the public life of the household is carried on.” These senses and related ones are still in use, as is attested by town hall and halls of academe. Our common use of the term hall for a vestibule or a corridor harks back to medieval times when the hall was the main public room of a residence and people lived much less privately than now. As private rooms in houses took on the importance they have today, the hall lost its function. Hall also had come to mean any large room, and the vestibule was at one time one of the main sitting rooms in a house, but this sort of room has largely disappeared also, and hall has become the designation for the small vestibule of today as well as for an entrance passage or any passageway.

Hall (hól), Asaph. 1829-1907. American astronomer who discovered and named the two satellites of Mars, Deimos and Phobos (1877).

Hall (hól), Charles Francis. 1821-1871. American explorer who led three expeditions to the Arctic (1860-1862, 1864-1869, and 1871).

Hall (hól), Charles Martin. 1863-1914. American chemist who developed an electrolytic method of economically producing aluminum from bauxite (1886) and was a founder of the Aluminum Company of America (1888).

Hall (hól), Granville Stanley. 1844-1924. American psychologist who established an experimental psychology laboratory at Johns Hopkins University (1882), founded child psychology, and profoundly influenced educational psychology.

Hall (hól), (Marguerite) Radclyffe. 1886-1943. British writer whose novel The Well of Loneliness (1928) was originally banned as obscene in London and the United States.

hal·lah (KHä'lə, hä'-') n. Variant of challah.

Hal·lam (hāl'əm), Henry. 1777-1859. British historian whose accurate but uncolorful works include Europe During the Middle Ages (1818). The death of his son Arthur Henry Hallam (1811-1833) inspired Tennyson's poem In Memoriam.

Hal·lan·dale (hāl'ən-dāl') A city of southeast Florida on the Atlantic Ocean south of Fort Lauderdale. It is a processing center for fruits and vegetables. Population, 30,996.

Hal·le (hä'lə) A city of central Germany on the Saale River west-northwest of Leipzig. First mentioned in the ninth century, it was an important member of the Hanseatic League in the Middle Ages. Population, 236,139.

Hal·leck (hāl'ik, -ək), Fitz-Greene. 1790-1867. American poet whose Byronic works include Fanny (1819) and "Marcos Bozzaris" (1825).

Hal·leck (hāl'ik, -ək), Henry Wager. 1815-1872. American Union general who served as general in chief (1862-1864) but was replaced by Gen. Ulysses S. Grant.

Hall effect (hól ĭ-fěkt') n. Generation of an electric potential perpendicular to both an electric current flowing along a conducting material and an external magnetic field applied at right angles to the current upon application of the magnetic field. [After Edwin Herbert Hall (1855-1938), American physicist.]

hal·lel (hä-läl', hä'läl') n. Judaism. A chant of praise consisting of Psalms 113 through 118, used during Passover and on certain other holidays. [Hebrew hallel, song of praise, from hillēl, to praise.]

hal·le·lu·jah (hāl'ə-lōō'yə) interj. Used to express praise or joy. — n. 1. An exclamation of "hallelujah." 2. Music. A composition expressing praise and based on the word "hallelujah." [Hebrew hallēlûyāh, praise the Lord : hallēlu, pl. imperative of hillēl, to praise + Yāh, God (short for Yahweh).]

Hal·le-Neu·stadt (hä'lə-noi'shtät) A city of central Germany, a suburb of Halle. Population, 91,510.

Hal·ley (hāl'ē), Edmund or Edmond. 1656-1742. English astronomer who applied Newton's laws of motion to predict correctly the period of a comet (1705).

Hal·ley's comet (hāl'ēz kōm'it, hāl'lēz) n. A comet with a period of approximately 76 years, the first one for which a return was successfully predicted. It last appeared in 1986. [After Edmund HALLEY.]

hal·liard (hāl'yərd) n. Nautical. Variant of halyard.

hall·mark (hól'märk') n. 1. A mark indicating quality or excellence. 2. A mark used in England to stamp gold and silver articles that meet established standards of purity. 3. A conspicuous feature or characteristic: “The sense of guilt is the hallmark of civilized humanity” (Theodor Reik). — v. tr. hall-marked, hall-mark-ing, hall-marks. To stamp (gold and silver articles) with a mark indicating purity. [After Goldsmith’s Hall in London, England, where gold and silver articles were appraised and stamped.]

hal·loa (hə-lōʹ) interj., n. & v. Variant of halloo.

hall of fame (hōl ʉv fām) n. pl. halls of fame. 1. A group of persons judged outstanding, as in a sport or profession. 2. A building housing memorial items honoring illustrious persons.

hal·loo (hə-lōʹ) also hal·loa (-lōʹ) interj. 1. Used to catch someone’s attention. 2. Used to urge on hounds in a hunt. — n. pl. hal·loos also hal·loas. A shout or call of “halloo.” — v. hal·loosed also hal·loaed, hal·loo-ing also hal·loa-ing, hal·loos also hal·loas. — v. intr. To shout “halloo.” — v. tr.

1. To urge on or pursue by calling “halloo” or shouting. 2. To call out to. 3. To shout or yell (something). [Alteration of obsolete holla, stop!. See HELLO.]

hal·low (hālʹō) v. tr. hal·lowed, hal·low-ing, hal·lows. 1. To make or set apart as holy. 2. To respect or honor greatly; revere. [Middle English halwen, from Old English hālgian. See kailo- in Appendix.]

hal·lowed (hālʹōd) adj. 1. Sanctified; consecrated: a hallowed cemetery. 2. Highly venerated; sacrosanct: our hallowed war heroes.

Hal·low·een also Hal·low·e·en (hālʹə-wēnʹ, hōlʹ-) n. October 31, celebrated in the United States, Canada, and the British Isles by children going door to door while wearing costumes and begging treats and playing pranks. [Short for All Hallow Even : ALLHALLOW(MAS) + EVEN².]

Hal·low·mas also Hal·low·mass (hālʹō-məs, -mäsʹ) n. Archaic. All Saints’ Day. [Short for ALLHALLOWMAS.]

Hall·statt (hōlʹstātʹ, hālʹshtātʹ) adj. Of or relating to a dominant Iron Age culture of central and western Europe, probably chiefly Celtic, that flourished from the ninth to the fifth century B.C. [After the type-site at Hallstatt, a village of northern Austria.]

hal·lu·ces (hālʹyə-sēzʹ, hālʹə-) n. Plural of hallux.

hal·lu·ci·nate (hə-lōʹsə-nātʹ) v. hal·lu·ci·nat-ed, hal·lu·ci·nat-ing, hal·lu·ci·nates. — v. intr. To undergo hallucination. — v. tr. To cause to have hallucinations. [Latin hallūcinārī, hallūcināt-, to dream, be deceived, variant of ālūcinārī.] — hal·luʹci·naʹtor n.

hal·lu·ci·na·tion (hə-lōʹsə-nāʹshən) n. 1. a. False or distorted perception of objects or events with a compelling sense of their reality, usually resulting from a mental disorder or as a response to a drug. b. The objects or events so perceived. 2. A false or mistaken idea; a delusion. — hal·luʹci·naʹtion·al, hal·luʹci·naʹtive adj.

hal·lu·ci·na·to·ry (hə-lōō'sə-nə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. 1. Of or characterized by hallucination. 2. Inducing hallucination.

hal·lu·cin·o·gen (hə-lōō'sə-nə-jən) n. A substance that induces hallucination. [HALLUCIN(ATION) + -GEN.] —hal·lu'cin·o·gen'ic (-jĕn'ik) adj.

hal·lu·ci·no·sis (hə-lōō'sə-nō'sis) n. An abnormal condition or mental state characterized by hallucination. [HALLUCIN(ATION) + -OSIS.]

hal·lux (hāl'əks) n. pl. hal·lu·ces (hāl'yə-sēz', hāl'ə-). 1. The innermost or first digit on the hind foot of certain mammals. In human beings, it is commonly called the big toe. 2. A homologous digit of a bird, a reptile, or an amphibian. In birds, it is often directed backward. [Latin hallux, hallus.] hall·way (hōl'wā') n. 1. A corridor in a building. 2. An entrance hall.

halm (hôm) n. Variant of haulm.

Hal·ma·he·ra (hāl'mə-hĕr'ə, hāl'mä-hĕ'rä) An island of eastern Indonesia between New Guinea and Sulawesi. Irregular in shape, it is the largest of the Moluccas. Japanese installations on the island were a frequent target for Allied bombing raids in 1944.

ha·lo (hā'lō) n. pl. ha·los or ha·loes. 1. a. A circular band of colored light around a light source, as around the sun or moon, caused by the refraction and reflection of light by ice particles suspended in the intervening atmosphere. b. Something resembling this band. 2. A luminous ring or disk of light surrounding the heads or bodies of sacred figures, such as saints, in religious paintings; a nimbus. 3. The aura of majesty or glory surrounding a person, a thing, or an event that is regarded with reverence, awe, or sentiment. — v. tr. ha·loed, ha·lo·ing, ha·loes. To encircle with or as if with a halo. [Medieval Latin halō, from accusative of Latin halōs, from Greek, threshing floor, disk of or around the sun or moon.]

halo- or hal- pref. 1. Salt: halophyte. 2. Halogen: halocarbon. [French, from Greek, from hals, hal-, salt, sea. See sal- in Appendix.]

hal·o·bi·ont (hāl'ō-bī'önt) n. An organism that lives or grows in a salty environment.

hal·o·car·bon (hāl'ə-kär'bən) n. A compound, such as a fluorocarbon, that consists of carbon and one or more halogens.

hal·o·cline (hāl'ə-klīn') n. A vertical gradient in ocean salinity.

hal·o·gen (hāl'ə-jən) n. Any of a group of five chemically related nonmetallic elements including fluorine, chlorine, bromine, iodine, and astatine. [Swedish : halo-, halo- + -gen, -gen.] —ha·log'e·nous (hä-lōj'ə-nəs) adj.

hal·o·ge·nate (hāl'ə-jə-nāt') v. tr. hal·o·ge·nat·ed, hal·o·ge·nat·ing, hal·o·ge·nates. To treat or combine with a halogen. —hal'·o·ge·na'tion n.

ha·lon (hā'lōn) n. Any of several halocarbons used as fire-extinguishing agents.

hal·o·per·i·dol (hăl'ō-pĕr'ī-dôl', -dôl', -dôl') n. A tranquilizer, C₂₁H₂₃ClFNO₂, used especially in the treatment of psychotic disorders, including schizophrenia. [HALO- + (PI)PERID(INE) + -OL¹.]

hal·o·phile (hăl'ə-fīl') n. An organism that requires a salty environment.

—hal'·o·phil'ic (-fīl'ik), ha·loph'i·lous (hä-löf'ə-ləs) adj.

hal·o·phyte (hăl'ə-fīt') n. A plant that grows in saline soil. —hal'·o·phyt'ic (-fīt'ik) adj.

hal·o·thane (hăl'ə-thān') n. A colorless, nonflammable liquid, C₂HBrClF₃, used as an inhalational anesthetic. [HALO- + (E)THANE.]

Hals (hälz, häls), Frans. 1580?-1666. Dutch painter of genre scenes and portraits, such as The Laughing Cavalier (1624).

Hal-sey (hôl'zē), William Frederick. Known as "Bull." 1882-1959. American naval officer who during World War II led American naval forces to several important victories, including the Battle of Leyte Gulf (1944). On September 2, 1945, the Japanese formally surrendered aboard his flagship, the U.S.S. Missouri.

Häl-sing·borg or Hel-sing·borg (hĕl'sīng-bôrg', hĕl'sīng-bôr'ē) A city of southwest Sweden on the Oresund opposite Sjaelland. It belonged to Denmark until the mid-1600's. Population, 104,689.

Hal-sted (hôl'stəd, -stĕd'), William Stewart. 1852-1922. American surgeon who developed the use of cocaine in anesthesiology and proposed the use of rubber gloves during surgery.

halt¹ (hôlt) n. A suspension of movement or progress, especially a temporary one. — v. halt-ed, halt-ing, halts. — v. tr. To cause to stop; arrest. — v. intr. To stop; pause. See Synonyms at stop. [German, from Middle High German, from imperative of halten, to stop, hold back, from Old High German haltan.]

halt² (hôlt) v. intr. halt-ed, halt-ing, halts. 1. To proceed or act with uncertainty or indecision; waver. 2. To be defective or proceed poorly, as in the development of an argument in logic or in the rhythmic structure of verse. 3. To limp or hobble. — adj. Archaic. Lame; crippled. [Middle English halten, to limp, from Old English healtian.]

Hal-tem·price (hôi'təm-prīs') An urban district of east-central England near Hull. It was named for an Augustinian canonry founded in the district in 1322. Population, 53,633.

hal-ter¹ (hôi'tər) n. 1. A device made of rope or leather straps that fits around the head or neck of an animal and is used to lead or secure the animal. 2. a. A rope with a noose used for execution by hanging. b. Death or execution by hanging. 3. A bodice for women that ties behind the neck and across the back, leaving the arms, shoulders, and back bare. — v. tr. hal-tered, hal-ter-ing, hal-ters. 1. To put a halter on. 2. To control with or as if with a halter. 3. To hang (someone). [Middle English, from Old English hælftrē.]

hal·ter² (hōl'tər, hāl' -) n. pl. hal-ter-es (-tîr'ēz). Either of the small, clublike balancing organs that are the rudimentary hind wings of flies and other dipterous insects. Also called balancer [Latin haltēr, lead weights used in leaping exercises, from sing. of Greek haltēres, from hallesthai, to jump. See sel- in Appendix.]

hal-ter-top (hōl'tər-töp') n. A woman's halter. — adj. Designed so as to include such a halter: halter-top dresses.

halt-ing (hōl'tĩng) adj. 1. Hesitant or wavering: a halting voice. 2. Imperfect; defective: halting verse. 3. Limping; lame. — halt'ing·ly adv.

Hal-tom City (hōl'təm sīt'ē) A city of northeast Texas, a suburb of Fort Worth. Population, 32,856.

Hal-ton Hills (hōl'tən hĩlz) A town of southeast Ontario, Canada, a suburb of Toronto. Population, 35,190.

hal·vah or hal·va (hāl-vä', hāl'vä) also ha·la·vah (hā'lə-vä') n. A confection consisting of crushed sesame seeds in a binder of honey. [From Turkish helva, from Arabic ḥalwā.]

halve (häv, häv) v. tr. halved, halv-ing, halves. 1. To divide (something) into two equal portions or parts. 2. To lessen or reduce by half: halved the recipe to serve two. 3. Informal. To share (something) equally: The twins halve everything. 4. Sports. To play (a golf game or hole) using the same number of strokes as one's opponent. [Middle English halven, from half, half. See HALF.]

halves (hävz, hävz) n. Plural of half.

hal-yard also hal-liard (hāl'yərd) n. Nautical. A rope used to raise or lower a sail, flag, or yard. [Alteration (influenced by YARD¹), of Middle English halier, from halen, to pull. See HALE².]

ham (häm) n. 1. The thigh of the hind leg of certain animals, especially a hog. 2. A cut of meat from the thigh of a hog. 3. The back of the knee. 4. The back of the thigh. 5. hams. The buttocks. 6. An actor who overacts or a performer who exaggerates. 7. A licensed amateur radio operator. — v. hammed, ham-ming, hams. — v. intr. To overact. — v. tr. To exaggerate or overdo (a dramatic role, for example). [Middle English hamme, from Old English hamm. N., senses 6 and 7, possibly from ham-fatter, a poor or amateurish actor.]

Ham (häm) In the Old Testament, a son of Noah and the brother of Japheth and Shem.

Ha·ma or Ha-mah (hä'mä) A city of western Syria south-southwest of Aleppo. Settled probably in the Bronze Age, it was a Hittite center in the second millennium B.C. and is frequently mentioned in the Bible as Hamath. Population, 177,208.

Ham·a·dan (häm'ə-dän', -dän') A city of western Iran west-southwest of Tehran. An ancient city, it was captured by Alexander the Great in 330 B.C. and later ruled by Seleucid kings, Romans, Byzantines, and Arabs (after A.D. 645). Population, 234,000.

ham·a·dry·ad (häm'ə-drī'əd) n. pl. ham·a·dry·ads or ham·a·dry·a·des (-ə-dēz'). 1. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. A wood nymph who lives only as long as the tree of which she is the spirit lives. 2. See king cobra. [Middle English amadriad, from Latin Hamadryas, Hamadryad-, from Greek Hamadruas: hama, together with; see sem-¹ in Appendix + Druas, dryad (from drus, oak); see deru- in Appendix.]

ham·a·dry·as (häm'ə-drī'əs) n. A baboon (Papio hamadryas) of northern Africa and Arabia, the adult male of which has a heavy mane. Also called sacred baboon [Latin, hamadryad. See HAMADRYAD.]

Ha·mah (hä'mä) See Hama.

ha·mal also ham·mal (hä-mäl') n. A porter or bearer in certain Muslim countries. [Arabic ḥammāl, from ḥamala, to carry.]

Ha·ma·ma·tsu (hä'mə-mät'sō) A city of southern Honshu, Japan, east-southeast of Nagoya. It is an industrial center. Population, 514,118.

Ha·man (hä'mən) In the Old Testament, a Persian minister who was hanged for plotting the destruction of the Jews.

ha·mar·ti·a (hä'mär-tē'ə) n. Tragic flaw. [Greek, from hamartanein, to miss the mark, err.]

ha·mate (hä'mät') Anatomy. adj. Hooked at the tip. — n. A small, hook-shaped carpal bone of the wrist. Also called unciform [Latin hāmātus, from hāmus, hook.]

Ham·burg (häm'bûrg', häm'boörg', -boörk') A city of northern Germany on the Elbe River northeast of Bremen. Founded by Charlemagne as a defensive citadel in the early ninth century, the city quickly grew in commercial importance and in 1241 formed an alliance with Lübeck that became the basis for the Hanseatic League. Today Hamburg is a major port and financial, industrial, and cultural center. Population, 1,592,447.

ham·burg·er (häm'bûr'gər) also ham·burg (-bûrg') n. 1. a. Ground meat, usually beef. b. A patty of such meat. 2. A sandwich made with a patty of ground meat usually in a roll or bun. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: hamburger patties; hamburger restaurants. [Short for Hamburger steak, after Hamburg.]

WORD HISTORY: After having eaten countless hamburgers, one may perhaps be interested in knowing more about the origins of the name. By the middle of the 19th century people in Hamburg, Germany, the busiest port in West Germany today, enjoyed pounded beefsteak in some form. Perhaps brought to America by the large numbers of Germans who migrated around that time, this sort of dish with the name Hamburg steak may have appeared on a menu as early as 1836. The first recorded use of Hamburg steak is found in 1884 in the Boston Journal, with hamburger steak being first recorded in a Walla Walla, Washington, newspaper in 1889. A 1902 cookbook contains a recipe for Hamburg steak that is closer to our conception, a recipe using ground beef mixed with onion and pepper. The hamburger was on its way, as was the Americanism hamburger.

Ham-den (häm'dən) A town of southern Connecticut, a residential and manufacturing suburb of New Haven. Population, 52,434.

hame (hām) n. One of the two curved wooden or metal pieces of a harness that fits around the neck of a draft animal and to which the traces are attached. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch. See tkei- in Appendix.]

Ha-meln (hä'məl'n) also Ham-e-lin (häm'ə-lin, häm'līn) A city of northern Germany on the Weser River southwest of Hanover. An ancient Saxon settlement, it is a manufacturing and tourist center famous as the setting for the legend of the Pied Piper of Hamelin. Population, 55,992.

ham-fist-ed (häm'fis'tīd) adj. Ham-handed.

ham-hand-ed (häm'hän'dīd) adj. 1. Clumsy; maladroit; heavy-handed. 2. Having unusually large hands.

Ha-mil-car Bar-ca (hə-mīl'kär'bär'kə, häm'əl-), 270?-228? B.C. Carthaginian general and father of Hannibal. He led Carthaginian forces during the final years of the First Punic War (264-241). After making peace with the Romans, he returned to Carthage and quelled a rebellion of mercenary troops.

Ham-il-ton (häm'əl-tən) 1. The capital of Bermuda, on Bermuda Island. Founded in 1790, it is an important tourist resort. Population, 1,676. 2. A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, at the western end of Lake Ontario southwest of Toronto. It is an industrial center and a thriving port. Population, 306,434. 3. A burgh of south-central Scotland southeast of Glasgow in a coal and iron region. Population, 51,900. 4. A city of southwest Ohio north of Cincinnati. It was settled on the site of Fort Hamilton, built in 1791. Population, 61,368.

Ham-il-ton (häm'əl-tən), Alexander. 1755?-1804. American politician. The first U.S. secretary of the treasury (1789-1795), he established the national bank and public credit system. Hamilton was mortally wounded in a duel with his political rival Aaron Burr. —Ham'il-to'ni-an (-tō'nē-ən) adj. & n.

Ham-il-ton (häm'əl-tən), Alice. 1869-1970. American toxicologist and physician known for her research on occupational poisons and her book Industrial Poisons in the United States (1925).

Ham-il-ton (häm'əl-tən), Edith. 1867-1963. German-born American classicist noted for her engaging studies of ancient life, particularly The Greek Way (1930).

Ham-il-ton (häm'əl-tən), Lady Emma Lyon. 1765?-1815. British socialite. She became Horatio Nelson's lover in 1798 and had a daughter with him in 1801.

Ham-il-ton (häm'əl-tən), Mount. A peak, 1,285 m (4,213 ft) high, of western California east of San Jose. It is the site of Lick Observatory, built in 1876 to 1888 and directed by the University of California.

Ham-il-to-ni-an (hăm'əl-tō'nē-ən) n. Abbr. H Physics. A mathematical function that can be used systematically and with great generality to generate the equations of motion of a dynamic system, equal for many such systems to the sum of the kinetic and potential energies of the system expressed in terms of the system's coordinates and momenta treated as independent variables. [After Sir William Rowan Hamilton (1805-1865), Irish mathematician.]

Ham-il-ton Inlet (hăm'əl-tən ɪn'lēt') A deep inlet of the northern Atlantic Ocean in southeast Labrador connecting with Lake Melville. It was first explored in 1586.

Ham-ite (hăm'īt') n. A member of a group of peoples of northern and north-east Africa, including the Berbers, Tuareg, and the ancient Egyptians and their descendants. [After HAM.]

Ha-mit-ic (hă-mīt'ik) adj. Of or relating to the Hamites or their languages or cultures. — n. A presumed language family formerly thought to include Egyptian and the Berber, Cushitic, and Chadic languages.

Ham-i-to-Se-mit-ic (hăm'ɪ-tō-sə-mīt'ik) n. Afro-Asiatic. No longer in technical use. [HAMIT(IC) + SEMITIC.]

ham-let (hăm'līt) n. A small village. [Middle English hamelet, from Old French, diminutive of hamel diminutive of ham, village, of Germanic origin. See tkei- in Appendix.]

Ham-lin (hăm'lən), Hannibal. 1809-1891. Vice President of the United States (1861-1865) under Abraham Lincoln.

Hamm (hăm, hām) A city of west-central Germany in the Ruhr district south-southeast of Münster. Founded c. 1226, it was an active member of the Hanseatic League after 1417. Population, 166,641.

ham-mal (hə-mäl') n. Variant of hamal.

Ham-mar-skjöld (hă'mər-shöld', -shöld, hăm'ər-, hă'mär-shöld'), Dag Hjalmar Agné Carl. 1905-1961. Swedish political leader and secretary-general of the United Nations (1953-1961) who greatly increased the influence of the organization through his peacekeeping efforts in Suez, Lebanon, and the Congo. He won the 1961 Nobel Peace Prize posthumously.

ham-mer (hăm'ər) n. 1. A hand tool used to exert an impulsive force by striking, consisting of a handle with a perpendicularly attached head made of a relatively heavy, rigid material. 2. A tool or device similar in function or action to this striking tool, as: a. The part of a gunlock that hits the primer or firing pin or explodes the percussion cap and causes the gun to fire. b. Music. One of the padded wooden pieces of a piano that strikes the strings. c. A part of an apparatus that strikes a gong or bell, as in a clock. 3. Anatomy. See malleus. 4. Sports. A metal ball weighing 16 pounds (7.2 kilograms) and having a long wire or wooden handle by which it is thrown for distance in track-and-field competition. 5. A small mallet used by auctioneers. — v. ham-mered, ham-mer-ing, ham-mers. — v. tr. 1. To hit, especially repeatedly, with or as if with a hammer; pound. See Synonyms at beat. 2. To beat into a shape with or as if with a hammer: hammered out the dents in the fender; hammered out a contract acceptable to both sides. 3. To put together, fasten, or seal, particularly with nails, by hammering. 4. To force upon by constant repetition: hammered the information into the students' heads. — v. intr. 1. To deal repeated blows with or as if with a hammer; pummel: “Wind hammered at us violently in gusts” (Thor Heyerdahl). 2. To undergo beating in the manner of a hammer: My pulse hammered. 3. Informal. To keep at something continuously: hammered away at the problem. — idiom. go under the hammer (or come under the hammer). To be put up for auction. [Middle English hamer, from Old English hamor. See ak- in Appendix.] — ham/mer-er n.

hammer and sickle (häm'ər ənd sīk'əl) n. An emblem of the Communist movement signifying the alliance of workers and peasants.

hammer and tongs (häm'ər ənd tōngz) adv. With tremendous energy or effort; vigorously: worked hammer and tongs to meet the deadline.

ham-mered (häm'ərd) adj. Shaped or worked with a metalworker's hammer and often showing the marks of these tools: a bowl of hammered brass.

Ham-mer-fest (häm'ər-fĕst', hä'mər-) A town of northern Norway on an island in the Arctic Ocean. It is the northernmost town of Europe, with uninterrupted daylight from May 17 to July 29. Population, 7,208.

ham-mer-head (häm'ər-hĕd') n. 1. The head of a hammer. 2. Any of several large predatory sharks of the genus Sphyrna, having the sides of the head elongated into large, fleshy extensions with the eyes at the ends. 3. A wading bird (Scopus umbretta) of Africa and southwest Asia, having brown plumage, a large bladelike bill, and a long, backward-pointing crest. Also called hammerkop, umbrette. 4. An African fruit bat (Hypsignathus monstrosus), the male of which has a distinctive, enlarged head.

ham-mer-kop (häm'ər-köp') n. See hammerhead (n., sense 3). [Partial translation of Afrikaans hamerkop: hamer, hammer + kop, head (from Middle Dutch, probably from Late Latin cuppa, drinking vessel, cup).]

ham-mer-lock (häm'ər-lök') n. 1. Sports. A wrestling hold in which the opponent's arm is pulled behind the back and twisted upward. 2. Overwhelming dominance that is difficult if not impossible to overcome: “has preserved its hammerlock on the business largely because of its reputation for quality” (Fortune).

Ham-mer-stein (häm'ər-stĭn', -stĕn'), Oscar. 1846?-1919. German-born American operatic manager who founded opera houses in Harlem (1888) and Manhattan (1906). His grandson Oscar Hammerstein II (1895-1960), a lyricist, collaborated on many musicals and is best known for his efforts with Richard Rodgers, such as Oklahoma! (1943) and The Sound of Music (1959).

ham·mer·toe (hām'ər-tō') n. A toe, usually the second, that is permanently flexed downward, resulting in a clawlike shape.

Ham·mett (hām'īt), Dashiell. 1894-1961. American writer of highly acclaimed detective fiction, including The Maltese Falcon (1930) and The Thin Man (1932).

ham·mock¹ (hām'ək) n. A hanging, easily swung cot or lounge of canvas or heavy netting suspended between two trees or other supports. [Spanish hamaca, from Taino.]

ham·mock² (hām'ək) n. Variant of hummock (n., sense 2).

Ham·mond¹ (hām'ənd) Family of American engineers and inventors, including John Hays Hammond (1855-1936), a mining engineer who helped develop mining interests in California and South Africa, and his son John Hays Hammond, Jr. (1888-1965), who invented remote-control, telephonic, and telegraphic devices.

Ham·mond² (hām'ənd) 1. A city of northwest Indiana on the Illinois border west of Gary. It is highly industrialized. Population, 84,236. 2. A city of southeast Louisiana east of Baton Rouge. It is the seat of Southeastern Louisiana University (founded 1925). Population, 15,871.

Ham·mu·ra·bi (hām'ə-rā'bē, hä'mōō-), Died 1750 B.C. Babylonian king (1792-1750) who made Babylon the chief Mesopotamian kingdom and codified the laws of Mesopotamia and Sumeria.

ham·my (hām'ē) adj. ham·mi·er, ham·mi·est. Marked or characterized by overacting; affectedly humorous or dramatic. —ham'mi·ly adv.
—ham'mi·ness n.

Hamp·den (hämp'dən, hām'-), John. 1594-1643. English politician and leader of Parliament against Charles I. He raised a troop for Parliament and was killed in the English Civil War.

ham·per¹ (hām'pər) v. tr. ham·pered, ham·per·ing, ham·pers. To prevent the free movement, action, or progress of. — n. Nautical. Necessary but encumbering equipment on a ship. [Middle English hamperen.]

SYNONYMS: hamper, fetter, handcuff, hobble, hog-tie, manacle, shackle, trammel. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to restrict the activity or free movement of”: a swimmer hampered by clothing; prisoners fettered by chains; handcuffed by rigid regulations; hobbled by responsibilities; an aspiring leadership that refused to be hog-tied; imagination manacled by fear; shackled by custom; trammelled by debts. See also Synonyms at hinder¹ ham·per² (hām'pər) n. A large basket, usually with a cover. [Middle English, alteration of Anglo-Norman hanaper, from Old French hanepier, a case for holding goblets, from hanap, goblet, of Germanic origin.]

- Hamp-shire (hämp/'shîr, -shər) n. 1. A large sheep of a breed originating in England. 2. A pig of a breed developed in the United States, having a black body with a white, beltlike band. [After Hampshire, a county of southern England.]
- Hamp-ton (hämp/'tən) 1. A historic section of London, England. It includes Hampton Court Palace, built by Cardinal Wolsey in 1515 and appropriated by Henry VIII in 1526. George II was the last to use it as a royal residence, and much of the palace is now open to the public. 2. An independent city of southeast Virginia opposite Norfolk on Hampton Roads, the outlet of three rivers into Chesapeake Bay. Settled by colonists from Jamestown in 1610, the city was sacked by the British in the War of 1812 and was almost burned to the ground by Confederates in 1861 to prevent its occupation by Union troops. Population, 133,793.
- Hamp-ton (hämp/'tən), Lionel. Born 1913. American musician who was the first to use the vibraphone as a jazz instrument.
- Hamp-ton (hämp/'tən), Wade. 1818-1902. American Confederate general in the Civil War who later served as governor (1876-1879) and U.S. senator (1879-1891) for South Carolina.
- ham-ster (häm/'stər) n. A small Eurasian rodent of the subfamily Cricetinae, especially Mesocricetus auratus, having large cheek pouches and a short tail and often kept as a pet or used in laboratory research. [German, from Middle High German hamastra, perhaps from Old High German hamustro, of Slavic origin.]
- ham-string (häm/'strɪŋ') n. 1. Any of the tendons at the rear hollow of the human knee. 2. Or hamstrings. The hamstring muscle. 3. The large tendon in the back of the hock of a quadruped. — v. tr. ham-strung (-strʊŋ'), ham-string-ing, ham-strings. 1. To cut the hamstring of (an animal or a person) and thereby cripple. 2. To destroy or hinder the efficiency of; frustrate.
- hamstring muscle (häm/'strɪŋ' mʊs'əl) n. Any of the three muscles constituting the back of the upper leg that serve to flex the knee joint, adduct the leg, and extend the thigh.
- ham-strung (häm/'strʊŋ') v. Past tense and past participle of hamstring.
- Ham-sun (häm/'sən, -sʊn'), Knut. Pen name of Knut Pedersen. 1859-1952. Norwegian writer whose novels include Hunger (1890) and The Growth of the Soil (1917). He won the 1920 Nobel Prize for literature.
- Ham-tramck (hä-m-träm/'ɪk) A city of southeast Michigan surrounded by Detroit. The city is known primarily for automobile manufacturing. Population, 18,372.
- ham-u-lus (häm/'yə-ləs) n. pl. ham-u-li (-lī'). A small hooklike projection or process, as at the end of a bone. [Latin, diminutive of hāmus, hook.]
- ham-za also ham-zah (häm/'zə, häm/'zä) n. A sign in Arabic orthography used to represent the sound of a glottal stop, transliterated in English as an apostrophe. [Arabic, from hamaza, to urge on, goad.]

Han¹ (hän) n. pl. Han or Hans. A member of the principal ethnic group of China, constituting about 93 percent of the population, especially as distinguished from Manchus, Mongols, Huis, and other minority nationalities. Also called Chinese, Han Chinese.

Han² (hän) A Chinese dynasty (206 B.C.-A.D. 220) noted for unifying and expanding its national territory and for promoting literature and the arts.

Ha-nau (hä'nou') A city of central Germany on the Main River east of Frankfurt. Chartered in 1303, it is a center of the country's jewelry industry. Population, 84,373.

Han Chinese (hän chī-nēz') n. See Han¹.

Han-cock (hän'kök'), John. 1737-1793. American politician and Revolutionary leader. He was president of the Continental Congress (1775-1777) and the first to sign the Declaration of Independence. Hancock later served nine terms as governor of Massachusetts (1780-1785 and 1787-1793).

Han-cock (hän'kök'), Winfield Scott. 1824-1886. American Civil War general who defeated Robert E. Lee and George Pickett in the Gettysburg Campaign (1863).

hand (händ) n. 1. a. The terminal part of the human arm located below the forearm, used for grasping and holding and consisting of the wrist, palm, four fingers, and an opposable thumb. b. A homologous or similar part in other animals, as the terminal part of the forelimb in certain vertebrates. 2. A unit of length equal to 4 inches (10.2 centimeters), used especially to specify the height of a horse. 3. Something suggesting the shape or function of the human hand, especially: a. Any of the rotating pointers used as indexes on the face of a mechanical clock. b. A pointer, as on a gauge or dial. 4. Printing. See index (n., sense 3). 5. Lateral direction indicated according to the way in which one is facing: at my right hand. 6. A style or individual sample of writing. 7. A round of applause to signify approval. 8. Physical assistance; help: gave me a hand with the bags. 9. Games. a. The cards held in a card game by a given player at any time. b. The number of cards dealt each player; the deal. c. A player or participant in a card game: We need a fourth hand for bridge. d. A portion or section of a game during which all the cards dealt out are played: a hand of poker. 10. a. One who performs manual labor: a factory hand. b. One who is part of a group or crew: the ship's hands. 11. A participant in an activity, often one who specializes in a particular activity or pursuit: called for more hands to decorate the Christmas tree; an old hand at labor negotiations. 12. a. The degree of immediacy of a source of information; degree of reliability: probably heard the scandalous tale at third hand. b. The strength or force of one's position: negotiated from a strong hand. 13. Often hands. a. Possession, ownership, or keeping: The books should be in your hands by noon. b. Power; jurisdiction; care: The defendant's fate is in the hands of the jury. Dinner is in the hands of the chef. 14. a. Involvement or participation: hand-ed, hand-ing, hands. 1. To give or pass with or as if with the hands; transmit: Hand me your keys. 2. To aid, direct, or conduct with the hands: The usher handed the patron to a reserved seat. 3. Nautical. To roll up and secure (a sail); furl. —phrasal verbs. hand down. 1. To bequeath as an inheritance to one’s heirs. 2. To make and pronounce an official decision, especially a court verdict. hand on. To turn over to another. hand out. 4. To distribute freely; disseminate. 5. To administer or deal out. hand over. To release or relinquish to another. —idioms. at hand. 1. Close by; near. 2. Soon in time; imminent: Retribution is at hand. at the hand (or at the hands of). Performed by someone or through the agency of someone. by hand. Performed manually. hand it to. Informal. To give credit to: You’ve got to hand it to her; she knows what she’s doing. in hand. 6. Under control: The project is well in hand. 7. Accessible at the present time. 8. In preparation. off (one’s) hands. No longer under one’s jurisdiction, within one’s responsibility, or in one’s care: We finally got that project off our hands. on hand. Available. on (one’s) hands (or upon (one’s) hands). In one’s possession, often as an imposed responsibility or burden: Now they have the grandchildren on their hands. on the one hand. As one point of view; from one standpoint. on the other hand. As another point of view; from another standpoint. out of hand. 14. Out of control: Employee absenteeism has gotten out of hand. 15. At once; immediately. 16. Over and done with; finished. 17. Uncalled for or improper; indiscreet. to hand. 18. Nearby. 19. In one’s possession. [Middle English, from Old English.] —hand/er n. —hand/less adj.

“In all this was evident the hand of the counterrevolutionaries” (John Reed). b. An influence or effect: The general manager had a hand in all the major decisions. c. Evidence of craft or artistic skill: can see the hand of a genius even in the lighter poems. 15. An aptitude or ability: I tried my hand at decorating. 16. The aesthetic feel or tactile quality of something, such as a fabric, textile, or carpeting, that indicates its fineness, texture, and durability. 17. A manner or way of performing something: a light hand with makeup. 18. a. Permission or a promise, especially a pledge to wed. b. A commitment or an agreement, especially when sealed by a handshake; one’s word: You have my hand on that. — v. tr.

Hand (händ), (Billings) Learned. 1872-1961. American jurist. As a federal judge (1924-1951) his influence was so great that he was sometimes called the “tenth man” of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Han-dan also Han-tan (hän’dän/) A city of east-central China south-southwest of Beijing. It is a flourishing industrial center. Population, 727,500.

hand and foot (händ ənd fōot) adv. With concerted, never-ending effort: had to wait on them hand and foot.

hand and glove (händ ənd glüv) adv. Variant of hand in glove.

hand-bag (händ'bäg') n. 1. A woman's purse. 2. A piece of small hand luggage.

hand-ball (händ'bôl') n. Sports. 1. A game similar in scoring to volleyball that is played by two or more players who hit a ball against a wall with their hands usually while wearing a special glove. 2. The small rubber ball used in this game.

hand-bar-row (händ'bär'ô) n. A flat framework or litter with carrying poles at each end.

hand-bill (händ'bîl') n. A printed sheet or pamphlet distributed by hand.

hand-blown also hand-blown (händ'blôn') adj. Formed or shaped with a hand-held blowpipe: handblown goblets.

hand-book (händ'böök') n. Abbr. hdbk. 1. A concise manual or reference book providing specific information or instruction about a subject or place. 2. Games. a. A book in which off-track bets are recorded. b. A place where off-track bets are taken.

hand brake (händ brāk) n. See emergency brake.

hand-breadth (händ'brëdth') also hand's-breadth or hand's breadth (händz'-) n. A linear measurement approximating the width of the palm of the hand, from 22 to 4 inches (6.25 to 10 centimeters).

hand-car (händ'kär') n. A small open railroad car propelled by a hand pump or a small motor.

hand-cart (händ'kärt') n. A small, usually two-wheeled cart pulled or pushed by hand.

hand-clap (händ'kläp') n. A beating together of the palms of the hands to indicate applause, attract attention, or provide a rhythmic accompaniment to music.

hand-clasp (händ'kläsp') n. The act of clasping the hand of another, especially in friendship.

hand-craft (händ'kräft') n. Variant of handicraft. — v. tr. hand-craft-ed, hand-craft-ing, hand-crafts (händ-kräft'). To fashion or make by hand.

—hand-craft'er n. —hand/crafts'man-ship', hand/craft'man-ship' n.

hand-cuff (händ'küf') n. A restraining device consisting of a pair of strong, connected hoops that can be tightened and locked about the wrists and used on one or both arms of a prisoner in custody; a manacle. Often used in the plural. — v. tr. hand-cuffed, hand-cuff-ing, hand-cuffs. 1. To restrain with or as if with handcuffs. 2. To render ineffective or impotent. See Synonyms at hamper¹.

hand-ed (händ'dîd) adj. 1. Of or relating to dexterity, preference, or size with respect to a hand or hands. Often used in combination: one-handed; left-handed; large-handed. 2. Relating to a specified number of people. Often used in combination: a four-handed card game.

hand-ed-ness (hǎn'dīd-nīs) n. 1. A preference for using one hand as opposed to the other. 2. Chemistry & Physics. The property that distinguishes an asymmetric from its mirror image but not from a rotated object.

Han-del (hǎn'dl), George Frederick. 1685-1759. German-born composer whose works include the English oratorio Messiah (1742) and the orchestral Water Music (1717). —Han-del'i-an (hǎn-dē'lē-ən, -dēl'γən, -dēl'-ē-ən, -dēl'γən) adj.

hand-fast (hǎnd'fǎst') n. Archaic. A handclasp used to signify a pledge, such as a contract or marriage. [From Middle English hondfast, past participle of hond-festen, to betroth, from Old Norse handfesta, to strike a bargain, pledge : hönd, hand + festa, to fasten, fix, affirm; see past- in Appendix.]

hand-ful (hǎnd'foöl') n. pl. hand-fuls. 1. The amount that a hand can hold. 2. A small, undefined number or quantity: only a handful of people on the street. 3. Informal. One that is too difficult to control or handle easily: The hyperactive toddler is a real handful.

hand glass (hǎnd glās) n. 1. A small magnifying glass held in the hand. 2. A mirror with a handle.

hand-grip (hǎnd'grīp') n. 1. A grip of or by the hand. 2. Something, such as a handle, that is suited to a grip by the hand. 3. handgrips. Hand-to-hand combat.

hand-gun (hǎnd'gŭn') n. A firearm that can be used with one hand.

hand-held also hand-held (hǎnd'hēld') adj. Compact enough to be used or operated while being held in the hand or hands: a hand-held calculator; a hand-held video camera.

hand-hold (hǎnd'höld') n. 1. A grip of or by the hand. 2. Something that one can hold onto for support.

hand-hold-ing (hǎnd'hōl'dīng) n. Strong personal support and reassurance, especially that given to alleviate tension and anxiety.

hand-i-cap (hǎn'dē-kăp') n. 1. Sports & Games. a. A race or contest in which advantages or compensations are given different contestants to equalize the chances of winning. b. Such an advantage or penalty. See Synonyms at advantage. 2. A physical or mental disability. See Synonyms at disadvantage. 3. A hindrance. — v. tr. hand-i-capped, hand-i-cap-ping, hand-i-caps.

1. Sports & Games. To assign handicaps or a handicap to (a contestant). 2. To cause to be at a disadvantage; impede. [From obsolete hand in cap, a game in which forfeits were held in a cap.]

hand-i-capped (hǎn'dē-kăpt') adj. Physically or mentally disabled: a pool equipped for handicapped swimmers.

USAGE NOTE: Although handicapped is widely used in both law and everyday speech to refer to people having physical or mental disabilities, those described by the word tend to prefer the expressions disabled or people with disabilities. To say that people are handicapped may imply that they cannot function on a par with others, while to say that they have a disability allows more readily for the possibility that they can so function, in spite of having to do some things in different ways. It is also felt that some stigma may attach to the word handicapped on account of its origin in the phrase hand in cap, actually derived from a game of chance but sometimes mistakenly believed to involve the image of a beggar. The word handicapped is best reserved to describe a disabled person who is unable to function owing to some property of the environment. Thus people with a physical disability requiring a wheelchair may or may not be handicapped, depending on whether wheelchair ramps are made available to them.

hand·i·cap·per (hǎn'dē-kǎp'ər) n. 1. Sports & Games. One who assigns handicaps. 2. Games. One who predicts the winners in a horserace, especially one who publishes such predictions as a guide for bettors.

hand·i·craft (hǎn'dē-krǎft') also hand·craft (hǎnd'krǎft') n. 1. Skill and facility with the hands. 2. A craft or an occupation requiring skilled use of the hands. 3. Work produced by skilled hands. [Middle English handecraft, from Old English handcræft: hand, hand + cræft, craft.]

Hand·ies Peak (hǎn'dēz pēk) A mountain, 4,284.6 m (14,048 ft) high, in the San Juan Mountains of southwest Colorado.

hand·i·ly (hǎn'dī-lē, -dl-ē) adv. 1. In an easy manner. 2. In a convenient manner.

hand in glove or hand and glove (hǎnd ĩn glüv) adv. On intimate terms or in close association.

hand in hand (hǎnd ĩn hǎnd) adv. In cooperation; jointly.

hand·i·work (hǎn'dē-würk') n. 1. Work performed by hand. 2. The product of a person's efforts and actions. [Middle English handiwerk, from Old English handgeweorc: hand, hand + geweorc, work (ge-, collective pref.; see kom in Appendix + weorc, work); see WORK.]

hand·ker·chief (hǎng'kər-chīf, -chēf') n. pl. hand·ker·chiefs also hand·ker·chieves (-chīvz, -chēvz'). Abbr. hdkf. 1. A small square of cloth used especially for wiping the nose or mouth. 2. A large piece of cloth worn as a decorative article; a scarf.

han·dle (hǎn'dl) v. han·dled, han·dling, han·dles. — v. tr. 1. To touch, lift, or hold with the hands. 2. To operate with the hands; manipulate. 3. To deal with or have responsibility for; conduct: handles matters of corporate law. 4. To cope with or dispose of: handles problems efficiently. 5. a. To direct, execute, or dispose of: handle an investment. b. To manage, administer to, or represent: handle a boxer. 6. To deal or trade in the purchase or sale of: a branch office that handles grain exports. — v. intr. To act or function in a given way while in operation: a car that handles well in the snow; a boat that handles poorly in rough water.

— n. 1. A part that is designed to be held or operated with the hand. 2. An opportunity or a means for achieving a purpose. 3. Slang. A person's name. 4. Games. The total amount of money bet on an event or over a set period of time. —idiom. get a handle on (or have a handle on). Informal. To achieve an understanding of: I was finally able to get a handle on the true nature of the problem. [Middle English handelen, from Old English handlian.] —han/dle-less adj.

SYNONYMS: handle, manipulate, wield, ply. These verbs mean to use or operate with or as if with the hands. Handle applies widely and suggests competence: He handles an ax like a born woodsman. She handled the employee's problem with sensitivity and direction. Manipulate connotes skillful or artful management, as of a tool or an instrument: The radio operator manipulated the dials and changed the frequency. When manipulate refers to people or personal affairs, it often implies deviousness or the use of improper influence or fraud in gaining an end: I put forth his suggestion as my own without realizing I had been manipulated. Wield implies freedom, skill, and ease in handling physical or figurative tools and implements: wield a hatchet; wields a persuasive pen. It also connotes effectiveness in the exercise of intangibles such as authority or influence: wielded enormous power. Ply suggests industry and persistence, as in the use of tools (plying a knife and fork with gusto); the term also applies to the regular and diligent engagement in a task or pursuit (plies the baker's trade). See also Synonyms at touch treat han-dle-bar (hän'dl-bär') n. A curved metal steering bar, as on a bicycle.

Often used in the plural.

handlebar mustache (hän'dl-bär' müs'täsh') n. A long, curved mustache resembling a handlebar.

han-dler (händ'lär) n. 1. One that handles or directs something or someone: the candidate's campaign handlers; the defector's handlers. 2. Sports. a. One who trains or exhibits an animal, such as a dog. b. One who acts as the trainer or second of a boxer.

Hand-lin (händ'lĭn), Oscar. Born 1915. American historian and educator noted for his studies of the influence of immigration on American culture, especially The Uprooted (1951), for which he won a Pulitzer Prize.

han-dling (händ'lĭng) n. 1. The act or an instance of one that handles something. 2. The way in which a matter, especially a delicate one, is taken care of. 3. The way in which a presentation, especially an artistic or theatrical work, is treated.

hand-made (händ'mād') adj. Made or prepared by hand rather than by machine.

hand-maid (händ'mād') also hand-maid-en (-mād'n) n. 1. A woman attendant or servant. 2. Often handmaiden. Something that serves a useful but subordinate purpose: piety as the handmaiden of religious faith.

hand-me-down (händ'mē-down') adj. 1. Handed down to one person after being used and discarded by another. 2. Of inferior quality; shabby. — n. Something, such as an article of clothing, that is passed on from one person to another.

hand-off (händ'ôf', -ôf') n. 1. Football. A play in which one player hands the ball to another. 2. The act or an instance of passing something or the control of it from one person or agency to another: a handoff of the aircraft from one control tower to another.

hand organ (händ ôr'gən) n. Music. A barrel organ operated by turning a crank by hand.

hand-out (händ'out') n. 1. Food, clothing, or money given to the needy. 2. A folder or leaflet circulated free of charge. 3. A prepared news or publicity release.

hand over fist (händ ô'vər fĭst) adv. At a tremendous rate: made money hand over fist. [From the way sailors haul in or climb up a rope.]

hand-pick (händ'pĭk') v. tr. hand-picked, hand-pick-ing, hand-picks.

1. To gather or pick by hand. 2. To select personally. — hand'picked' adj.

hand press (händ prĕs) n. A printing press operated by hand.

hand-print (händ'prĭnt') n. An outline or indentation left by a hand.

hand puppet (händ pŭp'ĭt) n. A puppet operated by hand.

hand-rail (händ'rāl') n. A narrow railing to be grasped with the hand for support.

hand-saw (händ'sô') n. A small saw operated by one hand.

hand's-breadth or hand's breadth (händz'brĕdth') n. Variant of hand-breadth.

hands down (händz doun) adv. 1. With no trouble; easily.

2. Unquestionably. — hands'-down' (händz'doun') adj.

hand-sel (händ'səl) also han-sel (hän'-) Chiefly British. n. 1. A gift to express good wishes at the beginning of a new year or enterprise. 2. The first money or barter taken in, as by a new business or on the opening day of business, especially when considered a token of good luck. 3. a. A first payment. b. A specimen or foretaste of what is to come. — v. tr. hand-seled or hand-selled, hand-sel-ing or hand-sel-ling, hand-sels or hand-sels. 1. To give a handsel to. 2. To launch with a ceremonial gesture or gift. 3. To do or use for the first time. [Middle English hanselle, from Old English handselen, a handing over (hand, hand + selen, gift), and from Old Norse handsal, legal transfer (hand, hand + sal, a giving).]

hand-set (händ'sĕt') n. The handle-shaped part of a telephone, containing the receiver and transmitter and often a dial or push buttons.

hand-shake (händ'shāk') n. The grasping of hands by two people, as in greeting or leave-taking.

hands-off (händz'ôf', -ôf') adj. Characterized by nonintervention: a hands-off foreign policy.

hand-some (hän'səm) adj. hand-som-er, hand-som-est. 1. Pleasing and dignified in form or appearance. See Synonyms at beautiful. 2. Generous or copious: a handsome reward. See Synonyms at liberal. 3. Marked by or requiring skill or dexterity: did some handsome maneuvers on the skating rink.

4. Appropriate or fitting: a handsome location for the new school. 5. Large: a handsome price; won by a handsome margin. [Middle English handsom, handy : hand, hand (from Old English) + -som, n. suff.; see *-SOME*¹.] —hand/some-ly adv. —hand/some-ness n.

hands-on (händz'ôn', -ôn') adj. Involving active participation; applied, as opposed to theoretical: “We’re involved in hands-on operations, pulling levers, pushing buttons” (Arthur R. Taylor).

hand-spike (händ'spik') n. A bar used as a lever. [Alteration of Dutch handspaak : hand, hand (from Middle Dutch hant) + *spaa*k, spoke (from Middle Dutch spāke, stick).]

hand-spring (händ'spring') n. Sports. A gymnastic feat in which the body is flipped completely forward or backward from an upright position, landing first on the hands and then on the feet.

hand-stand (händ'ständ') n. Sports. The act of balancing on the hands with one's feet in the air.

hand-to-hand (händ'tə-händ') adj. Being at close quarters: hand-to-hand combat. —hand to hand adv.

hand-to-mouth (händ'tə-mouth') adj. Having or providing only the bare essentials: a hand-to-mouth way of life.

hand wav-ing (händ wā'vĭng) n. Usually insubstantial words or actions intended to convince or impress: resorted to hand waving in place of rational arguments. —hand/wav-ing (händ'wā'vĭng) adj.

hand-work (händ'wûrk') n. Work done by hand rather than by machine.

hand-wo-ven (händ'wō'vən) adj. 1. Woven on a hand-operated loom: handwoven rugs. 2. Woven by hand: handwoven baskets.

hand-wring-ing or hand wringing (händ'rĭng'ĭng) n. 1. Clasping and squeezing of the hands, often in distress. 2. An excessive expression of distress: handwringing by some experts over the state of the economy. —hand/wring'er, hand wringer n.

hand-writ-ing (händ'rĭ'tĭng) n. 1. Writing done with the hand. 2. The writing characteristic of a particular person.

hand-y (hän'dē) adj. hand-i-er, hand-i-est. 1. Skillful in using one's hands; manually adroit. See Synonyms at dexterous. 2. Readily accessible: found a handy spot for the can opener. 3. Useful; convenient: a handy gadget. 4. Easy to use or handle: a handy reference book. [From HAND.] —hand/i-ness n.

Han-dy (hǎn'dē), William Christopher. Known as “W.C. Handy.” 1873-1958. American musician and composer. He was the first person to recognize the importance of blues as a legitimate musical form and the first to publish a blues composition, “The Memphis Blues” (1911).

hand-y-man also handy man (hǎn'dē-mǎn') n. A man who does odd jobs or various small tasks.

Han-ford (hǎn'fərd) A city of central California south-southeast of Fresno. It is a trade and processing center for the San Joaquin Valley. Population, 30,897.

hang (hǎng) v. hung (hǔng), hang-ing, hangs. — v. tr. 1. To fasten from above with no support from below; suspend. 2. To suspend or fasten so as to allow free movement at or about the point of suspension: hang a door. 3. past tense and past participle. hanged (hǎngd). a. To execute by suspending by the neck: They hanged the prisoner at dawn. b. Used to express exasperation or disgust: I'll be hanged! Hang it all! 4. To fix or attach at an appropriate angle: hang a scythe to its handle. 5. To alter the hem of (a garment) so as to fall evenly at a specified height. 6. To furnish, decorate, or appoint by suspending objects around or about: hang a room with curtains. 7. To hold or incline downward; let droop: hang one's head in sorrow. 8. a. To attach to a wall: hang wallpaper. b. To display, as in a gallery or an office: hung four new paintings in the foyer.

9. Informal. To give (a nickname or label) to someone. 10. To deadlock (a jury) by failing to render a unanimous verdict. 11. Baseball. To throw (a pitch) in such a manner as to fail to break. — v. intr. 1. To be attached from above with no support from below. 2. To die as a result of hanging. 3. To remain suspended or poised over a place or an object; hover: rain clouds hanging low over the corn fields. 4. To attach oneself as a dependent or an impediment; cling. 5. To incline downward; droop. 6. To depend: Everything hangs on the committee's decision.

7. To pay strict attention: a student who hangs on the professor's every word. 8. To remain unresolved or uncertain: His future hung in the balance. 9. To fit the body in loose lines: a dress that hangs well. 10. To be on display, as in a gallery.

11. Baseball. To fail to break or move in the intended way, as a curve ball. 12. To be imminent; loom: the threat hanging over us. 13. To be or become burdensome: Time hung heavy on my hands. — n. 1. The way in which something hangs. 2. A downward inclination or slope. 3. Particular meaning or significance. 4. Informal. The proper method for doing, using, or handling something: finally got the hang of it. 5. A suspension of motion; a slackening. —phrasal verbs.

hang around. 1. To spend time idly; loiter. 2. To keep company; consort. hang back. To be averse; hold back. hang in. Informal. To persevere: decided to hang in despite his illness. hang off. To hold back; be averse. hang on. 6. To cling tightly to something. 7. To continue persistently; persevere.

8. To keep a telephone connection open. 9. To wait for a short period of time. hang out. Slang. 10. To spend one's free time in a certain place: "a group of boys who hung out together around what they called 'Barry's Corner'" (Linda Ellerbee). 11. To pass time idly; loiter: spent the evening just hanging out. 12. To keep company; date: hanging out with a former boyfriend. hang together. 13. To stand united; stick together: "We must all hang together, or assuredly we shall all hang separately" (Benjamin Franklin). 14. To constitute a coherent totality: diverse plot lines that did not hang together. hang up. 15. To suspend on a hook or hanger. 16. a. To replace (a telephone receiver) on its base or cradle. b. To end a telephone conversation. 17. a. To delay or impede; hinder: Budget problems hung up the project for months. b. To become halted or snagged: The fishing line hung up on a rock. c. Informal. To have or cause to have emotional difficulties or inhibitions. 18. a. To replace (a telephone receiver) on its base or cradle. b. To end a telephone conversation. 19. a. To delay or impede; hinder: Budget problems hung up the project for months. b. To become halted or snagged: The fishing line hung up on a rock. c. Informal. To have or cause to have emotional difficulties or inhibitions. —idioms. give a hang (or care a hang). To be concerned or anxious: I don't give a hang what you do. hang a left. Informal. To make a left turn, as in an automobile. hang a right. Informal. To make a right turn, as in an automobile. hang fire. 4. To delay: "They are people who hung fire even through the bloody days of the Hungarian Revolution" (Mark Muro). 5. To be slow in firing, as a gun. hang in there. Informal. To persevere despite difficulties; persist: She hung in there despite pressure to resign. hang it up. Informal. To give up; quit. hang loose. Slang. To stay calm or relaxed. hang on to. To hold firmly; keep fast: Hang on to your money. hang tough. Informal. To remain firmly resolved: "We are going to hang tough on this" (Donald T. Regan). let it all hang out. Slang. 11. To be completely relaxed. 12. To be completely candid. [Middle English hongen, from Old English hangian, to be suspended, and from Old English hōn, to hang; see konk- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Hanged, as a past tense and a past participle of hang, is used in the sense of "to put to death by hanging." In the following example hung would be unacceptable to a majority of the Usage Panel: Frontier courts hanged many a prisoner after a summary trial. In all other senses of the word, hung is the preferred form as past tense and past participle.

han·gar (hǎng'ər, hǎng'gər) n. A shelter especially for housing or repairing aircraft. [French, from Old French hangard, of Germanic origin. See tkei- in Appendix.]

Hang·chow or Hang·chou (hǎng'chou', hǎng'jō') See Hangzhou.

hang-dog (hǎng'dôg', -dôg') adj. 1. Shamefaced or guilty. 2. Downcast; intimidated. — n. A sneaky or despicable person.

hanged (hǎngd) v. Past tense and past participle of hang (v. tr., sense 3). See Usage Note at hang.

hang-er (hǎng'ər) n. 1. One who hangs something: a house painter who also works as a paperhanger. 2. A contrivance to which something hangs or by which something is hung, as: a. A device around which a garment is draped for hanging from a hook or rod. b. A loop or strap by which something is hung. 3. A bracket on the spring shackle of a motor vehicle, designed to hold it to the chassis. 4. A decorative strip of cloth hung on a garment or wall. 5. A short sword that may be hung from a belt.

hang-er-on (hǎng'ər-ŏn', -ôn') n. pl. hang-ers-on (hǎng'ərz-). A sycophant; a parasite.

hang-glide (hǎng'glīd') v. intr. hang--glid-ed, hang--glid-ing, hang--glides. To fly by means of a hang glider.

hang glider (hǎng glī'dər) n. 1. A device resembling a kite from which a harnessed rider hangs while gliding from a height. 2. The rider of such a device.

hang-ing (hǎng'ɪŋ) n. 1. Execution on a gallows. 2. Something, such as a tapestry, that is hung. 3. A descending slope or an inclination. — adj. 1. Situated on a sharp declivity. 2. Projecting downward; overhanging. 3. Suited for holding something that hangs. 4. a. Deserving death by hanging: a hanging crime.

b. Disposed to inflict severe sentences, such as death by hanging: a hanging judge.

hanging indention (hǎng'ɪŋ ɪn-dĕn'shən) n. Indention of every line in a paragraph except the first.

hang-man (hǎng'mən) n. 1. A man employed to execute condemned prisoners by hanging. 2. (also -mǎn) Games. A game in which one player chooses a word whose letters are guessed at by another player. For each wrong guess, a new part of the stick figure of a hanging man is drawn.

hang-nail (hǎng'nāl') n. A small piece of dead skin at the side or the base of a fingernail that is partly detached from the rest of the skin. [Alteration of AGNAIL.]

hang-out (hǎng'out') n. Slang. A frequently visited place.

hang-o-ver (hǎng'ō'vər) n. 1. Unpleasant physical effects following the heavy use of alcohol. 2. A letdown, as after a period of excitement. 3. A vestige; a hold-over: hangovers from prewar legislation.

hang-tag (hǎng'tăg') n. A tag attached to a piece of merchandise giving information about its composition and proper care and use.

hang-up (hǎng'ŭp') n. Informal. 1. A psychological or emotional difficulty or inhibition. 2. An obstacle to smooth progress or development.

Hang-zhou (hǎng'jō') also Hang-chow or Hang-chou (hǎng'chou', hǎng'jō') A city of eastern China at the head of Hangzhou Bay, an inlet of the East China Sea. Founded in 606, the city was the capital of a powerful kingdom from 907 to 960. It was later described by Marco Polo as one of the finest and noblest cities in the world. Today it is a modern industrial center and the capital of Zhejiang province. Population, 1,250,000.

hank (hǎngk) n. 1. A coil or loop. 2. Nautical. A ring on a stay attached to the head of a jib or staysail. 3. A looped bundle, as of yarn. [Middle English, from Old Norse hönk.]

han·ker (hǎng'kər) v. intr. han·kered, han·ker·ing, han·kers. To have a strong, often restless desire. See Synonyms at yearn. [Perhaps from Dutch dialectal hankeren. See konk- in Appendix.] —han·ker·er n.

han·kie also han·ky (hǎng'kē) n. pl. han·kies. Informal. A handkerchief.

han·ky·pan·ky (hǎng'kē-pǎng'kē) n. Slang. 1. Devious or mischievous activity. 2. Illicit sexual activity. [Alteration of hokey-pokey, alteration of HOCUS-POCUS.]

Han·na (hǎn'ə), Marcus Alonzo. Known as “Mark.” 1837-1904. American financier and politician who managed the 1896 and 1900 presidential campaigns of William McKinley and served as a U.S. senator from Ohio (1897-1904).

Han·ni·bal¹ (hǎn'ə-bəl), 247-183? B.C. Carthaginian general who crossed the Alps in 218 with about 35,000 men and routed Roman armies at Lake Trasimeno (217) and Cannae (216). He was later defeated at the Battle of Zama (202).

Han·ni·bal² (hǎn'ə-bəl) A city of northeast Missouri on the Mississippi River northwest of St. Louis. It is famous as the boyhood home of Mark Twain. Population, 18,004.

Han·no (hǎn'ō), Known as “the Great.” fl. third century B.C. Carthaginian political leader who opposed the policy of conquest during the Second Punic War (218-201). After Hannibal’s defeat (202) Hanno negotiated a treaty with the Romans.

Han·no·ver (hǎn'ō'vər, hä-nō'-) See Hanover².

Ha·noi (hǎ-noi', hə-) The capital of Vietnam, in the northern part of the country on the Red River. Founded before the seventh century, it became the capital of French Indochina after 1887 and the capital of North Vietnam after 1954. The city was bombed heavily during the Vietnam War. Population, 819,913.

Ha·no·taux (ǎn'ə-tō', ä'nô-), (Albert Auguste) Gabriel. 1853-1944.

French historian and politician who as minister of foreign affairs (1894-1898) directed France’s colonial expansion in Africa.

Han·o·ver¹ (hǎn'ō'vər) British ruling family (1714-1901). When Victoria ascended the throne in 1837, the crowns of Hanover and Great Britain were separated.

Han·o·ver² or Han·no·ver (hǎn'ō'vər, hä-nō'-) 1. A former kingdom and province of northwest Germany. It was an electorate of the Holy Roman Empire from 1692 to 1805. The kingdom lasted from 1815 to 1866, when Hanover became a province of Prussia (later Germany). 2. A city of northwest Germany southeast of Bremen. Chartered in 1241, it became part of the Hanseatic League in 1386. Hanover was badly damaged during World War II but has been extensively rebuilt. Population, 514,010.

Han·o·ve·ri·an (hăn'ō-vîr'ē-ən) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the royal family of Hanover. 2. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the kingdom or province of Hanover.

Hanover Park (hăn'ō'vər pärk) A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 32,895.

Han River (hän rîv'ər) A river, about 1,126 km (700 mi) long, of east-central China flowing generally southeast to the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang).

Han·sard (hăn'sərd) n. The official report of the proceedings and debates of a legislature in the Commonwealth of Nations, especially of the British or Canadian parliament. [After Luke Hansard (1752-1828), British printer.]

Hans·ber·ry (hänz'běr-ē), Lorraine. 1930-1965. American playwright known for her play A Raisin in the Sun (1959).

hanse (hăns) n. A medieval merchant guild or trade association. [Middle English, from Old French, from Middle Low German, from Old High German hansa, military troop.] —han'se-at'ic (hăn'sē-ăt'ik) adj.

Han·se·at·ic League (hăn'sē-ăt'ik lēg) A former economic and defensive confederation of free towns in northern Germany and neighboring areas. Traditionally dated to a protective alliance formed by Lübeck and Hamburg in 1241, it reached the height of its power in the 14th century and held its last official assembly in 1669.

han·sel (hăn'səl) n. & v. Variant of handsel.

Han·sen's disease (hăn'sənz dĩ-zēz') n. Leprosy. No longer in scientific use. [After Gerhard H.A. Hansen (1841-1912), Norwegian physician.]

han·som (hăn'səm) n. A two-wheeled covered carriage with the driver's seat above and behind. Also called hansom cab [After Joseph Aloysius Hansom (1803-1882), British architect.]

Hans·son (hăn'sən, hăn'-, hăn'sôn), Per Albin. 1885-1946. Swedish politician. As prime minister (1932-1946) he maintained Swedish neutrality during World War II.

Han·tan (hăn'dän') See Handan.

Ha·nuk·kah or Ha·nu·kah also Cha·nu·kah (KHä'nə-kə, hä'-) n. Judaism. An eight-day festival beginning on the 25th day of Kislev, commemorating the victory in 165 B.C. of the Maccabees over Antiochus Epiphanes (c. 215-164 B.C.) and the rededication of the Temple at Jerusalem. Also called Feast of Dedication, Feast of Lights. [Hebrew hănukkâ, dedication, from hānak, to dedicate.]

han·u·man (hŭn'ōō-măn') n. pl. han·u·mans. A small monkey (Presbytis entellus) of southern Asia, having bristly hairs on the crown and the sides of the face. [Hindi hanumān, from Sanskrit Hanuman, name of a monkey-god in Hindu mythology, from hanu, jaw. See genu-² in Appendix.]

hao (hou) n. A unit of currency in Vietnam. See Table at currency.

hao·le (hou'lē, -lā) n. Hawaii. A person, especially a white person, who is not a native Hawaiian. See Regional note at ukulele. [Hawaiian.]

hap (hăp) n. 1. Fortune; chance. 2. A happening; an occurrence. — v. intr.

happed, hap·ping, haps. To happen. [Middle English, from Old Norse happ. See kob- in Appendix.]

ha·pax le·go·me·non (hā'păks' lī-gōm'ə-nōn') n. pl. ha·pax le·go·me·na (-nə). A word or form that occurs only once in the recorded corpus of a given language. [Greek : hapax, once + legomenon, neuter sing. passive participle of legein, to count, say.]

hap·haz·ard (hăp-hăz'ərd) adj. Dependent upon or characterized by mere chance. See Synonyms at chance. — n. Mere chance; fortuity. — adv. By chance; casually. — hap·haz'ard·ly adv. — hap·haz'ard·ness n.

haph·ta·rah also haf·ta·rah or haf·to·rah (hăf'tă-ră', hăf-tôr'ə, -tôr'ə) *n. pl. haph·ta·roth or haph·to·roth or haph·to·rot or haph·to·ros (-tă-rōt', -rōs', -tôr'ōt', -ōs', -tôr'-). Judaism. A selection from the Prophets, read in synagogue services on the Sabbath following each lesson from the Torah. [Mishnaic Hebrew haptārâ, conclusion, from hip̄t̄r, to conclude, dismiss, from Hebrew 'pātar, to separate, discharge.]*

hap·less (hăp'līs) adj. Luckless; unfortunate. See Synonyms at unfortunate. — hap'less·ly adv. — hap'less·ness n.

hap·lite (hăp'līt') n. Variant of aplite.

hap·loid (hăp'loid') Genetics. adj. 1. Having the same number of sets of chromosomes as a germ cell or half as many as a somatic cell. 2. Having a single set of chromosomes. — n. An organism having haploid cells. [From Greek haplous, single; see sem-¹ in Appendix + -OID.]

hap·loi·dy (hăp'loi'dē) n. Genetics. The state or condition of being haploid.

hap·lol·o·gy (hăp-lōl'ə-jē) n. The loss of one of two identical or similar adjacent syllables in a word, as in Latin nūtrīx, “nurse,” from earlier ·nūtrītrīx. [Greek haplos, haplous, single, simple; see HAPLOID + -LOGY.]

hap·lont (hăp'lōnt) n. Genetics. An organism that is haploid throughout its life cycle except as a zygote, when it is diploid, as in many algae and fungi. [Greek haplous, single, simple; see HAPLOID + -ONT.]

hap·lo·sis (hăp-lō'sīs) n. Genetics. Reduction of the diploid number of chromosomes by one half during meiosis, resulting in the haploid number. [Greek haplos, haplous, single; see HAPLOID + -OSIS.]

hap·ly (hăp'lē) adv. By chance or accident.

hap·pen (hăp'ən) v. intr. hap·pened, hap·pen·ing, hap·pens. 1. a. To come to pass. b. To come into being. 2. To take place or occur by chance. 3. To come upon something by chance. 4. To come or go casually; make an appearance. [Middle English happenen, from hap, chance. See HAP.]

SYNONYMS: happen, befall, betide, chance, occur. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to come about”: What would happen if you said no? Who can predict the misery that may befall humankind? Woe betide the poor soldier. It chanced that we succeeded. The accident occurred recently.

hap·pen·chance (hăp'ən-chăns') n. A happenstance.

hap·pen·ing (hăp'ə-nĭng) n. 1. Something that takes place; an occurrence.

See Synonyms at occurrence. 2. An improvised, often spontaneous spectacle or performance, especially one involving audience participation.

hap·pen·stance (hăp'ən-stăns') n. A chance circumstance: “Marriage loomed only as an outgrowth of happenstance; you met a person” (Bruce Weber). [HAPPEN + (CIRCUM)STANCE.]

hap·pi coat (hăp'ē kōt) n. A Japanese jacket made of cotton or similar material and having an open front, often fastened with ties. [Japanese happi: Chinese bàn, half + Chinese bèi, to wear.]

hap·py (hăp'ē) adj. hap·pi·er, hap·pi·est. 1. Characterized by good luck; fortunate. 2. Enjoying, showing, or marked by pleasure, satisfaction, or joy.

3. Being especially well-adapted; felicitous: a happy turn of phrase. 4. Cheerful; willing: happy to help. 5. a. Characterized by a spontaneous or obsessive inclination to use something. Often used in combination: trigger-happy. b. Enthusiastic about or involved with to a disproportionate degree. Often used in combination: money-happy; clothes-happy. [Middle English, from hap, luck. See HAP.]

—hap'pi·ly adv. —hap'pi·ness n.

SYNONYMS: happy, fortunate, lucky, providential. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “attended by luck or good fortune”: a happy outcome; a fortunate omen; a lucky guess; a providential recovery. See also Synonyms at fit¹ glad¹ hap·py-go-luck·y (hăp'ē-gō-lŭk'ē) adj. Taking things easily; carefree.

ANTONYM: unhappy

happy hour (hăp'ē our) n. A period of time, usually in late afternoon and early evening, during which a bar or lounge features drinks at reduced prices.

Haps·burg also Habs·burg (hăps'bŭrg', hăps'bōork') A royal German family that supplied rulers to a number of European states from the late Middle Ages until the 20th century. The Hapsburgs reached the height of their power under Charles V of Spain. When Charles abdicated (1558), the empire was divided between the Spanish and Austrian lines. The Spanish branch ceased to rule after 1700 and the Austrian branch after 1918.

hap·ten (hăp'tĕn') also hap·tene (-tĕn') n. A substance that reacts with a specific antibody but cannot induce the formation of antibodies unless bound to a carrier protein or other molecule. [German : Greek haptein, to fasten + German -en, n. suff. (from Greek -ĕnĕ, -ene).] —hap·ten'ic adj.

hap·tic (hăp'tĭk) adj. Of or relating to the sense of touch; tactile. [Greek haptikos, from haptesthai, to grasp, touch.]

hap·to·glo·bin (hăp'tə-glō'bĭn) n. A plasma protein that is a normal constituent of blood serum and functions in the binding of free hemoglobin in the bloodstream. [Greek haptein, to bind, fasten + (HEMO)GLOBIN.]

ha·ra·ki·ri (hă'rĭ-kĭr'ĕ, hă'rĕ-) also ha·ri·ka·ri (hăr'ĕ-kăr'ĕ, hăr'ĕ-kăr'ĕ) n. pl. ha·ra·ki·ris. Ritual suicide by disembowelment formerly practiced by Japanese samurai. [Japanese : hara, abdomen, bowels + kiri, to cut.]

Ha·ran or Har·ran (hă-răn') An ancient city of Mesopotamia in present-day southeast Turkey. It was an important trading post and a religious center devoted to the Assyrian moon god.

ha·rangue (hə-răng') n. 1. A long, pompous speech, especially one delivered before a gathering. 2. A speech or piece of writing characterized by strong feeling or expression; a tirade. — v. ha·rangued, ha·ranguing, ha·rangues. — v. tr. To deliver a harangue to. — v. intr. To deliver a harangue. [Middle English arang, a speech to an assembly, from Old French harangue, from Old Italian aringa, from aringare, to speak in public, probably from aringo, arringa, public square, meeting place, of Germanic origin. See koro- in Appendix.]

—ha·rangue'er n.

Ha·rap·pa (hə-răp'ə) A locality in the Indus River valley of the Punjab in Pakistan. Archaeological finds dating back to the third millennium B.C. include the remains of a well-laid-out city and indicate a possible link between Indian and Sumerian cultures.

Ha·ra·re (hə-răr'ă) Formerly Salis·bur·y (sôlz'bĕr'ĕ, -brĕ). The capital and largest city of Zimbabwe, in the northeast part of the country. Founded by the British in 1890, it is a manufacturing and tobacco-processing center. The name was changed in 1982 to honor a 19th-century leader. Population, 656,011.

ha·rass (hăr'əs, hə-răs') v. tr. ha·rassed, ha·rassing, ha·rass-es. 1. To irritate or torment persistently. 2. To wear out; exhaust. 3. To impede and exhaust (an enemy) by repeated attacks or raids. [French harasser, possibly from Old French harer, to set a dog on, from hare, interjection used to set a dog on, of Germanic origin.] —ha·rass'er n. —ha·rass'ment n.

SYNONYMS: harass, harry, hound, badger, pester, plague, bait. These verbs are compared as they mean to trouble persistently or incessantly. Harass and harry imply systematic persecution by besieging with repeated annoyances, threats, demands, or misfortunes: The landlord harassed tenants who were behind in their rent. “Of all the griefs that harass the distress’d” (Samuel Johnson). A gang of delinquents harried the storekeeper. Hound suggests unrelenting pursuit to gain a desired end: Reporters hounded the celebrity for an interview. To badger is to nag or tease persistently: The child badgered his parents to buy him a new bicycle. To pester is to inflict a succession of petty annoyances: “How she would have pursued and pestered me with questions and surmises” (Charlotte Brontë). Plague refers to the infliction of tribulations, such as worry or vexation, likened to an epidemic disease: “As I have no estate, I am plagued with no tenants or stewards” (Henry Fielding). To bait is to torment by or as if by taunting, insulting, or ridiculing: Hecklers baited the speaker mercilessly.

USAGE NOTE: Educated usage appears to be evenly divided on the pronunciation of harass. In a recent survey 50 percent of the Usage Panel preferred a pronunciation with stress on the first syllable, while 50 percent preferred stress on the second syllable. Curiously, the Panelists’ comments appear to indicate that each side regards itself as an embattled minority.

Har·bin (här’bĭn/) A city of northeast China north of Jilin. It grew after Russia was granted a trade concession in 1896 and the completion of the railroad to Port Arthur (now Lüshun) in 1898. The city is the capital of Heilongjiang province. Population, 2,630,000.

har·bin·ger (här’bĭn-jər) n. One that indicates or foreshadows what is to come; a forerunner. — v. tr. har·bin·gered, har·bin·ger·ing, har·bin·gers. To signal the approach of; presage. [Middle English herbengar, person sent ahead to arrange lodgings, from Old French herbergeor, from herbergier, to provide lodging for, from herberge, lodging, of Germanic origin. See koro- in Appendix.]

har·bor (här’bər) n. Abbr. h., H. 1. A sheltered part of a body of water deep enough to provide anchorage for ships. 2. A place of shelter; a refuge. — v. tr. har·bored, har·bor·ing, har·bors. 1. To give shelter to: harbor refugees; harbor a fugitive. 2. To provide a place, home, or habitat for: a basement that harbors a maze of pipes; streams that harbor trout and bass. 3. To entertain or nourish (a specified thought or feeling): harbor a grudge. [Middle English herberwe, probably from Old English herebeorg, lodging. See koro- in Appendix.] —har’bor·er n.

har·bor·age (här’bər-ij) n. 1. Shelter and anchorage for ships. 2. Shelter; refuge.

har·bor·mas·ter (här’bər-mäs’tər) n. An officer who oversees and enforces the regulations of a harbor.

harbor seal (här’bər sēl) n. A hair seal (Phoca vitulina) of coastal waters of the Northern Hemisphere, having a spotted coat. Also called sea calf har·bour (här’bər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of harbor.

hard (härd) adj. hard-er, hard-est. Abbr. h., H. 1. Resistant to pressure; not readily penetrated. 2. a. Physically toughened; rugged. b. Mentally toughened; strong-minded. 3. a. Requiring great effort or endurance: a hard assignment. b. Performed with or marked by great diligence or energy: a project that required years of hard work. c. Difficult to resolve, accomplish, or finish: That was a hard question. d. Difficult to understand or impart: Physics was the hardest of my courses. Thermodynamics is a hard course to teach. 4. a. Intense in force or degree: a hard blow. b. Inclement: a long, hard winter. 5. a. Stern or strict in nature or comportment: a hard taskmaster. b. Resistant to persuasion or appeal; obdurate. c. Making few concessions: drives a hard bargain. 6. a. Difficult to endure: a hard life. b. Oppressive or unjust in nature or effect: restrictions that were hard on welfare applicants. c. Lacking compassion or sympathy; callous. 7. a. Harsh or severe in effect or intention: said some hard things that I won't forget. b. Bitter; resentful: No hard feelings, I hope. 8. a. Causing damage or premature wear: Snow and ice are hard on a car's finish. b. Bad; adverse: hard luck. 9. Proceeding or performing with force, vigor, or persistence; assiduous: a hard worker. 10. a. Real and unassailable: hard evidence. b. Definite; firm: a hard commitment. c. Close; penetrating: We need to take a hard look at the situation. d. Free from illusion or bias; practical: brought some hard common sense to the discussion. e. Using or based on data that are readily quantified or verified: the hard sciences. 11. a. Marked by sharp outline or definition; stark. b. Lacking in delicacy, shading, or nuance. 12. a. Metallic, as opposed to paper. Used of currency. b. Backed by bullion rather than by credit. Used of currency. c. High and stable. Used of prices. 13. a. Durable; lasting: hard merchandise. b. Written or printed rather than stored in electronic media: sent the information by hard mail. 14. Erect; tumid. Used of a penis. 15. a. Having high alcoholic content; intoxicating: hard liquor. b. Rendered alcoholic by fermentation; fermented: hard cider. 16. Containing dissolved salts that interfere with the lathering action of soap. Used of water. 17. Linguistics. Velar, as in c in cake or g in log, as opposed to palatal or soft. 18. Physics. Of relatively high energy; penetrating: hard x-rays. 19. High in gluten content: hard wheat. 20. Chemistry. Resistant to biodegradation: a hard detergent. 21. Physically addictive. Used of certain illegal drugs, such as heroin. 22. Resistant to blast, heat, or radiation. Used especially of nuclear weapons. — adv. 1. With strenuous effort; intently: worked hard all day; stared hard at the accused criminal. 2. With great force, vigor, or energy: pressed hard on the lever. 3. In such a way as to cause great damage or hardship: industrial cities hit hard by unemployment. 4. With great distress, grief, or bitterness: took the divorce hard. 5. Firmly; securely: held hard to the railing. 6. Toward or into a solid condition: concrete that sets hard within a day. 7. Near in space or time; close: The factory stands hard by the railroad tracks. 8. Nautical. Completely; fully: hard alee. — idioms. hard and fast. Defined, fixed, and invariable:

hard and fast rules. hard of hearing. 2. Having a partial loss of hearing.

3. One who has a partial loss of hearing. hard put. Undergoing great difficulty: Under the circumstances, he was hard put to explain himself. hard up. Informal. In need; poor. [Middle English, from Old English heard. See kar- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: hard, difficult, arduous. These adjectives are compared as they mean requiring great physical or mental effort to do, achieve, or master. Hard is the most general term: Why is it so hard for you to keep a secret? "You write with ease to show your breeding,/But easy writing's curst hard reading" (Richard Brinsley Sheridan). Difficult and hard are interchangeable in many instances: a difficult (or hard) subject; a book that is difficult (or hard) to find. Difficult, however, is often preferable where the need for skill or ingenuity is implied: "All poetry is difficult to read,/—The sense of it is, anyhow" (Robert Browning). Arduous refers to what involves burdensome labor or sustained physical or spiritual effort: "knowledge at which [Isaac] Newton arrived through arduous and circuitous paths" (Macaulay). Negotiating a reduction in nuclear arms is a long and arduous undertaking. See also Synonyms at firm¹ hard·back (härd'bak') Printing. adj. Bound in cloth, cardboard, or leather rather than paper. Used of books. — n. A book bound in cloth, cardboard, or leather.

hard·ball (härd'bôl') n. 1. Sports. Baseball. 2. Informal. The use of any means, however ruthless, to attain an objective.

hard·bit·ten (härd'bît'n) adj. Toughened by experience.

hard·board (härd'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A construction board made by compressing fibers of wood chips usually with a binder at a high temperature.

hard·boil (härd'boil') v. tr. hard--boiled, hard--boil·ing, hard--boils. To boil (an egg) in the shell to a solid consistency. [Back-formation from HARD-BOILED.]

hard·boiled (härd'boild') adj. 1. Cooked by boiling in the shell to a solid consistency. Used of eggs. 2. Callous; unfeeling. 3. Unsentimental and practical; tough.

hard·bound (härd'bound') adj. & n. Printing. Hardback.

hard coal (härd kôl) n. See anthracite.

hard copy (härd kôp'ē) n. A printed copy of the output of a computer or word processor.

hard core (härd kôr) n. 1. The most dedicated, unfailingly loyal faction of a group or an organization: the hard core of the separatist movement. 2. An intractable core or nucleus of a society, especially one that is stubbornly resistant to improvement or change.

hard-core also hard·core (härd/'kôr', -kôr') adj. 1. Intensely loyal; die-hard: a hard-core secessionist; a hard-core golfer. 2. Stubbornly resistant to improvement or change: hard-core poverty. 3. Extremely graphic or explicit: hard-core pornography.

hard·cov·er (härd/'kuv'ər) adj. & n. Printing. Hardback.

hard disk (härd dĭsk) n. Computer Science. A rigid magnetic disk fixed permanently within a drive unit and used for storing computer data. Hard disks generally offer more storage and quicker access to data than floppy disks do.

Har·de·ca·nute or Har·di·ca·nute (här/'dĭ-kə-nōōt', -nyōōt'), 1019?-1042. King of England (1040-1042) and of Denmark (1035-1042). The legitimate son of King Canute, he claimed the English throne after the death of Harold I, Canute's illegitimate son.

hard·edge (härd/'ěj') n. A form of abstract painting characterized by clearly defined geometric shapes and often bright colors.

hard-edged (härd/'ēj'd') adj. Inclined to hold a position; severe: "In those magazine pieces the children were splendidly self-willed, hard-edged, perverse, indomitable" (Alice Munro).

hard·en (här/'dn) v. hard·ened, hard·en·ing, hard·ens. — v. tr. 1. To make hard or harder. 2. To enable to withstand physical or mental hardship. 3. To make unfeeling, unsympathetic, or callous: "To love love and not its meaning hardens the heart in monstrous ways" (Archibald MacLeish). 4. To make sharp, as in outline. 5. To protect (nuclear weapons) by surrounding with earth or concrete. — v. intr. 1. To become hard or harder. 2. To rise and become stable. Used of prices. 3. To become inured.

SYNONYMS: harden, acclimate, acclimatize, season, toughen. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to make resistant to hardship, especially through continued exposure": was hardened to life on the frontier; is becoming acclimated to the tropical heat; was acclimatized by long hours to overwork; became seasoned to life in prison; toughened by experience and criticism.

ANTONYM: soften

Har·den (här/'dn), Sir Arthur. 1865-1940. British biochemist. He shared a 1929 Nobel Prize for research on the fermentation of sugars.

Har·den·berg (här/'dn-bürg', -bĕrk'), Prince Karl August von. 1750-1822. Prussian politician who served as minister of foreign affairs (1804-1806) and chancellor (1810-1822).

hard·en·er (här/'dn-ər) n. One that hardens, especially a substance added to varnish or paint to give it a harder surface or finish.

hard-en-ing (här'dn-ĭng) n. 1. The act or process of becoming hard or harder. 2. Something that hardens, as a substance added to iron to yield steel. 3. Gradual exposure of plants to cold weather.

hardening of the arteries (här'dn-ĭng ũv thē är'tə-rēz) n. Arteriosclerosis.

hard-fist-ed (här'dfĭs'tĭd) adj. Tightfisted; stingy.

hard-hack (här'd'hăk') n. A woody plant (Spiraea tomentosa) of eastern North America, having leaves with rusty down on the undersides and spikelike clusters of small, rose-purple flowers. Also called steeplebush hard-hand-ed (här'd'hăn'dĭd) adj. 1. Having hands calloused or hardened by work. 2. Oppressive; tyrannical. —hard'-hand'ed-ness n.

hard-hat or hard-hat (här'd'hăt') n. 1. a. A lightweight protective helmet, usually of metal or reinforced plastic, worn by workers in industrial settings. b. Informal. A construction worker. 2. Slang. a. An ultraconservative. b. An extremely patriotic person with a conventional, usually unquestioning sense of morality. — adj. 1. Relating to heavy industry, construction, or demolition. 2. Informal. Of, relating to, or characterized by extreme conservatism. 3. Slang. Extremely patriotic.

hard-head (här'd'hĕd') n. 1. A shrewd, tough person. 2. A stubborn, unmovable person. 3. pl. hardhead or hard-heads. Any of several fishes having a bony head, especially the Atlantic croaker.

hard-head-ed (här'd'hĕd'ĭd) adj. 1. Stubborn; willful. 2. Realistic; pragmatic. —hard'head'ed-ly adv. —hard'head'ed-ness n.

hard-heart-ed (här'd'hăr'tĭd) adj. Lacking in feeling or compassion; pitiless and cold. —hard'heart'ed-ly adv. —hard'heart'ed-ness n.

hard-hit-ting (här'd'hĭt'ĭng) adj. Effective; forceful.

Har-di-ca-nute (här'dĭ-kə-nōot', -nyōot') See Hardecanut.

har-di-hood (här'dĕ-hōöd') n. 1. Boldness and daring. 2. Impudence or insolence.

Har-ding (här'dĭng), Chester. 1792-1866. American portrait painter whose subjects included Daniel Webster, Daniel Boone, and John C. Calhoun.

Har-ding (här'dĭng), Florence Mabel King. 1860-1924. First Lady of the United States (1921-1923) as the wife of President Warren G. Harding. She worked tirelessly for her husband's election to the presidency.

Har-ding (här'dĭng), Warren Gamaliel. 1865-1923. The 29th President of the United States (1921-1923), who made several misguided appointments that led to a corrupt administration. He died in office.

hard labor (härdlă'bər) n. Compulsory physical labor coincident with a prison term imposed as punishment for a crime.

hard landing (härdlăn'dĭng) n. The landing by impact of a spacecraft unequipped with or not using devices such as retrorockets to slow it down.

hard line (hård līn) n. A firm, uncompromising policy, position, or stance.

hard-line also hard·line (hård'lin') adj. Firm and uncompromising, as in policy, position, or stance: a hard-line foreign policy. —hard'·lin'er n.

hard·ly (hård'lē) adv. 1. Barely; just. 2. To almost no degree; almost not: I could hardly hear the speaker. 3. Probably or almost surely not: “Easily was a man made an infidel, but hardly might he be converted to another faith” (T.E. Lawrence). 4. With severity; harshly. 5. With great difficulty; painfully. [Middle English hardli, from Old English heardlice, harshly, bravely, from heard, hard. See HARD.]

USAGE NOTE: The use of hardly with a negative is avoided in Standard English. Some critics have been puzzled that adverbs such as hardly, rarely, and scarcely should be treated as negatives in the traditional strictures against double negation, which tars sentences like I couldn't hardly see him with the same brush as I didn't get none. After all, they argue, the sentence Mary hardly laughed entails that Mary did laugh, not that she didn't, and therefore does not express a negative proposition. But hardly and scarcely occur with other negative expressions in a number of ways. For one thing, they combine with items such as any and at all, which are characteristically associated with negative contexts: we say I hardly saw him at all or I never saw him at all but not I occasionally saw him at all; we say I hardly had any time or I didn't have any time but not I had any time, and so on. Like other negative adverbs, hardly triggers inversion of the subject and auxiliary when it begins a sentence. Thus we say Hardly had I arrived when she left, on the pattern of Never have I read such a book or At no time has he condemned the movement. Such inversion is not used with other adverbs: we would not say Occasionally has he addressed this question or To a slight degree have they changed their position. The fact is that adverbs such as hardly are semantically negative in that they qualify a state or an event relative to the limiting case of nonoccurrence. Thus the meaning of hardly is, roughly, “almost not at all”; the meaning of rarely is “practically never”; and so forth. These adverbs are felt to have a negative component in their meaning, and it should not be surprising that grammarians have reacted to combinations of hardly with negatives in the same way that they have reacted to combinations of pairs of negatives such as not and none. See Usage Note at double negative. See Usage Note at rarely. See Usage Note at scarcely.

hard maple (hård mǎ'pəl) n. See sugar maple.

hard·ness (hård'nīs) n. Abbr. h., H. 1. The quality or condition of being hard. 2. Mineralogy. The relative resistance of a mineral to scratching, as measured by the Mohs scale. 3. The relative resistance of a metal or other material to denting, scratching, or bending.

hard news (härd nōōz) n. News, as in a newspaper or television report, that deals with formal or serious topics and events. —hard'-news' (härd'nōōz', -nyōōz'), hard'news' adj.

hard-nosed (härd'nōōzd') adj. Hardheaded.

hard-on (härd'ōn', -ōn') n. Vulgar Slang. An erection of the penis.

hard palate (härd päl'it) n. The relatively hard, bony anterior portion of the palate.

hard-pan (härd'pän') n. 1. A layer of hard subsoil or clay. Also called caliche
2. Hard, unbroken ground. 3. A foundation; bedrock.

hard-pressed (härd'prēst') adj. Experiencing great difficulty or distress: financially hard-pressed.

hard rock (härd rök) n. Music. A style of rock 'n' roll characterized by a harsh, amplified sound and frequently employing distortion, feedback, and other electronic modulations.

hard rubber (härd rüb'ər) n. Ebonite.

hard sauce (härd sôs) n. A creamy sauce of butter and sugar with rum, brandy, or vanilla flavoring, served chilled with puddings, gingerbread, or fruitcakes.

hard-scrab-ble (härd'skräb'əl) adj. Earning a bare subsistence, as on the land; marginal: the sharecropper's hardscrabble life. — n. Barren or marginal farmland.

hard sell (härd sēl) n. Informal. 1. Aggressive, high-pressure selling or promotion. 2. A person or an organization that resists pressure from salespeople; a difficult sales prospect.

hard-set (härd'sēt') adj. Fixed; rigid.

hard-shell (härd'shēl') n. A hard-shell clam or crab. — adj. also hard-shelled (-shēld') 1. Having a thick, heavy, or hardened shell.

2. Uncompromising; confirmed.

hard-shell clam (härd'shēl' klām) n. See quahog.

hard-shell crab (härd'shēl' kräb) n. A marine crab with a fully hardened shell, especially an edible crab in this stage.

hard-shelled (härd'shēld') adj. Variant of hard-shell.

hard-ship (härd'shīp') n. 1. Extreme privation; suffering. 2. A cause of privation or suffering. See Synonyms at difficulty.

hard-spun (härd'spūn') adj. Twisted tightly in spinning, often to the point of curling and looping. Used of yarn.

hard-stand (härd'ständ') n. A hard-surfaced area for parking aircraft or ground vehicles.

hard-tack (härd'täk') n. A hard biscuit or bread made with only flour and water. Also called sea biscuit, sea bread, ship biscuit.

hard-top (härd'töp') n. An automobile designed to look like a convertible but having a rigidly fixed, hard top.

Har-dwar (här'dwär', hûr'-) A city of northern India on the Ganges River north-northeast of Delhi. It is a Hindu pilgrimage center. Population, 114,180.

hard-ware (härd'wâr') n. Abbr. hdwe. 1. Metal goods and utensils such as locks, tools, and cutlery. 2. a. Computer Science. A computer and the associated physical equipment directly involved in the performance of data-processing or communications functions. b. Machines and other physical equipment directly involved in performing an industrial, technological, or military function.

3. Informal. Weapons, especially military weapons. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: hardware manufacturers; hardware add-ons.

Hard-wicke (härd'wîk'), Sir Cedric Webster. 1893-1964. British actor who appeared in a number of plays, including Back to Methuselah (1924) and Promise (1936), and in numerous motion pictures.

hard-wired (härd'wîrd') adj. 1. Computer Science. Of, relating to, or implemented through logic circuitry permanently connected within a computer or calculator and therefore not subject to change by programming. 2. Directly connected by electrical wires or cables. — hard/wire' v.

hard-wood (härd'wööd') n. 1. The wood of a dicotyledonous tree. 2. A dicotyledonous tree.

har-dy¹ (här'dē) adj. har-di-er, har-di-est. 1. Being in robust and sturdy good health. See Synonyms at healthy. 2. Courageous; intrepid. 3. Brazenly daring; audacious. 4. Capable of surviving unfavorable conditions, such as cold weather or lack of moisture. Used especially of cultivated plants. [Middle English, from Old French hardi, past participle of hardir, make hard, embolden, of Germanic origin. See kar- in Appendix.] — har/di-ly adv. — har/di-ness n.

har-dy² (här'dē) n. pl. har-dies. A square-shanked chisel that fits into a square hole in an anvil. [Probably from HARD.] Har-dy (här'dē), Oliver. 1892-1957. American comedian famous for the slapstick abuse he inflicted upon his partner in the comedy team of Laurel and Hardy.

Har-dy (här'dē), Thomas. 1840-1928. British writer noted for his Wessex novels, including Far from the Madding Crowd (1874), The Mayor of Casterbridge (1886), and Tess of the d'Urbervilles (1891).

Har-dy-Wein-berg law (här'dē-wîn'bûrg lô) n. A fundamental principle in population genetics stating that the genotype frequencies and gene frequencies of a large, randomly mating population remain constant provided immigration, mutation, and selection do not take place. [After Godfrey Harold Hardy (1877-1947), British mathematician, and Wilhelm Weinberg (1862-1937), German physician.]

hare (hâr) n. Any of various mammals of the family Leporidae, especially of the genus Lepus, similar to rabbits but having longer ears and legs and giving birth to active, furred young. — v. intr. hared, har-ing, hares. To move hurriedly, as if hunting a swift quarry: went haring off after a lower-priced car. [Middle English, from Old English hara. See kas- in Appendix.]

hare and hounds (hâr ənd houndz) n. Games. A game in which one group of players leaves a trail of paper scraps for a pursuing group to follow.

hare·bell (hâr'běl') n. A perennial plant (Campanula rotundifolia) having slender stems, dense clusters of basal leaves, and bell-shaped blue or white flowers. Also called bluebell hare·brained (hâr'brānd') adj. Foolish; flighty: a harebrained scheme.

USAGE NOTE: The first part of the compound harebrained is often misspelled hair in the belief that the meaning of the word is “with a hair-sized brain” rather than “with no more sense than a hare.” Though hairbrained has a long history, this spelling is not established usage.

Ha·re Krish·na (hä'rē krīsh'nə) n. pl. Hare Krish·nas. 1. A chant to the Hindu god Krishna. 2. Informal. a. A member of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON), founded in the United States in 1966. b. The society itself. [From the chant Hare Krishna: Sanskrit hare, vocative of Harīḥ, a name of Vishnu (from hari-, yellow-green, tawny yellow); see ghel-² in Appendix + Sanskrit Kṛṣṇā, Krishna.]

hare·lip (hâr'lip') n. A congenital deformity characterized by a vertical cleft or pair of clefts in the upper lip. —hare/lipped' adj.

har·em (hâr'əm, hâr'-) n. 1. A house or a section of a house reserved for women members of a Muslim household. 2. The wives, concubines, female relatives, and servants occupying such a place. 3. A group of women sexual partners for one man. [Turkish, from Persian ḥaram, from Arabic ḥarīm, sacred, forbidden place, from ḥarama, to be prohibited.]

Har·greaves (hâr'grēvz'), James. Died 1778. British inventor of the spinning jenny (c. 1764). He patented his device in 1770.

har·i·cot¹ (hâr'i-kō') n. The edible pod or seed of any of several beans, especially the kidney bean. [French, possibly alteration (influenced by French haricot, stew); see HARICOT², of Nahuatl ayacotli.]

har·i·cot² (hâr'i-kō') n. A highly seasoned mutton or lamb stew with vegetables. [French, from Old French hericot, hericoq, possibly from harigoter, to cut into pieces, probably of Germanic origin.]

ha·ri·ka·ri (hâr'ē-kār'ē, hâr'ē-kār'ē) n. Variant of hara-kiri.

Har·ing·ton or Har·ring·ton (hâr'ing-tən), Sir John. 1561-1612. English writer known for his translation (1591) of Ariosto's Orlando Furioso. He was banished from Elizabeth's court because of his satires.

Ha·ri·ri (hə-rē'rē, KHä-), al-. 1054-1122. Arabian poet and scholar remembered for his Maqamat, a collection of discourses.

Ha·ri Rud (här'ē rōōd') A river, about 1,126 km (700 mi) long, of northwest Afghanistan, northeast Iran, and southern Turkmenistan. Its lower course forms part of the Afghanistan-Turkmenistan border.

hark (härk) v. intr. harked, hark·ing, harks. To listen attentively. —idiom.

hark back. To return to a previous point, as in a narrative. [Middle English harken, herken, from Old English heorcian*.]

har·ken (här'kən) v. Variant of hearken.

Har·lan (här'lən), John Marshall. 1833-1911. American jurist. As an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1877-1911) he was known for his outspoken dissenting opinions. His grandson John Marshall Harlan (1899-1971) also served as an associate justice of the Court (1955-1971).

Har·lem (här'ləm) A section of New York City in northern Manhattan bordering on the Harlem and East rivers. Peter Stuyvesant established the Dutch settlement of Nieuw Haarlem here in 1658. A rapid influx of Black people beginning c. 1910 made it one of the largest Black communities in the United States. In the 1920's a flowering of Black art and literature was known as the Harlem Renaissance. After World War II many Hispanics settled in East (or Spanish) Harlem. —Har'lem·ite' n.

Harlem River (här'ləm rīv'ər) A channel in New York City separating the northern end of Manhattan Island from the Bronx. With Spuyten Duyvil Creek it connects the Hudson and East rivers.

har·le·quin (här'lī-kwīn, -kīn) n. 1. Harlequin. A conventional buffoon of the commedia dell'arte, traditionally presented in a mask and parti-colored tights. 2. A clown; a buffoon. — adj. Abbr. hlqn Having a pattern of brightly colored diamond shapes. [Obsolete French, from Old French Herlequin, Hellequin, a demon, perhaps from Middle English Herleking*, from Old English Herlacyning, King Herla, a mythical figure identified with Woden.]

har·le·quin·ade (här'lī-kwə-nād') n. 1. A comedy or pantomime in which Harlequin is the main attraction. 2. Farcical clowning or buffoonery. [Obsolete French, from harlequin, harlequin. See HARLEQUIN.]

harlequin bug (här'lī-kwīn būg) n. A flat-bodied, brightly colored stinkbug (Murgantia histrionica) that is destructive to cabbage and other cruciferous plants. Also called calicoback Har·ley (här'lē), Robert First Earl of Oxford. 1661-1724. British politician. As chief minister (1710-1714) to Anne he helped negotiate an end to the War of the Spanish Succession (1701-1713).

Har·lin·gen (här'līn-jən) A city of extreme southern Texas northwest of Brownsville. It is a processing and shipping center for the lower Rio Grande valley. Population, 43,543.

har·lot (här'lət) n. A prostitute. [Middle English, vagabond, rogue, lecher, harlot, from Old French arlot, herlot, vagabond.] —har'lot·ry (-lə-trē) n.

WORD HISTORY: Harlot is first recorded in English in a work written around the beginning of the 13th century, meaning “a man of no fixed occupation, vagabond, beggar,” also the first main sense of the word herlot, which we borrowed from Old French. The recorded history of a word is sometimes all we need to scotch conjectures as to its ultimate origins. William Lambarde, in a 1570-1576 work, suggested that the word harlot came from the name of Arletta, or “Harlothe,” William the Conqueror’s mother. As we have seen, Lambarde was unnecessarily besmirching her, for the history of harlot makes clear that “prostitute” was not its first sense. In fact, the word came to mean “male lecher” before it meant “prostitute,” but by the time Lambarde wrote, “prostitute” must have been thought to have been the main sense of the word, hence his etymology.

Har·low (här'lō) An urban district of southeast England northeast of London. It was designated as a new town in 1946 to alleviate overpopulation in London. Population, 79,400.

Har·low (här'lō), Jean. 1911-1937. American actress known for her beauty and sardonic wit. Her films include Hell's Angels (1930) and Red Dust (1932).

harm (härm) n. 1. Physical or psychological injury or damage. 2. Wrong; evil. — v. tr. harmed, harm-ing, harms. To do harm to. See Synonyms at injure. [Middle English, from Old English hearm.]

har·mat·tan (här'mə-tän', här-mät'n) n. A dry, dusty wind that blows along the northwest coast of Africa. [Akan (Twi) haramata, possibly from Arabic ḥarām, evil thing.]

harm·ful (härm'fəl) adj. Causing or capable of causing harm; injurious. — harm'ful-ly adv. — harm'ful-ness n.

harm·less (härm'līs) adj. 1. Incapable of causing harm. 2. Free from loss or legal liability: Under the agreement, I would be held harmless if the other parties defaulted. — harm'less-ly adv. — harm'less-ness n.

har·mo·lod·ic (här'mə-lōd'ik) adj. Music. Relating to a style of modern improvisational music in which different, contrasting instruments are played in different keys or tempos. [Possibly from HAR(MONY) + MO(VEMENT) + (ME)LODIC.]

har·mon·ic (här-mön'ik) adj. 1. Music. a. Of or relating to harmony. b. Pleasing to the ear: harmonic orchestral effects. c. Characterized by harmony: a harmonic liturgical chant. 2. Of or relating to harmonics. 3. Integrated in nature. — n. Music. 1. a. A tone in the harmonic series of overtones produced by a fundamental tone. b. A tone produced on a stringed instrument by lightly touching an open or stopped vibrating string at a given fraction of its length so that both segments vibrate. Also called overtone, partial, partial tone. 2. A wave whose frequency is a whole-number multiple of that of another. 3. harmonics.

(used with a sing. verb). The theory or study of the physical properties and characteristics of musical sound. [Latin harmonicus, from Greek harmonikos, from harmonia, harmony. See HARMONY.] —har·mon'i-cal·ly adv.

har·mon-i-ca (här-mön'ī-kə) n. Music. 1. A small, rectangular instrument consisting of a row of free reeds set back in air holes, played by exhaling or inhaling. Also called mouth organ 2. A glass harmonica. 3. An instrument consisting of tuned strips of metal or glass fixed to a frame and struck with a hammer. [Alteration of obsolete armonica, glass harmonica, from Italian, feminine of armonico, harmonious, from Latin harmonicus, harmonic. See HARMONIC.]

harmonic analysis (här-mön'īk ə-näl'ī-sīs) n. Mathematics. The representation of functions by means of linear operations such as summation or integration on characteristic sets of functions, especially such representation by Fourier series.

harmonic mean (här-mön'īk mēn) n. Mathematics. The reciprocal of the arithmetic mean of the reciprocals of a specified set of numbers.

harmonic motion (här-mön'īk mō'shən) n. A periodic vibration, as of a violin string, in which the motions are symmetrical about a region of equilibrium. Such a vibration may have only one frequency and amplitude or may be a combination of two or more components. Also called simple harmonic motion harmonic progression (här-mön'īk prə-grēsh'ən) n. Mathematics. A sequence of quantities whose reciprocals form an arithmetic progression, such as 1, 3, 5, 7,....

harmonic series (här-mön'īk sîr'ēz) n. 1. Mathematics. A series whose terms are in harmonic progression, as $1 + 3 + 5 + 7 + \dots$ 2. Music. A series of tones consisting of a fundamental tone and the overtones produced by it, and whose frequencies are consecutive integral multiples of the frequency of the fundamental.

har·mo-ni-ous (här-mō'nē-əs) adj. 1. Exhibiting accord in feeling or action. 2. Having component elements pleasingly or appropriately combined: a harmonious blend of architectural styles. 3. Characterized by harmony of sound; melodious. —har·mo'ni-ous-ly adv. —har·mo'ni-ous-ness n.

har·mo-nist (här'mə-nīst) n. Music. One skilled in harmony. —har'mo-nis'tic adj. —har'mo-nis'ti-cal·ly adv.

har·mo-ni-um (här-mō'nē-əm) n. Music. An organlike keyboard instrument that produces tones with free metal reeds actuated by air forced from a bellows. [French, from harmonie, harmony, from Old French armonie, harmonie. See HARMONY.]

har·mo-nize (här'mə-nīz') v. har·mo-nized, har·mo-niz-ing, har·mo-niz-es. — v. tr. 1. To bring or come into agreement or harmony. See Synonyms at agree. 2. Music. To provide harmony for (a melody). — v. intr. 1. To be in agreement; be harmonious. 2. Music. To sing or play in harmony. —har'mo-ni-za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n. —har'mo-niz'er n.

har·mo·ny (här'mə-nē) n. pl. har·mo·nies. 1. Agreement in feeling or opinion; accord: live in harmony. 2. A pleasing combination of elements in a whole: color harmony; the order and harmony of the universe. See Synonyms at propor·tion. 3. Music. a. The study of the structure, progression, and relation of chords. b. Simultaneous combination of notes in a chord. c. The structure of a work or passage as considered from the point of view of its chordal characteristics and relationships. d. A combination of sounds considered pleasing to the ear. 4. A collation of parallel passages, especially from the Gospels, with a commentary demonstrating their consonance and explaining their discrepancies. [Middle English armonie, from Old French, from Latin harmonia, from Greek, articulation, agreement, harmony, from harmos, joint. See ar- in Appendix.]

harm's way (härmz wā) n. A risky position; danger: a place for the children that is out of harm's way; ships that sail into harm's way.

Harms·worth (härmz'wûrth'), Alfred Charles William Viscount Northcliffe. 1865-1922. British newspaper publisher who founded the Daily Mail (1896) and the Daily Mirror (1903).

har·ness (här'nīs) n. 1. The gear or tackle, other than a yoke, with which a draft animal pulls a vehicle or an implement. 2. Something resembling such gear or tackle, as the arrangement of straps used to hold a parachute to the body. 3. A device that raises and lowers the warp threads on a loom. 4. Archaic. Armor for a man or horse. — v. tr. har·nessed, har·ness·ing, har·ness·es. 1. a. To put a harness on (a draft animal). b. To fasten by the use of a harness. 2. To bring under control and direct the force of: If you can harness your energy, you will accomplish a great deal. — idiom. in harness. On duty or at work. [Middle English harnes, from Old French harneis, of Germanic origin. See nes¹ in Appendix.] — har'ness·er n.

har·nessed antelope (här'nīst äñ'tl-ōp') n. See bushbuck.

harness race (här'nīs rās) n. Sports. A horserace between pacers or trotters harnessed to sulkies. — harness racing n.

Har·ney Peak (här'nē pēk) A mountain, 2,208.8 m (7,242 ft) high, of southwest South Dakota. It is the highest elevation of the Black Hills and the highest point in the state.

Har·old I (här'əld), Known as "Harold Harefoot." Died 1040. King of England (1035-1040). The illegitimate son of Canute, Harold claimed the English throne after his father's death.

Har·old II (här'əld), 1022?-1066. King of England (1066) and the last of the Anglo-Saxon monarchs. He succeeded Edward the Confessor and was killed fighting the invasion of William the Conqueror.

Har·old III (här'əld), 1015-1066. King of Norway (1045-1066) who invaded England in 1066 and was killed in a battle against Harold II.

Ha·roun al-Ra·schid (hä-rōon' ä'l-rä-shēd') See Harun al-Rashid.

harp (härp) n. 1. Music. An instrument consisting of an upright, open triangular frame with usually 46 strings of graded lengths played by plucking with the fingers. 2. Something, such as a pair of vertical supports for a lampshade, that resembles this musical instrument. — v. intr. harped, harp-ing, harps. To play a harp. — phrasal verb. harp on. To talk or write about to an excessive and tedious degree; dwell on. [Middle English, from Old English hearpe, and from Old French harpe of Germanic origin.] — harp'er n. — harp'ist n.

Har-per (hä'r'pər) Family of American printers and publishers, including James (1795-1869), John (1797-1875), Joseph Wesley (1801-1870), and Fletcher (1806-1877). They established Harper and Brothers publishing company (1833) and founded Harper's magazine (1850).

Har-pers Ferry (hä'r'pərz fēr'ē) A locality of extreme northeast West Virginia. It was the scene of John Brown's rebellion (1859), in which he briefly seized the U.S. arsenal here. The town changed hands a number of times during the Civil War.

Harper Woods (hä'r'pər wöödz) A city of southeast Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. Population, 16,361.

har-poon (hä-r-pōon') n. A spearlike weapon with a barbed head used in hunting whales and large fish. — v. tr. har-pooned, har-poon-ing, har-poons. To strike, kill, or capture with or as if with a spearlike weapon. [Probably from Dutch harpoen, from Middle Dutch, from Old French harpon, possibly from harpe, clamp, claw, from Latin harpa, sickle, from Greek harpē.] — har-poon'er n.

harpoon gun (hä-r-pōon' gŭn) n. A small cannonlike apparatus used to fire harpoons.

harp seal (härp sēl) n. An earless seal (Pagophilus groenlandicus) of the North Atlantic and Arctic oceans whose pups are hunted for their fine, white fur. [From the shape of the markings on its shoulders and sides.]

harp-si-chord (härp'si-kōrd', -kōrd') n. Music. A keyboard instrument whose strings are plucked by means of quills or plectrums. [Alteration of obsolete French harpechorde, from Italian arpicordo : arpa, harp (from Late Latin harpa, of Germanic origin) + corda, string (from Latin chorda, from Greek khordē); see gher- in Appendix.] — harp'si-chord'ist n.

Har-py (hä'r'pē) n. pl. Har-pies. 1. Greek Mythology. One of several loathsome, voracious monsters with the head and trunk of a woman and the tail, wings, and talons of a bird. 2. harpy. A predatory person. 3. harpy. A shrewish woman.

har-que-bus (hä'r'kə-bəs, -kwə-) also ar-que-bus (är'-) n. A heavy, portable matchlock gun invented during the 15th century. Also called hackbut [Obsolete French harquebuse, from Old French, alteration of Middle Dutch hakebus : hake, hook; see keg- in Appendix + busse, gun (from Late Latin buxis, box); see BOX¹.]

Har-ran (hä-rän') See Haran.

har-ri-dan (hăŕ'ī-dn) n. A woman regarded as scolding and vicious. [Possibly from French haridelle, gaunt woman, old horse, nag.]

har-ri-er¹ (hăŕ'ē-ər) n. 1. One that harries. 2. Any of various slender, narrow-winged hawks of the genus Circus, such as the marsh hawk, that prey on small animals. [Sense 2, alteration (influenced by HARRY), of obsolete harrower, from HARROW².]

har-ri-er² (hăŕ'ē-ər) n. 1. Any of a breed of small hounds originally used in hunting hares and rabbits. 2. Sports. A cross-country runner. [Middle English hairer, eirer, possibly alteration (influenced by hair, hare, hare); see HARE, of Old French errier, wanderer, from errer, to wander. See ERR.]

Har-ri-man (hăŕ'ə-mən), Edward Henry. 1848-1909. American railway magnate. He joined J.P. Morgan and James J. Hill to form the Northern Securities Company, a railroad trust that was ordered dissolved by the U.S. Supreme Court (1904).

Har-ri-man (hăŕ'ə-mən), Florence Jaffray. 1870-1967. American diplomat who served as ambassador to Norway from 1937 to 1940.

Har-ri-man (hăŕ'ə-mən), (William) Averell. 1891-1986. American financier and diplomat who held a number of public offices, including ambassador to the U.S.S.R. (1943-1946) and U.S. secretary of commerce (1946-1948).

Har-ring-ton (hăŕ'ŷng-tən), Sir John. See Sir John Harington.

Har-ris (hăŕ'ŷs), Benjamin. fl. 1673-1713. English publisher and journalist in Massachusetts. His Publick Occurrences was the first newspaper printed in America (1690).

Har-ris (hăŕ'ŷs), Frank. 1856-1931. Irish-born American writer known for his autobiography My Life and Loves (three volumes, 1923-1927).

Har-ris (hăŕ'ŷs), Joel Chandler. 1848-1908. American writer and journalist who wrote Uncle Remus: His Songs and His Sayings (1880) and its many sequels.

Har-ris (hăŕ'ŷs), Julie. Born 1925. American actress noted for her performances in a number of plays and films, including The Member of the Wedding (play, 1950; film, 1952).

Har-ris (hăŕ'ŷs), Louis. Known as "Lou." Born 1921. American public-opinion analyst. He established Louis Harris and Associates, Inc. (1956), a firm known for its election polling.

Har-ris (hăŕ'ŷs), Patricia Roberts. 1924-1985. American public official who served as secretary of health, education, and welfare (1979-1981).

Har-ris (hăŕ'ŷs), Roy Ellsworth. 1898-1979. American composer known especially for his folk-inspired symphonies.

Har-ris (hăŕ'ŷs), Townsend. 1804-1878. American diplomat who as the first U.S. consul general to Japan (1855-1860) was instrumental in opening that country to Western trade.

Har-ris (hăř'ıs), William Torrey. 1835-1909. American philosopher, editor, and educator who established the first public-school kindergarten in the United States (1873).

Har-ris-burg (hăř'ıs-bûrg') The capital of Pennsylvania, in the southeast-central part of the state west-northwest of Philadelphia. Settled in the early 1700's as Harris' Ferry, it was renamed in 1785 and became the capital in 1812. Population, 52,376.

Har-ri-son (hăř'ĩ-sən) A village of southeast New York, a residential suburb of New York City. Population, 23,308.

Har-ri-son¹ (hăř'ĩ-sən), Benjamin. 1726-1791. American Revolutionary leader who served as a member of the Continental Congress (1774-1778) and was also governor of Virginia (1782-1784).

Har-ri-son² (hăř'ĩ-sən), Benjamin. 1833-1901. The 23rd President of the United States (1889-1893). The first Pan-American Conference took place (1889) during his administration.

Har-ri-son (hăř'ĩ-sən), George. Born 1943. British musician and composer who was a member of the Beatles. His best-known compositions include "Here Comes the Sun" and "Tax Man."

Har-ri-son (hăř'ĩ-sən), Peter. 1716-1775. British-born American architect noted as the designer of King's Chapel in Boston and Christ Church in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Har-ri-son (hăř'ĩ-sən), Sir Reginald Carey. Known as "Rex." 1908-1990. British actor best remembered for his portrayal of Professor Henry Higgins in the Broadway musical and film versions of My Fair Lady, for which he was awarded a Tony (1956) and an Academy Award (1964).

Har-ri-son (hăř'ĩ-sən), William Henry. 1773-1841. The ninth President of the United States (1841). He died of pneumonia after one month in office.

Har-ri-son-burg (hăř'ĩ-sən-bûrg') An independent city of north-central Virginia northwest of Charlottesville. It is a processing center in an agricultural region. Population, 30,707.

Har-ro-gate (hăř'ə-gət, -gāt') A municipal borough of north-central England north of Leeds. It is a popular health resort with mineral springs used for therapeutic treatment since 1596. Population, 67,000.

har-row¹ (hăř'ō) n. A farm implement consisting of a heavy frame with sharp teeth or upright disks, used to break up and even off plowed ground. — v. tr. har-rowed, har-row-ing, har-rows. 1. To break up and level (soil or land) with a harrow. 2. To inflict great distress or torment on. [Middle English harwe.] —har'row-er n.

har-row² (hăř'ō) v. tr. har-rowed, har-row-ing, har-rows. Archaic. To plunder; sack. [Middle English herwen, variant of harien. See HARRY.]

Har-row (här'ō) A mainly residential district of northeast Greater London. It is the site of the public school Harrow, founded in 1571.

har-row-ing (här'ō-īng) adj. Extremely distressing; agonizing: a harrowing experience.

har-rumph (hə-rūmf') v. intr. har-rumphed, har-rumph-ing, har-rumphs. 1. To make a show of clearing one's throat. 2. To offer usually brief critical comments: har-rumphed for a while over the proposal. [Imitative.]

—har-rumph' n.

har-ry (här'ē) v. tr. har-ried, har-ry-ing, har-ries. 1. To disturb or distress by or as if by repeated attacks; harass. See Synonyms at harass. 2. To raid, as in war; sack or pillage. [Middle English harrien, from Old English hergian. See koro- in Appendix.]

harsh (härsh) adj. harsh-er, harsh-est. 1. Unpleasantly coarse and rough to the touch. See Synonyms at rough. 2. Disagreeable to the senses, especially to the sense of hearing. 3. Extremely severe or exacting; stern. [Middle English harsk, of Scandinavian origin.] —harsh/ly adv. —harsh/ness n.

harsh-en (här'shən) v. tr. intr. harsh-ened, harsh-en-ing, harsh-ens. To make or become harsh.

hars-let (här'slīt) n. Variant of haslet.

hart (härt) n. pl. harts or hart. A male deer, especially a male red deer over five years old. [Middle English, from Old English heorot. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

Hart (härt), Albert Bushnell. 1854-1943. American historian who edited or produced more than 100 works on American history, most notably Epochs of American History (1891-1926).

Hart (härt), Lorenz Milton. 1895-1943. American lyricist whose song credits include "The Lady Is a Tramp," "My Funny Valentine," and "Blue Moon."

Hart (härt), Moss. 1904-1961. American playwright, librettist, and director. He wrote a number of Broadway comedies with George S. Kaufman, including Once in a Lifetime (1930) and The Man Who Came to Dinner (1939).

Hart (härt), William Surrey. 1872?-1946. American actor known for his roles in Two-Gun Hicks (1914), Desert Dust (1927), and a number of other Westerns.

Harte (härt), (Francis) Bret. 1836-1902. American writer noted for his stories about California mining towns. The Luck of Roaring Camp and Other Sketches (1870) is his best-known collection.

har-te-beest (här'tə-bēst', här't'bēst') n. pl. har-te-beests or hartebeest. Any of various large African antelopes of the genus Alcelaphus, characterized by a reddish-brown coat and ringed, outward-curving horns. [Obsolete Afrikaans, from Middle Dutch, variant of hertebeest: hert, deer; see ker-¹ in Appendix + beest, beast (from Old French beste); see BEAST.]

Hart-ford (härt'fərd) The capital of Connecticut, in the north-central part of the state on the Connecticut River. Settled 1635-1636 by Massachusetts colonists on the site of a Dutch trading post, it became the nucleus of the Connecticut Colony in 1639. From 1701 to 1875 it was joint capital with New Haven. Population, 139,739.

Har-tle-pool (härt'lē-pōol', härt'tl-) A borough of northeast England on the North Sea south-southeast of Newcastle. It is a seaport with iron and steel industries. Population, 94,600.

Hart-line (härt'lin'), Haldan Keffer. 1903-1983. American biophysicist. He shared a 1967 Nobel Prize for research on the human eye.

hart's-tongue (härts'tüŋg') n. A European evergreen fern (Phyllitis scolopendrium) with narrow, undivided fronds. [So called from the shape of its fronds.]

har-um-scar-um (hâr'əm-skâr'əm, hä'r'əm-skär'əm) adj. Lacking a sense of responsibility; reckless. — adv. With abandon; recklessly. [From hare, to frighten + SCARE.]

Ha-run al-Ra-shid or Ha-roun al-Ra-schid (hä-rōon' äl-rä-shēd') also Harun ar-Ra-shid (är'-), 763?-809. Caliph of Baghdad (786-809) noted for his participation in the Muslim holy war against the Byzantines and for the splendor of his court.

ha-rus-pex (hə-rūs'pěks', hä'r'ə-spěks') also a-rus-pex (ə-rūs'pěks') n. pl.

ha-rus-pi-ces (hə-rūs'pī-sēz') also a-rus-pi-ces (ə-rūs'pī-sēz'). A priest in ancient Rome who practiced divination by the inspection of the entrails of animals. [Latin. See gherə- in Appendix.]

Har-vard (här'værd), John. 1607-1638. American cleric and philanthropist who left his library and half his estate to the college in Cambridge, Massachusetts, that now bears his name.

Harvard, Mount. A peak, 4,398.1 m (14,420 ft) high, in the Sawatch Range of the Rocky Mountains in central Colorado.

har-vest (här'vist) n. 1. The act or process of gathering a crop. 2. a. The crop that ripens or is gathered in a season. b. The amount or measure of the crop gathered in a season. c. The time or season of such gathering. 3. The result or consequence of an activity. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a harvest festival; harvest gleanings. — v. har-vest-ed, har-vest-ing, har-vests. — v. tr. 1. To gather (a crop). 2. To gather a crop from. 3. To receive (the benefits or consequences of an action). See Synonyms at reap. — v. intr. To gather a crop. [Middle English, from Old English hærfest. See kerp- in Appendix.] — har'vest-a-ble adj. — har'vest-a-bil'i-ty n.

harvest bug (här'vist bŭg) n. See chigger (n., sense 1).

har-vest-er (här'vī-stər) n. 1. One who gathers a crop. 2. A machine for harvesting crops; a reaper.

harvest fly (här'vist flī) n. Any of several cicadas of the genus Tibicen that produce a shrill sound heard late in summer.

harvest home (här'vĭst hōm) n. 1. The completion of a harvest. 2. a. The time of completing a harvest. b. A festival held at this time. c. A song sung at this time.

har-vest-man (här'vĭst-mən) n. 1. A man who harvests. 2. See daddy long-legs (n., sense 1).

harvest mite (här'vĭst mīt) n. See chigger (n., sense 1).

harvest moon (här'vĭst mōon) n. The full moon that occurs nearest the autumnal equinox.

Har-vey (här'vē) A city of northeast Illinois, an industrial suburb of Chicago. Population, 29,771.

Har-vey (här'vē), William. 1578-1657. English physician, anatomist, and physiologist who discovered the circulation of blood in the human body (1628).

Har-vey (här'vē), William Hope. Known as "Coin." 1851-1936. American economist and publicist who advocated the coinage of silver to ease the monetary crisis of the 1890's.

Harz Mountains (härts moun'tənz) A mountain range of central Germany extending about 97 km (60 mi) between the Weser and the Elbe. The range rises to 1,142.8 m (3,747 ft) and has many mineral springs and resort areas.

has (hăz) v. Third person singular present tense of have.

has-been (hăz'bĭn') n. pl. has-beens. Informal. One that is no longer famous, popular, successful, or useful.

Has-dru-bal (hăz'drōō'bəl, hăz-drōō'-), Died 207 B.C. Carthaginian general who attempted to establish military dominance on the Iberian Peninsula during the Second Punic War but was defeated by Roman forces (207).

ha-sen-pfef-fer (hă'zən-fĕf'ər, -sən-) n. A highly seasoned stew of marinated rabbit meat. [German : Hase, rabbit (from Middle High German, from Old High German haso); see kas- in Appendix + Pfeffer, pepper (from Old High German pfeffar, from Latin piper); see PEPPER.]

hash¹ (hăsh) n. 1. A dish of chopped meat, potatoes, and sometimes vegetables, usually browned. 2. a. A jumble; a hodgepodge. b. Informal. A mess: made a hash of the project. 3. A reworking or restatement of already familiar material. — v. tr. hashed, hash-ing, hash-es. 1. To chop into pieces; mince. 2. Informal. To make a mess of; mangle. 3. Informal. To discuss carefully; review: hash over future plans. — idiom. settle (someone's) hash. Slang. To silence or subdue. [Variant of Middle English hache, from Old French, past participle of hacher, hachier, to chop up, from hache, ax, of Germanic origin. See HATCHET.]

hash² (hăsh) n. Slang. Hashish.

hash browns (hăsh brəunz) pl.n. Chopped cooked potatoes, fried until brown. Also called hash brown potatoes hash-eesh (hăsh'ēsh', hă-shĕsh', hă-) n. Variant of hashish.

hash house (hăsh hous) n. Slang. A cheap restaurant.

hash·ish (hăsh'ēsh', -ish, hă-shēsh', hă-) also hash-eesh (hăsh'ēsh', hă-shēsh', hă-) n. A purified resin prepared from the flowering tops of the female cannabis plant and smoked or chewed as a narcotic or an intoxicant. [Arabic ḥašīš, hemp, dried grass.]

hash mark (hăsh märk) n. 1. A service stripe on the sleeve of an enlisted person's uniform. 2. Football. A mark in either of two series placed on the field perpendicular to the yard lines and used for spotting the ball. [Alteration of HATCH³.]

hash slinger (hăsh slīng'ər) n. Slang. One who provides food in a cheap restaurant.

Ha·sid or Has·sid also Chas·sid (KHă'sīd, KHô'-, hă'-) n. pl. Ha·si·dim or Has·si·dim also Chas·si·dim (KHă-sē'dīm, KHô'-, hă'-). Judaism. A member of a movement of popular mysticism founded in eastern Europe in the 18th century. [From Hebrew ḥāsīd, pious.] — Ha·si'dic adj. — Ha·si'dism n.

has·let (hă's'līt, hăz'-) also hars·let (hăr'slīt) n. The heart, liver, and other edible viscera of an animal, especially hog viscera. [Middle English hastelet, from Old French, diminutive of haste, roast meat, spit, perhaps from Latin hasta, spear, or of Germanic origin.]

has·n't (hăz'ənt) Has not.

hasp (hăsp) n. A metal fastener with a hinged, slotted part that fits over a staple and is secured by a pin, bolt, or padlock. — v. tr. hasped, hasp·ing, hasps. To close or lock with such a fastener. [Middle English, from Old English hæsp, hæpse.]

Has·sam (hă's'əm), (Frederick) Childe. 1859-1935. American painter who used brilliant colors and bold brushwork to depict city street scenes and natural landscapes in works such as Rainy Day in Boston (1885).

Has·sel (hă'səl), Odd. 1897-1981. Norwegian chemist. He shared a 1969 Nobel Prize for the study of organic molecules.

Has·selt (hă's'əlt) A city of northeast Belgium east of Brussels. Chartered in 1232, it was the site of a Dutch defeat of Belgian nationalists in 1831. Population, 65,437.

Has·sid (KHă'sīd, KHô'-, hă'-) n. Variant of Hasid.

has·sle (hă's'əl) Informal. n. 1. An argument or a fight. 2. Trouble; bother. — v. has·sled, has·sling, has·sles. — v. intr. To argue or fight: customers has·sling with merchants over high prices. — v. tr. To bother or harass: street gangs has·sling passersby. [Origin unknown.]

WORD HISTORY: It is difficult to believe that there were no hassles before 1945, but that is the year in which the noun hassle is first recorded in English. The origins of this word might be considered a hassle for the etymologist. An English dialect word, hassle, meaning “to hack at, cut with a blunt knife and with a sawing motion,” is recorded at the end of the 19th century. A Southern dialect word, hassle, “to pant, breathe heavily,” is also a possible source. A more popular notion has been that hassle is a blend, but here again we have a hassle. Three separate possibilities have been proposed, a combination of harass and hustle, haggle and tussle, and haggle and wrestle. Given all these possibilities, it is clear why words such as hassle end up with the etymology “origin unknown.”

has·sock (häs'ək) n. 1. A thick cushion used as a footstool or for kneeling. 2. A dense clump of grass. [Middle English hassok, clump of grass, from Old English hassuc.]

hast (häst) v. Archaic. Second person singular present tense of have.

has·tate (häs'tät') adj. Botany. Having the shape of an arrowhead but with the basal lobes pointing outward at right angles: hastate leaves. [From Latin hasta, spear.] — has'tate'ly adv.

haste (häst) n. 1. Rapidity of action or motion. 2. Overeagerness to act. 3. Rash or headlong action; precipitateness. — v. intr. tr. hast·ed, hast·ing, hastes. To hasten or cause to hasten. — idiom. make haste. To move or act swiftly; hurry. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

SYNONYMS: haste, celerity, dispatch, expedition, hurry, speed. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “rapidity or promptness of movement or activity”: left the room in haste; a legal system not known for celerity; advanced with all possible dispatch; cleaned up the room with remarkable expedition; worked systematically but without hurry; driving with excessive speed.

ANTONYM: deliberation

has·ten (hä'sən) v. has·tened, has·ten·ing, has·tens. — v. intr. To move or act swiftly. — v. tr. 1. To cause to hurry. 2. To speed up; accelerate: fanned the wet paint to hasten drying. See Synonyms at speed.

Has·tie (hä'stē), William Henry. 1904-1976. American jurist who served on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals (1949-1971), the first Black American to do so.

Has·tings (hä'stīngz) 1. A borough of southeast England on the English Channel at the entrance to the Strait of Dover. Hastings is near the site of William the Conqueror's victory over the Saxons (October 14, 1066). Population, 75,900.

2. A city of southern Nebraska south of Grand Island. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 23,045.

Has·tings (hä'stīngz), Thomas. 1860-1929. American architect who with John Mervyn Carrère formed an important architectural firm whose designs include that of the New York Public Library (1897-1911) and numerous mansions.

Has·tings (hā'stīngz), Warren. 1732-1818. British colonial administrator who as governor-general of India (1773-1785) carried out land and legal reforms and instituted British control of the Indian government.

hast·y (hā'stē) adj. hast·i·er, hast·i·est. 1. Characterized by speed; rapid. See Synonyms at fast¹. 2. Done or made too quickly to be accurate or wise; rash: a hasty decision. See Synonyms at impetuous. 3. Easily angered; irritable.

—hast'i·ly adv. —hast'i·ness n.

hasty pudding (hā'stē pōōd'ing) n. 1. Cornmeal mush served with maple syrup, brown sugar, or other sweetening. 2. Chiefly British. A mush made with flour or oatmeal.

hat (hăt) n. 1. A covering for the head, especially one with a shaped crown and brim. 2. a. A head covering of distinctive color and shape worn as a symbol of office. b. The office symbolized by the wearing of such a head covering. 3. A role or an office symbolized by or as if by the wearing of different head coverings: wears two hats—one as parent and one as corporate executive. — v. tr. hat·ted, hat·ting, hats. To supply or cover with a hat. —idioms. at the drop of a hat. At the slightest pretext or provocation. hat in hand. In a humble manner; humbly. pass the hat. To take up a collection of money. take (one's) hat off to. To respect, admire, or congratulate. talk through (one's) hat. 5. To talk nonsense. 6. To bluff. throw (one's) hat into the ring (or toss (one's) hat into the ring). To enter a political race as a candidate for office. under (one's) hat. As a secret or in confidence: Keep this information under your hat. [Middle English, from Old English hæt, hætt.]

hat·band (hăt'bănd') n. A band of ribbon or cloth worn on a hat just above the brim.

hat·box (hăt'böks') n. A box or case for a hat.

hatch¹ (hăch) n. 1. a. An opening, as in the deck of a ship, in the roof or floor of a building, or in an aircraft. b. The cover for such an opening. c. A hatchway. d. Nautical. A ship's compartment. 2. The hinged rear door of a hatchback. 3. A floodgate. —idiom. down the hatch. Slang. Drink up. Often used as a toast. [Middle English, small door, from Old English hæc, hæcc.]

hatch² (hăch) v. hatched, hatch·ing, hatch·es. — v. intr. To emerge from or break out of an egg. — v. tr. 1. To produce (young) from an egg. 2. To cause (an egg or eggs) to produce young. 3. To devise or originate, especially in secret: hatch an assassination plot. — n. 1. The act or an instance of hatching. 2. The young hatched at one time; a brood. [Middle English hacchen, from Old English hæccan*.] —hatch'er n.

hatch³ (hăch) v. tr. hatched, hatch·ing, hatch·es. To shade by drawing or etching fine parallel or crossed lines on. — n. A fine line used in hatching. [Middle English hachen, to engrave, carve, from Old French hacher, hachier, to cross-hatch, cut up. See HASH¹.]

hatch·back (häch'bäk') n. An automobile having a sloping back with a hatch that opens upward.

hat·check (hä'tchëk') n. A room for checking hats and other outer garments.
— n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a hatchcheck concession; a hatchcheck attendant.

hatch·el (häch'əl) n. A comb for separating flax fibers. — v. tr. hatch·eled also hatch·elled, hatch·el·ing also hatch·el·ling, hatch·els also hatch·els. To separate (flax fibers) with a hatchel. [Middle English hechel, possibly from Old English hecel*; akin to Middle Dutch hekel. See HECKLE.]

hatch·er·y (häch'ə-rē) n. pl. hatch·er·ies. A place where eggs, especially those of fish or poultry, are hatched.

hatch·et (häch'it) n. 1. A small, short-handled ax for use in one hand. 2. A tomahawk. [Middle English hachet, from Old French hachete, diminutive of hache, ax, of Germanic origin; akin to Old High German happa, sickle.]

hatchet face (häch'it fās) n. A long, gaunt face with sharp features.
—hatch'et-faced' (häch'it-fāst') adj.

hatchet job (häch'it jōb) n. Slang. A crude or ruthless effort usually ending in destruction: did a hatchet job on the mayor's reputation.

hatchet man (häch'it mǎn) n. Slang. 1. A man hired to commit murder. 2. A man hired or assigned to carry out a disagreeable task or an unscrupulous order.

Hatch·ie (häch'ē) A river rising in northern Mississippi and flowing about 290 km (180 mi) generally northwest to the Mississippi River north of Memphis, Tennessee.

hatch·ing (häch'ing) n. 1. Fine lines used in graphic arts to show shading.
2. The process of decorating with such lines.

hatch·ling (häch'ling) n. A newly hatched bird, amphibian, fish, or reptile.

hatch·ment (häch'mənt) n. Heraldry. A panel bearing the coat of arms of a deceased person. [Alteration of hachement, achiment, from ACHIEVEMENT, escutcheon.]

hatch·way (häch'wā') n. 1. A passage or an opening leading to a hold, compartment, or cellar. 2. A ladder or stairway within a hatchway.

hate (hāt) v. hat·ed, hat·ing, hates. — v. tr. 1. a. To feel hostility or animosity toward. b. To detest. 2. To feel dislike or distaste for: hates washing dishes. — v. intr. To feel hatred. — n. 1. Intense animosity or dislike; hatred. 2. An object of detestation or hatred: My pet hate is tardiness. [Middle English haten, from Old English hatian. N., Middle English from Old English hete.]
—hat'er n.

hate·ful (hāt'fəl) adj. 1. Eliciting or deserving hatred. 2. Feeling or showing hatred; malevolent. —hate'ful·ly adv. —hate'ful·ness n.

SYNONYMS: hateful, detestable, odious, obnoxious, offensive, repellent. These adjectives, which are often interchangeable, describe what elicits or deserves strong dislike, distaste, or revulsion: Hateful refers to what evokes hatred or deep animosity: “No vice is universally as hateful as ingratitude” (Joseph Priestley). Detestable applies to what arouses abhorrence or scorn: detestable crimes; a detestable occupation. Something odious is the object of disgust, aversion, or intense displeasure: “a kind of slimy stuff... of a most nauseous, odious smell” (Daniel Defoe); “consequences odious to those you govern” (Edmund Burke). Obnoxious is applied to something that is very objectionable: “I know no method to secure the repeal of bad or obnoxious laws so effective as their stringent execution” (Ulysses S. Grant). Offensive applies to what offends or excites displeasure: offensive behavior; an offensive suggestion. Something repellent arouses repugnance or disgust: I find his obsequiousness repellent.

hate mail (hāt māl) n. Correspondence that expresses the sender’s animosity, disapproval, or prejudice, often in offensive language.

hath (hǎth) v. Archaic. Third person singular present tense of have.

Hath-a-way (hǎth’ə-wā’), Anne. 1556?-1623. The wife of William Shakespeare. She married the playwright in 1582.

hat-pin (hǎt’pīn’) n. A long straight pin usually with an ornamental head, used to secure a hat to the wearer’s hair.

ha-tred (hā’tříd) n. Intense animosity or hostility. [Middle English : hate, hate; see HATE + Old English rǣden, condition; see ar- in Appendix.]

Hat-shep-sut (hǎt-shěp’sōt’) also Hat-shep-set (-sět’), Died c. 1482 B.C. Queen of Egypt (1503-1482) who on the death of her husband, Thutmose II (c. 1504), became regent for her son Thutmose III. She bestowed the title of pharaoh on herself and adopted all the pharaonic customs, including the wearing of a false beard.

hat-ter (hǎt’ər) n. One whose occupation is the manufacture, selling, or repair of hats.

Hat-ter-as Island (hǎt’ər-əs ī’lənd) A long barrier island off the eastern coast of North Carolina between Pamlico Sound and the Atlantic Ocean, with Cape Hatteras projecting from the southeast part. The cape experiences frequent storms that drive ships landward and has been called “the Graveyard of the Atlantic.”

Hat-ties-burg (hǎt’ēz-bûrg’) A city of southeast Mississippi southeast of Jackson. Once a lumbering center, it now has varied industries. Population, 41,882.

Hat-ting-en (hǎt’ting-ən) A city of west-central Germany, an industrial suburb of Essen on the Ruhr River. Population, 54,887.

hat trick (hǎt trīk) n. Sports. 1. Three consecutive wins, hits, or goals made by one player in one game, as in ice hockey. 2. Three wickets taken in cricket by a bowler in three consecutive balls. [From the hat with which the feat was traditionally rewarded in cricket.]

hau-ber-geon (hô'ber-jən) n. Variant of habergeon.

hau-berk (hô'bærk) n. A long tunic made of chain mail. [Middle English, from Old French hauberc, of Germanic origin. See k^wel-1 in Appendix.]

haugh (hôKH) n. Scots. A low-lying meadow in a river valley. [Middle English hawch, from Old English healh, secret place, small hollow. See kel-1 in Appendix.]

haugh-ty (hô'tē) adj. haugh-ti-er, haugh-ti-est. Scornfully and condescendingly proud. See Synonyms at proud. [From Middle English haut, from Old French haut, halt, alteration (influenced by Frankish hōh, high), of Latin altus, high. See al-2 in Appendix.] —haugh'ti-ly adv. —haugh'ti-ness n.

Hauk (houk), Minnie. 1851?-1929. American soprano. Greatly successful in Europe, she sang the title role in the American and British premieres of Carmen (1878).

haul (hôi) v. hauled, haul-ing, hauls. — v. tr. 1. To pull or drag forcibly; tug. See Synonyms at pull. 2. To transport, as with a truck or cart. 3. Informal. To compel to go, especially for trial: “hauled the huge companies into court” (Peter Matthiessen). 4. Nautical. To change the course of (a ship), especially in order to sail closer into the wind. — v. intr. 1. To pull; tug. 2. To provide transportation; cart. 3. a. To shift direction: The wind hauled to the east. b. To change one's mind. 4. Nautical. To change the course of a ship. — n. 1. The act of pulling or dragging. 2. The act of transporting or carting. 3. A distance, especially the distance over which something is pulled or transported. 4. Something that is pulled or transported; a load. 5. Everything collected or acquired by a single effort; the take: a big haul of fish. —phrasal verbs. haul off. Informal. 1. To draw back slightly, as in preparation for initiating an action: “hauled off and smacked the hapless aide across the face” (Bill Barol). 2. To shift operations to a new place; to move away. haul up. To come to a halt. [Middle English hauen, from Old French haler, of Germanic origin. See kelə-2 in Appendix.] —haul'er n.

haul-age (hôi'lj) n. 1. The act or process of hauling. 2. A charge made for hauling.

haulm (hôm) n. Chiefly British. The stems of peas, beans, potatoes, or grasses. [Middle English halm, straw, from Old English healm.]

haunch (hônch, hönch) n. 1. The hip, buttock, and upper thigh in human beings and animals. 2. The loin and leg of a four-footed animal, especially as used for food: a haunch of venison. 3. Architecture. Either of the sides of an arch, curving down from the apex to an impost. [Middle English haunche, from Old French hanche, from Frankish hanka*.]

haunt (hōnt, hōnt) v. haunt-ed, haunt-ing, haunts. — v. tr. 1. To inhabit, visit, or appear to in the form of a ghost or other supernatural being. 2. To visit often; frequent: haunted the movie theaters. 3. To come to mind continually; obsess: a riddle that haunted me all morning. 4. To be continually present in; pervade: the melancholy that haunts the composer's music. — v. intr. To recur or visit often, especially as a ghost. — n. 1. A place much frequented. 2. (hänt) Chiefly Southern U.S. A ghost or other supernatural being. [Middle English haunten, to frequent, from Old French hanter. See tkei- in Appendix.] —haunt-'er n.

haunt-ing (hōn'tĩng, hōn'-) adj. Continually recurring to the mind; unforgettable: a haunting melody. —haunt'ing-ly adv.

Haupt-man (houpt'män'), Herbert Aaron. Born 1917. American chemist. He shared a 1985 Nobel Prize for developing methods for determining the molecular structure of crystals.

Haupt-mann (houpt'män', houp'-), Gerhart. 1862-1946. German writer. Known primarily for his naturalistic plays, such as The Weavers (1892), he also wrote novels and poetry. He won the 1912 Nobel Prize for literature.

Hau-ra-ki Gulf (hou-rä'kē gulf, -rāk'ē) An inlet of the southern Pacific Ocean on the northern coast of North Island, New Zealand.

Hau-sa (hou'sə, -zə) n. pl. Hausa or Hau-sas. 1. A member of a predominantly Muslim people inhabiting northern Nigeria and southern Niger. 2. A Chadic language spoken by the Hausa, widely used as a trade language in West Africa.

haus-frau (hous'frou') n. A housewife. [German : Haus, house (from Middle High German hūs, from Old High German) + Frau, wife; see FRAU.]

Haus-ho-fer (hous'hō'fər), Karl. 1869-1946. German army officer and geologist who founded the study of geopolitics.

Hauss-mann (hous'mən, ōs-män'), Baron Georges Eugène. 1809-1891. French public official who planned and oversaw numerous municipal improvements to Paris during the tenure of Napoleon III.

haus-tel-lum (hō-stěl'əm) n. pl. haus-tel-la (hō-stěl'ə). A portion of the proboscis that is adapted as a sucking organ in many insects. [New Latin, diminutive of Latin haustrum, scoop on a water wheel, from haurire, to draw up.]

—haus-tel'late (hō-stěl'īt, hō'stə-lāt') adj.

haus-to-ri-um (hō-stōr'ē-əm, -stōr'-) n. pl. haus-to-ri-a (hō-stōr'ē-ə, -stōr'-). Botany. A specialized absorbing structure of a parasitic plant, such as the root-like outgrowth of the dodder, that obtains food from a host plant. [New Latin haustorium, from Latin haustus, a drawing in, absorption, from past participle of haurire, to draw up.] —haus-to'ri-al adj.

haut·boy also haut·bois (hō'boi', ō'boi') n. pl. haut·boys also haut·bois (-boiz'). An oboe. [French hautbois, from Old French : haut, high; see HAUGHTY + bois, wood (of Germanic origin).]

haute (ōt) adj. Fashionably elegant: "In Washington, haute gastronomy is at least as important as the national economy" (Ann L. Trebbe). [French, feminine of haut, high. See HAUTBOY.]

haute couture (ōt kōō-tōōr') n. 1. The leading establishments or designers for the creation of exclusive fashions for women. 2. a. The creation of exclusive fashions for women. b. The fashions created. [French : haute, high, elegant + couture, sewing.]

haute cuisine (ōt kwī-zēn') n. 1. Elaborate or skillfully prepared food, especially that of France. 2. The characteristic manner or style of preparing such food. [French : haute, high, elegant + cuisine, cooking.]

haute école (ōt ā-kôl') n. The art, techniques, or practice of expert equestrianism. [French : haute, high, advanced + école, school.]

haut·teur (hō-tūr', ō-tœr') n. Haughtiness in bearing and attitude; arrogance. [French, from Old French, from haut, high. See HAUGHTY.]

Ha·van·a (hə-văn'ə) The capital and largest city of Cuba, in the northwest part of the island country on the Gulf of Mexico. Founded on its present site in 1519, it became the capital of Spanish Cuba in 1552. The demolition of the U.S. battleship Maine in Havana's harbor in February 1898 was the immediate cause of the Spanish-American War. Population, 1,961,674. —Ha·van'an adj. & n.

Hav·ant and Wa·ter·loo (häv'ənt ənd wô'tər-lōō', wöt'ər-) An urban district of southern England near the English Channel east of Southampton. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 114,800.

Ha·va·su·pai (hä'və-sōō'pī) n. pl. Havasupai or Havasupais. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting an area southeast of the Grand Canyon. b. A member of this people. 2. The Yuman language of the Havasupai, closely related to Hualapai.

have (häv) v. had (häd), hav·ing, has (hăz). — v. tr. 1. a. To be in possession of: already had a car. b. To possess as a characteristic, quality, or function: has a beard; had a great deal of energy. c. To possess or contain as a constituent part: a car that has an automatic transmission. 2. To occupy a particular relation to: had a great many disciples. 3. To possess knowledge of or facility in: has very little Spanish. 4. To hold in the mind; entertain: had doubts about their loyalty. 5. To use or exhibit in action: have compassion. 6. a. To come into possession of; acquire: Not one copy of the book was to be had in the entire town. b. To receive; get: I had a letter from my cousin. c. To accept; take: I'll have the green peas instead of the spinach. 7. a. To suffer from: have defective vision. b. To be subject to the experience of: had a difficult time last winter. 8. a. To cause to, as by persuasion or compulsion: had my assistant run the errand. b. To cause to be:

had everyone fascinated. 9. To permit; allow: I won't have that kind of behavior in my house. 10. To carry on, perform, or execute: have an argument. 11. a. To place at a disadvantage: Your opponent in the debate had you on every issue.

b. Informal. To get the better of, especially by trickery or deception: They realized too late that they'd been had by a swindler. c. Informal. To influence by dishonest means; bribe: an incorruptible official who could not be had. 12. a. To procreate (offspring): wanted to have a child. b. To give birth to; bear: She's going to have a baby. 13. To partake of: have lunch. 14. To be obliged to; must: We simply have to get there on time. 15. To engage in sexual intercourse with. — v. aux. Used with a past participle to form the present perfect, past perfect, and future perfect tenses indicating completed action: The troublemaker has gone for good. I regretted that I had lost my temper. They will have finished by the time we arrive. — n. One enjoying especially material wealth: "Almost overnight, there was a new and widespread hostility on the part of the haves toward the have-nots" (Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr.). — phrasal verbs. have at. To attack. have on. 2. To wear: had on red shoes. 3. To be scheduled: We have a dinner party on for tomorrow evening.

— idioms. have done with. To stop; cease: Have done with your foolish quibbling have had it. Informal. 2. To have endured all that one can: I've had it with their delays. 3. To be in a state beyond remedy, repair, or salvage: That coat has had it. 4. To have done everything that is possible or that will be permitted.

have it in for (someone). To intend to harm, especially because of a grudge. have it out. To settle decisively, especially by means of an argument or a discussion. have (something) coming. To deserve what one receives: You had that reprimand coming for a very long time. have to do with. To be concerned or associated with. [Middle English haven, from Old English habban. See kap- in Appendix.]

Ha·vel (hä'fəl) A river, about 346 km (215 mi) long, of eastern Germany flowing through Berlin to the Elbe River.

Ha·vel (hä'vəl), Václav. Born 1936. Czech writer and politician. A widely known playwright whose works include The Increased Difficulty of Concentration (1967) and The Garden Party (1969), Havel became a civil rights leader after the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia (1968). He served as president of Czechoslovakia (1989-1992) and was elected president of Czech Republic in 1993.

have·lock (häv'lök', -lək) n. A cloth covering for a cap, having a flap to cover and protect the back of the neck. [After Sir Henry Havelock (1795-1857), British soldier.]

Have·lock (häv'lök') A city of southeast North Carolina east of Fayetteville. It processes cotton and tobacco. Population, 20,268.

haven (hä'vən) n. 1. A harbor or an anchorage; a port. 2. A place of refuge or rest; a sanctuary. — v. tr. ha·vened, ha·ven·ing, ha·vens. To put into or provide with a haven. [Middle English, from Old English hæfen. See kap- in Appendix.]

Ha·ven (hā'vən), Emily Bradley Neal. Known as "Cousin Alice." 1827-1863. American writer and editor noted for her moralistic stories and books, including No Such Word as Fail (1852) and The Good Report (1867).

have-not (häv'nöt') n. One enjoying little or no material wealth: "The gap between the haves and the have-nots still shows up clearly at the polls" (Brad Edmondson).

have·n't (häv'ənt) Have not.

Hav·er·hill (hāv'rəl, hā'vər-əl) A city of northeast Massachusetts on the Merrimack River northeast of Lowell. It grew as a shoe-producing center but now has varied light industries. Population, 51,418.

hav·er·sack (häv'ər-sāk') n. A bag carried over one shoulder to transport supplies, as on a hike. [French havresac, from obsolete German Habersack : Haber, oats (from Middle High German habere, from Old High German habaro) + German Sack, bag (from Middle High German sac, from Old High German, from Latin saccus); see SACK¹.]

Ha·ver·sian canal (hə-vûr'zhən kə-näl') n. Any of the tiny, interconnecting, longitudinal channels in bone tissue through which blood vessels, nerve fibers, and lymphatics pass. [After Clopton Havers (1650?-1702), English physician and anatomist.]

Haversian system (hə-vûr'zhən sīs'təm) n. A structural unit of bone consisting of a Haversian canal and corresponding lamellae of compact bone.

Ha·ví·řov (hä'və-rôf', -vîr-zhôf') A town of northeast Czech Republic east of Ostrava. It was founded in the 1950's. Population, 90,013.

hav·oc (häv'ək) n. 1. Widespread destruction; devastation. 2. Disorder or chaos: a wild party that created havoc in the house. — v. tr. hav·ocked, hav·ock·ing, hav·ocs. To destroy or pillage. [Middle English havok, from Anglo-Norman (crier) havok, (to cry) havoc, variant of Old French havot, plundering, of Germanic origin.]

haw¹ (hō) n. An utterance used by a speaker who is fumbling for words. — v. intr. hawed, haw·ing, haws. To fumble in speaking. [Imitative.]

haw² (hō) n. 1. The fruit of a hawthorn. 2. A hawthorn or similar tree or shrub. [Middle English, from Old English haga.]

haw³ (hō) n. 1. A nictitating membrane, especially of a domesticated animal. 2. An inflamed condition of this membrane. [Origin unknown.]

haw⁴ (hō) interj. Used to command an animal to turn left. — v. intr. hawed, haw·ing, haws. To turn left.

Ha·wai·i (hə-wā'ē, -wī'ē, -wä'yə) Abbr. HI A state of the United States in the central Pacific Ocean comprising the Hawaiian Islands. The islands became a U.S. territory in 1900, which was admitted as the 50th state in 1959. Honolulu, on Oahu, is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,115,274.

Ha·wai·ian (hə-wā'yən) n. 1. a. A member or descendent of the indigenous Polynesian people of the Hawaiian Islands. b. A native or inhabitant of the Hawaiian Islands, the state of Hawaii, or Hawaii Island. 2. The Polynesian language of Hawaii. —Ha·wai'ian adj.

Hawaiian guitar (hə-wā'yən gī-tär') n. Music. An electric guitar consisting of a long fretted neck and six to eight steel strings that are plucked while being pressed with a movable steel bar. Also called steel guitar Hawaiian Islands (hə-wā'yən ī'ləndz) Formerly Sand·wich Islands (sänd'wich, sän'-). Abbr. H.I. A group of volcanic and coral islands in the central Pacific Ocean coextensive with the state of Hawaii. There are eight major islands and more than a hundred minor ones. The islands were settled by Polynesians in the sixth century A.D. and visited by Capt. James Cook in 1778. They were ruled by native monarchs from 1795 until 1893, when Queen Liliuokalani was deposed. A republic was proclaimed the following year, but petitions for annexation by the United States were finally approved in 1898.

Hawaii Island (hə-wā'ē ī'lənd) The largest and southernmost of the Hawaiian Islands. It is the top of an enormous submarine mountain and has several volcanic peaks.

Hawaii Standard Time (hə-wā'ē stän'dərd tīm) n. Standard time in the tenth time zone west of Greenwich, England, reckoned at 150° west and used, for example, in Hawaii and the western Aleutian Islands. Also called Hawaii Time

Ha·wash River (hä'wäsh' rīv'ər) See Awash River.

Hawes (hôz), Harriet Ann Boyd. 1871-1945. American archaeologist who discovered and directed the excavation (1901-1904) of a complete Minoan Bronze Age settlement.

haw·finch (hô'fīnch') n. 1. A Eurasian bird (Coccothraustes coccothraustes) having a thick bill, a short, white-tipped tail, and brown, white, and black plumage. 2. Any of various birds similar or related to this bird. [HAW² + FINCH.]

haw-haw¹ (hô'hô') n. & interj. Variant of ha-ha¹.

haw-haw² (hô'hô') n. Variant of ha-ha².

hawk¹ (høk) n. 1. Any of various birds of prey of the order Falconiformes and especially of the genera Accipiter and Buteo, characteristically having a short, hooked bill and strong claws adapted for seizing. 2. Any of various similar birds of prey. 3. A person who preys on others; a shark. 4. a. One who demonstrates an actively aggressive or combative attitude, as in an argument. b. A person who favors military force or action in order to carry out foreign policy. — v. intr.

hawked, hawk-ing, hawks. 1. To hunt with trained hawks. 2. To swoop and strike in the manner of a hawk: "It was fun to watch the scattered snail kites... lift-ing and falling in the wind as they hawked across the shining grass and water" (Peter Matthiessen). [Middle English hawk, from Old English hafoc. See kap- in Appendix.] —hawk'ish adj. —hawk'ish-ly adv. —hawk'ish-ness n.

hawk² (hôk) v. hawked, hawk-ing, hawks. — v. intr. To peddle goods aggressively, especially by calling out. — v. tr. To peddle (goods) aggressively, especially by calling out. [Middle English hauken, back-formation from hawker. See HAWKER.]

hawk³ (hôk) v. hawked, hawk-ing, hawks. — v. intr. To clear or attempt to clear the throat by or as if by coughing up phlegm. — v. tr. To clear the throat of (phlegm). — n. An audible effort to clear the throat by expelling phlegm. [Imitative.]

Hawke Bay (hôk bā) A large inlet of the southern Pacific Ocean on the east-central coast of North Island, New Zealand.

hawk-er (hô'kər) n. One who sells goods aggressively, especially by calling out. [Middle English hawker, probably from Middle Low German höker, from hōken, to peddle, bend, bear on the back.]

hawk-eyed (hôk'id') adj. Having very keen eyesight.

Haw-kins (hô'kīnz), Sir Anthony Hope. Pen name Anthony Hope. 1863-1933. British writer particularly known for his romantic novels, such as The Prisoner of Zenda (1894).

Haw-kins or Haw-kyns (hô'kīnz), Sir John. 1532-1595. English naval hero who commanded the rear squadron in the defeat of the Spanish Armada (1588).

hawk moth (hôk môth) n. Any of various thick-bodied moths of the family Sphingidae, having long narrow forewings and characteristically feeding by hovering over flowers and sucking nectar through an extended proboscis. Also called sphinx moth

Hawks (hôks), Howard Winchester. 1896-1977. American filmmaker who brought his unique directorial style to a variety of motion-picture genres. His works include His Girl Friday (1940) and The Big Sleep (1946).

hawk's beard (hôks bîrd) n. Any of various plants of the genus Crepis, resembling the dandelion and having rayed, usually yellow flower heads.

hawks-bill (hôks'bīl') n. A tropical sea turtle (Eretmochelys imbricata) valued as a source of tortoiseshell. Also called tortoiseshell hawk-weed (hôk'wēd') n. Any of numerous often hairy plants of the genus Hieracium, having yellow or orange dandelionlike flower heads.

Haw-kyns (hô'kīnz), Sir John. See Sir John Hawkins.

Haw-orth (hou'ərth, härth) A village of northern England west-northwest of Bradford. The Brontë sisters—Charlotte, Emily, and Anne—lived with their father and brother in the parsonage, which now houses a library and museum devoted to family memorabilia.

Haw·orth (hou'ərth, härth), Sir Walter Norman. 1883-1950. British bio-chemist. He shared a 1937 Nobel Prize for his research on carbohydrates and vitamin C. ha·wor·thi·a (hô-wûr'thē-ə, -thē-) n. Any of numerous succulent South African herbs of the genus Haworthia, having densely imbricate, often warty leaves that are clustered in rosettes. Also called star cactus, wart plant. [After Adrian Hardy Haworth (1767-1833), British botanist.]

Haw River (hô rîv'ər) A river, about 209 km (130 mi) long, rising in north-central North Carolina and flowing generally southeast to join the Deep River and form the Cape Fear River.

hawse (hōz) n. Nautical. 1. The part of a ship where the hawseholes are located. 2. A hawsehole. 3. The space between the bows and anchors of an anchored ship. 4. The arrangement of a ship's anchor cables when both starboard and port anchors are secured. [Middle English hals, forward curve of a strake, probably from Old Norse hāls, neck, ship's bow. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

hawse·hole (hōz'hōl') n. Nautical. An opening in the bow of a ship through which a cable or hawser is passed.

haw·ser (hô'zər) n. Nautical. A cable or rope used in mooring or towing a ship. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman haucer, from Old French haucier, to hoist, from Vulgar Latin altiāre*, alteration of Late Latin altāre, from Latin altus, high. See al-² in Appendix.]

haw·thorn (hô'thōrn') n. Any of various usually thorny trees or shrubs of the genus Crataegus having clusters of white or pinkish flowers and reddish fruits containing a few one-seeded nutlets. [Middle English, from Old English hagathorn : haga, haw + thorn, thorn.]

Haw·thorne (hô'thōrn') 1. A city of southern California, an industrial and residential suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 71,349. 2. A borough of northeast New Jersey north-northeast of Paterson. It is primarily residential with varied light industries. Population, 17,084.

Haw·thorne (hô'thōrn'), Nathaniel. 1804-1864. American writer whose novels, such as The Scarlet Letter (1850) and The House of the Seven Gables (1851), and short stories, including "Young Goodman Brown" (1835), are marked by elegant prose and moralistic and spiritual themes.

hay (hā) n. 1. Grass or other plants, such as clover or alfalfa, cut and dried for fodder. 2. Slang. A trifling amount of money: gets $100 an hour, which isn't hay. — v. hayed, hay·ing, hays. — v. intr. To mow and cure grass and herbage for hay. — v. tr. 1. To make (grass) into hay. 2. To feed with hay. [Middle English, from Old English hāeg. See kau- in Appendix.] — hay'er n.

Hay (hā), John Milton. 1838-1905. American public official and writer who served as ambassador to Great Britain (1897-1898) and U.S. secretary of state (1898-1905). His literary works include poetry and a life of Abraham Lincoln (1890).

Ha·ya·ka·wa (hī'ə-kou'ə), S(amuel) I(chiye). 1906-1992. Canadian-born American philologist, educator, and legislator. Noted for his writings on general semantics, such as Language in Action (1941), he was also president of San Francisco State College (1968-1973) and a U.S. senator from California (1977-1983).

hay·cock (hā'kōk') n. Chiefly British. A conical mound of hay.

Hay·den (hād'n), Carl Trumbull. 1877-1972. American politician who served as a U.S. representative (1912-1927) and senator (1927-1969) from Arizona.

Hay·den (hād'n), Ferdinand Vandever. 1829-1887. American geologist who explored the Great Plains and the Rocky Mountains and helped establish Yellowstone National Park (1872).

Hay·den (hād'n), Melissa. Born 1923. Canadian-born American ballerina noted for her roles in numerous George Balanchine productions, such as Caracole (1952) and A Midsummer Night's Dream (1962).

Haydn (hīd'n), Franz Joseph. 1732-1809. Austrian composer who exerted great influence on the development of the classical symphony. A contemporary of Mozart, he wrote numerous symphonies and string quartets as well as operas and concertos.

Hay·ek (hī'ək, -ĕk), Friedrich August von. Born 1899. Austrian-born British economist. He shared a 1974 Nobel Prize for work on the theory of optimum allocation of resources.

Hayes (hāz), Helen. 1900-1993. American actress whose 50-year career included acclaimed performances on stage, as in Dear Brutus (1918) and Victoria Regina (1935-1939), and in motion pictures, such as The Sin of Madelon Claudet, for which she won an Academy Award (1932).

Hayes (hāz), Roland. 1887-1977. American tenor known for his renditions of classical songs and spirituals.

Hayes (hāz), Rutherford Birchard. 1822-1893. The 19th President of the United States (1877-1881). Winning the controversial election of 1876 by one electoral vote, he pacified the South by removing federal troops (1877), vetoed a bill restricting Chinese immigration (1879), and stemmed a congressional attempt to weaken the presidency.

Hayes River (hāz rīv'ər) A river, about 483 km (300 mi) long, of eastern Manitoba, Canada, flowing northeast to Hudson Bay.

hay fever (hā fē'vər) n. An allergic condition affecting the mucous membranes of the upper respiratory tract and the eyes, most often characterized by nasal discharge, sneezing, and itchy, watery eyes and usually caused by an abnormal sensitivity to airborne pollen. Also called pollinosis hay·fork (hā'fōrk') n. 1. A hand tool for pitching hay. 2. A machine-operated fork for moving hay.

hay-loft (hā'lôft', -lôft') n. A loft for storing hay. Also called haymow hay-mak·er (hā'mā'kər) n. Slang. A powerful blow with the fist.

hay-mow (hā'mou') n. 1. See hayloft. 2. The hay stored in a hayloft.

3. Archaic. A haystack.

Hayne (hān), Robert Young. 1791-1839. American politician. A U.S. senator from South Carolina (1823-1832), he engaged Daniel Webster in a famous debate on the conflict between federal power and states' rights (1830).

Haynes (hānz), Elwood. 1857-1925. American inventor who built one of the earliest American automobiles (1893-1894) and developed numerous alloys, including stainless steel (1911).

hay-rack (hā'rāk') n. 1. A rack from which livestock feed. 2. a. A rack fitted to a wagon for carrying hay. b. A wagon fitted with such a rack.

hay-rick (hā'rīk') n. See haystack.

hay-ride (hā'rīd') n. A ride taken for amusement, usually by a group of people in the evening in a wagon or other vehicle piled with hay or straw.

Hay River (hā rīv'ər) A river of northwest Canada rising in northeast British Columbia and flowing about 853 km (530 mi) generally northeast across northwest Alberta to Great Slave Lake in southern Northwest Territories.

Hays (hāz) A city of central Kansas west of Salina. Founded near the site of Fort Hays, established in 1865, the city has a large agricultural experiment station. Population, 17,767.

Hays (hāz), Arthur Garfield. 1881-1954. American lawyer. As counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union (1912-1954) he was involved in several famous legal battles, including the Scopes trial (1925) and the Sacco-Vanzetti case (1927).

Hays (hāz), William Harrison. Known as "Will." 1879-1954. American politician and motion-picture executive who as president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America (1922-1945) established the Production Code (1930), which prescribed the moral content of American films from 1930 to 1966.

hay-seed (hā'sēd') n. 1. Grass seed shaken out of hay. 2. Pieces of chaff or straw that fall from hay. 3. Slang. A bumpkin; a yokel.

hay-stack (hā'stāk') n. A large stack of hay for winter storage in the open. Also called hayrick Hay-ward (hā'wərd) A city of western California southeast of Oakland. Food processing is among its important industries. Population, 111,498.

hay-wire (hā'wīr') n. Wire used in baling hay. — adj. Informal. 1. Mentally confused or erratic; crazy: went haywire over the interminable delays. 2. Not functioning properly; broken. [From the use of baling wire for makeshift repairs.]

WORD HISTORY: It may seem odd that the word haywire should have come to describe something or someone that is not functioning properly. Haywire originally was in fact simply a compound of the words hay and wire, denoting wire used to bale things such as hay or straw. The term is first recorded as a noun in a debate that occurred in the Canadian House of Commons (1917); hence it is a Canadianism, or since it soon thereafter appeared in a United States publication, a North Americanism. We find an earlier (1905) attributive use, however, in the phrase hay wire outfit, a term used contemptuously for poorly equipped loggers. What lies behind this term is the practice of making repairs with haywire. Haywire is found in other contexts with the general sense “makeshift, inefficient,” from which comes the extended senses “not functioning properly” and “crazy.”

Hay-wood (hā'wōōd'), William Dudley. Known as “Big Bill.” 1869-1928.

American labor leader. A socialist who helped found the Industrial Workers of the World (1905), he was ejected from the Socialist Party for his militant views (1912) and was convicted of sedition during World War I. He fled to the Soviet Union in 1921.

haz·ard (hăz'ərd) n. 1. A chance; an accident. 2. A chance of being injured or harmed; danger: Space travel is full of hazards. 3. A possible source of danger: a fire hazard. 4. Games. A dice game similar to craps. 5. Sports. An obstacle, such as a sand trap, found on a golf course. — v. tr. haz·ard·ed, haz·ard·ing, haz·ards. 1. To expose to danger or harm. See Synonyms at endanger. 2. To venture (something); dare: hazard a guess. [Middle English hasard, dice game, from Old French, possibly from Old Spanish azar, possibly from Arabic az-zahr, gaming die.]

hazard light (hăz'ərd lit) n. A light on a vehicle that blinks to indicate that the vehicle poses danger to others.

haz·ard·ous (hăz'ər-dəs) adj. 1. Marked by danger; perilous. 2. Depending on chance; risky. —haz'ard·ous·ly adv. —haz'ard·ous·ness n.

hazardous waste (hăz'ər-dəs wāst) n. A substance, such as nuclear waste or an industrial byproduct, that is potentially damaging to the environment and harmful to the health and well-being of human beings and other living organisms.

haze¹ (hāz) n. 1. a. Atmospheric moisture, dust, smoke, and vapor that diminishes visibility. b. A partially opaque covering: Let the polish dry to a haze before buffing it. 2. A vague or confused state of mind. — v. intr. hazed, haz·ing, haz·es. To become misty or hazy; blur. [Probably back-formation from HAZY.]

haze² (hāz) v. tr. hazed, haz·ing, haz·es. 1. To persecute or harass with meaningless, difficult, or humiliating tasks. 2. To initiate, as into a college fraternity, by exacting humiliating performances from or playing rough practical jokes upon. [Perhaps from obsolete haze, to frighten, from obsolete French haser, to annoy, from Old French.] —haz'er n.

ha-zel (hā'zəl) n. 1. Any of various shrubs or small trees of the genus Corylus, especially the European species C. avellana or the American species C. americana, bearing edible nuts enclosed in a leafy husk. Also called filbert 2. A hazelnut. 3. Color. A light brown or yellowish brown. [Middle English hasel, from Old English hæsel.] —ha'zel adj.

ha-zel·nut (hā'zəl-nūt') n. The edible nut of a hazel, having a hard, smooth brown shell. Also called filbert Ha-zel Park (hā'zəl pārk) A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 20,051.

Haz·let (hāz'līt) A community of east-central New Jersey east-southeast of New Brunswick. Population, 23,013.

Ha-zle-ton (hā'zəl-tən) A city of east-central Pennsylvania south of Wilkes-Barre. It is an industrial center. Population, 24,730.

Haz·litt (hāz'līt, hāz'-), William. 1778-1830. British essayist noted for his trenchant literary criticism. His works include The Characters of Shakespeare's Plays (1817).

HAZMAT abbr. Hazardous material.

haz·y (hā'zē) adj. haz·i·er, haz·i·est. 1. Marked by the presence of haze; misty: hazy sunshine. 2. Not clearly defined; unclear or vague: I'm a bit hazy on the new budget. [Origin unknown.] —haz'i·ly adv. —haz'i·ness n.

haz·zan (KHā'zən) n. Variant of chazan.

hb or hb. abbr. Sports. Halfback.

Hb abbr. Hemoglobin.

H-bomb (āch'bōm') n. A hydrogen bomb.

h.c. abbr. Honoris causa (by reason of honor).

H.C. abbr. 1. Holy Communion. 2. House of Commons.

H.C.F. also h.c.f. or hcf abbr. Mathematics. Highest common factor.

HCG abbr. Human chorionic gonadotropin.

HD abbr. Heavy-duty.

hd. abbr. Head.

hdbk. abbr. Handbook.

hdkf. abbr. Handkerchief.

HDL abbr. High-density lipoprotein.

hdqrs. abbr. Headquarters.

HDTV abbr. High-definition television.

hdwe. abbr. Hardware.

he¹ (hē) pron. 1. a. Used to refer to the man or boy previously mentioned or implied. b. Used to refer to a male animal. 2. Usage Problem. Used to refer to a person whose gender is unspecified or unknown: "He who desires but acts not, breeds pestilence" (William Blake). — n. A male person or animal: Is the cat a he? [Middle English, from Old English hē. See ko- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Traditionally, English speakers have used the pronouns he, him, and his generically in contexts in which the grammatical form of the antecedent requires a singular pronoun, as in Every member of Congress is answerable to his constituents; A novelist should write about what he knows best; No one seems to take any pride in his work anymore, and so on. Beginning early in the 20th century, however, the traditional usage has come under increasing criticism for reflecting and perpetuating gender discrimination.

- Defenders of the traditional usage have argued that the masculine pronouns he, his, and him can be used generically to refer to men and women. This analysis of the generic use of he is linguistically doubtful. If he were truly a gender-neutral form, we would expect that it could be used to refer to the members of any group containing both men and women. But in fact the English masculine form is an odd choice when it refers to a female member of such a group. There is something plainly disconcerting about sentences such as Each of the stars of It Happened One Night [i.e., Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert] won an Academy Award for his performance. In this case, the use of his forces the reader to envision a single male who stands as the representative member of the group, a picture that is at odds with the image that comes to mind when we picture the stars of It Happened One Night. Thus he is not really a gender-neutral pronoun; rather, it refers to a male who is to be taken as the representative member of the group referred to by its antecedent. The traditional usage, then, is not simply a grammatical convention; it also suggests a particular pattern of thought.
- Many writers sidestep the problem by avoiding the relevant constructions. In place of Every student handed in his assignment, they write All the students handed in their assignments; in place of A taxpayer must appear for his hearing in person, they write Taxpayers must appear for their hearings in person, and so on. Even when using the relevant constructions, however, many writers never use masculine pronouns as generics. In a series of sample sentences such as A patient who doesn't accurately report _ sexual history to the doctor runs the risk of misdiagnosis, an average of 46 percent of the Usage Panel chose a coordinate form (her/his, his or her, and so on), 3 percent chose the plural pronoun (although the actual frequency of the plural in writing is far higher than this number would suggest), 2 percent chose the feminine pronoun, another 2 percent chose an indefinite or a definite article, and 7 percent gave no response or felt that no pronoun was needed to complete the sentence.
- As a substitute for coordinate forms such as his/her or her and his, third person plural forms, such as their, have a good deal to recommend them: they are admirably brief and entirely colloquial and may be the only sensible choice in informal style; for example, in the radio commercial that says “Make someone happy—give them a goosedown Christmas,” where him would be misleading and her or him would be fussy. At least one major British publisher has recently adopted this usage for its learners' dictionaries, where one may read such sentences as If someone says they are “winging it,” they mean that they are improvising their way. But in formal style, this option is perhaps less risky for a publisher of reference books than for an individual writer, who may be misconstrued as being careless or ignorant rather than attuned to the various grammatical and political nuances of the use of the masculine pronoun as generic pronoun. What is more, this solution ignores a persistent intuition that expressions such as everyone and each student should in fact be treated as grammatically singular. Writers who are concerned about avoiding both grammatical and social problems are best advised to use coordinate forms such as his or her. • Some writers see no need to use a personal pronoun implying gender unless absolutely necessary; in the sample sentence A child who develops this sort of rash on _ hands should probably be kept at home for a couple of days, 6 percent of the Usage Panel completed the sentence with the. In addition, some writers have proposed other solutions to the use of he as a generic pronoun, such as the introduction of wholly new gender-neutral pronouns like s/he or hiser, or the switching between feminine and masculine forms in alternating sentences, paragraphs, or chapters. • In contrast to these innovations, many writers use the masculine pronoun as generic in all cases. For the same series of sample sentences, the average percentage of Usage Panel members who consistently completed the sentences with his was 37. This course is grammatically unexceptionable, but the writer who follows it must be prepared to incur the displeasure of readers who regard this pattern as a mark of insensitivity or gender discrimination. When a majority of writers are taking care to avoid the masculine as generic, the writer who uses it in this way may invite the inference that there is some pointed reason for referring to the representative instance as male. The entire question is unlikely to be resolved in the near future. See Usage Note at any. See Usage Note at anyone. See Usage Note at each. See Usage Note at every. See Usage Note at neither. See Usage Note at one.

he² (hā) n. The fifth letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew hē.]

He The symbol for the element helium.

HE abbr. High explosive.

H.E. abbr. 1. His Eminence. 2. Her, or His, Excellency.

head (hĕd) n. Abbr. hd. 1. a. The uppermost or forwardmost part of the body of a vertebrate, containing the brain and the eyes, ears, nose, mouth, and jaws. b. The analogous part of an invertebrate organism. c. The length or height of such a part: The horse lost by a head. She is two heads taller than he is. 2. The seat of the faculty of reason; intelligence, intellect, or mind: I did the figuring in my head. 3. Mental ability or aptitude: She has a good head for mathematics. 4. Freedom of choice or action: Give the child his head and see how well he solves the problems. 5. Slang. a. A habitual drug user. b. An enthusiast. 6. A portrait or representation of a person's head. 7. Often heads. (used with a sing. verb).

The side of a coin having the principal design and the date. 8. Informal. A headache: had a bad head early this morning. 9. a. An individual; a person: charged five dollars a head. b. head. A single animal: 20 head of cattle. 10. a. A person who leads, rules, or is in charge; a leader, chief, or director: the head of the corporation. b. A headmaster or headmistress. 11. The foremost or leading position: marched at the head of the parade. 12. A headwaiter. 13. a. The difference in depth of a liquid at two given points. b. The measure of pressure at the lower point expressed in terms of this difference. c. The pressure exerted by a liquid or gas: a head of steam. d. The liquid or gas exerting the pressure. 14. The froth or foam that rises to the top in pouring an effervescent liquid, such as beer. 15. The tip of an abscess, a boil, or a pimple, in which pus forms. 16. A turning point; a crisis: bring matters to a head. See Synonyms at crisis. 17. a. A projection, weight, or fixture at the end of an elongated object: the head of a pin; a head of land overlooking the harbor. b. Anatomy. The proximal end of a long bone: the head of the femur. c. The working end of a tool or an implement: the head of a hammer. d. The part of an explosive device that carries the explosive; a warhead. 18. a. An attachment to or part of a machine that holds or contains the operative device. b. The magnetic head of a tape recorder. 19. A rounded, compact mass, as of leaves or buds: a head of cabbage. 20. Botany. A flower head. 21. The uppermost part; the top: Place the appropriate name at the head of each column. 22. The end considered the most important: sat at the head of the table. 23. Either end of an object, such as a drum, whose two ends are interchangeable. 24. Nautical. a. The forward part of a vessel. b. The top part or upper edge of a sail. 25. A toilet, especially on a ship. 26. A passage or gallery in a coal mine. 27. Printing. a. The top of a book or of a page. b. A headline or heading. c. A distinct topic or category: under the head of recent Spanish history. 28. Headway; progress. 29. Linguistics. The word in a construction that has the same grammatical function as the construction as a whole and that determines relationships of concord to other parts of the construction or sentence in which the construction occurs. 30. Vulgar Slang. Oral sex. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or intended for the head. Often used in combination: headshaking; headwrap. 2. Foremost in rank or importance: the head librarian. 3. Placed at the top or the front: the head name on the list. 4. Slang. Of, relating to, or for drugs or drug users. — v.

head-ed, head-ing, heads. — v. tr. 1. To be in charge of; lead: The minister headed the committee. 2. To be in the first or foremost position of: Collins heads the list of job candidates. 3. To aim, point, or turn in a certain direction: headed the team of horses up the hill. 4. To remove the head or top of. 5. Sports. To hit (a soccer ball) in the air with one's head. 6. To provide with a head: head each column with a number; headed the flagpole with a golden ball. — v. intr. 1. To proceed or go in a certain direction: head for town. 2. To form a head, as lettuce or cabbage. 3. To originate, as a stream or river; rise. — phrasal verb. head off.

To block the progress or completion of; intercept: Try to head him off before he gets home. —idioms. head and shoulders above. Far superior to: head and shoulders above her colleagues in analytical capability. head over heels.

2. Rolling, as in a somersault: tripped and fell head over heels. 3. Completely; hopelessly: head over heels in love. keep (one's) head. To remain calm; remain in control of oneself. lose (one's) head. To lose one's poise or self-control. off (one's) head (or out of (one's) head). Insane; crazy. put heads together. To consult and plan together: Let's put our heads together and solve this problem. [Middle English, from Old English hēafod. See kaput- in Appendix.]

Head (hĕd), Edith. 1898?-1981. American costume designer for more than 1,000 motion pictures, including All About Eve (1950) and A Place in the Sun (1951).

head·ache (hĕd'āk') n. 1. A pain in the head. 2. Informal. Something, such as a problem, that causes annoyance or trouble. —head'ach'y (-ā'kē) adj.

head·band (hĕd'bānd') n. 1. A band worn around the head. 2. Printing. An ornamental strip at the top of a page or beginning of a chapter or paragraph.

3. Printing. A cloth band attached to the top of the spine of a book.

head·board (hĕd'bōrd', -bōrd') n. A board or panel that forms the head, as of a bed.

head·cheese (hĕd'chēz') n. A jellied loaf or sausage made from chopped and boiled parts of the feet, head, and sometimes the tongue and heart of an animal, usually a hog.

head cold (hĕd kōld) n. A common cold mainly affecting the mucous membranes of the nasal passages, characterized by congestion, headache, and sneezing.

head·count·er (hĕd'koun'tər) n. Informal. A pollster.

head·dress (hĕd'drēs') n. 1. A covering or an ornament for the head. 2. A hairdo; a coiffure.

head·ed (hĕd'ĭd) adj. 1. Growing or grown into a head. 2. Having a head or heading. 3. Having a specified kind or number of heads. Often used in combination: a two-headed eagle; three-headed Cerberus. 4. Having a mentality of a certain type. Often used in combination: soft-headed liberalism; a cool-headed fighter pilot.

head·er (hĕd'ər) n. 1. One that fits a head on an object. 2. One that removes a head from an object, especially a machine that reaps the heads of grain and passes them into a wagon or receptacle. 3. A pipe that serves as a central connection for two or more smaller pipes. 4. A floor or roof beam placed between two long beams that supports the ends of the tailpieces. 5. A brick laid across rather than parallel with a wall. 6. Informal. A headlong dive or fall. 7. Sports. A pass or shot made in soccer by heading the ball. 8. Computer Science. Printed matter or information, such as a title, date, or page number, positioned in the top margin of a page and usually repeated throughout a document, especially a document composed on a word-processing system. 9. A raised tank or hopper that maintains a constant pressure or supply to a system, especially the small tank that supplies water to a central heating system.

head·fast (hĕd'făst') n. Nautical. A mooring rope or chain that secures the bow of a ship to a wharf.

head·first (hĕd'fîrst') also head·fore·most (-fôr'mōst', -mōst, -fôr'-) adv.

1. With the head leading; headlong: went headfirst down the stairs.

2. Impetuously; brashly. —head'first' adj.

head·ful (hĕd'fŏol') n. Informal. 1. A relatively great amount of knowledge: a headful of baseball trivia; a headful of good stories. 2. Something that covers the surface of one's head: a headful of auburn curls; a headful of shampoo.

head gate (hĕd gāt) n. 1. A control gate upstream of a lock or canal. 2. A floodgate that controls the flow of water in a ditch, sluice, race, or channel.

head·gear (hĕd'gîr') n. 1. A covering, such as a hat or helmet, for the head.

2. The part of a harness that fits about a horse's head. 3. The rigging for hauling or lifting located at the head of a mine shaft. 4. Nautical. The rigging on the forward sails of a craft.

head·hunt (hĕd'hŭnt') v. intr. head·hunt·ed, head·hunt·ing, head·hunts. To engage in headhunting. —head'hunt' n. —head'hunt'er n.

head·hunt·ing (hĕd'hŭn'tĭng) n. 1. The custom of cutting off and preserving the heads of enemies as trophies. 2. Slang. The process of attempting to remove influence and power from enemies, especially political enemies. 3. Slang. a. The business of recruiting personnel, especially executive personnel, as for a corporation. b. The act or an instance of such recruiting.

head·ing (hĕd'ĭng) n. 1. The title, subtitle, or topic that stands at the top or beginning, as of a paragraph, letter, or chapter. 2. The course or direction in which a ship or an aircraft is moving. 3. a. A gallery or drift in a mine. b. The end of a gallery or drift.

head·lamp (hĕd'lămp') n. See headlight (n., sense 1).

head·land (hĕd'lănd, -lănd') n. 1. A point of land, usually high and with a sheer drop, extending out into a body of water; a promontory. 2. The unplowed land at the end of a plowed furrow.

head·less (hĕd'lis) adj. 1. a. Formed without a head. b. Decapitated.

2. Lacking a leader or director. 3. Lacking intelligence and prudence; stupid or foolish. —head'less·ness n.

head·light (hĕd'līt') n. 1. A light with a reflector and lens mounted on the front of a locomotive, an automobile, or another vehicle. Also called headlamp

2. A lamp mounted on a miner's or spelunker's hard hat.

head·line (hĕd'līn') n. 1. The title or caption of a newspaper article, usually set in large type. 2. Often headlines. An important or sensational piece of news.

3. A line at the head of a page or passage giving information such as the title, author, and page number. — v. tr. head-lined, head-lin-ing, head-lines.

1. To supply (a page or passage) with a headline. 2. a. To present or promote as a headliner: The Palace Theater headlines a magician. b. To serve as the headliner of: He headlines the bill.

head·lin·er (hĕd'li'nər) n. A performer who receives prominent billing; a star.

head·lock (hĕd'lɒk') n. Sports. A wrestling hold in which the head of one wrestler is encircled and locked by the arm and body of the other.

head·long (hĕd'lɔŋ', -lɔŋ') adv. 1. With the head leading; headfirst: The runner slid headlong into third base. 2. In an impetuous manner; rashly. 3. At breakneck speed or with uncontrolled force. — adj. (hĕd'lɔŋ', -lɔŋ')

1. Done with the head leading; headfirst: a headlong dive. 2. Impetuous; rash. See Synonyms at impetuous. 3. Uncontrollably forceful or fast. 4. Archaic. Steep; sheer. [From Middle English (bi) hedlong, from hed, head, head. See HEAD.] head·man (hĕd'mæn, -mæn') n. 1. The leader or the chief man of a small, primitive village or community. 2. A headsman.

head·mas·ter also head master (hĕd'mäs'tər) n. A man who is the principal of a school, usually a private school.

head·mis·tress also head mistress (hĕd'mis'tris) n. A woman who is the principal of a school, usually a private school.

head money (hĕd mʌn'ē) n. 1. A reward paid for the capture and delivery of a fugitive; a bounty. 2. A poll tax.

head·most (hĕd'mɔst', -məst) adj. Leading; foremost.

head-on (hĕd'ɔn', -ɔn') adv. 1. With the head or front first: The cars crashed head-on. 2. In open conflict; in direct opposition: "I have wondered since whether it would have been wiser to meet the issue head-on" (Henry A. Kissinger). — adj.

1. Facing forward; frontal. 2. With the front end foremost: a head-on collision.

head·phone (hĕd'fɔn') n. A receiver, as for a telephone, radio, or stereo, held to the ear by a headband.

head·piece (hĕd'pēs') n. 1. A protective covering for the head. 2. A set of headphones; a headset. 3. See headstall. 4. An ornamental design, especially at the top of a page. 5. The seat of intelligence; brains.

head pin (hĕd pɪn) n. Sports. See kingpin (n., sense 1).

head·quar·ter (hĕd'kwôr'tər) v. head-quar-tered, head-quar-ter-ing, head-quar-ters. Usage Problem. — v. tr. To provide with headquarters:

"Despite the derivation of its name, the former Texas Oil Company is headquartered in White Plains, New York" (New Republic). — v. intr. To establish headquarters.

USAGE NOTE: The verb headquarter occurs in both transitive and intransitive senses: The magazine has headquartered him in a building that houses many foreign journalists. The European correspondent will headquarter in Paris. In an earlier survey a majority of the Usage Panel found both these examples to be unacceptable in formal writing. Although ample citational evidence exists for these usages, writers who wish to avoid criticism should consider the use of alternative expressions, for example: The magazine has just assigned him to (or has stationed him in) a building that houses many foreign journalists. The European correspondent will make her headquarters in Paris (or will make Paris her headquarters).

head·quar·ters (hĕd'kwôr'tərz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Abbr. hdqrs., h.q., HQ, H.Q. 1. The offices of a commander, as of a military unit, from which orders are issued. 2. A center of operations or administration: The company has its headquarters in the suburbs. See Synonyms at center.

USAGE NOTE: The noun headquarters is used with either a singular or a plural verb. The plural is more common: The headquarters are in Boston. But the singular is sometimes preferred when reference is to authority rather than to physical location: Battalion headquarters has approved the retreat.

head·race (hĕd'rās') n. A watercourse that feeds water into a mill, water wheel, or turbine.

head register (hĕd rĕj'ī-stər) n. One of the higher ranges of the voice in singing or speaking, including the falsetto.

head·rest (hĕd'rĕst') n. 1. A support for the head, as at the back of a chair. 2. A cushion attached to the top of the back of an automotive vehicle's seat, especially to prevent whiplash. In this sense, also called head restraint head rhyme (hĕd rīm) n. Consonantal alliteration at the beginning of words. Also called beginning rhyme head·room (hĕd'rōom', -rōom') n. 1. Space above one's head, as in a motor vehicle, above a doorway, or in a tunnel; clearance. 2. Electronics. Dynamic headroom.

head·sail (hĕd'səl, -sāl') n. Nautical. A sail, such as a jib, set forward of a foremast.

head·scarf (hĕd'skärf') n. pl. head·scarfs or head·scarves (-skärvz). A scarf, usually folded into a triangle, worn over the head and tied under the chin.

head sea (hĕd sē) n. Nautical. Waves or current running directly against the course of a ship.

head·set (hĕd'sĕt') n. 1. A pair of headphones. 2. A pair of headphones with a voice transmitter attached.

head·shake (hĕd'shāk') n. A turning of one's head to the right and left, signifying denial, disapproval, disbelief, doubt, or bemusement. —head/shak'ing adj. & n.

head-ship (hĕd'shĭp') n. 1. The position or office of a head or leader; primacy or command. 2. Chiefly British. The position of a headmaster or headmistress.

head shop (hĕd shŏp) n. Slang. A specialty shop that sells paraphernalia for use with illegal drugs.

head-shot (hĕd'shŏt') n. 1. A photograph of the head. 2. A bullet or shot aimed at and hitting the head.

head shrinker (hĕd shrĭngk'ər) n. 1. A headhunter who dries and shrinks the heads of victims. 2. Slang. A psychiatrist, especially a psychoanalyst.

heads-man (hĕdz'mən) n. A public executioner who beheads condemned prisoners.

head-space (hĕd'spās') n. The volume left at the top of a filled jar, tin, or other container before sealing.

head-spring (hĕd'sprĭng') n. A fountainhead; a source.

head-stall (hĕd'stŏl') n. The section of a bridle that fits over a horse's head. Also called headpiece head-stand (hĕd'stānd') n. A position, as in gymnastics or yoga, in which one supports oneself vertically on one's head with the hands braced for support on the floor or on a mat.

head start (hĕd stärt) n. 1. Sports. A start before other contestants in a race. 2. An early start that confers an advantage.

head-stock (hĕd'stŏk') n. A nonmoving part of a machine or power tool that supports a revolving part, such as the spindle of a lathe.

head-stone (hĕd'stŏn') n. 1. A memorial stone set at the head of a grave. 2. Also head stone. Architecture. See keystone (n., sense 1).

head-strong (hĕd'strŏng', -strŏng') adj. 1. Determined to have one's own way; stubbornly and often recklessly willful. See Synonyms at obstinate. See Synonyms at unruly. 2. Resulting from willfulness and obstinacy.

heads up (hĕdz ŭp) interj. Used as a warning to watch out for a potential source of danger, as at a construction site.

heads-up (hĕdz'ŭp') adj. Showing an alert, competent style: play heads-up basketball.

heads-up display (hĕdz'ŭp' dĭ-splā') n. An electronically generated display of flight, navigational, attack, or other data superimposed upon a pilot's forward field of view.

head-to-head (hĕd'tə-hĕd') adv. & adj. 1. In direct confrontation or conflict at close quarters: The two brothers went at it head-to-head. It was a head-to-head contest all the way. 2. Arranged in lines running in opposite directions: The bunks were set up head-to-head. 3. Running close together in the same direction; neck and neck: The horses ran mostly head-to-head.

head-trip (hĕd'trĭp') n. Slang. 1. A mentally stimulating experience. 2. An act or a pattern of behavior undertaken primarily for self-gratification.

head-wait-er (hĕd'wā'tər) n. A waiter who is in charge of the waiters and waitresses in a restaurant and is often responsible for taking reservations and seating guests.

head wall (hĕd wōl) n. A steep slope or precipice rising at the head of a valley or glacial cirque.

head-wa-ter (hĕd'wō'tər, -wōt'ər) n. Often headwaters. The water from which a river rises; a source.

head-way (hĕd'wā') n. 1. Forward movement or the rate of forward movement, especially of a ship. 2. Progress toward a goal. 3. The clear vertical space beneath a ceiling or archway; clearance. 4. The distance in time or space that separates two vehicles traveling the same route.

head-wear (hĕd'wâr') n. A hat or other covering for the head.

head-wind or head wind (hĕd'wīnd') n. A wind blowing directly against the course of an aircraft or a ship.

head-word (hĕd'wūrd') n. 1. A word, phrase, or name, usually set in boldface or other distinctive type, that serves as the heading for an entry in a dictionary, an encyclopedia, or a similar reference work. Also called entry word 2. Linguistics. A word that may be modified by an adjunct.

head-work (hĕd'wūrk') n. Mental activity or work; thought. —head'-work'er n.

head-y (hĕd'ē) adj. head-i-er, head-i-est. 1. a. Intoxicating or stupefying: heady liqueur. b. Tending to upset the mind or the balance of senses: standing on a heady outcrop of rock. c. Serving to exhilarate: the heady news of triumph. 2. a. Impetuous and rash: a heady outburst of anger. b. Domineering; overbearing: too heady to reason with. 3. Swift and violent; headlong: a heady current. 4. Showing intelligence and good judgment; prudent: heady tactics. 5. Suffering from a headache: a heady, throbbing feeling. —head'i-ly adv. —head'i-ness n.

heal (hēl) v. healed, heal-ing, heals. — v. tr. 1. To restore to health or soundness; cure. See Synonyms at core. 2. To set right; repair: healed the rift between us. 3. To restore (a person) to spiritual wholeness. — v. intr. To become whole and sound; return to health. [Middle English healen, from Old English hælan. See kailo- in Appendix.] —heal'a-ble adj.

heal-all (hēl'ōl') n. Botany. The self-heal.

heal-er (hē'lər) n. One that heals or attempts to heal, especially a faith healer.

heal-ing herb (hē'līng ūrb) n. See comfrey.

health (hĕlth) n. 1. The overall condition of an organism at a given time. 2. Soundness, especially of body or mind; freedom from disease or abnormality. 3. A condition of optimal well-being: concerned about the ecological health of the area. 4. A wish for someone's good health, often expressed as a toast. [Middle English helthe, from Old English hælth. See kailo- in Appendix.]

health care (hĕlth kâr) n. also health-care (hĕlth/'kâr') The prevention, treatment, and management of illness and the preservation of mental and physical well-being through the services offered by the medical and allied health professions. — adj. also health-care Of or relating to health care: the health care industry.

health food (hĕlth fōod) n. A food believed to be highly beneficial to health, especially a food grown organically and free of chemical additives.

health·ful (hĕlth/'fəl) adj. 1. Conducive to good health; salutary. 2. Healthy. See Usage Note at healthy. —health/ful·ly adv. —health/ful-ness n.

health insurance (hĕlth ĩn-shōor/'əns) n. Insurance against expenses incurred through illness of the insured.

health maintenance organization (hĕlth mān/'tə-nəns ôr/'gə-nĭ-zā/'shən) n. An HMO.

health spa (hĕlth spä) n. A business establishment with equipment and facilities for exercising and improving physical fitness.

health walking (hĕlth wô/'kĭng) n. Sports. See race walking.

health·y (hĕl/'thē) adj. health·i·er, health·i·est. 1. Possessing good health. 2. Conducive to good health; healthful: healthy air. 3. Indicative of sound, rational thinking or frame of mind: a healthy attitude. 4. Sizable; considerable: a healthy portion of potatoes; a healthy raise in salary. —health/i·ly adv. —health/i·ness n.

SYNONYMS: healthy, sound, wholesome, hale, robust, well, hardy, vigorous. These adjectives are compared as they mean being in or indicative of good physical or mental health. Healthy stresses the absence of disease and often implies energy and strength: a rosy, healthy infant. If you exercise regularly and eat properly, you'll stay fit and healthy. Sound emphasizes freedom from injury, imperfection, or impairment: "You should pray for a sound mind in a sound body" (Juvenal). Wholesome suggests appealing healthiness and well-being: "a broad grin on his ugly wholesome face" (Archibald Marshall). "Exercise develops wholesome appetites" (Louisa May Alcott). Hale stresses freedom from infirmity, especially in elderly persons, while robust emphasizes healthy strength and ruggedness: "He is pretty well advanced in years, but hale, robust, and florid" (Tobias Smollett). Well indicates absence of or recovery from sickness: Her mother is not a well woman. Hardy implies robust and sturdy good health: hardy mountaineers of Alpine regions. Vigorous suggests healthy, active energy and strength: "a vigorous old man, who spent half of his day on horseback" (W.H. Hudson).

USAGE NOTE: The distinction in meaning between healthy ("possessing good health") and healthful ("conducive to good health") was ascribed to the two terms only as late as the 1880's. This distinction, though tenaciously supported by some critics, is belied by citational evidence—evidence clearly indicating that healthy and healthful have shared the meaning “conducive to good health” since at least the mid-16th century, or for more than 400 years. Use of healthy in this sense is to be found in the works of a broad group of distinguished speakers and writers of English, with this example being typical: “Gardening... and working in wood, are fit and healthy recreations for a man of study or business” (John Locke). Therefore, both healthy and healthful are correct in these contexts: a healthy climate, a healthful climate; a healthful diet, a healthy diet.

Hea·ly (hē'lē), Timothy Michael. 1855-1931. Irish nationalist politician who led an 1890 revolt against Charles Parnell and served as the first governor-general of the Irish Free State (1922-1928).

Hea·ney (hē'nē), Seamus Justin. Born 1939. Irish poet whose work is typified by dense, earthy imagery and concern for the political crises of his homeland. His books include Death of a Naturalist (1966) and Field Work (1979).

heap (hēp) n. 1. A group of things placed or thrown, one on top of the other: a heap of dirty rags lying in the corner. 2. Often heaps. Informal. A great deal; a lot: We have heaps of homework tonight. 3. Slang. An old or run-down car. — v. tr. heaped, heap-ing, heaps. 1. To put or throw in a pile. 2. To fill completely or to overflowing: heap a plate with vegetables. 3. To bestow in abundance or lavishly: heaped praise on the rescuers. [Middle English, from Old English hēap.]

SYNONYMS: heap, bank, mound, pile, stack. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a group or collection of things lying one on top of the other”: a heap of old newspapers; a bank of thunderclouds; a mound of boulders; a pile of boxes; a stack of firewood.

hear (hîr) v. heard (hûrd), hear-ing, hears. — v. tr. 1. To perceive (sound) by the ear: Can you hear the signal? 2. To learn by hearing; be told by others: I heard she got married. 3. a. To listen to attentively: Hear what I have to tell you. b. To listen to in an official, professional, or formal capacity: heard the last witness in the afternoon. c. To listen to and consider favorably: Lord, hear my prayer! d. To attend or participate in: hear Mass. — v. intr. 1. To be capable of perceiving sound. 2. To receive news or information; learn: I heard about your accident. 3. To consider, permit, or consent to something. Used only in the negative: I won't hear of your going! — phrasal verb. hear from. 1. To get a letter, telephone call, or transmitted communication from. 2. To be reprimanded by: If you don't do your homework, you're going to hear from me. — idiom. hear, hear. Used to express approval. [Middle English hearen, Old English hīeran. See keu- in Appendix.] — hear'er n.

Heard Island (hûrd ī'lənd) An island of the southern Indian Ocean near the coast of Antarctica. First discovered by an American navigator in 1853, it was placed under Australian administration in 1947.

hear·ing (hîr'ing) n. 1. The sense by which sound is perceived; the capacity to hear. 2. Range of audibility; earshot. 3. An opportunity to be heard. 4. Law. a. A preliminary examination of an accused person. b. The trial of an equity case. 5. A session, as of an investigatory committee or a grand jury, at which testimony is taken from witnesses.

hearing aid (hîr'ing ād) n. A small electronic apparatus that amplifies sound and is worn in or behind the ear to compensate for impaired hearing.

hearing dog (hîr'ing dôg) n. A dog trained to assist a deaf or hearing-impaired person by signaling the occurrence of certain sounds, such as a ringing telephone or doorbell.

hear·ing·im·paired (hîr'ing-ĭm-pârd') adj. 1. Having a diminished or defective sense of hearing, but not deaf; hard of hearing. 2. Completely incapable of hearing; deaf. — n. (used with a pl. verb). Persons who are deficient in hearing or are deaf: The speech was interpreted in sign language for the hearing-impaired.

hear·ken also har·ken (hâr'kən) v. hear·kened, hear·ken·ing, hear·kens. — v. intr. To listen attentively; give heed. — v. tr. Archaic. To listen to; hear. [Middle English herknen, from Old English hercnian. See keu- in Appendix.]

Hearn (hûrn), Lafcadio. 1850-1904. Greek-born American writer noted for his exotic stories and novels, such as Chita (1887).

hear·say (hîr'sā') n. 1. Information heard from another. 2. Law. Evidence based on the reports of others rather than the personal knowledge of a witness and therefore generally not admissible as testimony.

hearse (hûrs) n. 1. A vehicle for conveying a coffin to a church or cemetery. 2. Roman Catholic Church. A triangular candelabrum used at Tenebrae during Holy Week. 3. A framelike structure over a coffin or tomb on which to hang epitaphs. [Middle English herse, a harrow-shaped structure for holding candles over a coffin, from Old French herce, from Medieval Latin hercia, from Latin hirpex, hirpic-, harrow, probably from Oscan hirpus, wolf (alluding to its teeth).]

Hearst (hûrst), William Randolph. 1863-1951. American newspaper and magazine publisher. Beginning with the San Francisco Examiner in 1887, he built the world's largest publishing empire, comprising 28 major newspapers. A passionate collector, he displayed many of his acquisitions in San Simeon, his ornate California estate.

heart (hârt) n. 1. Anatomy. a. The chambered, muscular organ in vertebrates that pumps blood received from the veins into the arteries, thereby maintaining the flow of blood through the entire circulatory system. b. A similarly functioning structure in invertebrates. 2. The area that is the approximate location of the heart in the body; the breast. 3. a. The vital center and source of one's being, emotions, and sensibilities. b. The repository of one's deepest and sincerest feelings and beliefs: an appeal from the heart; a subject dear to her heart. c. The seat of the intellect or imagination: the worst atrocities the human heart could devise.

4. a. Emotional constitution, basic disposition, or character: a man after my own heart. b. One's prevailing mood or current inclination: We were light of heart. My heart is not in it. 5. a. Capacity for sympathy or generosity; compassion: a leader who seems to have no heart. b. Love; affection: The child won my heart.

6. a. Courage; resolution; fortitude: The soldiers lost heart and retreated. b. The firmness of will or the callousness required to carry out an unpleasant task or responsibility: hadn't the heart to send them away without food. 7. A person esteemed or admired as lovable, loyal, or courageous: a dear heart. 8. a. The central or innermost physical part of a place or region: the heart of the financial district. See Synonyms at center. b. The core of a plant, fruit, or vegetable: hearts of palm. 9. The most important or essential part: get to the heart of the matter. 10. A conventionalized two-lobed representation of the heart, usually colored red or pink. 11. Games. a. A red, heart-shaped figure on certain playing cards. b. A playing card with this figure. c. hearts. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.) The suit of cards represented by this figure. d. A card game in which the object is either to avoid hearts when taking tricks or to take all the hearts. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: heart surgery; heart patients. — v. tr.

heart·ed, heart·ing, hearts. Archaic. To encourage; hearten. — idioms. at heart. In one's deepest feelings; fundamentally. by heart. Learned by rote; memorized word for word. do (one's) heart good. To lift one's spirits; make one happy. from the bottom of (one's) heart (or from the depths of (one's) heart). With the deepest appreciation; most sincerely. have (one's) heart in (one's) mouth. To be extremely frightened or anxious. have (one's) heart in the right place. To be well-intentioned. heart and soul. Completely; entirely. in (one's) heart of hearts. In the seat of one's truest feelings. lose (one's) heart to. To fall in love with. near (one's) heart (or close to (one's) heart). Loved by or important to one. steal (someone's) heart. To win one's affection or love. take to heart. To take seriously and be affected or troubled by: Don't take my criticism to heart. to (one's) heart's content. To one's entire satisfaction, without limitation. wear (one's) heart on (one's) sleeve. To show one's feelings clearly and openly by one's behavior. with all (one's) heart. 15. With great willingness or pleasure. 16. With the deepest feeling or devotion. with half a heart. In a half-hearted manner. [Middle English hert, from Old English heorte. See kerd- in Appendix.]

heart·ache (härt'äk') n. Emotional anguish; sorrow. See Synonyms at regret.

heart attack (härt ə-tăk') n. Acute myocardial infarction typically resulting from an occlusion or obstruction of a coronary artery and characterized by sudden, severe pain in the chest that often radiates to the shoulder, arm, or jaw.

heart-beat (härt'bět') n. 1. A single complete pulsation of the heart. 2. A vital force or driving impulse: Broadway is the heartbeat of the New York City theater world.

heart block (härt blök) n. A condition in which faulty transmission of the impulses that control the heartbeat results in a lack of coordination in the contraction of the atria and ventricles of the heart.

heart-break (härt'brāk') n. Overwhelming sorrow, grief, or disappointment. See Synonyms at regret. —heart'break'er n.

heart-break-ing (härt'brā'king) adj. Causing overwhelming grief or distress. —heart'break'ing-ly adv.

heart-bro-ken (härt'brō'kən) adj. Suffering from or exhibiting overwhelming sorrow, grief, or disappointment. —heart'bro'ken-ly adv. —heart'bro'ken-ness n.

heart-burn (härt'bûrn') n. A burning sensation, usually centered in the middle of the chest near the sternum, caused by the reflux of acidic stomach fluids that enter the lower end of the esophagus. Also called cardialgia, pyrosis.

heart disease (härt dĩ-zēz') n. A structural or functional abnormality of the heart, or of the blood vessels supplying the heart, that impairs its normal functioning.

heart-en (här'tn) v. tr. heart-ened, heart-en-ing, heart-ens. To give strength, courage, or hope to; encourage. See Synonyms at encourage.

heart failure (härt fāl'yər) n. 1. Cessation of normal heart function. 2. The inability of the heart to pump blood at an adequate rate, resulting in congestion in the lungs, shortness of breath, edema in the lower extremities, and enlargement of the liver.

heart-felt (härt'fělt') adj. Deeply or sincerely felt; earnest. See Synonyms at sincere.

hearth (härth) n. 1. The floor of a fireplace, usually extending into a room and paved with brick, flagstone, or cement. 2. Family life; the home. 3. Metallurgy. a. The lowest part of a blast furnace or cupola, from which the molten metal flows. b. The bottom of a reverberatory furnace, where ore is exposed to the flame. 4. The fireplace or brazier of a blacksmith's forge. [Middle English herth, from Old English heorth. See ker-³ in Appendix.]

hearth money (härth mün'ē) n. Roman Catholic Church. See Peter's pence (n., sense 2).

hearth-rug (härth'rüg') n. A rug laid on a floor in front of a fireplace.

hearth-side (härth'sid') n. A place next to a hearth.

- hearth·stone (härth/'stōn') n. 1. Stone used in the construction of a hearth. 2. Family life; the home. 3. A soft stone or composition of pipe clay and pulverized stone used for scouring and whitening hearths or doorsteps.
- heart·i·ly (här/'tl-ē) adv. 1. In a cordial manner; with warmth and sincerity: She greeted us heartily. 2. Thoroughly; completely: wished heartily that they would leave. 3. With zest or enthusiasm. 4. With great appetite or enjoyment: eat heartily.
- heart·land (härt/'länd') n. A central region, especially one that is politically, economically, or militarily vital to a nation.
- heart·leaf (härt/'lēf') n. See wild ginger.
- heart·less (härt/'līs) adj. 1. Devoid of compassion or feeling; pitiless. 2. Archaic. Devoid of courage or enthusiasm; spiritless. —heart/less·ly adv. —heart/less·ness n.
- heart·lung machine (härt/'lūng' mə·shēn') n. An apparatus through which blood is temporarily diverted, especially during heart surgery, to oxygenate it and pump it throughout the body, thus maintaining circulation until the heart and lungs are able to return to normal functioning.
- heart massage (härt mə·säzh') n. See cardiac massage.
- heart rate (härt rāt) n. Abbr. HR The number of heartbeats per unit of time, usually expressed as beats per minute.
- heart·rend·ing or heart·rend·ing (härt/'rēn'dīng) adj. Causing anguish or deep distress; arousing deep sympathy.
- Heart River (härt rīv'ər) A river, about 290 km (180 mi) long, of southwest North Dakota flowing eastward to the Missouri River near Bismarck.
- heart·search·ing (härt/'sûr'chīng) n. An examination of one's conscience, innermost feelings, and motives. —heart/-search'ing adj.
- hearts·ease also heart's·ease (härts/'ēz') n. 1. Peace of mind. 2. A hybrid plant derived from crossing certain species of the genus Viola and having small, spurred, variously colored flowers.
- heart·sick (härt/'sīk') adj. Profoundly disappointed; despondent. —heart/sick'ness n.
- heart·strick·en (härt/'strīk'ən) also heart·struck (-strūk') adj. Overwhelmed with grief, dismay, or remorse.
- heart·string (härt/'strīng') n. 1. heartstrings. The deepest feelings or affections: a tug at the heartstrings. 2. One of the nerves or tendons formerly believed to brace and sustain the heart.
- heart·struck (härt/'strūk') adj. Variant of heart-stricken.
- heart·throb (härt/'thrōb') n. 1. A pulsation of the heart; a heartbeat. 2. a. Sentimental or tender emotion. b. Infatuation. 3. a. A sweetheart. b. The object of one's infatuation.

heart-to-heart (härt'tə-härt') adj. Candid; frank. — n. An intimate conversation in private.

heart-warm-ing or heart-warm-ing (härt'wôr'ming) adj. Causing gladness and pleasure.

heart-wood (härt'wööd') n. The older, inactive central wood of a tree or woody plant, usually darker and harder than the younger sapwood. Also called duramen heart-worm (härt'wûrm') n. 1. A filarial worm (Dirofilaria immitis) transmitted by mosquitoes and parasitic in the heart and associated blood vessels of dogs and other canids. 2. The condition resulting from infestation with the heartworm.

heart-y (här'tē) adj. heart-i-er, heart-i-est. 1. Expressed warmly, exuberantly, and unrestrainedly: a hearty welcome. See Synonyms at sincere. 2. Complete or thorough; unequivocal: hearty support. 3. Vigorous; robust: a hearty glow of health. 4. Enjoying or requiring much food: a person with a hearty appetite. a. Providing abundant nourishment: a hearty chowder. b. Satisfying; substantial: a hearty meal. — n. pl. heart-ies. 1. A good fellow; a comrade. 2. A sailor. —heart'i-ness n.

heat (hēt) n. 1. Physics. A form of energy associated with the motion of atoms or molecules and capable of being transmitted through solid and fluid media by conduction, through fluid media by convection, and through empty space by radiation. 2. The sensation or perception of such energy as warmth or hotness. 3. An abnormally high bodily temperature, as from a fever. 4. a. The condition of being hot. b. A degree of warmth or hotness: The burner was on low heat. 5. a. The warming of a room or building by a furnace or another source of energy: The house was cheap to rent, but the heat was expensive. b. A furnace or other source of warmth in a room or building: The heat was on when we returned from work. 6. A hot season; a spell of hot weather. 7. a. Intensity, as of passion, emotion, color, appearance, or effect. b. The most intense or active stage: the heat of battle. c. A burning sensation in the mouth produced by spicy flavoring in food. 8. Estrus. 9. One of a series of efforts or attempts. 10. a. Sports & Games. One round of several in a competition, such as a race. b. A preliminary contest held to determine finalists. 11. Informal. Pressure; stress. 12. Slang. a. An intensification of police activity in pursuing criminals. b. The police. Used with the. 13. Slang. Adverse comments or hostile criticism: Heat from the press forced the senator to resign. 14. Slang. A firearm, especially a pistol. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: heat barriers; heat resistance. — v.

heat-ed, heat-ing, heats. — v. tr. 1. To make warm or hot. 2. To excite the feelings of; inflame. — v. intr. 1. To become warm or hot. 2. To become excited emotionally or intellectually. —phrasal verb. heat up. Informal. To become acute or intense: "If inflation heats up, interest rates could increase" heat capacity (hēt kə-pās'ī-tē) n. The amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one mole or one gram of a substance by one degree Celsius without change of phase.

(Christian Science Monitor). [Middle English hete, from Old English hætu. See kai- in Appendix.]

heat-ed (hē'tid) adj. Angry; vehement; impassioned: a heated argument.
—heat'ed-ly adv.

heat-er (hē'tər) n. 1. An apparatus that heats or provides heat. 2. One who heats something or tends a heating apparatus. 3. Slang. A pistol. 4. Baseball. A fastball.

heat exchanger (hēt ĩks-chān'jər) n. A device, such as an automobile radiator, used to transfer heat from a fluid on one side of a barrier to a fluid on the other side without bringing the fluids into direct contact.

heat exhaustion (hēt ĩg-zōs'chən) n. A condition caused by exposure to heat, resulting in the depletion of body fluids and causing weakness, dizziness, nausea, and often collapse. The condition can be alleviated by rest and the administration of fluids and electrolytes to compensate for those lost through excessive sweating. Also called heat prostration heath (hēth) n. 1. Any of various usually low-growing shrubs of the genus Erica and related genera, native to Europe and South Africa and having small evergreen leaves and small, colorful, urn-shaped flowers. Also called heather 2. An extensive tract of uncultivated open land covered with herbage and low shrubs; a moor. [Middle English, uncultivated land, from Old English hæth. See kaito- in Appendix.]

Heath (hēth), Edward Richard George. Born 1916. British politician who as prime minister (1970-1974) secured his country's entry into the Common Market (1972) and sought to offset high inflation by controlling wages, which led to a crippling miner's strike (1973-1974).

hea·then (hē'thən) n. pl. hea-thens or heathen. 1. a. One who adheres to the religion of a people or nation that does not acknowledge the God of Judaism, Christianity, or Islam. b. Such persons considered as a group; the unconverted. 2. a. One who is regarded as irreligious, uncivilized, or unenlightened. b. Such persons considered as a group. [Middle English hethen, from Old English hæthen. See kaito- in Appendix.] —hea'then adj. —hea'then-dom, hea'then-ism, hea'then-ry n.

hea·then-ish (hē'thə-nīsh) adj. 1. Of or having to do with heathens. 2. Uncouth; barbarous. —hea'then-ish-ly adv. —hea'then-ish-ness n.

heath·er (hēth'ər) n. 1. A low-growing Eurasian shrub (Calluna vulgaris) growing in dense masses and having small evergreen leaves and clusters of small, bell-shaped pinkish-purple flowers. Also called *ling*² 2. See heath (n., sense 1).

3. Color. A grayish purple to purplish red. [Alteration (influenced by HEATH), of Middle English hather, probably from Old English hæddre*.] —heath'er adj.

heath·er·y (hĕth'ə-rē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling heather. 2. Flecked with various colors.

heath hen (hĕth hĕn) n. A subspecies of the prairie chicken (Tympanuchus cupido subsp. cupido) that became extinct in eastern North America during the first part of the 20th century.

heat island (hĕt ī'lənd) n. An area, such as a city or an industrial site, having consistently higher temperatures than surrounding areas because of a greater retention of heat, as by buildings, concrete, and asphalt.

heat lightning (hĕt līt'nīng) n. Intermittent flashes of light near the horizon, usually seen on a hot summer evening, unaccompanied by thunder and thought to be cloud reflections of distant lightning.

heat of combustion (hĕt ūv kəm-bŭs'chən) n. The amount of heat released per unit mass or unit volume of a substance when the substance is completely burned.

heat of fusion (hĕt ūv fyōō'zhən) n. The amount of heat required to convert a unit mass of a solid at its melting point into a liquid without an increase in temperature.

heat of transformation (hĕt ūv trāns'fər-mā'shən) n. See latent heat.

heat of vaporization (hĕt ūv vā'pər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. The amount of heat required to convert a unit mass of a liquid at its boiling point into vapor without an increase in temperature.

heat·proof (hĕt'prōōf') adj. Unaffected by heat. Used especially of plastic, glass, or ceramic utensils that may be used directly over a flame or in an oven.

heat prostration (hĕt prō-strā'shən) n. See heat exhaustion.

heat pump (hĕt pŭmp) n. A device that warms or cools a building by transferring heat from a relatively low-temperature reservoir to one at a higher temperature.

heat rash (hĕt rāsh) n. An inflammatory skin condition caused by obstruction of the ducts of the sweat glands, resulting from exposure to high heat and humidity and characterized by the eruption of small, red papules accompanied by an itching or prickling sensation. Also called miliaria, prickly heat.

heat-seal (hĕt'sēl') v. tr. heat-sealed, heat-seal-ing, heat-seals. To enclose an object in a thin, clear thermoplastic sheet that is bonded by heat and pressure to form a closure against air or tampering.

heat shield (hĕt shĕld) n. A barrier that prevents the heating of a space or an object by absorbing, reflecting, or dissipating external heat, especially a protective structure on a spacecraft or missile that dissipates heat on atmospheric reentry by melting and vaporizing.

heat sink (hēt sĭngk) n. 1. An environment capable of absorbing heat from an object with which it is in thermal contact. 2. A protective device that absorbs and dissipates the excess heat generated by a system.

heat stroke (hēt strōk) n. A severe condition caused by impairment of the body's temperature-regulating abilities, resulting from prolonged exposure to excessive heat and characterized by cessation of sweating, severe headache, high fever, hot dry skin, and in serious cases, collapse and coma.

heat-treat (hēt'trēt') v. tr. heat-treat-ed, heat-treat-ing, heat-treats. To treat (metal, for example) by alternate heating and cooling in order to produce desired characteristics, such as increased hardness; temper. —heat treater n. —heat treatment n.

heat wave (hēt wāv) n. A period of unusually hot weather.

heave (hēv) v. heaved, heav-ing, heaves. — v. tr. 1. To raise or lift, especially with great effort or force: heaved the box of books onto the table. See Synonyms at lift. 2. a. To throw (a heavy object) with great effort; hurl: heave the shot; heaved a brick through the window. b. To throw or toss: heaved his backpack into the corner. 3. To utter with effort or pain: heaved a groan of despair. 4. To vomit (something). 5. past tense and past participle. hove (hōv). Nautical. a. To raise or haul up by means of a rope, line, or cable: hove the anchor up and set sail. b. To move a ship in a certain direction or into a certain position by hauling: hove the ship astern. 6. To make rise or swell: the wind heaving huge waves; an exhausted dog heaving its chest. 7. Geology. To displace or move (a vein, lode, or stratum, for example). — v. intr. 1. To rise up or swell, as if pushed up; bulge: The sidewalk froze and heaved. 2. To rise and fall in turn, as waves. 3. To gag or vomit. 4. past tense and past participle. hove. Nautical. a. To move in a certain direction or to a specified position: The frigate hove alongside. b. To pull at or haul a rope or cable: The brig is heaving around on the anchor. c. To push at a capstan bar or lever. — n. 1. The effort of heaving. 2. An act of hurling; a throw, especially when considered in terms of distance: a heave of 63 feet. 3. Geology. A horizontal dislocation, as of a rock stratum, at a fault. 4. An upward movement. 5. The act or an instance of gagging or vomiting. 6. heaves. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A pulmonary disease of horses that is characterized by respiratory irregularities, such as coughing, and is noticeable especially after exercise or in cold weather. —phrasal verb. heave to.*

1. Nautical. a. To turn a sailing ship so that its bow heads into the wind and the ship lies motionless except for drifting, in order to meet a storm: The brig hove to. b. To turn an engine-powered vessel in a similar situation so that its bow heads into the seas while proceeding at low speed. 2. Nautical. a. To turn a sailing ship so that its bow heads into the wind and the ship lies motionless except for drifting, in order to meet a storm: The brig hove to. b. To turn an engine-powered vessel in a similar situation so that its bow heads into the seas while proceeding at low speed. —idiom. heave into sight (or heave into view). To rise or seem to rise over the horizon into view, as a ship. [Middle English heven, from Old English hebban. See kap- in Appendix.] —heav'er n.

heave ho (hēv hō) interj. Nautical. Used as a command to sailors to pull hard on a rope or cable.

heave-ho (hēv'hō') n. Slang. Dismissal from one's job or from one's position: got the heave-ho in a very unceremonious manner; gave the employee the old heave-ho.

heav-en (hēv'ən) n. 1. Often heavens. The sky or universe as seen from Earth; the firmament. 2. a. Often Heaven. The abode of God, the angels, and the souls of those who are granted salvation. b. An eternal state of communion with God; everlasting bliss. 3. a. Heaven. God: Heaven help you! b. heavens. Used in various phrases to express surprise: Good heavens! 4. Often heavens. The celestial powers; the gods: The heavens favored the young prince. 5. A condition or place of great happiness, delight, or pleasure: The lake was heaven.

—idiom. move heaven and earth. To do everything possible to bring about something desired. [Middle English heven, from Old English heofon. See ak- in Appendix.]

heav-en-ly (hēv'ən-lē) adj. 1. Sublime; delightful; enchanting. 2. Of or relating to the firmament; celestial. 3. Of or relating to the abode of God; divine.

—heav'en-li-ness n.

heav-en-sent (hēv'ən-sēnt') adj. Occurring at an opportune time; providential.

heav-en-ward (hēv'ən-wərd) adv. & adj. Toward, to, or in heaven.

—heav'en-wards (-wərdz) adv.

heav-i-er-than-air (hēv'ē-ər-thən-âr') adj. Being an aircraft that is heavier than the air it displaces.

heav-i-ly (hēv-ə-lē) adv. 1. In a burdened manner: heavily laden. 2. Very slowly and with difficulty; laboriously: walking heavily through the snow.

3. Greatly or severely: heavily in debt.

Heav-i-side (hēv'ē-sīd'), Oliver. 1850-1925. British physicist who predicted the existence of the ionized atmospheric layer now known as the ionosphere.

Heaviside layer (hēv'ē-sīd' lā'ər) n. See E layer. [After Oliver HEAVISIDE.]

heav-y (hēv'ē) adj. heav-i-er, heav-i-est. Abbr. hvy. 1. Having relatively great weight: a heavy load. 2. Having relatively high density; having a high specific gravity. 3. a. Large, as in number or quantity: a heavy turnout; heavy casualties. b. Large in yield or output: heavy rainfall. 4. Of great intensity: heavy activity; heavy fighting. 5. a. Having great power or force: a heavy punch. b. Violent; rough: heavy seas. 6. a. Equipped with massive armaments and weapons: a heavy cruiser; heavy infantry. b. Large enough to fire powerful shells: heavy guns. 7. a. Indulging to a great degree: a heavy drinker. b. Involved or participating on a large scale: a heavy investor. 8. Of great import or seriousness; grave: heavy matters of state. 9. a. Having considerable thickness: a heavy coat. b. Broad or coarse: drew the face with heavy lines. 10. a. Dense; thick: a heavy fog. b. Slow to dissipate; strong: “There was a heavy fragrance of flowers and lemon trees” (Mario Puzo). c. Too dense or rich to digest easily: a heavy dessert. d. Insufficiently leavened: heavy bread. e. Full of clay and readily saturated: heavy soil. 11. a. Weighed down; burdened: trees heavy with plums. b. Emotionally weighed down; despondent: a heavy heart. c. Marked by or exhibiting weariness: heavy lids. d. Sad or painful: heavy news. 12. a. Hard to do or accomplish; arduous: heavy going; heavy reading. b. Not easily borne; oppressive: heavy taxes. 13. Lacking vitality; deficient in vivacity or grace: a heavy gait; heavy humor. 14. Sharply inclined; steep: a heavy grade. 15. Having a large capacity or designed for rough work: a heavy truck. 16. Of, relating to, or involving the large-scale production of basic products, such as steel: heavy industry. 17. Of or relating to a serious dramatic role. 18. Physics. Of or relating to an isotope with an atomic mass greater than the average mass of that element. 19. Loud; sonorous: a heavy sound; heavy breathing. 20. Linguistics. Of, relating to, or being a syllable ending in a long vowel or in a vowel plus two consonants. 21. Slang. a. Of great significance or profundity. b. Very popular or important: a rock star who is really heavy. — adv. heav-i-er, heav-i-est. Heavily: The snow is falling heavier tonight than last night. — n. pl. heav-ies. 1. a. A serious or tragic role in a play. b. An actor playing such a role. 2. Slang. A villain in a story or play. 3. Slang. A mobster. 4. Slang. One that is very important or influential: a media heavy. [Middle English hevi, from Old English hefig. See kap- in Appendix.] — heav/i-ness n.

SYNONYMS: heavy, weighty, hefty, massive, ponderous, cumbersome. These adjectives mean having a relatively great weight. Heavy refers to what has great weight (a heavy boulder; a heavy load); figuratively it applies to what is burdensome or oppressive to the spirit (heavy responsibilities; heavy losses). Weighty literally denotes having considerable weight (a weighty package); figuratively it describes what is onerous, serious, or important (the weighty cares of a head of state; a weighty problem; a weighty decision). Hefty refers principally to physical heaviness or brawniness: a hefty dictionary; a tall, hefty wrestler. Massive describes what is bulky, heavy, solid, and strong: a massive head; massive marble columns; a massive gold chain. Ponderous refers to what has great mass and weight and usually implies unwieldiness: ponderous prehistoric beasts. Figuratively it describes what is complicated, involved, or lacking in grace: a book with a ponderous plot; a ponderous compliment. Something cumbersome is difficult to move, handle, or deal with because it is heavy, bulky, or clumsy: cumbersome luggage; a cumbersome writing style.

heav-y-dut-y (hěv'ē-dōō'tē, -dyōō'-) adj. Abbr. HD Made to withstand hard use or wear.

heav-y-foot-ed (hěv'ē-fōōt'īd) adj. Having a ponderous, lumbering gait.

heav-y-hand-ed (hěv'ē-hăn'dīd) adj. 1. Clumsy; awkward. 2. Tactless; indiscreet. 3. Oppressive; harsh. —heav'y-hand'ed-ness n.

heav-y-heart-ed (hěv'ē-hăr'tīd) adj. Melancholy; depressed; sad.

—heav'y-heart'ed-ly adv. —heav'y-heart'ed-ness n.

heavy hydrogen (hěv'ē hī'drə-jən) n. An isotope of hydrogen with mass number greater than 1; deuterium or tritium.

heav-y-lad-en (hěv'ē-lād'n) adj. 1. Loaded with great weight. 2. Burdened with grievous cares.

heavy lifting (hěv'ē lif'tīng) n. Slang. Serious or difficult activities or work: “Attention is shifting to the fall Presidential race, and with only seven months left in office, Reagan won't be doing any heavy lifting” (Business Week).

heavy metal (hěv'ē mět'l) n. 1. A metal with a specific gravity greater than about 5.0, especially one that is poisonous, such as lead or mercury. 2. Music. Very loud, greatly amplified, brash rock music often with shouted, violent lyrics.

heavy particle (hěv'ē pār'tī-kəl) n. See baryon.

heav-y-set (hěv'ē-sět') adj. Having a stout or compact build.

heavy spar (hěv'ē spär) n. See barite.

heavy water (hěv'ē wō'tər) n. Any of several isotopic forms of water, especially deuterium oxide, that consists chiefly of molecules containing heavy hydrogen and is used as a moderator in certain nuclear reactors.

heav-y-weight (hěv'ē-wāt') n. 1. One of above average weight. 2. Sports.
a. A professional boxer weighing more than 175 pounds (approximately 79.5 kilograms), heavier than a light heavyweight. b. A contestant in other sports in the heaviest weight class. 3. Informal. A person of great importance or influence. —heav'y-weight' adj.

Heb. abbr. 1. Hebrew. 2. Bible. Hebrews.

Heb-bel (hěb'əl), (Christian) Friedrich. 1813-1863. German dramatist whose works, such as Judith (1840) and Maria Magdalena (1844), are infused with his philosophical and historical theories.

heb-do-mad (hěb'də-măd') n. 1. A group of seven. 2. A period of seven days; a week. [Latin hebdomas, hebdomad-, the number seven, from Greek, from hebdomos, seventh, from hepta, seven. See septm in Appendix.]

heb-dom-a-dal (hěb-dŏm'ə-dəl) adj. Weekly. —heb-dom'a-dal-ly adv.

He-be (hě'bē) n. Greek Mythology. The goddess of youth and spring, cupbearer to the Olympian gods.

He·bei (hœ'bā') also Ho·pei or Ho·peh (hō'pā', hū'bā') A province of northeast China bordering on the Gulf of Bo Hai. One of the earliest regions of Chinese settlement, Hebei has many prehistoric sites. Shijiazhuang is the capital. Population, 55,480,000.

he·be·phre·ni·a (hē'bə-frē'nē-ə, -frē'nē-) n. A type of schizophrenia, usually starting at puberty, characterized by foolish mannerisms, senseless laughter, delusions, hallucinations, and regressive behavior. [Greek hēbē, youth + -PHRENIA.] —he'be·phren'ic (-frē'n'ik, -frē'n'ik) adj.

Hé·bert (ā-bēr'), Jacques René. Known as "Père Duchesne." 1755?-1794. French revolutionary and journalist who published virulent Republican newspapers, helped plan the overthrow of the monarchy (1792), and exerted such influence during the Reign of Terror that Robespierre had him guillotined.

heb·e·tate (hēb'ī-tāt') v. tr. heb·e·tat·ed, heb·e·tat·ing, heb·e·tates. To make obtuse or dull. [Latin hebetāre, hebetāt-, from hebes, hebet-, blunt.]

—heb'e·ta'tion n. —heb'e·ta'tive adj.

heb·e·tude (hēb'ī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. Dullness of mind; mental lethargy. [Late Latin hebetūdō, from Latin hebes, hebet-, dull.] —heb'e·tu'di·nous (-tōōd'n-əs, -tyōōd'-) adj.

Hebr. abbr. Hebrew.

He·bra·ic (hī-brā'ik) also He·bra·i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the Hebrews or their language or culture. [Middle English Ebraik, from Late Latin Hebrāicus, from Greek Hebraikos, from Hebraios. See HEBREW.]

—He·bra'i·cal·ly adv.

He·bra·ism (hē'brā-īz'əm) n. 1. A manner or custom characteristic of the Hebrews. 2. A linguistic feature typical of Hebrew occurring especially in another language. 3. The culture, spirit, or character of the Hebrew people. 4. Judaism.

He·bra·ist (hē'brā-īst) n. A scholar who specializes in the study of Hebrew. —He'bra·is'tic, He'bra·is'ti·cal adj. —He'bra·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

He·bra·ize (hē'brā-īz') v. He·bra·ized, He·bra·iz·ing, He·bra·iz·es. — v. tr. To make Hebraic in form or idiom. — v. intr. To use or adopt Hebraisms. —He'bra·i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

He·brew (hē'brōō) n. Abbr. Heb., Hebr. 1. A member or descendant of a northern Semitic people, claiming descent from Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; an Israelite; a Jew. 2. a. The Semitic language of the ancient Hebrews. b. Any of the various later forms of this language, especially the language of the Israelis.

3. Hebrews. (used with a sing. verb). A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Middle English Ebreu, from Old French, from Latin Hebraeus, Hebraic, from Greek Hebraios, from Aramaic 'ibray, from Hebrew 'ibrī.] —He'brew adj.

Hebrew Scriptures (hē'brōō skrip'chərz) pl.n. Bible. The Pentateuch, the Prophets, and the Hagiographa, forming the covenant between God and the Jewish people that is the foundation and Bible of Judaism while constituting for Christians the Old Testament.

Heb·ri·des (hĕb'ri-dēz') also West·ern Islands (wĕs'tĕrn) An island group of western and northwest Scotland in the Atlantic Ocean, divided into the Inner Hebrides, closer to the Scottish mainland, and the Outer Hebrides, to the northwest. The original Celtic inhabitants were conquered by Scandinavians, particularly Norwegians, who ruled the islands until 1266. Native Scottish chieftains controlled the Hebrides until the 16th century, when the islands passed to the kingdom of Scotland. —Heb'ri-de'an adj. & n.

He·bron (hĕ'brən) A city of the West Bank south-southwest of Jerusalem. Believed to be one of the oldest cities in the world, it was Abraham's home and King David's capital for a short time. According to the Old Testament, it is also the burial place of Abraham and Sarah. Hebron was occupied by Israel in 1967. Population, 43,000.

Hec·a·te or Hek·a·te (hĕk'ə-tē, hĕk'īt) n. Greek Mythology. An ancient fertility goddess who later became associated with Persephone as queen of Hades and protector of witches.

Hec·ate Strait (hĕk'ət strāt, -ə-tē) A channel of western British Columbia, Canada, separating the Queen Charlotte Islands from coastal islands off the mainland of the province.

hec·a·tomb (hĕk'ə-tōm') n. 1. A large-scale sacrifice or slaughter. 2. A sacrifice to the ancient Greek and Roman gods consisting originally of 100 oxen or cattle. [Latin hecatombē, from Greek hecatombē: hekatōn, hundred; see dekḡ in Appendix + -bē, oxen; see g^wou- in Appendix.]

Hecht (hĕkt), Ben. 1894-1964. American writer of short stories, novels, such as Erik Dorn (1921), dramas, including The Front Page (1928), written with Charles MacArthur, and screenplays, such as Gunga Din (1938).

heck (hĕk) interj. Used as a mild oath. — n. Slang. Used as an intensive: had a heck of a lot of money; was crowded as heck. [Alteration of HELL.]

heck·el·phone (hĕk'əl-fōn') n. Music. A woodwind instrument of the oboe family, with a pitch between that of an English horn and a bassoon. [German Heckelphon, after Wilhelm Heckel (1879-1952), German musical instrument maker.]

heck·le (hĕk'əl) v. tr. heck·led, heck·ling, heck·les. 1. To try to embarrass and annoy (another) by questions, gibes, or objections; badger. 2. To comb (flax or hemp) with a hatchel. [Middle English hekelen, to comb with a hatchel, from hekel, hatchel, from Middle Dutch. See keg- in Appendix.] —heck'ler n.

heck·uv·a (hĕk'ə-və) adj. Slang. Used as an intensive: You've done a heckuva good job. [Alteration of heck of a.] hect- pref. Variant of hecto-.

hec-tare (hĕk'târ') n. Abbr. ha A metric unit of area equal to 100 ares (2.471 acres). See Table at measurement.

hec-tic (hĕk'tik) adj. 1. Characterized by intense activity, confusion, or haste: "There was nothing feverish or hectic about his vigor" (Erik Erikson). 2. Medicine. Of, relating to, or being a fever that fluctuates during the day, as in tuberculosis or septicemia. 3. Consumptive; feverish. 4. Flushed. [Middle English etik, recurring, consumptive, from Old French etique, from Late Latin hecticus, from Greek hektikos, from hexis, habit, from ekhein, to be in a certain condition. See segh- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: In the Usage Panel survey done for the first edition of the American Heritage Dictionary (1969), 92 percent of the Panel approved of the use of hectic in its most familiar sense, "characterized by feverish activity, confusion, or haste." The question was put to the Panel because in earlier usage that sense was sometimes deprecated as a loose extension of the term's meaning in medicine. Unless one has some medical knowledge one probably does not know the older medical uses of the term, for example, "relating to an undulating fever, such as those accompanying tuberculosis," and unless one has some acquaintance with Middle English one would not recognize the first recorded instance of the word, etik, in a text written before 1398. The Middle English term comes from the Old French development of the Late Latin word hecticus, whose form helped reshape our word in the 16th century. Late Latin hecticus in turn comes from Greek hektikos, "formed by habit or forming habit" and "consumptive," developing the last sense because of the chronic nature of tuberculous fevers. Thus a word that once simply meant "habitual" eventually had an English descendant used to refer to circumstances that would be undesirable if they were habitual.

hecto- or hect- pref. One hundred (10^2): hectare. [French, alteration of Greek hekatón, hundred. See dek- in Appendix.]

hec-to-cot-y-lus (hĕk'tō-kōt'l-əs) n. pl. hec-to-cot-y-li (-kōt'l-ī'). A modified arm of the male of certain cephalopods, such as the octopus, functioning as a reproductive organ in the transference of sperm to the mantle cavity of the female. [New Latin : HECTO- + Greek kotulē, small cup.]

hec-to-gram (hĕk'tə-grām') n. Abbr. hg A metric unit of mass equal to 100 grams.

hec-to-graph (hĕk'tə-grăf') n. A machine employing a glycerin-coated layer of gelatin in order to make copies of typed or written material. — v. tr.

hec-to-graphed, hec-to-graph-ing, hec-to-graphs. To copy by means of a hectograph. — hec'to-graph'ic adj. — hec'to-graph'i-cal-ly adv.

hec-to-li-ter (hĕk'tə-lē'tər) n. Abbr. hl 1. A metric unit of liquid capacity or volume equal to 100 liters. 2. A metric unit of dry capacity or volume equal to 100 liters.

hec-to-me-ter (hĕk'tə-mē'tər, hĕk-tŏm'ī-tər) n. Abbr. hm A metric unit of length equal to 100 meters. See Table at measurement.

hec-tor (hĕk'tər) n. A bully. — v. hec-tored, hec-tor-ing, hec-tors. — v. tr. To intimidate or dominate in a blustering way. — v. intr. To behave like a bully; swagger. [Latin Hectōr, Hector, from Greek Hektōr.]

Hec-tor (hĕk'tər) n. Greek Mythology. A Trojan prince, the eldest son of Priam and Hecuba, killed by Achilles in Homer's Iliad.

Hec-u-ba (hĕk'yə-bə) n. Greek Mythology. The wife of Priam and mother of Hector, Paris, and Cassandra in Homer's Iliad.

he'd (hĕd) 1. He had. 2. He would.

hed-dle (hĕd'l) n. One of a set of parallel cords or wires in a loom used to separate and guide the warp threads and make a path for the shuttle. [Probably alteration of Middle English helde, from Old English hefeld. See kap- in Appendix.]

hedge (hĕj) n. 1. A row of closely planted shrubs or low-growing trees forming a fence or boundary. 2. A line of people or objects forming a barrier: a hedge of spectators along the sidewalk. 3. a. A means of protection or defense, especially against financial loss: a hedge against inflation. b. A securities transaction that reduces the risk on an existing investment position. 4. An intentionally non-committal or ambiguous statement. — v. hedged, hedg-ing, hedg-es. — v. tr. 1. To enclose or bound with or as if with hedges. 2. To hem in, hinder, or restrict with or as if with a hedge. 3. To minimize or protect against the loss of by counterbalancing one transaction, such as a bet, against another. — v. intr.

1. To plant or cultivate hedges. 2. To take compensatory measures so as to counterbalance possible loss. 3. To avoid making a clear, direct response or statement. [Middle English, from Old English hecg.] — hedg'er n. — hedg'y adj.

hedge fund (hĕj fünd) n. An investment company that uses high-risk techniques, such as borrowing money and selling short, in an effort to make extraordinary capital gains.

hedge-hog (hĕj'hôg', -hŏg') n. 1. Any of several small insectivorous mammals of the family Erinaceidae of Europe, Africa, and Asia, having the back covered with dense, erectile spines and characteristically rolling into a ball for protection. 2. Any of several spiny animals, such as the porcupine, that are similar to the hedgehog.

hedge-hop (hĕj'hŏp') v. intr. hedge-hopped, hedge-hop-ping, hedge-hops. To fly an airplane close to the ground, rising above objects as they appear, as in spraying crops. — hedge-hop'per n.

hedge hyssop (hĕj hīs'əp) n. Any of various plants of the genus Gratiola, growing in damp places and having small yellow or whitish flowers.

hedge·row (hĕj' rō') n. A row of bushes, shrubs, or trees forming a hedge.

He·din (hĕ-dĕn'), Sven Anders von. 1865-1952. Swedish explorer and geographer who made several expeditions to central Asia and was the first to map Tibet accurately (1908).

Hed·jaz (hĕ-jăz') See Hejaz.

he·don·ic (hĭ-dŏn'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or marked by pleasure. 2. Of or relating to hedonism or hedonists. [Greek hĕdonikos, from hĕdonĕ, pleasure. See swād- in Appendix.] — he·don'i·cal·ly adv.

he·don·ics (hĭ-dŏn'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. The branch of psychology that studies pleasant and unpleasant sensations and states of mind. 2. Philosophy. The branch of ethics that deals with the relation of pleasure to duty.

he·don·ism (hĕd'n-iz'əm) n. 1. Pursuit of or devotion to pleasure, especially to the pleasures of the senses. 2. Philosophy. The ethical doctrine holding that only what is pleasant or has pleasant consequences is intrinsically good. 3. Psychology. The doctrine holding that behavior is motivated by the desire for pleasure and the avoidance of pain. [Greek hĕdonĕ, pleasure; see swād- in Appendix + -ISM.] — he'don·ist n. — he'don·is'tic adj. — he'don·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

-hedral suff. Having a specified kind or number of surfaces: dihedral. [From HEDRON.]

-hedron suff. A crystal or geometric figure having a specified kind or number of surfaces: heptahedron. [New Latin, from Greek -edron, neuter of -edros, -sided, from hedra, face. See sed- in Appendix.]

hee·bie·jee·bies (hĕ'bĕ-jĕ'bĕz) pl.n. Slang. A feeling of uneasiness or nervousness; the jitters. [Coined by William De Beck (1890-1942), American cartoonist, in his comic strip Barney Google.]

heed (hĕd) v. heed·ed, heed·ing, heeds. — v. tr. To pay attention to; listen to and consider: "He did not heed my gibes, and chattered on" (Sean O'Faolain). — v. intr. To pay attention. — n. Close attention; notice. [Middle English heden, from Old English hĕdan.]

heed·ful (hĕd'fəl) adj. Paying close attention; mindful. See Synonyms at care·ful. — heed'ful·ly adv. — heed'ful·ness n.

heed·less (hĕd'lis) adj. Marked by or paying little heed; unmindful or thoughtless. See Synonyms at careless. See Synonyms at impetuous. — heed'less·ly adv. — heed'less·ness n.

hee·haw (hĕ'hô') n. 1. The braying sound made by a donkey. 2. Informal. A noisy laugh; a guffaw. — v. intr. hee·hawed, hee·haw·ing, hee·haws.

1. To bray. 2. Informal. To guffaw. [Imitative.]

heel¹ (hĕl) n. 1. a. The rounded posterior portion of the human foot under and behind the ankle. b. The corresponding part of the hind foot of other vertebrates. c. A similar anatomical part, such as the fleshy rounded base of the human palm or the hind toe of a bird. 2. a. The part, as of a sock, shoe, or stocking, that covers the rounded posterior portion of the human foot. b. The built-up portion of a shoe or boot, supporting the heel. 3. One of the crusty ends of a loaf of bread. 4. Nautical. a. The lower end of a mast. b. The after end of a ship's keel. 5. a. A lower, rearward surface, as of the head of a golf club where it joins the shaft. b. Music. The end of a violin bow where the handle is located. 6. Botany. The basal end of a plant cutting or tuber used in propagation. 7. Oppression; tyranny: under the heel of Stalinism; the heel of an autocrat. 8. Informal. A dishonorable man; a cad. — v. heeled, heel-ing, heels. — v. tr. 1. a. To furnish with a heel or heels. b. To repair or replace the heels, as for shoes. 2. Slang. To furnish, especially with money. 3. To arm (a gamecock) with gaffs. 4. To press or strike with the heel: heel a horse. — v. intr. To follow at one's heels: The dog won't heel. — idioms. down at the heels. 1. Having one's shoe heels worn down. 2. Shabby; rundown; poor. lay by the heels. To put in fetters or shackles; imprison. on the heels of (or upon the heels of). 4. Directly behind. 5. Immediately following. out at the heel (or out at the heels). 6. Having holes in one's socks or shoes. 7. Run-down; shabby; seedy. take to (one's) heels. To run away; flee. to heel. 9. Close behind. 10. Under discipline or control. [Middle English, from Old English hēla.]

heel² (hēl) v. intr. tr. heeled, heel-ing, heels. To tilt or cause to tilt to one side. — n. A tilt, as of a boat, to one side. [Alteration of Middle English helden, from Old English hieldan.]

heel-and-toe (hēl'ən-tō') adj. Characterized by a stride in which the heel of one foot touches ground before the toe of the other foot is lifted, as in walking races.

heel-and-toe-ing (hēl'ən-tō'ing) n. Sports. See race walking.

heel-ball (hēl'bôl') n. A wax colored with lampblack that is used to stain and polish the edges of the soles and heels of shoes or take rubbings of brass or inscriptions.

heel bone (hēl bōn) n. See calcaneus.

heel-er (hē'lər) n. 1. One who heels shoes. 2. Informal. A ward heeler.

heel-piece (hēl'pēs') n. A piece made for or serving as the heel of a shoe or stocking.

heel-post (hēl'pōst') n. The post to which a door or gate is hinged.

heel-tap (hēl'tăp') n. 1. A layer of leather or wood added to raise the heel of a shoe; a lift. 2. A small amount of liquor remaining in a container or drinking vessel.

heel-work (hēl'wûrk') n. In flamenco dancing, a stylized tapping of the heels in time with the music.

Heer-len (hâr'lən) A city of southeast Netherlands east-northeast of Maastricht near the German border. It is a manufacturing center in a coal-mining area. Population, 93,283.

He-fei (hœ'fā') also Ho-fei (hŭ'-) A city of east-central China west of Nanjing. A rapidly growing industrial center, it is the capital of Anhui province. Population, 594,200.

heft (hĕft) n. Weight; heaviness; bulk. — v. heft-ed, heft-ing, hefts. — v. tr. 1. To lift (something) in order to judge or estimate its weight. 2. To hoist (something); heave. — v. intr. To have a given weight. [Middle English, from heven, to lift. See HEAVE.]

heft-y (hĕf'tē) adj. heft-i-er, heft-i-est. 1. Of considerable weight; heavy. 2. Rugged and powerful. See Synonyms at heavy. 3. Informal. Of considerable size or amount: a hefty serving of mashed potatoes; received a hefty bonus. —heft'i-ly adv. —heft'i-ness n.

He-gang (hœ'gāng') also Ho-kang (hŭ'kāng', -gāng') A city of extreme northeast China northeast of Harbin near the Russian border. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 325,000.

He-gel (hā'gəl), Georg Wilhelm Friedrich. 1770-1831. German philosopher who proposed that truth is reached by a continuing dialectic. His major works include Encyclopedia of the Philosophical Sciences (1817) and The Philosophy of Right (1821).

He-ge-li-an-ism (hā-gā'lē-ə-nīz'əm, hĭ-jē'-) n. The monist, idealist philosophy of Hegel in which the dialectic of thesis, antithesis, and synthesis is used as an analytic tool in order to approach a higher unity or a new thesis. —He-ge/li-an adj. & n.

he-gem-o-ny (hĭ-jēm'ə-nē, hĕj'ə-mō'nē) n. pl. he-gem-o-nies. The predominant influence of one state over others. [Greek hēgemonia, from hēgemōn, leader, from hēgeisthai, to lead. See sāg- in Appendix.] —heg'e-mon'ic (hĕj'ə-mōn'ik) adj. —he-gem'o-nism n. —he-gem'o-nist adj. & n.

USAGE NOTE: Hegemony may be stressed on either the second or first syllable, though 72 percent of the Usage Panel prefers the first pronunciation.

he-gi-ra also he-ji-ra (hĭ-jī'rə, hĕj'ər-ə) n. 1. A flight to escape danger. 2. Also Hegira. The flight of Mohammed from Mecca to Medina in 622, marking the beginning of the Muslim era. [Medieval Latin, from Arabic hijrah, emigration, flight, from hajara, to depart.]

Hei-deg-ger (hī'dĕg'ər, -dī-gər), Martin. 1889-1976. German philosopher who maintained that authentic human existence belongs only to those who react with angst to the inherent emptiness of life. His works, including Being and Time (1927), greatly influenced Sartre and other existentialists.

Hei-del-berg (hīd'l-bûrg', -bërk') A city of southwest Germany on the Neckar River north-northwest of Stuttgart. First mentioned in the 12th century, it was the capital of the Palatinate until the early 18th century. Its university was established in 1386. Population, 133,693.

Heidelberg man (hīd'l-bûrg' măn) n. An early member of an extinct human species, considered closely related to Homo erectus, known primarily from a fossil jawbone found near Heidelberg, West Germany, in 1907.

Hei-den-stam (hād'n-stäm', -stäm'), (Carl Gustaf) Verner von. 1859-1940. Swedish writer whose subjective works of poetry and fiction led the literary reaction to Swedish naturalism. He won the 1916 Nobel Prize for literature.

heif-er (hëf'ər) n. A young cow, especially one that has not yet given birth to a calf. [Middle English, from Old English hēahfore : hēah-, of unknown meaning + ferr, calf.]

Hei-fetz (hī'fīts), Jascha. 1901-1987. Russian-born American violinist. Considered among the world's best violinists at the age of 13, he matured into a great artist, tempering his virtuoso technique with thoughtful interpretation.

heigh-ho (hī'hō', hā'-) interj. Used to express fatigue, mild surprise, boredom, disappointment, or sometimes exultation.

height (hīt) n. Abbr. h., H., hgt., ht 1. a. The distance from the base of something to the top. b. Elevation above a given level, as of the sun or a star above the horizon; altitude. See Synonyms at elevation. 2. a. The condition or attribute of being relatively or sufficiently high or tall. b. Stature, especially of the human body. 3. The highest or uppermost point; the summit or apex. 4. a. The highest or most advanced degree; the zenith: at the height of her career. b. The point of highest intensity; the climax: the height of a storm. 5. An eminence, such as a hill or mountain. 6. a. A high point or position. b. Obsolete. High rank, estate, or degree. 7. a. Archaic. Loftiness of mind. b. Obsolete. Arrogance; hauteur: "He returned me a very resolute answer, and full of height" (Oliver Cromwell). [Middle English, from Old English hēhthu, hēahthu.]

height-en (hīt'n) v. height-ened, height-en-ing, height-ens. — v. tr. 1. To raise or increase the quantity or degree of; intensify. 2. To make high or higher; raise. — v. intr. 1. To rise or increase in quantity or degree; intensify. 2. To become high or higher; rise. — height'en-er n.

height-to-pa-per (hīt'tə-pā'pər) n. Printing. The height of type from foot to face, standardized at 0.9186 inch (2.333 centimeters).

Heil-bronn (hīl'brōn', -brōn') A city of southwest Germany on the Neckar River north of Stuttgart. On the site of a 9th-century Carolingian palace, it became a free imperial city in the 14th century. Population, 110,666.

Hei-long-jiang (hā'lōng'jyäng') also Hei-lung-kiang (hā'lōng'kyäng') A province of extreme northeast China bordering on Russia. It was under Japanese control from 1932 to 1945. Harbin is the capital. Population, 33,110,000.

Hei-long Jiang (hā'lông' jyäng') See Amur River.

Hei-lung-kiang (hā'lōng'kyäng') See Heilongjiang.

hei-mish (hā'mīsh) adj. Slang. Variant of haimish.

Heim-lich maneuver (hīm'lik' mə-nōō'vər, -lĭKH') n. An emergency technique used to eject an object, such as food, from the trachea of a choking person. The technique employs a firm upward thrust just below the rib cage to force air from the lungs. [After Henry J. Heimlich (born 1920), American surgeon.]

Hei-ne (hī'nə), Heinrich. 1797-1856. German writer who lived in Paris after 1831. His romantic poems and social essays are marked by his love for the German land and people and derision for many modern German institutions.

hei-nie (hī'nē) n. Slang. The buttocks. [Alteration of HINDER².]

Hein-lein (hīn'līn, -lĭn), Robert Anson. 1907-1988. American writer of science fiction whose works include Stranger in a Strange Land (1961) and The Moon Is a Harsh Mistress (1967).

hei-nous (hā'nəs) adj. Grossly wicked or reprehensible; abominable: a heinous crime. [Middle English, from Old French haineus, from haine, hatred, from hair, to hate, from Frankish hatjan*.] —hei'nous-ly adv. —hei'nous-ness n.

Heinz (hīnz), Henry John. 1844-1919. American food manufacturer who organized the H.J. Heinz Company (1888).

heir (âr) n. 1. Law. A person who inherits or is entitled by law or by the terms of a will to inherit the estate of another. 2. A person who succeeds or is in line to succeed to a hereditary rank, title, or office. 3. One who receives or is expected to receive a heritage, as of ideas, from a predecessor. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin hērēs. See ghē- in Appendix.]

heir apparent (âr ə-pär'ənt) n. pl. heirs apparent. Law. An heir whose right to inheritance is indefeasible by law provided he or she survives an ancestor.

heir-dom (âr'dəm) n. 1. Succession by right of blood; heirship. 2. An inheritance.

heir-ess (âr'īs) n. A woman who is an heir, especially to great wealth. See Usage Note at -ess.

heir-loom (âr'lōōm') n. 1. A valued possession passed down in a family through succeeding generations. 2. Law. An article of personal property included in an inherited estate. [Middle English heirlome : heir, heir; see HEIR + lome, implement; see LOOM².]

heir presumptive (âr prĭ-zŭmp'tĭv) n. pl. heirs presumptive. Law. An heir whose claim can be defeated by the birth of a closer relative before the death of the ancestor.

heir-ship (âr'shĭp') n. 1. The condition of being an heir. 2. Right to inheritance; heirdom.

Hei-sen-berg (hī'zən-bûrg', -bërk'), Werner Karl. 1901-1976. German physicist and a founder of quantum mechanics. He won a 1932 Nobel Prize for his uncertainty principle.

heist (hīst) Slang. v. tr. heist-ed, heist-ing, heists. 1. To steal: heisted the collection of jewels from the museum. 2. To hold up; rob. — n. A robbery; a burglary. [Alteration of HOIST.]

He-jaz also Hed-jaz (hē-jāz') A region of northwest Saudi Arabia on the Gulf of Aqaba and the Red Sea. It includes the holy cities of Mecca and Medina.

he-ji-ra (hī-jī'rə, hēj'ər-ə) n. Variant of hegira.

Hek-a-te (hëk'ə-tē, hëk'it) n. Greek Mythology. Variant of Hecate.

Hek-la (hëk'lə) An active volcano, 1,492.1 m (4,892 ft) high, of southwest Iceland. In medieval Icelandic folklore, Hekla was believed to be one of the gateways to purgatory.

Hel (hëł) n. Mythology. 1. The Norse goddess of death and the underworld; the daughter of Loki. 2. The Norse underworld of the dead not killed in battle. [Old Norse. See kel-¹ in Appendix.]

He-La cell (hëł'ə sël) n. Any of the cells of the first continuously cultured human carcinoma strain, originally obtained from cancerous cervical tissue and maintained for use in studying cellular processes. [After He(nrietta) La(cks) who donated such cells in 1951.]

held (hëld) v. Past tense and past participle of hold¹.

Held (hëld), Anna. 1865?-1918. French-born American entertainer noted for her lavish costumes and her appearances in numerous vaudeville shows and musical comedies produced by Florenz Ziegfeld.

Held (hëld), John, Jr. 1889-1958. American illustrator and writer known for his interpretations of Jazz Age subject matter.

hel-den-te-nor also Hel-den-te-nor (hëł'dən-tə-nôr', -nôr') n. Music. 1. A tenor voice with a striking dramatic or brilliant quality that is well suited for heroic roles, such as those in Wagnerian opera. 2. A person with such a voice. [German : Held, hero (from Middle High German helt, from Old High German helid) + Tenor, tenor (from Italian tenore); see TENOR.]

Hel-e-na (hëł'ə-nə) The capital of Montana, in the west-central part of the state north-northeast of Butte. It was founded in 1864 after the discovery of gold at Last Chance Gulch. Helena became the territorial capital after 1874 and the state capital in 1889. Population, 24,569.

Hel-en of Troy (hëł'ən ūf troi) n. Greek Mythology. The daughter of Zeus and Leda and wife of Menelaus. Her abduction by Paris caused the Trojan War.

Hel-go-land (hëł'gō-länd', -länt') An island of northwest Germany, one of the North Frisian Islands in Helgoland Bay, an inlet of the North Sea southwest of Jutland. The island belonged to Denmark and Great Britain before being ceded to Germany in 1890. It is a popular tourist resort.

heli-¹ pref. Helicopter: heliport. [From HELICOPTER.]

heli-² pref. Variant of helio-.

he-li-a-cal (hĭ-lĭ'ə-kəl) adj. Of or relating to the sun, especially rising and setting with the sun. [From Late Latin hēliacus, from Greek hēliakos, from hēlios, sun. See sāwel- in Appendix.] —he-li'a-cal·ly adv.

hel-borne (hĕl'ə-bōrn', -bōrn') adj. Carried or transported by helicopter: heliborne troops.

helic- pref. Variant of helico-.

hel-i-cal (hĕl'ĭ-kəl, hĕ'lĭ-) adj. 1. Of or having the shape of a helix; spiral.

2. Having a shape approximating that of a helix. —hel'i-cal·ly adv.

hel-i-ces (hĕl'ĭ-sĕz', hĕ'lĭ-) n. A plural of helix.

helico- or helic- pref. Helix; spiral: helicoid. [Greek heliko-, from helix, helic-, spiral. See HELIX.]

hel-i-coid (hĕl'ĭ-koid', hĕ'lĭ-) adj. Arranged in or having the approximate shape of a flattened coil or spiral. — n. Mathematics. A surface in the form of a coil or screw. [Greek helikoeidēs: helix, helic-, spiral; see HELIX + -oidēs, -oid.]

helicoid cyme (hĕl'ĭ-koid' sĭm) n. An inflorescence coiled in a bud like a snail shell and expanded superficially, as on a raceme with the flowers on one side.

hel-i-con (hĕl'ĭ-kōn', -kən) n. Music. A large spiral brass tuba that fits around the player's shoulder. [Probably from Greek helix, helic-, spiral.]

Hel-i-con (hĕl'ĭ-kōn', -kən) A mountain, 1,749.2 (5,735 ft) high, of central Greece. It was the legendary abode of the Muses and was sacred to Apollo.

hel-i-cop-ter (hĕl'ĭ-kōp'tər) n. An aircraft that derives its lift from blades that rotate about an approximately vertical central axis. — v. intr. tr.

hel-i-cop-tered, hel-i-cop-ter-ing, hel-i-cop-ters. To go or transport by helicopter. [French hélicoptère: Greek helix, helic-, spiral; see HELIX + Greek pteron, wing; see -PTER.]

WORD HISTORY: The origin of the word helicopter is apparent only upon due recognition of its Greek ancestors. Helicopter was borrowed from the French word hélicoptère, a word constructed from Greek heliko- and pteron, “wing.” Heliko- is a form of helix, “spiral,” that combines with other words and word forms to create new words. The consonant cluster pt in pteron begins many Greek words but relatively few English words, so English speakers who are unfamiliar with Greek do not think of the word's elements as helico-pter. At least some English speakers have analyzed the word into the elements heli-copter, as is shown by the clipped form copter.

hel-i-cul-ture (hĕl'ĭ-kŭl'chər, hĕlĭ-) n. The science and occupation of growing snails for food. [Blend of New Latin Helix, genus of spiral-shelled mollusks

(from Greek helix, helic-, spiral); see HELIX, and CULTURE.] —hel'i-cul'tur-al adj.

—hel'i-cul'tur-al-ist n.

helio- or heli- pref. Sun: heliocentric. [Greek hēlio-, from hēlios, sun. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

he-li-o-cen-tric (hē'lē-ō-sēn'trīk) also he-li-o-cen-tri-cal (-trī-kəl) adj.

1. Referred or with respect to the sun. 2. Having the sun as a center.

—he'li-o-cen-tric'i-ty (-sēn-trīs'ī-tē) n.

He-li-o-gab-a-lus (hē'lē-ə-gāb'ə-ləs, -lē-ō-) also El-a-gab-a-lus (ēl'ə-), A.D.

204-222. Emperor of Rome (218-222). A priest of Baal, he became emperor after the murder of his cousin Caracalla (217). His eccentricity and debauchery and the imposition of his religion on the Romans led to an insurrection in which he was killed.

he-li-om-e-ter (hē'lē-ōm'ī-tər) n. A telescope equipped to measure small angular distances between celestial bodies. —he'li-o-met'ric (-ə-mēt'rīk), he'li-o-met'ri-cal adj. —he'li-o-met'ri-cal-ly adv. —he'li-om'e-try n.

He-li-op-o-lis (hē'lē-ōp'ə-līs) 1. An ancient city of northern Egypt in the Nile River delta north of modern Cairo. It was the center of worship of the sun god Ra until the rise of Thebes (c. 2100 B.C.). Its importance as a historical repository with famed schools of philosophy and astronomy declined after the founding of Alexandria in the fourth century B.C. Two of its obelisks, both known as Cleopatra's Needle, are now in London and in New York City's Central Park. 2. See Baalbek.

He-li-os (hē'lē-ōs') n. Greek Mythology. The sun god, son of Hyperion, depicted as driving his chariot across the sky from east to west daily.

he-li-o-sphere (hē'lē-ə-sfir') n. The region in space through which the sun's gases and magnetic field extend.

he-li-o-stat (hē'lē-ə-stāt') n. An instrument in which a mirror is automatically moved so that it reflects sunlight in a constant direction. It is used with a pyrheliometer to make continuous measurements of solar radiation.

he-li-o-tax-is (hē'lē-ō-tāk'sīs) n. Biology. The movement of an organism in response to the light of the sun. —he'li-o-tac'tic (-tāk'tīk) adj.

he-li-o-ther-a-py (hē'lē-ō-thēr'ə-pē) n. pl. he-li-o-ther-a-pies. Medical therapy involving exposure to sunlight.

he-li-o-trope (hēl'yə-trōp', hē'lē-ə-) n. 1. a. Any of several plants of the genus Heliotropium, especially H. arborescens, native to Peru and having small, highly fragrant purplish flowers. Also called turnsole b. The garden heliotrope. c. Any of various plants that turn toward the sun. 2. See bloodstone. 3. Color. A moderate, light, or brilliant violet to moderate or deep reddish purple. [Middle English elitrope (from Old English eliotropus), and French héliotrope both from Latin hēliotropium, from Greek hēliotropion : hēlio-, helio- + tropos, turn; see TROPE.] —he'lio-trope' adj.

he-li-o-tro-pin (hē'l'yə-trō'pīn, hē'lē-ōt'rə-pīn) n. Piperonal.

he-li-ot-ro-pism (hē'lē-ōt'rə-pīz'əm) n. Biology. Growth or orientation of a sessile organism, especially a plant, toward or away from the light of the sun.

—he'li-o-trop'ic (-ə-trōp'īk) adj. —he'li-o-trop'i-cal-ly adv.

he-li-o-type (hē'lē-ə-tīp') n. Printing. 1. A photomechanically produced plate for pictures or type made by exposing a gelatin film under a negative, hardening it with chrome alum, and printing directly from it. 2. Also he-li-o-ty-p-y (-tī'pē). The process of producing a heliotype. —he'li-o-type' v.

—he'li-o-ty-p'ic (-tīp'īk) adj.

he-li-o-zo-an (hē'lē-ə-zō'ən) n. Any of various aquatic protozoans of the order Heliozoa, having numerous spindlelike pseudopods that radiate from a central cell mass. [From New Latin Heliozoa, class name : HELIO- (from their shape) + -zoa, pl. of -zoon, -zoon.] —he'li-o-zo'ic (-zō'īk) adj.

hel-i-pad (hē'l'ə-pād') n. See heliport.

hel-i-port (hē'l'ə-pōrt', -pōrt') n. A place for helicopters to land and take off. Also called helipad, helistop. [HELI(COPTER) + (AIR)PORT.]

hel-i-stop (hē'l'i-stōp') n. See heliport.

he-li-um (hē'lē-əm) n. Symbol He A colorless, odorless inert gaseous element occurring in natural gas and with radioactive ores. It is used as a component of artificial atmospheres and laser media, as a refrigerant, as a lifting gas for balloons, and as a superfluid in cryogenic research. Atomic number 2; atomic weight 4.0026; boiling point -268.9°C ; density at 0°C 0.1785 gram per liter. [From Greek hēlios, sun (so called because its existence was deduced from the solar spectrum). See sāwel- in Appendix.]

helium I (hē'lē-əm) n. Liquid helium existing as a normal fluid between the superfluid transition point of approximately 2.2°K at 1 atmosphere pressure and its boiling point of 4.2°K .

helium II (hē'lē-əm) n. Liquid helium existing as a superfluid below the transition point of approximately 2.2°K at 1 atmosphere and having extremely low viscosity and extremely high thermal conductivity.

he-lix (hē'līks) n. pl. he-lix-es or hel-i-ces (hē'l'i-sēz', hē'lī-). 1. Mathematics. A three-dimensional curve that lies on a cylinder or cone, so that its angle to a plane perpendicular to the axis is constant. 2. A spiral form or structure.

3. Anatomy. The folded rim of skin and cartilage around most of the outer ear.

4. Architecture. A volute on a Corinthian or Ionic capital. [Latin, from Greek. See wel-² in Appendix.]

hell (hēl) n. 1. a. Often Hell. The abode of condemned souls and devils in some religions; the place of eternal punishment for the wicked after death, presided over by Satan. b. A state of separation from God. 2. The abode of the dead, identified with the Hebrew Sheol and the Greek Hades; the underworld. 3. Hell. Christian Science. Mortal belief; sin or error. 4. a. A situation or place of evil, misery, discord, or destruction: “War is hell” (William Tecumseh Sherman).

b. Torment; anguish: went through hell on the job. 5. a. The powers of darkness and evil. b. Informal. One that causes trouble, agony, or annoyance: The boss is hell when a job is poorly done. 6. A sharp scolding: gave the student hell for cheating. 7. Informal. Excitement, mischievousness, or high spirits: We did it for the sheer hell of it. 8. a. A tailor’s receptacle for discarded material. b. Printing. A hellbox. 9. Informal. Used as an intensive: How the hell can I go? You did one hell of a job. He ran like hell to catch the bus. 10. Archaic. A gambling house. — v. intr. helled, hell-ing, hells. Informal. To behave riotously; carouse: out all night helling around. — interj. Used to express anger, disgust, or impatience. — idioms. for the hell of it. For no particular reason; on a whim: walked home by the old school for the hell of it. hell on. Informal. 2. Damaging or destructive to: Driving in a hilly town is hell on the brakes. 3. Unpleasant to or painful for. hell or high water (or hell and high water). Troubles or difficulties of whatever magnitude: We’re staying, come hell or high water. hell to pay. Great trouble: If we’re wrong, there’ll be hell to pay. [Middle English helle, from Old English. See kel-¹ in Appendix.]

he’ll (hēl) 1. He will. 2. He shall.

hel·la·cious (hě-lā’shəs) adj. 1. Distasteful and repellant: hellacious smog. 2. Slang. Extraordinary, remarkable: a hellacious catch of fish. [HELL + -acious (as in AUDACIOUS).]

Hel·las (hěll’əs) See Greece.

hell·bend·er (hěll’bĕn’dər) n. A large aquatic salamander (Cryptobranchus alleganiensis) of the eastern and central United States.

hell·bent or hell·bent (hěll’bĕnt’) adj. Impetuously or recklessly determined to do or achieve something: was hell-bent on winning.

hell·box (hěll’bۆks’) n. Printing. A receptacle for broken or discarded type.

hell·cat (hěll’kăt’) n. Informal. 1. a. A woman regarded as bad-tempered and evil. b. A woman who practices sorcery; a witch. 2. A person who torments others.

hell·div·er (hěll’dī’vər) n. A common American grebe (Podilymbus podiceps).

Hel·le (hěll’ē) n. Greek Mythology. The daughter of a Greek king who, while fleeing with her brother from their stepmother, drowned in the Hellespont, thereafter named for her.

hel·le·bore (hěll’ə-bōr’, -bōr’) n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Helleborus, native to Eurasia, most species of which are poisonous. 2. Any of various plants of the genus Veratrum, especially V. viride of North America, having large leaves and greenish flowers and yielding a toxic alkaloid used medicinally. [Middle English ellebre, from Old French, from Latin elleborus, from Greek helleboros: perhaps hellos, fawn + -boros, eaten (from bibrōskein, to eat).]

Hel·lene (hěll’ēn’) also Hel·le·ni·an (hě-lē’nĕ-ən) n. A Greek. [Greek Hellēn.]

Hel·len·ic (hě-lěn'ik) adj. Of or relating to the ancient Hellenes, their language, or their history; Greek. — n. The branch of the Indo-European language family that consists only of Greek.

Hel·le·nism (hě'l'ə-nīz'əm) n. 1. An idiom or custom peculiar to the Greeks. 2. The civilization and culture of ancient Greece. 3. Admiration for and adoption of Greek ideas, style, or culture.

Hel·le·nist (hě'l'ə-nīst) n. 1. One in Hellenistic times who adopted the Greek language and culture, especially a Jew of the Diaspora. 2. A devotee or student of Greek civilization, language, or literature.

Hel·le·nis·tic (hě'l'ə-nīs'tik) also Hel·le·nis·ti·cal (-tī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the Hellenists. 2. Of or relating to postclassical Greek history and culture from the death of Alexander the Great to the accession of Augustus. a. Relating to or in the style of the Greek art or architecture of this period.

Hel·le·nize (hě'l'ə-nīz') v. Hel·le·nized, Hel·le·niz·ing, Hel·le·niz·es. — v. intr. To adopt Greek ways and speech; become Greek. — v. tr. To make Greek in character, culture, or civilization. — Hel'le·ni·za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n.
— Hel'le·niz'er n.

hell·er (hě'l'ər) n. A person who behaves recklessly or wildly. [From HELL.]

Hel·les·pont (hě'l'i-spōnt') See Dardanelles.

hell-for-leath·er (hě'l'fər-lěth'ər) adv. & adj. Informal. At breakneck speed: "The journey back he made along the coast road, traveling hell-for-leather" (Idival Jones).

Hell Gate (hě'l gāt) A narrow channel of the East River in New York City between Manhattan and Long Island. It was named by the Dutch navigator Adriaen Block (fl. 1610-1624), who passed through it into Long Island Sound in 1614.

hell·gram·mite (hě'l'grə-mīt') n. The large, brownish aquatic larva of the dobsonfly, often used as fishing bait. Also called dobson, snake doctor. [Origin unknown.]

hell·hole (hě'l'hōl') n. 1. A place of extreme wretchedness or squalor.
2. Obsolete. The pit of hell.

hell·hound (hě'l'hound') n. 1. A devilish person; a fiend. 2. Greek Mythology. Cerberus, the watchdog of Hades.

hel·lion (hě'l'yən) n. Informal. A mischievous, troublesome person, especially a child. [Probably alteration (influenced by HELL), of dialectal hallion, worthless person.]

hell·ish (hě'l'ish) adj. 1. Of, resembling, or worthy of hell; fiendish. 2. Highly unpleasant: hellish weather. — hell'ish·ly adv. — hell'ish·ness n.

Hell·man (hě'l'mən), Lillian. 1905-1984. American playwright whose works concern sensitive political and social issues, such as lesbianism in The Children's Hour (1934) and interracial relations in Toys in the Attic (1960).

hel·lo (hě-lō', hə-) also hul·lo (hə-) interj. Used to greet someone, answer the telephone, or express surprise. — n. pl. hel·los. A calling or greeting of “hello.” — v. intr. hel·loed, hel·lo-ing, hel·loes. To call “hello.” [Alteration of hallo, alteration of obsolete holla, stop!, perhaps from Old French hola : ho, ho! + la, there (from Latin illāc, that way).]

Hells Canyon (hělz kăn'yən) A gorge of the Snake River on the Idaho-Oregon border. It is about 201 km (125 mi) long and has a maximum depth of approximately 2,410 m (7,900 ft).

hell·uv·a (hě'l'ə-və) adj. Slang. Used as an intensive: He's a helluva great guy. [Alteration of hell of a.]

helm¹ (hělm) n. 1. Nautical. The steering gear of a ship, especially the tiller or wheel. 2. A position of leadership or control: at the helm of the government. — v. tr. helmed, helm-ing, helms. To take the helm of; steer or direct. [Middle English, from Old English helma.]

helm² (hělm) Archaic. n. A helmet. — v. tr. helmed, helm-ing, helms. To cover or furnish with a helmet. [Middle English, from Old English. See kel⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Hel·mand (hě'l'mənd) A river, about 1,287 km (800 mi) long, rising in the Hindu Kush and flowing southwest across Afghanistan to a marshy lake on the Iranian border.

hel·met (hě'l'mīt) n. 1. a. A head covering of hard material, such as leather, metal, or plastic, worn by football players, firefighters, construction workers, motorcyclists, and others to protect the head. b. The headgear with a glass mask worn by deep-sea divers. c. A pith helmet; a topi. d. A head covering, such as a balaclava, that is shaped like a helmet. 2. A piece of armor, usually made of metal, designed to protect the head. 3. Botany. The hood-shaped sepal or corolla of some flowers. — v. tr. intr. hel·met-ed, hel·met-ing, hel·mets. To provide with or put on a helmet. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of helme, of Germanic origin. See kel⁻¹ in Appendix.] — hel'met-ed adj.

Helm·holtz (hělm'hōlts'), Hermann Ludwig Ferdinand von. 1821-1894. German physicist and physiologist who formulated the mathematical law of the conservation of energy (1847) and invented an ophthalmoscope (1851).

hel·minth (hě'l'mĩnth') n. A worm, especially a parasitic roundworm or tapeworm. [French helminthe, from Greek helmins, helminth-. See wel⁻² in Appendix.]

hel·min·thi·a·sis (hě'l'mĩn-thi'ə-sīs) n. pl. hel·min·thi·a·ses (-sēz'). A disease caused by infestation with parasitic worms.

hel·min·thic (hě'l-mĩn'thĩk) adj. 1. Of or relating to worms, especially parasitic worms. 2. Tending to expel worms; anthelmintic. — n. An agent that expels or destroys parasitic worms; an anthelmintic.

hel·min·thol·o·gy (hĕl'mĭn-thŏl'ə-jē) n. The scientific study of worms, especially parasitic worms. —hel'min·thol'o·gist n.

Hel·mond (hĕl'mŏnt') A city of southeast Netherlands east-northeast of Eindhoven. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 60,582.

helms·man (hĕlmz'mən) n. Nautical. A person who steers a ship. —helms'/man·ship' n.

hel·o (hĕl'ō) n. pl. hel·os. Informal. A helicopter.

Hé·lo·ise (ĕl'ə-wēz', ā-lô-ēz') 1098?-1164. French religious figure who secretly married Peter Abelard (c. 1118).

hel·ot (hĕl'ət) n. 1. Helot. One of a class of serfs in ancient Sparta, neither a slave nor a free citizen. 2. A person in servitude; a serf. [From Greek Heilōtes, pl. of Heilōs, Heilōt-.] —hel'ot·ry (-ə-trē) n.

hel·ot·ism (hĕl'ə-tĭz'əm) n. 1. A system under which a nominally free social class or a religious, national, or racial minority is permanently oppressed and degraded. 2. A type of symbiosis, as among certain ants, in which one species is dominant and makes the members of another species perform the tasks required for their mutual survival.

hel·ot·ry (hĕl'ə-trē) n. 1. The condition of serfdom. 2. Helots considered as a group.

help (hĕlp) v. helped, help·ing, helps. — v. tr. 1. To give assistance to; aid: I helped her find the book. He helped me into my coat. 2. To contribute to the furtherance of; promote. 3. To give relief to: help the needy. 4. To ease; relieve: medication to help your cold. 5. To change for the better; improve: A fresh coat of paint will help a scarred old table. 6. To refrain from; avoid or resist. Used with can or cannot: couldn't help laughing. 7. To wait on, as in a store or restaurant. — v. intr. To be of service; give assistance. — n. 1. a. The act or an instance of helping. b. Aid or assistance. 2. Relief; remedy. 3. One that helps: You've been a great help. A food processor is a help to the serious cook. 4. A person employed to help, especially a farm worker or domestic servant. a. Such employees considered as a group. Often used with the. —idiom. help (oneself) to. 1. To serve or provide oneself with: Help yourself to the cookies. 2. Informal. To take (something) without asking permission: The thief helped himself to our family silver. [Middle English helpen, from Old English helpan.]

SYNONYMS: help, aid, assist, succor. These verbs mean to contribute to the fulfillment of a need, the furtherance of an effort, or the achievement of a purpose or end. Help and aid, the most general, are frequently interchangeable: a medication that helps (or aids) the digestion; a fine sense of rhythm that helped (or aided) the student in learning music. Help, however, sometimes conveys a stronger suggestion of effectual action: Nothing will help. I'll help you move the piano. He helped her out of the car. Assist usually implies making a secondary contribution or acting as a subordinate: A team of kitchen apprentices assisted the chef in preparing the banquet. Succor refers to going to the relief of one in want, difficulty, or distress: “Mr. Harding thought... of the worn-out, aged men he had succored” (Anthony Trollope). See also Synonyms at improve USAGE NOTE: A common use of help is exemplified by the sentence Don't change it any more than you can help (that is, “any more than you have to”). Some grammarians condemn this usage on the ground that help in this sense means “avoid” and logically requires a negative. But the expression is a well-established idiom. See Usage Note at cannot.

help·er (hĕl'pər) n. One that helps; an assistant. See Synonyms at assistant.

helper T cell also helper cell (hĕl'pər tē sĕl) n. Immunology. A T cell that activates B cells to release antibodies and killer T cells to destroy cells having a specific antigenic makeup.

help·ful (hĕlp'fəl) adj. Providing assistance; useful. —help'ful·ly adv.
—help'ful·ness n.

help·ing (hĕl'pɪŋ) n. A single portion of food.

help·less (hĕlp'lis) adj. 1. Unable to manage by oneself; incompetent.

2. Lacking power or strength; impotent. 3. Impossible to remedy; hopeless.

4. Impossible to control; involuntary: helpless laughter. —help'less·ly adv.

—help'less·ness n.

help·mate (hĕlp'māt') n. A helper and companion, especially a spouse.

WORD HISTORY: The existence of the two words helpmeet and helpmate meaning exactly the same thing is a comedy of errors. God's promise to Adam, in Genesis 2:18 as rendered in the King James version of the Bible (1611), was to give him “an help [helper] meet [fit or suitable] for him.” In 1673 the poet John Dryden used the phrase “help-meet for man,” with a hyphen between help and meet. This was one step on the way toward the establishment of the phrase “help meet” as an independent word. Another was the use of “help meet” without “for man” to mean a suitable helper, usually a spouse, as Eve had been to Adam. Despite such usages, however, for the most part helpmeet was not thought of as a word in its own right until the 19th century. Nonetheless the phrase “help meet” probably played a role in the creation of the synonymous compound helpmate, from (help and mate), first recorded in 1715.

help·meet (hĕlp'mēt') n. A helpmate. [HELP + MEET².]

Hel·sing·borg (hĕl'sɪŋ-bôrg', hĕl'sɪŋ-bôr'ē) See Hälsingborg.

Hel·sing·ør (hĕl'sɪŋ-ûr', -œr') also El·si·nore (ĕl'sə-nôr', -nôr') A city of eastern Denmark north of Copenhagen on northern Sjælland Island and the Oresund. Known since the 13th century, it is famous as the setting for Shakespeare's Hamlet, and performances of the play are often presented at the restored castle. Population, 56,161.

Hel-sin-ki (hĕl'sĭng'kĕ, hĕl-sĭng'-) The capital and largest city of Finland, in the southern part of the country on the Gulf of Finland. Founded in 1550 by Gustavus I of Sweden, it was moved to its present site in 1640. Helsinki passed to Russia along with Finland in 1809 and became capital of Finland in 1812, retaining that status when the country proclaimed its independence in 1917. Population, 484,263.

hel-ter-skel-ter (hĕl'tər-skĕl'tər) adv. 1. In disorderly haste; confusedly; pell-mell. 2. Haphazardly. — adj. 1. Carelessly hurried and confused.

2. Haphazard. — n. Turmoil; confusion. [Origin unknown.]

helve (hĕlv) n. A handle of a tool, such as an ax, a chisel, or a hammer. [Middle English, from Old English hielfe.]

Hel-ve-tia (hĕl-vĕ'shə, -shĕ-ə) An ancient region of central Europe occupying a plateau between the Alps and the Jura Mountains. It was named by the Romans for its predominantly Celtic inhabitants. Helvetia corresponded roughly to the western part of modern Switzerland, and the name is still used in poetic references and on the country's postage stamps.

Hel-ve-tian (hĕl-vĕ'shən) adj. 1. Of or relating to Helvetia or the Helvetii.

2. Swiss. — n. 1. One of the Helvetii. 2. A Swiss. [From Latin Helvētius, from Helvētīi, Helvetii.]

Hel-ve-ti-i (hĕl-vĕ'shĕ-ī') pl.n. A Celtic people inhabiting western Switzerland during the time of Julius Caesar. [Latin Helvētīi.]

Hel-vé-tius (hĕl-vĕ'shəs, -vā'-, ĕl-vā-syüs'), Claude Adrien. 1715-1771.

French philosopher and Encyclopedist who proposed his sensationalist philosophy in De l'Esprit (1758), a book that was condemned by the Paris parliament to be burned publicly.

hem¹ (hĕm) n. 1. An edge or a border on a piece of cloth, especially a finished edge, as for a garment or curtain, made by folding the selvage edge under and stitching it down. 2. The height or level of the bottom edge of a skirt, dress, or coat; a hemline. — v. tr. hemmed, hem·ming, hems. 1. To fold back and stitch down the edge of. 2. To surround and shut in; enclose: a valley hemmed in by mountains. See Synonyms at enclose. [Middle English, from Old English hem, hemm.] — hem'mer n.

hem² (hĕm) n. A short cough or clearing of the throat made especially to gain attention, warn another, hide embarrassment, or fill a pause in speech. — v. intr. hemmed, hem·ming, hems. 1. To utter a hem. 2. To hesitate in speech. — idiom. hem and haw. To be hesitant and indecisive; equivocate: "a leader who cannot make up his or her mind, never knows what to do, hems and haws" (Margaret Thatcher). [From Middle English heminge, coughing, of imitative origin.]

hem- or hema- pref. Variants of hemo-.

he·ma·cy·tom·e·ter (hē'mə-sī-tōm'ī-tər) n. An instrument for counting the number of blood cells in a measured volume of blood.

he·mag·glu·ti·nate (hē'mə-glōōt'n-āt') v. tr. he·mag·glu·ti·nat·ed, he·mag·glu·ti·nat·ing, he·mag·glu·ti·nates. To cause agglutination of red blood cells. —he'mag·glu'tin-a'tion n.

he·mag·glu·ti·nin (hē'mə-glōōt'n-īn) n. A substance, such as an antibody, that causes agglutination of red blood cells.

he·mal (hē'məl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the blood or blood vessels. 2. Relating to or located on the side of the body that contains the heart and principal blood vessels.

he·man (hē'män') n. Informal. A strong, virile man.

he·man·gi·o·ma (hī-män'jē-ō'mə) n. pl. he·man·gi·o·mas also he·man·gi·o·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A benign skin lesion consisting of dense, usually elevated masses of dilated blood vessels.

He·mans (hēm'ənz, hē'mənz), Felicia Dorothea. 1793-1835. British poet whose romantic lyrics include "Casabianca" (1829).

he·ma·pher·e·sis (hē'mə-fēr'ə-sīs, hēm'ə-) n. Medicine. See apheresis (n., sense 2).

hemat- pref. Variant of hemato-.

he·ma·te·in (hē'mə-tē'īn, hē'mə-tēn') n. A reddish-brown crystalline compound, $C_{16}H_{12}O_6$, used as an indicator and a biological stain.

he·mat·ic (hī-măt'īk) adj. Of, relating to, resembling, containing, or acting on blood. — n. Medicine. A hematinic. [Greek haimatikos, from haima, blood.]

he·ma·tin (hē'mə-tīn) n. A blue to blackish-brown compound, $C_{34}H_{32}N_4O_4 \cdot FeOH$, formed in the decomposition of hemoglobin.

he·ma·tin·ic (hē'mə-tīn'īk) adj. 1. Acting to increase the amount of hemoglobin in the blood. 2. Of, relating to, or derived from hematin. — n. A drug that increases the amount of hemoglobin in the blood.

he·ma·tite (hē'mə-tīt') n. A black or blackish-red to brick-red mineral, essentially Fe_2O_3 , the chief ore of iron. [Middle English emathite, ematites, from Latin haematitēs, from Greek (lithos) haimatitēs, bloodlike (stone), from haima, haimat-, blood.] —he'ma-tit'ic (-tīt'īk) adj.

hemato- or hemat- also haemat- or haemato- pref. Blood: hematology. [Greek haimato-, from haima, haimat-, blood.]

he·ma·to·blast (hē'mə-tə-bläst', hī-măt'ə-) n. An immature blood cell. —he'ma-to-blas'tic adj.

he·mat·o·crit (hī-măt'ə-krit') n. 1. The percentage by volume of packed red blood cells in a given sample of blood after centrifugation. 2. A centrifuge used to determine the volume of blood cells and plasma in a given sample of blood.

[HEMATO- + Greek kritēs, judge (from krinein, to judge); see krei- in Appendix.]

he·ma·to·gen·e·sis (hē'mə-tə-jĕn'ī-sīs, hĭ-măt'ə-) n. Hematopoiesis.

—he'ma·to·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk), he'ma·to·gen·et'ic (-jə-nĕt'ĭk) adj.

he·ma·tog·e·nous (hē'mə-tōj'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Producing blood.

2. Originating in or spread by the blood.

he·ma·tol·o·gy (hē'mə-tōl'ə-jē) n. The science encompassing the medical study of the blood and blood-producing organs. —he'ma·to·log'ic (-tə-lōj'ĭk), he'ma·to·log'i·cal adj. —he'ma·to·log'i·cal·ly adv.

—he'ma·tol'o·gist n.

he·ma·tol·y·sis (hē'mə-tōl'ī-sīs) n. Hemolysis.

he·ma·to·ma (hē'mə-tō'mə) n. pl. he·ma·to·mas or he·ma·to·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A localized swelling filled with blood resulting from a break in a blood vessel.

he·ma·to·poi·e·sis (hē'mə-tō-poi-ē'sīs, hĭ-măt'ə-) also he·mo·poi·e·sis (hē'mə-poi-ē'-sīs) n. The formation of blood or blood cells in the body.

—he'ma·to·poi·et'ic (-ĕt'ĭk) adj.

he·ma·tox·y·lin (hē'mə-tōk'sə-lĭn) n. A yellow or red crystalline compound, $C_{16}H_{14}O_6 \cdot 3H_2O$, the coloring material of logwood, that is used in dyes, inks, and stains. [New Latin Haematoxylon, a genus of plants (Greek haimato-, hemato- + XYL-) + -IN-.]

he·ma·to·zo·on (hē'mə-tō-zō'ōn', hĭ-măt'ə-) n. pl. he·ma·to·zo·a (-zō'ə). A parasitic protozoan or similar organism that lives in the blood.

—he'ma·to·zo'al, he'ma·to·zo'ic adj.

he·ma·tu·ri·a (hĕ'mə-tōōr'ē-ə, -tyōōr'-) n. The presence of blood in the urine. —he'ma·tu'ric adj.

heme (hēm) n. The deep red, nonprotein, ferrous component of hemoglobin, $C_{34}H_{32}FeN_4O_4$. [Short for HEMATIN.]

Hem·el Hemp·stead (hĕm'əl hĕmp'stĭd) A municipal borough of southeast England northwest of London. It is a market town and residential suburb with varied light industries. Population, 80,900.

he·mel·y·tron (hĕ-mĕl'ī-trōn') n. pl. he·mel·y·tra (-trə). One of the forewings of a hemipterous insect, having a thick membranous apex. [HEM(I)- + ELYTRON.]

hem·er·a·lo·pi·a (hĕm'ər-ə-lō'pē-ə) n. A visual defect characterized by the inability to see as clearly in bright light as in dim light. [New Latin, from Greek hēmeralōps, suffering from hemeralopia : hēmera, day + alaos, blind + ōps, eye; see NYCTALOPIA.] —hem'er·a·lop'ic (-lōp'ĭk) adj.

hem·er·o·cal·lis (hĕm'ər-ə-kāl'is) n. See day lily. [New Latin, from Greek hēmerokalles, a kind of lily : hēmera, day + kallos, beauty.]

Hem·et (hĕm'ĭt) A city of southern California east of Santa Ana. Ancient rock paintings and carvings have been found here. Population, 36,094.

hemi- pref. 1. Half: hemihedral. 2. Partial; partially: hemiparasite. [Greek hēmi-. See sēmi- in Appendix.]

-hemia suff. Variant of -emia.

hem-i-al-gi-a (hěm'ē-ăl'jē-ə, -jə) n. Pain affecting one half of the body.

he-mic (hě'mīk) adj. Of or relating to the blood.

hem-i-cel-lu-lose (hěm'ī-sěl'yu-lōs', -lōz') n. Any of several polysaccharides that are more complex than a sugar and less complex than cellulose, found in plant cell walls and produced commercially from corn grain hulls.

hem-i-chor-date (hěm'ī-kôr'dāt', -dīt) n. Any of various wormlike marine animals of the phylum Hemichordata, having a primitive notochord and gill slits. — adj. Of or belonging to the phylum Hemichordata.

hem-i-cy-cle (hěm'ī-sī'kəl) n. 1. A semicircle. 2. A semicircular structure or arrangement. [French hémicycle, from Latin hēmicyclium, from Greek hēmikuklion: hēmi-, hemi- + kuklion, neuter of kuklios, circular (from kuklos, circle); see CYCLE.]

hem-i-dem-i-sem-i-qua-ver (hěm'ē-děm'ē-sěm'ē-kwā'vər) n. Chiefly British. A sixty-fourth note.

hem-i-he-dral (hěm'ī-hē'drəl) adj. Exhibiting only half the faces required for complete symmetry. Used of a crystal.

hem-i-hy-drate (hěm'ī-hī'drāt') n. A hydrate in which the molecular ratio of water molecules to anhydrous compound is 1:2. — hem'ī-hy'drat'ed adj.

hem-i-me-tab-o-lous (hěm'ē-mə-tăb'ə-ləs) also hem-i-met-a-bol-ic (-mět'əbôl'ik) adj. Undergoing a metamorphosis that lacks a pupal stage. Used of certain insects. [HEMI- + METABOL(IC) + -OUS.] — hem'ī-me-tab'o-lism (-ə-līz'əm) n.

hem-i-mor-phic (hěm'ī-môr'fik) adj. Asymmetrical at the axial ends. Used of a crystal.

hem-i-mor-phite (hěm'ī-môr'fīt') n. A usually white or colorless mineral, essentially $Zn_4Si_2O_7(OH)_2 \cdot H_2O$, an important ore of zinc. Also called calamine [HEMIMORPH(IC) + -ITE¹.]

he-min (hě'mīn) n. The reddish-brown crystalline chloride of heme, $C_{34}H_{32}N_4O_4FeCl$, produced when hemoglobin reacts with glacial acetic acid and sodium chloride in a laboratory test for the presence of blood.

Hem-ing or Hem-minge (hěm'īng), John. 1556?-1630. English actor and an editor of the First Folio of Shakespeare's plays (1623).

Hem-ing-way (hěm'īng-wā'), Ernest Miller. 1899-1961. American writer. A World War I ambulance driver, journalist, adventurer, and expatriate in Paris during the 1920's, he wrote short stories and novels, such as The Sun Also Rises (1926), For Whom the Bell Tolls (1940), and The Old Man and the Sea (1952), that concern courageous, lonely characters and are marked by his terse literary style. He won the 1954 Nobel Prize for literature.

hem-i-par-a-site (hěm'ī-păr'ə-sīt') n. 1. A plant, such as mistletoe, that obtains some nourishment from its host but also photosynthesizes. Also called semiparasite 2. An organism that can live either independently or as a parasite.

—hem'i-par'a-sit'ic (-sīt'ik) adj.

hem-i-ple-gia (hēm'ī-plē'jə, -jē-ə) n. Paralysis affecting only one side of the body. [Late Greek hēmiplēgia : Greek hēmi-, hemi- + Greek -plēgia, -plegia.]

—hem'i-ple'gic (-plē'jik) adj. & n.

he-mip-ter-an (hī-mīp'tər-ən) adj. Hemipterous. — n. also he-mip-ter-on (-tə-rŏn') A hemipterous insect; a true bug.

he-mip-ter-ous (hī-mīp'tər-əs) adj. Of or belonging to the insect order Hemiptera, which includes the true bugs of the suborder Heteroptera and their allies of the suborder Homoptera, characterized by piercing or sucking mouthparts and two pairs of wings.

hem-i-sphere (hēm'ī-sfīr') n. 1. a. A half of a sphere bounded by a great circle. b. A half of a symmetrical, approximately spherical object as divided by a plane of symmetry. 2. Either half of the celestial sphere as divided by the ecliptic, the celestial equator, or the horizon. 3. Either the northern or southern half of the earth as divided by the equator or the eastern or western half as divided by a meridian. 4. Anatomy. Either of the lateral halves of the cerebrum; a cerebral hemisphere. —hem'i-spher'ic (-sfīr'ik, -sfēr'-), hem'i-spher'i-cal adj.

—hem'i-spher'i-cal-ly adv.

hem-i-stich (hēm'ī-stīk') n. 1. A half line of verse, especially when separated rhythmically from the rest of the line by a caesura. 2. An incomplete or imperfect line of verse. [Latin hemistichium, from Greek hēmistikhion : hēmi-, hemi- + stikhos, line; see steigh- in Appendix.]

hem-line (hēm'līn') n. 1. The bottom edge of a skirt, dress, or coat. 2. The height of the edge of such a garment, measured from the floor.

hem-lock (hēm'lŏk') n. 1. a. Any of various coniferous evergreen trees of the genus Tsuga of North America and eastern Asia, having small cones and short, flat leaves with two white bands underneath. b. The wood of such trees, used as a source of lumber, wood pulp, and tannic acid. 2. a. Any of several poisonous plants of the genera Conium and Cicuta, such as the poison hemlock. b. A poison obtained from the poison hemlock. [Middle English hemlok, poisonous hemlock, from Old English hymlice, hemlic.]

Hem-linge (hēm'īng) See John Heming.

hemo- or hema- or hem- also haemo- or haema- or haem- pref. Blood: hemocyte. [Greek haimo-, from haima.]

he-mo-chro-ma-to-sis (hē'mə-krŏ'mə-tŏ'sīs) n. A hereditary disorder affecting iron metabolism in which excessive amounts of iron accumulate in the body tissues. The disorder is characterized by diabetes mellitus, liver dysfunction, and a bronze pigmentation of the skin.

he-mo-coel (hē'mə-sēl') n. A cavity or series of spaces between the organs of most arthropods and mollusks through which the blood circulates.

he·mo·cy·a·nin (hē'mō-sī'ə-nĭn) n. A bluish, copper-containing respiratory pigment similar to hemoglobin, present in the blood of certain mollusks and arthropods.

he·mo·cyte (hē'mə-sīt') n. A cellular component of the blood, especially of an invertebrate.

he·mo·di·al·y·sis (hē'mō-dī-ăl'ĭ-sĭs) n. pl. he·mo·di·al·y·ses (-sēz'). A procedure for removing metabolic waste products or toxic substances from the bloodstream by dialysis.

he·mo·dy·nam·ics (hē'mə-dī-năm'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the forces involved in the circulation of blood. —he'·mo·dy·nam'·ic adj.
—he'·mo·dy·nam'·i·cal·ly adv.

he·mo·flag·el·late (hē'mō-flăj'ə-lăt', -lĭt, -flə-jĕl'ĭt) n. A flagellate protozoan, such as a trypanosome, that is parasitic in the blood.

he·mo·glo·bin (hē'mə-glō'bĭn) n. Abbr. hg, hgb., Hb The iron-containing respiratory pigment in red blood cells of vertebrates, consisting of about 6 percent heme and 94 percent globin. [Ultimately short for hematinoglobulin : HEMATIN + GLOBULIN.]

he·mo·glo·bi·nu·ri·a (hē'mə-glō'bə-nōō'ē-ə, -nyōōr'-) n. The presence of hemoglobin in the urine. —he'mo·glo'bi·nu'ric adj.

he·mo·lymph (hē'mə-lĭmf') n. The circulatory fluid of certain invertebrates, analogous to blood in arthropods and to lymph in other invertebrates.
—he'mo·lym·phat'ic (-lĭm-făt'ĭk) adj.

he·mo·ly·sin (hē'mə-lī'sĭn, hĭ-mōl'ĭ-) n. An agent or a substance, such as an antibody or a bacterial toxin, that causes the destruction of red blood cells, thereby liberating hemoglobin.

he·mol·y·sis (hĭ-mōl'ĭ-sĭs, hē'mə-lī'sĭs) n. The destruction or dissolution of red blood cells, with subsequent release of hemoglobin. —he'mo·lyt'ic (hē'mə-lĭt'ĭk) adj.

hemolytic anemia (hē'mə-lĭt'ĭk ə-nē'mē-ə) n. Anemia resulting from the lysis of red blood cells, as in response to certain toxic or infectious agents and in certain inherited blood disorders.

he·mo·lyze (hē'mə-līz') v. intr. tr. he·mo·lyzed, he·mo·lyz·ing, he·mo·lyz·es. To undergo or cause to undergo hemolysis.

he·mo·phil·i·a (hē'mə-fĭl'ē-ə, -fĕl'yə) n. Any of several hereditary blood-coagulation disorders in which the blood fails to clot normally because of a deficiency or an abnormality of one of the clotting factors. Hemophilia, a recessive trait associated with the X-chromosome, is manifested almost exclusively in males.

he·mo·phil·i·ac (hē'mə-fĭl'ē-ăk', -fĕ'lĕ-) n. A person who is affected with hemophilia.

he·mo·phil·ic (hē'mə-fil'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or affected by hemophilia. 2. Growing well in blood or in a culture containing blood. Used of certain bacteria.

he·mo·pho·bi·a (hē'mə-fō'bē-ə) n. An abnormal fear of blood.
—he'mo·pho'bic adj.

he·mo·poi·e·sis (hē'mə-poi-ē'sis) n. Variant of hematopoiesis.
—he'mo·poi-et'ic (-ēt'ik) adj.

he·mop·ty·sis (hī-möp'tī-sīs) n. The coughing or spitting up of blood from the respiratory tract. [HEMO- + Greek ptusis, a spitting (from ptuein, to spit).]

hem·or·rha·ge (hēm'ər-ij) n. 1. Excessive discharge of blood from the blood vessels; profuse bleeding. 2. A copious loss of something valuable: a hemorrhage of corporate earnings. — v. hem·or·rhaged, hem·or·rhag·ing, hem·or·rhag·es. — v. intr. 1. To bleed copiously. 2. To undergo a rapid and sudden loss: a gubernatorial candidate whose popularity hemorrhaged after a disastrous debate. — v. tr. To lose (something valuable) rapidly and in quantity: The company was hemorrhaging capital when it was bought by another firm. [From obsolete hemoragie, emorogie, from Middle English emorogie, from Old French emoragie, from Latin haemorrhagia, from Greek haimorrhagia : haimo-, hemo- + -rrhagia, -rrhagia.] —hem'or·rhag'ic (hēm'ə-rāj'ik) adj.

hemorrhagic measles (hēm'ə-rāj'ik mē'zəlz) n. (used with a sing. verb).
See black measles.

hem·or·rho·id (hēm'ə-roid') n. 1. An itching or painful mass of dilated veins in swollen anal tissue. 2. hemorrhoids. The pathological condition in which such painful masses occur. In this sense, also called piles [From Middle English emoroides, hemorrhoids, from Old French emoroides, from Latin haemorrhoidae, from Greek haimorrhōides, pl. of haimorrhōis, from haimorrhōos, flowing with blood : haimo-, hemo- + rhein, to flow; see sreu- in Appendix.]

hem·or·rhoi·dal (hēm'ə-roid'l) adj. 1. Of or relating to hemorrhoids. 2. Anatomy. Supplying the region of the rectum and anus. Used of certain arteries.

hem·or·rhoi·d·ec·to·my (hēm'ə-roi-dĕk'tə-mē) n. pl.

hem·or·rhoi·d·ec·to·mies. Surgical removal of hemorrhoids.

he·mo·sid·er·in (hē'mō-sīd'ər-ĭn) n. A protein that stores iron in the body, derived chiefly from the hemoglobin released during hemolysis.

he·mo·sta·sis (hē'mə-stā'sīs, hē-mōs'tə-) also he·mo·sta·sia (hē'mə-stā'zhə, -zhē-ə, -zē-ə) n. 1. The stoppage of bleeding or hemorrhage. 2. The stoppage of blood flow through a blood vessel or body part.

he·mo·stat (hē'mə-stăt') n. 1. An agent, such as a chemical, that stops bleeding. 2. A clamplike instrument used to compress a blood vessel in order to reduce or arrest the flow of blood during surgery.

he·mo·stat·ic (hē'mə-stăt'ik) adj. Acting to arrest bleeding or hemorrhage.
— n. A hemostatic device or agent. [HEMO- + Greek statikos, causing to stop; see STATIC.]

hemp (hěmp) n. 1. Cannabis. 2. The tough, coarse fiber of the cannabis plant, used to make cordage. 3. a. Any of various plants similar to cannabis, especially one yielding a similar fiber. b. The fiber of such a plant. [Middle English, from Old English hænep.]

hemp agrimony (hěmp äg'rə-mō'nē) n. A Eurasian and North African plant (Eupatorium cannabinum) having palmately divided leaves and clusters of small reddish-purple flower heads.

hemp·en (hěmp'pən) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling hemp.

hemp nettle (hěmp nět'l) n. Any of various Eurasian plants of the genus Galeopsis, having bristly stems and white or reddish flowers with two lips.

Hempstead (hěmp'stēd', -stīd) A village of southeast New York on western Long Island southeast of Mineola. Settled c. 1643, it is the seat of Hofstra University (founded 1935). Population, 49,453.

hem·stitch (hěm'stīch') n. 1. A decorative stitch usually bordering a hem, as on a handkerchief, made by drawing out several parallel threads and catching together the cross threads in uniform groups. 2. Needlework in which this stitch is used. — v. tr. hem-stitched, hem-stitch-ing, hem-stitch-es. To ornament or embroider with hemstitches. — hem'stitch'er n.

hen (hěn) n. 1. A female bird, especially the adult female of the domestic fowl. 2. The female of certain aquatic animals, such as an octopus or a lobster. 3. Offensive. A woman, especially a fussy old woman. [Middle English, from Old English. See kan- in Appendix.] — hen'nish adj. — hen'nish-ly adv. — hen'nish-ness n.

He·nan (hē'nän') also Ho·nan (hō'-) A province of east-central China. It is one of the oldest inhabited regions in China and the site of many Stone Age remains. Zhengzhou is the capital. Population, 77,130,000.

hen-and-chick·ens (hěn'ən-chīk'ənz) n. pl. hens-and-chick·ens (hěnz'-). Any of several plants having many runners or offshoots, especially the houseleek.

hen·bane (hěn'bān') n. A poisonous Eurasian plant (Hyoscyamus niger) having an unpleasant odor, sticky leaves, and funnel-shaped greenish-yellow flowers. It is a source of the drug hyoscamine.

hen·bit (hěn'bīt') n. A Eurasian plant (Lamium amplexicaule) having toothed, opposite leaves and small white or purplish-red flowers with two lips. [HEN + BIT¹.]

hence (hěns) adv. 1. a. For this reason; therefore: handmade and hence expensive. b. From this source: They grew up in the Sudan; hence their interest in Nubian art. 2. From this time; from now: A year hence it will be forgotten. 3. a. From this place; away from here: Get you hence! b. From this life. [Middle English hennes, from here : henne (from Old English heonan); see ko- in Appendix + -es, adverbial suff.; see -s³.]

hence-forth (hěns'fôrth') adv. From this time forth; from now on.

hence-for-ward (hěns-fôr'wârd) adv. Henceforth.

Hench (hěnych), Philip Showalter. 1896-1965. American physician. He shared a 1950 Nobel Prize for discoveries concerning the hormones of the adrenal cortex.

hench-man (hěnych'mən) n. 1. A loyal and trusted follower or subordinate.

2. A person who supports a political figure chiefly out of selfish interests. 3. A member of a criminal gang. 4. Obsolete. A page to a prince or other person of high rank. [Middle English hengsman, henshman, servant to a person of rank : hengest, horse (from Old English) + man, man; see MAN.]

hen-coop (hěnk'kōöp') n. A coop or cage for poultry. Also called hennery hen-dec-a-syl-lab-ic (hěn-děk'ə-sī-lăb'ik) adj. Containing 11 syllables. — n. A verse of 11 syllables. [From Latin hendecasyllabus, a line of eleven syllables, from Greek hendekasyllabos : hendeka, eleven (hen, neuter of heis, one; see sem-¹ in Appendix + deka, ten); see DECADE + sullabē, syllable; see SYLLABLE.]

—hen-dec'a-syl'la-ble (-sīl'ə-bəl) n.

Hen-der-son (hěnd'ər-sən) 1. A city of northwest Kentucky on the Ohio River south of Evansville, Indiana. Settled in the late 1700's, it was the home of John J. Audubon from 1810 to 1819. Population, 25,945. 2. A city of southeast Nevada southeast of Las Vegas. Founded in 1942, it is in a desert area surrounded by mountains. Population, 64,942.

Hen-der-son (hěnd'ər-sən), Arthur. 1863-1935. British politician who was president of the World Disarmament Conference (1932-1935). He won the 1934 Nobel Peace Prize.

Hen-der-son-ville (hěnd'ər-sən-vīl') A city of northern Tennessee northeast of Nashville. It is a popular resort. Population, 32,188.

hen-di-a-dys (hěn-dī'ə-dīs) n. A figure of speech in which two words connected by a conjunction are used to express a single notion that would normally be expressed by an adjective and a substantive, such as grace and favor instead of gracious favor. [Late Latin, from Greek hen dia duoin, one by means of two : hen, neuter of heis, one; see sem-¹ in Appendix + dia, through + duoin, genitive of duō, two; see dwo- in Appendix.]

Hen-dricks (hěnd'rīks), Thomas Andrews. 1819-1885. Vice President of the United States (1885) under Grover Cleveland. He died in office.

Hen-drix (hěnd'rīks), Jimi. Originally James Marshall Hendrix. 1942-1970. American musician whose innovative electric guitar playing greatly influenced the development of rock music.

hen-e-quen also hen-e-quin (hěn'ī-kwīn) n. 1. A tropical American plant (Agave fourcroydes) having large, thick, sword-shaped leaves that yield a coarse reddish fiber used in making rope and twine. 2. The fiber obtained from this plant. [Spanish henequén, perhaps of Arawakan origin.]

Heng-e-lo (hěng'ə-lō') A city of eastern Netherlands near the German border northwest of Enschede. It is an industrial center. Population, 76,855.

Heng-yang (hǔng'yǎng', hœng'-) A city of southeast China south-southwest of Wuhan. It is an important transportation hub and industrial center. Population, 350,000.

hen harrier (hěn hǎr'ē-ər) n. See northern harrier.

Hen-ie (hěn'ē), Sonja. 1912-1969. Norwegian-born figure skater who was largely responsible for making ice skating a popular competitive sport. She won Olympic gold medals in 1928, 1932, and 1936 and ten consecutive world championships (1927-1936).

Hen-ley (hěn'lē) or Hen-ley-on-Thames (-ōn-těmz', -ōn-) A municipal borough of south-central England west of London. It is the site of a famed annual rowing regatta that was established in 1839. Population, 10,976.

Hen-ley (hěn'lē) or Hen-ley-on-Thames (-ōn-těmz', -ōn-), William Ernest. 1849-1903. British writer and editor of the National Observer (1889-1903), in which he published the early works of George Bernard Shaw, Thomas Hardy, Rudyard Kipling, and other aspiring writers.

Hen-ley-on-Thames (hěn'lē-ōn-těmz', -ōn-) See Henley.

hen-na (hěn'ə) n. 1. a. A tree or shrub (Lawsonia inermis) of the Middle East, having fragrant white or reddish flowers. b. A reddish-orange dyestuff prepared from the dried and ground leaves of this plant, used as a cosmetic dye and for coloring leather and fabrics. 2. Color. A moderate or strong reddish brown to strong brown. — v. tr. hen-naed, hen-na-ing, hen-nas. To dye (hair, for example) with henna. [Arabic ḥinnā.] —hen'na adj.

Hen-ne-pin (hěn'ə-pīn, ěn-ə-pǎn'), Louis. fl. 17th century. Flemish-born Roman Catholic missionary who explored the Great Lakes region and the upper Mississippi Valley and published spurious accounts of his journeys.

hen-ner-y (hěn'ə-rē) n. pl. hen-ner-ies. 1. A poultry farm. 2. See hencoop.

hen-o-the-ism (hěn'ə-thē-iz'əm) n. Belief in one god without denying the existence of others. [Greek heno- (from hen, neuter of heis, one); see sem-¹ in Appendix + THE(O)- + -ISM.] —hen'o-the-ist n. —hen'o-the-is'tic adj.

hen-peck (hěn'pěk') v. tr. hen-pecked, hen-peck-ing, hen-pecks. Informal. To dominate or harass (one's husband) with persistent nagging.

Hen-ri (hěn'rē), Robert. 1865-1929. American painter whose realistic works aligned him with a group of painters, known as the Eight, or the Ashcan School, who decried the artificiality and sentimentality of American painting at the turn of the century.

hen-ry (hěn'rē) n. pl. hen-ries or hen-rys. Abbr. H The unit of inductance in which an induced electromotive force of one volt is produced when the current is varied at the rate of one ampere per second. See Table at measurement. [After Joseph HENRY.]

Hen-ry I (hĕn'ṛē), Known as "Henry Beauclerc." 1068-1135. King of England (1100-1135). The youngest son of William the Conqueror, he succeeded his brother William II to the throne, restored the laws of Edward the Confessor, and conquered Normandy (1106).

Hen-ry II¹ (hĕn'ṛē), 1133-1189. King of England (1154-1189). The son of Princess Matilda, he founded the Plantagenet royal line and appointed Thomas à Becket as archbishop of Canterbury. His quarrels with Becket concerning the authority of the Crown over the Church led to the murder of the archbishop (1170).

Hen-ry II² (hĕn'ṛē), 1519-1559. King of France (1547-1559). The son of Francis I, he regained Calais from the English (1558).

Hen-ry III¹ (hĕn'ṛē), 1207-1272. King of England (1216-1272) who succeeded his father, King John. His reign was marred by baronial opposition led by Simon de Montfort, whose representative parliament, called in 1265, is considered England's first full parliament.

Hen-ry III² (hĕn'ṛē), 1551-1589. King of France (1574-1589) who helped his mother, Catherine de Médicis, plot the Saint Bartholomew's Day Massacre (1572). His reign was marked by bitter conflict between Catholics and Huguenots.

Hen-ry IV¹ (hĕn'ṛē), 1050-1106. Holy Roman emperor and king of Germany (1056-1106) who continually struggled for power with Pope Gregory VII. Twice excommunicated, Henry appointed an antipope (1084), had himself again crowned emperor, invaded Italy, and was ultimately dethroned by his rebellious sons.

Hen-ry IV² (hĕn'ṛē), Known as "Henry Bolingbroke." 1366?-1413. King of England (1399-1413). Son of John of Gaunt and grandson of Edward III, he was banished from England by Richard II, who confiscated his estate. Henry returned, raised an army, and compelled Richard to abdicate. Parliament confirmed Henry's claim to the throne, thus establishing the Lancastrian line.

Hen-ry IV³ (hĕn'ṛē), Known as "Henry of Navarre." 1553-1610. King of France (1589-1610) who founded the Bourbon royal line, successfully waged war against Spain (1595-1598), and gave political rights to French Protestants in the Edict of Nantes (1598).

Hen-ry V¹ (hĕn'ṛē), 1081-1125. Holy Roman emperor and king of Germany (1106-1125) who fought against Flanders, Bohemia, Hungary, and Poland.

Hen-ry V² (hĕn'ṛē), 1387-1422. King of England (1413-1422) who succeeded his father, Henry IV, and suppressed the Lollards, executing their leader, Sir John Oldcastle (1417). He also reopened the Hundred Years' War, defeating the French at Agincourt (1415) and capturing all of Normandy by 1419.

Hen-ry VI (hĕn'ṛē), 1421-1471. King of England (1422-1461 and 1470-1471) who as an infant succeeded his father, Henry V, and for most of his reign exercised little power. He was taken prisoner in the Yorkist victory at Northampton (1460), and Edward IV was proclaimed king (1461). Rescued from captivity, Henry regained the throne (1470) but was recaptured at the Battle of Barnet and murdered in the Tower of London.

Hen-ry VII (hĕn'ṛē), Known as "Henry Tudor." 1457-1509. King of England (1485-1509) and founder of the Tudor line. Head of the house of Lancaster, he led the opposition to Richard III, defeated Richard at Bosworth Field (August 22, 1485), and was proclaimed king. In 1486 Henry married Elizabeth, daughter of Edward IV, thereby uniting the houses of York and Lancaster.

Hen-ry VIII (hĕn'ṛē), 1491-1547. King of England (1509-1547) who succeeded his father, Henry VII. His divorce from Catherine of Aragon, his first wife, compelled him to break from the Catholic Church by the Act of Supremacy (1534).

Hen-ry (hĕn'ṛē), Andrew. 1755?-1833. American fur trader who explored the Snake and Yellowstone rivers and founded the first American outpost in the Rocky Mountains (1810).

Hen-ry (hĕn'ṛē), Cape. A promontory of southeast Virginia at the entrance to Chesapeake Bay east of Norfolk.

Hen-ry (hĕn'ṛē), Joseph. 1797-1878. American physicist who performed extensive studies of electromagnetic phenomena.

Hen-ry (hĕn'ṛē), O. See William Sydney Porter.

Hen-ry (hĕn'ṛē), Patrick. 1736-1799. American Revolutionary leader and orator. A member of the House of Burgesses (1765) and the Continental Congress (1774-1776), he spurred the creation of the Virginia militia with his words "Give me liberty, or give me death" (1775). He also served as governor of Virginia (1776-1790).

Hen-ry the Navigator (hĕn'ṛē thē nāv'ĭ-gā'tər), 1394-1460. Prince of Portugal who established an observatory and school of navigation and directed voyages that spurred the growth of Portugal's colonial empire.

hens-and-chick-ens (hĕnz'ən-chĭk'ənz) n. Plural of hen-and-chickens.

Hens-lowe (hĕnz'lō), Philip. Died 1616. English theatrical manager who founded the Rose Theatre in London (1587). His business journal provides insight into the world of Elizabethan drama.

Hen-son (hĕn'sən), Jim. 1936-1990. American puppeteer and creator of the Muppets, a troupe of puppets including Kermit the Frog, Ernie and Bert, and Big Bird.

hent (hĕnt) v. tr. hent-ed, hent-ing, hents. Obsolete. To take hold of; seize. [Middle English henten, from Old English hentan.]

hep (hĕp) adj. Slang. Variant of hip².

hep·a·rin (hěp'ər-ĭn) n. A complex organic acid found especially in lung and liver tissue and having the ability to prevent the clotting of blood, used in the treatment of thrombosis. [Late Latin hēpar, liver (from Greek); see yĕk^wŕ in Appendix + -IN.]

hepat- pref. Variant of hepato-.

he·pat·ic (hĭ-păt'ĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling the liver. 2. Acting on or occurring in the liver. — n. A drug that acts on the liver. [Middle English epatic, from Old French hepatique, from Latin hēpaticus, from Greek hēpatikos, from hēpar, hēpat-, liver. See yĕk^wŕ in Appendix.]

he·pat·i·ca (hĭ-păt'ĭ-kə) n. Any of several woodland plants of the genus Hepatica, especially H. americana of eastern North America, having three-lobed leaves and white or lavender flowers. Also called liverleaf [Middle English epatica, liverwort, from Medieval Latin hēpatica, from feminine of Latin hēpaticus, of the liver. See HEPATIC.]

hepatic duct (hĭ-păt'ĭk dükt) n. The main excretory duct of the liver, which joins the cystic duct to form the common bile duct.

hep·a·ti·tis (hěp'ə-tĭ'tĭs) n. pl. hep·a·tit·i·des (-tĭ'tĭ-dēz'). Inflammation of the liver, caused by infectious or toxic agents and characterized by jaundice, fever, liver enlargement, and abdominal pain.

hepatitis A (hěp'ə-tĭ'tĭs ā) n. A form of hepatitis caused by an RNA virus that does not persist in the blood serum and is transmitted by ingestion of infected food and water. The disease has a shorter incubation and generally milder symptoms than hepatitis B. Also called infectious hepatitis hepatitis B (hěp'ə-tĭ'tĭs bē) n. A form of hepatitis caused by a DNA virus that persists in the blood serum and is transmitted by infected blood, as through the use of a contaminated syringe. The disease has a long incubation and symptoms that may become severe or chronic, causing serious damage to the liver. Also called serum hepatitis hepato- or hepat- pref. Liver: hepatitis. [Greek hēpato-, from hēpar, hēpat-, liver. See yĕk^wŕ in Appendix.]

he·pa·to·cyte (hěp'ə-tə-sĭt', hĭ-păt'ə-) n. A parenchymal cell of the liver.

hep·a·to·ma (hěp'ə-tō'mə) n. pl. hep·a·to·mas or hep·a·to·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A usually cancerous tumor occurring in the liver.

hep·a·to·meg·a·ly (hěp'ə-tə-měg'ə-lē, hĭpăt'ə-) n. Abnormal enlargement of the liver.

hep·a·to·tox·ic·i·ty (hěp'ə-tō-tők-sĭs'ĭ-tē, hĭ-păt'ō-) n. 1. The quality or condition of being toxic or destructive to the liver. 2. The capacity of a substance to have damaging effects on the liver. — hep'·a·to·tox'ic (-tők'sĭk) adj.

hep·a·to·tox·in (hěp'ə-tō-tők'sĭn, hĭ-păt'ō-) n. A substance capable of causing damage to the liver.

Hep·burn (hĕp'burn'), Katharine Houghton. Born 1909. American actress whose unique comedic and dramatic presence marks many fine motion pictures, including The Philadelphia Story (1940), Adam's Rib (1949), and The African Queen (1951).

hep·cat (hĕp'kāt') n. Slang. A performer or devotee of swing and jazz, especially during the 1940's.

He·phaes·tus (hī-fĕs'təs) n. Greek Mythology. The god of fire and metalworking.

Hep·ple·white (hĕp'əl-hwīt', -wīt') adj. Of, relating to, or being an English style of furniture of the late 18th century, characterized by its light, graceful lines, the use of concave curves, and the shield or heart backs of its chairs. [After George HEPPLEWHITE.]

Hep·ple·white (hĕp'əl-hwīt', -wīt'), George. Died 1786. British cabinet-maker whose elegant designs, now greatly admired, were considered unfashionable in his day.

hepta- or hept- pref. Seven: heptarchy. [Greek, from hepta, seven. See septm in Appendix.]

hep·tad (hĕp'tād') n. A group or series of seven. [Greek heptas, heptad-, the number seven, from hepta, seven. See septm in Appendix.]

hep·ta·gon (hĕp'tə-gŏn') n. A polygon having seven sides. [From Greek heptagōnon, neuter of heptagōnos, having seven angles : hepta-, hepta- + -gōnos, angled; see -GON.] —hep·tag'o·nal (-täg'ə-nəl) adj.

hep·ta·he·dron (hĕp'tə-hĕ'drən) n. pl. hep·ta·he·drons or hep·ta·he·dra (-drə). A polyhedron with seven faces. —hep'ta·he'dral (-drəl) adj.

hep·tam·e·ter (hĕp-tām'i-tər) n. 1. A metrical unit consisting of seven feet. 2. A line of verse consisting of seven metrical feet.

hep·tane (hĕp'tān') n. A volatile, colorless, highly flammable liquid hydrocarbon, C₇H₁₆, obtained in the fractional distillation of petroleum and used as a standard in determining octane ratings, as an anesthetic, and as a solvent.

hep·tar·chy (hĕp'tär'kē) n. pl. hep·tar·chies. 1. a. Government by seven persons. b. A state governed by seven persons. 2. Often Heptarchy. The informal confederation of the Anglo-Saxon kingdoms from the fifth to the ninth century, consisting of Kent, Sussex, Wessex, Essex, Northumbria, East Anglia, and Mercia.

hep·ta·stich (hĕp'tə-stīk') n. A stanza or strophe consisting of seven lines.

Hep·ta·teuch (hĕp'tə-tōök', -tyōök') n. Bible. The first seven books of the Old Testament. [Greek heptateukhos, volume containing seven books : hepta-, hepta- + teukhos, case for papyrus rolls, book; see dheugh- in Appendix.]

hep·tath·lon (hĕp-täth'lŏn, -lŏn') n. Sports. An athletic contest in which each contestant participates in seven different track and field events. [HEPT(A)- + (DEC)ATHLON.]

Hep-worth (hĕp'wŭrth'), Dame Barbara. 1903-1975. British sculptor best known for her Single Form (Memorial to Dag Hammarskjöld) at the United Nations Plaza in New York City.

her (hær, ær; hûr when stressed) adj. The possessive form of she. Used as a modifier before a noun: her boots; her accomplishments. — pron. The objective case of she. 1. a. Used as the direct object of a verb: They saw her at the conference. b. Used as the indirect object of a verb: They gave her a round of applause. 2. Used as the object of a preposition: This letter is addressed to her. 3. Informal. Used as a predicate nominative: It's her. — n. A female: The dog is a her. See Usage Note at be. See Usage Note at I¹. [Middle English, from Old English hire. See ko- in Appendix.]

her. abbr. Heraldry.

He-ra (hîr'ə) also He-re (hîr'ē) n. Greek Mythology. The sister and wife of Zeus.

Her-a-cle-a (hĕr'ə-klĕ'ə) An ancient Greek city of southern Italy near the Gulf of Taranto. In 280 B.C. it was the site of one of Pyrrhus's victories over the Romans.

Her-a-cles or Her-a-kles (hĕr'ə-klĕz') n. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. Variants of Hercules (n., sense 1).

Her-a-cli-tus (hĕr'ə-klī'təs), fl. 500 B.C. Greek philosopher who maintained that strife and change are natural conditions of the universe. — Her'a-cli'te-an (-tĕ-ən) adj.

Her-a-cli-us (hĕr'ə-klī'əs, hĭ-răk'lĕ-), 575?-641. Emperor of the Byzantine Empire (610-641) who captured Syria, Palestine, and Egypt from Persia (613-628) but lost them all to Muslim invaders (635-641).

her-ald (hĕr'əld) n. 1. A person who carries or proclaims important news; a messenger. 2. One that gives a sign or indication of something to come; a harbinger: The crocus is a herald of spring. 3. An official whose specialty is heraldry. 4. a. An official formerly charged with making royal proclamations and bearing messages of state between sovereigns. b. An official who formerly made proclamations and conveyed challenges at a tournament. — v. tr. her-ald-ed, her-ald-ing, her-alds. To proclaim; announce: cheers that heralded the team's arrival. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, of Germanic origin. See koro- in Appendix.]

he-ral-dic (hə-răl'dĭk) adj. Of or relating to heralds or heraldry.
— he-ral'di-cal-ly adv.

her-ald-ry (hĕr'əl-drĕ) n. pl. her-ald-ries. 1. Abbr. her. a. The profession, study, or art of devising, granting, and blazoning arms, tracing genealogies, and determining and ruling on questions of rank or protocol, as exercised by an officer of arms. b. A branch of knowledge dealing with the history and description in proper terms of armorial bearings and their accessories. 2. Armorial ensigns or similar insignia. 3. Pomp and ceremony, especially attended with armorial trappings; pageantry. —her'ald·ist n.

He·rat (hě-rät') A city of northwest Afghanistan on the Hari Rud east of Kabul. Located at a strategic position on an ancient trade route, it was ruled by numerous conquerors, primarily the Persians. Herat became part of Afghanistan in 1881. Population, 140,323.

herb (ûrb, hûrb) n. 1. A plant whose stem does not produce woody, persistent tissue and generally dies back at the end of each growing season. 2. Any of various often aromatic plants used especially in medicine or as seasoning. 3. Slang. Marijuana. [Middle English herbe, from Old French erbe, from Latin herba.] —herb'y adj.

her·ba·ceous (hûr-bā'shəs, ûr-) adj. 1. Relating to or characteristic of an herb as distinguished from a woody plant. 2. Green and leaflike in appearance or texture. [From Latin herbāceus, from herba, herb.]

herb·age (ûr'bīj, hûr'-) n. 1. Herbaceous plant growth, especially grass or similar vegetation used for pasturage. 2. The fleshy, often edible parts of plants. [Middle English, from Old French erbage, from erbe, from Latin herba.]

herb·al (ûr'bəl, hûr'-) adj. Of, relating to, or containing herbs. — n. A book about plants and herbs, especially those that are useful to human beings.

herb·al·ist (ûr'bə-līst, hûr'-) n. 1. One who grows, collects, or specializes in the use of herbs, especially medicinal herbs. 2. See herb doctor.

her·bar·i·um (hûr-bâr'ē-əm, ûr-) n. pl. her·bar·i·ums or her·bar·i·a (-ē-ə). 1. A collection of dried plants mounted, labeled, and systematically arranged for use in scientific study. 2. A place or an institution where such a collection is kept. [Late Latin herbārium, from Latin herbārius, one skilled in herbs, from Latin herba, herb, vegetation.]

Her·bart (hě'r'bärt'), Johann Friedrich. 1776-1841. German philosopher and educator. A founder of modern scientific pedagogy, he argued that a teacher instills knowledge in a student by relating the knowledge to the student's existing ideas and interests.

herb bennet (ûrb bĕn'īt) n. A hairy Eurasian plant (Geum urbanum) having small yellow flowers and an astringent root formerly used medicinally. [Middle English herbe benet, from Anglo-Norman, from Medieval Latin herba benedicta: Latin herba, herb + Latin benedicta, feminine past participle of benedicere, to bless; see BENEDICTION.]

herb doctor (ûrb dŏk'tər) n. One who practices healing with herbs. Also called herbalist herbed (ûrbd, hûrbd) adj. Flavored with herbs: herbed vinaigrette.

Her·bert (hûr'bərt), George. 1593-1633. English metaphysical poet whose works, including "The Collar" (1633), are religious in theme and marked by rich symbolism and inventive meter.

Her-bert (hûr'běrt), Victor. 1859-1924. American musician, composer, and conductor particularly known for his comic operas, including Babes in Toyland (1903).

her-bi-cide (hûr'bĭ-sĭd', ûr'-) n. A chemical substance used to destroy or inhibit the growth of plants, especially weeds. —her'bi-cid'al (-sĭd'l) adj.

her-bi-vore (hûr'bə-vôr', -vôr', ûr'-) n. An animal that feeds chiefly on plants. [From New Latin Herbivora, former mammalian group, from neuter pl. of herbivorus, plant-eating. See HERBIVOROUS.]

her-biv-o-rous (hûr-bĭv'ər-əs, ûr-) adj. Feeding on plants; plant-eating. [From New Latin herbivorus : Latin herba, vegetation + Latin -vorus, -vorous.] —her-biv'o-rous-ly adv.

Her-block (hûr'blök) See Herbert Lawrence Block.

herb Par-is (ûrb pǎr'is) n. A European plant (Paris quadrifolia) having a whorl of four leaves and a solitary yellow or greenish flower. [Probably Medieval Latin herba paris, herb of a pair (perhaps a reference to the two pairs of leaves on the whorl) : Latin herba, herb + Latin paris, genitive of pār, equal; see PAR.]

herb Rob-ert (ûrb rōb'ərt) n. A low-growing Eurasian plant (Geranium robertianum) having divided leaves and small reddish-purple flowers. [Middle English herbe Robert, from Old French erbe Robert, from Medieval Latin herba Roberti : Latin herba, herb + Roberti, genitive of Robertus, Robert.]

Her-cu-la-ne-um (hûr'kyə-lā'nē-əm) An ancient city of south-central Italy on the Bay of Naples. A popular resort during Roman times, it was completely destroyed by the eruption of Mount Vesuvius (A.D. 79). Important ruins have been unearthed since the early 1700's.

Her-cu-le-an (hûr'kyə-lē'ən, hûr-kyōō'lē-) adj. 1. Often herculean. Of unusual size, power, or difficulty. 2. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. a. Of or relating to Hercules. b. Resembling Hercules.

Her-cu-les (hûr'kyə-lēz') n. 1. Also Her-a-cles or Her-a-kles (hēr'ə-klēz'). Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. The son of Zeus and Alcmene, a hero of extraordinary strength who won immortality by performing 12 labors demanded by Hera. 2. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Lyra and Corona Borealis. [Latin, from Greek Hēraklēs : Hēra, Hera + kleos, fame; see kleu- in Appendix.]

Her-cu-les' club (hûr'kyə-lēz klüb) n. 1. A tree or shrub (Aralia spinosa) of the southeast United States, having prickly, bipinnately compound leaves and large clusters of small white flowers. Also called angelica tree, devil's walking stick, prickly ash. 2. A spiny shrub or tree (Zanthoxylum clava-herculis) of the central and southeast United States, having terminal panicles of small greenish-yellow flowers and pinnately compound leaves. Also called pepperwood, Southern prickly ash. [After the spiny club of Hercules.]

herd (hûrd) n. 1. a. A group of cattle or other domestic animals of a single kind kept together for a specific purpose. b. A number of wild animals of one species that remain together as a group: a herd of elephants. See Synonyms at flock¹. 2. a. A large number of people; a crowd: a herd of stranded passengers. b. The multitude of common people regarded as a mass: “It is the luxurious and dissipated who set the fashions which the herd so diligently follow” (Henry David Thoreau). — v. herd-ed, herd-ing, herds. — v. intr. To come together in a herd: The sheep herded for warmth. — v. tr. 1. To gather, keep, or drive (animals) in a herd. 2. To tend (sheep or cattle). 3. To gather and place into a group or mass: herded the children into the auditorium. [Middle English, from Old English heord.]

herd-er (hûr'dər) n. 1. One who tends or drives a herd. 2. A herdsman.

Her-der (hě'r'dər), Johann Gottfried von. 1744-1803. German philosopher and writer whose advocacy of intuition over rationality greatly influenced Goethe and formed the basis of German romanticism.

her-dic (hûr'dĭk) n. A small horse-drawn cab with two wheels, side seats, and an entrance at the back, used in the 19th century. [After Peter Herdic (1824-1888), American inventor.]

herds-man (hûrdz'mən) n. An owner or a breeder of livestock.

here (hîr) adv. 1. At or in this place: Stop here for a rest. 2. At this time; now: We'll adjourn the meeting here and discuss remaining issues after lunch. 3. At or on this point, detail, or item: Here I must disagree. 4. In the present life or condition. 5. To this place; hither: Come here, please. — adj. 1. Used for emphasis after a demonstrative pronoun: Which word? This one here. 2. Used for emphasis after a noun modified by a demonstrative pronoun: this word here. 3. Non-Standard. Used for emphasis between a demonstrative pronoun and a noun: this here word. — interj. Used to respond to a roll call, attract attention, command an animal, or rebuke, admonish, or concur. — n. 1. This place: “It would be difficult from here, with the certainty of armed gunmen inside, to bring him out alive” (Howard Kaplan). 2. The present time or state: We are living in the here and can only speculate about the hereafter. — idiom. neither here nor there. Unimportant and irrelevant. [Middle English, from Old English hēr. See ko- in Appendix.]

He-re (hîr'ē) n. Greek Mythology. Variant of Hera.

here-a-bout (hîr'ə-bout') also here-a-bouts (-bouts') adv. In this general vicinity; around here.

here-af-ter (hîr-ăf'tər) adv. 1. Immediately following this in time, order, or place; after this. 2. In a future time or state: hope to win salvation hereafter. — n. The afterlife: belief in a hereafter.

here-by (hîr-bī') adv. By virtue of this act, decree, bulletin, or document; by this means.

He·re·dia (ā-rā-dyă', ě-rĕ'thyä), José Maria de. 1842-1905. Cuban-born French poet and translator. A leading Parnassian, he is known for his sonnets, published in Les Trophées (1893).

her·e·dit·a·ment (hĕr'ĭ-dĭt'ə-mənt) n. Law. Property that can be inherited. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin hērēditāmentum, from Late Latin hērēditāre, to inherit, from Latin hērēs, hērēd-, heir. See ghē- in Appendix.]

he·red·i·tar·i·an (hə-rĕd'ĭ-tār'ē-ən) n. One who supports hereditarianism.
— adj. Relating to or based on hereditarianism.

he·red·i·tar·i·an·ism (hə-rĕd'ĭ-tār'ē-ə-nĭz'əm) n. The doctrine or school that regards heredity as the primary factor in determining intelligence and behavior independent of environmental influences.

he·red·i·tar·y (hə-rĕd'ĭ-tĕr'ē) adj. 1. Law. a. Descending from an ancestor to a legal heir; passing down by inheritance. b. Having title or possession through inheritance. 2. Transmitted or capable of being transmitted genetically from parent to offspring: a hereditary disease. 3. a. Appearing in or characteristic of successive generations. b. Derived from or fostered by one's ancestors: a hereditary prejudice. 4. Ancestral; traditional: their hereditary home. See Synonyms at innate. 5. Of or relating to heredity or inheritance. [Middle English, from Latin hērēditārius, from hērēditās, inheritance. See HEREDITY.] —he·red'ĭ-tār'ĭ-ly (-tār'ə-lē) adv. —he·red'ĭ-tār'ĭ-ness n.

he·red·i·tist (hə-rĕd'ĭ-tĭst) n. A hereditarian.

he·red·i·ty (hə-rĕd'ĭ-tē) *n. pl. he·red·i·ties. 1. The genetic transmission of characteristics from parent to offspring. 2. The sum of characteristics and associated potentialities transmitted genetically to an individual organism. [French hérédité, from Old French herédite, inheritance, from Latin hērēditās, from hērēs, hērēd-, heir. See ghē- in Appendix.]*

Here·ford¹ (hûr'fərd) A city of northwest Texas in the Panhandle southwest of Amarillo. It is a processing center in a farming and cattle-raising area. Population, 15,853.

Here·ford² (hûr'fərd, hĕr'ə-fərd) n. Any of a breed of beef cattle developed in England and having a reddish coat with white markings. [After Hereford, a former county of western England.]

here·in (hîr-ĭn') adv. In or into this.

here·in·af·ter (hîr'ĭn-ăf'tĕr) adv. In a following part of this document, statement, or book.

here·in·be·fore (hîr'ĭn-bĭ-fôr', -fôr') adv. In a preceding part of this document, statement, or book.

here·in·to (hîr-ĭn'tō) adv. Into this matter, circumstance, situation, or place.

here·of (hîr-ŭv', -öv') adv. Of this.

here·on (hîr-ŏn', -ôn') adv. On this; hereupon.

He-re-ro (hə-râr'ō, hĕr'ə-rō') n. pl. Herero or He-re-ros. 1. A member of a pastoral people inhabiting Namibia and Botswana. 2. The Bantu language of this people.

he-re-si-arch (hə-rē'zē-ärk', hĕr'ī-sē-) n. One who originates or is the chief proponent of a heresy or heretical movement. [Late Latin haeresiarcha, from Late Greek haresiarkhēs : Greek hairesis, sect; see HERESY + Greek -arkhēs, -arch.]

her-e-sy (hĕr'ī-sē) n. pl. her-e-sies. 1. a. An opinion or a doctrine at variance with established religious beliefs, especially dissension from or denial of Roman Catholic dogma by a professed believer or baptized church member.

b. Adherence to such dissenting opinion or doctrine. 2. a. A controversial or unorthodox opinion or doctrine, as in politics, philosophy, or science.

b. Adherence to such controversial or unorthodox opinion. [Middle English heresie, from Old French, from Late Latin haeresis, from Late Greek hairesis, from Greek, a choosing, faction, from hairēisthai, to choose, middle voice of hairein, to take.] her-e-tic (hĕr'ī-tĭk) n. A person who holds controversial opinions, especially one who publicly dissents from the officially accepted dogma of the Roman Catholic Church. — adj. Heretical. [Middle English heretik, from Old French heretique, from Late Latin haereticus, from Greek hairetikos, able to choose, factious, from hairetos, chosen, from hairēisthai, to choose. See HERESY.]

he-ret-i-cal (hə-rĕt'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to heresy or heretics.

2. Characterized by, revealing, or approaching departure from established beliefs or standards. — he-ret'ī-cal-ly adv. — he-ret'ī-cal-ness n.

here-to (hîr-tōō') adv. To this document, matter, or proposition.

here-to-fore (hîr'tə-fôr', -fôr') adv. Up to the present time; before this; previously. [Middle English : here, here; see HERE + tofore, previously (from Old English tōforan : tō, to; see to + foran, before from fore); see FORE.]

here-un-to (hîr-ŭn'tōō) adv. Hereto.

here-up-on (hîr'ə-pŏn', -pŏn') adv. 1. Immediately after this. 2. At or on this.

here-with (hîr-wĭth', -wĭth') adv. 1. Along with this. 2. By this means; hereby.

Her-ford (hĕr'fôrt') A city of northeast Germany east-northeast of Münster. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 59,941.

Her-ges-heim (hûr'gəs-hī'mər), Joseph. 1880-1954. American writer whose popular novels of manners include The Three Black Pennys (1917) and Java Head (1919).

her-i-ot (hĕr'ē-ət) n. A tribute or service rendered to a feudal lord on the death of a tenant. [Middle English, from Old English heregeatu : here, army; see koro- in Appendix + geatwe, equipment, arms.]

her-i-ta-ble (hĕr'ī-tə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of being passed from one generation to the next; hereditary. 2. Capable of inheriting or taking by inheritance. [Middle English, from Old French, from heriter, to inherit. See HERITAGE.]

—her'·i·ta·bil'i·ty n. —her'·i·ta·bly adv.

- her-i-tage (hĕr'ī-tīj) n. 1. Property that is or can be inherited; an inheritance. 2. Something that is passed down from preceding generations; a tradition. 3. The status acquired by a person through birth; a birthright: a heritage of affluence and social position. [Middle English, from Old French, from eritier, heir, from Medieval Latin hērēditārius, from Latin, inherited. See HEREDITARY.]

SYNONYMS: heritage, inheritance, legacy, tradition. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something immaterial, such as a custom, that is passed from one generation to another”: a heritage of moral uprightness; an inheritance of knowledge from the past; a legacy of philosophical thought; the tradition of noblesse oblige.

her-i-tor (hĕr'ī-tər) n. An inheritor. [Alteration of Middle English heriter, from Anglo-Norman, from Medieval Latin hērēditārius. See HEREDITARY.]

He-riz (hîr'ēz, -ēs) n. A strong, finely woven Persian rug that has patterns of flowers, garlands, and trees. [Alteration of Heris, a town of Iran.]

Her-ki-mer (hûr'kə-mər), Nicholas. 1728-1777. American Revolutionary general who led reinforcements toward the besieged Fort Stanwix, New York (1777), but was ambushed and mortally wounded in the ensuing fight.

herk-y-jerk-y (hûr'kē-jûr'kē) adj. Spasmodic, irregular, and unpredictable, as in movement or manner. [Reduplication of JERKY¹.]

herl (hûrl) n. 1. The barb of a feather used in trimming an artificial fly for angling. 2. A fishing fly made with this type of barb. [Middle English herle, a strand or twist of hair.]

her-ma (hûr'mə) also herm (hûrm) n. A bust, usually one of Hermes mounted on a square stone post. [Latin hermēs, herma, from Greek hermēs, from Hermēs, Hermes.]

Her-man (hûr'mən), Woodrow Charles. Known as “Woody.” 1913-1987. American jazz musician and bandleader who for 50 years directed a series of young, energetic bands called the “Thundering Herds.”

her-maph-ro-dism (hər-măf'rə-dîz'əm) n. Variant of hermaphroditism.

her-maph-ro-dite (hər-măf'rə-dīt') n. 1. One having the reproductive organs and many of the secondary sex characteristics of both sexes. 2. Biology. An organism, such as an earthworm or a monoclinal plant, having both male and female reproductive organs. 3. Something that is a combination of disparate or contradictory elements. [Middle English hermofrodite, from Medieval Latin hermofroditus, from Latin hermaphroditus, from Greek hermaphroditos, Hermaphroditus, hermaphrodite. See HERMAPHRODITUS.] —her-maph'ro-dit'ic (-dīt'ik) adj. —her-maph'ro-dit'i-cal·ly adv.

hermaphrodite brig (hər-măf' rə-dīt' brīg) n. Nautical. A two-masted vessel with a square-rigged foremast and a schooner-rigged mainmast.

hermaphrodite rig (hər-măf' rə-dīt' rīg) n. Nautical. See jackass rig.

her-maph-ro-dit-ism (hər-măf' rə-dī-tīz' əm) also her-maph-ro-dism (-rə-dīz' əm) n. The condition of being a hermaphrodite.

Her-maph-ro-di-tus (hər-măf' rə-dī'təs) n. Greek Mythology. The son of Hermes and Aphrodite, who became united in one body with the nymph Salmacis. [Greek Hermaphroditos : Hermēs, Hermes + Aphroditē, Aphrodite.]

her-me-neu-tic (hûr'mə-nōō'tīk, -nyōō'-) also her-me-neu-ti-cal (-tī-kəl) adj. Interpretive; explanatory. [Greek hermeneutikos, from hermeneutēs, interpreter, from hermeneuein, to interpret, from hermeneus, interpreter.]

—her'me-neu'ti-cal-ly adv.

her-me-neu-tics (hûr'mə-nōō'tīks, -nyōō'-) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The science and methodology of interpretation, especially of scriptural text.

—her'me-neu'tist n.

Her-mes (hûr'mēz) n. Greek Mythology. The god of commerce, invention, cunning, and theft, who also served as messenger, scribe, and herald for the other gods.

Hermes Tris-me-gis-tus (hûr'mēz trīs'mə-jīs'təs, trīz'-) n. Mythology. The Egyptian god Thoth, the legendary author of works on alchemy, astrology, and magic. [Medieval Latin Hermēs Trismegistus, from Greek Hermēs trismegistos : Hermēs, Hermes + trismegistos (tris, thrice; see trisoctahedron + megistos, greatest); see ALMAGEST.]

her-met-ic (hər-mět'īk) also her-met-i-cal (-ī-kəl) adj. 1. Completely sealed, especially against the escape or entry of air. 2. Impervious to outside interference or influence: the hermetic confines of an isolated life. 3. Often Hermetic.

Mythology. a. Of or relating to Hermes Trismegistus or the works ascribed to him. b. Having to do with the occult sciences, especially alchemy; magical.

[New Latin hermēticus, alchemical, from Medieval Latin Hermēs Trismegistus. See HERMES TRISMEGISTUS.] —her-met'i-cal-ly adv.

her-mit (hûr'mīt) n. 1. A person who has withdrawn from society and lives a solitary existence; a recluse. 2. A spiced cookie made with molasses, raisins, and nuts. [Middle English heremite, from Old French, from Medieval Latin heremīta, from Late Latin erēmīta, from Greek erēmitēs, from erēmia, desert, from erēmos, solitary.] —her-mit'ic, her-mit'i-cal adj. —her-mit'i-cal-ly adv.

her-mit-age (hûr'mī-tij) n. 1. a. The habitation of a hermit or group of hermits. b. A monastery or an abbey. 2. A place where one can live in seclusion; a retreat. 3. The condition or way of life of a hermit. [Middle English, from Old French hermitage, from heremite, hermit. See HERMIT.]

Her-mi-tage (ěr'mī-tāzh') n. A rich, full-bodied, usually red wine produced in southeast France. [After Tain L'Hermitage, a village of southeast France.]

hermit crab (hûr'mīt krăb) n. Any of various crabs belonging to a group within the order Decapoda that protect their soft, unarmored abdomens by occupying and carrying about the empty shells of snails or other univalve mollusks.

hermit thrush (hûr'mīt thrŭsh) n. A North American bird (Catharus guttatus) having brownish plumage, a spotted breast, a reddish tail, and a distinctive melodious song.

Her-mon (hûr'mən), Mount. The highest peak, 2,815.8 m (9,232 ft), of the Anti-Lebanon Range on the Syria-Lebanon border. It was sacred to the worshippers of Baal and is considered the traditional site of Jesus's transfiguration.

Her-mo-sa Beach (hər-mō'sə bēch) A city of southern California on the Pacific Ocean south-southwest of Los Angeles. It is a resort and residential suburb. Population, 18,219.

Her-mo-sil-lo (ĕr'-mô-sē'ô) A city of northwest Mexico near the Gulf of California west of Chihuahua. Established c. 1700, it is a trade center in an agricultural and mining area. Population, 297,175.

hern (hûrn) n. A heron. [Variant of HERON.]

Hern-don (hûrn'dən), William Henry. 1818-1891. American lawyer who published a popular but unreliable biography of his onetime law partner Abraham Lincoln.

Her-ne (hĕr'nə) A city of west-central Germany in the Ruhr district east-northeast of Essen. It is an industrial center in a mining area. Population, 173,226.

Herne (hûrn), James A. 1839-1901. American playwright noted for his realistic works, especially Margaret Fleming (1890).

her-ni-a (hûr'nĕ-ə) n. pl. her-ni-as or her-ni-ae (-nĕ-ĕ'). The protrusion of an organ or other bodily structure through the wall that normally contains it; a rupture. [Middle English, from Latin. See gher- in Appendix.] —her'ni-al adj.

her-ni-ate (hûr'nĕ-āt') v. intr. her-ni-at-ed, her-ni-at-ing, her-ni-ates. To protrude through an abnormal bodily opening. —her'ni-a'tion n.

he-ro (hîr'ō) n. pl. he-roes. 1. In mythology and legend, a man, often of divine ancestry, who is endowed with great courage and strength, celebrated for his bold exploits, and favored by the gods. 2. A person noted for feats of courage or nobility of purpose, especially one who has risked or sacrificed his or her life: soldiers and nurses who were heroes in an unpopular war. 3. A person noted for special achievement in a particular field: the heroes of medicine. See Synonyms at celebrity. 4. The principal male character in a novel, poem, or dramatic presentation. See Usage Note at heroine. 5. See submarine (n., sense 2). See Regional note at submarine. [Probably alteration of Latin hērōs, from Greek. See ser-¹ in Appendix.]

He-ro¹ (hîr'ō) n. Greek Mythology. A priestess of Aphrodite beloved by Leander.

He-ro² (hē'rō, hîr'ō) or He-ron (hē'rōn'), First century A.D. Alexandrian scientist who invented many water-driven and steam-driven machines and devised a formula for determining the area of a triangle.

Her-od (hēr'əd), Known as "the Great." 73?-4 B.C. King of Judea (40-4) who, according to the New Testament, attempted to kill the infant Jesus by ordering the death of all children under the age of two in Bethlehem.

Herod An-ti-pas (hēr'əd ən'tī-pās', -pəs), Died c. A.D. 40. Ruler of Judea and tetrarch in Galilee (4 B.C.-A.D. 40). His marriage to his niece Herodias was denounced by John the Baptist, who was beheaded at the urging of Salome, the daughter of Herod and Herodias. It was to Herod Antipas that Pontius Pilate sent Jesus for judgment.

He-ro-di-as (hī-rō'dē-əs), Died c. A.D. 39. The niece and second wife of Herod Antipas and the mother of Salome.

He-rod-o-tus (hī-rōd'ə-təs), Known as "the Father of History." Fifth century B.C. Greek historian whose writings, chiefly concerning the Persian Wars, are the earliest known examples of narrative history.

he-ro-ic (hī-rō'ik) adj. also he-ro-i-cal (-ī-kəl) 1. Of, relating to, or resembling the heroes of literature, legend, or myth. 2. Having, displaying, or characteristic of the qualities appropriate to a hero; courageous: heroic deeds. 3. a. Impressive in size or scope; grand: heroic undertakings. b. Of a size or scale that is larger than life: heroic sculpture. — n. 1. A line of heroic verse. 2. heroics. Melodramatic behavior or language: "We trust the House... will come up with answers without all the political heroics" (Atlanta Constitution). — he-ro'i-cal-ly adv. — he-ro'i-cal-ness n.

heroic couplet (hī-rō'ik kŭp'līt) n. A verse unit consisting of two rhymed lines in iambic pentameter.

heroic drama (hī-rō'ik dră'mə) n. Restoration tragedy or tragicomedy composed in heroic couplets and generally characterized by exotic settings, bombastic rhetoric, and exaggerated characterization.

heroic meter (hī-rō'ik mē'tər) n. See heroic verse.

heroic quatrain (hī-rō'ik kwōt'rān') n. See elegiac stanza.

heroic stanza (hī-rō'ik stān'zə) n. A four-line stanza consisting of two heroic couplets.

heroic verse (hī-rō'ik vûrs) n. One of several verse forms traditionally used in epic and dramatic poetry, especially: a. The dactylic hexameter in Greek and Latin. b. The iambic pentameter in English. c. The alexandrine in French. Also called heroic meter her-o-in (hēr'ō-ĭn) n. A white, odorless, bitter crystalline compound, C₁₇H₁₇NO(C₂H₃O₂)₂, that is derived from morphine and is a highly addictive narcotic. Also called diacetylmorphine [German, originally a trademark.]

her-o-ine (hĕr'ō-ĭn) n. 1. A woman noted for courage and daring action. 2. A woman noted for special achievement in a particular field. 3. The principal female character in a novel, poem, or dramatic presentation. [Latin hērōīnē, hērōīna, from Greek hērōinē, feminine of hērōs, hero. See HERO.]

USAGE NOTE: The word hero should no longer be regarded as restricted to men in the sense “a person noted for courageous action,” though heroine is always restricted to women. The distinction between heroine and hero is still useful, however, in referring to the principal character of a fictional work, inasmuch as the virtues and qualities that become a traditional literary heroine like Elizabeth Bennet or Isabel Archer are generally quite different from those that become a traditional literary hero like Tom Jones or Huckleberry Finn.

her-o-in-ism (hĕr'ō-ĭ-nĭz'əm) n. Addiction to heroin.

her-o-ism (hĕr'ō-ĭz'əm) n. 1. Heroic conduct or behavior. 2. Heroic characteristics or qualities; courage.

her-on (hĕr'ən) n. Any of various wading birds of the family Ardeidae, having a long neck, long legs, a long pointed bill, and usually white, gray, or bluish-gray plumage. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

He-ron (hĕ'rŏn') See Hero².

her-on-ry (hĕr'ən-rĕ) n. pl. her-on-ries. A place where herons nest and breed.

hero worship (hĭr'ō wŭr'shĭp) n. Intense or excessive admiration for a hero or a person regarded as a hero.

he-ro-wor-ship (hĭr'ō-wŭr'shĭp) v. tr. he-ro-wor-ship-ed or he-ro-wor-ship-ped, he-ro-wor-ship-ing or he-ro-wor-ship-ping, he-ro-wor-ships or he-ro-wor-ships. 1. To revere as an ideal. 2. To adulate. —he'ro-wor'ship-er n.

her-pes (hŭr'pĕz) n. Any of several viral diseases causing the eruption of small blisterlike vesicles on the skin or mucous membranes, especially herpes simplex or herpes zoster. [Middle English, from Latin herpēs, from Greek, from herpein, to creep.] —her-pet'ic (hĕr-pĕt'ĭk) adj.

herpes la-bi-a-lis (hŭr'pĕz lā'bĕ-ā'lĭs) n. See cold sore. [New Latin herpēs labiālis: Latin herpēs, herpes + Medieval Latin labiālis, of the lip.]

herpes sim-plex (hŭr'pĕz sĭm'plĕks') n. 1. A recurrent viral disease caused by the herpes simplex virus, type one, and marked by the eruption of fluid-containing vesicles on the mouth, lips, or face. 2. A recurrent viral disease caused by the herpes simplex virus, type two, and marked by the eruption of fluid-containing vesicles on the genitals. [New Latin herpēs simplex: Latin herpēs, herpes + Latin simplex, simple.]

her-pes-vi-rus (hŭr'pĕz-vĭ'rəs) n. pl. her-pes-vi-rus-es. Any of a group of DNA-containing animal viruses that form characteristic inclusion bodies within the nuclei of host cells and cause diseases such as chickenpox, infectious mononucleosis, herpes simplex, and shingles.

herpes zos·ter (hûr'pēz zōs'tər, zō'stər) n. See shingles. [New Latin herpēs zōstēr : Latin herpēs, herpes + Greek zōstēr, girdle.]

her·pe·tol·o·gy (hûr'pī-tōl'ə-jē) n. The branch of zoology that deals with reptiles and amphibians. [Greek herpeton, reptile (from herpein, to creep) + -LOGY.] —her'pe-to-log'ic (-tə-lōj'ik), her'pe-to-log'i-cal adj.

—her'pe-to-log'i-cal-ly adv. —her'pe-tol'o-gist n.

Herr (hër) n. pl. Her-ren (hër'ən). Abbr. Hr. Used as a courtesy title in a German-speaking area, prefixed to the surname or professional title of a man. [German, from Middle High German hërre, from Old High German hërro, lord, master, alteration of hēriro, older, more venerable, comparative of hēr, proud, holy, splendid, noble.]

Her-ren·volk (hër'ən-fōk', -fōlk') n. A master race. [German : Herren, genitive pl. of Herr, master; see HERR + Volk, people, nation; see VOLKSLIED.]

Her-rick (hër'ik), Robert. 1591-1674. English lyric poet whose sensuous, simple works, such as "Delight in Disorder" (1648), are marked by his affinity for Latin verse and the influence of Ben Jonson. He is considered the greatest Cavalier poet.

her·ring (hër'ing) n. pl. herring or her-rings. Any of various fishes of the family Clupeidae, especially a commercially important food fish (Clupea harengus) of Atlantic and Pacific waters. [Middle English hering, from Old English hæring.]

her·ring·bone (hër'ing-bōn') n. 1. a. A pattern consisting of rows of short, slanted parallel lines with the direction of the slant alternating row by row and used in masonry, parquetry, embroidery, and weaving. b. A twilled fabric woven in this pattern. 2. Sports. A method of climbing a ski slope with the tips of the skis pointed outward. — v. her·ring·boned, her·ring·bon·ing, her·ring·bones. — v. tr. To arrange or decorate with a herringbone pattern. — v. intr. 1. To produce a herringbone pattern. 2. Sports. To ascend a ski slope with the ski tips pointed outward.

herring gull (hër'ing gŭl) n. A common seagull (Larus argentatus) of the Northern Hemisphere having gray and white plumage with black wing tips.

Her-ri-ot (ě-rē-ō'), Édouard. 1872-1957. French politician. A leader of the Radical Socialist Party, he served as premier (1924-1925, 1926, and 1932) and was president of the national assembly (1947-1954).

hers (hürz) pron. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Used to indicate the one or ones belonging to her: If you can't find your hat, take hers. [Middle English hires, hirs : hire, her; see HER + -es, possessive suff.; see -'s¹.]

Her-schel (hür'shəl) Family of British astronomers, including Sir William Herschel (1738-1822), who discovered Uranus (1781), was astronomer to George III, and cataloged more than 800 double stars and 2,500 nebulae. His sister Caroline Herschel (1750-1848) assisted in his work and published a star catalog. His son Sir John Frederick William Herschel (1792-1871) augmented William's work with the discovery of 525 nebulae and conducted notable research on light, photography, and astrophysics.

her-self (hûr-sĕlf') pron. 1. That one identical with her: a. Used reflexively as the direct or indirect object of a verb or as the object of a preposition: She bought herself a new car. She sculpted a likeness of herself. b. Used for emphasis: She herself was certain of the facts. c. Used in an absolute construction: In office herself, she helped him get a job. 2. Her normal or healthy condition or state: She's feeling herself again. [Middle English hire self, from Old English hire selfre, dative of hĕo self: hĕo, she; see SHE + self, self; see SELF.]

Her-shey (hûr'shĕ), Alfred Day. Born 1908. American biologist. He shared a 1969 Nobel Prize for investigating the mechanism of viral infection in living cells.

Her-shey (hûr'shĕ), Lewis Blaine. 1893-1977. American general who directed the Selective Service System (1941-1970).

Her-shey (hûr'shĕ), Milton Snavely. 1857-1945. American industrialist and philanthropist who founded the Hershey Chocolate Company (1903) and established the town of Hershey (1909) near Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

Her-sko-vits (hûr'skə-vĭts'), Melville Jean. 1895-1963. American anthropologist who organized at Northwestern University the first American program in African studies (1951).

her-sto-ry (hûr'stə-rĕ) n. pl. her-sto-ries. 1. The experiences and accomplishments of women, especially as seen in a historical context: "the rest is the stuff of an unlikely... herstory" (Washington Post). 2. The composite of experiences making up a woman's life: "the truncated herstory of three black female students" (Los Angeles Times).

Her-ten (hĕr'tn) A city of west-central Germany north of Essen. It is an industrial center in a mining area. Population, 68,423.

Her-ter (hûr'tər), Christian Archibald. 1895-1966. American politician who was governor of Massachusetts (1953-1957) and U.S. secretary of state (1959-1961).

hertz (hûrts) n. pl. hertz. Abbr. Hz A unit of frequency equal to one cycle per second. See Table at measurement. [After Heinrich Rudolf HERTZ.]

Hertz (hûrts, hĕrts), Gustav Ludwig. 1887-1975. German physicist. He shared a 1925 Nobel Prize for discovering the laws that describe the impact of electrons upon atoms.

Hertz (hûrts, hĕrts), Heinrich Rudolf. 1857-1894. German physicist who was the first to produce radio waves artificially.

Hertz·i·an wave (hûrt'sē-ən wāv, hěrt'-) n. An electromagnetic wave, usually of radio frequency, produced by the oscillation of electricity in a conductor.

[After Heinrich Rudolf HERTZ.]

Hert-zog (hûrt'sög', -sôg', hěr'tsôKH), James Barry Munnik. 1866-1942.

South African general and politician. A leader in the Boer War (1899-1902), he formed the Afrikaner Nationalist Party (1914) to oppose the country's cooperation with Great Britain. As prime minister (1924-1939) he sought greater national independence and instituted apartheid policies.

Hertz-sprung-Rus-sell diagram (hěrts'sprüng-rüs'al dī'ə-gräm', -spröong-) n. A graph of the absolute magnitude of stars plotted against their surface temperature or color, used in the study of stellar evolution. [After Ejnar Hertzprung (1873-1967), Danish astronomer, and Henry Norris RUSSELL.]

Herz-berg (hûrts'bürg'), Gerhard. Born 1904. German-born Canadian physicist. He won a 1971 Nobel Prize for chemistry for his contributions to the understanding of the electronic structure and geometry of molecules.

Her-ze-go-vi-na (hěrt'sə-gō-vē'nə, hûrt'-) A region comprising the southern part of Bosnia-Herzegovina. Largely independent after the 10th century, it was conquered by Bosnia in the 14th century and by Turkey in the 15th century, since which time it has frequently been joined administratively with Bosnia. Bosnia and Herzegovina were united to form a constituent republic of Yugoslavia from 1946 to 1991. —Her'ze-go-vi-ni-an adj. & n.

Her-zi (hěrt'səl), Theodor. 1860-1904. Hungarian-born Austrian founder of Zionism. As a correspondent during the Alfred Dreyfus affair, he determined that the solution to anti-Semitism was the establishment of a Jewish national state. He founded the Zionist World Congress in 1897.

he's (hēz) 1. He is: He's going to school today. 2. He has: He's already been to the museum.

Hesh·van also Hesh·wan (KHěsh'vən, -vān) n. The second month of the year in the Jewish calendar. See Table at calendar. [Hebrew ḥešwān, short for marḥešwān, October/November, from Akkadian arāḥsamnu.]

He·si·od (hē'sē-əd, hēs'ē-), fl. eighth century B.C. Greek poet. The major epics ascribed to him are Works and Days, a valuable account of ancient rural life, and Theogony, a description of the gods and the beginning of the world.

hes·i·tan·cy (hěz'ī-tən-sē) n. pl. hes·i·tan·cies. 1. The state or quality of being hesitant. 2. An instance of hesitating.

hes·i·tant (hěz'ī-tənt) adj. Inclined or tending to hesitate. —hes'ī-tant·ly adv.

hes·i·tate (hěz'ī-tāt') v. intr. hes·i·tat·ed, hes·i·tat·ing, hes·i·tates.

1. a. To be slow to act, speak, or decide. b. To pause in uncertainty; waver. 2. To be reluctant. 3. To speak haltingly; falter. [Latin haesitāre, haesitāt-, to hesitate, frequentative of haerēre, to hold fast.] —hes'ī-tat'er n. —hes'ī-tat'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: hesitate, vacillate, waver, falter. These verbs mean to be uncertain, irresolute, or indecisive. To hesitate is to hold back or pause because of doubt or uncertainty, as about what to do or say: “A President either is constantly on top of events or, if he hesitates, events will soon be on top of him” (Harry S Truman). Vacillate implies going back and forth between alternative, usually conflicting courses without making a final decision: She vacillated so long about attending the concert that when she decided to go, the tickets were sold out. Waver suggests a delay in taking action once a choice has been made, as if the decision were being reconsidered: After much wavering he finally gave his permission. To falter is to be unsteady in resolution or action, as from fear or loss of courage: The performer faltered in the middle of the show. The marine never faltered in his duty.

hes·i·ta·tion (hěz'ī-tā'shən) n. 1. The act or an instance of hesitating. 2. The state of being hesitant. 3. A pause or faltering in speech.

Hes·pe·ri·an (hě-spīr'ē-ən) adj. Of or relating to the west. [From Latin Hesperius, from Greek hesperios, from hesperos, evening. See wes·pero- in Appendix.]

Hes·per·i·des (hě-spēr'ī-děz') pl.n. Greek Mythology. 1. The nymphs who together with a dragon watch over a garden in which golden apples grow. 2. (used with a sing. verb). A garden, situated at the western end of the earth, in which golden apples grow. [Latin, from Greek, pl. of hesperis feminine of hesperios, of the evening, western.] —Hes'per·id'·i·an, Hes'per·id'·e·an (hěs'pə-rīd'ē-ən) adj.

hes·per·id·i·a (hěs'pə-rīd'ē-ə) n. Plural of hesperidium.

hes·per·i·din (hě-spēr'ī-dīn) n. A white or colorless crystalline compound, $C_{28}H_{34}O_{15}$, occurring in citrus fruit. [HESPERID(IUM) + -IN.]

hes·per·id·i·um (hěs'pə-rīd'ē-əm) n. pl. hes·per·id·i·a (-ē-ə). A berry having a thickened, leathery rind and juicy pulp divided into segments, as an orange or other citrus fruit. [New Latin, from HESPERIDES, land where golden apples grow.]

Hes·per·us (hěs'pər-əs) n. The planet Venus in its appearance as the evening star. [Middle English, from Latin, from Greek hesperos. See HESPERIAN.]

Hess (hěs), Dame Myra. 1890-1965. British pianist who organized daily lunch-time concerts at the National Gallery in London during World War II.

Hess (hěs), Victor Franz. 1883-1964. Austrian-born American physicist. He shared a 1936 Nobel Prize for his discovery of cosmic radiation.

Hess (hěs), (Walter Richard) Rudolf. 1894-1987. German Nazi leader. When Hitler became chancellor (1933), he named Hess as deputy führer and later (1939) as second in succession to the Nazi leadership. In May 1941 Hess was captured in Scotland, where he had flown apparently in a bid to start peace talks with Britain. At the Nuremberg trials (1946) he was sentenced to life imprisonment in Spandau Prison, Berlin, for war crimes.

Hess (hĕs), Walter Rudolf. 1881-1973. Swiss physiologist. He shared a 1949 Nobel Prize for his research on the brain's control of the body.

Hesse (hĕs) A region and former grand duchy of west-central Germany. In medieval times the territory was expanded west to the Rhine River and south to the Main River, but after 1567 it was divided into four separate regions ruled by various branches of the Hesse family.

Hes-se (hĕs'ə), Hermann. 1877-1962. German-born Swiss writer whose works, including Siddhartha (1922) and Steppenwolf (1927), concern the duality of human existence and the alienation of the artist. He won the 1946 Nobel Prize for literature.

Hes-sian (hĕsh'ən) adj. Of or relating to Hesse or its inhabitants. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Hesse. 2. A German mercenary in the British army in America during the Revolutionary War. 3. A mercenary soldier.

Hessian boot (hĕsh'ən bōt) n. A man's high, tasseled boot introduced into England by Hessians in the 19th century.

Hessian fly (hĕsh'ən flī) n. A small fly (Mayetiola destructor) having larvae that infest and destroy wheat and other grain plants.

hes-so-nite (hĕs'ə-nīt') n. Variant of essonite.

hest (hĕst) n. Archaic. Command; behest. [Middle English, alteration of hes, from Old English hǣs. See kei-2 in Appendix.]

Hes-ti-a (hĕs'tē-ə) n. Greek Mythology. The goddess of the hearth, daughter of Cronus and Rhea.

he-tae-ra (hĭ-tĭr'ə) also he-tai-ra (-tĭr'ə) n. pl. he-tae-rae (-tĭr'ē) or he-tae-ras also he-tai-rai (-tĭr'ī) or he-tai-ras. An ancient Greek courtesan or concubine, especially one of a special class of cultivated female companions. [Greek hetaira, from hetairoi, companion. See s(w)e- in Appendix.]

—he-tae'ric adj.

heter- pref. Variant of hetero-.

het-er-o (hĕt'ə-rō') n. pl. het-er-os. Informal. A heterosexual person. —het'er-o adj.

hetero- or heter- pref. 1. Other; different: heterochromatic. 2. Containing different kinds of atoms: heterocyclic. [Greek, from heteros, other. See sem-1 in Appendix.]

het-er-o-at-om (hĕt'ə-rō-ăt'əm) n. An atom other than carbon in the structure of a heterocyclic compound.

het-er-o-car-py (hĕt'ə-rō-kär'pē) n. Production of more than one kind of fruit. —het'er-o-car'pous (-kär'pəs) adj.

het-er-o-cer-cal (hĕt'ə-rō-sûr'kəl) adj. Relating to, having, or being a tail fin in which the upper lobe is larger than the lower and the vertebral column extends into the upper lobe, as in sharks. [HETERO- + Greek kerkos, tail + -AL¹.]

het·er·o·chro·mat·ic (hět'ə-rō-krō-măt'ik) adj. 1. Of or characterized by different colors; varicolored. 2. Consisting of different wavelengths or frequencies. 3. Of or relating to heterochromatin. —het'er·o·chro'ma·tism (-krō'mə-tiz'əm) n.

het·er·o·chro·ma·tin (hět'ə-rō-krō'mə-tin) n. Tightly coiled chromosomal material that stains deeply during interphase and is believed to be genetically inactive.

het·er·o·chro·mo·some (hět'ə-rō-krō'mə-sōm') n. 1. A chromosome composed primarily of heterochromatin. 2. A sex chromosome.

het·er·o·cy·clic (hět'ə-rō-sī'klīk, -sīk'līk) adj. Containing more than one kind of atom joined in a ring. —het'er·o·cy'cle (-sī'kəl) n. —het'er·o·cy'clic n.

het·er·o·cyst (hět'ər-ə-sīst') n. A large, thick-walled, transparent cell that occurs at intervals along the filaments of certain cyanobacteria.

het·er·o·dox (hět'ər-ə-dōks') adj. 1. Not in agreement with accepted beliefs, especially in church doctrine or dogma. 2. Holding unorthodox opinions. [Greek heterodoxos: hetero-, hetero- + doxa, opinion (from dokein, to think); see dek- in Appendix.]

het·er·o·dox·y (hět'ər-ə-dōk'sē) n. pl. het·er·o·dox·ies. 1. The condition or quality of being heterodox. 2. A heterodox opinion or doctrine.

het·er·o·dyne (hět'ər-ə-dīn') adj. Having alternating currents of two different frequencies that are combined to produce two new frequencies, the sum and difference of the original frequencies, either of which may be used in radio or television receivers by proper tuning or filtering. — v. tr. het·er·o·dyned, het·er·o·dyn·ing, het·er·o·dynes. To combine (a radio-frequency wave) with a locally generated wave of different frequency in order to produce a new frequency equal to the sum or difference of the two. [HETERO- + -dyne, power, frequency (from Greek dunamis, power); see DYNE.]

het·er·oe·cious (hět'ə-rē'shəs) adj. Spending different stages of a life cycle on different, usually unrelated hosts. Used of parasites such as rust fungi and tapeworms. [HETERO- + Greek oikia, house; see weik-¹ in Appendix + -OUS.] —het'er·oe'cism (-sīz'əm) n.

het·er·o·gam·ete (hět'ə-rō-gām'ēt', -gə-mēt') n. Either of two conjugating gametes that differ in structure or behavior, such as the small, motile male spermatozoon and the larger, nonmotile female ovum. Also called anisogamete het·er·o·ga·met·ic (hět'ə-rō-gə-mēt'ik) adj. 1. Producing dissimilar gametes, such as those of human males, who produce two types of spermatozoa, one bearing the X-chromosome and the other bearing the Y-chromosome. 2. Of or relating to heterogametes.

het·er·og·a·mous (hět'ə-rōg'ə-məs) adj. 1. Biology. a. Characterized by the fusion of unlike gametes in the reproductive process. b. Characterized by reproduction involving the alternation of sexual and parthenogenetic generations.

2. Botany. Bearing male and female flowers.

het·er·og·a·my (hĕt'ə-rŏg'ə-mĕ) n. 1. Alternation of sexual and parthenogenic generations, as in some aphids. 2. The state or condition in which conjugating gametes are dissimilar in structure and size as well as in function.

—het'er·o·gam'ic (-rŏ-găm'ik) adj.

het·er·o·ge·ne·i·ty (hĕt'ə-rŏ'jə-nĕ'i-tĕ) n. The quality or state of being heterogeneous.

het·er·o·ge·ne·ous (hĕt'ər-ə-jĕ'nĕ-əs, -jĕn'yəs) adj. 1. Also het·er·og·e·nous (hĕt'ə-rŏj'ə-nəs). Consisting of dissimilar elements or parts; not homogeneous. See Synonyms at miscellaneous. 2. Completely different; incongruous. [From Medieval Latin heterogeneous, from Greek heterogenēs : hetero-, hetero- + genos, kind, race; see genə- in Appendix.]

—het'er·o·ge'ne·ous·ly adv. —het'er·o·ge'ne·ous·ness n.

het·er·og·e·nous¹ (hĕt'ə-rŏj'ə-nəs) also het·er·o·gen·ic (-rŏ-jĕn'ik) adj.

Not arising within the body; derived from another individual or species: a heterogenous bone transplant. —het'er·og'e·ny n.

het·er·og·e·nous² (hĕt'ə-rŏj'ə-nəs) adj. Variant of heterogeneous (adj., sense 1).

het·er·og·o·nous (hĕt'ə-rŏg'ə-nəs) adj. Characterized by the alternation of sexual and parthenogenic generations. [HETERO- + -GON(Y) + -OUS.]

—het'er·og'o·ny n.

het·er·o·graft (hĕt'ə-rŏ-grăft') n. A type of tissue graft in which the donor and recipient are of different species. Also called xenograft het·er·og·y·nous (hĕt'ə-rŏj'ə-nəs) adj. Having two types of females, one able to reproduce sexually, the other infertile, as in ants.

het·er·o·kar·y·on (hĕt'ər-ə-kăr'ĕ-ŏn', -ən) n. A cell having two or more genetically different nuclei. [HETERO- + KARY(O)-.] —het'er·o·kar'y·ot'ic (-ŏt'ik) adj.

het·er·o·lec·i·thal (hĕt'ə-rŏ-lĕs'ə-thəl) adj. Embryology. Having the yolk unevenly distributed throughout the egg. [HETERO- + Greek lekithos, egg yolk + -AL¹.]

het·er·ol·o·gous (hĕt'ə-rŏl'ə-gəs) adj. 1. Derived from a different species: a heterologous graft. 2. Of or relating to cytologic or histological elements not normally occurring in a designated part of the body. 3. Immunologically related but not identical. Used of certain cells and antisera. [HETERO- + Greek logos, word, relation; see -LOGY + -OUS.] —het'er·ol'o·gous·ly adv.

het·er·ol·o·gy (hĕt'ə-rŏl'ə-jĕ) n. Lack of correspondence between bodily parts, as in structure, arrangement, or development, arising from differences in origin.

het·er·ol·y·sis (hĕt'ə-rōl'i-sīs, -ə-rō-lī'sīs) n. pl. het·er·ol·y·ses (-sēz').

1. Biology. Dissolution of cells or protein components in one species by the action of lysins or enzymes from another. 2. Chemistry. An organic reaction in which the breaking of bonds leads to the formation of ion pairs. —het'er·o·lyt'ic (-ə-rō-līt'ik) adj.

het·er·om·er·ous (hĕt'ə-rōm'ər-əs) adj. Having unequal or differing parts within the same structure or similar structures.

het·er·o·mor·phic (hĕt'ə-rō-môr'fik) adj. 1. Having different forms at different periods of the life cycle, as in stages of insect metamorphosis. 2. Differing from the standard form in size or structure: heteromorphic chromosome pairs.

—het'er·o·mor'phism n.

het·er·on·o·mous (hĕt'ə-rōn'ə-məs) adj. 1. Subject to external or foreign laws or domination; not autonomous. 2. Biology. Differing in development or manner of specialization, as the dissimilar segments of certain arthropods. [HETERO- + Greek nomos, law; see -NOMY + -OUS.] —het'er·on'o·mous·ly adv.

het·er·o·nym (hĕt'ər-ə-nīm') n. One of two or more words that have identical spellings but different meanings and pronunciations, such as row (a series of objects arranged in a line), pronounced (rō), and row (a fight), pronounced (rou). [Back-formation from HETERONYMOUS.]

het·er·on·y·mous (hĕt'ə-rōn'ə-məs) adj. 1. Being, relating to, or of the nature of a heteronym. 2. Being different names or terms but having correspondence or interrelationship, as mother and daughter. [From Late Greek heterōnumos, from Greek, with a different denominator : Greek hetero-, hetero- + Greek onoma, name; see nō-men- in Appendix.]

Het·er·o·ou·si·an (hĕt'ə-rō-ōō'sē-ən, -ou'sē-ən) also Het·er·ou·si·an (hĕt'ə-rōō'-, -rou'-) n. A Christian who believes that the substance and nature of God the Father and God the Son are different; an Arian. [From Greek heteroousios, differing in substance : hetero-, hetero- + ousia, substance, nature; see HOMOIOUSIAN.] —Het'er·o·ou'si·an, Het'er·ou'si·an adj.

het·er·oph·o·ny (hĕt'ə-rōf'ə-nē) n. Music. The simultaneous playing or singing of a single melody by two or more different instruments or singers. —het'er·o·phon'ic (-ər-ə-fōn'ik) adj.

het·er·o·phyl·lous (hĕt'ə-rō-fīl'əs) adj. Having dissimilar leaves on one plant. —het'er·o·phyl'ly n.

het·er·o·phyte (hĕt'ər-ə-fīt') n. A plant, such as a parasite or saprophyte, that obtains its nourishment from other living or dead organisms.

—het'er·o·phyt'ic (-fīt'ik) adj.

het·er·o·plas·ty (hĕt'ər-ə-plās'tē) n. pl. het·er·o·plas·ties. The surgical grafting of tissue obtained from one individual or species to another.

—het'er·o·plas'tic adj.

het·er·o·ploid (hět'ər-ə-ploid') adj. Having a chromosome number that is not a whole-number multiple of the haploid chromosome number for that species. —het'er·o·ploid' n. —het'er·o·ploi'dy n.

het·er·op·ter·ous (hět'ə-röp'tər-əs) adj. Of or belonging to the hemipterous insect suborder Heteroptera, which includes the true bugs, characterized by forewings and hind wings that differ from one another.

het·er·o·sex·ism (hět'ə-rō-sěk'siz'əm) n. Discrimination or prejudice against gay or homosexual people by heterosexual people.

het·er·o·sex·u·al (hět'ə-rō-sěk'shō-əl) adj. 1. Sexually oriented to persons of the opposite sex. 2. Of or relating to different sexes. — n. A heterosexual person. —het'er·o·sex·u·al·ly adv.

het·er·o·sex·u·al·i·ty (hět'ə-rō-sěk'shō-äl'ī-tē) n. 1. Sexual orientation to persons of the opposite sex. 2. Sexual activity with another of the opposite sex.

het·er·o·sis (hět'ə-rō'sīs) n. See hybrid vigor. [Late Greek heterōsis, alteration, alteration of Greek heteroiōsis, from heteroioun, to alter, from heterios, different in kind, from heteros, other. See HETERO-.] —het'er·ot'ic (-röt'ik) adj.

het·er·o·spo·rous (hět'ər-ə-spōr'əs, -spōr'-, hět'ə-rōs'pər-əs) adj. Producing two types of spores differing in size and sex. —het'er·o·spo'ry n.

het·er·o·styled (hět'ər-ə-stīld') adj. Botany. Having flowers with styles of differing length, as the primrose. —het'er·o·sty'lous adj. —het'er·o·sty'ly n.

het·er·o·tax·is (hět'ə-rō-tāk'sīs) also het·er·o·tax·y (hět'ər-ə-tāk'sē) or het·er·o·tax·i·a (hět'ə-rō-tāk'sē-ə) n. pl. het·er·o·tax·es also het·er·o·tax·ies or het·er·o·tax·i·as. Abnormal structural arrangement, as of body parts. —het'er·o·tac'tic (-tāk'tik), het'er·o·tac'tous (-tāk'təs) adj.

het·er·o·thal·lic (hět'ə-rō-thäl'ik) adj. Producing male and female gametangia in different structures or plants, as in some algae and fungi.

—het'er·o·thal'lism n.

het·er·o·to·pi·a (hět'ər-ə-tō'pē-ə) also het·er·ot·o·py (hět'ə-röt'ə-pē) n. Displacement of an organ or other body part to an abnormal location.

—het'er·o·top'ic (-tōp'ik) adj.

het·er·o·troph (hět'ər-ə-trōf', -trōf') n. An organism that cannot synthesize its own food and is dependent on complex organic substances for nutrition.

[HETERO- + Greek trophos, feeder; see -TROPHY.] —het'er·o·tro'phic adj.

—het'er·o·tro'phi·cal·ly adv. —het'er·ot'ro·phy (-ə-röt'rə-fē) n.

het·er·o·typ·ic (hět'ə-rō-tīp'ik) also het·er·o·typ·i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj.

1. Biology. Of, relating to, or being the reduction division of meiosis. 2. Of a different type or form.

het·er·o·zy·go·sis (hět'ə-rō-zī-gō'sīs) n. 1. The formation of a zygote by the union of genetically different gametes. 2. The condition of being a heterozygote.

het·er·o·zy·gote (hět'ə-rō-zī'gōt') n. An organism that has different alleles at a particular gene locus on homologous chromosomes.

het·er·o·zy·gous (hĕt'ər-ə-zī'gəs) adj. 1. Having different alleles at one or more corresponding chromosomal loci. 2. Of or relating to a heterozygote.

heth (KHĕt, KHĕs) n. The eighth letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew ḥĕt.]

het·man (hĕt'mən) n. pl. het·mans. See ataman. [Ukrainian het'man, from Polish hetman, from German dialectal hötmann, hetmann, captain; akin to German Hauptmann, from Middle High German houbetman : Old High German houbit, head; see kaput- in Appendix + Old High German man, man; see FUGLEMAN.]

heu·land·ite (hyōō'lən-dīt') n. A white, red, or yellow zeolite mineral, $\text{CaO} \cdot \text{Al}_2\text{O}_3 \cdot 6\text{SiO}_2 \cdot 5\text{H}_2\text{O}$. [After Henry Heuland, 19th-century British mineralogist.]

heu·ris·tic (hyōō-ris'tik) adj. 1. Of or relating to a usually speculative formulation serving as a guide in the investigation or solution of a problem: “The historian discovers the past by the judicious use of such a heuristic device as the ‘ideal type’” (Karl J. Weintraub). 2. Of, relating to, or constituting an educational method in which learning takes place through discoveries that result from investigations made by the student. 3. Computer Science. Relating to or using a problem-solving technique in which the most appropriate solution of several found by alternative methods is selected at successive stages of a program for use in the next step of the program. — n. 1. A heuristic method or process.

2. heuristics. (used with a sing. verb). The study and application of heuristic methods and processes. [From Greek heuriskein, to find.] —heu·ris'ti·cal·ly adv.

He·ve·sy (hĕv'ə-shĕ, hĕ'vĕ-), Georg von or George Charles de. 1885-1966. Hungarian chemist. He won a 1943 Nobel Prize for developing the use of isotopes as tracers to investigate chemical processes.

hew (hyōō) v. hewed, hewn (hyōōn) or hewed, hew·ing, hews. — v. tr.

1. To make or shape with or as if with an ax: hew a path through the underbrush.

2. To cut down with an ax; fell: hew an oak. 3. To strike or cut; cleave. — v.

intr. 1. To cut something by repeated blows, as of an ax. 2. To adhere or conform strictly; hold: hew to the line. [Middle English hewen, from Old English hēawan.

See kau- in Appendix.] —hew'er n.

HEW abbr. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Hew·ish (hyōō'ish), Antony. Born 1924. British astronomer. He shared a 1974 Nobel Prize in physics for his discovery of pulsars.

hewn (hyōōn) v. A past participle of hew.

hex¹ (hĕks) n. 1. An evil spell; a curse. 2. One that brings bad luck. — v. tr.

hexed, hex·ing, hex·es. 1. To put a hex on. 2. To bring or wish bad luck to:

“Chilly evening weather and a chain of minor snafus seemed to hex the $5,000-a-seat gala on Governors Island” (Newsweek). [Pennsylvania Dutch, from German hexen, to hex, from Hexe, witch, from Middle High German hecse, from Old High German hagzissa.] —hex'er n.

WORD HISTORY: The word hex is a good example of the sort of borrowing into English from other languages that occurred in the English-speaking former colonies of Great Britain. German and Swiss immigrants who settled in Pennsylvania in the late 17th and 18th centuries spoke a dialect of German known as Pennsylvania Dutch. In this dialect hexe was the equivalent of the German verb hexen, “to practice sorcery.” Our verb hex, first recorded in the sense “to practice witchcraft” in an 1830 work called Annals of Philadelphia, is borrowed from Pennsylvania Dutch, as is our noun.

hex² (hěks) adj. Hexagonal. Used of hardware.

hex. abbr. Hexagon; hexagonal.

hexa- or hex- pref. 1. Six: hexagram. 2. Containing six atoms, molecules, or groups: hexose. [Greek, from hex, six. See s(w)eks in Appendix.]

hex·a·chlo·ro·eth·ane (hěk'sə-klôr'ō-ěth'ān', -klôr'-) also hex·a·chlor·eth·ane (-klôr-ěth'ān', -klôr-) n. A colorless crystalline compound, Cl_3CCCl_3 , that is used as a camphor substitute and in pyrotechnics, explosives, and veterinary medicine.

hex·a·chlo·ro·phene (hěk'sə-klôr'ə-fēn', -klôr'-) n. An almost odorless white powder, $(\text{C}_6\text{HCl}_3\text{OH})_2\text{CH}_2$, used as a disinfectant and as an antibacterial agent in soaps. [HEXA- + CHLORO- + PHEN(OL).]

hex·a·chord (hěk'sə-kôrd') n. Music. A sequence of six tones with a semitone in the middle, the others being whole tones, that was used in medieval music. [Medieval Latin hexachordum, from Latin hexachordos, having six strings or stops : Greek hexa-, hexa- + Greek -khor-dos, string, note (from khordē); see CORD.]

hex·ad (hěk'säd') n. A group or series of six. [Late Latin hexas, hexad-, the number six, from Greek, from hex, six. See s(w)eks in Appendix.] —hex·ad'ic (hěk-säd'ik) adj.

hex·a·dec·i·mal (hěk'sə-dēs'ə-məl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or based on the number 16: the hexadecimal number system. 2. Of or relating to sixteenths. — n. A sixteenth.

hex·a·gon (hěk'sə-gŏn') n. Abbr. hex. A polygon having six sides. [Latin hexagōnum, from Greek hexagōnon, neuter of hexagōnos, having six angles : hexa-, hexa- + -gōnos, angled; see -GON.]

hex·ag·o·nal (hěk-säg'ə-nəl) adj. Abbr. hex. 1. Having six sides.

2. Containing a hexagon or shaped like one. 3. Mineralogy. Having three equal axes intersecting at angles of 60° in one plane and one axis of variable length that is perpendicular to the others. —hex·ag·o·nal·ly adv.

hex·a·gram (hĕk'sə-grām') n. 1. A six-pointed star formed by extending each of the sides of a regular hexagon into equilateral triangles. 2. A figure of six lines or sides.

hex·a·he·dron (hĕk'sə-hĕ'drən) n. pl. hex·a·he·drons or hex·a·he·dra (-drə). A polyhedron, such as a cube, that has six faces. [Greek hexaedron, from neuter of hexaedros, having six sides : hexa-, hexa- + -edron, -hedron.]

—hex'a·he'dral (-drəl) adj.

hex·am·er·ous (hĕk-sām'ər-əs) adj. 1. Having six similar parts or divisions. 2. Botany. Having flower parts, such as petals, sepals, and stamens, in sets of six.

—hex·am'er·ism n.

hex·am·e·ter (hĕk-sām'i-tər) n. 1. A line of verse consisting of six metrical feet. 2. In classical prosody, a line in which the first four feet are either dactylic or spondaic, the fifth dactylic, and the sixth spondaic. [Latin, from Greek hexametros, having six metrical feet : hexa-, hexa- + metron, meter; see METER¹.]

—hex'a·met'ric (hĕk-sə-mĕt'rĭk), hex'a·met'ri·cal (-rĭ-kəl) adj.

hex·a·meth·yl·ene·tet·ra·mine (hĕk'sə-mĕth'ə-lĕn-tĕt'rə-mĕn') n. See methenamine.

hex·ane (hĕk'sān') n. A colorless, flammable liquid, C₆H₁₄, derived from the fractional distillation of petroleum and used as a solvent and as a working fluid in low-temperature thermometers.

hex·a·pod (hĕk'sə-pŏd') n. A six-legged arthropod of the class Insecta (formerly Hexapoda); an insect. — adj. 1. Of or belonging to the class Insecta.

2. Having six legs or feet. [From New Latin Hexapoda, class name : Greek hexa-, hexa- + New Latin -poda, -pod.] —hex·ap'o·dous (hĕk-săp'ə-dəs) adj.

Hex·a·teuch (hĕk'sə-tŏok', -tyŏok') n. Bible. The first six books of the Old Testament. [HEXA- + (PENTA)TEUCH.]

hex·o·san (hĕk'sə-sān') n. Any of several polysaccharides that have the general formula (C₆H₁₀O₅)_n and form a hexose on hydrolysis.

hex·ose (hĕk'sŏs') n. Any of various simple sugars, such as glucose and fructose, that have six carbon atoms per molecule.

hex sign (hĕks sĭn) n. Any of various painted round signs incorporating designs, such as stylized stars, rosettes, or wheels, thought to be magical. These signs were painted on barns, especially by the Pennsylvania Dutch, to ward off misfortune or evil spells.

hex·yl (hĕk'səl) n. The hydrocarbon radical, C₆H₁₃, having valence 1.

hex·yl·re·sor·ci·nol (hĕk'səl-rĭ-zŏr'sə-nŏl', -nŏl', -nŏl') n. A yellowish-white crystalline phenol, C₆H₁₃C₆H₃(OH)₂, used as an antiseptic and anthelmintic.

hey (hā) interj. Used to attract attention or to express surprise, appreciation, wonder, or pleasure.

hey-day (hā'dā') n. The period of greatest popularity, success, or power; prime. [Perhaps alteration of heyda, exclamation of pleasure, probably alteration of Middle English hey, hey.]

Hey-er-dahl (hā'ər-däl', hī'-), Thor. Born 1914. Norwegian ethnologist and explorer who led the Kon Tiki expedition (1947) on a raft across the Pacific Ocean from Peru to Tuamotu to demonstrate that Polynesians may be of South American origin. In 1970 he crossed the Atlantic Ocean from Morocco to Barbados in a papyrus boat to show that ancient Egyptians might have sailed to America.

Hey-mans (hī'mənz, ā-mäns'), Corneille. 1892-1968. Belgian physiologist. He won a 1938 Nobel Prize for determining the role of the aortic sinus in the regulation of respiration.

Hey-rov-sky (hā-rōf'skē), Jaroslav. 1890-1967. Czechoslovakian chemist. He won a 1959 Nobel Prize for the development of polarography.

Hey-se (hī'zə), Paul Johann Ludwig von. 1830-1914. German writer noted for his novellas, including The Fury (1855), and novels, such as Children of the World (1873). He won the 1910 Nobel Prize for literature.

Hey-ward (hā'wərd), (Edwin) DuBose. 1885-1940. American writer whose novel Porgy (1925) and its dramatization (1927) became the basis of George Gershwin's folk opera Porgy and Bess.

Hey-wood (hā'wōd'), John. 1497?-1580?. English writer known for his didactic and comic interludes, such as The Four P's (c. 1520), and numerous epigrams and proverbs.

Hey-wood (hā'wōd'), Thomas. 1574?-1641. English playwright noted for his works concerning domestic life, especially A Woman Killed with Kindness (1603).

Hez-e-ki-ah (hěz'ī-kī'ə) also Ez-e-ki-as (ěz'ī-kī'əs), fl. 715?-686? B.C. King of Judah who, according to the Old Testament, sought to abolish idolatry and restore worship of Jehovah.

Hf The symbol for the element hafnium.

HF or hf abbr. High frequency.

hf. abbr. Half.

hfs abbr. Hyperfine structure.

hg abbr. 1. Hectogram. 2. Hemoglobin.

Hg The symbol for the element mercury (n., sense 1). [New Latin hydrargyrum, mercury, from Latin hydrargyrus, from Greek hudrargyros : hydr-, hudro-, hydro- + argyros, silver; see LITHARGE.]

HG or H.G. abbr. High German.

hgb. abbr. Hemoglobin.

HGH abbr. Human growth hormone.

hgt. abbr. Height.

hgwy. abbr. Highway.

H.H. abbr. 1. Her Highness; His Highness. 2. His Holiness.

hhd abbr. Hogshead.

HH.D. abbr. Latin. Humanitatum Doctor (Doctor of Humanities).

HHFA abbr. Housing and Home Finance Agency.

HHS abbr. Department of Health and Human Services.

hi (hī) interj. Informal. Used to express greeting.

HI abbr. 1. Hawaii. 2. High intensity. 3. Humidity index.

H.I. abbr. Hawaiian Islands.

Hi·a·le·ah (hī'ə-lē'ə) A city of southeast Florida northwest of Miami. An industrial center, it is noted especially for its racetrack that features flamingos roaming on its grounds. Population, 188,004.

hiatal hernia (hī-ā'tāl hūr'nē-ə) n. A hernia in which part of the stomach protrudes through the esophageal opening of the diaphragm. Also called hiatus hernia hi·a·tus (hī-ā'təs) n. pl. hi·a·tus·es or hiatus. 1. A gap or an interruption in space, time, or continuity; a break: "We are likely to be disconcerted by... hiatuses of thought" (Edmund Wilson). 2. Linguistics. A slight pause that occurs when two immediately adjacent vowels in consecutive syllables are pronounced, as in reality and naive. 3. Anatomy. A separation, an aperture, a fissure, or a short passage in an organ or a body part. [Latin hiātus, from past participle of hiāre, to gape.]

—hi·a'tal (-āt'l) adj.

hiatus hernia (hī-ā'təs hūr'nē-ə) n. See hiatal hernia.

Hi·a·wa·tha (hī'ə-wōth'ə, -wō'thə, hē'ə-), fl. 1570. Onondagan leader who is credited with the organization of the Iroquois confederacy. His name was given to the hero of Longfellow's poem The Song of Hiawatha (1855).

hi·ba·chi (hī-bā'chē) n. pl. hi·ba·chis. A portable charcoal-burning brazier with a grill, used chiefly for cooking. [Japanese : hi, fire + bachi, bowl.]

Hib·bing (hīb'ing) A city of northeast Minnesota in the Mesabi Range northwest of Duluth. Its mining industry was at its peak in 1917, when the town was moved 3.2 km (2 mi) south to make room for a huge open-pit iron mine. Population, 18,046.

hi·ber·nac·u·lum (hī'bər-nāk'yə-ləm) n. pl. hi·ber·nac·u·la (-lə). Biology.
1. A protective case, covering, or structure, such as a plant bud, in which an organism remains dormant for the winter. 2. The shelter of a hibernating animal. [Latin hibernāculum, winter residence, from hibernāre, to winter, from hibernus, relating to winter. See ghei- in Appendix.]

hi·ber·nal (hī-būr'nəl) adj. Of or relating to winter. [Latin hibernālis, from hibernus, wintry. See HIBERNACULUM.] hi·ber·nate (hī'bər-nāt') v. intr. hi·ber·nat·ed, hi·ber·nat·ing, hi·ber·nates. 1. To pass the winter in a dormant or torpid state. 2. To be in an inactive or dormant state or period. [Latin hibernāre, hibernāt-, to winter, from hibernus, relating to winter. See ghei- in Appendix.] —hi'ber-na'tion n.

—hi'ber-na'tor n.

Hi·ber·ni·a (hī-bûr'nē-ə) The Latin and poetic name for the island of Ireland.

—Hi·ber'ni·an adj. & n.

Hi·ber·no·Eng·lish (hī-bûr'nō-ĭng'glĭsh) n. See Irish English.

hi·bis·cus (hī-bĭs'kəs) n. Any of various chiefly tropical shrubs or trees of the genus Hibiscus, having large, showy, variously colored flowers with numerous stamens united into a tube surrounding the style. [Late Latin, variant of Latin hibiscum, marsh mallow, perhaps of Celtic origin.]

hic·cup also hic·cough (hĭk'əp) n. 1. a. A spasm of the diaphragm resulting in a rapid, involuntary inhalation that is stopped by the sudden closure of the glottis and accompanied by a sharp, distinctive sound. b. hiccups. also hiccoughs. An attack of these spasms. Often used with the. 2. The sound made by such a spasm or a sound resembling it: “the urgent hiccup of a police siren” (John Updike). —

v. intr. hic·cupped also hic·coughed, hic·cup·ping also hic·cough·ing, hic·cups also hic·coughs. 1. To make a hiccup or a sound like a hiccup. 2. To have an attack of hiccups. [Imitative.]

hick (hĭk) Informal. n. A person regarded as gullible or provincial: “New Yorkers had a horrid way of making people feel like hicks” (Louis Auchincloss). — adj. Provincial; unsophisticated: a hick town. [After Hick, a nickname for Richard, from Middle English Hikke.]

hick·ey (hĭk'ē) n. pl. hick·eys. Informal. 1. A device or contrivance; a gadget. 2. a. A reddish mark on the skin caused by kissing, biting, or sucking, as in love-making. b. A pimple. 3. A pipe-bending apparatus. 4. A threaded electrical fitting to connect a fixture to an outlet box. [Origin unknown.]

Hick·ok (hĭk'ök'), James Butler. Known as “Wild Bill.” 1837-1876. American frontier scout and marshal whose law enforcement exploits against Western outlaws are the subject of folk legends.

hick·o·ry (hĭk'ə-rē) n. pl. hick·o·ries. 1. Any of several chiefly North American deciduous trees of the genus Carya, having smooth or shaggy bark, compound leaves, and hard smooth stones or nuts, each containing an edible seed and surrounded by a husk that splits into four valves. 2. a. The hard, tough, heavy wood of such a tree. b. A walking stick or switch made from such wood. [Short for Virginia Algonquian pocohiquara, drink made of pressed hickory nuts.]

Hick·o·ry (hĭk'ə-rē, hĭk'rē) A city of west-central North Carolina northwest of Charlotte. Located at the foot of the Blue Ridge, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 28,301.

Hicks (hĭks), Edward. 1780-1849. American painter of primitive works, notably The Peaceable Kingdom, of which nearly 100 versions exist.

Hicks (hīks), Sir John Richard. 1904-1989. British economist. He shared a 1972 Nobel Prize for theories that help assess business risks and governmental economic policies.

Hicks-ville (hīks'vīl) A community of southeast New York on western Long Island northeast of Mineola. Founded in 1648, it is mainly residential. Population, 40,174.

hid (hīd) v. Past tense and a past participle of hide¹.

hi-dal-go (hī-dāl'gō, ē-thäl'gô) n. pl. hi-dal-gos. A member of the minor nobility in Spain. [Spanish, alteration of hijo dalgo, from Old Spanish fijo dalgo: fijo, son (from Latin filius); see dhē(i)- in Appendix + de, of (from Latin dē); see DE- + algo, something, possession (from Latin aliquō, ablative of aliquid: alius, some; see al⁻¹ in Appendix + quid, something); see k^{wo}- in Appendix.]

Hi-dat-sa (hē-dät'sä) n. pl. Hidatsa or Hi-dat-sas. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting an area along the Missouri River in western North Dakota. b. A member of this people. 2. The Siouan language of this people. Also called Gros Ventre hid-den (hīd'n) v. A past participle of hide¹.

hid-den-ite (hīd'n-īt') n. Mineralogy. A transparent emerald-green variety of spodumene, used as a gemstone. [After William E. Hidden (1832-1918), American mineralogist.]

hide¹ (hīd) v. hid (hīd), hid-den (hīd'n) or hid, hid-ing, hides. — v. tr.

1. To put or keep out of sight; secrete. 2. To prevent the disclosure or recognition of; conceal: tried to hide the facts. 3. To cut off from sight; cover up: Clouds hid the stars. 4. To avert (one's gaze), especially in shame or grief. — v. intr. 1. To keep oneself out of sight. 2. To seek refuge. — phrasal verb. hide out. To be in hiding, as from a pursuer: The gangsters hid out in a remote cabin until it was safe to return to the city. [Middle English hiden, from Old English hȳdan. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: hide, conceal, secrete, cache, screen, bury, cloak. These verbs mean to keep from the sight or knowledge of others. Hide and conceal are the most general and are often used interchangeably: I used a throw rug to hide (or conceal) the stain on the carpet. Don't hide (or conceal) your money in the cookie jar—it's the first place a thief would look. Fog hid (or concealed) the mountain. She smiled to hide (or conceal) her hurt feelings. "The other America, the America of poverty, is hidden today" (Michael Harrington). "The true use of speech is not so much to express our wants as to conceal them" (Oliver Goldsmith). Secrete and cache involve concealment in a place unknown to others; cache often implies storage for later use: The lioness secreted her cubs in the tall grass. The mountain climbers cached their provisions for the descent in a cave they could easily locate but that was inaccessible to animals. To screen is to shield or block from the view of others by interposing something such as a screen: Tall shrubs screen the actor's home from the curious. Bury implies covering over so as to conceal: buried the treasure; buried his hands in his pockets; buried the point of the article in a mass of details. To cloak is to conceal something, such as a thought, a plan, or an intention, by masking or disguising it: “On previously cloaked issues, the Soviets have suddenly become forthcoming” (John McLaughlin). See also Synonyms at block hide² (hīd) n. The skin of an animal, especially the thick, tough skin or pelt of a large animal. — v. tr. hid-ed, hid-ing, hides. To beat severely; flog.

—idiom. hide nor hair. A trace; a vestige: haven't seen hide nor hair of them since the argument. [Middle English, from Old English hȳd. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]

hide³ (hīd) n. An old English measure of land, usually the amount held adequate for one free family and its dependents. [Middle English, from Old English hīd. See kei⁻¹ in Appendix.]

hide-and-go-peek (hīd'n-gō-sēk') n. Games. See hide-and-peek.

hide-and-peek (hīd'n-sēk') n. Games. A children's game in which one player tries to find and catch others who are hiding. Also called hide-and-go-peek hide-a-way (hīd'ə-wā') n. 1. A place of concealment; a hideout. 2. A secluded or isolated place.

hide-bound (hīd'bound') adj. 1. Stubbornly prejudiced, narrow-minded, or inflexible. 2. Having abnormally dry, stiff skin that adheres closely to the underlying flesh. Used of domestic animals such as cattle. 3. Having the bark so contracted and unyielding as to hinder growth. Used of trees.

hid-e-ous (hīd'ē-əs) adj. 1. Repulsive, especially to the sight; revoltingly ugly. See Synonyms at ugly. 2. Offensive to moral sensibilities; despicable. [Middle English, variant of hidous, from Anglo-Norman, from Old French hide, hisde, fear, possibly of Germanic origin.] —hid'e-os'i-ty (-ōs'ī-tē) n. —hid'e-ous-ly adv. —hid'e-ous-ness n.

hide-out (hīd'out') n. A place of shelter or concealment.

hid-ey-hole (hī'dē-hōl') n. Informal. A secluded or isolated place; a hideaway.

hi-dro-sis (hī-drō'sīs) n. pl. hi-dro-ses (-sēz). 1. The formation and excretion of sweat. 2. Sweat, especially in excessive or abnormal amounts. [Greek hidrōsis, sweating, from hidrōs, sweat. See sweid- in Appendix.] —hi-drot'ic (-drōt'ik) adj.

hie (hī) v. intr. tr. hied, hie-ing or hy-ing (hī'ing), hies. To go quickly; hasten. [Middle English hien, from Old English hīgian, to strive, exert oneself.]

hi-e-mal (hī'ə-məl) adj. Of or relating to winter. [Latin hiemālis, from hiems, winter. See ghei- in Appendix.]

hier- pref. Variant of hiero-.

Hi·er·ap·o·lis (hī-ə-răp'ə-līs) An ancient city of northwest Asia Minor in present-day Turkey. The Roman city was known for its baths fed by hot springs. Hierapolis was also an early center of Christianity.

hi·er·arch (hī'ə-rărk', hī'rărk') n. 1. One who occupies a position of authority in a religious hierarchy. 2. One who occupies a high position in a hierarchy: governmental hierarchs. [From Middle English jerarchis, hierarchs, from Medieval Latin hierarcha, dignitary, prelate, from Greek hierarkhēs, high priest : hieros, holy; see eis- in Appendix + -arkhēs, -arch.]

hi·er·ar·chi·cal (hī'ə-răr'kī-kəl, hī-răr'-) or hi·er·ar·chic (-kīk) or hi·er·ar·chal (-răr'kəl) adj. Of or relating to a hierarchy. —hi'er-ar'chi-cal-ly adv.

hi·er·ar·chize (hī'ə-răr-kīz', hī'răr'-) v. tr. hi·er·ar·chized, hi·er·ar·chiz·ing, hi·er·ar·chiz·es. To arrange in a hierarchy. —hi'er-ar'chi-za'tion (-kī-ză'shən) n.

hi·er·ar·chy (hī'ə-răr'kē, hī'răr'-) n. pl. hi·er·ar·chies. 1. A body of persons having authority. 2. a. Categorization of a group of people according to ability or status. b. The group so categorized. 3. A series in which each element is graded or ranked: put honesty first in her hierarchy of values. 4. a. A body of clergy organized into successive ranks or grades with each level subordinate to the one above. b. Religious rule by a group of ranked clergy. 5. One of the divisions of angels. [Middle English ierarchie, from Old French, from Medieval Latin hierarchia, from Greek hierarkhia, rule of a high priest, from hierarkhēs, high priest. See HIERARCH.]

hi·er·at·ic (hī'ə-răt'īk, hī-răt'-) adj. 1. Of or associated with sacred persons or offices; sacerdotal. 2. Constituting or relating to a simplified cursive style of Egyptian hieroglyphics, used in both sacred and secular writings. 3. Extremely formal or stylized, as in a work of art. [Latin hieraticus, from Greek hieratikos, from hierateia, priesthood, from hierasthai, to be a priest, from hiereus, priest, from hieros, holy. See eis- in Appendix.] —hi'er-at'i-cal-ly adv.

hiero- or hier- pref. Sacred; holy: hierology. [Greek, from hieros, holy. See eis- in Appendix.]

hi·er·oc·ra·cy (hī'ə-rök'rə-sē, hī-rök'-) n. pl. hi·er·oc·ra·cies. Government by the clergy; ecclesiastical rule. —hi'er-o-crat'ic (hī'ər-ə-krăt'īk, hī'rə-krăt'-), hi'er-o-crat'i-cal adj.

hi·er·o·dule (hī'ər-ə-dōol', -dyōol') n. An ancient Greek temple slave in the service of a specific deity. [Late Latin hierodūlus, from Greek hierodoulos : hieron, temple, from neuter of hieros, hiero- + doulos, slave.] —hi'er-o-du'lic (-dōol'īk, -dyōol'-) adj.

hi·er·o·glyph (hī'ər-ə-glīf', hī'rə-) n. 1. A picture or symbol used in hieroglyphic writing. 2. Something that suggests a hieroglyph.

hi·er·o·glyph·ic (hī'ər-ə-glīf'ɪk, hī'rə-) also hi·er·o·glyph·i·cal (-i-kəl) adj.

1. a. Of, relating to, or being a system of writing, such as that of ancient Egypt, in which pictorial symbols are used to represent meaning or sounds or a combination of meaning and sound. b. Written with such symbols. 2. Difficult to read or decipher. — n. 1. a. A hieroglyph. b. Often hieroglyphics. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Hieroglyphic writing, especially that of the ancient Egyptians.

2. Something, such as illegible or undecipherable writing, that is felt to resemble a hieroglyph. [French hiéroglyphique, from Late Latin hieroglyphicus, from Greek hierogluphikos: hieros, holy; see eis- in Appendix + gluphē, carving (from gluphein, to carve); see gleubh- in Appendix.] — hi'·er·o·glyph'i·cal·ly adv.

Hi·er·o·glyph·ic Lu·vi·an (hī'ər-ə-glīf'ɪk lōō'vē-ən, lōō'ē- hī'rə-) or Hieroglyphic Luwian n. A dialect of the Luvian branch of the extinct Anatolian branch of Indo-European, found in documents and inscriptions in an indigenous hieroglyphic script from the late second and early first millenniums B.C. in Anatolia and northern Syria.

hi·er·ol·o·gy (hī'ə-rōl'ə-jē, hī-rōl'-) n. pl. hi·er·ol·o·gies. The sacred literature of a people.

hi·er·o·phant (hī'ər-ə-fānt', hī'rə-, hī-ēr'ə-fənt) n. 1. An ancient Greek priest who interpreted sacred mysteries, especially the priest of the Eleusinian mysteries. 2. An interpreter of sacred mysteries or arcane knowledge. 3. One who explains or makes a commentary. [Late Latin hierophanta, from Greek hierophantēs: hieros, holy; see eis- in Appendix + -phantēs, one who shows (from phainein, phan-, to show); see bhā⁻¹ in Appendix.] — hi'·er·o·phan'tic adj.

hi·fa·lu·tin (hī'fə-lōōt'n) adj. Informal. Variant of highfalutin.

hi·fi (hī'fī') n. pl. hi·-fis. Informal. 1. High fidelity. 2. An electronic system for reproducing high-fidelity sound from radio or recordings. [HI(GH) + FI(DELITY).] — hi'·fi' adj.

Hi·ga·shi·o·sa·ka (hē-gä'shē-ō-sä'kä) A city of southern Honshu, Japan, a residential and industrial suburb of Osaka. Population, 522,798.

Hig·gin·son (hĭg'ən-sən), Thomas Wentworth Storrow. 1823-1911. American writer and soldier who led the first Black regiment in the Union Army (1862-1864). He wrote many biographies, including volumes on Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and John Greenleaf Whittier (both 1902), and edited the poetry of Emily Dickinson.

hig·gle (hĭg'əl) v. intr. hig·gled, hig·gling, hig·gles. To haggle. [Probably alteration of HAGGLE.] — hig'gler n.

hig·gle·dy·pig·gle·dy (hĭg'əl-dē-pĭg'əl-dē) adv. In utter disorder or confusion: "There is something delightfully and liberatingly ludicrous about parading hig-gledy-piggledy in a line of walkers of all shapes and sizes" (Christa Worthington). — adj. Topsy-turvy; jumbled. [Origin unknown.]

high (hī) adj. high-er, high-est. Abbr. h., H. 1. a. Having a relatively great elevation; extending far upward: a high mountain; a high tower. b. Extending a specified distance upward: a cabinet ten feet high. 2. a. Being at or near the peak or culminating stage: the high tourist season; high summer. b. Advanced in development or complexity: high forms of animal life; higher mathematics. c. Far removed in time; remote: high antiquity. 3. a. Slightly spoiled or tainted; gamy. Used of meat. b. Having a bad smell; malodorous. 4. a. Having a pitch corresponding to a relatively large number of sound-wave cycles per second: the high tones of a flute. b. Raised in pitch; not soft or hushed: a high voice. 5. Situated relatively far from the equator: a high latitude. 6. a. Of great importance: set a high priority on funding the housing program. b. Eminent in rank or status: a high official. c. Serious; grave: high crimes and misdemeanors. d. Constituting a climax; crucial: The chase scene is the high point of the film. e. Characterized by lofty or stirring events or themes: high adventure; high drama. 7. Lofty or exalted in quality or character: a person of high morals. 8. a. Greater than usual or expected, as in quantity, magnitude, cost, or degree: “A high price has to be paid for the happy marriage with the four healthy children” (Doris Lessing). b. Favorable: He has a high opinion of himself. 9. Of great force or violence: high winds. 10. a. Indicating excitement or euphoria: high spirits. b. Slang. Intoxicated by or as if by alcohol or a drug, such as cocaine or marijuana. 11. Luxurious; extravagant: high living. 12. Linguistics. Of or relating to vowels produced with part of the tongue close to the palate, as in the vowel of tree. 13. Of, relating to, or being the gear configuration or setting, as in an automotive transmission, that produces the greatest vehicular speed with respect to engine speed. — adv. higher, highest. 1. At, in, or to a lofty position, level, or degree: saw a plane high in the sky; prices that had gone too high. 2. In an extravagant or luxurious way: made a fortune and lived high. — n. 1. A lofty place or region. 2. A lofty level or degree: Summer temperatures reached an all-time high. 3. The high gear configuration of a transmission. 4. A center of high atmospheric pressure; an anticyclone. 5. Slang. An intoxicated or euphoric condition induced by or as if by a drug. — idioms. high and dry. 1. In a position of helplessness; stranded: went off and left me high and dry. 2. Nautical. Out of water. Used of a ship, for example. high and low. Here and there; everywhere: searched high and low for the keys. on high. 4. High in the sky. 5. In heaven. 6. In a position of authority. [Middle English, from Old English hēah.] — high/ly adv.

SYNONYMS: high, tall, lofty, towering, elevated. These adjectives mean extending to a greater than usual height. High, the most general term, refers to what rises a considerable distance from a base or is situated at a level well above another level considered as a base: a high building; a high ceiling; a high shelf; high standards.

Tall describes what has relatively great stature; it often refers to living things and to what has great height in relation to breadth or in comparison with like things: a tall man; tall trees; a tall hat. Lofty describes what is of imposing or inspiring height: lofty mountains; lofty sentiments. Towering suggests awe-inspiring height: a towering oak; towering icebergs; towering ambition. Elevated stresses height in relation to immediate surroundings; it refers principally to being raised or situated above a normal or average level: an elevated plain; elevated praise; elevated thought.

high altar (hī ôl'tər) n. The main altar in a church.

high-and-might-y (hī'ən-mī'tē) adj. Marked by arrogance; haughty and overbearing. —high and mighty adv. & n.

high-ball (hī'bôl') n. 1. A cocktail served in a tall glass and consisting of liquor, such as whiskey, mixed with water or a carbonated beverage. 2. a. A railroad signal indicating full speed ahead. b. A high-speed train. — v. intr. high-balled, high-ball-ing, high-balls. Slang. To move ahead at full speed.

high beam (hī bēm) n. The beam of a vehicle's headlight that provides long-range illumination.

high-bind-er (hī'bīn'dər) n. 1. A corrupt politician. 2. A member of a Chinese-American secret society of paid assassins and blackmailers. [After the High-binders, a group of ruffians in New York City c. 1806.]

high blood pressure (hī blūd prěsh'ər) n. Hypertension.

high-born (hī'bôrn') adj. Of noble birth.

high-boy (hī'boi') n. A tall chest of drawers divided into two sections and supported on four legs.

high-bred (hī'brěd') adj. Of superior breed or stock: highbred cattle.

high-brow (hī'brou') adj. also high-browed (-broud') Of, relating to, or being highly cultured or intellectual: They only attend highbrow events such as the ballet or the opera. — n. One who possesses or affects a high degree of culture or learning. —high'brow'ism n.

high-bush cranberry (hī'bōosh' krăn'běr'ē) n. See cranberry bush.

high-chair (hī'châr') n. A very young child's feeding chair that has long legs, a footrest, and a usually detachable tray.

High-Church (hī'chûrch') adj. Of or relating to a group in the Anglican Church that stresses the historical continuity of Catholic Christianity and maintains traditional definitions of authority, the episcopacy, and the nature of the sacraments.

high-class (hī'klăs') adj. Of superior quality; first-class.

high comedy (hī kôm'ī-dē) n. Comedy of a sophisticated and witty nature, often satirizing genteel society.

high command (hī kə-mănd') n. 1. The supreme headquarters of a military force. 2. The most powerful leaders of an organization.

high commissioner (hī kə-mīsh'ə-nər) n. 1. A chief commissioner or one of high rank. 2. A chief representative of the government of one country who is assigned to an ambassadorial post in another country.

high-count (hī'kount') adj. Having a large number of warp and filling threads per square inch. Used of a woven fabric.

high-coun·try (hī'kūn'trē) adj. Of, relating to, or being country that is above the piedmont and below the timberline: “Alaska, where the quick wits, strong muscles, and nimble feet... can still be used in high-country logging” (Kathryn Hobbie).

high court (hī kôrt) n. Law. See Supreme Court (n., sense 2).

high-def-i-ni-tion television (hī'děf'ə-nīsh'ən tēl'ə-vīzh'ən) n. Abbr.

HDTV A television system that has twice the standard number of scanning lines per frame and therefore produces pictures with greater detail.

high-den-si-ty (hī'dēn'sī-tē) adj. Having a high concentration: high-density urban areas.

high-density lipoprotein (hī'dēn'sī-tē līp'ō-prō'tēn') n. Abbr. HDL A complex of lipids and proteins that functions as a transporter of cholesterol in the blood. High levels are associated with a decreased risk of atherosclerosis and coronary heart disease.

high-end (hī'ēnd') adj. Informal. 1. Appealing to sophisticated and discerning customers: a high-end department store; high-end video equipment.

2. Sophisticated and discerning: books targeted to the high-end consumer.

high-en-er-gy (hī'ēn'ər-jē) adj. 1. Of or relating to elementary particles with energies exceeding hundreds of thousands of electron volts. 2. Yielding a large amount of energy upon undergoing chemical reaction. 3. Vigorous; dynamic.

high-er criticism (hī'ər krīt'ī-sīz'əm) n. Critical study of biblical texts to ascertain their literary origins and history and the meaning and intention of the authors. —higher critic n.

higher education (hī'ər ěj'ə-kā'shən) n. Education beyond the secondary level, especially education at the college or university level.

higher law (hī'ər lô) n. A moral or religious principle that takes precedence over the constitutions or statutes of society.

higher learning (hī'ər lûr'nīng) n. Education or academic accomplishment at the college or university level.

high-er-up (hī'ər-ŭp') n. Informal. One who has a rank, position, or status superior to others.

high-est common factor (hī'ĭst kōm'ən fāk'tər) n. Abbr. H.C.F., h.c.f., hcf Mathematics. See greatest common divisor.

high explosive (hī ĭk-splō'sīv) n. Abbr. HE An explosive, such as TNT, that combusts nearly instantaneously, thereby producing a violent, shattering effect.

high-fa-lu-tin or hi-fa-lu-tin (hī'fə-lōōt'n) also high-fa-lu-ting (-lōōt'n, -lōō'tīng) adj. Informal. Pompous or pretentious: “highfalutin reasons for denying direct federal assistance to the unemployed” (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). [Origin unknown.]

REGIONAL NOTE: H.L. Mencken, in his famous book The American Language, mentions highfalutin as an example of the many native U.S. words coined during the 19th-century period of vigorous growth. Although highfalutin is characteristic of American folk speech, it is not a true regionalism because it has always occurred in all regions of the country, with its use and popularity spurred by its appearance in print. The origin of highfalutin, like that of many folk expressions, is obscure. It has been suggested that the second element, -falutin, comes from the verb flute—hence high-fluting, a comical indictment of one who thinks too highly of oneself.

high fashion (hī fāsh'ən) n. 1. See high style. 2. Haute couture.

high fidelity (hī fī-dēl'ī-tē) n. The electronic reproduction of sound, especially from broadcast or recorded sources, with minimal distortion. —high-fi-del'i-ty (hī'fī-dēl'ī-tē, -fī-) adj.

high finance (hī fə-nāns') n. Financial transactions or institutions that are extensive in size or scope.

high-five (hī'fīv') n. Slang. A gesture of greeting, elation, or victory in which one person slaps an upraised palm against that of another person.

high-fli-er also high-fli-er (hī'flī'ər) n. 1. One who is extravagant or extreme in manner or opinions. 2. A stock that sells well above its original value.

high-flown (hī'flōn') adj. 1. Exceedingly lofty or exalted: high-flown ideas about the history of Christianity. 2. Highly pretentious or inflated: high-flown rhetoric.

high-fly-ing (hī'flī'ŋ) adj. 1. Rising to a great height. 2. Unusually extravagant, affected, or ambitious.

high frequency (hī frē'kwən-sē) n. Abbr. HF, hf A radio frequency in the range between 3 and 30 megahertz.

high gear (hī gîr) n. 1. The high gear configuration of a transmission. 2. Informal. A state of maximum activity, energy, or force: Her mind was in high gear while studying for the art history examination.

High German (hī jûr'mən) n. Abbr. HG, H.G. 1. German as indigenously spoken and written in central and southern Germany. 2. See German (n., sense 2). [Translation of German Hochdeutsch : hoch, high (from the area's mountainous terrain) + Deutsch, German.] high-grade (hī'grād') adj. Of superior grade or quality.

high ground (hī ground) n. A position of superiority over others, especially competitors or opponents: used negotiations as a way to gain the psychological and intellectual high ground.

high-hand-ed (hī'hǎn'dīd) adj. Arrogant; overbearing. —high/hand/ed-ly adv. —high/hand/ed-ness n.

high hat (hī'hăt) n. 1. See top hat. 2. Music. A set of high-hat cymbals.

high-hat (hī'hăt') Informal. v. tr. high--hat-ted, high--hat-ting, high--hats. To treat in a condescending or supercilious manner. — adj. Snobbish; haughty.

high-hat cymbals (hī'hăt' sĭm'bəlz) pl.n. Music. A pair of cymbals positioned to be worked by a foot pedal.

High Holy Day (hī hō'lē dā) n. Judaism. Rosh Hashanah or Yom Kippur or any of the days in between. Also called High Holiday high horse (hī hōrs) n. Informal. A mood or an attitude of stubborn arrogance or contempt: Get down off your high horse and apologize.

high-in-come (hī'in'kŭm) adj. Of or relating to individuals or groups, such as families, that are supported by or earn income considered high in comparison with that of the larger population: high-income taxpayers.

high-jack (hī'jăk') Informal. v. & n. Variant of hijack.

high jinks or hi-jinks (hī'jĭnks') pl.n. Playful, often noisy and rowdy activity, usually involving mischievous pranks.

high jump (hī jŭmp) n. Sports. 1. A jump for height made over a horizontal bar in a track-and-field contest. 2. A contest in which high jumps are made. —high jumper n.

high-land (hī'lənd) n. 1. Elevated land. 2. highlands. A mountainous or hilly section of a country. — adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a highland.

High-land (hī'lənd) A town of northwest Indiana, a residential and industrial suburb in the Chicago-Gary metropolitan area. Population, 23,696.

high-land-er (hī'lən-dər) n. One who lives in a highland.

Highland fling (hī'lənd flĭng) n. A lively folk dance originating in the Highlands of Scotland.

Highland Park (hī'lənd părk) 1. A city of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago on Lake Michigan. Population, 30,575. 2. A city of southeast Michigan surrounded by Detroit. It grew mainly after Henry Ford established an automobile factory here in 1909. Population, 20,121.

High-lands (hī'ləndz) A mountainous region of central and northern Scotland extending northwest and including the Grampian Mountains. Famous for its rugged beauty, the area maintained a highly distinctive culture, based on the Scottish Gaelic language and the clan system, until well into the 19th century. —High/-land adj. —High/land-er n.

high-lev-el (hī'lěv'əl) adj. 1. Made up of or carried out by persons having high rank or status: a high-level corporate briefing. 2. Being at an elevated level in rank or importance: a high-level official. 3. Computer Science. Of, relating to, or being a language, such as BASIC or Pascal, in which each instruction or statement corresponds to several instructions in machine language. A high-level language is translated into machine language by a computer.

high-life or high life (hī'līf') n. Informal. An extravagant or luxurious style of living. —high/-lif'er n.

high-light (hī'līt') n. 1. An area or a spot in a drawing, painting, or photograph that is strongly illuminated. 2. An especially significant or interesting detail or event. — v. tr. high-light-ed, high-light-ing, high-lights. 1. To give a highlight to (the subject of a painting, for example). 2. a. To make prominent; emphasize. b. To be a highlight of. 3. To mark (important passages of text) with a usually fluorescent marker as a means of memory retention or for later reference.

high-light-er (hī'lī'tər) n. 1. A usually fluorescent marker used to mark important passages of text. 2. A cosmetic for emphasizing areas of the face, such as the eyes or cheekbones.

high-low (hī'lō') n. Games. 1. A poker game in which both high and low hands are eligible to win. 2. A signal chiefly in bridge for one's partner to lead a suit.

high-low-jack (hī'lō'jāk') n. Games. A card game in which points are scored for the high trump, low trump, jack of trumps, and either the ten of trumps or game.

High Mass (hī mäs) n. Roman Catholic Church. A mass in which the celebrant is assisted by a deacon and a subdeacon and accompanied by acolytes, a thurifer, and a choir.

high-mind-ed (hī'mīn'dīd) adj. Characterized by elevated ideals or conduct; noble. —high/-mind'ed-ly adv. —high/-mind'ed-ness n.

high muckamuck (hī mŭk'ə-mŭk') n. Slang. An important, often overbearing person. [From Chinook Jargon hayo makamak, plenty to eat.]

WORD HISTORY: Perhaps one would not immediately associate the word high muckamuck with Chinook Jargon, but it seems that English has borrowed the term. This pidgin language, which combines words from English, French, Nootka, Chinook, and the Salishan languages, was formerly used by Native Americans and fur traders in the Pacific Northwest. In this language hayo makamak meant “plenty to eat” and is recorded in that sense in English contexts, the first one dated 1853, in which the phrase is spelled Hiou Muckamuck. In 1856 we find the first recorded instance of the word meaning “pompous person, person of importance,” in the Democratic State Journal published in Sacramento: “The professors—the high ‘Muck-a-Mucks’—tried fusion, and produced confusion.” In this passage the Chinook Jargon term has been Anglicized in accord with its new meaning.

high-necked (hī'nēkt') adj. Having a high neckline: a high-necked sweater.

high-ness (hī'nīs) n. 1. The quality or condition of being high. 2. Highness.

Used with His, Her, or Your as a title and form of address for a prince or princess:

Her Royal Highness the Princess Margaret.

high noon (hī nōn) n. 1. Exactly noon. 2. The highest or most advanced stage or period: the high noon of her creativity.

high-octane (hī'øk'tān) adj. 1. Having a high octane number and thus good antiknock properties and high efficiency: high-octane gas. 2. Slang. High-powered; dynamic: a high-octane sales manager; a high-octane marketing plan.

high-pitched (hī'picht') adj. 1. High in pitch, as a voice or musical tone.

2. Steeply sloped, as a roof. 3. Marked by or indicating intense emotion: a high-pitched debate.

high place (hī plās) n. In early Semitic religions, a place of worship built usually on top of a hill.

High Point (hī point) A city of north-central North Carolina southwest of Greensboro. Settled before 1750, it is a furniture-manufacturing center. Population, 69,496.

high-powered (hī'pou'ərd) also high-power (-pou'ər) adj. Having great power or energy; dynamic: She's on a high-power career track.

high-pressure (hī'prēsh'ər) adj. 1. Of or relating to pressures higher than normal, especially higher than atmospheric pressure. 2. Informal. a. Using aggressive, persistent persuasive tactics: a high-pressure salesperson. b. Full of or imposing great stress or tension: a high-pressure job. — v. tr. high-pres-sured, high-pres-sur-ing, high-pres-sures. Informal. To attempt to sell (something) or persuade (someone) by using aggressive, persistent tactics.

high priest (hī prēst) n. 1. Judaism. A chief male priest, especially of the ancient Levitical priesthood. 2. Mormon Church. A male priest of the Melchizedek order. 3. The head or chief proponent, as of a movement or doctrine. — high priesthood n.

high priestess (hī prē'stīs) n. The female head or chief proponent, as of a movement or doctrine: the high priestess of modern art.

high profile (hī prō'fīl') n. An intentionally conspicuous, well-publicized presence or stance: "needs to maintain a high profile in his profession" (Tracy Keenan Wynn). — high'-pro'file (hī'prō'fīl) adj.

high relief (hī rī-lēf') n. Sculptural relief in which the modeled forms project from the background by at least half their depth. Also called alto-relievo high-res-o-lu-tion (hī'rēz'ə-lō'shən) adj. 1. Relating to an image that has fine detail. 2. Computer Science. Relating to an output device, such as a printer, whose images contain a large number of pixels and are therefore sharp and detailed.

high-rise (hī'rīz') adj. 1. a. Indicating or being a multistoried building equipped with elevators: a high-rise apartment building. b. Of, relating to, or marked by multistoried buildings: a high-rise fire; a high-rise district. 2. Of, relating to, or being a bicycle with small wheels, a banana-shaped seat, and high handlebars. — n. or high rise 1. A multistoried building equipped with elevators. 2. A high-rise bicycle.

high-risk (hī'risk') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characterized by risk: a high-risk business. 2. Being particularly subject to potential danger or hazard: a high-risk surgical procedure.

high-road or high road (hī'rōd') n. 1. a. The easiest or surest path or course: the highroad to happiness. b. The most positive, diplomatic, or optimistic course. 2. Chiefly British. A main road; a highway.

high roller (hī rō'lər) n. Slang. 1. One who spends freely and extravagantly, as for luxuries or entertainment. 2. One who gambles rashly or for high stakes. 3. An organization, such as a large corporation, that spends or invests liberally or rashly. —high'-roll'ing (hī'rō'lĭng) adj.

high school (hī skōōl) n. Abbr. HS, H.S. A secondary school that usually includes grades 9 through 12 or 10 through 12. —high'-school' (hī'skōōl') adj. —high school'er n.

high seas (hī sēz) pl.n. The open waters of an ocean or a sea beyond the limits of the territorial jurisdiction of a country: piracy on the high seas.

high sign (hī sīn) n. Informal. An often prearranged secret sign or signal intended especially to warn or inform: gave me the high sign that it was time to leave.

high-sound-ing (hī'soun'dĭng) adj. Pretentiously impressive; pompous: high-sounding oratory.

high-speed (hī'spēd') adj. 1. Operated or designed for operation at high speed: a high-speed food processor. 2. Taking place at high speed: a high-speed chase. 3. Having a speed of 50-500 frames per second, as movie film, to record events that occur too rapidly for usual photography.

high-spir-it-ed (hī'spĭr'ĭ-tĭd) adj. 1. Having a proud or unbroken spirit: a high-spirited horse. 2. Vivacious; lively: a high-spirited tune. —high'-spir'it-ed-ly adv. —high'-spir'it-ed-ness n.

high-stick-ing (hī'stĭk'ĭng) n. Sports. The act of carrying the blade of an ice hockey stick at a height ruled illegal.

high street (hī strēt) n. Chiefly British. A main street.

high-strung (hī'strŭng') adj. Tending to be very nervous and easily excited.

high style (hī stīl) n. The latest in trendsetting fashion or design, usually intended for or adopted by an exclusive clientele. Also called high fashion —high'-style' (hī'stī') adj.

hight (hīt) adj. Archaic. Named or called. [Middle English, past participle of highten, hihten, to call, be called, from hehte, hight, past tense of hoten, from Old English hātan. See kei-² in Appendix.]

- high-tail (hī'tāl') v. intr. high-tailed, high-tail-ing, high-tails. Slang. To go as fast as possible, especially in retreating: hightailed out of town. [From those animals that raise their tails when fleeing.]
- high tea (hī tē) n. Chiefly British. A fairly substantial meal that includes tea and is served in the late afternoon or early evening.
- high tech (hī tēk) Informal. n. 1. High technology. 2. A style of interior decoration marked by the use of industrial materials, equipment, or design. — adj. also hi-tech (hī'tēk') Of, relating to, or resembling high technology.
- high technology (hī tēk-nōl'ə-jē) n. Technology that involves highly advanced or specialized systems or devices. — high'-tech-nol'o-gy (hī'tēk-nōl'ə-jē) adj.
- high-tension (hī'tēn'shən) adj. Abbr. HT Having a high voltage.
- high-test (hī'tēst') adj. 1. Of or relating to highly volatile high-octane gasoline. 2. Meeting exacting requirements.
- high-tick-et (hī'tik'it) adj. Informal. Very expensive: “developing a boundless appetite for high-ticket travel” (Eileen Keerdoja).
- high tide (hī tīd) n. 1. Abbr. HT a. The tide at its fullest, when the water reaches its highest level. b. The time at which this tide occurs. 2. A point of culmination; a climax. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a high tide mark; a high tide departure.
- high-toned (hī'tōnd') adj. 1. Intellectually, morally, or socially superior. 2. Informal. Pretentiously elegant or fashionable: a high-toned restaurant.
- high-tops (hī'tōps') pl.n. Sneakers or athletic shoes that lace up to the ankle. Also called high-top shoes, high-top sneakers.
- high treason (hī trē'zən) n. Treason against one's country or sovereign.
- high water (hī wō'tər) n. Abbr. HW 1. High tide. 2. The state of a body of water that has reached its highest level.
- high-water mark (hī'wō'tər märke, -wōt'ər) n. 1. Abbr. HWM A mark indicating the highest level reached by a body of water. 2. The highest point, as of achievement; the apex.
- high-way (hī'wā') n. Abbr. hwy, hwy. A main public road, especially one connecting towns and cities.
- high-way-man (hī'wā' mən) n. A man who holds up and robs travelers on a road.
- highway patrol (hī'wā' pə-trōl') n. A state law enforcement organization whose police officers patrol the public highways.
- highway robbery (hī'wā' rōb'ə-rē) n. 1. Robbery usually of travelers on or near a public road. 2. Informal. The exaction of an exorbitantly high price or fee. — highway robber n.

high wire (hī wīr) n. A tightrope for aerialists that is stretched very high above the ground. —idiom. high-wire act. Slang. A risky job or operation.

—high'-wire' (hī'wīr') adj.

High Wyc-ombe (hī wīk'əm) A municipal borough of southeast-central England west-northwest of London. It is an industrial center. Population, 68,900.

H.I.H. abbr. 1. Her Imperial Highness. 2. His Imperial Highness.

hi-jack also high-jack (hī'jæk') Informal. v. tr. hi-jacked, hi-jack-ing, hi-jacks. 1. a. To stop and rob (a vehicle in transit). b. To steal (goods) from a vehicle in transit. c. To seize control of (a moving vehicle) by use of force, especially in order to reach an alternate destination. 2. a. To steal from as if by hijacking. b. To swindle or subject to extortion. — n. The act or an instance of hijacking. [Probably back-formation from highjacker, perhaps from jacker, holdup man, from JACK, to jacklight.] —hi'jack'er n.

hi-ji-ki (hē-jē'kē) n. pl. hi-ji-kis. An edible seaweed with a strong flavor. [Japanese.]

hi-jinks (hī'jɪŋks') pl.n. Variant of high jinks.

hike (hīk) v. hiked, hik-ing, hikes. — v. intr. 1. To go on an extended walk for pleasure or exercise. 2. To rise, especially to rise upward out of place: My coat had hiked up in the back. — v. tr. 1. To increase or raise in amount, especially abruptly: shopkeepers who hiked their prices for the tourist trade. 2. To pull or raise with a sudden motion; hitch: hiked myself onto the stone wall; hiked up her knee socks. 3. Football. To snap (the ball). — n. 1. A long walk or march. 2. An often abrupt increase or rise: a price hike. 3. Football. See snap (n., sense 13).

—phrasal verb. hike out. Nautical. To sit facing the sail and lean far backward and over the side of a small boat in order to keep the craft flat in the water.

—idiom. take a hike. Slang. To leave because one's presence is unwanted.

Often used in the imperative. [Origin unknown.] —hik'er n.

hi-la (hī'lə) n. Plural of hilum.

hi-lar-i-ous (hī-lâr'ē-əs, -lâr'-, hī-) adj. Characterized by or causing great merriment. [Latin hilarus, hilaris, cheerful; see HILARITY + -IOUS.] —hi-lar'i-ous-ly adv. —hi-lar'i-ous-ness n.

hi-lar-i-ty (hī-lâr'ī-tē, -lâr'-, hī-) n. Great merriment. See Synonyms at mirth. [Middle English hilarite, good spirits, from Old French, from Latin hilaritās, from hilaris, cheerful, from Greek hilaros.]

Hil-de-brand (hīl'də-bränd') See Gregory VII.

Hil-den (hīl'dən) A city of west-central Germany, an industrial suburb of Düsseldorf. Population, 53,297.

Hil-des-heim (hīl'dəs-hīm', -dēs-) A city of central Germany south-southeast of Hanover. A member of the Hanseatic League, it passed to Hanover in 1813 and to Prussia in 1866. Population, 101,017.

hill (hīl) n. 1. A well-defined natural elevation smaller than a mountain. 2. A small heap, pile, or mound. 3. a. A mound of earth piled around and over a plant. b. A plant thus covered. 4. An incline, especially of a road; a slope. 5. Hill. a. Capitol Hill. Often used with the. b. The U.S. Congress. Often used with the. — v. tr. hilled, hill-ing, hills. 1. To form into a hill, pile, or heap. 2. To cover (a plant) with a mound of soil. —idiom. over the hill. Informal. Past one's prime. [Middle English hil, from Old English hyll. See kel-² in Appendix.] —hill'er n.

Hill (hīl), Ambrose Powell. 1825-1865. American Confederate officer active in the Seven Days' Battle, the Second Battle of Bull Run, and the Battle of Antietam (all 1862). His charge began the Battle of Gettysburg (1863).

Hill (hīl), Archibald Vivian. 1886-1977. British physiologist. He shared a 1922 Nobel Prize for his investigation of heat production in muscles and nerves.

Hill (hīl), James Jerome. Known as "J.J. Hill." 1838-1916. American railroad magnate who promoted the Great Northern Railway and with J.P. Morgan wrested control of the Northern Pacific Railroad from E.H. Harriman in a stock market struggle that provoked the Panic of 1901.

Hil-la-ry (hīl'ə-rē), Sir Edmund Percival. Born 1919. New Zealand mountaineer and explorer who in 1953 with a Sherpa guide, Tenzing Norgay, first attained the summit of Mount Everest.

hill-bil-ly (hīl'bīl'ē) n. pl. hill-bil-lies. Informal. A person from the backwoods or a remote mountain area. [HILL + Billy, a nickname for William.]

hillbilly music (hīl'bīl'ē myōō'zīk) n. Music. A type of country music originating in the Appalachian Mountains and based on the traditional folk music of the British Isles.

hill-crest (hīl'krēst') n. The summit line of a hill.

Hill-crest Center (hīl'krēst' sēn'tər) A community of south-central California, a suburb of Bakersfield. Population, 30,000.

Hillcrest Heights (hīl'krēst' hīts) A community of west-central Maryland, a suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 17,136.

Hil-lel (hīl'ēl, -āl, hē-lēl'), fl. first century B.C.-first century A.D. Palestinian rabbi who greatly influenced the interpretation of Judaic law.

Hil-liard (hīl'yərd), Nicholas. 1547-1619. English painter who founded a school of miniature painting under the patronage of Elizabeth I and James I.

Hill-man (hīl'mən), Sidney. 1887-1946. Lithuanian-born American labor leader who was president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (1914-1946) and a founder of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (1935).

hill myna (hīl mī'nə) n. A starling (Gracula religiosa) native to Europe and North America, having the capacity to mimic human speech and often kept as a pet.

hill·ock (hīl'ək) n. 1. A small hill. 2. Biology. A small protuberance or elevation, as from an organ, a tissue, or a structure. [Middle English hillok, from hil, hill. See HILL.] —hill'ock·y adj.

Hills·bor·o (hīlz'būr'ō, -būr'ō) A city of northwest Oregon west of Portland. It was settled in the 1840's. Population, 37,520.

hill·side (hīl'sīd') n. The side or slope of a hill, situated between the foot and the summit. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: hillside villas; a hillside village.

Hill·side (hīl'sīd') A community of northeast New Jersey north of Elizabeth. It has varied light industries. Population, 21,044.

hill·top (hīl'tōp') n. The crest or top of a hill. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: hilltop homes; a hilltop view.

hill·y (hīl'ē) adj. hill·i·er, hill·i·est. 1. Having many hills. 2. Similar to a hill; steep. —hill'i·ness n.

Hi·lo (hē'lō) A city of Hawaii on the eastern coast of Hawaii Island on Hilo Bay, an inlet of the Pacific Ocean. Settled in the 1820's by American missionaries, the city is a trade and shipping center whose economy depends heavily on sugar exports and tourism. Population, 37,808.

hilt (hīlt) n. The handle of a weapon or tool. —idiom. to the hilt. To the limit; completely: played the role to the hilt. [Middle English, from Old English.]

Hil·ton (hīl'tən), Conrad Nicholson. 1887-1979. American hotel-chain organizer who acquired hotels in many American cities and in 1946 founded the Hilton Hotel Corporation.

Hil·ton (hīl'tən), James. 1900-1954. British novelist whose best-known works are Lost Horizon (1933), set in the fictional land of Shangri-La, and Goodbye, Mr. Chips (1934).

Hilton Head Island (hīl'tən hēd ī'lənd) An island off the southern coast of South Carolina in the Sea Islands of the Atlantic Ocean. It is a popular tourist resort. The town of Hilton Head Island, on the northeast coast, has a population of 23,694.

hi·lum (hī'ləm) n. pl. hi·la (-lə). 1. Botany. a. The scar on a seed, such as a bean, indicating the point of attachment to the funiculus. b. The nucleus of a starch grain. 2. Anatomy. The area through which ducts, nerves, or blood vessels enter and leave an organ or a gland. [Latin, trifle.] —hi'lar (-lər) adj.

Hil·ver·sum (hīl'vər-səm) A city of central Netherlands southeast of Amsterdam. It is a manufacturing and broadcasting center. Population, 88,417.

him (hīm) pron. The objective case of he. 1. Used as the direct object of a verb: They saw him at the meeting. 2. Used as the indirect object of a verb: They offered him a ride. 3. Used as the object of a preposition: This telephone call is for him. 4. Informal. Used as a predicate nominative: It's him. See Usage Note at I¹. —

n. A male: The dog is a him. [Middle English, from Old English. See ko- in Appendix.]

H.I.M. abbr. 1. Her Imperial Majesty. 2. His Imperial Majesty.

Him·a·la·ya Mountains (hĭm'ə-lā'yə moun'tənz, hĭ-mäl'yə) A mountain system of south-central Asia extending about 2,414 km (1,500 mi) through Kashmir, northern India, southern Tibet, Nepal, Sikkim, and Bhutan. The Himalayas include nine of the world's ten highest peaks, including Mount Everest.

—Him'a-la'yan adj. & n.

Hi·ma·lia (hĭ-mäl'yə) n. The satellite of Jupiter that is 11th in distance from the planet. [Greek, name of a nymph who bore three sons of Zeus, probably from himalia, abundance of wheat-meal, from feminine of himalios, abundant.]

hi·mat·i·on (hĭ-măt'ē-ōn') n. pl. hi·mat·i·a (-ē-ə). A rectangular, woolen or linen cloak worn by men and women in ancient Greece. [Greek, diminutive of hima, himat-, garment, variant of heima, from hennunai, to clothe. See wes-² in Appendix.]

Hi·me·ji (hē'mě-jē', hē-mě'jē) A city of southwest Honshu, Japan, west-northwest of Kobe. An industrial center, it has a large Buddhist shrine. Population, 452,916.

Himm·ler (hĭm'lər), Heinrich. 1900-1945. German Nazi leader. Second in power to Hitler, he directed the Nazi elite forces, the SS (1929-1945); commanded the Third Reich's police and secret police, the Gestapo (1936-1945); and coordinated the operation of the concentration and extermination camps (1941-1945). Captured by the British, he killed himself.

him·self (hĭm-sĕlf') pron. 1. That one identical with him: a. Used reflexively as the direct or indirect object of a verb or the object of a preposition: He congratulated himself. b. Used for emphasis: He himself found the courage. c. Used in an absolute construction: In the black himself, he could offer financial assistance to his cousin. 2. His normal or healthy condition or state: He's feeling himself again. See Usage Note at myself. [Middle English, from Old English himselfum : him, him; see HIM + selfum, dative of self, self; see SELF.]

Him·yar·ite (hĭm'yə-rīt') adj. Of or relating to the Himyarites, their language, or their culture. — n. 1. A member of an ancient tribe of southwest Arabia. 2. The Semitic language of the ancient Himyarites. [After Himyar, a legendary king of Yemen.] —Him'yar·it'ic (-rīt'ik) adj.

hin (hĭn) n. A unit of liquid measure used by the ancient Hebrews, equal to about five liters. [Middle English, from Late Latin, from Greek, from Hebrew hĭn, of Egyptian origin.]

Hi·na·ya·na (hē'nə-yä'nə) n. Buddhism. A small, conservative branch of Buddhism following the Pali scriptures and the nontheistic ideal of self-purification to nirvana. Also called Theravada [Sanskrit hīnayānam, lesser vehicle : hīna-, inferior; see ghē- in Appendix + yānam, vehicle, way; see ei- in Appendix.]

—Hi'na-ya'nist n. —Hi'na-ya-nis'tic (-yā-nīs'tik) adj.

Hinck-ley (hīngk'lē) An urban district of central England east-northeast of Birmingham. Hosiery and shoes are among its manufactures. Population, 55,600.

hind¹ (hīnd) also hind-er (hīn'dər) adj. Located at or forming the back or rear; posterior: an animal's hind legs; the hinder part of a steer. [Middle English hinde, short for bihinde, behind, from Old English bihindan. See ko- in Appendix.]

hind² (hīnd) n. 1. A female red deer. 2. Any of several fishes of the genus Epinephelus of Atlantic waters, related to and resembling the groupers. [Middle English, from Old English.]

hind³ (hīnd) n. 1. Chiefly British. A farm laborer, especially a skilled worker. 2. Archaic. A country bumpkin; a rustic. [Alteration of Middle English hine, household servants, possibly from Old English hīne, genitive of hīgan, hīwan, members of a household. See kei-¹ in Appendix.]

Hind. abbr. 1. Hindi. 2. Hindustani.

hind-brain (hīnd'brān') n. See rhombencephalon.

Hin-de-mith (hīn'də-mīth, -mīt), Paul. 1895-1963. German violist and composer of chamber music, instrumental works, and operas, such as Mathis der Maler (1938).

Hin-den-burg (hīn'dən-bûrg', -bōork'), Paul von. 1847-1934. German general and politician who as president of the Weimar Republic (1925-1934) appointed Adolf Hitler as chancellor (1933).

hin-der¹ (hīn'dər) v. hin-dered, hin-der-ing, hin-ders. — v. tr. 1. To be or get in the way of. 2. To obstruct or delay the progress of. — v. intr. To interfere with action or progress. [Middle English hindren, from Old English hindrian. See ko- in Appendix.] —hin'der-er n.

SYNONYMS: hinder, hamper, impede, obstruct, block, dam, bar. These verbs mean to slow or prevent progress or movement. To hinder is to hold back, as by delaying: The travelers were hindered by storms throughout their journey. Often the word implies stopping or prevention: What is to hinder you from trying? To hamper is to hinder by or as if by fastening or entangling: A suit and an overcoat hampered the efforts of the accident victim to swim to safety. She was hampered by ill health in building up her business. To impede is to slow by making action or movement difficult: "Sentiment and eloquence serve only to impede the pursuit of truth" (Macaulay). Obstruct implies the presence of obstacles that interfere with progress: A building under construction obstructs our view of the mountains. One of the mugger's accomplices tried to obstruct the police officer from upholding the law. Block refers to complete obstruction that prevents progress, passage, or action: A huge snowdrift is blocking the entrance to the driveway. "Do not block the way of inquiry" (Charles S. Peirce). Dam suggests obstruction of the flow, progress, or release of something, such as water or emotion: dammed the brook to form a swimming pool; dammed up his emotions. To bar is to prevent entry or exit or prohibit a course of action: mounted troops barring access to the presidential palace; laws that bar price fixing.

hind·er² (hīn'dər) adj. Variant of hind¹.

hind·er·most (hīn'dər-mōst') adj. Variant of hindmost.

hind·gut (hīnd'güt') n. The caudal portion of the embryonic alimentary canal in vertebrates.

Hin·di (hīn'dē) n. Abbr. Hind. 1. A group of vernacular Indic dialects spoken in northern India. 2. The literary and official language of northern India that is based on these dialects. It is written in Devanagari and uses Sanskrit as a resource language. [Hindi Hindī, from Hind, India, from Persian, from Old Persian Hindu, the Indus River, from Sanskrit sindhuh, river.] —Hin'di adj.

hind limb (hīnd līm) n. A posterior appendage, such as a leg, wing, or flipper.

